Red Cross Roll Call to Be Completed Next Saturday

RED CROSS ROLL CALL NOW ON

C. C. Bogan Chairman Roll Call Drive

The Red Cross are here organization perfected and everything in readiness to complete the Red Cross twelfth annual roll call, according to C. C. Bogan, chairman of the drive, who in an interview with a representative of The News this morning stated that it is expected that 400 members will be enrolled by the workers by Saturday night.

The drive has the backing of the Lions Club and the following have been appointed captains of their respective districts with power to select such assistants as needed: north part of town, E. L. Sitter; southeast part, H. S. Williams; northwest, M. D. Bentley; southwest and Floral addition, Johnnie R. Babb. The town will be divided at the intersection of Main and First streets and each captain will be responsible for his district.

Mrs. KIRK McCOY has been appointed captain of the Saturday workers, when it is expected that a number of ladies will assist in seeing that everyone in town wears a Red Cross button. The Saturday workers will meet everyone who is not wearing a button, as a button is issued with each membership.

The memberships cost $1.00, and it is expected that everyone will avail themselves of the opportunity to join at the earliest possible moment, in order that the work of the committee may be completed this week.

MORSE SELLS ROYALTY

A transaction has been recently consummated where Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Morse have completed a sale of royalty interest in their lands north of town.

The transaction between Mr. and Mrs. Morse and M. Reynolds, H. B. Hill and C. E. Edgewood, each of whom have purchased a 1-384th interest in and under certain lands has just been recorded. The transaction equals 1-16th of the royalties under the following lands: the north half of the northeast quarter of section 67, the west half of the northwest quarter of section 68, the north half of the northeast quarter of section 53, the north half of the northeast quarter of section 54, and the north half of the northeast quarter of section 57, all in block 25, H. and G. N. survey.

The amount of the transaction was not announced.

BACK SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

Reported. The Back school is starting each day to the pupils' hot lunch. The materials for these lunches are furnished by the pupils. They alternate from soups, hot chocolate and various stimulating foods.

A very interesting and constructive project is being carried on in the form of a doll house and furnishings built altogether by pupils. A contest is to be held; votes a penny each, and the child securing the most votes will be given the doll house. Every girl cherishes the idea that she may get it. The money from this project will go into the library fund.

A new library, purchased from the pie supper money, has arrived. The children are taking great interest in it.

Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Eason of Wellington visited relatives here Saturday night.

Roger Powers was a visitor in Amarillo Monday.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S BENEFIT PROGRAM FRIDAY EVENING

The program for the crippled children's fund will be given on Friday night of this week in the high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock, admission 25c and 50c. The proceeds of the program will be placed on the deficit of the McLean crippled children's fund, which, according to a recent letter from Miss Duncan, is more than we had anticipated. She stated that James Cobbe's expenses thus far are around $1,000, and that Ophelia Cunningham's were approximately $600. Besides this, we owe approximately $400 on Nolita Johnson's care and about $200 on the other children sent from McLean. Thus far we have paid on this fund $600.

Following is the program outlined: Music—Mrs. Willie Boyett and Mrs. A. B. Blake.

Silent drama—Clara Bringham, Helen Hogue, Fyron McMillen, Wayland Floyd, Bob Haggcock, Dwight Upham and Jack McMillen.

College campus—Fyron McMillen, ensemble.

Saw Echoes—Wayland Floyd.

30th Harmonies—Jewel Shaw and Ruby Cook.

Humor—Fyron McMillen and Bob Hammett.

Hawaiian Six—Leola Saunders, Jeyel Shaw, Bonnie Miller, Ruby Cook, Willie Boyett and Wayland Floyd.

We are especially anxious to help defray the expenses of our own children inasmuch as there are more than forty other children anxious and waiting to be allowed to take advantage of this treatment but who have been held back on account of a lack of funds.

Again we are asking for support in this work, and are thanking you for your past assistance.

Mrs. L. G. McMillen.
Miss Ruby Cook.

AMARILLO LIONS WILL SPEAK AT PROGRAM

A couple of prominent members of the Amarillo Lions Club will speak at the benefit program Friday night, according to word received here by Miss Ruby Cook. Miss Duncan, nurse, of Oklahoma City will also be present and address the audience.

COTTON GINNED HERE EXCEEDS LAST YEAR

The total number of cotton bales ginned by the local gins has already exceeded the total crop of last year. Up to Wednesday night of this week the three McLean gins had turned out 3,276 bales, as against 2,892 for the whole season last year.

One cause for the large number of bales being ginned here is the fact that a uniformly high market has prevailed in McLean and farmers have been attracted from other towns and communities. The price has been as high as 19c at times for middling basis. The price was quoted at 17 1/2c this morning (Thursday).

Estimates variously arrived at indicate only about 40% of the crop gathered in the McLean district, and the quality of lint is above the average for this season of the year.

ELITE BARBER SHOP IMPROVES BUILDING

The Elite Barber Shop has enlarged and improved their shop recently. The building has been extended, giving much more room in the shop, a beauty shop has been added, and a double shine stand installed. The bath room has had several improvements, making the equipment fully modern.

The barbers are now wearing white uniforms and the general appearance of the shop is improved in many ways.

This shop is the oldest and one of the most progressive to be found in this section. Their advertisement has appeared in The News each week for a number of years.

Mrs. Frank King and daughters, Misses Mary and Lucile, motored to Shamrock Sunday.

Mrs. Everett Watkins and children returned Sunday from a visit with relatives in Amarillo.

Miss Merie Tummins of Hedley visited her parents here last week end.

W. S. White made a business trip to Pampa Tuesday.

John C. Haynes made a trip to Amarillo Monday.

ST. CLAIR-ROWE WELL SHUT DOWN FOR CASING

The St. Clair-Rowe oil test near town is shut down at around 1600 feet awaiting a delayed shipment of casing; however, the shipment may arrive any day when drilling will be resumed.

It is rumored that a new location will be made on the Back lands on the northeast corner of section 24, block 25, near McClellan creek.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL DISCUSSED BY LIONS

The matter of securing McLean's quota for the Red Cross roll call drive was the subject of discussion at the Lions luncheon Tuesday.

Lion Coffey, chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, reported supplies in the hands of the roll call chairman for 500 members. It was stated that Lion C. C. Bogan, treasurer of the local Red Cross, is chairman of the membership drive, and all who spoke to the proposition asserted their readiness to help put over the campaign.

Lion Bentley recalled the good work of the Red Cross in this community in storm relief a few years ago, and it was the expression of everyone that everything possible should be done to go over the top with the membership drive this year.

President Rives stated that program committee consisting of Lions Tummins, Brooks and Cobb, had asked to be relieved for a few weeks, and Lions Davidson, Campbell and Landers were asked to serve for the next month or so.

The membership reported favorably on Sam Hodges and Arthur Erwin and they were unanimously elected to membership.

Lion Coffey unfortunately got into the clutches of Tail Twister Finley when he addressed a member, using the appellation "Mr." and was forced to pay a ten cent fine.

Lion Cobb presented as his guest Mr. Andrews of Denver, Colo.

Those present were: R. R. Rives, E. L. Sitter, M. D. Bentley, T. J. Coffey, T. A. Landers, Perry Everett, Donald Beall, J. J. Cobb, H. W. Finley, R. C. Davidson, A. A. Leebetter, W. L. Campbell, H. W. Brooks and Mr. Andrews.

BAPTISTS NOW PLAN TO BUILD

Collection Begun for Erection of Auditorium

At a recent meeting of the members of the First Baptist church, it was definitely decided to erect an auditorium over the present basement.

The church was begun several years ago with the idea of worshipping in the basement until such time as the membership was able to finish the building.

The proposed building will be of brick veneered tile construction and will have a Sunday school section in the auditorium separated from the main auditorium by folding doors. A baptistry is planned and several small rooms for the use of Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. The basement will also be cut into rooms and fitted for auxiliary use.

The church will be a copy of the First Baptist church at White Deer when completed, with the possible exception of the front entrance.

The building can be completed for about $20,000, the basement being worth some $8,000. It is planned to raise $6,000 in cash and effect a loan for the balance.

A collection was started Sunday, and a committee is at work to see every one interested. The last amount pledged for the cash payment, as reported by the committee was $2,460.56.

DEER HUNTERS REPORT TWO BUCKS, KILLED

A party of McLean hunters left Wednesday of last week for a hunt in the Black hills of New Mexico, returning Tuesday, reported two fine bucks killed by Sammie Cubine and Victor Back.

The hunting grounds were some 94 miles from Magdalena, the nearest town, and the cars were driven down a canyon as far as possible and then the hunters were forced to climb the canyon sides to the hunting grounds. The climb took an hour, and a half of strenuous exercise each day, and while countless numbers of doe were seen, very few buck deer were in evidence, with hunters plentiful.

Those making the trip were: C. C. Bogan, Omas E. Cooke, C. J. Cash, Hansel Christian, Sammie Cubine and Victor Back.

COUNTY JAIL FENCED

A ten-foot steel wire fence topped with barbed wire has been constructed around the Gray county jail, following recent jail breaks.

The jail contains from 15 to 20 permanent prisoners, the greater part of the time awaiting the action of the grand jury.

McGOWEN ANNOUNCES FALL STYLE EXHIBIT OF FINE FURNITURE

The McGowen Furniture Co. announces a Fall Style Exhibit of fine furniture in a half page advertisement in this issue of The News.

Cluid McGowen, manager of the firm, explains that the circular advertising about the event was furnished by the factory. Mr. McGowen makes this explanation, as he has all his printing done at home, from government stamped envelopes to dodgers, believing that for everyone to trade at home is the best way to promote prosperity and satisfaction to all concerned.

Miss Georgia Stratton, Mrs. J. B. Stratton and Mrs. Bobbie, visited at Lefors Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Loftin of Alanreed were McLean visitors Friday.

FARMER BOOSTS HIS POULTRY PAY CHECK

Boosting the production of his 200 hen flock from ten eggs daily in September, 1927, to more than one hundred eggs per day in the succeeding winter months, L. W. Hartman of Orange Grove in Jim Wells county has boosted his monthly poultry pay check by $17.58. He has been demonstrating good poultry management under the supervision of his county agent, L. A. Pierce, who explains that this increased production cost an additional cash outlay of only $10 and a few extra hours of labor. There were fewer hens in the flock during 1928 than in 1927, yet the monthly returns in 1927 were only $22.19 as against $39.77 last season. Another favorable result was the fact that the peak of egg production was reached in the months of December, January and February when egg prices are high.

The demonstration consisted of culling out the poor layers, feeding a balanced ration and keeping the birds well housed and free of lice, blue bugs and intestinal worms. Extension Service suggestions from Texas A. & M. College as contained in C-52 Poultry Culling, C-33, Feeding for Egg Production, B-65, Poultry House for Texas, and C-89, Common Worms in Poultry, were used in this demonstration.

One of the best rations suggested in the bulletin on poultry feeding is popularly known as the "Big Five Ration" and is designed for farms where no milk is available. The laying mash is composed of 100 pounds each of corn meal, ground oats, wheat bran, wheat shorts and meat scrap of 50% protein. Wheat farmers may substitute 200 pounds finely ground wheat for the bran and shorts in the ration to make it more nearly a farm grown ration. The scratch feed is made up in the proportions of two pounds cracked corn or maize, one pound wheat and one pound oats. Where plenty of mill is available and kept before the flock at all times the meat scrap may be left out of the mash in this ration and the scratch feed changed to three pounds cracked corn or maize and one pound wheat, omitting the oats.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

"A large portion of our earthly ills are due to faulty diet, and he who limits himself to bread, meat, potatoes and sugar is bound to suffer certain bad results," declares Miss Lola Blair, Food Specialist in the A. & M. College Extension Service, in outlining food and health programs for women's home demonstration clubs the coming year. "Milk, fruit and vegetables furnish the large share of the phosphorus, calcium and iron in our food and when comblined with eggs, meats and grains they form a balanced diet." The essentials of an adequate diet as suggested by the Division of Rural Research, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, furnish the basis of a dietary program to be pushed by Texas home demonstration agents this year. This adequate diet consists of 1 1/2 pints of milk daily; at least one serving of butter, whole cereal and starchy vegetables each day, and leafy vegetables at least three times per week. Every person should have two servings of fruit daily of which one should be raw, and three times during the week some citrus fruit or tomatoes (fresh or canned) should be eaten. Of protein-rich foods such as meat or eggs or cheese or beans or peas or nuts, a person should have one serving of any two of these daily. If these essentials are observed, say these authorities, a person may consider himself to be keeping to a fairly good diet.

Mrs. Laura Stratton and son, Charles, made a trip to Shamrock Monday.

Hubby—"My, but this egg's bad!"
Wife—"Well, dear, perhaps it's one by a young hen without much experience."

He—"If you refuse me I shall love another."
She—"Will that hold true if I accept you?"

The value of buildings on farms in Texas is about $500,000,000.

Almost 300,000 farms are by tenants in Texas.

A HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUB

There is no high school glee club at the present time, but there is to be one organized as soon as the high school moves into the new building. Many of the students are anxious to organize a glee club, and there will be a large number of members. We think, since so many students in high school are interested in this work, that a glee club will make possible many interesting entertainments. Students who have good voices and need training will have an opportunity to learn many things they should know about music. A glee club will be of much use in rendering chapel programs.

P. T. A. MEETS THURSDAY

The Parent-Teacher Association met Nov. 8 at the high school auditorium. The lesson was taken from "The Child; His Nature and His Needs," led by Mrs. H. W. Finley. Mrs. L. V. Lonsdale, Rev. D. H. Brynoff and Mrs. McGowan gave talks on the child.

The president, Mrs. Wayland Floyd, resigned. A new one will be elected at the next meeting.

The following program was enjoyed by all who attended:

Piano solo—Lois Ruth Stanfield. Reading—Melroe Richardson. Piano solo—Laverne Pettit. Reading—Harold Hodges.

GIRLS FORM BASKETBALL TEAM

On the afternoon of Nov. 8, the girls who intend to play basketball this year met with Miss Blount, the coach, and elected the following officers: Marie Reed captain, Dot Payne reporter and secretary-treasurer.

The girls who were at the meeting were: Mary Bryant, Marie Reed, Pauline Phillips, Thelma Young, Arletta Isobel, Lillian Carpenter, Georgia Stratton, Pauline Muncie, Dot Payne, Irene McCoy, Clara Pearl Gallin, Dorothy Cousin, Irene Tillery, Corrie Lee Newman and Fern Landers.

The first day of school, Miss Blount called at the postoffice and inquired if there was a letter for her.

"Business or love letter?" asked the clerk jokingly.

"Business," was the blushing reply.

As no letter could be found, she took her departure, but at the door turned and came back. "Would you mind looking among the love letters?"

Mr. Carrio—"Gosh, my roommate sure has vanity. He stands for hours in front of the mirror admiring his good looks."

Mr. Tummins—"That's not vanity; that's imagination."

Mr. Coffey—"Son, what does this 60 on your chemistry experiment mean?"

John Boyd—"I don't know, sir; maybe it's the temperature of the room."

FORTUNE HUNTING

By Cleone West Chapter 7

When Joan appeared down stairs the following morning, Dave was waiting for her in the library. As she entered, he rose to meet her.

"I am sorry if I've kept you waiting," Joan was saying.

"Oh! not at all. Are you ready for our spin over the city?"

"Ready and waiting," smiled Joan as they stepped into Dave's small roadster.

"You won't be waiting long," assured Dave as they turned the corner and came in view of the aviation field.

Joan found to her surprise that she was somewhat excited. She did not know why, for she had ridden in an aeroplane several times, but not with Dave as pilot. Perhaps that was it.

As the small blue monoplane glided swiftly over the city, above the noisy crowds and clang and bang of traffic, she caught the real beauty of the city. It was not what she had seen a few days before. Nor did she come back to herself until the plane had stopped and she found herself being helped out by Dave.

When Joan and Dave returned, they found Lois waiting for them. After lunch they drove out to the shore of Lake Michigan for a swim.

That evening it was arranged that Joan, Lois, Dave and Fred should have dinner together.

"I'd rather find a nice quiet place to dine than the Plaza, hadn't you?" asked Dave as they were leaving the Skipper home.

"I'm not much for these classy, boisterous night clubs. It's much more pleasant to be alone."

This seemed to suit them all; so a tea garden in the suburbs of the city was selected. In the small tea garden they dined and danced until late.

When they returned, Mrs. Skipper was waiting for them. "Why, mother's still up!" exclaimed Lois as the car came to a stop. "Wonder what the matter is? I hope she isn't ill."

As they entered the house, Mrs. Skipper came swiftly up the hall and handed Joan a telegram. Joan took it with trembling hands and read the few words: "Come home at once. Ellis."

"I am very sorry, but my grandfather's lawyer, Mr. Ellis, needs me on some important matter and it is necessary that I return as quickly as possible. I have enjoyed my visit and am very sorry that it should end so abruptly."

"We are certainly glad to have you and are extremely sorry to have you go, but I am sure you are needed; so run along to bed, for you will need all your strength for your ride home tomorrow," smiled Mrs. Skipper as she left the room.

"Oh, say," called Dave as Joan mounted the stairs, "How about my driving you home in my plane?"

"Oh! fine," cried Joan. "I'd be delighted. What time do you want me to be ready tomorrow?"

"Any time. Good-night."

JOHNNIE'S WELCOME

By a Student

Johnnie James Jenkins Jr., sat on the back fence of his home with his elbows on his knees and his chin in his cupped hands, thinking deeply. He held in his fingers a small cord and attached to the other end of it, sitting on his haunches and gazing placidly at Johnnie, was a small black and white bull pup, one of whose eyes was white, while the other was black. His little pug nose was tilted in his master's direction and his whole countenance bespoke sympathy.

Johnnie was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, the former a prominent banker of the city, a kind man who knew boys. The latter was a very aristocratic woman who was determined to bring her son up to be a so-called gentleman; but Johnnie, whose curly red hair and freckled face bespoke mischief, was a constant breaker of her rules.

That very morning, she had had that individual to put on his white shirt and trousers and go to Professor Bluenote's to take his piano lesson. But on the return home, he found a number of his friends playing football. His side came out victorious in the game, but not without cost. Johnnie lost his cap and tie, tore his shirt and trousers, got a skinned knee and his clothes were awfully dirty. He had gathered up what music he could find and had started home, but he encountered a little darkey with the black and white pup. He promptly traded his portfolio and music for it and came home to discover his mother had arrived from town. So he seated himself on the fence as we first found him. He was wondering how he would be able to get upstairs to his room and change his battle-scarred garments.

Suddenly his meditations were broken by a "Hi, there, Johnnie!" from across the alley. He looked up to see who was calling, and discovered his faithful friend and ally, Jimmie Murphy, just mounting the top of the fence. Without a word, Johnnie turned his gaze back to his canine companion and his mind back to his troubles.

Jimmie slipped from the fence and came over to survey the pup with envious eyes. "Gee, Johnnie, where'd you git 'im?" he exclaimed.

No answer.

Jimmie looked up at him questioningly. "What's the matter, Johnnie?"

"Aw, nothin'," was the reply.

"Why don't y' talk, then?"

"Well, there is sompin' th' matter, but maybe I better not tell y'."

"Aw, tell me, Johnnie. Ain't I yer pal?"

"Yeah."

"Well, tell me, then?"

"Well, I guess I'll tell y' then," replied the overburdened Johnnie.

"This morning I had t' put on my Sunday clothes and go take my penmanship lesson. I done that all right; but on the way back, I got in a pippin' game of football an' I tore my clothes, got dirty, an' I got this here dog from a little nigger an' now mother's home and how am I goin' to get to change clothes and git this dawg up to my room? What am I goin' to do?"

After a few minutes, Jimmie decided. "I know what we'll do, Johnnie. I'll go in an' ask if you're home and maybe they'll think you're up in your room an' if I get to go up, I'll drop this rope out the window an' you can climb up."

"What'll we do with Spot?"

"You can throw him up to me. So long."

He put the rope into his shirt and slipped around to the front of the house and rang the bell. Promptly Mrs. Jenkins answered the door and told Jimmie that she had not seen Johnnie since she had come home, but that he might run upstairs and see if he was there.

A few minutes later, Jimmie tied the rope to Johnnie's bed and flung the rope out the window. At this signal, a small black and white object struck him square in the face and sent him to the floor with a crash. Directly after that, the red curls of Johnnie appeared above the sill, then his head and shoulders, and the scene that he saw almost made him burst forth in a torrent of laughter. There on the floor lay Jimmie with one elbow as a prop, and with the other hand he was rubbing a fast swelling knot on his head. The pup stood on his chest trying to lick the tears which slowly trickled down his ruddy cheeks. A moment later, Johnnie was by his side asking if he was hurt, and trying to hold back the threatened mirth.

"How come y' to throw him so quick, Johnnie?" Jimmie asked.

"The cook came out the back door an' I had to hurry," was the reply. "Let's hurry, though. Take these clothes and wrap 'em around the dog and put him in the closet over there while I change," he said, flinging the dirty shirt at him.

Ten minutes later, the two boys appeared on the porch, discussing what to do with the pup, in covert tones.

Johnnie wore a blue shirt and overalls, and a straw sombrero adorned his bright curls.

Suddenly a scream was heard from the depths of the house, and Sarah, the colored cook, dashed out upon the veranda closely followed by a small ghostly looking object which made the corner of the porch disappear from sight, leaving the colored lady trembling with fright and the boys sitting looking at each other softly chuckling.

"Johnnie!" came from the top of the stairs.

"Yes'm."

"Come here!"

Johnnie rose and went inside, where Jimmie skipped safely away.

"What d' y' want?"

"Are these the trousers you had this morning?"

"Yes'm."

"What on earth have you doing?"

"Playin' football."

"Football!"

"Yes'm."

"Come right upstairs with the young man. I'll teach you to obey me."

Half an hour later, Johnnie appeared at the barn where Jimmie awaited him.

"Did it hurt?"

"Some."

"Come an' set down an' tell me about it."

"Nuhuh. I don't wanta set down but let's go git a sody."

"Did she give y' some money about that?"

"Nope, dad came home," he replied.

It is to be hoped that the repeal of prohibition will not enter into another election for a while. The rank and file of both parties will never vote for a return of the open saloon.

Spiritual perfection of kindness, fairness and sincerity are much more valuable and lasting than physical perfections like beauty and strength, yet there is nothing to be said against desiring physical perfection.

There is no question of the desirability of a building restriction ordinance in McLean prohibiting objectionable business to be established in the residential district. Right now is the time to pass such an ordinance and not wait until some urgent need arises.

Trading at home is not something that applies to the merchant's customers and not to the merchant himself. Merchants should patronize fellow merchants for goods outside their lines. And the same thought should obtain when in need of printing of any kind.

A large share of the Democratic Hoover vote was a protest against Tammany influence, and if the Democratic party is to be in the future a party for and by the people, the leaders must take into consideration the wants of the common voter. The day of the party whip seems to be past, and candidates must suit the voters, or expect to lose.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Jim Stanley, wealthy young New York business man, unable to concentrate in his dictation to his desk audiphone, has the machine taken to his home, intending to finish his work there. Rollin Waterman, his business partner and closest friend, comes in. Both men are exceedingly in love with Doris Colby. Stanley proposes they toss a coin to determine which of them shall, that evening, first ask her to marry him. Waterman wins.

CHAPTER II.—Nina Morgan, Waterman's secretary, also his mistress, has overheard his conversation with Stanley and resents Waterman's plan to desert her. Waterman tells her he is practically penniless and must make a rich marriage. He urges Nina to go to Doris and tell her she (Nina) has been wronged—but by Stanley. The girl consents on Waterman's promise to take care of her.

CHAPTER III.—Doris admits to her father her interest in both Stanley and Waterman, and is sure they are both in love with her, but she is unable to make up her mind which to marry.

CHAPTER IV.—Nina goes to Doris with her story, securing a promise that Doris will not reveal the source of her information. She convinces Doris of Stanley's duplicity, and leaves her broken hearted, and realizing that it is Stanley she really has loved.

CHAPTER V.—Waterman that evening asks Doris to marry him, and she, believing Stanley unworthy, accepts him. According to the arrangement, Stanley appears, to learn his rival has won. He accepts the situation, and as a wedding present gives his share of the business to Waterman. Next day he arranges with his secretary, Frank Wilson, to take charge of his other business interests. He is going to India.

CHAPTER VI.—Doris, unable to put Stanley completely out of her mind, tells Waterman part of Nina's story. He promises to try to find the girl so that full corroboration can be made. Waterman is deeply in debt to a gambler, Bromfield, and is unable to pay for payment. Waterman quiets him by the news of his engagement to the wealthy Doris Colby.

CHAPTER VII.—Waterman makes a financial arrangement with Nina which will insure her silence.

CHAPTER VIII.—Frank Wilson, who has long been aware of Waterman's crooked business methods and his debts, sees Nina at the wedding and vague suspicions are aroused in him. He leaves Waterman's employ. The latter begins to importune Doris for money, ostensibly for the "business" but actually for gambling purposes.

CHAPTER IX.—At Waterman's urging Doris wears her magnificent diamond necklace, to the opera. That night it disappears. Doris's father, who is Bromfield's aid in tracing the stouthe gambler's wide underworld acquaintance making him a likely party to get information about the general, and is apparently satisfied with the results of Bromfield's efforts.

CHAPTER X.—Stanley returns to New York with an East Indian friend, Swami Ramana. Doris realizes now that she loves him, and always has. Made desperate by Waterman's conduct she suggests separation or divorce. Waterman refuses to consider either. Stanley calling on Doris, feels all his old love for the girl awakened. He invites her and Waterman to his country home the following Saturday. Tossing with the audiphone which had been in use in Stanley's old office, the machine reproduces the conversation Waterman had with Nina Morgan when the conspiracy was arranged, and Stanley's eyes are opened.

CHAPTER XI.—Doris's father gives Stanley details of Waterman's misconduct, including the theft of Doris's diamonds, which Bromfield had recovered. Waterman had used them to pay gambling debts. Mr. Colby entrusts the gems to Stanley. Doris tells Jim of Nina's charge against him and he easily convinces her of its falsity. Perceiving that both of their lives have been spoiled, Stanley determines on exposing Waterman's treachery.

"Why—er—" Stanley went on, feeling the other's gaze as he spoke, "and said that on that very night I've just been speaking of—you know, the night you won her and I lost her—some woman came to her and told her a scandalous story about me."

Waterman thought it necessary to affect amazement. "Really?" he said. But Stanley gave him a slightly mocking smile. "Oh, come now, my dear chap—no use pretending you don't know it, because she told me that you do."

Waterman flinched. "Well, of course," he said, with outspread hands. "Oh, I know you pronounced her you wouldn't tell, and—you were always the soul of honor. However, as she has told you, you needn't pretend any longer."

Waterman could not suppress a wave of discomfort. "Well," he said finally, "it's her business."

"Yes," agreed Stanley, "and mine—just a little. I suppose you don't happen to know the exact details of this woman's story?"

This put Waterman in a lute. Being in complete ignorance of what Doris had told Stanley, he hadn't the faintest idea how to answer. But after a moment's hesitation he decided it was safer to deny knowledge of the matter.

"Why no—no," he said. "Nor who this woman was?"

"No—no—certainly not," Stanley smiled again, still amiably. "Naturally," he remarked, "I'm a bit curious to know what villainy I'm accused of."

"She—er—she didn't tell me," stammered the other. "Said she'd promised."

"Yes—well, I'm glad to see that Doris has finally come around to your opinion, Rolly."

"My opinion?"

"Yes—oh, she told me how you had defended me. Thanks, old man—thanks. I knew I could always depend upon your loyalty," and he put his hand affectionately on Waterman's shoulder. "Well now—help yourself to the port—to get back to that afternoon in the office—oh, just a moment—"

He rose, walked to the desk and pressed a button. After a moment the little door behind the desk swung open and Wilson appeared. "Frank," said Stanley, "I want you to fetch that machine here, if you please—you know the one I mean."

Wilson looked at him an instant and swallowed hard before he said, "Very well, sir," and went out.

Waterman made a heroic effort to shake off his growing uneasiness. "What is it, a radio?" he said.

"No," smiled Stanley, "it's not a radio. It's—well, I suppose we might call it a sort of accounting machine. It was once used in our old office."

Accounting machine—accounting—Waterman somehow disliked that word. "Didn't know we had any accounting machines," he observed.

"Well," returned the other, "we had this one, and I rather think you'll recognize it."

At this moment Wilson reappeared in his hands he carried the audiphone.

"Set it here, Frank," commanded Stanley, indicating the desk, "and you needn't sit up any longer. I sha'n't need you again tonight."

Wilson fixed his eyes upon him— "Are you sure, sir?"

"Oh, quite, quite," said Stanley easily.

Wilson had another brief struggle with himself. He opened his mouth to speak again, then shut it with a snap and slowly went out, closing the door behind him.

"What the devil's the matter with the fellow?" demanded Waterman. "Looks as if he'd seen a ghost!"

"Perhaps he has—I told you the house is full of them."

Waterman shook himself slightly as if to get rid of an uncomfortable garment. He rose and walked to the desk. "Accounting machine? Why it's nothing but an audiphone."

"It looks like one," agreed Stanley, "but before we're through with it I think you'll admit that it has something to do with accounting. You see," he went on, easily, "this thing stood on my desk in the office the last day I was there and I had it sent down here that night. I had been dictating and—er—by the way, you never used one, did you, Rolly?"

"No."

"No, you prefer—stenographers. Well, I've been dictating, as I say, and I thought I'd clear up a lot of work over Sunday. So I sent this thing down to the house. But I never came here again for over a year, for reasons that you know very well. The day I entered this room for the first time, here stood that machine. Out of idle curiosity I started the thing, and—well—you shall hear what I heard. It's extraordinary—an audible recreation of the past, after a year. Remarkable!"

He sat down, lighted a fresh cigar meditatively, and appeared to fall in to a nap. After a time, unable longer to endure the silence, Waterman said sharply:

"Well, well—go on, go on."

"Eh?" said Stanley. In bland surprise. "You made a proposal," stammered Waterman. "I accepted it. You lost. I won. For God's sake forget it!"

Stanley turned and cast upon the other a glance of sudden savage penetration—a glance which froze Waterman into silence and immobility.

"Listen!" he cried. He bent over the machine, and touched a lever.

With strained attention, waiting for he knew not what, Waterman heard these words.

"Of course, there is always the possibility of error in these calculations, and it would be wise to allow a considerable margin of safety therefore; but on the whole we are in a position to say that we think well of the proposition. If you wish, I shall be pleased to discuss the matter at length and in detail. Very sincerely, yours."

Again Stanley bent over the machine, and the voice ceased. He smiled at Waterman and inquired easily:

"Recognize the voice?"

Waterman had recognized it— "It's yours, of course," he said.

"Swear to it in a court of law, wouldn't you?"

Waterman rose. He had a feeling that he had been on his feet "Sure. What of it?"

"Wait—there's a little more of the extraordinary isn't it? After all, months the faithfulness of the machine. Sit down sit down. This is interest you I promise you."

There was no doubt about Waterman's being interested. He sat on the edge of his chair, his hands gripped its arms, and glared upon the machine.

Again Stanley bent over the machine and touched the lever. Instantly the machine went on:

"Don't worry about that, I'll attend to the details."

"Splendid—splendid I have only one slight suggestion to make as to the construction of your scenario."

"And what's that?"

"I don't like the name of your villain."

"You ought to. It's your own."

"What the h—l is this?" cried Waterman, leaping to his feet.

Stanley stopped the machine. "What's the matter?" he inquired gently.

Waterman took a grip upon himself. "Nothing, nothing—only—"

"You don't recognize the voices, do you?"

"No, no certainly not."

Stanley was casualness itself. "You see," he explained, "I am naturally a serious and I thought you might be able to satisfy my curiosity—let me give you a little more of it."

Again the machine continued:

"Yes, that's the point."

"What are you getting at?"

"I suggest that you strike out the name of Rollin Waterman, and substitute the name of James Stanley."

With a suppressed exclamation, Waterman again leaped from his chair.

"Wait!" cried Stanley sharply, with a commanding gesture, and the machine went on:

"What?"

"Precisely."

"You want me to tell Miss Colby that it is Stanley and not you?"

"Stop that thing—stop it!" shouted Waterman.

Stanley obeyed. "Do you recognize the voices yet?" he inquired softly.

"No!—No!" cried Waterman.

"Ah—shall we have a bit more, then?"

"No—I've had enough of this d—n nonsense."

"Are you afraid to go on?"

"Afraid? No—why should I be afraid?"

"Well sit down then."

"No, I won't! And I'll thank you to explain—"

Now when a man suddenly finds himself looking into the barrel of a revolver held by the hand of his friend, it naturally gives a slightly different turn to his thoughts. To Waterman it was as if the end of the world had come.

"Sit down," said Stanley coldly.

"What?"

"I say sit down! And the voice was the voice of fate. 'This is the night of your accounting!'"

Slowly, feebly, like a man stricken abruptly with mortal disease, Waterman retreated till he felt the chair behind him. Into its depths he slumped, and sat there, with his chin upon his breast, his hands hanging limply till they nearly touched the floor.

"Why, Rollin!" Stanley reproached him gently.

The other controlled himself with an effort.

KEEP 'EM CLEAN

—IT PAYS

The owner using modern methods may keep his car looking new all the time, nor will he have to spend more than a few moments a day to accomplish this end. For instance, there are now on the market a number of liquid and wax polishes which will give admirable results if they are used as directed.

In the use of wax polishes the first step is to clean the body of the car thoroughly. The polish is applied to the surface with a piece of clean cloth and then another clean cloth is used to distribute the wax evenly over all the surface. Car owners commonly make the mistake of thinking that the more wax applied the better. As a matter of fact, a very thin film is all that is needed. The polish will last from four days to a week, and after it has been applied at the beginning of the week, a little rubbing with a clean cloth will bring out the luster again. The wax polish may be used for body, fenders, hood and other lustrous surfaces and it will also be found that if the under side of the fenders is cleaned and given a good coating of wax, less mud will be deposited and what there is there may be easily removed.

To keep pace with the improved appearance of the body it is necessary to give some attention to the top and upholstery. A weekly brushing on the top inside and out will do materially in its life. Fabric tops should never be cleaned with gasoline, kerosene or other oils, as they tend to destroy the rubber in the top. Castile soap and water applied with a stiff brush is the best cleaning medium for the top. The upholstery ought really to be cleaned once a week. This means not only wiping the surface of the cushions, but cleaning out the dirt that inevitably accumulates under the piping and in the corners.

After the dust has been removed, leather upholstery may be cleaned with a cloth soaked in a weak solution of ammonia and water. Castile soap and water are also used on leather, but gasoline should not be employed, because it tends to cause cracking. The leather should be treated occasionally by giving it a light coating of linseed oil, thinned with vinegar. This solution should be applied with a cloth and be allowed to remain for a few hours, after which the upholstery should be wiped. For imitation leather, soap and water may be used for removing spots and linseed or sweet oil in small quantities for brightening the finish.

Be sure that all paraphernalia, cloths, sponges, chamois, skins, etc., used in cleaning the polished surfaces are clean themselves before you employ them. Sponges are particularly liable to have sand in them, even new ones. They should be washed out in warm water before used.

HIGHWAYS ADVANCE CIVILIZATION

A recent estimate states that over $9,000,000,000 has been spent for state, county, federal and local road construction in the last 10 years. Highways were once luxuries; today they are absolute necessities. They bring prosperity and progress, growth and industrialism, the four great elements of our present civilization.

Christmas Time Clears the Road to Happiness

THINGS were bad. All year they had been bad, and they were worse. The pile of books lay open, one on top of the other, on the big desk, and sheets of ruled paper covered with figures lay all around, mingled with sheets of scrap covered with penciled calculations.

Bills, bills, bills. And heaven knew where to meet them, or what to meet them with.

Stock on hand that wouldn't move. Debts outstanding that wouldn't come in. Debtors that wouldn't pay, and creditors that wouldn't wait.

Darkness and despair and blackness everywhere.

The world no better off than he. The burning match of national hatred hanging low over the powder barrel.

War in Europe threatening to give place to war against Europe. Strife in the East slowly preparing the way for strife between East and West.

Why struggle and struggle for ever against the petty troubles of a tiny business world, only to graduate into the greater troubles of a world ready for the melting pot?

Why strive for nothing? Why labor without reward? Why win when there was no prize?

The quickest out of the fight was the easiest winner.

The little drawer opened almost automatically. There beneath his fingers lay the real solution. The short way out. Thumb and forefinger caressed the beautiful, shining bracelet, the dull metal magazine. It fitted so neatly into his palm.

Now? Why not? Ding, ding, ding, dong. Ding, dong.

There was a church across the street. DING, DONG.

"Hark, the Herald angels sing. Glory . . . A choir was singing.

A clock struck midnight. Christmas morning. The weapon fell useless into the drawer.

Another day, perhaps, but not tonight. If a dying world could sing glory to God, what little, trumpety, tentrate dry-goodman had any right to give in?

There was almost a laugh in his voice as he called to the night watchman, on his way home, "Merry Christmas, John."

"Merry Christmas, sir. Workin' late tonight?" "Yes. All finished now, though. MERRY CHRISTMAS!" - Albert E. Perka.

Christmas Time Brings Angelic Choirs' Refrain

THE heavens bend low above the earth at Christmas time. It is then that the things above join and blend with the things below. It is then that angels and archangels crowd above the Judean hills and the refrain of angelic choirs falls upon the ears of men. It is Christmas time, when the flaming glory of visitors from the sky startles alike sleeping flocks and watching shepherds. At Christmas the stars of heaven find the paths of men and lead the kings of the East to the shrine of the new-born Prince. It is then that the star of Bethlehem shines with the lanterns of weary travelers to greet the Light of the World. It is then that angels and men join in praise to God in the highest, and peace and goodwill mantle the earth.

All these are but small symbols of that finer blending, that richer combination of divine love and human frailty which brought the spirit-born Son of God to live in the flesh-born son of Mary, to be the Christ of God and the Savior of men. At Christmas time heaven looks down to earth and earth looks up to heaven - William L. Gaston.

NO MORE WILD CATTING

Every Location a Commercial Well

At last a chemical formulae has been found which will locate commercial quantities of oil; giving the approximate depth to the oil; also the number of sands, indicating which one of them will produce the most oil; and approximately the depth between each sand.

After several years of extensive use and verification, the services of this instrument are now being offered to the oil public; knowing its accuracy is dependable for all drilling purposes.

I was brought to McLean by one of your most successful citizens for my opinion on a drilling location and tests now drilling. My forecast on his two wells and on three other tests are to be filed, under seal, in the two local banks, to be opened, as tests are completed, for public inspection. I can assure everyone that the forecasts on these five tests will be 100% correct.

I have already done some geological work for different ones on a guaranteed basis and would be pleased to have you call on me at the Hindman Hotel and let me explain my method of locating oil.

For the benefit of non-residents, I will say my charges are only $25.00 per quarter section.

Also I will give my forecast on any well for $100.00, returning my charges plus $10.00, in error as to termination of the test forecasted.

This will be exceedingly valuable to those who cannot visit the oil field of Gray county, for my work has been absolutely correct up to date.

I can give you local references and also references in Cimarron county, Oklahoma. See me by Nov. 21 in McLean, or write at my permanent address.
