LET'S TALK ABOUT FATS - PART 2

Last week we talked about fats | and inaccurate advertising claims, in the diet -- but there's much that salad oils may be better for nore to say. So here's a second hapter on that subject:

odd conclusion since liquid oils From advertising, and discus- are 100 percent fat but butter is sions of possible relationships only 82 percent fat, plus salt and between diet and heart disease, water. Salad or cooking oils supfats have gained a certain notoply roughly nine calories per riety. Particularly, the public now hears a great deal about saturated gram, 42 per teaspoon. Butter is seven calories per gram, or only fats and unsaturated fats. Actualabout 33 per teaspoor ly, it isn't enough, nutritionally to distinguish between saturated and unsaturated fats because fats may have something to do there are varying degrees of satwith heart disease, eminent nutriuration in all fats.

Fats which are solid at room temperature are mostly saturated fatty acids but still they contain some unsaturated fatty acids as well. The reverse is true of liquid oils although they are known and advertised mainly for their content of unsaturated fatty acids. Generally speaking, saturated fats come from foods of animal origin; unsaturated fats are vegetable fats and oils, though coconut oil, notably, is an exception and is highly saturated.

More Hydrogen Atoms

However, the real difference between saturated and unsaturated fatty acids is that saturated fats contain more hydrogen atoms than unsaturated. When liquid oils are used to make a spread which is solid at room temperature, they have to be "hardened" through hydrogenation. This is a process whereby the saturation of the fatty acids is increased. This stress. makes relatively unsaturated fats more like saturated fats.

Chemists have not yet found out all that happens to a fat or oil during such processing. How the body utilizes some of the fatty products formed during hydrogenation is not known.

The general public and particutimes assumed, because of hearsay public.

Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and sup-port the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his com munity and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which port. Plan to go to church reg-ularly and read your Bible daily.

With all the theological ferment these days there is more unrest in our church than we have known in many years. Issues divide the congregations and sometime the whole debate seems endless. It would be easier to stay home in bed on Sun

But through it all, the houses of God stand, because regular churchgoers in that men are inconstant, that they are subject to numerous temptations and fluences. They also know that God is omnipotent, is omniscient. His care is a stant. His creative spirit continually sustains the earth, and His love is alw sensitive to the plight of man.

It is not easy to be a Christian; it never was. Houses of God stand bear there are those who are willing to be channels of God's care-who assume res sibility for church schools, missions, social justice, and—oh yes—that roof.

NEWS OF CONSERVATION

By Paul Appleton

Now that a lot of the wheat has been harvested it is a good time to take a good look to see if your farm has eroded since the wheat was planted. A good set of terraces might be just what is needed. The old addage "a stitch in time saves nine" still holds true. Your thoughts might be that you can't farm between terraces. This used to be true but a good set of parrallel terraces can be installed. These terraces are built to be the same distance between each terrace from one end to the other. Thereby eliminating point rows. They are designed to fit the type of equipment that the farmer has on his farm. To construct this type of terrace we have to make a Topog map with elev, shots every 100 feet apart on the farm. From this topog map the ter-races can be laid out with a minimum of cut and fill. The cost can be taken from this map. The farmer would then know what the complete cost would be before the job is started. Should you be in need of this type of conservation assistance you may contact your local Soil Conservation Office Personnel in the Court House Annex. in Pampa

In the winter they go to South Texas and in the summer they live in Satanta, McLean's Baptist parsonage when that building was located in the west part of town. The year was 1913 and the preacher as the Rev. Hamilton. Is that former parsonage still standing? From their description, we feel like it must be the present home of the J. E. Another thing we must say about the Bodines: Tom has promised to bring us a click reel one that will work - for our musearn and show us how it works. We're not pioneer enough to un derstand from the description, all-wooden contraption takes the thread after it is spun and makes it into cloth and clicks off ever so often. That's why it is called a click reel. Thank you, Tom and Bill. We'll be looking forward to spinning our winter clothes on that relic

Mrs. Cecil Seago of Amarillo, the former Helen Barnes of Mc-Lean, has a picture drawn by a French artist of her grandmother (we've forgotten how many 'greats') while they were both passengers on the Mayflower as that vessel was making its way to America. And guess what! Helen is having that painting reproduced and will give a copy for the history book and we may keep it for the museum.

Helen was a guest in our home recently and told this interesting incident which we think you will enjoy: Helen operates a drapery shop on Studebaker Street in Amarillo. One day she was swamped with work and mentioned the fact that she needed a good helper. A neighbor offered to call a friend of hers who she thought would qualify. She did, and her friend came to the shop. She proved very efficient and the two women enjoyed each other besides. About noon the conversation got around to their former home which turned out to be McLean. The helper was Trilby McCracken Bilderback, daughter of Roy and Mary Mc-Cracken who still live near Mc-Lean. What made it more interesting was the fact Heien Seago and Trilby Bilderback were in the same class in good old Mc-Lean High.

This has been a summer of reunions: Commander (Navy) Claude Mounce brought his two precious little girls by. Claude is stationed in the Pentagon in Washington, D.C. FISHING NAVIGATION

Navigation as practiced on the "high seas" has little appli cation on the average fishing waters, but navigation — of a aspect of every fishing trip.

Seldom is a knowledge of marine navigation necessary to most anglers, say the fishing experts at Mercury outboards. However, they add, an ac-quaintanceship with a few rudiments won't hurt, either.

For example, knowing how determine the boat's approximate position on a large lake not only helps keep one on course, but the same procedure enables a man to locate a hidden bar or dropoff where the fishing's good.

Necessary tools include compass, chart, ruler and pencil. Using the triangulation method, it becomes a simple chore to establish the boat's position in relation to compass readings from prominent land-

The easiest way is to align the chart's "north" arrow with the compass needle. Hold a ruler over the chart and take a sighting at a feature on shore that also shows up on the chart. Draw a line on the chart along the straight edge.

Then repeat the procedure on another landmark - on the opposite shore, if possible. Where the second line intersects the first you have your approximate position.

By reversing the steps, it is possible to run a boat up to a certain compass bearing and then jockey along it to reach the cross reference point where you want to fish.

This system is only as good as the operator, note the Mer-cury lads, but with practice it can become reasonably ac-

Complicated? Not really. And it sure saves a lot of time finding those "lost" holes
