Parent-Teacher Association Holds Opening Reception

A. IN RECEPTION THURSDAY

A. Opens Year's Activities with Reception

The Parent-Teacher Association opened the year's activities with a reception for the new members of the McLean schools last evening, that was one of the social affairs of the week.

The reception room and refreshment table were prettily decorated with flowers, and refreshments were served to all present.

A business session was held, and the officers made reports for the year was outstanding.

Features of the meeting included a vocal solo by Mrs. A. B. and piano numbers by Mrs. Boyett and Miss Lois Ruth.

The next meeting will be held on Sept. 26, and it is hoped that attendance may be had.

The 103 paid memberships reported at Thursday's meeting, and membership drive will be continued.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

T. A. reports to be very busy with school affairs this season under the leadership of Mrs. L. V. who is president.

John Harris is reporter, to the News is indebted for this report.

The Warship, Question Cheaper Cars Coming? Standard and Shell Diamonds from Sugar

The Brisbane column is published in The News because of the interesting comments of the writer upon the topics of the day, but Mr. Brisbane's opinions should not be taken as reflecting the editorial policy of this paper.

Kamsay MacDonald arrives soon to talk over armaments at sea. He probably comes prepared to ratify officially a program already agreed upon substantially. He would not want to return with nothing after Snowden's triumphant round trip to The Hague.

The British, well informed by their separate air department, care little about surface ships for any future war. They know that ships will be obsolete.

But they have 70,000 miles of sea coast to patrol in their empire. Their cruisers are really floating forts or police stations, boarding houses for marines that can be landed when needed, then moved on to soothe the next troubled spot.

If the President would establish a separate air department, appointing a head engineer with others under him, all controlled by Engineer Hoover, to develop new ideas, Uncle Sam might not spend his life copying Germany, Italy and Britain. And we would not worry about warships.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, told stockholders he bought "a substantial interest" in Opel, great German automobile concern, to develop German manufacture of automobiles rather than supersede it with organization and methods entirely American.

This country depends largely on export of manufactured articles. It is therefore, interesting to hear from Mr. Sloan that in Europe his company in 1928, in dollars and number of units, sold more automobiles than any European concern manufactured.

Mr. Sloan plans for Europeans the kind of car they want at a price they can afford. Not so rich as we, they do not demand so much luxury.

Mr. Sloan, Mr. Ford and others in this country may need to produce here a cheaper car than any now offered.

General Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck, plans a car for $200. Henry Ford, five years ago showed the writer a small, powerful engine, made for a car to sell at $250. He probably has kept the plans for that product.

Professor Hershey of McPherson College told scientists at Minneapolis that genuine diamonds of superb color can be made by subjecting ordinary table sugar, to a pressure of ten tons to the square inch.

He has produced such diamonds in his laboratory.

In another laboratory, the senate, Mr. Smoot is about to prove that he can produce for friends enough money to buy all the diamonds in South Africa by subjecting ordinary table sugar to a tariff pressure of two cents a so per pound.

Standard and other oil stocks have been going up despite the British invasion by "Shell." The 24,734,967 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey are worth about two billion dollars now.

That is just one fragment of old Standard Oil, built up by Mr. Rockefeller and chopped into pieces by a rampaging government, because it was supposed to be worth "nearly a billion," altogether.

What old Standard is really worth now, nobody knows. Including oil in the ground, ten billions probably would be a reasonable price.

W. T. C. of C. Is Panned at Lions Luncheon

While County Judge Ivy E. Duncan was the speaker of the day at the Lions luncheon Monday (an excerpt of his address appearing in another column), Guy Hill, secretary of the Shamrock Chamber of Commerce, and Geo. W. Briggs, secretary of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, were given the floor following the judge's address.

Mr. Hill opened his discussion by saying that there are some four organizations that are duplicating efforts in this section, which means a duplication of donations for their upkeep. "The usefulness of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is ended as far as the Panhandle is concerned as far as the Panhandle is concerned, an organization for the Panhandle counties could be of much more worth to this section. The work of the Panhandle-Plains, Inc., was praised. "They are doing good work in spite of adverse publicity given this section by another organization," said the speaker.

Mr. Hill stated that the program and entertainment of the district meeting of the W. T. C. of C. to meet at Shamrock, Oct. 3, 1929, is being left entirely up to the local people, no help being forthcoming from the officials of the W. T. C. of C.

In the course of his rather heated arguments in favor of a more equitable distribution of favors from the W. T. C. of C., Mr. Hill stated that in his opinion the state of Texas will at some future date be divided into two or more states, and the Panhandle counties should be on the alert to protect their interests.

Geo. W. Briggs followed Mr. Hill and said that he finds the same sentiment against the W. T. C. of C. in this section, but thought that they should be given more chance to set themselves right with the Panhandle at the El Paso convention.

"The Panhandle now has the population and wealth to demand their rights, and they are able to support an organization of their own if need be," said Mr. Briggs. "Conditions are very different in the Panhandle from the rest of West Texas, and the W. T. C. of C. must be brought into closer touch with our conditions, if it is to be of material benefit to this section."

Due to the fact that the time had already been used, no further discussion on the subject was possible by either present.

Judge Duncan gave a special invitation for McLean Lions to visit the Pampa club in the near future when a ladies' night will be held. Guy Hill invited McLean Lions to visit the Shamrock club.

Vice president Boyd Meador occupied the president's chair and asked M. D. Bentley to introduce the visitors.

Those present were: E. L. Sitter, Boyd Meador, Sherman White, M. D. Bentley, Jesse J. Cobb, Dr. Coleman, A. A. Tampke, Arthur Erwin, Reep Landers, T. J. Coffey, T. W. Gilstrap, W. A. Erwin, Donald Beall, T. A. Landers. Visitors were: Dr. W. C. Montgomery; Rev. W. H. Beesier of Canyon, Judge Duncan, Geo. W. Briggs, Carson Loftis and F. E. Leech of Pampa, Guy Hill and Flake George of Shamrock.

S. S. CLASS HAS PICNIC

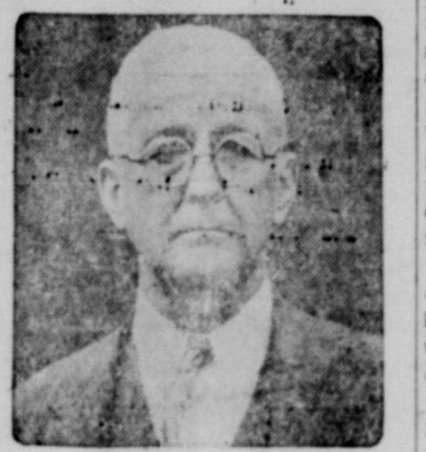

Members of Mrs. Willie Boyett's Sunday school class enjoyed a picnic at the McClellan bridge Tuesday evening. Supper was served, and a good time reported by the following: Mrs. Boyett, Misses Frances Noel, Sinclair and Lucille Rice, Jewel Shaw, Clara Anderson and Lucile Stratton; Messrs. Cecil Moore, Bryan Roby and Ward Malt.

Another rain fell in this community Wednesday night, with light showers Thursday morning.

Misses Helen Hugos and Claris Bringham were Shamrock visitors Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sloan of Pampa were guests in the Roy Campbell home Sunday.

DWIGHT UPHAM IN CAR WRECK SUNDAY

Dwight Upham was driving from a rain cloud Sunday night at a good rate of speed when topping a hill in the road, seven miles west of Clarendon, a wagon was on one side of the road and a Ford standing crosswise, blocking the passage. Mr. Upham locked his wheels with the brakes but was too close to stop before hitting the Ford, practically demolishing it, blowing out a casing on a front wheel of his car, smashing the headlights and damaging a fender.

None of the occupants of the Upham car were hurt, and the occupants of the Ford abandoned it when they heard the other car coming over the hill.

Mr. Upham changed a tire, and another car spotted lights for him until they arrived at Clarendon, where they had one light fixed, and started home, but while attempting to pass a car on the muddy road near Rockledge, they slid into the ditch and had to leave the car until Monday morning.

CHARLIE ROACH HAS ALMOND TREE BEARING

Charlie Roach, who lives in the Gracey community in Wheeler county, was in town Monday exhibiting almonds and filberts grown on trees in his place.

The nuts were of fine flavor and good size. Mr. Roach has a tree of each variety, about 20 years old, and they have a large number of nuts on them this season. The nuts are just beginning to ripen, and are growing quite a bit of interest among those who have never seen them picked fresh from the trees.

RUTLEDGE-WATT

Married, Saturday, Sept. 14, 1929, at the office of the Justice of the Peace at Erick, Okla. Miss Catherine Rutledge and Mr. Willie Watt.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rutledge of the Heald community, a member of the McLean high school band, and is popular in school and social circles.

The groom is a prominent young business man of McLean, being associated in business at the Watt Bros. Filling Station.

The young people will make their home in McLean.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Meier and little daughter of Amarillo visited in the Stratton home Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sloan of Pampa were guests in the Roy Campbell home Sunday.

MCLEAN FOOTBALL TEAM WINS AT WHEELER

The McLean football team defeated the Wheeler eleven at Wheeler Friday with a score of 12 to 7 in the first game of the season for the two schools.

Wheeler made the first touchdown when the Wheeler captain, who was playing at half, caught a pass and took it across the line in the second quarter. Wheeler succeeded in kicking goal.

In the last of the second quarter Grogan of the Tigers received the ball on the kickoff and raced the entire length of the field for a touchdown. Attempt to kick goal failed.

A McLean end received the pass in the fourth period that made the other touchdown for the local team, but attempt to kick goal again failed.

The game was hard fought and fumbles were frequent on both sides, showing lack of training, but the Tigers showed plenty of pep.

The next game will be played Friday of this week at Sayre, Okla., with the fast Sayre high school eleven.

BAPTISTS ELECT HAYS AS MISSIONARY

At a meeting of the executive board of the Northfork Baptist Association held at Shamrock last Tuesday, Rev. Miles B. Hays, pastor of the First Baptist church at Burk Burnett, was elected as missionary for the association.

Rev. Hays holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Baylor University, and has held pastorates at Olney and Hillsboro and was a missionary in Oklahoma for several years. He has been a personal friend of Pastor C. A. Baxter of the First Baptist church at Shamrock for the past 14 years.

The association owns a missionary's home in Shamrock, which will be at the disposal of Rev. Hays during his electorate, as will a salary of $250 per month. He should be on the field by Oct. 1st.

MATTRESS FACTORY OPEN FOR BUSINESS

The McLean Mattress Factory is now open for business at the Street Garage, at the northwest corner of town, according to H. Bernard, proprietor. Mr. Bernard is an experienced mattress man and his new machinery installed. He says he has worked at this trade in Clarendon for a number of years, and many McLean people know him. His work will carry a guarantee of satisfaction.

D'SPAIN SAYS CROPS 'POOR SOUTH OF HERE'

T. J. D'Spain, who has just returned from a trip to Denton and Dallas, says he found no crops that look as well as crops in this community.

Mr. D'Spain accompanied his daughter, Miss Lalia, to Denton, where she entered college. The News will keep her informed about happenings at home.

ROWENA UPHAM KILLED IN CAR WRECK MONDAY

Miss Rowena Upham, daughter of C. L. Upham of Panhandle, and niece of W. B. Upham, of McLean, was killed in a car wreck at Portales, N. M., Monday.

Relatives from McLean attended the funeral services at Panhandle.

MISS HUNT ENTERTAINS

Miss Naomi Hunt was hostess at a party given at her home last Friday evening. A good time was spent in games and contests, and refreshments were served to the large number present.

Misses Johnnie Villa Haynes and May Belle Veatch left Thursday for Lubbock to attend school.

DUNCAN MAKES SPEECH

Lions Hear Address Constitution Day at Luncheon

The following is, in part, the speech of Judge Ivy E. Duncan before the McLean Lions Club on Constitution Day:

"When the resistance to British rule in America began, independence was not its aim, and provisional governments only were established in the several colonies, temporarily, to take the place of the English colonial government that had been suppressed. In 1776 the colonies established a national congress, that in turn appointed a committee to frame, and which did frame, the Articles of Confederation, under which the colonies governed themselves as a unit until the final adoption of the present constitution.

"The forming of the present constitution was more of an accident than of purpose. The convention was first called together to settle an insipid war arising out of a commercial dispute between the states of Maryland and Virginia; which met at Annapolis in 1787, and which convention reported back to congress, as it existed then, that nothing could be done under such a government, and recommended calling a fresh convention for the purposes of amending it. Congress, acting upon such recommendation, called a fresh convention for this purpose to sit in Philadelphia in the month of May, 1787. By July 23rd, all of the states were represented in the convention except Rhode Island, which opposed the scheme as a whole.

"Thus we have the setting of the convention. We will now look at its personnel.

"There were Benjamin Franklin, the wisest member of the convention; Alexander Hamilton, a bright and shining genius; Madison, a most sagacious statesman; Edmund Randolph of Virginia, Samuel Johnson of Connecticut, the Pinckneys of South Carolina, and many other notable characters who played such an important part in early American history. The convention was presided over by none other than George Washington. Contrary to most people's belief, Thomas Jefferson was not secretary of the convention, this was being held by William Jackson. There were fifty-five members of this convention. Fifty-one of them took an active part in the debates, but only thirty-nine would sign the instrument after it was completed and adopted.

"A constitution is the fundamental law of the land. In this instance, the constitution of the United States is the fundamental and most important law or rules under which this nation has grown and prospered, and under which we live this day. I doubt if there are more than five people in this building who have read such an important and vital document as William E. Gladstone, the great British statesman, said of our constitution: 'The most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man, and this characterization has been accepted by all thinking men. When I think of the devotion, time and study that was and is given to the study of the law of Moses by the Jewish people, it makes me wonder what might be the result if the same thought was given by the American people to the study and learning of the law as given us in our own constitution. It's the oldest living thing in the law of a republican form of government. It is a Gibraltar of strength, hoary with age, and has withstood the onslaughts of the events of more than a century, that leaves its pathway littered with the ruins and wrecks of governments.

FEEDING OURSELVES

By Zella Wigent
Good health is the result of good circulation of good blood to every part of the body.

There are five millions (more or less) body cells which, wonderfully grouped and co-ordinated, make up the body. One writer calls them the "little people" of our body.

The blood carries food to these little people and carries off the wastes which these millions of little people make.

To build up good blood we need right food, fresh air, sunshine, and absence of poisons. Use plenty of milk, fruit and vegetables. These furnish valuable minerals and vitamins. Eat some raw vegetables every day, eat green-leaved vegetables at least two or three times a week. Use more honey, natural syrups and brown sugar and less white sugar. Fruit sugars, such as dates, figs and raisins, are good.

Use more whole grain flour, and cereals and less "bolted" flour. Bolted flour is devalued—the valuable proteins, minerals and oils are taken out and nothing but starch remains. Too much refined sugar and starch tends to develop acid conditions resulting in the formation of gas, which bloats the body.

Use meat sparingly, substituting eggs, milk and cheese for meat.

Don't eat too much. Excess food means extra work for the eliminating organs of the body. Drink plenty of water.

Sunshine has a definite energizing effect on the blood. It makes it possible for the body cells to properly utilize lime and phosphorus. Direct sunlight cures rickets and is one of the valuable aids in curing many diseases.

We must have fresh air if we build good red blood corpuscles. Have fresh air where you work, where you eat, where you sleep. Breathe deeply—use all of your lungs.

Keep the eliminating organs of your body working so that poisons do not pile up in the blood stream. Free yourself from constipation; drink enough water to keep the kidneys working freely; keep the pores of the skin open. Don't burden the blood stream with the poisons of alcohol, nicotine, coffee, or dope of various sorts. Don't harbor a decayed tooth or some other source of infection which throws poisons into the blood stream.

Get enough sleep and rest to throw off the poisons of fatigue.

No matter how good the blood may be, it cannot nourish body cells if poor circulation breaks down or impairs the delivery system.

Exercise keeps the blood stream circulating vigorously.

The most important exercises are those which call into play the diaphragm and the abdominal muscles. Find out which muscles you neglect in your daily routine of work and play and then take a little time to exercise them.

Faulty posture impairs circulation and most cases can be corrected.

A badly bloated digestive tract crowds the abdominal cavity and interferes with circulation. Get rid of blot by putting yourself on a better diet.

A certain amount of body fat is good; it represents reserve force. Excess fat takes up valuable space between the cells and interferes with circulation.

Relaxation is important in securing good circulation. A muscle continuously tensed cannot be properly nourished.

Massage is helpful in many instances because it relaxes tensed muscles, relieves congestion, and results in good circulation.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

Myrtle Lawrey vs. J. T. Lawrey.
In the District Court, Gray County, Texas.
The State of Texas to the Sheriff or any Constable of Gray County—GREETING:
YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED that by making publication of this Citation in some newspaper published in the County of Gray once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, you summon J. T. Lawrey whose residence is unknown to be and appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Gray County, to be held at the Court House thereof, in the City of Pampa, Texas, on the 4th Monday in September, A. D. 1929, the same being the 23rd day of September, A. D. 1929, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 29th day of August, A. D. 1929, in a suit numbered on the Docket of said Court No. 2178, wherein Myrtle Lawrey is plaintiff, and J. T. Lawrey is defendant; the nature of Plaintiff's demand being substantially, as follows, to-wit: Plaintiff alleges that she and defendant were lawfully married on or about the 11th day of April, 1923, and lived together as husband and wife until on or about the 28th day of January, 1929, at which time she was forced to leave the defendant on account of cruel treatment that he accorded to her continually, and also quarreled and nagged at her to such an extent that it rendered their further living together insupportable; that his conduct was such that it was injurious to her health.
HEREIN FAIL NOT, but have you before said Court on the said first day of next term thereof this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.
Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at its office in the City of Pampa, Texas, this the 29th day of August, A. D. 1929.

OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM

The trouble with the modern grade system is that we too often circumscribe the superior pupil's progress by the low average of the class. There is not an opportunity for the individual to forge ahead as there was in the un-graded, one-room school house. One sometimes wonders of school children are not too greatly pampered. When they have little or no individual responsibility in the acquisition of knowledge, are they as likely to make those strong, stalwart and self-reliant citizens who in the past have shaped the destinies of a great republic?—Nashville Tennessean.

NO APOLOGY NEEDED

The flapper was truly repentant and sought to make amends. "Jack," she cried, "I am sorry I treated you the way I did last week."
"Oh, that's all right, honey," Jack replied. "I saved $20 while we weren't on speaking terms."—Pittsburgher.

Miss Mae Reed of Louisiana is visiting her aunt, Mrs. D. L. Abbott.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Brooks were in Oklahoma City this week.

NOT PRESENT

The school inspector was coming to test the class in Scripture. The teacher warned the boy at the top of the class that he would be asked who made him, and told him what answer to give.

Unfortunately this boy had occasion to go out just before the inspector arrived, with the result that the question was put to the next boy, who was unprepared.

"Please sir," he said to the inspector, "the boy God made is out of the room."

The Doctor
by A. J. Dunlap

Before the age of specialists in surgery and pills, Our Doctor met the whole array of human aches and ills. He fought them in the summertime, The winter, spring and fall. For forty years, he used to say, "I've never missed a call!"

The springtime brought the chickenpox and broken bones and bumps. Its whooping cough and croup and hives. Its measles itch and mumps. Then Autumn brought the ague on. And Winter brought the gout To many well-fed citizens Grown indolent and stout.

He was an optimistic man. Although too well he knew Where family skeletons were hid. From prying public view. If justice reigns beyond the veil He'll wear a shining crown. For faithful service through the years He gave the Old Home Town.

Judge Duncan handled what is ordinarily a dry subject in a most interesting manner at the Lions luncheon Monday. The Constitution was presented to the audience in a very clever way that held the interest of the hearers.

No organization can do its best work without the right kind of publicity, and The News is anxious to give every worth while organization in town desirable publicity. Reporters should have copy in our hands by Tuesday of each week to insure publication.

If everything that is offered the merchant under the guise of advertising would get the business the pedler claims, there would not be nearly so many firms carrying expenditures for such "advertising" in the loss columns of their ledgers. There are only three recognized mediums that pay dividends, in the order named: the newspaper, show window and direct mail.

It seems pretty certain that there must be some changes in the attitude of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce toward the Panhandle-Plains region, or support will be withdrawn in this section and a regional organization perfected that will serve our interests better. This question will probably be discussed at the district meeting at Shamrock next month, and again at the annual meeting at El Paso.

The home paper influences to a greater or less extent everyone in the community, and this being so every paper welcomes constructive criticism, for every paper wants to please its subscribers. Destructive criticism, on the other hand, damages both paper and community. When the paper is willing to meet its readers more than half way to print what pleases, it would seem that it should have the fullest cooperation from everyone.

The News is fortunate in securing the Brisbane weekly article. Mr. Brisbane has been writing for daily papers for a long time, but is only the past few weeks that his weekly article has been available. Our readers may rest assured that his article will not be a duplicate of his daily articles. We hope that we may hear from our readers as to their appreciation of the articles, for they cost considerable money and will not be continued unless they prove popular in our columns.

Twenty-seven thousand persons are killed yearly in car accidents, over 85% of the accidents being the fault of the car driver, with from a tenth to a third being the fault of pedestrians. Automobile accidents are increasing, despite the fact that 27,000 dying yearly is too many. The human equation can never be taken from the question, but cars are better made and can be controlled to a much greater extent than formerly, needing only better highways, to reduce accidents. High speed cars need high speed roadways over which to operate, if accidents are to be curtailed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Copeland of Lefors were McLean visitors last Thursday.

THE VALUE OF THE DAIRY COW

By Edgar W. Cooley

The dairy cow is by far the most economical producer of human food. The food produced by her is the most nourishing and helpful of all foods. The farmer who has a few dairy cows, a few chickens and a garden will always have plenty of food for himself and family besides having a surplus of dairy and poultry products to sell at good prices.

For each 100 pounds of food consumed the sheep produces only 2 1/2 pounds of edible food solids, a steer a trifle less than three pounds, a hen about five pounds, a hog about 5 1/2 pounds, and the average dairy cow 18 pounds.

There are nearly 24 million dairy cows in the United States and the annual value of their product reaches the enormous figure of over one billion dollars. Only the corn crop exceeds dairy products as a source of income to the farmers of the nation.

The dairy cow brings in money all the year around. She brings in cash at the end of each month in the form of a check from the creamery, and gives us additional profit each year in the form of a calf. What a cow produces today is sold tomorrow. If she produces when the market value of milk is high, her cream is sold when the market price of cream is high. There is small chance of having to sell dairy products for less than it cost to produce them.

The dairy cow distributes the demand for labor over the entire year. She increases the amount of pork production and decreases its cost by providing skim milk and buttermilk for feeding pigs. She furnishes a home market for hay, silage and other products easily grown on the farm.

From the grass of the pasture and the roughage of the field she creates the greatest product of the farm and puts back into the soil the fertility these things have taken from it.

The dairy cow has been called the "foster mother of the world," and no more fitting title could be bestowed upon her. Without milk, children languish, adults decline, the vitality of the race runs low.

WHERE IGNORANCE REIGNS

There were 13,000 new laws passed in the United States in 1928, and yet it seems impossible to reach the man and woman who, negligent of education to themselves, rob their children of that which tends mainly to make life worth while. There is but one worse theft, that of one's good name. "I never had a chance at education myself," is a frequent parental alibi; that in an age when one can almost absorb an education through the five physical senses!

It is in the home of such persons that you see a chromo of "Little Daisy," popular in 1875, a copy of the Holy Bible that is seldom or never read, a 25 cents a year weekly publication and a patent medicine almanac. In such places one finds a mine of word gossip, staled by phonographic-like repetition, and it is not to be wondered at that younger members of the family look with some doubt upon the dust-worn motto of ancient days, "God Bless Our Home." —Daily Oklahoman.

JILL KNOWS HER JACK

"Jack, dear, am I the only girl—" "Jill, don't ever ask me whether you are the only girl I ever loved. You know it as well as I do." "That wasn't what I was going to say at all, Jack. I was going to ask you if I was the only girl who would have you."

A negro woman who had been particularly successful in bringing up her children was asked by a curious visitor what her secret was. Without hesitation, the dusky mother replied: "Wa-al, yuh see, Ah nevah had no education, so Ah jest nachally had to use mah brains." —Child Welfare Magazine.

WHAT THE NATIONAL FOOD PRESERVATION PROGRAM MEANS TO YOU—

is essential to keep perishable food products in wholesome, healthful, palatable form. Fifty degrees is the danger point. If the temperature creeps above that point—even so much as three or four points—perishables suffer. They spoil quickly, become less appetizing, less nourishing.

1. IN HEALTH

Food preservation . . . The health of your family hinges upon that important consideration. And the condition of the family pocketbook, too. Americans spend twenty-three billion dollars a year for food—and waste a fifth of it. Why? How?

Not because the home manager is willingly wasteful; but because perishable food products spoil. Why do they spoil?

Government Authorities have found that an average temperature below fifty degrees the year around,

Only artificial refrigeration, used twelve months in the year, will safeguard the health of your family—and the family pocketbook. Makeshift methods of refrigeration are a danger to health and happiness.

Share in 835 Prize Contest Awards Totaling $25,000.00 CASH VALUE

For writing best 400 word letter telling: "Why 50 Degrees Is the Danger Point," you can win first prize—

MODEL HOME

To set the nation thinking on this vitally important topic of proper food preservation—to glean new ideas, new facts and figures concerning food preservation in guarding health and preventing economic waste, the National Food Preservation Council offers prizes to the value of $25,000 for the best essays in a National Idea Contest. The capital prize is a Model Home; or $10,000 in gold. The second prize a 1930 five-passenger Cadillac Coupe, selling at $3,595 F. O. B. Detroit; the third prize $2,000 in gold—and so on down the list of 832 other big cash awards. "CUSSING" AND FOOTBALL

Whether much profuse and eloquent football playing or not depends upon the training the players receive. There are teams, excelled in swearing only by second class sailors, that bring victory after victory to their schools. Each fumble is met with a chorus of oaths and each score against them brings forth a gaseous blue that envelops the entire gridiron. But no one has forgotten the team from the little Center College down in the hills of Kentucky that rode undefeated through the best schools in the east a few years ago. That team prayed instead of swearing. Each play carried with it the prayers of eleven good men, and each play generally meant a gain. That team was heralded from coast to coast as the cleanest playing squad that ever called a formation on a football field, and it brought an obscure little college into the limelight of the nation. It is a compliment to Shamrock and a tribute to the field of sports to have a high school football team being coached in the non-swearing method of playing. Not that swear- ing is necessarily repulsive to the opposing team nor because it is necessarily a soul-scourging act, but because the previous records of this city's team shows that quite as good results can be obtained without the usual profanity.—Shamrock Texan.

HENS BEAT COOTON CROP THIS YEAR

Marshall—Described as an example of growing rather than going into the poultry business, Mrs. H. A. Russell of the Maple Springs home demonstration club is able to show a net income of $134.79 from a flock of 77 White Leghorns for the four months ending July. In spite of paying out $237.95 for feed, supplies and equipment during this period, the hens will make more than the cotton crop, she says.

July production in this flock averaged 19 eggs per hen which is four eggs above the standard set by the Extension Service calendar. The net profit for the month was $40.48, and it came as a result of furnishing plenty of fresh water, good feeding, and keeping the birds free from lice. Miss Maggie Peach, home agent explains. Sodium fluoride was used to dust the hens for lice.

MADE IT RIGHT

A doctor making his morning calls, found Mrs. Murphy had suffered a relapse during the night. "Tell me, Pat, did you give your wife some of that powder I ordered?"
Pat—"Faith and I did, Sor."
Doctor—"You remember I told you it was very powerful, and that you were to give her only what would stay on a 10c piece?"
Pat—"I remember, sir, but nary a dime could I find in the house, so I used two nickles."

Geo. Tummins returned Sunday from a trip to Dallas.

A PERTINENT QUESTION

The stout woman struggled to enter the narrow doorway on a train. "Hurry up there," yelled the conductor, "get in edgeways, madam." She would-be traveler regarded the official with an angry glare. "And what," she snapped bitterly, "what if I ain't got no edge."

Get the Facts Before You Build

We can tell you how to build a beautiful, livable home

When our ancestors along the Atlantic Coast built homes of unusual beauty which are standing today after two and three hundred years of service, they knew what they were doing. They built of virgin timber and they built skillfully.

You may do the same today. You may build a home, as the early Colonials did, that will be a joy to your children—that will be beautiful, easy to heat in winter, and cool in the hottest summer weather. It is only necessary that you use plenty of good wood, and proper construction. That is what made the early Colonial homes so livable, beautiful and lasting.

to a bitter grilling on the subject of sentiment in general. By nine-thirty, the girls were on hand for Sunday school, leaving their father the entire house for a half-hour of silent meditation and prayer. In the interval while the classes were reassembling for dismissal Miriam ran across to walk with him the short distance to the church, where he usually conducted a brief review of the lesson. Sunday school was followed by the formal morning worship, where, as there was no pew system in Red Thrush, the girls sat where they liked with their special friends. From a corner far back on the right side, Ginger's heart went out tenderly, as it did every Sunday morning, to her father. She used to say the pulpit was becoming to him. Against the dark wood, he seemed very tall, very pale, almost radiant. His voice seemed gentler, yet somehow more incisively penetrating, since his blindness.

"Poor dear," she thought compassionately, for she followed the sermon but intermittently, and usually consecrated the hour to her own thoughts, "I dare say if the heathen are right, and we really do reincarnate in this world, I was father's mother the last time. I feel like a mother to him now, he's such a lamb."

Sunday afternoon in the parsonage was given up to quiet recreation. Helen went out with Horace. Marjory, too, went out, with anyone who asked her, strolling, driving, or calling, sometimes with Miriam in the party, sometimes not. Ginger usually retired to her attic studio.

This one small section of the house from the very beginning of their residence, was Ginger's own. It was difficult of approach, for there were no stairs leading to it, and sole admission was by means of a wobbly old ladder of six rounds, which, carefully balanced against the wall at the end of the upper hall, led to the trapdoor which opened upward into the attic. Ginger loved the attic most of all for its inaccessibility. The trapdoor, which swung on a hinged lock and had to be pushed upward with one hand, was no obstacle, but an added charm in her eyes. On the attic side of the door, she had, with her own hands, driven a big staple, added another hook, and when she went thither on matters of any special moment, she locked it furtively behind her.

The studio was her sacred retreat, and on this particular Sunday afternoon she had a definite motive in retirement, for she sought the guidance of the Muses. Ginger had made a find. Eddy Jackson had brought to the parsonage, as a Saturday gift from his mother, a jar of preserved peaches wrapped in an old page of the New York World. Helen had crumpled it lightly into the waste basket, where the sharp eye of Ginger Ella had espied it, whence her greedy fingers had rescued it. And from it she learned, to her delight, that the New York World would pay five dollars each for the Bright Sayings of Children.

One of Ginger's great grievances in life was the tendency of her sisters to recall, and repeat, smart sayings of her own none-too-remote childhood. Such repetition reduced her to abject and helpless fury. But she noted that the auditors always laughed, ample proof of the presence of humor. She cast about in her memory for the most amusing of these pseudo laugh-producers, and unable to discover merit by her own judgment, she hit upon the one that had produced the greatest gales of merriment. Merely changing names and relationships from her own and Helen's to that of a mother and daughter, she wrote:

"Mrs. Ingraham spent an entire afternoon assisting a neighbor to cut out and fit a gown, and when the garment was entirely finished, she wished to make payment for the time consumed. 'Oh, no,' said Mrs. Ingraham pleasantly, 'I shall not take a cent for it. I did it entirely out of friendship.' The neighbor remained firm, and would not take the money. At last she turned to Alice, Mrs. Ingraham's small daughter standing near, and said, 'Alice, tell me, how can I make your mother take this five dollars which she has fully earned?' Alice considered a moment, and then announced gravely, 'You might give it to me, and she will borrow it.'"

Ginger wrote, corrected, and copied. Then she read it, distastefully. "It's a dumb thing," she thought frowningly. But the memory of unfeeling laughter encouraged her, and she folded it neatly, tucked it into an envelope, and addressed it in a firm large hand.

At six o'clock, the girls came together in the kitchen where they hurriedly set out a light supper, in order to be at church again at seven for the meeting of the Epworth league. Mr. Tolliver did not attend this, as it was a service especially calculated to encourage and train the younger members of the congregation in active participation, and he inclined to the belief that they took part with more freedom in his absence.

On Monday afternoon, at one o'clock, the anxious little family gathered in the living room to say good-by to Mr. Tolliver and Miriam, starting for Chicago. Such tremendous issues were involved in this small journey. Perhaps he would return without the hated glasses, perhaps the dear tired eyes would see once more the love that shone in theirs. Perhaps the dreaded operation would be declared inevitable. Perhaps things would just drag on and on, month after month, as they had dragged in the past.

They went out to the veranda, Miriam leading the way with the light bag. Her father reached for it, struggled with her playfully for possession of it. She tucked her hand into his arm, looking back. The girls smiled at her, she smiled in return. Their smiles were sad, their father could not see the smiles. Their young eyes yearned with pain. Their father could not see the yearning. He waved a hand at them in blithe farewell.

"Be good girls. Eileen don't let anybody else go man-mad while I am away."

"You must mean Miss Jenkins. She is the only one left."

Light words they were, and gay voices, for their father heard.

But Miss Jenkins, unaccountably, without a word, detached herself from the cluster of girls and ran up to him. She threw both arms about his shoulders, and kissed him on both cheeks.

"Be careful, oh, be careful," she said, and her face worked with emotion.

In the dramatic silence which followed this unexpected outburst, Miriam's light hand led her father away.

"Why, my dear—" gasped Helen.

"Why, why—"

"The poor, brave, dear afflicted soul," went Miss Jenkins "Going away like that—with just that helpless young girl to look after him. I shouldn't have permitted it. I should have gone myself."

"Oh, Miriam is very capable. She has always gone before. She will take care of him."

But Miss Jenkins, still weeping, without a word, pulled away from her and hurried down the flagstone path toward her own home.

Ginger's eyes were stormily reflective.

"If I'm," she muttered. "If I'm—Man-mad. The darn thing's catching."

Later that afternoon, Eddy Jackson, calling by telephone, got Ginger on the wire.

"Have you anyone there who would like a little beaunging?" he inquired teasingly.

"Marjory would like it, I suppose, but I'm here to see that she doesn't get it."

"Miriam there?"

"No, she has gone to Chicago with father. Helen has gone driving, and for dinner, with the mathematical squire, and won't be home until late. Margie's here, I'm here, and if you want to hold hands we can get Miss Jenkins."

"I don't. But I have a chap here—man I met in Chicago a long time ago—pretty nice fellow—lives in New York—just back from a two years' tour of the world and all points east. I thought perhaps Marjory might take him on for the evening, but since Miriam is away, you would have to girl-friend me."

Even over the telephone Eddy could feel the sudden avarice in Ginger's voice, the covetous glitter of her bright eyes, the guile in her flying thoughts. New York—Chicago—around the world—

"Why, Eddy—of course! I'd love to. Marjory will adore it—me, too. You know I always enjoy you, Eddy, you've got so much sense."

"We'll breeze in about eight, then." Ginger flew up the stairs. "Margie, Margie," she called. "Quick—put on the dress."

Marjory's calm was maddening. She was manicuring her pink nails. She looked up evenly, looked down, continued to polish.

"The dress—the dress! He is from New York, and Eddy Jackson is bringing him to—look at you. Around the world, my dear, two years of it—and that takes money! He's used to people dressing up for dinner every single night, I dare say he'll wear an evening gown himself—I mean dress suit. I'll put on Helen's Alice-blue organdie, it just fits me."

Marjory considered. The mere joy of dressing was a point in favor.

"Well, I don't know. I dare say it would be all right. Lots of folks do dress for dinner."

constitutions, nations and dynasties. Yet, it is so modern, so up to date, so advanced of the times, that the narrow strip of land along the Atlantic seaboard has expanded to the shores of the Pacific, and it remains, notwithstanding the changed conditions of life and thought, the Supreme Law of more than 100,000,000 people.

"There were three prime obstacles in the path of the convention: The small states' fear of the large, the one-crop states' fear of the national tax power, and the slave-trading states' determination not to have the business summarily stopped. We shall see how each of these objections were met, but will first discuss some of the forms of constitution and government as some of our founders would have us live under.

"Franklin proposed that the legislative power be vested in a single house; Hamilton advocated a senate and a president to be chosen by electors who were to be chosen by popular vote and to hold office for life. The senate in turn would appoint governors for each of the states who would have a veto power over the state legislature. Madison would have cast the responsibility of legislation in the Supreme Court by giving it a direct veto over the acts of Congress; Randolph proposed to obliterate states as governing bodies, congress to have two branches, membership in both in proportion to population of the several states, the lower one chosen by the people, the upper one chosen by the state legislatures, the president to be chosen by congress. This was known as the 'Virginia plan.' William Patterson of New Jersey presented the 'Jersey plan,' which was about the same as the 'Virginia plan,' except it provided for only one house of congress. Samuel Johnson of Connecticut presented the 'Connecticut plan' which was finally adopted and is the present constitution.

"When the clouds seemed darkest for the success of the convention and when it was proposed to get the people and the several legislatures to approve the work of the convention, that subterfuge should be used in wording and framing of the constitution, George Washington arose from the president's chair and exclaimed in solemn and suppressed emotions: 'It is too probable that no plan we propose will be adopted. Perhaps another dreadful conflict is to be sustained. If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair; the event is in the hand of God.'

"This speech, the only one recorded that Washington made, seemed to be the welding force of the convention for the many ideas and resolutions that were before the convention. The convention removed the first and more serious obstacle of the three named by equal representation in the senate; the second by prohibition of taxing exports, with some other safeguards; the third by permitting the slave trade for twenty years and counting three-fifths of the slaves as a basis of representation.

"So we have the constitution in its original state; an instrument of only seven articles, containing probably four thousand words."

Judge Duncan concluded his speech by referring to each of the several amendments that have been adopted, and insisted that it is to the interest of every citizen to familiarize himself with the provisions of the constitution.

Mr. Mellon could have bought the $500,000,000 of certificates himself, and saved on income tax. But he avoids all business connected with government. And besides, he knows how to invest more profitably.

In his government, Mussolini held eight posts. Now the powerful Italian resigns seven of his cabinet offices remaining premier and minister of interior only.
