Dairy and Poultry Contests to Be Held Here Saturday

Annual Judging Saturday

100 Guests Expected Here for Annual Contests

The annual dairy and poultry judging contests for high school students will be held here Saturday, with some thirty schools invited, and over 100 boys with their coaches expected. The dairy contest will be staged at the Sitter ranch, with County Agent Ralph R. Thomas in charge, and Prof. A. R. McHaney acting as secretary. The poultry contest will be held in McLean, with Dr. A. A. Tampke in charge, and Prof. John Harding as secretary. These contests are a part of the annual poultry show sponsored by the chamber of commerce, but were not held at the same time as the show this year on account of the bad weather prevailing at the time. The contests will be free to the public, and anyone interested may visit the different contests at any time they desire.

Band Expense Compared with Other Expenses

Band Upkeep No More Than Other Civic Necessities

By Committee
In order to give the taxpayers a comparison of the different expenditures in operation of our city government, the band committee has gathered together a few facts and figures to tend to show that while, naturally, the band, if it is to be retained, costs us money; but, on the other hand, its retention should at least be credited with some return realized by the city of McLean through an advertising medium. During the years 1928, 1929, 1930 and 1931, used in the argument against retention of the band, the city of McLean paid as salaries to the mayor and aldermen a total of $9,266.50, or an average of $816.65 per year; or approximately one-third of what it costs to maintain the band. During these same years, waterworks labor alone cost the city $12,651.82, or an average of approximately $3,162.96. The power bill for pumping city water during these four years cost the city of McLean $7,890.30, or an average of $1,972.50. All this, of course, was returned to your city fund through sale of water. Street lights over the four year period cost the city $5,613.00, or an average of $2,152.00 yearly. The total cost of the band since being organized is about $9,946.83. Of this amount, $1,767.00 was expended for uniforms and instruments which are on hand and are credited as an asset. $400.00 was used to defray the cost of the band to Dallas during the fair, which was an advertising feature and trade promotion campaign, which should be chargeable to chamber of commerce activities instead of band expenditure. The band has realized in prizes something like $500.00, which is deductible from cost of operation. This gives us a total deduction of $2,667.00, leaving an operation item of $7,279.83 during the four year period, or an average of approximately $1,819.96, which has come back to McLean directly through trade channels. With a fixed valuation of $1,300,000 for 1931, our cost should average something like 1.4 mills to take care of the band, and on a basis of $2,000,000, our average taxpayer, the cost would be $3.50 per year.

Rev. W. A. Erwin Makes Address at Band Program

Rev. W. A. Erwin, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, made an inspirational address at the band program last Thursday night that drew generous and prolonged applause. Rev. Erwin said that the small town of today is in a life and death struggle for existence, comparing present day conditions with the old buggy and team days. Taking the negative side of questions frequently asked in these radio days, Rev. Erwin asked: "Why maintain churches in McLean when we can hear better sermons over the radio? We can save $15,000 per year to kill the churches in McLean. Why have local stores when mail order houses are so convenient? Many people are able to do without these things. You can put our schools down on a level with the small rural schools and be able to cut off all expenses." Rev. Erwin then showed the need for preachers when death enters the community, and the radio and phonograph will not satisfy. "It is up to us if we build or destroy our home town," declared the speaker. "If there ever was a time when McLean needed to all pull together, it is now. It is up to us if we are to stand by the churches, schools and local institutions and help McLean be the kind of a community it ought to be." Rev. Erwin paid his respects to the band and said: "If we mean to build our town to what it ought to be and stand for the betterment of our town, we will keep the band on our tax rolls." Rev. Erwin closed amid tumultuous applause, many remarking after the concert that it was the best inspirational address heard in McLean for many years.

Twenty Years of Progress in McLean

By D. A. Davis
Twenty years I dropped into McLean as your local agent for the Rock Island. McLean had two or three brick business houses, but mostly old run down shacks. A few board sidewalks, but mostly dirt paths. Taxes were low and rent was cheap. I rented a good house for $7.50 per month and paid a dollar per month for water piped into the house. We had no electric lights, no water and sewer system, no bath tubs or gas fires, no concrete sidewalks, no paved streets, no automobiles, no radios, no frigidaires, no roads. But the citizens had just finished a new school building that some had informed had cost three times more than it should have cost and the taxpayers would never pay for—but the town kept growing. I remember the first raise in taxes was denounced as highway robbery, and our trustee elections being good and hot with charges and counter charges of extravagance and mismanagement. New trustees were elected, new teachers were hired and (Continued on page 3)

WILSON FOR COMMISSIONER

The News is authorized to announce the candidacy of W. W. Wilson for county commissioner for precinct No. 4, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July. Mr. Wilson was a candidate for this position in a three-cornered race two years ago, and feels encouraged with the nice vote given him. If favored with election this year, Mr. Wilson promises an economical administration of county and precinct expenditures, keeping in mind the needs of the taxpayers at all times. Mr. Wilson is fully qualified, from an educational standpoint and otherwise for the position he seeks, and The News is glad to present his claims for consideration at the primary.

Lions Honor Birthday of Robt. E. Lee

A short session honoring the birthday of Robt. E. Lee was held at the Lions luncheon Tuesday. Rev. W. A. Erwin gave a short biography of Lee and paid his memory a tribute by saying that no other man in the history of the world has ever exceeded Lee as a man, soldier and general, and that he does not belong to any particular section, but to the world. A committee consisting of Reep Landers, Reuben R. Cook and Dr. Tampke was appointed to investigate the sponsoring of pig clubs for McLean, following a talk by D. A. Davis, who outlined a plan in which ginners can be of assistance to farmers in such clubs. Lion Erwin urged the payment of poll taxes by Lions, saying that no man should deprive himself of the privileges of citizenship for the small sum needed to pay the tax. Lion Erwin also insisted that political opinions should not be taken in a personal way, but that we should agree to disagree in political matters and all work together for the best interests of the community. Assistant Bank Examiner Nicholson of Shamrock was presented as a guest of the club. It was announced that the six McLean debaters in the coming tournament would be guests of the club next week, with a girl presenting one side and a boy the other side of the official debate question.

Arguments Advanced Against Tax

By Ruby Cook
In last week's News, Alderman Lander stated that the band expenditure for the year 1931 was about 1.6 mills. I wish to call attention to the public that this estimate was based upon the total property assessment valuation, which had all the taxes been paid, would have produced for the city, $16,250.00. But all the taxes were not paid. The band was paid whether or not the city owed the money for other expenses. At this time there is no way to determine the exact amount of delinquent taxes for 1931 that we had in 1930 (and who will say there will be less?) we find our situation even more unstable. The delinquent taxes for 1930 were $8,319.74. Subtracting this amount from the assessed taxes, $16,250.00, (remember this is only tentative, very (Continued on page 3))

MAYOR MAKES STATEMENT

By D. N. Massay
As an explanation of whether or not the tax rate would be lowered, should the band tax be defeated in the coming election, I wish to make a statement, since quite a number of voters have made inquiry of me on the question and several seem to be of the opinion that if the tax rate would not be lowered, then the maintenance of the band by the city is not costing the taxpayers anything. I want to call the attention of the voters to the fact that such statements are mis-leading, since the band as now maintained is costing the city in the neighborhood of $2,500.00 per year, and if this expense could be eliminated and this amount of the tax funds used elsewhere in paying the city's obligations, which are many, it would give room by which the tax rate could be, and would be lowered to that extent. I hope that each and every property taxpayer will pay his poll tax this week and vote in this election one way or the other.

McLean Boys at Childress Poultry Show

The members of the McLean poultry team accompanied Dr. Tampke to Childress last week, where Dr. Tampke was the official judge of the Childress poultry show. The boys assisted in the show by making notes of the defects and disqualifications, as the judging proceeded. They attended the lectures on placing of the birds, which were of educational value. A beef cutting demonstration by the Childress county agent was also attended by the team. Dr. Tampke and the team were furnished board and room, traveling expenses and every courtesy possible by the Childress people, for which they express appreciation.

Free Program PTA at High School Tonight

A program has been arranged by the Parent-Teacher Association at the high school auditorium tonight. The high school band will play and a number of entertainment features are promised. The program will be free to all who wish to attend, and it is expected that a record crowd will be on hand.

Vote Against Band Detrimental to Town's Interests

By Howard S. Williams
Artesia, N. M., Jan. 23.—To my surprise, I have been hearing rumors that they were thinking of discontinuing the McLean band. The consideration of doing such a thing has given me serious thought regarding same, due to the fact that my stay in McLean was much enjoyed; I especially appreciated the band for its entertainment feature and the good work it was doing for the entire community. Personally, I feel that discontinuing their good band would be one of the most detrimental things that could happen to McLean and its trade territory. I have noticed on several (Continued on page 3)

OUR INCREASED NEEDS TOWARD PROGRESSION

By a Taxpayer
It would be just as sensible to weaken or scrap our associated charities or other helpful civic organizations because of depression as it would be to weaken our support of the municipal band because we have a financial stringency. Just as it is the essence of common sense to support organized charity, church, or what-not when their needs are the greatest, so it is the part of common sense to keep the municipal band, even though a depression has been sweeping the country. If a good live municipal band was a civic necessity (and 90% of the voters thought so from the way they voted), when prosperity was abundant and the city was expanding along every line, it is needed even more now that the city has to fight for every improvement that it might win. Two or three years ago it was merely helpful to line up with those striving to push our city forward, now it is a patriotic duty. Let's keep the band. You can do this by supporting it. Saturday is the last day to pay your poll tax. Be prepared to vote this year.

Fire Destroys Montgomery Drug Stock Sunday

Fire of unknown origin was discovered at the Montgomery Drug Store about 5:30 a. m. Sunday morning, and the stock and building were badly damaged before it was under control by the fire department. The night watchman had gone home, and the fire was discovered by a newsboy who promptly turned in the alarm. The Piggly Wiggly grocery, next door to the drug store, had their stock badly damaged by smoke, the Erwin Drug Co., two doors away, was damaged by smoke. The Palace Cafe also suffered smoke damage. Most, if not all of the loss was covered by insurance, and an adjustment is expected some time this week. Montgomery Drug Co. suffered a loss by fire in December, 1930, and again last winter. The entire building was rebuilt last winter.

Banker Cook Says Should Vote for Band

By Reuben R. R. Cook
Not knowing who is for and who is against the band tax, it is a safe conjecture that some of my best friends are opposed to it. I would not knowingly do anything to mar that friendship, which is so highly esteemed, but the matter is of such importance, in my judgment, that I feel it would be a neglect of duty to our community if I should not voice my personal opinion. As to the amount of the band tax, I am giving no consideration, for I do not know; but I am convinced that it is not exorbitant, but is reasonable. Any portion of the band tax not required or used for maintaining the band can be used for other city expenses. Inasmuch as the band has been functioning several years and the initial and heaviest expenses have been met and a high degree of efficiency attained, it should require only a minimum cost to keep it up. If, perchance, there should be any unnecessary expenditures in connection, they can easily be corrected. Likewise, it may be possible to cut some expense off in other departments. (Continued on page 3)

Band Needed in Teaching Citizenship

By Mrs. A. A. Tampke
As a citizen of McLean for several years, I have derived no material gain from the McLean band, but as a citizen, it is our duty to help others as we live under the protection of our government. It is impossible in this day of modern life to live for ourselves and ours alone. Every person in McLean has a responsibility for the youth of the town, whether his children are grown or not, and whether he assumes this responsibility or not determines the kind of citizen he is. The McLean band has done more than teach music to the boys and girls. It has taught co-operation, team work, submission to rightful (Continued on page 3)

NEWMAN FOR COMMISSIONER

The News is authorized to carry the name of M. M. Newman as a candidate for re-election as commissioner of precinct No. 4. Mr. Newman is making the race strictly on the record he has made in the office, and promises to continue to keep in mind the needs of the taxpayers in the careful expenditure of the county funds, and he will appreciate the consideration of the voters at the Democratic primary in July. The News is glad to commend Mr. Newman's claims to the voters of this precinct.

Justice Court in Session

Examining Trials Held by Justice of the Peace

In addition to the usual run of cases in justice court the past week, a number of examining trials were held by Judge C. S. Rice. The following is taken from the court records: On January 21st, held examining trial for Buck Sloan, accused of robbery by the use of firearms; remanded to jail without bond to await action of grand jury. On the night of January 2nd, he and three others held up A. G. Hoffman and at the point of gun took from him about $80.00 in money and a Ford sedan belonging to Ivan Stanley. Sloan was caught at Childress and the car found in a canyon near the Sitter ranch. The other three men have not been apprehended. The same day examining trial was held for George Richardson, accused of burglarizing a boarding car in the railroad yards. He had gone into the car, took a suit of clothes, including sweater, overcoat, hat and boots, and a gladstone bag filled with clothing and toilet articles, and a pistol; had put on the clothes and started east upon the highway. He was caught 1 1/2 miles east of town by M. L. Bush, deputy marshal. He was remanded to jail in default of $1500.00 bond. On January 22nd, examining trials were held for Arthur Miller, Lee Trimble, Marion Trimble and Finn Ingram, accused of transporting intoxicating liquor. They were held for the grand jury in the sum of $1000 each. All made bond except Ingram. About four o'clock on the morning of January 22nd, a young man went to the home of W. W. Boyd and phoned his brother at Shamrock that he had wrecked his car and asked him to come after him. Later Boyd and T. H. Andrews went out to where the car was wrecked, and near there found some whiskey. They reported the fact to Harris King, who went to Boyd's place and remained about two hours. When two cars drove up with four young men in them, they went to a shinnery patch about 50 yards from the wrecked car and began carrying packages to their cars, when King drove up on them and found 46 one-half gallons of whiskey.

BAND CONCERT

On Friday evening the McLean high school band entertained the public with a most enjoyable band concert in the high school auditorium. Director Davidson was master of ceremonies. Many beautiful selections were played. The high school girls glee club sang four delightful numbers. Rev. Erwin made the speech of the evening, concerning the vote on the band tax. The essence of his speech was as follows:

"The small towns of America are fighting for existence. With radios and cars you could save the town twelve or fifteen thousand dollars a year by abolishing the churches of the town. Why maintain churches? With mail order houses all over the country, you could order what you need. Why maintain stores? Why not cut down the school? Why have any expense? We have started on a way to either build or destroy our town. I believe the churches are a necessity. It is all right to sit and hear a sermon over your radio, but in case of a death you want a minister.

"The beginning of better times is upon us. The rise is coming. The people of McLean should pull together. They must not cut off things that will hurt. Nothing has helped the town, except churches, more than the band. During the year they have made eight trade trips and thirty concerts to draw people into town. The band was the official band for the opening of the court house; they made four trips to Amarillo, played for all ball games, for Labor Day, for Armistice Day, and all other times they were needed.

"If we mean to stand by the schools churches and town, we must stand by the band. If there ever was a time that we should pull together, it is now.

"If we want to better the town and all the empty houses, let's not cut the brick out from under ourselves. Let's make the town so that people will want to come to it. Let's keep the band on the tax roll. I am proud of the band and band master. I am for the band, now and all time."

WHOOPIING COUGH

By Dr. William J. Scholes

While whooping cough may occur at any time during the year, the greatest number of cases usually occurs during the cold weather of late winter and early spring. This disease, like the other respiratory infections, is caused by a germ, and is transmitted directly from one person to another.

Contagious in Early Stages

Unfortunately, many cases of whooping cough are not recognized until the child begins to whoop during the spells of coughing. As the disease is probably most contagious during the early stages, this often results in delay in quarantine, and the exposure and infection of other children. The fact that a child has been in contact with a case which proves to be whooping cough, and that it develops a spasmodic cough, should lead one to suspect whooping cough, and keep the child away from others. It is a good rule in any cough.

By means of a blood examination, which reveals an abnormal increase in certain of the white corpuscles, the physician is sometimes able to make an early diagnosis.

Dangerous Complications

Because of its complications, which include bronchial pneumonia, tuberculosis, and occasionally hemorrhages, whooping cough is a dangerous disease, particularly in babies and young children. Every effort should be made to prevent it by avoidance of exposure to coughs and known cases of the disease.

When one of a family of children develops whooping cough, vaccination of the others seems to be successful

The bank has just paid its taxes and 35.4% of the total went to the city of McLean. As one of the stockholders, whatever portion of this goes to the support of the band is cheerfully contributed.

Perhaps no one realizes and appreciates the desirability and necessity for rigid economy at this time more than I do, but let us beware of false economy, remembering that sometimes a dollar spent will bring us back two dollars.

Arguments Against

(Continued from page 1) likely our delinquent taxes will be greater, we find that our taxes collected for 1931 will not exceed $7,930.28.

Another item copied from Alderman Lander's article reads: "That when the city government was given authority to expend this money for bond, our taxable rendition was $1,018,000.

Answering the above statement: $1,018,000 valuation assessment, at the rate of $1.50 per hundred, the total tax assessment of the city for the year 1928 was $15,270.00.

Can anyone say that you could take $2,556.20 from the city expenses and not lower the city's necessitated tax, other expenses being as usual?

(Continued from page 1) occasions where they have made a wonderful showing as to their ability to make music, and their records show the same.

I feel that this particular organization does more good and you get better advertising at a much cheaper cost with a good band than it is possible to secure any other way.

Of course, due to the fact that there are numerous people in your fair city that cannot realize just what this band means to them, but if the occasion ever presented itself to them that they should move to a town where there is no band they would doubly appreciate the band which McLean now has, and this has been the occasion in my case.

It certainly would be a thrill to me to hear that the people that are in favor of discontinuing the band would change their minds and be a better support for maintaining it, for I, personally, feel that if it is discontinued that everyone that was the cause of doing so will regret it very much.

Band Needed

(Continued from first page) authority, city and community boosting and the finer things in life that our youth so much needs.

We believe in the youth of today, but it must be directed carefully through channels that quiet it from the excitement of our fast life. There is nothing that will quiet excitement as effectively as good music will.

The cost, as stated in your paper last week, is all placed as outlay with no returns. To me it is clear that the overhead expense is paid and will be lost if the band tax is cancelled, because it is not fair to expect a few merchants who open their doors on Main Street to carry this burden when the tax costs each of us so little and means so much to our bigger and better town.

I am sure there is not a citizen of thought on this responsibility, will McLean who, when he or she has not vote to keep our band. As for us on our hill, we can't afford to give up the band.

SEVENTH HISTORY

By Frankie Mae Bell We have a large history book in the seventh grade. It is so thick it almost takes two people to carry it. Just the same, most of us like it. We have studied the first chapter. Friday we had a test. Easy, did you say? It was if you had studied. I believe I made ninety. We are having and hope to have all the year as good lessons as now.

ENGLISH FIVE

We are studying quotations in English. We play little games, too. This term we shall write little themes, compose some poetry, study correct forms, write letters, and act out some plays. We plan to "Learn to do by doing."

JOKES

Miss Hayes—"Let's leave out 'got' when you can use 'receive'." Louise (telling her story)—"And the dog got a kick." Miss Hayes—"Don't you think you can leave out 'got'?" C. A.—"Would you say he received a kick?"

HISTORY FIVE

By Marian Thompson This is our first week of history. We have been studying about Columbus, and some about the wild Indians, who were first in America. We found out that Columbus was buried in many different places. We all seem to enjoy history very much.

SMILE

Smile! The world is blue enough Without your feeling blue. Smile! There's not half joy enough Unless you're happy, too. Smile! The sun is always shining, And there's work to do. Smile! This world may not be heaven, But, then, it's home to you.

ANTI-CANTS

Last week the scribblers contest ended. The greatest scribblers of the world lost. They stayed after school and decided what they would do. The next day they had their coats on backward. They got up in front of the room. They said, "Party backward one to you welcome me." It was supposed to be "We welcome you to our backward party." They gave us some suckers. We ate the stick. No, just teasing! Afterwards we played games and then the bell rang.

PENMANSHIP CELEBRATIONS

When the scribblers contest was over, six classes eagerly planned some entertainment. The following events show some of the fun we had.

PIANO HONOR ROLL

First year—Vada Appling, Marie Landers, Johnnie Mae Scott. Second and third years—Fern Martin, Ermadel Floyd, Willie Louelle Cobb, George Colebank, Anadel Singer, Evelyn Hale, Helen Boswell. Advanced grades—Margaret Glass, Lavern Pettit, Margaret Hess, Ruth Hess.

FIFTH READING PLANS

Monday—Story hour. Tuesday—Word study. Wednesday—Sword drill. Thursday—Memory gems. Friday—Program.

ENGLISH PLANS

Quotation Army—This week will be spent in studying direct quotations. We shall hunt quotations in our history, reader, and English books. Everyone seems to enjoy the memory gems in reading. The fifth grade is showing great interest in all their subjects. Watch out for the Climbers!

BULLETIN BOARD

On our bulletin board in the fifth grade room we have many different interesting things. One thing is about Chinese and Japanese war. We have a new picture. It is The Song of the Lark. We have some postcards showing some facts of Carlsbad Cavern.

PERSONALS

By S. J. Ayer The following Climbers went to a party this week end: Dorothy Sitter, Margie Lochridge, Ermadel Floyd and Georgia Colebank. Edna Babbitt visited her grandmother. Marian Thompson spent the week end with her grandmother.

PENMANSHIP REPORT

By Edna Babbitt In our penmanship this week we have decided to do our best. We go to the blackboard some of the days. Other days we have writing at our seat. We are trying to make our class the most interesting class of all.

THE MISCHIEF OF AN UN-BLEACHED CITIZEN

By W. C. Stotts Rasmus, where you hid? You know's you done sumpin' you ought not to did. You scattered mud all over the floor, And put your hands on de new varnished door. I say, Rasmus, you better walk straight Or you will get into heaven late. You had better stop stealin' do-nuts off de shelf. Till there ain't a single one left. You had better stop teasin' de little girls, And you had better stop pullin' de baby's curls, Rasmus, where you at, I would like to know, For up to heaven you'll never go. Just you wait here till I get me a switch, And next time you won't do no sitch.

Your poll tax must be paid this week if you are to have any voice in your government this year.

The way to get the most we desire from our community life is to make some contribution of our own to community welfare.

One reason why people buy out of town is because they are not sufficiently informed of what they can buy in the home stores. Some consistent advertising in the home paper will cure most of this trade.

No merchant ever failed because of the money he spent for advertising, but the business history of this country is filled with instances of men who have made brilliant success in business by means of advertising.

You do not have to be a subscriber to The News in order to express your opinion on any question of interest to the community, and we are always glad to have letters from our readers, regardless of whether the opinion pleases the editor or not.

Dr. Tampke asked W. B. Upham Monday if times were getting better or worse, and Mr. Upham replied, "Yes," and this was all the explanation the doctor could get, which is, perhaps, as good an answer as anyone could give right at this time. But it is the generally accepted opinion that we are due for much better times this year.

Many people have been disappointed in failing to be able to buy a copy of The News for the past three weeks, despite our running an increasing number of extra copies each week. The only way to insure getting the home paper each week is to subscribe by the year. If our regular news stand readers would do this, there would be more papers for the transient readers.

Some people say they do not feel able to pay their poll tax this year, but they surely cannot afford to surrender their citizenship for the $1.75 that the poll tax costs. Then, too, it will not be possible for workmen to get jobs on state highways this year unless they can show a poll tax receipt. This rule is also likely to be enforced on railroad work and other public works.

It has been called to our attention that there was some misunderstanding of the name signed to Alderman E. J. Lander's article in last week's issue of The News. Mr. Lander having a similar name to the editor confused some readers, but we hope they have all learned by this time that the editor's expressions of opinion are confined to this column, or plainly labeled "Editorial."

A citizen who has figured the cost of the band says that he spends more for cigars each month than the tax amounts to each year to the average taxpayer. He also figures that most of us spend more for groceries during the year than the average cost of.

about $3.50 per year that the band costs the taxpayers. There are many things to be considered before casting a vote against the band.

Anyone who owns property or holds a job in a growing town has a chance for financial betterment, but growing towns do not grow of their own momentum; someone must take hold and push. And it takes more than the pushing of a few people; there must be leadership from competent and active people, coupled with hearty cooperation and absence of petty fault-finding on the part of the rest of us. When this condition obtains in any town, there is nothing to keep it from growing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ADOPTS NEW NAME

By R. L. Appling, Reporter
The recently organized men's Bible class of the First Baptist Church met in business session Tuesday night and adopted the name "Fellowship" for the class. The class will now be known as the Men's Fellowship Bible Class.

A. C. St. Clair was elected assistant teacher, and a number of reports from the officers were accepted.

With the exception of one Sunday, when one member was absent, this class has recorded 100% attendance since its organization.

A. R. McHaney is president of the class, John Scott secretary, and S. A. Cobb teacher.

METHODIST W. M. S.

The Methodist W. M. S. met at the church at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon with 18 present.

The devotional service was led by Mrs. W. E. Bogan. A piano solo was given by Mrs. G. C. Boswell, a dialogue by Mrs. S. A. Cousins and Mrs. Callie Haynes, and a vocal solo by Mrs. A. B. Blake.

A business meeting was then held, and the closing prayer led by Mrs. C. C. Cook.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as its taste. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is a need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Jack Harris, of the Chamberlain Tribune, thinks it somewhat strange that someone has not stepped over this year with an election, to save expense. He would accept the Literary Digest in a better way, maybe, would be in two or three extra copies. A lot of people could get jobs on boards. While using public money to make jobs, this suggestion is given consideration.

Possibly the crowd took them along. Possibly the disciples kept some for their own next meal. The important thing is that nothing was wasted.
v 48. The multitude again wanted bread, but Jesus' answer was that He was the bread of life.
vv 49, 50. Their fathers had eaten manna the same as they had eaten bread, and their fathers had died the same as they would die. But Jesus offers a man bread, spiritual bread, which was the bread of life. It was bread which, when they had eaten, they would never die—"that who-so-ever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." then, and is the bread of life today.
v 51. Jesus was the bread of life Eternal bread from heaven. Jesus said the bread He would give was His flesh—He died upon the cross and gave Himself for the sins of that men. The world is starving for that bread of eternal life. It is plentiful, yet millions are starving for it, for two reasons. One reason is that men will not take the bread. Jesus said that who-so-ever would might eat of that bread. The other is that Jesus is not preached throughout the world. Let us pray that every man might eat of that bread.

THE STORY

CHAPTER 1.—Linda Haverhill's father, impecunious ne'er-do-well, die when the girl is seventeen. Of remarkable beauty and with no disturbing illusions, Linda faces the world with very little money or prospects, but relying on her cleverness, youth and beauty to smooth her way through life.

CHAPTER 2.—Linda's sole obsessions are a handful of practically worthless stock certificates. Her father's old friend, Senator Converse, agrees to dispose of these, and tells her not to worry about money. She instinctively dislikes Converse but allows him to take care of her affairs. For several years she lives with a cousin, Amy Ralston, and then, after a whirlwind courtship, marries Courtney Roth. The day after the marriage Linda learns that her husband is a penniless adventurer. He lives by his wits and initiates her into the plays and bluffs of the game. They live unhappily until Roth dies in Switzerland.

CHAPTER 3.—Linda continues to live like a woman of wealth. The senator supplies her with money occasionally, keeping up the fiction that her stock is yielding it. On a trip she meets Brian Anstey, a young lawyer, who helps her out of an embarrassing situation when she finds herself without money.

CHAPTER 4.—Converse in an unguarded moment reveals to Linda what he has had in mind in befriending her, and she almost regards her ultimate surrender as inevitable. She meets Anstey again, while with Converse. The senator appears to resent Linda's friendship with the young man and the fact that she has put herself under financial obligation to him.

CHAPTER 5.—Linda has a few days of happiness in Anstey's companionship in New York and the two find they are strongly attracted to each other. Knowing that Anstey has little money and is hardly started on his career, Linda realizes that their closer acquaintanceship is fraught with danger, marriage being apparently out of the question.

CHAPTER 6.—Brian's appointment to a diplomatic post is being pushed by Converse. He tells Linda of his acquaintance with Simon Pentressington. She knows of his friendship with Pentressington's daughter, Daisy, and though telling herself that her marriage with Anstey is impossible because of their mutual lack of money, she is conscious of a feeling of jealousy.

CHAPTER 7.—The management of the New York hotel where Linda makes her home is uneasy at the size of the bill she owes, but she is unaware of this. Almost her only possession, of intrinsic value, is a strand of pearls given her by Courtney Roth. She goes to Washington. Converse displays jealousy of Anstey, and to Linda's disgust warns her he intends to have a voice in her choosing of lovers. She realizes to the full her anomalous position. Brian's selection for a diplomatic post at Madrid seems to be assured.

CHAPTER 8.—Coincident with a practical avowal of Brian's love, financial troubles overwhelm Linda. She offers the last of her stock for sale.

Mr. Stevens raised his yellowish brows.

"Only a month ago . . . we forwarded our check . . ."
"What of that? The securities had been in your hands since October!"
"Very well. I will do what I can." He turned away. Brokers have a uniform antipathy to irritable clients. Linda, who had always swept in and out of that office as a queen, lingered hesitant at the door.

"There is an obligation that is troubling me. My bill at the St. Sevier has been running for a long time. They must have a payment from this money." She spoke thoughtfully, as if the stock was already sold and she had only to disburse its equivalent.

Mr. Stevens was shocked. This was an error in tactics for which he was unprepared. He had nothing to do with the liabilities or embarrassments of his clients.

"The bookkeeper will forward the check to your address, Mrs. Roth," he said frigidly.

And so Linda assured the manager of her hotel that he would hear from her within the week. She was giving up her rooms for good—leaving New York. Politely asked for an address, she answered vaguely, "Washington." She had been in that city many times, but now her heart beat as madly as any sixteen-year-old's who gets her first peep at the world at the historic if utterly dull and plebeian hordes that migrate to and from the political center at every season.

She had sent no word of her coming to the two men who would be interested in seeing her, but twenty minutes after her bags were brought up she telephoned Converse to come to her. His response was so pleased and triumphant that she was smiling faintly when she turned from the telephone.

When they met an hour later, he still wore the manner of victory, but this disappeared at her first words.

"I have given everything into Stevens' hands," she said. "Soon the last bit of paper I possess will be gone and then—you will be troubled with my poor little affairs no longer." She tried to speak lightly, disguising the meaning of her words with mockery.

His face altered at once, but not with chagrin—rather it was with a closing down of pleasantry, a tightening of every muscle in that visage which beneath its purple mask of flesh remained crafty and sinister.

CHAPTER 9

From Mountain Top into the Valley Senator Converse made himself comfortable in the widest chair the room afforded and selected a cigarette with care before he answered Linda. She watched this, striving to keep her thoughts from her eyes.

"So our friendship is to end with the last hundred shares?"
"She winced from something in his tone."

"Were we ever friends?"
He reflected upon this. "Possibly not. I am then to be of no further use to you. We will put it that way in spite of baldness."

She interrupted warmly: "You helped me with advice—with your influence in selling those stocks because you liked my father—not me—"

The senator burst out laughing.

"Gad, what frauds you women are! Are you lying to yourself or just to me?"

"It was going to be horrible, but she

'So Our Friendship Is to End With the Last Hundred Shares?'

must control yourself.
"I gave you no encouragement to believe yourself my friend," she said coldly. "I would have—paid—you for what you did. That is how I have always felt toward you."

She realized that she had made an error when she saw him start violently. She had angered him and he had power. He repeated her words slowly.

"So you would have paid me—but not with the coin I wanted—from you." His glance traveled over her slowly and she cringed before it. She wanted to say that this was pay—as she had paid a hundred times in humiliation, but that would have gained her nothing. After a little while he became merciful and turned his eyes away.

"I believed you would turn to me some day," he said slowly.
"Turn to you? No, no, I could not!"

"If there hadn't been another man," he went on, tonelessly, "you'd have got over that feeling you have for me—repulsion, I suppose you'd call it. You'd have got to—you could touch me without shivering. That was just youth—and you spent your youth pretty freely. It's nearly gone, though you haven't lived so very many years. I figured it would last about as long as the red and blue papers your daddy left behind him."

"Red and blue papers," she repeated, dully, though she knew it was just that.

He got up and took a step toward her. A thick dark vein stood out on his forehead like an ugly bruise and his hand trembled when it fell upon her shoulder. She would have screamed, but there was no escape. She would be smothered—effaced—before anyone came.

"It is another man, isn't it?"
She could not say no.

"Then let me tell you—you can't have that boy. You'll ruin him—a woman like you. Why don't you let him marry that young girl? She's fresh. She'll give him everything. She can have half a dozen children without remembering—"

That wretched cry from her.
"What have I done? A woman like me! Oh, you—you—" She began to sob, seeing his face through a blur of tears.

He laughed dryly.
"You're defending your virtue now—a woman can always do that, even when it's gone. But, my dear Linda, do not misunderstand me. I'll admit that you have been pure—exemplary. But perhaps that is my fault. I made it easy for you. I have paved the way with—Stevens' checks." He had been smoking, one cigarette after another—a puff, then flung away. The ashes and stubs littered the carpet around where he sat. It was absurd to see the tiny paper rolls in his mouth, lost between his pendulous cheeks. At a glance he seemed to be burning up inside. "We are still bigoted enough to call the woman virtuous who has never given herself to a man. I would be the last to rob you of that claim to superiority, my ear girl. We will say that you have accepted a casket from me—to keep your virtue safely in. By this ambiguity the truth is upheld and no one offended." He paused. "But even by—borrowers—there is a code to be considered."

She answered with effort: "Do not dare to say that. You told me—you lied—" Her voice was lost. There was nothing she could say when he looked at her like that. Her face drooped upon her clasped hands.

in Your bowels!

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, cause that headachy sluggish, bilious condition: coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied constipation for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription such that men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to people of all ages. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstores sell.

BREAD VALUE ALWAYS HIGH

It Still Is One of Best Energy Foods
In these days of so many different diets, we are apt to forget that there was a time when bread was called the staff of life. Perhaps we are beginning to remember it at this time, though, for bread is one of the best and cheapest forms of energy food. Nutritionally it is one of the most important items in our daily food list. About half of every loaf of bread is made up of starches and sugars that are easily digested by the body and supply the heat and energy needed in every day living. In addition, good bread contains milk, which supplies protein or muscle building food—some of this is also supplied by the wheat which makes the flour. Wheat or rye or corn or whatever grain you use in your bread—and most of us use more wheat than any of the others—should have a definite place in the family dietary.—Daily Oklahoman.

Bread is pleasant to eat, easy to digest, and full of nutrition.
A large loaf of bread gives 1800 calories (average).
CALDWELL'S GOLDEN KRUST has more than that because we use more than the average amount of sugar, shortening and milk. An average slice of good bread gives about 75 calories.
Look for a thick golden brown crust on bread, and you will always be assured that it is a rich loaf.
—And don't forget what makes CALDWELL'S DELICIOUS CAKES so good—"They're made from Home Recipes."
