CITY TAILORS BUY PRESS
 According to H. H. Darnell, proprietor of the City Tailor Shop, they will install a brand new, latest model steam press in the tailor shop this week and expect to be in operation Saturday.

THANK YOU!
 Our last week's appeal for consideration by reporters was kindly received; most every item and column being in on time this week with very little overtime needed. We thank you!

A little classified advertisement asking for a copy of The News for our files brought response from all over. Mrs. John B. Vannoy sent us a copy Thursday afternoon, and others were brought in Friday and Saturday, with the mails bringing in other copies the first of this week. We are sorry that we could not pay for them all; in fact, Mrs. Vannoy refused to take pay for her copy; but we are mighty glad to know that so many people read the advertisements and think enough of the paper to preserve their copies for many weeks.

Firemen in District Meet Here Thursday

On last Thursday evening the Lone Star Firemen's Association met at the Odd Fellows hall for a banquet and musical program.

The association is composed of volunteer fire departments of McLean, Panhandle, White Deer, Groom and Claude. Representatives from all towns were present, as was a delegation from the Shamrock fire department.

Boyd Meador, local fire marshal, was presiding officer for the evening and made the welcome address. Others to welcome the visitors in short talks were: Fire Chief J. A. Sparks, Mayor D. A. Davis, City Secretary W. E. Bogan, City Attorney Thurman Adkins, City Alderman M. T. Wilkerson, City Health Officer H. W. Finley, and Editor T. A. Landers.

The business session was devoted to talks of fire prevention, with special attention to "profit fires." The fact was brought out that insurance agents can be of assistance in preventing over insurance as a cause of fires. Agents, according to several speakers, should be careful to see that the property invoice is properly made out before a policy is written.

Music for the evening was furnished by an orchestra of high school boys, and the Panhandle fire department gave accordion numbers accompanying a torch singer who caused a good deal of laughter by singing to Chief Sparks and Fireman Zane Smith.

Food was prepared by the Meador Cafe and there was lots of it, seasoned to a king's taste. Plates were heaped high with various kinds of tasty viands that the hungry firemen did full justice to.

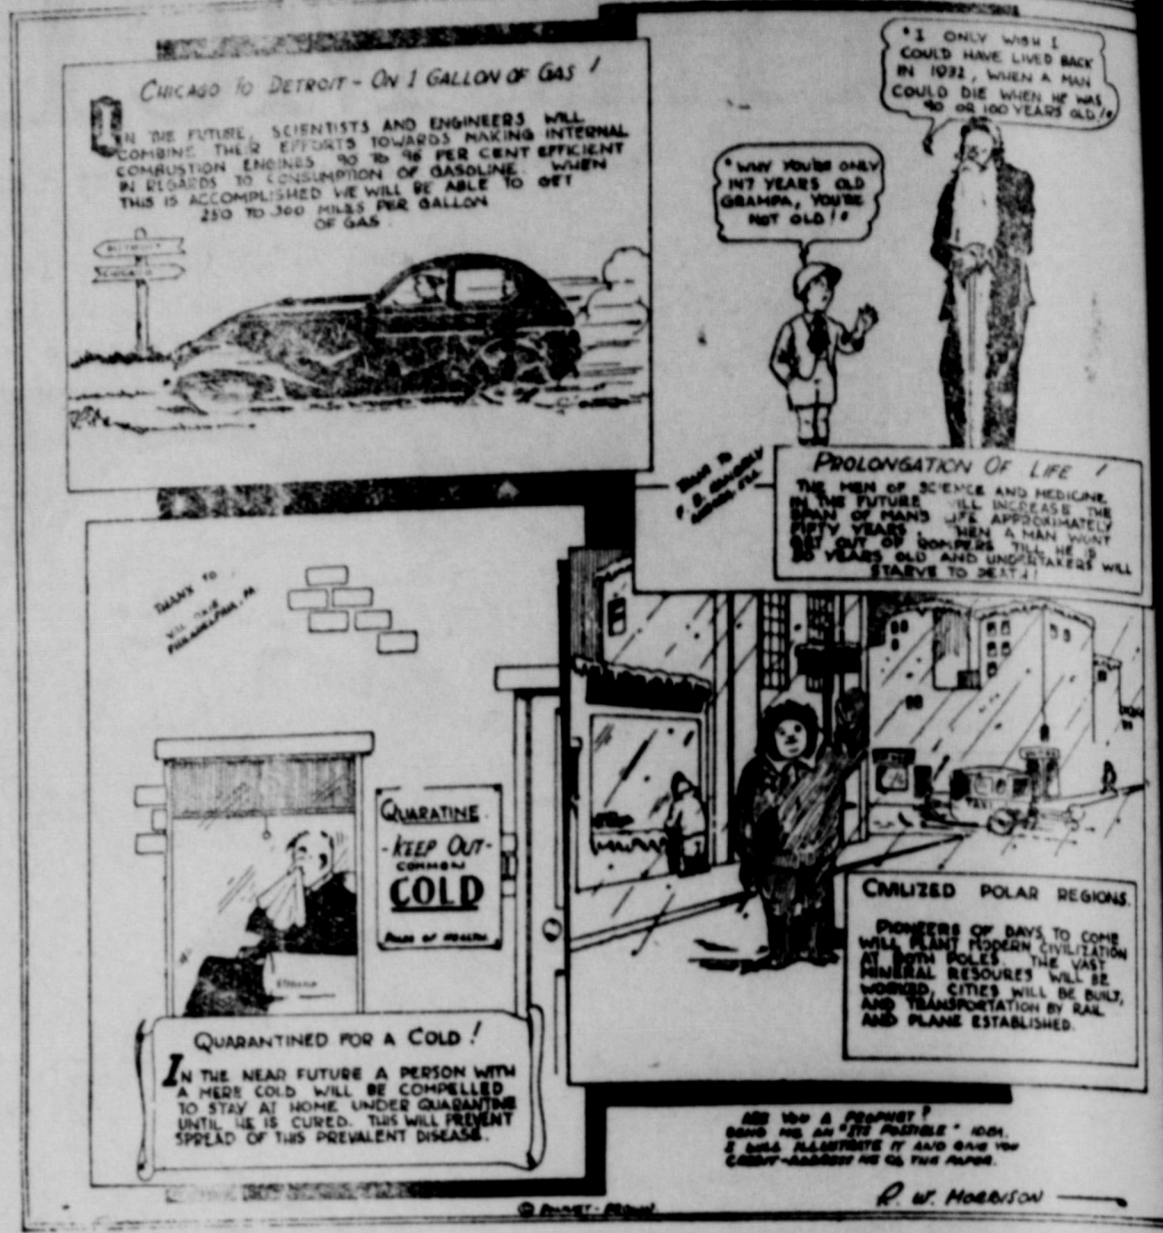

The next bi-monthly meeting will be held at Groom early in December.

TIGERS ROMP OVER WELLINGTON 33 TO 7

The Tigers exhibited a powerful football attack here Friday night before a large crowd of fans, and ran across three touchdowns during the first quarter, one in the third and one in the fourth, to defeat the Wellington Skyrocks 33 to 7.

This is the third conference victory for the Tigers.

The second quarter was turned over to the Tiger reserves who managed to hold the Skyrocks scoreless, but were unable to advance the ball to any degree of satisfaction.

Stratton was again the outstanding ground gainer. He carried the ball for a total of 123 yards and intercepted a Wellington pass and ran 59 yards untouched for a touchdown in the fourth period. The first touchdown was also made by Stratton, who broke through the line at the 50 yard mark and coasted the remainder of the distance to the goal.

The kicks for extra point after the first three touchdowns were also feature plays by Stratton and provoked much comment from the spectators.

Cunningham was also going good and carried the ball for an average gain of a little better than 6 yards per down. Late in the game he plowed through the Wellington defense, after receiving a kick-off, for a gain of 48 yards.

Laswell and Christian each carried the ball seven times for a total of 37 yards each.

Touchdowns were scored by Stratton 2, Laswell 2, Cunningham 1.

The McLean line held the Wellington backs to but very few gains and got them for losses many times.

The teams each registered 13 first downs. Four of Wellington's first downs came during the second quarter while the Tiger reserves were in the game. Three came from penalties and four by passes.

Williams was by far the best man on the Wellington team on both defense and offense. He was truly a triple threat man. His punts were high and long, his passing accurate and his ball carrying superb. On defense he took the left end position and got many tackles.

The line-ups:
McLean—Nicholson, Johnson, Kennedy, Chilton, McCarty, Cooke, King, Christian, Laswell, Cunningham, Stratton; subs, Finley, Brawley, Cappel, Chambers, Roth, Overton, Back, Graham, Braxton, Bogan, Watson, Wingo.

Wellington—Williams, Austin, Parker, Estes, Langford, McCaulley, Ward, arborough, Amburn, McClure, McBrewer.

JOHNSON INJURED IN GAME

Horace Johnson, left end of the Tiger football team, received a leg injury in the Wellington game that will probably keep him out of the remaining games of the schedule.

Brawley and Finley will likely divide time at this position for the remainder of the season.

MCLEAN INDEPENDENTS DEFEAT ALANREED 39-21

The McLean Independent basketball team retained their tradition Monday night when they handed the Alanreed Outlaws a 39 to 21 licking on the local court. McLean took an early lead and held it throughout the game.

The game was slow and not so rough as former games, but was characterized by accurate goal shooting by both teams.

Next Monday night the faculty team will probably scrimmage the Smith Brothers team.

MCLEAN JUNIORS TO PLAY CANADIAN

A team of small boys from the high school who are not out for the regular team will scrimmage a similar team from Canadian, on Tiger Field Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Most of these boys will be candidates for positions on the 1936 Tiger team, so fans may get a thrill in seeing these little fellows play.

The team just started to training Monday, under the direction of A. R. McHaney.

Reports are that three younger brothers of Lopez, Canadian wonder man, will play in this game.

JERUSALEM TAKEN CAPTIVE

2 Kings 25:1-12. Golden age of Judah really begins with King Josiah at Megiddo. He was killed in the battle and his death was a decisive victory for the Babylonians. Following the burial of Josiah, the people of Judah by the choice of Jehozaz, twenty-year-old son of Josiah, on the throne. He was not equal to the situation and was deposed three months later by the Egyptian army and carried into Egypt. His brother Eliakim placed on the throne by the Egyptian king, Pharaoh-Necho. Within a short time the two great armies of Egypt and Babylon met in the field of Carchemish and the Babylonians were victorious. Eliakim was killed and his son Jehoiakim quickly repudiated his allegiance to the Babylonians. At this time the Babylonians carried a number of the best of the people of Judah into captivity. The king and his family were also taken into captivity. The king's name was changed to Zedekiah. The son and remainder of the royal family soon surrendered to the Babylonian king and were taken to Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar named Mattaniah as ruler and he was named Zedekiah. Already had the Babylonian king stripped the land of most of its wealth and had taken two groups of captives to the new land. It seems that Zedekiah would have known that it was not to revolt against him. Nevertheless, in 587 B. C., when Nebuchadnezzar was busy in another part of his empire, Zedekiah revolted. Nebuchadnezzar found time to deal with the foolish vassal he had with his soldiers into the walled city of Jerusalem to end the siege. Jeremiah began to tell the people that their lives would be saved if they would surrender. But the king's life was at stake and he would not surrender. He was placed in a nasty prison which would have been his had it not been for the intercession of God. The city withstood the siege for eighteen months. But the Babylonian army was completely victorious and there was no way to get food. The supply was finally gone and it was necessary to surrender. The king said such a time would come. Damascus, Samaria and Jerusalem had fallen—but never Jerusalem. Sennacherib had surrounded Jerusalem and lost 185,000 men in a rout planned by God. But the king had all too long defied God. Jerusalem had long since taken control of the city. God had sent him because the people would not listen to His many warnings and turn from their sins. The famine raged and the king thought to save himself and his family and let the people go. He left by a secret passage but the foe overtook him. His sons were killed before his eyes. His eyes were burned out, and he was taken to Babylon. Jeremiah had prophesied that he should be taken into captivity, and Ezekiel had prophesied that he should never see Babylon. He thought that the words of God were not true. They never do. Men may be able to understand them, but they always come when they see them clearly. Zedekiah was released and permitted to remain in Judah. The most of the people were taken captive into Babylon. Only the poorest were permitted to remain and care of the wealthy vineyards and lands. The oppressors went captive, the oppressors inherited their possessions. Some time later Nebuchadnezzar him- self visited the scene of Jerusalem. He did not want the trouble of being the strong city again. Accordingly he took all the valuables, including the city and tore the walls down to the ground, and left the temple and city of God in desolation and waste. Men may disobey God, but the consequences are death. The world is not as the laws of God's righteousness. The world says that its pleasures and pleasure cannot be carried on and follow the antiquated ways of righteousness that God has set down as the guide for the living. But when men take the way of the world, destruction comes. It is in the long ago, it came in the form of a great economic structure that had left God out. It will come again in the present program of reconstruction as long as God is left out. The president recently wrote to the people of the land for an opinion. He said "it and he "got" it.

It was given in the main in a kindly spirit, but pointed out in many instances his lack of reverence for God, and unwillingness to be led of Him. The president may well heed the warning of God's chosen servants. And not only he, but the average citizen, may well look to the setting of his own house aright that he may receive the blessings rather than the condemnation of God.

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuhy
Lutheran Pastor, Oviedo, Fla.

Vol. 2. No. 42.
Text: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."—Psalm 46:1.

REFORMATION DAY

Secular history as well as Church history informs us that October 31 marks the official beginning of Protestantism. On this date in the year 1517 an Augustinian monk, then called Frater Martin, whom we today know as Dr. Martin Luther, nailed the famous Ninety-five Theses on the Castle Church door in Wittenberg, Germany.

Since today is the 31st of October, it will be well if we consider the value of the first Reformation Day and its significance. We shall confine ourselves to the Bible and historical facts.

The early Christian Church was progressing nicely. In spite of opposition and hardships the Christian Church continued to grow. When most of the opposition ceased, leaders of the church became lax in doctrine and practice and centered their interests upon art, sports, pastimes and pagan learning. It is true, there were exceptions to those who became unfaithful in their high pastoral calling.

The Christian Church began to suffer. Many leaders began to doubt the teachings of the Holy Bible. Later, they literally forgot the Bible. But there were a faithful few who did not forget Jesus Christ as their Savior. God never permits complete forgetfulness of Christianity. At all times was God a "refuge and strength" to those who called upon Him; yes, even to those who disowned their own heavenly Father. God was "a very present help in trouble."

The forerunners of the reformation, such as Savonarola and John Hus, suffered much indignity for their reformatory activities. There were other reformers-to-be who became frightened and backed out before they should lose their lives. Luther was not the first reformer, but he was a reformer that feared neither man nor devil. He stood firm upon the teachings of the Bible. That is why he is considered the great reformer. This title is given him by historians of note.

Dr. Martin Luther did not do anything of his own power and strength. He did his work under the guidance and with the power given him by the Holy Spirit. He clearly admitted that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

The 46th Psalm was the foundation of the Battle Hymn of the Reformation, entitled "A Mighty Fortress is Our God." This hymn of Luther is found in many hymn-books in various translations from the original German language. The melody is also stirring and majestic.

Through the means of the press the works of Martin Luther were disseminated and printed in many languages. Europe was shaken from its spiritual sleep. Emperors and rulers were forced to sit up and take notice. The wool was literally pulled away from the eyes of many unsuspecting people. Today the Lutherans, Baptists, Methodists and many others are thankful that they are not in the clutches of the darkness of the Medieval Age, thanks to the reformation of Luther and the translations of the Holy Bible into many languages. Luther and other reformers are not to be idolized or worshiped. They were instruments of God in restoring the Biblical truths and combating error.

Household Hints

By Jean Mueller

LITTLE DETAILS

The housewife can express her own individuality and ideas when it comes to setting an attractive table.

The knives must be placed to the right of the plate with the cutting edges to the plate; the forks to the left of the plate with the tines turned up; spoons with the bowls turned up. Butter spreaders should be carefully placed on the edge of the butter plate, parallel with the edge of the table cloth.

The silver should be placed in the order that it is used, so that the utensil farthest from the plate is used first.

The chairs should be placed a little away from the table, so as not to break the line of the tablecloth.

In extending the table for extra guests, allow at least twenty inches space for each guest.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

1. By rubbing the electric iron once a week with paraffin on a soft cloth, will keep it clean and smooth?
2. Muffin pans should be only two-thirds full so as to allow mixture space in which to rise while baking?

AN APPETIZER

One package of cream cheese, two tablespoons chili sauce, one-half teaspoon salt, cayenne, and crisp celery stalks.

Wash the crisp tender new celery stalks. Mix the cream cheese and chili sauce and seasonings. Fill celery stalks with the mixture.
This can be served with salads, also.

APPLE STRUDEL

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
Sift together. Beat one egg with a few drops of vinegar. Add a half cup of lukewarm water. Add to the flour mixture. Add a sufficient amount of water to make a dough which will not stick to the hands. Work until small bubbles of air form in the dough. Keep it warm and stretch it thin over a cloth.

Peel four medium-sized apples and slice thin.

One cup of soaked small raisins. Mix together one cup sugar with three tablespoons of softened butter and one teaspoon cinnamon. Spread one piece with raisins and one with apples, and then with the sugar and butter mixture. Place another layer of dough over the filling and prepare this layer in the same way. Place diagonal strips of dough over the layer.

Bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes.

TURKEY LOAF

2 cups of cold turkey meat or turkey and dressing.
1 cup of celery, chopped
1 tablespoon of gelatine dissolved in cold water added to 1 cup of gravy which has been brought to a boil.

To Clean Brown Leather Here is a good way to clean brown leather: Warm a little milk. Add a little washing soda to it, and let it dissolve. Apply this solution to the stain. Work from the outside of each stain toward the center using a soft cloth and rubbing very gently. Several applications may have to be made on a stubborn stain. THE HOUSEWIFE. © Public Ledger, Inc.—WNU Service.

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Terrible Mistake" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter.

AND my sympathies to you, Mrs. Charles Williams. I know and appreciate how you felt that day—happily long ago—when an ambulance policeman brought you the sad news that every married woman dreads.

Mrs. Williams' story, boys and girls, is heavy with tragedy. It happened on her husband's forty-first birthday.

Mrs. Williams was preparing a little surprise party to celebrate the event—when the blow fell.

Womanlike, she smiled happily—as she baked her husband's favorite birthday cake—little dreaming of the awful news that was already on its way.

The door-bell rang. Mrs. Williams wiped her hands on the kitchen towel and went to answer it.

Policeman Gives Mrs. Williams a Fright. Doubtless the boy with the ice cream, she thought, and she hoped he had brought the kind Charlie liked.

She opened the door. Not the delivery boy, but a sober-faced policeman stood there. A police ambulance was in front of the house.

"DID Charles Williams live here?" the officer asked. Mrs. Williams caught her breath at the form of the question. An icy hand seemed to clutch her heart.

"Why—yes," she said haltingly. "He's my husband—is there something wrong?"

The policeman appeared to be sympathetic, but he ignored her question.

"Is your husband a painter?" he asked. "Yes."

"Medium height?" "Yes."

"Weight about two hundred pounds?"

Mrs. Williams nodded. She was getting weaker at every question. The policeman, she says, kept his eyes lowered on a little book he held.

"Age about forty?" he asked. "Why, yes—he is forty-one today, but—"

She Fears the Worst—and Who Wouldn't? The officer closed his little book and took her gently by the arm.

"We had better step inside," he said. From the way he looked, Mrs. Williams says, she knew something terrible had happened. She sank into a chair.

"Be brave," the policeman continued. "Your husband has had an accident. He fell off a ladder. It might be very serious."

Mrs. Williams says a cold chill went right to her heart. It couldn't be possible that her Charlie was dead! Her next question sounded as though someone else were asking it.

"Is he—dead?" she asked.

The tears in the policeman's eyes, she says, gave her his answer, but his words held out a ray of hope.

"He is at the Emergency hospital—very badly hurt—but there might be a slight chance."

Mrs. Williams rushed to the phone. The kindly policeman helped her get the number, but the hospital only verified her worst fears.

She listened—stunned—as they told her. Her Charlie had died without regaining consciousness.

Smoke floated in from the oven in the kitchen. "Something is burning," the policeman said.

Mrs. Williams looked at him blankly.

"It doesn't matter now," she said. "It's too late."

She stared dry-eyed at the front door—the same door through which her Charlie always entered about this time. . . . In her anguish she thought she could even hear the familiar grating of his key . . . she seemed even to see the door opening . . . and then, Mrs. Williams says, she thought her mind had snapped for—

IN THE DOOR WALKED CHARLIE WILLIAMS! Ghost? Not on your life! Alive and hungry!

Charlie Got a Real Birthday Smacker. And Mrs. Charlie Williams says the kiss she got wasn't a ghostly kiss, either, and she hopped off to the kitchen just in time to save that cake.

Dry your tears, boys and girls. What had happened was this:

Another painter named Charles Williams had been killed. Police found only his name on his body, and when the description checked so closely with Charlie's, the police had made a perfectly natural error.

But that's not all. Mrs. Williams says when the word got out that her Charlie was dead, that awful husband just had the time of his life answering the door and scaring friends who came to offer their condolences to his widow.

He even scared a high-hatted undertaker who arrived—like a ghoul—for Charlie's remains.

Mrs. Williams says that the shock was so great that she thought she would need a doctor, but so many sympathetic friends came in that she didn't have time to get sick—she was too busy entertaining her guests.

But Charlie had the time of his life! The party turned into a combination birthday celebration and wake! And it's not often a fellow gets a chance to celebrate his own wake!

Charlie took a cue from Mark Twain, and when anybody looked surprised to see him alive, he announced that "the story of his demise was greatly exaggerated."

Christians in Armenia Since Year 303 A. D.

The Armenian is a little above middle stature, robust, slightly olive in complexion, and usually with straight black hair, prominent nose, and high, wide brow. He is alert, adaptive, and remarkable for his industry, quick intelligence, and business aptitude. The women are frequently beautiful, with dark eyes and regular features.

Whatever their racial origin, according to Arch Farmer, in the Chicago Tribune, it seems fitting that a people living in a land so closely associated with scriptural history should early have embraced a religion founded on the teachings of the Bible. This they did, turning from sun and fire worship to Christianity in 303 A. D., when King Tirdat, converted by St. Gregory, "the Illuminator," established Christianity as the state religion. As a result Armenia became the theater of an almost uninterrupted religious warfare.

The history of the ancient kingdom of Armenia is obscure, though as the land of the Khaldians (named after the god, Khaldi) it is believed to have been a satrapy, or principality, of Persia in the Sixth century B. C. The country became essentially Armenian under Tigranes the Great in the First century of the Christian era.

Following its subjection by Persia, after King Tirdat's adoption of Christianity, and the subsequent downfall of the Persian empire in 642, the country was overrun successively by the Arabs, Hellenes, and Mongols. By 1351, however, the country reverted to the control of Armenian feudal lords, and it was at least partially autonomous until the Sixteenth century, when began the bloody rule of the Ottoman Turks.

EVERYDAY NEW YORK BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK.—Thoughts while strolling: Top in taps—Eleanor Powell. Lindbergh overdue in the air is not news any more. That bird always shows up. Will Irvin's curly locks. Best named negro fiction character: Octavius Roy Cohen's Florian Slappey, the Birmingham duke.

Stick-along-the-picket-fencey honey: Kennebec Copper. Who can forget the way Sothorn and Marlowe romped through The Taming of the Shrew? Never saw a dull Skippy strip. Ditto: Believe It or Not. Nobody can slick up their hair like Georges Metaxa. Not since Valentino, anyway. Goofy play title: "A Slight Case of Murder." Wonder if Talbot Mundy knows Rascat Lundy? Paul Gallico thinks Joe Louis can lick Arthur Brisbane's gorilla. Dandy smoke ring word: Coronado. A wince to see that sterling actor William Faversham doing bits in the movies.

Those romantic tea time nymphs who go to hear Eddie Duchin improvise—and dream. Grace George could pass for 35. Suggestion for a magazine piece: Broadway by Max Baer.

Zoe Akins' name: a dentist's drill touching an exposed nerve. The bald heads have to go some to beat the shine on Postmaster Farley's dome. Coffee and sandwich place called "The Royal Dunkery." I like Baird Leonard's favorite time for work—"the last possible moment."

Incidentally, Miss Loonard has recorded some writing quirk of interest to the craft. Lord Tennyson wrote best abed slipping gin and water. Voice: "Who couldn't?" Carlyle and Marcel Proust needed noise-proof isolation, while Conan Doyle wanted a dozen or more around him and often joined in their conversation. Theophile Gautier and Marie Corelli were locked in their rooms until they had written certain amounts. And Jerome K. Jerome composed while walking the streets at night.

Many readable books are defeated by their titles. The grandest of mystery writers, Oppenheim, is so often unfortunate in his selections. The obvious usually plunks the bull's-eye. Publishers say few titles touch Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street." Today came a hummer of a title in Edison Marshall's inscribed copy of "Sam Campbell, Gentleman." Margaret Fishback for a published group of her poems a few years ago called it "Out of My Head." That's the informality publishers crave.

Informally also frequently produces the finest literature, the best writing size-ups and criticism. Lord Northcliffe wrote some of his most telling articles during the war, motoring home at night or in the compartments of trains. Bob Davis in his magazine days used to take long street car rides to read manuscripts. The jolting and confusion somehow strengthened his powers of concentration. On a summer car to Rock away one day he "discovered" Fannie Hurst. W. R. Hearst writes editorial criticisms and suggestions in long hand across the face of his papers and magazines for various editors.

Restaurants report that roasted baby turkey is the season's favorite dish with New York gourmets. Another offering in high favor is Potatoes Auvergne, which is a baked potato halved, stuffed with mashed potato flecked with green and red peppers, a suspicion of garlic and centered with a chunk of butter. Salt rising bread is also on some menus in swank places. Also fresh buttermilk and wet hash. The Depot Short Order motif!

For name pronouncers: Hoyningen Huene. He is the fashion photographer whose spreads in the magazines are among the Ambitious Yens of society folk. Indeed, so great is the demand he takes a three-months' sabbatical every summer, which he spends at a surprising villa in North Africa, just outside Morocco. The temperamental, highly artistic photographer is a development during the past 10 years. They stand in the fame roll with contemporary painters and musicians. And their incomes are often in five figures. Cecil Beaton's, for instance.

Charlie Hughes passes along the one about the Detroit traffic cop bawling out an unassuming lady motorist. Said he: "Don't you know what I mean when I hold up my hand?" She, meekly: "ought to. I have been a school teacher for 25 years."

Psychiatrists do not recommend the mystery and detective novel for mental relaxation for the high strung. I have a tense friend who just came from one. He was told to get a copy of Gibbon's "Rome." And read it during a jet of the jimmies. The classic has become a general prescription.

what Irvin S. Cobb thinks about:

Tragedy in the News. SANTA MONICA, CALIF.—

To me, the biggest, most tragic story in the week's papers was not a war in Africa, or a Mexican border raid, or the passing of a gallant American soldier. It was a little press dispatch from an Ohio town where a twelve-year-old boy lived.

The family was on relief, the father out of work. There was no food in the house, no pennies to buy any food with. The little chap owned a rabbit, the parents voted that the rabbit must go in the pot to put strength into the stomachs of the hungry brood. Their son was hungry, too. But his rabbit was his pet, his one possession. So he went and he hanged himself with a loop of frayed clothes-line.

People, including some who have plenty of it for themselves, are given to saying money isn't everything. Maybe not, but it'll buy quite a lot of things. Just a little money in that poor household would have bought a boy's life. And a boy, who so dearly loved a dumb and helpless thing that he died rather than see it die, might have grown up to be somebody in a world which needs all the compassion and all the loving it can get.

The Lion and the Lamb.

NO MATTER who gets involved in it or how this Ethiopian war turns out, watch motherly old Britain emerge from the mess with something valuable—territories, concessions, mandates or what have you—tucked away in her commodious bread baskets. Any time the lion and the lamb lie down together, the lamb stays down—provided it's the British lion you're thinking of.

Let those who will, fight the battles and foot the bills. All John Bull asks is a chance to exercise the benevolent process of absorption, digestion and assimilation. There's one appetite has stood the test of the ages.

For the valor of her sons, perhaps it's fitting that, as a symbol, England should have Leo, but if you're picking something to typify her policies, my choice would be the tapeworm.

Today's Stein Song.

THINGS never come out right in this fanily world. Just as Professor Einstein, the scientist, arrives with a large crate of fresh relativity, Gertrude Stein, the poet, goes hence. For years I have been waiting to see these two massive minds brought under the same bulging roof, hoping then they'd take on a job which lesser intellects could never cope with. I wanted her to explain his theory and I wanted him to explain her poetry.

I even had the welcoming chorus fixed up:

For it's always fair weather, when good mysteries get together, with Einstein on the table and a Gertrude ringing clear!

What This Country Needs.

A LADY writes in, wishing to know what this country needs the most.

Well, dear madam, let's see:

Would it be more citizens who'll quit cussing the kind of government they get, for long enough to go to the polls, just once, and vote?

Or more patriots who'll quit waving Old Glory long enough to help smother out some alien enemy hiding in the folds of the flag he hates?

Or fewer of those anti-Roosevelts who still go on the apparent assumption that when the President promised to give business a breathing spell, he meant sneezing spell?

Or fewer of those pro-Roosevelts who still think any honest criticism of the man in the White House is just the same as breaking the second commandment?

But, lady, since you're asking me, I say what this country needs most is a Mae West joke to end all Mae West jokes.

The Hunting Season.

WITH the open season impending certain sportsmen again are declaring that, because our hunters should have more ducks and geese to shoot at, the government ought to stop the Alaskan natives from eating the eggs of wildfowl. But isn't it sort of true that those benighted Eskimos rob the nests because they're hungry for food—any food?

I've shot all over this country and Canada—hope to keep on doing so, too—but I've yet to run across the gunner, professional or amateur, who's out there shooting because his family might starve to death if he didn't bring home some ducks. Still, why worry about a lot of Yukon Indians? They don't vote, don't even buy anything on the installment plan.

For one, I'm not against reducing the bag-limit again this fall. In former years, when I got back without any game, I had to think up 25 separate alibis, whereas now I need only 10 such. That, naturally, reduces the mental strain. If I kill a duck on the wing, it's a profound shock to both parties concerned—neither one of us expecting that to happen.

QUEEN HAD WOMAN PRINTER

Believed to be the only woman printer in the country to hold Royal Warrant, Miss Marion Clark who combined printing with a boat and model-boat shop in Bath, Cotes, died recently at the age of sixty-one. It is recorded in the London Daily Telegraph. Miss Clark, when a girl, was apprenticed to local printer and afterward began business on her own account, setting up type and having a small printing press in the corner of her shop which she did private printing for Queen Victoria when the court was at Osborne. A Royal Warrant printer to her majesty at Cotes was given in 1900.

Sound Advice Keep your head when you win and your heart when you lose.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING I TO RELIEVE II CONSTIPATION III A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularly.

Unbalanced There is a lack of balance in the speed scorchers.

CHAPPED SKIN To quickly relieve chapping and roughness, apply soothing, cooling Mentholatum. MENTHOLATUM Gives COMFORT Daily. Have you tried the NEW MENTHOLATUM LIQUID for head colds? Like Mentholatum ointment it brings soothing comfort.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would not sleep and my appetite was gone. I began to bleed and that tired, sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me. . . . If Cardui does not help you, consult a physician."

Beautiful SKIN... needs more than cosmetics. Beauty of skin comes from within. When constipation clogs the system, with internal wastes, internally with GARFIELD TEA. It will relieve the bowels, effectively and safely. Buy at drug stores, 25¢ a tin. Free Sample Write to GARFIELD TEA CO., Dept. B, New York, N.Y.

One thing about dirt streets in this section is that in a few years all will be far below the level of the surrounding property, giving the home owner a chance to build on a terrace; however, it is tough on the man who has his walks and curbs in, as his home will be left high and dry in a few years.

Some way of cheap paving should be under consideration for the principal streets of town.

It is gratifying to note that many counties are observing the law on publishing quarterly financial reports. It is a strange brand of reasoning that officials sometimes use in refusing to make public their use of the public's money, with argument that they are thereby saving money. The object of the law is to insure economy in expenditures. Non-observance of the law tends in the opposite direction.

By A. T. Wilson

Plain Practical Sensitive says:

Much has been written and said about the condition of the world today and its trends for improving or falling back. Lots of times a man's viewpoint depends on his own condition or position he has gotten into by exercising his free moral agency.

If a man is constipated, sick, and his stomach is out of order and he is suffering from auto-intoxication or rheumatism from over eating and under exercising, he is likely to have a very pessimistic viewpoint.

There was once a great preacher that would first ask a person about his bowel movements and work or exercise and intake of food before he began to talk to him about saving his soul. He calculated that if he was unwilling to correct these anatomical or bodily errors that there was little chance for him spiritually.

If a person starts out in life with good health, good opportunities and a good environment, and deliberately, with blatant complacency violates all the laws of health and common sense and ends up in a physical, intellectual and moral wreck, he is pretty sure to be to some extent pessimistically inclined in the present outlook as well as the future, and by all means should feel like a suck-egg dog who has been caught in the act.

On the other hand, if he was born weakly and had a poor chance with bad environment and poor heredity, and in spite of all this he develops into a healthy, useful and well behaved citizen, he is bound to be optimistic and courageous and he will not need to ask, "Will there be any stars in my crown?"

The proportion of pessimists and optimists is probably about the same as when the twelve men were sent out to spy out the promised land, about two out of twelve, and for that reason we will wander in the wilderness of this depression for some time yet.

Modern civilization offers just as much to us as the land of milk and honey offered to the Jews wandering in the wilderness, but the trouble seems to be that we are unwilling to fight for it. A faint heart never won a fair lady and a faint heart isn't going to lick the depression or win back good times.

Most everyone knows that there is something rotten in Denmark, but few have the courage to search out, find and dispose of that old carcass and then arrange things so it will not occur again.

Not many people are satisfied with the way things are going at present for even a relief worker if he has one scintilla of pride and manhood about him, had rather be working at a job that is of some benefit to the human race than to be wasting his time on some fool project and drawing money secured by selling tax free bonds.

If Italy can support a population of 44,000,000 on a place no bigger than Texas and then worry the world half to death with her surplus, expansive energy, and Japan can follow suit, and Germany can nearly whip the whole world and support and increase her population, surely we can make great strides with our unbounded resources.

By improving and developing the best of modern civilization and by eliminating and destroying the worst, we can come out of it. It all depends on our choice in the matter. We have exhausted the alphabet in naming our fool projects, juggled the gold standard and advocated every remote suggestion, and as a result we are merely whipping the devil around the stump trying to avoid the Bible and its teachings, which is the only real solution to the whole matter.

SIXTH SENSE NEEDED

Automobile dealers sometimes run away with themselves. One enthusiastic salesman, demonstrating, said: "This car runs so smoothly you can't feel it, so quietly you can't hear it, has such perfect combustion you can't smell it, and for speed . . . you can't see it."

"For goodness sakes, how do you know the dog-gone thing is there?" asked the customer.

The other evening we heard a woman ask what in the world would become of the younger generation. That's an easy one. They'll fall in love, get married, have children, and trouble and all that sort of thing, and as they get older they will worry about what's to become of the younger generation.

Did it ever occur to you that the best method of climbing higher on life's ladder of success is to remain ON THE LEVEL?

WHY EDITORS ARE SUSPICIOUS

If the newspaper reporter isn't too enthusiastic when you say you have some news, there's a reason. He wants to know whether it actually is news or something else.

Many organizations, both national and local ask newspapers if some news would be acceptable. The editor or reporter is always glad to get news and answers in the affirmative. Perhaps the first two or three offerings are real news, something of interest to readers, actual events or happenings.

But it isn't long until good old propaganda rears its head. The news turns out to be an exposition of the theories of the organization, a mild form of advertising to promote the aims and objects, cleverly worded reasons why there should be more members. In many cases, the publicity is to help someone hold a job at a satisfactory salary.

Newspapers are generally generous in giving free publicity to worthwhile undertakings. But demands always far exceed what is reasonable. Many of those responsible for supplying the news either cannot or will not distinguish between events and free publicity. They think in terms of putting over an idea instead of providing interesting information.

Anyone worth is salt around a newspaper office knows the readers soon tire of this stuff. A few who are particularly interested in a certain organization or undertaking may read it, but 99% of the subscribers hardly give it a glance.

When the editor tries to do something about it, he takes a chance on incurring the ill will of a few persons. They are likely to think the newspaper unfriendly just because the paper wants more news and less publicity and propaganda material. Consequently, editors and reporters are probably overly suspicious and like to find out if what is offered comes within shooting distance of the correct definition of news before they grab it.—Courier, Stafford, Kansas.

Advertising is what draws away the trade from the small town. Advertising will also keep it at home.

FOOTBALL QUEEN CROWNED BEFORE GAME

The contest for football queen for 1933 ended at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The seniors were successful in the election of their candidate, Queen Gwynne of the House of Car-petier. The coronation ceremony was before the game that the Tigers played with Wellington Skyrockets Friday evening. The band in full regalia led the procession, conducted by the active drum major, Modelle Beas. The royal chariots were new 1933 Ford V-8's. In the queen's car were Queen Gwynne, her escort, Charles Pinley, senior class president, and E. L. Turner, owner of the car. In the next car were the queen's attendants, Princess Valeria Mae of the House of Stout, junior attendant, Princess Wilma Sue of the House of West, sophomore attendant; and the driver, W. K. Wharton. Following the cars were the Tigerettes in letter formations "M" and "T". The coronation took place in the center of the field.

Mr. Wharton, with a short appropriate speech, crowned the Tiger queen with a gold and black helmet. The Tigerettes encircled the group during the ceremony, which was followed by yell from the Tigerettes. Queen Gwynne tossed the new ball to Captain Christian and the Tigers departed to go on the starting line.

After the royal party had gone, the band and Tigerettes continued the ceremony by having the Tigerette-place helmets on the Tigers who were ready to play.

Billy Cooke and James Everett were footmen. Queen Gwynne was dressed in a white wool sport dress. Attendants were dressed in black corduroy trousers and gold football sweaters. The senior class had wrapped the goal posts in school colors to enhance the beauty of the gridiron.

QUEEN CONTEST SUCCESS

The contest for football queen was a success again this year. Interest was not very great until the freshmen put real fear into the hearts of the seniors. An exact report of money raised is not available to the reporter, but about $190 was raised. The senior class beat the freshmen by only $10. The sophomores did some hard work and raised over $45. The junior class was last in the contest. If they do not beat their efforts next year, it looks as if there will be a lower class candidate for Tiger queen in 1936.

SENIOR REPORT

The senior class would like to thank everyone personally who helped them win in the football queen contest, but that is impossible. The seniors are happy over the victory.

There were three contests sponsored by the class in the effort to raise funds. The blanket contest, was conducted by the selling of chances. The guessing contest for the number of pieces in the quilt evoked much interest. There were 966 beans in the jar, and Sheriff Tinnin guessed 923, the nearest number guessed. There were 7,164 pieces in the quilt, and Mrs. Crisp guessed 7,088 pieces. If Mr. Tinnin and Mrs. Crisp are present at the trades day program next Saturday they may get their boxes of candy.

F. F. A. REPORT

The livestock judging team consisting of Verne Harris, Arthur Ledbetter, Cecil Jones and James Lee Rice, accompanied by their instructor, Clyde Magee, have just returned from Kansas City, where they have been attending the American Royal Livestock Show. This trip was given through the courtesy of the Rock Island Railroad. All the boys report a very pleasant and profitable trip. They went in Mr. Magee's car. While attending this show they had the privilege of seeing the best livestock in the United States. They were entertained at several large banquets and were taken on two interesting tours.

The teams from McLean have been fortunate to win this trip for the past seven years, and those who have the ability to judge stock should work hard this year that they might get to make the trip next year.

CHAPEL NOTES

On Thursday morning, Oct. 24, Rev. R. Underwood, who is preaching at the Presbyterian revival, and Rev. Trwin were guests in the high school assembly. Rev. Underwood made an interesting talk on the theme, "Purpose and Preparation for Future Life."

On Thursday afternoon a short assembly was held for the purpose of announcing the winner of the football queen contest. Principal Harding was in charge.

On Tuesday morning of this week Rev. N. U. Stout of the Methodist church talked to the high school assembly. His message, if applied, would be very helpful in life.

SOPHOMORE REPORT

The sophomore class were grateful to the Back community when they allowed the class to participate in the box supper at their school last Tuesday evening. The sophomore band began the program with several musical numbers. Other parts on the program were a reading by Leta Mae Phillips, a piano solo by Shirley Johnston and a guitar special by J. L. Jones. Wayland Floyd acted as auctioneer. The cake contest for the most beautiful girl went to Wilma Sue West, and the candy to the most handsome boy went to Kid McCoy.

SUPT. CRYER AND COACH ALLEN TO AMARILLO

On Thursday of last week Supt. C. A. Cryer and Coach Bill Allen went to Amarillo to secure, by lease, some bleachers to place on Tiger Field. Through some trouble they were unable to have them ready for the game last Friday night, but there will be seats for 1000 people available on Tiger Field at the other games that will be played this season.

Supt. Cryer announces that there will probably be a large crowd at the game this week, because there are only two conference games being played. The Wheeler team will be a strong team and the game will probably be very interesting to spectators.

JOKES

Miss Abbott—"What was the Sherman act?"
 Valeria Mae—"Marching through Georgia."

Jane Alice—"Say, Daddy, I can do something you can't."
 Mr. Cryer—"I don't believe it. What can you do?"
 Jane Alice—"I can grow."

"I don't like these photographs you took of me. They make me look like a monkey," said our charming football queen to the photographer.
 The photographer remarked loftily: "I can't help that; you should have thought of that before."

CHAPTER I

The summer home called Lovell Terrace was one of the most effective on Long Island, and its simple, straight lines were far more suggestive of cool, pleasant afternoons than were neighboring houses surrounded by elaborate gardens and fancy hedges.

That is, as to its front lawns. At the back there were flowers a-plenty, and now, in early October, there were chrysanthemums, golden glow, cosmos, and other autumn blooms, which mingled with the sun and asters until the place was a mass of color.

The house itself had a great front expanse, with columns from pediment to porch, whose main rectangle had wings connected by covered passages so large as to be really rooms.

In the garden, two girls were walking: Perilla Fairfax, daughter of the house, who would become a bride tomorrow, and Hilda Sheldon, who would be her maid of honor.

"Just think, Hilda, this is the last day Lovell Terrace will be my home!"

"Nonsense, your home as much as ever! You'll have two homes, that's Devoted His Time to an Intensive Study of the Religions of the World.

all. Three, in fact, when you get your city home in shape."

"All the homes I want, anyway. You know, I'm marrying Corey for his money, that's all."

"Of course, I know. It's what he's marrying you for that I can't tell."

"I can give you that bit of information, if you want it," and Corey Malden came down the steps of the back porch.

Malden was older than his bride-to-be. He was about thirty-eight, while Perilla was twenty-four. Yet, for some reason, they had from their first meeting felt a congeniality of tastes and opinions, which had quickly grown to friendship and as quickly on to love.

And on the following day they were to be married, and their intimate friends found it hard to say which of the two seemed the happier at the prospect.

Malden, extremely rich, thought of his money only to give it to others or use it himself for pleasure or profit, never for ostentation.

Perilla, beautiful but not vain, cared for her beauty only because it pleased her fiance, and brought her the loving praise of his lips and eyes.

A handsome man was Corey Malden, living in Richmond, where he well suited the role of country gentleman. He longed for the day when he would take his lovely bride to Virginia, and though Perilla was not at all like a southern girl she would hold her own with the best of them.

For though John Lovell, owner of Lovell Terrace, was a southerner, he was not the father of Perilla. She was the child of Mrs. Lovell and her first husband, Charles Fairfax. Of a romantic nature, she had named the baby Perilla, and her other child, a boy, Malcolm.

The two Fairfax children had grown up happily and at peace with the family, and two years after the death of their father, they had accepted a new parent with calm approval and good-natured welcome.

Malcolm, though two years older than Perilla, had no romantic leanings and looked upon her wedding as a joke.

Perilla, on the other hand, was making a solemn ritual of it, and Malcolm gazed her for it.

"Well, my turtle doves," he said, coming round the corner of the house, "not ready yet to change your plans and give up your mistaken ideas?"

"Not yet, Malky," returned his sister, "but when we do, I'll let you know."

"What time you leaving the house, Prill?"

"Don't know, I'm sure. What time, Corey?"

"Oh, about four or five," said the prospective bridegroom.

"That's the fun of going in your own car," said Hilda. "You don't have to go till you're ready. Get off that brick wall, Perilla; you'll catch a cold."

Perilla jumped off the low wall and, going into Corey's arms, nestled there.

Of course her speech that she was marrying Malden for his money was a great joke, and Hilda understood it as such. Perilla, accustomed to wealth, gave little thought to the great fortune of the man she was about to marry, and Corey Malden, unostentatious in his tastes, wanted only to give his bride everything she might care for.

Perilla, at twenty-four, was, like most of her generation, worldly-wise, but she had a keen sense of humor, which made her a general favorite, and a kindly generous nature, which brought her crowds of friends.

Until meeting Corey Malden, she had seen no man she cared for especially, but he had captured her staunch young heart, and now she longed to be with him the rest of her life.

Malden, too, had fallen victim to her charms at once, and their courtship had been rapid and sincere.

The parents had approved the match, for though Lovell was a stepfather, he always took an interest in the doings of his wife's children, and was often consulted about them.

The outlook, then, for the wedding the next day seemed in every way favorable, and preparations were practically completed.

"You don't seem a bit frustrated," said Hilda, shaking her blond curls as she looked at Perilla; "you ought to be nervous and almost hysterical."

"Why?" asked the bride to be. "Mum is overseeing everything, and she's a marvel of an overseer. Oh, here's Mr. Gaskell. Hello, Mr. Best Man! Corey, tell everybody who's who."

Malden made introductions all round, and the newcomer fitted himself into the circle.

"Call me Tony," he said. "Makes me feel more at home, and then, it's such a pretty name!"

"It is a pretty name," protested Perilla. "I mean, it's a jolly name, one of the sort I like."

"Yes, I know," smiled Gaskell, "like Pete and Billy and such. Me for Marmaduke and Reginald."

"You and I are rather out of it, Malcolm," said Malden, looking downcast, but Perilla slipped her hand into his, and said, "Be it understood, plainly, that there is no name in the world so beautiful as Corey. I have spoken."

"Speak again," begged Gaskell, "I like to hear you talk."

"You don't have to urge her," said Malcolm. "Prill is a chatterbox."

"Thank Heaven for that," and Malden laughed; "it relieves me of a lot of responsibility. I hate to talk!"

"Listen to him!" exclaimed Tony. "I've known that guy for years, and as a talker he's a complete radio outfit."

"How come you've known him so long," asked Hilda, "and yet you've never been here before?"

"I have been here before, fair lady, but by ill chance, you were not here at the same time."

"I couldn't get old Tony here very often," said Malden's soft, southern voice. "He's all wrapped up in his law cases. One of the most famous lawyers in Philadelphia, our best man is."

"Thank you, sir," was the gay response, and then catching sight of a stranger, Tony dropped his voice lower, and said, "Don't look, now, but who is the houri tripping across the lawn?"

"Just as well look now as at any time," said Malcolm. "It's Miss Latimer, Muddie's watchful and trustworthy social secretary. What is it, Jane?"

"Mrs. Lovell wonders if you won't all come into the house; it's teatime."

"We sure will, My Soul's Awakening," and Malcolm rose. "Wait a minute while I line up these strangers within our gates. But you know Corey Malden—not?"

"Oh, yes, I've met our Mr. Malden several times."

"Of course she has, Mal," said Perilla. "Jane knows everybody here except Mr. Gaskell. Jane, let me present Tony Gaskell, our best man, except this pleasant faced boy named Corey."

An affectionate smile passed from Perilla to her fiance, for the last term that could be applied to Malden was boy. In fact, he sometimes looked and seemed older than he was. But the lines of his face and the dignity of his bearing were not of age, but because of a studious, thoughtful life, and long hours of scholarly work.

Born into a wealthy Virginia family, he had lived most of his life in the South, and far from being gregarious, he had devoted his time to an intensive study of the religions of the world, and had made discoveries and proved theories, which had set his name high on the roll of honor of his chosen subject.

At times he had needed certain legal assistance and had chosen the help of Tony Gaskell, with whom he had built up a lasting friendship.

"Oh, Mr. Gaskell," cried Jane, "how nice of you to come! I was afraid you wouldn't, and I'd have to take on your duties, too, and I've just all I can attend to!"

Jane, the secretary, was bubbling over with good-humored smiles. Without any effect of presumption, she was the friend of the family, the helper in all social duties or courtesies, and the general assistant of Perilla and her mother.

"There, there, Mona Lisa," said Malcolm, "you've delivered your message, run along now, and we'll follow."

Jane, laughing, ran along, turning to wave her hand as she went. "Peach of a secretary," declared Tony. "Didn't know they grow like that!"

"She's a dear," said Perilla. "Some girls would be spoiled by our foolery, but she takes it beautifully. Malcolm calls her those foolish names, because"

"I'll tell it," her brother interrupted. "You see, Jane looks just like a picture I once saw in some gallery. So I call her all the pictures I can think of, napping some time I'll hit the right one and recognize it."

"I'm to help you," said Perilla, looking dismayed. "What will you ever do without me, Malky?"

"Don't worry, darling. It isn't one of the things that matter. Come on, now, didn't you hear the summons?"

Perilla walked ahead between Corey and Tony, while Hilda came after with Malcolm.

"I really think that this time Hilda and Malcolm will hit it off," said Perilla, musingly. "I do hope so."

"How like a woman!" said Tony. "No sooner does one get married, than she plans a wedding for a friend. They do look well together, though."

"Yes," Corey agreed, "but that platinum blond hair of Hilda's would look well with anybody's."

"Mine?" asked Tony. "But, after all, I think I prefer the picturesque Jane."

"Picturesque, according to Malcolm," agreed Perilla. "He teases that girl terribly, and yet she never seems annoyed at him."

"But that isn't teasing," said Corey. "She is like a picture, not one definite picture, you know, but—"

"A whole film," suggested Tony. "However, I didn't come here to discuss the little secretary. Any other guests tonight, Perilla?"

"Only a couple of ushers. Two friends of Malcolm's, Pete Wilson and Bob Coles. Know them?"

"No, not yet. But I know you like their names."

"Yes, I do. I suppose you think I'm a silly to like silly names."

"I think you everything there is of the most glorious," declared Tony, and Malden chimed in, "That's right, old top. Glorious is just the word for Perilla. And I want you two to like each other a heap, for you two are just about the only real friends I have."

"Why, Corey?" and the girl's voice was wondering. "You never told me that before."

"Oh, he doesn't mean it literally," and Gaskell laughed. "There are lots of men in his home town who would gladly be more friendly than he likes—yes, and lots of fair maidens who would gladly be bride to the young Lochinvar."

"Well, they've lost their chance," Perilla said, "the girls, I mean. But Corey can have all the men friends he wants."

They reached the house and went in the lounge, a great room, with the most comfortable furnishings that could be devised.

Gaskell, who had seen Mr. and Mrs. Lovell on his arrival, sat down by her on a big davenport and waited as Malcolm brought his two chums to be introduced.

"They're gorgeous chaps, Mum," he declared, and Wilson looked modest, while Coles said, enthusiastically,

"Well, Pete isn't so gorgeous, Mrs. Lovell, but I am. I just put it the other way, so you'd think I was not too self-assertive."

"I think you're both darlings," Ellen Lovell said, smiling at them. "Now run and play with the girls. I want to talk to Mr. Gaskell."

"What shall we talk about?" said Tony. "Tomorrow's doings?"

"Yes. Have a cocktail?" and she herself lifted one from the tray the butler was passing.

"It's really absurd for me to ask you such a thing," she went on, "as my fear is imaginary, and I know interference would be useless."

Ellen Lovell was a fine-looking woman. Not only her serene, beautiful face attracted attention, but her graceful manner and especially her soft, low voice charmed all who met her. Tony Gaskell, having been at the Lovell home many times, and feeling well acquainted with his hostess, protested that he would follow her wishes in whatever direction they might lead.

"Speak low," she said. "I don't want any one to hear us. It's just this. You know Corey and Perilla are taking their wedding trip in his motor. Corey's chauffeur, Boynton, is simply perfection; he's a most skillful and careful driver, and a wonderful mechanic as well. You know all this, yet I remind you of it now. Now, here's my trouble. Corey loves to go fast. Not only fast, as any one else would use the word, but fast like a speeder. Why, when his car is going about seventy, he'll say, 'Can't you help her along a little, Jim?'"

"But he's never had an accident, Mrs. Lovell—"

"I know it; that's why I'm afraid. Even Perilla has confessed to me that she's frightened the way Boynton takes corners."

"Now, my dear lady, this is nerves, and nothing but. Have another cocktail."

"No, thank you, but you may. Now, Tony, whether you think me silly or not, I want you to speak to Corey about this, before they start. Tonight, perhaps, might be better than to wait till tomorrow. Tomorrow will be a crowded day; the children get up so late, and the ceremony at 12 makes it difficult to get ready. Will you do what I ask?"

"Why, of course I will. What shall I say?"

"I don't care how you word it. Just make it clear that I am afraid for my girl, if he goes so fast. And tell him, won't you, that you, too, feel he is both foolish and unkind to his bride to endanger her safety as he so often does?"

"I will tell him and ask him just what you suggest. If he is offended, it will be with me, not with you."

"Oh, thank you, Tony. You've lifted a weight from my heart. Of course, I have spoken to him about this, lots of times, but that's just the trouble. A thing you harp on like that loses all power of persuasion; the same subject brought up by another has far more force."

"Yes, but you know old Corey is going to see through us. I'll bet he'll say at once that you put me up to saying it."

"All right, if he does. Tell him I did, and tell him that you want to add your persuasion to mine."

"And I do. I quite agree that he has no right to jeopardize his wife's life, whatever he may do with his own. A married man has responsibilities that a single man need never think about."

"Very well, Oh, here's another thing, Tony. I've had to put you and Corey in the same room. You see, we didn't expect Pete and Bobby to stay the night. We thought they wouldn't come until tomorrow morning. So we've been obliged to double up. I've given you and Corey Malcolm's room. It's enormous, with the best bathroom in the house. You won't mind, will you?"

"Not a mite. Seems a pity to turn Malky out, though."

"No, indeed, he's more than willing. Don't you envy Corey?"

"Well, I just do. Every man at the wedding will envy him, married or not! Now, Mrs. Lovell, is there anything else I can do for you? Anything about the ceremony? You know that's what I'm here for."

"You know more about your duties as best man than I do. Don't let Corey drop the ring, and all that. Now, go over there; they're looking for you. And send Miss Latimer to me, please."

"There's a peach! Who is she? I'm mad about her."

"She's a perfect darling. Don't ever take her away from me."

Tony smiled at her, and crossed the room to where Jane Latimer was gaily chaffing the bridegroom.

Whippet Is Regarded as Greyhound in Miniature

The whippet, otherwise known as the poor man's race horse, is another interesting example of man's efforts at creation. It was first bred in the mill and mining districts of England for coursing and rabbit hunting.

Looks were unimportant to these laborer-sportsmen; speed and stamina were very important. Therefore, says a writer in the Washington Star, they used the greyhound for the former and the terrier, of one kind or another, for the latter. Later, when the dog was used purely for racing, and later still when dog shows became important, appearance began to count.

Then a dash of Italian greyhound was added, those that showed their terrier ancestry too clearly were tabooed and the whippet as we know it today was evolved.

And the whippet practically is a greyhound in miniature. Although the color is unimportant, most show whippets are fawn color. Their heads are narrow, wedge-shaped, with strong though not coarse muzzles. Their ears are carried back in repose or semipricket at attention like the collie's. In body it is fully streamlined, a racing machine. Its legs, both front and back, are strong and muscular; its chest deep to provide plenty of lung room and its ribs, while not flat, are not too widely sprung. In addition to its speed and symmetry, the whippet is an attractive and affectionate pet, and often an efficient watchdog.

America's numerous Chinese laundries and restaurants create the fact that the Chinese far outnumber the Japanese in this country today. In fact is, however, that there are 25 Chinese women for every 100 Japanese and only 75 Chinese. # It's a Season of Glamor and Glitter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STYLE prophets predict a season of dazzling effects and sumptuous dress. According to the signs of the times women will sparkle from morning to night this fall and winter.

Their silk velvets will be embroidered with strass. Their wool-like silks will be elaborated with gilt braid. Sleeve ends and collars worked in a solid mass of huge sequins will challenge the supremacy of fur on evening coats. Silk chiffons will be beaded and silk crepes pailletted for formal wear either in allover patterning or confining their glitter to belts and angel sleeves or scarfs. Gorgeous silk lame lapels will adorn evening tailcoats with which matching lame turbans and blouses, bags and belts will be worn.

Jeweled ornaments will hold the drapes of harem skirts and clasp shirred and bloused bodices. Seed pearls will make chokers (new high collar fashion) and form passementerie embroidery—thus the story of glitter and glamor might run on ad infinitum.

Fabrics weighted down with beading, embroideries, sequins and jeweled ornamentation must hold and not pull out of shape. Women want their cloyly surfaced silks to stay in, their crinkles to remain crinkled. They want to be assured that their taffetas will stay crisp, their chiffons and crepes not to grow sleazy and sloppy and so they are coming to realize more and more that care and discrimination must be exercised in choosing quality-kind fabrics. Which explains the reason why the demand for silks that are pure silk (the inherent elasticity of silk is important) is more insistent this season than it has been in many a previous year. So much for the practical side of the question and now let us turn to the models pictured with a view to studying each individually since they are so charmingly illustrative of the current trend to glitter, glamor and to dazzling effects in the silk parade of fall and winter fashions.

The beautiful model to the left is fashioned of rich silk lame in a delectable tone of blue, shot with silver. The square décolletage is set off by jeweled ellips the like of which also form the buckle for the belt. The short sleeves are interestingly cut on kimono lines, giving fullness to sleeves and shoulder.

Eastern influence in evening fashions is most pronounced. Note the sari shawl of gold sequins which envelopes head and shoulders, adding brilliance to the stately black gown pictured to the right, which is made of a handsome silk velvety sheer. A tunic effect is simulated via an adroitly positioned ruffle on the skirt whose princess lines are slenderizing in a subtly sophisticated way. This ruffle ties at the back in a clever pose. The smartest dressed women regard black with the glittering note as first in fashion this season.

Greatest enthusiasm is shown for the cocktail dress or suit that adopts street length. It being a new entrant in the formal realm. The girl seated is wearing such a suit, its formality attested in the silk metal cloyly tunic-jacket with the now-so-fashionable frog fastening at the waistline. The afternoon dress is of a grainy silk crepe in the same aqua blue shade as the metal cloyly which fashions the jacket. A jeweled clip accents the draped neck. The peaked beret with its ornamental veil is high-style in its every detail.

TAILORED JERSEY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Wool Jersey comes into its own, in that leading style creators are using it for their practical daytime dresses. The vogue for gray is increasingly apparent. There is a new beige gray tone which is especially good style. Color accents on gray is fashion's latest message. The gray-beige jersey two-piece frock here shown is contrasted with a gay green and multicolor scarf with belt in matching green tone. The one-piece tulleur buttons down the front. It is fashioned of the jersey in natural beige tone with trim accents in deep wine.

Matching Gloves

Handbags and gloves that match exactly as far as color is concerned are a smart accessory note. Wine and pine green are two popular colors.

HIGH HAT THE WORD IN FALL MILLINERY

It's a high-hat season. One of the newest high hats in the fall parade is the domino crown turban, which has a rolled edge and a little square topknot that sticks straight up in the air exactly like an enlarged domino.

It's shown in velours and suede, with a small fly-away bow in front, and is a pretty trick with some of the new fur coats. Another top-knot idea is developed in a bonnet cap of black felt, with a big front-bunch of black satin ribbon rising impudently from the top-front of the crown. Small scalloped loops of black satin edge the bonnet. The Tyrolean urge is still with us, in casual brimmed sports hats of velours or felt, with high, peaked crowns and perky quills.

Wool Dress Can Be Worn for Almost Any Occasion

Jean Patou has created one of those all-time dresses which can be worn for almost any occasion. This dress is in brown wool with the back of the bodice and the sleeves of the taffeta in brown, green and red plaid. The accompanying jacket of brown wool has wide revers of brown caracul and turn-back cuffs of the same fur. The costume is completed by the Patou thimble hat in brown felt. The narrow brim turns way up in back and far down in front and a bright red quill is its only trimming.

Goldfish Used as Buttons

Tiny metal goldfish, with black-tipped fins and tails in approved goldfish style are used to button a knee-length tunic of a tea gown.

Narrow Braid Used

Narrow embroidered braid is set together with gold metal threads to form a colorful and unusual collar and cuff set worn on a black crepe frock.

Composition Feathers

Feathers of composition, in very vivid shades for velvet hats, are among novelties seen in the shops.

Nature's Ice Box O. K.; Keeps Food 33 Years

Nature's ice box has even the best of mechanical refrigerators skinned when it comes to food preservation. Keeping food in good condition for years is no trick at all for natural cold storage plants such as the Antarctic wastes. According to Dr. Dana Coman, physician and dietician for the Lincoln Ellsworth-Sir Hubert

Wilkins expedition, food left in a shack in the South Polar region 33 years ago was found to be still edible when discovered. The long-preserved food supplies were left by a Norwegian explorer, Otto Nordenskjold, in 1902.—Washington Post.

Franz Josef Fiord

The 25,000 square miles in the region of Franz Josef Fiord of Greenland is reported to be rich in Arctic animals and plant life.

EQUAL RIGHTS

Sixteen men, including football players postgraduates and upper classmen, wanted to take the domestic science course at Salamanca, N. Y., high school. The superintendent of schools said the domestic science classes were too crowded.

HEALTH OF OUR NAVY RESTS IN EXPERT HANDS
The U. S. S. Relief is the only unit of the fleet that has ever been especially designed, built, equipped and operated as a hospital ship, according to Beulah France, R. N., who, in the Relief, writes on "The Health of the Navy at Sea."
In addition to the facilities provided by the Relief, each ship in the fleet has its sick-bay in charge of two medical officers, a senior and a junior. Each vessel has also a highly qualified dentist. Operating rooms are conveniently arranged and well equipped.
Every morning on board each ship the doctors hold office hours. During this time, men who do not feel well or those who have wounds to be dressed are seen and cared for. On all vessels except the Relief, operations must be performed with assistance from any woman, for the nurses on the hospital ship are the only women who go to sea with the navy. The doctors are assisted by the members of the medical corps, who have been especially trained and who are extremely capable of meeting their responsibility—to watch over and care for the mental and physical health of the navy's enlisted men at sea.

MILLIONS have found they do not need to pinch their stomachs with strong, caustic alkalis. Physicians have said this habit often brings further acid indigestion. So much more pleasant and sensible to simply carry a roll of Tums in your pocket. Munch 3 or 4 after meals—or whenever troubled by heartburn, gas, sour stomach. Try them when you feel the effects of last night's party, or when you smoke too much. Tums contain a wonderful antacid which neutralizes acid in the stomach, but never over-alkalizes stomach or blood. As pleasant to eat as candy and only 10c at any drug store.

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. Robert Ambrose Elliott

TUBERCULOSIS

At one time it was thought that tuberculosis was on the wane, and that this dread disease would gradually claim fewer victims with each passing decade. Yet, today, it leads all other disease as the cause of death of persons between the ages of 20 to 40! Undoubtedly, we know more about tuberculosis and are able to recognize it sooner. We also know better ways of treating patients and protecting others from contracting the disease from those known to have it.

A very delicate test indicates its presence in practically all adults; frequently children will show "negative," but as age advances the number who are entirely free become scarcer. However, this test is entirely too delicate for practical purposes and only a very small percentage of those whose test shows "positive" actually succumb to the disease.

"Friendly Germs"

Another fact presents itself in the study of tuberculosis, namely tubercular infections. This so-called by-product makes an ideal feeding ground for all other types of infections, and this, no doubt, is the reason why tuberculosis is responsible for less deaths than are placed to its credit. 'Twas ever thus in the field of microscopic life. One class of germs feeds off another. Thus we find it true in many cases where one type of infection holds another in check. Hence comes the expression "friendly germs," namely, germ life which operates to our own good. While the general impression is that all germs are "bad," medical science says otherwise, because it has found that one group of germs often hold another group in check, and thereby protect the body from the inroads of a disease of a more serious nature.

Protective Measures Necessary
Important measures which must be put into force to keep the "White

Plague" at a safe distance include the following: Extreme caution in protecting the milk supply. Early diagnosis with proper care and treatment. Segregation of cases known to be actively infectious, especially where there are children in the family. Close attention to age and racial groups where tendency to infection is greatest, as well as to housing and nutrition. Constant and eternal hammering away at a not too respectful public to take care of itself through health education.

Finally, and most important to the individual—good food, fresh air and plenty of sunshine. This trio will work wonders, but in the meantime, remember not to worry too much about it.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Haynes and children of Pampa attended the ball game here Friday night.

Will Glass of Alameda was in McLean Saturday.

Mrs. J. W. Kibler made a business trip to Amarillo one day last week.

CLUB MEMBER LEARNS TO SEW

"One learns to do by doing," was the slogan of Susie Mae Watson, Alameda 4-H Club member, when she started to put into practice her knowledge of sewing. She made a cotton dresser scarf, two pairs of plain pillow cases, one pair of decorated pillow cases and two cotton slips. "I am proud of my $3.95 worth of work," said Susie Mae.

SAVES ON CLOTHING

"By careful selection of material and making at home, I have saved $2.83 on four cotton garments," reported Mary Oakley, of Alameda 4-H Club. Mary made three cotton suits for her year and a half old brother, and a batiste dress for herself.

Mrs. Jewel Smith returned to Wheeler last week after a visit with her sister, Miss Dorothy Cantrell.

News advertising pays.

CLUB GIRL ECONOMIZES

By keeping in practice sewing during the summer meant a nice profit for Nina Wetsel, third year 4-H Club member of Alameda.

Nina made a cotton dress for herself and a silk dress for her six-year-old sister. Both garments are valued at $6.50 and the expense was $2.60.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gray and children of Tucumcari, N. M., visited relatives here last week.

SANITY ON THE PRAIRIES

It is refreshing to report that at least one state has managed to avoid the fallacy that the way to create prosperity is to spend billions on credit

The state is Nebraska, which is described by W. E. Christensen in an article in the New York Herald Tribune entitled "Sanity on the Prairies."

Nebraska has a splendid highway system—without a single outstanding bond.

Nebraska's state tax, which provides the funds for supporting the state university, four normal schools and all other state activities, has averaged less than two mills per year during the last 10 years.

Nebraska has no state income tax, no sales tax, no nuisance taxes. The state hasn't one cent of bonded indebtedness. Total bonded debt of its 93 counties, in July, 1934, was but $6,274,000—of which a single county, Douglas, accounted for $4,500,000, leaving the small sum of $1,700,000 apportioned among the 92 remaining county governments.

This sounds like a taxpayers' Utopia—which it is. It hasn't been achieved through magic. Here, according to Mr. Christensen, is the four-sided plan Nebraska follows:

- 1. Pay as you go; issue no state bonds and few county bonds. 2. Reject new forms of taxation. 3. Watch public spending and the spenders. 4. Remember that even in these changing times the functions of local government are the same as they were 15 years ago and should cost no more.

The plan is simple. It is workable. It is sound. Nebraska has led the way toward economic sanity—other states should fall in line.—Gazette, Cape May Court House, N. J.

WHY THE NEWS ASKS FOR

Early Copy

The Advertiser is UNFAIR to HIMSELF when he sends his advertisement to the newspaper office just before the "DEADLINE"

EARLY "COPY"

- No Errors -Time for Corrections -Good Typography -Prompt Delivery to Readers -Fair to Mechanical Staff -Advertisement Well Written -Illustrations Correct

LATE "COPY"

- Unfair Physical and Mental Strain -Advertisement Hurrily Written -Risk of Misplaced Cuts -Risk of Typographical Errors -No Opportunity for Corrections -Risk of Poor Typography -Risk of Late Delivery

While a newspaper is a marvel of mechanical efficiency, there are limits to what can be done by a given force of printers, stereotypers and pressmen in a short, crowded period of stress.

There is plenty of time to give every advertiser good service when copy is in our hands by Tuesday of each week.

Visitors to the mechanical department are invited so that the process of handling advertising may be thoroughly understood and the mechanical problems realized fully.

Your cooperation will be appreciated greatly by the entire personnel of The McLean News.

FINE HOLSTEIN BULL

Geo. W. Sitter, owner of the Bar LO Hereford Ranch, has added a fine Holstein bull to the ranch herd of nurse cows, bought at the Tri-state fair from Raymond Pittman of Childress.
 Mr. Sitter says there is no way to equal the Jersey for a family cow, but Holsteins make better nurse cows for his fine Hereford calves.

The News appreciates the nice things said about last week's big edition, both by local folks and those written by readers from-out of town and out of the state. This paper is striving to be the best to be found in any town the size of McLean, and many are kind enough to say that this is the case.

Does Your Advertising Get an Effective Reception?

Advertising is an effective force that any business can employ.

How effective it is depends on the copy and the number of readers . . . the number of readers depends on the method used by the advertiser.

Does it go through the mails? Is the hand distribution dependable? Will it go into the homes after delivery?

These are vital questions any advertiser should ask himself before spending hard earned dollars for circulation of any advertisement.

There can be only one answer!
To guarantee 100% circulation of an advertisement in the home it must be placed in a publication that has a public demand . . . a demand to the point that it is paid for!

If that kind of publication fails to arrive on time, there is a hurried call to the newspaper office for a copy to be sent out . . . because the subscriber pays for it and wants it.

Your advertisement associated with that kind of a publication gets into the home! Results? Well, that's up to the ad "copy" . . . its appeal.
