Most people seem to think that the new deal should include getting something for nothing.

In a world as big as ours, it does seem that there would be someone, somewhere, that could please everybody.

The southern cotton farmer has been loath to grow anything else, but with the loss of the world market and the sudden demand for food, it would seem that this is the year to practice diversification.

School news is published in The Tiger Post each week, and as the school paper is entitled to "news," we do not repeat such news in other columns of the paper. Besides, it would mean double expense to no purpose. We expect our readers to read The Tiger Post for school news.

Now that war on unlicensed dogs has been declared by the city council, gardeners and home owners may expect to see some relief from the depredations committed by dogs. If the ordinance on staking stock, offensive hog pens, and loose chickens is also strictly enforced there would be still further benefits to all concerned.

Many people reward those who give unselfish service to the community, by adverse criticism and mighty few words of commendation. The McLean schools are to be congratulated for expressing gratitude to the retiring president of the board in a substantial way. Acts of this kind should be more frequent, and not wait until the funeral oration to show the appreciation of the community.

SENTENCE AD SALESMEN

Merchandise is advertised because it is better because it is advertised. Merchandise is advertised not only because it is a better product—but it actually becomes a still better product because it is advertised.

Consistent advertising is the manufacturer's and retailer's pledge of quality. It is visible proof that he has faith enough in his product to back it with his name—and with his money.

People know instinctively that a product sponsored by advertising is worthy of their confidence. They prefer it, naturally, to its unheralded, unsung competitor.

There is no time lost in guessing. The buyer knows from long experience that advertised products must be dependable, or they could not continue to be advertised.

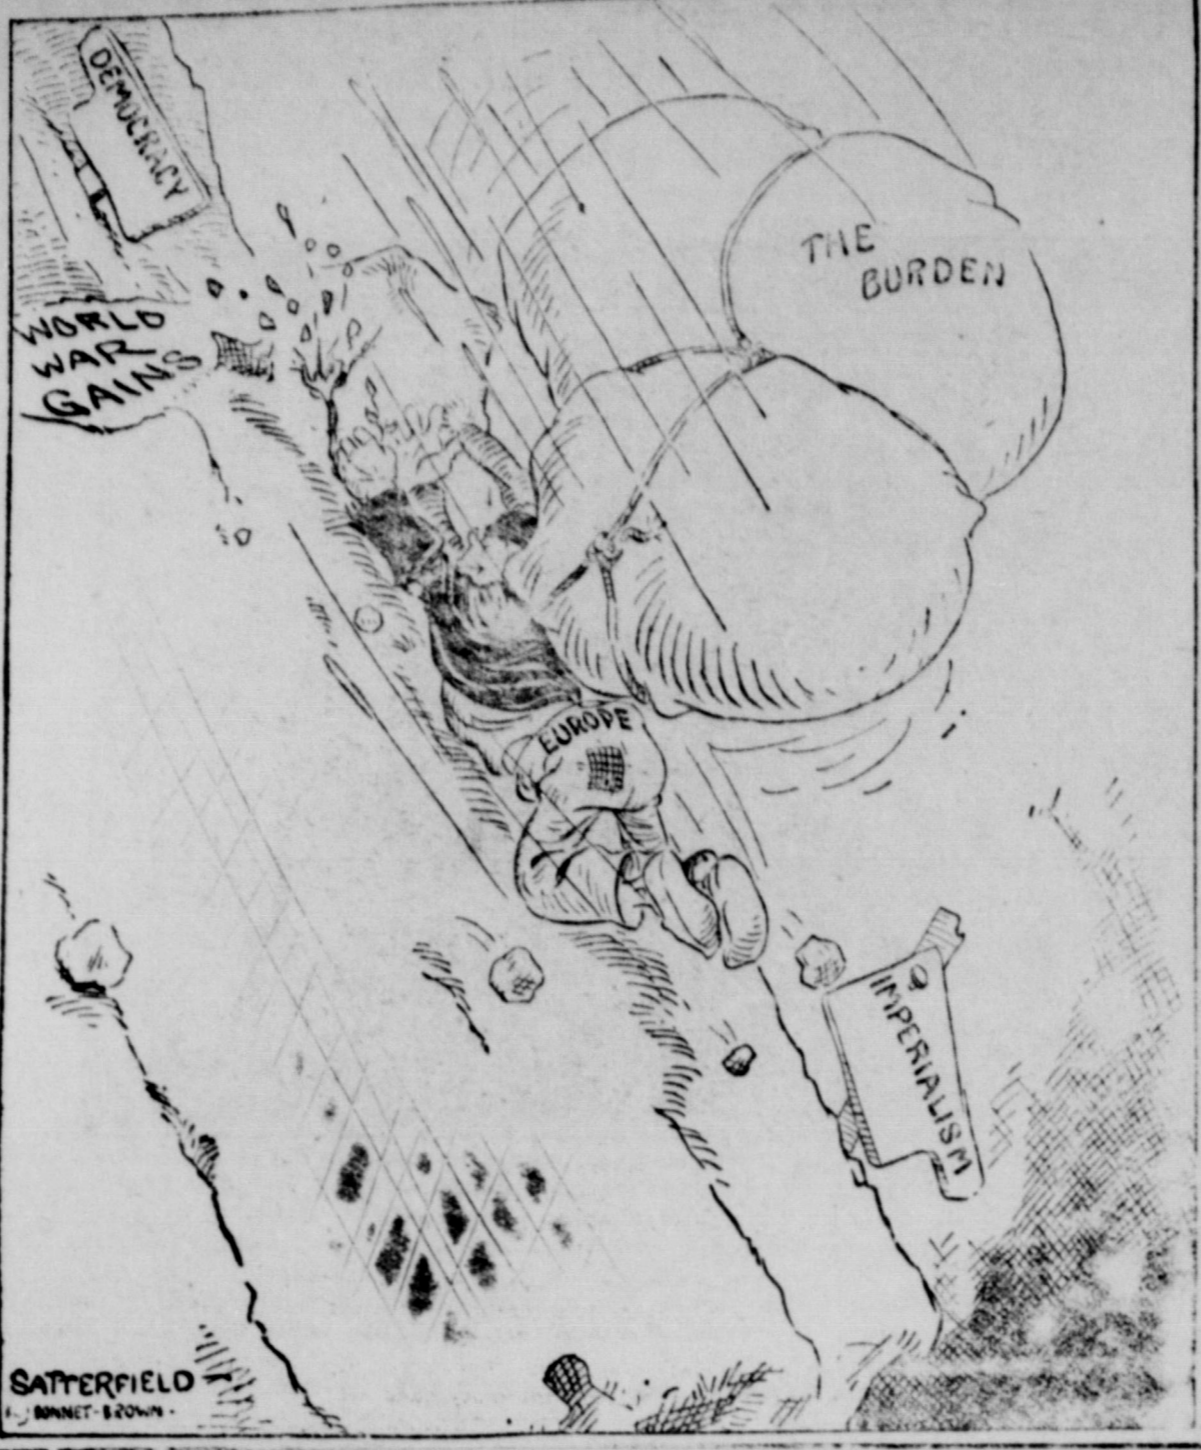

Advertisements show you the whole field of satisfying wares. Read the advertisements—honest facts are in their news.

Mrs. Youngbride—"I want to buy a spring hat for my husband, for a surprise."

Dealer—"What size does he wear?" Mrs. Y—"I didn't find out. But he wears a 15 shirt, so I suppose he ought to wear about a 22 hat, wouldn't he?"

THE EXPLANATION

Bobby—"Pop, what is it that makes corn pop?"

Pop—"Well, you see, the polygonal starch cells in the corn are of such a nature as to facilitate expansion by heat and to render it explosive in character. There is a fracture of the particles along the line of least resistance, in the direction of the two main radii. The endosperm swells considerably as a result, the peripheral portions cohering with the hull but the fractured portions turning back in a more or less symmetrical manner to meet below the embryo—why, Bobby, where are you going?"

Bobby—"Little sister wanted to know so I'm going to explain it to her."

Teacher—"Mary Elizabeth, take that wad of gum out of your mouth and put it in the waste basket."
Mary Elizabeth—"I don't want to. Mother would be mad. It belongs to her."

Rufus—"What do you call those little white things in your head that bite?"

Goofus—"I know the name but I don't like to speak of such things."
Rufus—"I fooled you that time Goofus, all I meant was your teeth. They're white and they bite, don't they?"

Miss Cressie Turner of Hopkins visited Miss Elizabeth Kennedy Sunday.

"If I could edit the paper in accord with practices of other professions," says H. R. Long in the Crane (Mo.) Chronicle, "here is how I could do it when the going is tough:

As a lawyer, ask for a postponement; as a doctor, call a consultation; as a merchant, hold a sale; as a teacher, give a quiz; as a banker, cook up a legal holiday; as a farmer, reduce crops; as a preacher, stage a revival. As for me, here I am at the typewriter."

Gaining friends is a confidence building plan and in any walk of life it takes time and repetition of contacts to gain friends. DEDICATION

We dedicate this issue of The Tiger Post to Mr. J. S. Howard, in an effort to show our appreciation to him for his many years of unselfish service and ceaseless efforts to make better the McLean school system...

UNSELFISH SERVICE

Not often do we see in any community a large number of citizens who give a great number of valuable years of their lives in unselfish service for their fellowman. But we have such men in our midst. After all, life's greatest treasures and most worthwhile things are not measured by dollars and cents...

ASSEMBLY HONORS HOWARD

The period of the high school assembly was given to the honoring of J. S. Howard, who for the past 20 years has been serving on boards of education for some Texas schools, with a dozen years of active service in McLean. Supt. C. A. Cryer was in charge of the conduction of the program...

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

THE TUBERCULAR PATIENT

(Part 2)

Dr. Scholes herewith presents the second part of his article on "Pulmonary Tuberculosis"—what sufferers from it should and should not do. In the first part, he explained the "Diet Regulations—Proper Foods—and so on." In this article, he concludes with further good advice anent the ailment.

Rest

The most important measure in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis is rest, mental as well as physical.

A maximum of twelve hours and a minimum of ten hours in bed daily.

Patient may go out evenings twice a week, but must be in bed before midnight.

Rest for half an hour after exercise.

Avoid all mental stresses—worry, anxiety, fear, anger, etc.

Clothing

Dress for the season and for comfort.

Wear light woolen, linen mesh or a ventilated cotton fabric underwear, whichever is preferable.

Outer clothing should be light and easy-fitting. Corsets should be loose to allow freedom in breathing.

Personal Hygiene

BATH—This should be tepid rather than warm, and should be taken in the evening before retiring. At least three such baths should be taken each week.

The chest should be sponged each morning. Start with tepid water, and gradually lower the temperature as tolerance for it increases. Follow with a brisk rubbing with a rough towel until the skin is ruddy.

TEETH—Teeth should be brushed morning and evening. Powders are better than creams. Use a gargle and mouth-wash of a pleasantly flavored alkaline preparation.

SMOKING—Smoking is permitted only in moderation in the open air. Inhaling the smoke of others should be avoided. It is as harmful as smoking.

Fresh Air

Amusements

Avoid anything that causes mental excitement such as playing cards too intensively. A couple rubbers of bridge in the evening is unobjectionable.

Most amusements that involve exercise are apt to be too strenuous. However, golf (avoiding long drives), croquet and quills are permissible. Walking is best.

Daily Routine

7:00 a. m.—Patient comes indoors, or, if sleeping indoors, windows closed and heat turned on.

7:30—Bathe and dress.

8 to 8:30—Breakfast.

9 to 10—Rest in chair.

10 to 12—Exercise or following suitable occupation.

12 to 1 p. m.—Rest in chair or bed.

1—Luncheon.

Until 3—Rest.

3 to 5—Exercise or light occupation.

5 to 6—Rest.

6—Dinner.

7:30 to 9—Recreation.

9:30—Retire.

THE FUTURE LIFE

Lesson text, Luke 24:12; John 14:1-6. Golden text, "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." John 11:25.

Most every religion of the world has some teaching concerning a future life. Most of them are vague and without any particular attraction. Most of them are without vitality, and few of them offer any eternal principle that would appeal in any way definitely beyond this present life. In fact most of them attempt only to strengthen the courage of their followers so as to make them strong enough to face the coming horrible experience of death. Of course, this is to be said of those religions that are positively foreign to Christianity. Mohammedanism is based upon Christianity without any of its true and fine principles. The difference between Mohammedanism and Christianity is that Mohammed, a mere sinful man, is substituted for Christ and likewise the sinful conception for the divine and pure teachings of Christ. Mohammedanism approaches Christianity nearer than any other religion in the clearness of its teachings concerning the future life.

The same thing that makes all true Christianity, including its teachings concerning the future life, real and vital, is the LIVING Christ. No other religion has ever presumed to boast of a living leader through the ages. All other religions have made a beaten path to the holy place where the dust of their leader lies in a long deteriorated tomb. Jesus Christ died! But Jesus Christ arose again! There is the secret of the superiority of Christianity over all other religions, not only in its teaching of the future life, but in all of its conceptions and teachings.

Jesus Christ teaches that the life of his followers after death will surpass all of their fondest dreams and hopes. They will dwell eternally with him in his home which is heaven. There will be eternal joy, peace, satisfaction and love. Trouble, sorrow and all evil will be banished. These are fond hopes to which every soul might truly aspire. They are hopes which the follower of Christ does not doubt. There is in his heart an assurance that death is nothing more for him than a portal through which he shall pass to receive the inheritance which has been his promise through his knowledge of Christ. These things the followers of other religions cannot understand. Neither can the one who stands off and doubts Christ understand them. This is true because Jesus said that there was but one door to the sheep fold and that that door was Jesus Himself. Only those who have passed through that door by faith can ever have the eternal assurance of the promises of Jesus concerning the future life. The path that leads through the door is not a physical or a material one. Therefore, Jesus said that it was a narrow door and that few should find it. Faith in spiritual things is not common to mankind, but that is the path which a man must follow to have that spiritual hope in the eternal future.

The thing that makes this hope a living hope is that Jesus took upon Himself a physical body of flesh wherein He "was tempted in all points like as we are." He was condemned and crucified. His death was just as real as the death of our loved ones. He was buried in the accustomed way of the day for the wealthy because of the offer of a tomb by a wealthy follower. Then on the third day He rose again. He came back from the grave and from death. He was victor over death. No one had ever before been victor over that greatest enemy of humanity. Jesus returned to life without end, and power without limitation.

Therefore Jesus could say to His disciples that He was going to His Father for the purpose of preparing a place for them and all of His followers. Not only did He promise that He would prepare a place for us, but that He would come back after us. He had taught us that the time will come when He will return in all of His heavenly glory to receive all His own unto Himself to have them eternally with Him. This hope and knowledge is a part of the Christian religion. Paul told the Romans that the Spirit of God witnessed with his spirit that he was the son of God, an heir of God and a part of his inheritance with Jesus Christ.

This promise is closed to no man. His own statement was that He came to seek and to save those who lose. Jesus promised also to send His Spirit into the world, which He would convict men of their sins and lead them to the acknowledgment of their sins and acceptance of His forgiveness. Men everywhere are seeking for happiness, but few are looking to Christ for that happiness.

They are seeking a panacea for their ills every place save in Christ. In Him they will find the hope of dwelling throughout eternity in the peace and satisfaction for which they are seeking hopelessly here. In Christ and in Him only can such a hope be found. He was dead, but He is alive again. It is upon the promises of a living Christ that we depend.

SERMONETTE

By Rev. Stephen M. Tuhy
Lutheran Pastor, Oviado, Fla.

Vol. 2 No. 15
Text: "After that He poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith He was girded."—John 13:5.

FOOT-WASHING
This is Maundy Thursday. The first Maundy Thursday was the day when our Lord Jesus instituted the sacrament of the Eucharist, the Lord's Supper.

The term "Maundy" comes from the Latin word "mandatum," which means command. The command of Christ was, "Ye also ought to wash one another's feet."—John 13:14.

Foot-washing was a ceremony often performed in ancient times, particularly in hot, sandy Oriental countries where the natives usually wore sandals. This ceremony was invented with a spiritual meaning by our Lord Jesus Christ when He washed the disciples' feet. The Evangelist John reports the incident thus: "After that He (Jesus) poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith He was girded."

This was a lesson in humility, self-denial and service. Christ clearly expressed Himself in regard to this as John recorded in the 13th chapter, verses 12-17. Some people make pious applications of this incident by making it symbolical of the washing away of sin and purification in the blood of the Lamb of God. However, these views are unwarranted by the text of Christ's words. Foot-washing is not a sacrament. Christ does not promise forgiveness of sins through the practice of this custom.

In the Middle Ages this custom was observed at the installation of princes and bishops. The old Emperor Franz Josef hired twelve paupers once a year, had them enter his palace, sprinkled a little water on the feet of each one, and wiped them with a towel. These paupers, however, had to be very careful to have their feet washed before they came to the palace. The Pope also, on every Maundy Thursday, sprinkles a few drops of water from a golden bowl upon the feet of the twelve cardinals and applies a towel. Very often such foot-washing turns out to be nothing but hypocrisy, carrying the custom out to the letter but entirely missing the real meaning of the act which Christ Himself had performed.

Christ's act of foot-washing on Maundy Thursday was a beautiful example of His self-sacrificing humility. An example which everyone may follow. All Christians are to be humble enough to perform even the lowliest and meanest labors for their fellowmen; they are to serve each other and not to elevate themselves above each other.

Let us remember that this Oriental custom of foot-washing was given a spiritual significance; it need not be followed literally, in actual foot-washing. We repeat, there was no promise of Christ of forgiveness of sins in connection with this custom. But who can deny that a Christian must follow Christ's example of humility? Let us humbly help one another as the Lord Jesus did.

TOO TRUE

There is one thing certain. Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment has not brought prosperity back to America. It has not even been a factor of any appreciable consequence in bringing prosperity back. Those fellows who were made to believe that all the jobless would be able to find jobs almost immediately after Repeal are surely becoming disillusioned by this time. Liquor distilleries cannot create wealth. The liquor traffic results only in the swapping of dollars from one pocket to another; and the liquor habit is pure wastefulness. Senator Morris Sheppard will yet be vindicated. He is being vindicated every day.—Lynn County News.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lynch and daughter, Miss Bobbie, accompanied by Miss Duella Mann, visited Mrs. Lynch's sister in Vernon Sunday.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

As April rain showers herald the day flowers—just so do the bridal showers in this month precede the spring weddings. One of the most practical of these affairs is the always welcome kitchen shower. Of course, the bride wants a bright, shiny kitchen, and with the new colored enamel pans and other utensils it is easily attained.

First, the hostess must find out (most diplomatically, to be sure, if she wishes to surprise the recipient) the color preferred by the guest of honor. This color, if desired, may be used in the decorations and refreshments.

Suppose the color chosen is yellow. That is a lovely spring shade and can be worked up effectively. Flowers provide the most attractive medium for all warm weather decorations. Bowls of yellow tulips or narcissi or jonquils are charming.

Carry Out the Color Scheme. The table with a centerpiece of flowers, and tiny nosegays of the attached to the place cards is most festive. If possible to procure, dishes of yellow glass add to the appearance. A pineapple and cucumber gelatine salad, tinted yellow, creamed egg sandwiches, yellow and white cream molds and sponge cake or French pastry, iced in yellow and white are dainty refreshments.

The gifts may be placed in a large clothes basket, the top of which is then covered with white paper fastened in place with a band of yellow ribbon tied in a huge bow.

Games dealing with the home may be played. It is rather nice to ask each woman to write her favorite recipe on a card to be given to the guest of honor.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

1 Dry cornstarch rubbed into grease stains on cloth absorbs the grease and can be brushed off carefully, repeating the treatment until the spots disappear?

2 Plants love bottom heat and if house plants droop from no apparent cause and refuse to thrive, watering them solely by pouring warm water into the saucers every day will sometimes give them new vigor?

3 Clear, warm water will remove milk or cream from cloth if applied immediately?

4 Old broadcloth shirts may be used to make children's rompers?

MERINGUE

To make a light, tender meringue that will not fall place the egg whites to be used in a bowl in the refrigerator. Then add two teaspoons of granulated sugar for each egg white and return to the ice to chill again.

Spread the meringue over the pie when partly cooled, and quickly in.

EROSION

By A. T. Wilson

Erosion is a thorn in the flesh in this western country, and no man living here can get any satisfaction out of life as long as it continues to lay waste our lands. All our houses with dust, and makes life miserable in general. Some man that does not live here may invent a dust mask that will sell like automobiles and reap a fortune out of it, and that makes you think of the old saying that "It is an ill wind that blows no man any good." The bread basket of the nation is being threatened, for the price of wheat goes up with every erosive invasion, and the whole country should be deeply concerned in the matter. Every effort made to counteract or stop it calls for money out of somebodys pocket, regardless of where he is located in the U. S. You hear about as many plans and theories advanced for eliminating this monstrous evil as you hear for taking people off the relief rolls, or as many remedies as a bunch of men can give for curing a sick horse. As a result the horse generally dies, and unless we can get a practical, common sense doctor to work on this case of wind erosion, the land will die and become a worthless desert or a cancer on the body of the United States. I suppose people could stand the punishment of these dust storms indefinitely if it did not impair the productive capacity of their lands and their ability to pay for all our foolishness and luxuries as well as the necessities of life, but at the present increasing rate of erosion, in another generation we won't be able to continue our present standards of living, but will be sending out an SOS call for the bare necessities of life. You will notice farms that were producing bountifully twenty-five years ago and now if a man stayed on one of them five years on a stretch without stealing something to help feed and clothe his family he would be considered a mighty honest man. Not only man must suffer intensely as the result of this erosion, but all domesticated stock must bear the brunt of the battle, and the jack rabbit and prairie dog are the only ones that seem to thrive on it, and it looks like we might be compelled to eat prairie squirrel and Hoover hams.

Now nature had worked tirelessly for thousands of years to grow hardy plants to protect the surface of this arid country and had succeeded to a remarkable degree, but along came man with his greed and prodigality and has undone the excellent work of nature in spite of her vigorous protests, and now there is nothing to do but plead guilty, ask the mercy of the court, throw in with Mother Nature and try to make amends for indiscretions committed and to ever after heed her warnings.

It will take men that live in this country and are as interested in the welfare and liberty of the American people, to get the job done, and we can't expect some fellow with a degree as long as your arm and a political pull to come into this country and lead us out of the wilderness of the combined and complicated disease of drought, depression and erosion. I believe man should exhaust his resources to remedy this condition before he calls on the powers that be, as the winds have blown and droughts have always come, and it is up to man to head in.

THINKS THE CHURCH SHOULD ADVERTISE

A citizen dropped in at the office of The News a day or two ago and after discussing in a general way the topics of the day and then picking up a copy of the recent issue of The News, he commented on the advertising appearing in its columns and then said:

"You know, it is rather surprising that the modern church does not use more advertising space than it does."

He continued by pointing out that hundreds of business enterprises have been built to stupendous proportions through the medium of advertising. He then spoke of the modern church, declaring that offering, as it does, the very best that there is to be had in this life, its offering should be heralded to the masses through every medium possible. There is no better way to get their attention than by newspapers advertising.

It was pointed out that there are some churches who do use considerable newspaper advertising. It is noteworthy that these are the churches which are forging steadily ahead, while those who are letting this opportunity slip them are losing ground.

A LAYWOMAN'S COMMENTS ON THE BOOK OF JAMES

By Mrs. W. A. Breining

I used to read the book of James every Saturday, and if all the rest of the Bible were taken away from me, I would still know a great deal about how not to treat my fellowman.

Just as it takes a person without children to tell you all about them, so it takes a person who knows nothing about the Bible and has so little religion he has to tell you about it, to expound on the good Book. Hence, these remarks on the book of James.

Recently, I told a woman about my former Saturday Bible reading. A few days ago she informed me that she had taken up the same practice and received so much good from it that she had a revival meeting all by herself.

As for me, I graduated, with a self-signed diploma and without commencement exercises. Graduation is always a serious time, for one is so likely to grow stale afterward or to slip backward. I have decided if this woman, who isn't in such dire need of the book of James, is finding it so inspiring, then it's high time I was taking a post-graduate course. I'm thinking seriously of becoming the second member of the Saturday St. James Club.

Why Saturday? Some people go to church on Sunday to get religion, but I have to go through a sort of cleansing process on Saturday before I can even show my face on Sunday.

One of my favorite scriptures is in James: "Confess your faults one to another and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." I'll have to break down right here and confess that most of us women need the book of James.

Now, if anyone happens to be reading this column, go get your Bible and find out what it's all about.

Over at Farmersville there seems to be quite a bit of complaint about chickens getting into neighbors' gardens and destroying young tender vegetables. Really no one should complain about chickens bothering gardens. They both work well together. Just catch a few of the birds and have a chicken pie. This will cause neighbors to put up their chickens. This is one of the best ways we know of to put a stop to chicken trespassing on your neighbors' property. It will work—Wylie Herald.

Want your home town to go ahead? Then take hold and do a little pulling ahead yourself. Want your home town business to keep your home people well employed? Then give that business your full support by buying your supplies at home? Want your business to grow? Then better demonstrate to the public, through advertising, that its good service deserves such growth.—Clarendon News.

Ed Howe, the veteran newspaper man, says that the way to find a man's weakness is to give him authority, and the way to find his strength is to give him trouble.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

Folks, this is my farewell address as a columnist. I've gone and hurt some of my best friends' feelings. I would not knowingly do that for all the columnists in the world.

I've really never meant a single thing that I've been saying about you all, just simply joking. I've always enjoyed joking and enjoy being joked, and in making my jokes up I have always picked on my very best friends, whom I thought knew me well enough to take anything I might say in this column strictly as a joke and nothing else, and if I have hurt any of your feelings, I want to beg your humble pardon because, honestly, and truly, folks, I was strictly joking and I am truly sorry that your feelings were hurt in any way.

I have enjoyed writing these articles and it is with quite a bit of regret that I am quitting, and that I have been so badly misunderstood and the feelings of my very best friends have been hurt, but I suppose expressions in cold print sound much harsher than you intend for it to sound, naturally handicapping anyone in putting over a joke in a newspaper. There is not a man, woman or child in McLean that I dislike, and I have no ill feeling toward a single person in the world that I can think of, and naturally I would not want to hurt anybody's feelings.

I am at a loss to further express my feelings in bringing this article to a close for fear that my meaning might be further misunderstood. And it might have been best that I not write this public apology, but folks, I am not like the confirmed criminal who takes the position that he has gone too far in crime to give up. I may have gone too far to keep from getting shot, but regardless of the consequences, folks, here is my finish. I GIVE UP. Good-bye, folks, and may God bless you. I am still your friend. And now the joke is on me.

During the campaign for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the wets cited as argument how repeal would cut down the number of inmates in federal prisons—vast numbers sent there for liquor violations. Statistics now show that instead of a decrease, the number has been greatly augmented. Sanford Bates, director of the bureau of federal prisons, states that the federal prison at New Orleans has never received as many convicts for illegal liquor as it is receiving at the present time.—State Line Tribune.

MYSTERY OF PRAYER

Next Sunday being Easter, it seems fitting that the Boy Scouts should say something about that mystery of prayer which is used perhaps in a more sincere sense and with a more complete understanding at Easter time than at any other time of the year, unless it is at the time of the birth of Christ, Christmas.

We use electricity each and every day, but can we define it? We live from day to day, but what is life? We believe in God. What is God? We use our radio every night. Do you know what radio is? All these things are mysterious. We use prayer but do not understand it. Why should prayer be criticized or scoffed at by our friends who say that it is not understandable? And above all, why do we listen when we do not know just the elements which compose the material modern conveniences and luxuries of our present fast and furious life and which are to a certain extent under our control? Nor do we understand them enough to define them, tell from whence they come and, upon use, into what climate they retreat.

We as a race have been skeptical about the new since the birth of life upon this old world of ours. The locomotive, automobile, telegraph, telephone, radio, steam, electricity, nature, life, love, and all of these things we know about now, we understand mittedly. But we cannot explain them; why, when, where and how.

Allow us to give a clipping from a newspaper which is a thought by an unknown author: If radio's slim fingers can pluck a melody from light and toss it over a continent or sea; if petaled white notes of a violin are blown across a mountain or a city's din; if songs like crimson roses are called from thin blue air, why should mortals wonder if God hears prayer?

Is prayer more supernatural than radio, electricity, or life? We accept things that we can see, feel, and touch to some extent are near acquaintances of ours, for the things which they are. Why not accept prayer for the thing which it is? Do believe in our radio. We feel certain that we can tune in on a certain station at a certain point on the dial. Is it impossible to tune in on our souls on station God and find Him, if our equipment (life) is in the proper shape?

PATRIOTIC BUT FREE

The government pays good money for everything it uses except publicity, and the Shelbina (Mo.) Democrat thinks that it's high time that publishers do something about it. We quote:

"We believe that country newspapers are looked upon by the government as the most blindly patriotic business in the nation. Week after week the country weeklies receive thousands of pages of free publicity to be published in the interest of this great country of ours. This may be what the metropolitan, anti-administration papers are thinking about when they decry the threatened loss of freedom of the press. At any rate, the government expects to use it with freedom. He pays good money for every needed commodity imaginable except publicity. He even pays folks for writing it. He buys the paper it is written upon, the ink used in writing, pays the mail clerks for distributing it, but expects the publisher to accomplish without charge the one big purpose of the work, getting it to the people. In return for this free publicity, Uncle Sam supplies and prints envelopes for the grade at less price than the country publisher can even buy the blank envelopes. One thing that gripes us especially is the fact that the paper used for the free publicity lets the ink through and cannot even be used for any paper in the news office."

A county superintendent in a neighboring county asked every teacher at the county institute who took their local or county paper to hold up their hands and only six responded. The superintendent expressed great surprise and said: "You don't spend a dollar a year with those papers, yet you expect them to print free of charge notices of all institutes, insert long programs, expect them to advertise you, thus assisting you to climb the ladder to better positions and better salaries, without one cent in return."—Rochester Reporter.

Shabby—"Why did that woman keep you at the door talking for half an hour?"

Shabby—"She said she didn't have time to come in."

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn
© Public Ledger

The Man Who Hit the Bull's Eye

MOONSHINING flourished long before the prohibition amendment was made to the Constitution of the United States.

Twenty years ago it was carried on in the mountains of West Virginia on a scale that made the government authorities gasp for breath.

The general impression of the moonshiner is that of a poor white man who is willing to take big chances in order to make a little illegal money.

This is true of some sections, but at the time mentioned there were bold and unscrupulous distillers who carried it on as a business in a big way and who made fortunes by the operation.

Wayne Gooch was one of these men. He was called "the King of the Moonshiners," and there is no reason to doubt that he was entitled to the distinction.

The scandals grew to such proportions that the commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington determined it would have to be stopped at all hazards.

The man he assigned to the job was a fearless agent named Tom Kennedy.

He had several advantages. One was that he knew the mountains of West Virginia.

Another was that he was a crack shot.

These things were important, because the moonshiners placed small value on human life.

Most of them boasted that they would not be taken alive, and by the same token they would kill anyone who attempted to interfere with their business.

Kennedy determined to confront the lion in his den.

He made up his mind to go to the Gooch stamping grounds in the guise of a government forester.

Merely to be known as a person who was connected with the government in any capacity was taking a big chance, but Kennedy was a man who had been taking chances all his life, and one additional chance meant little to him.

He had two capable assistants with him, and he went direct to the cabin where the king of the moonshiners made his headquarters.

He introduced himself by his real name, and he wanted to know what the authorities could do to stop the cultivation of trees in that part of the country. Gooch, who was a big, bluff fellow, received him cordially enough, even though he kept his weather eye on this curious stranger.

"I've said the soil in that part of West Virginia was not particularly adapted to forestry, but he cheerfully offered to escort Kennedy about the country.

It was just what the revenue agent wanted.

He kept his eyes and his ears open, and at the end of 24 hours was forced to confess that there was not even the sign of a still in operation.

One day they had a shooting match, with a big target set up near the cabin. Kennedy participated, and to the great delight and admiration of the king the visitor hit the bull's eye nine times out of ten.

Gooch said that was the best record ever made in that locality.

Kennedy had played his cards so well that he was not even suspected by the king of the moonshiners.

They parted one night with expressions of mutual esteem. Kennedy had no misconception of his man.

He knew that if his true character had become known he would have been shot down like a dog.

This thought keyed him up to the game he was about to play.

He left the cabin and the vicinity, but he had proof that distilling was going on on a great scale.

He discovered that the stuff was sent to the depot in a truck at about midnight each night.

So he lay in wait with his two men, and when the team arrived at a certain part of the road he appeared in the highway with a loaded and primed revolver.

In the meantime Kennedy sent for reinforcements and before another day had gone by the king of the moonshiners and his men had been taken into custody.

Counterfeit Wampum
Counterfeit wampum came into being with the white man's arrival in America when a family of European immigrants of Paskack, N. J., with the aid of steel drills and lathes, became proficient in making wampum from the cheap, plentiful shells of the common Busycon conch of the Gulf coast. This counterfeit Indian money circulated as far west as the Mississippi valley.

Hawaii's Temperature
Hawaii, lying in mid-ocean just within the tropics, has a warm climate throughout the year, though high temperatures are prohibited by the northeast trade winds, which blow for about nine months of the year. The mean annual temperature is 71.5 degrees. The extremes are 54 degrees and 89 degrees.

BEGIN ADVERTISING NOW

Newspaper advertising enjoys the greatest patronage of any form of advertising. Huge corporations spend tremendous sums every year to inform and lead the buyer. The press delivers the goods and gets the bulk of the appropriation.

The situation in our town is the same as everywhere else. Here the newspaper is the best form of publicity, as well as the cheapest. Merchants who delay their advertising because they do not intend to outspend cigarette manufacturers are losing business through their failure.

It is better for every advertiser to begin modestly and expend than to begin extravagantly and lose his money, and most costly to his business, his faith in the power of advertising. If there is anything on the market today that has been put over without advertising we don't know what it is. Every merchant realizes this, even if he doesn't emulate the example of those who put things over.

THE NATIONALS LIKE US!

By "Nationals," we mean those widely favored brands of goods that advertise on a national scale. They pick and choose with great care the media in which they buy space. They must know that the paper has a dominant circulation in its trade area; that it holds the good will of its readers; that it has a reputation for getting results for advertisers.

SO, NATURALLY, THE NATIONALS LIKE US!

During the past year our lineage of national accounts showed a heavy increase over past years. This is a fact that should be taken into account by local advertisers, for, if we couldn't get results, we'd be cut off the national lists in a hurry!

METHODIST W. M. U. MET AT CHILDRESS

Several members of the Methodist Missionary Society of McLean were among the 450 delegates who gathered last week in Childress to celebrate the silver anniversary session of the societies of the Northwest Texas conference.

At a business meeting at the closing session on Friday, an election was held to determine the destination of the $700 love offering, which was designated as follows: holding institute, La. edo; Dowdell Center, China; girls' home, Mingo, Africa; Stevenson's men's hospital, Changchow, China.

The theme carried through the three days' conference programs presided at banquets, teas, and a pageant, consisted of portraying the history and ideals of the Northwest Texas conference of women's missionary societies. Possibly the most outstanding feature of the entire program was a talk made by Mrs. J. W. Perry on "Tomorrow's Highways," in which she stated that "We are endeavoring to help bring in an era in which the down trodden shall be lifted, when the neglected and underprivileged shall have their rightful share in the blessings, when the selfish purpose of man shall come to naught, and when we shall have a regenerated social order."

Mrs. Perry, a resident of Chattanooga, Tenn., is president of the Woman's Missionary Council. Preceding the pageant, which was the closing program for the sessions, a lovely tea was served at the Childress Women's Department Club, with members of the club as hostesses.

BAPTIST MEN MEET

The Baptist Brotherhood met at the First Baptist Church last Thursday evening with the following program given:

Introduction, subject, Home Missions at Home—Jesse J. Cobb leader. Home Missions, Past and Present—T. A. Landers. Home Missions in Texas—Rev. Cecil G. Goff. Missionary Needs in Arizona and New Mexico—Rev. A. R. McHaney. Ralph A. Caldwell led the prayer and T. A. Landers pronounced the benediction.

A short business session was held in charge of President Murray Boston.

BLACK DUSTER SUNDAY

The first black duster to hit McLean blew in Sunday evening about church time, blotting out everything for a few minutes.

The duster affected people in various ways, many taking to storm cellars, as it was thought that a tornado might be the cause of the drifting dust.

FOOTBALL FRIDAY NIGHT

According to Coach G. B. Rush, the 1935 Tigers will meet former Tiger stars on the local gridiron for an hour's regular game Friday night.

A nominal admission charge will be made and an interesting game is promised.

Mrs. Lulu Harris of Duncan, Okla., and Edgar Henderson of Saddle Mountain, Okla., visited their sister-in-law, Mrs. Belle Henderson, and son, Alonzo, Sunday. They were enroute to Mrs. Harris' wheat farm near Groom. They returned to Oklahoma Tuesday morning.

By ELEANOR SMITH Aviatix.

"I NEVER dream of an airplane crash that I don't hear of one the next morning," state Eleanor Smith, who possesses youthful beauty as well as bravery and skill as an aviatix.

"Last year, when I was making an altitude attempt, I thought my noise had been cut off 25,000 feet above the ground. I reached down my hand to try the throttle, and I accidentally turned off the oxygen gauge.

"Well, that has just the same effect upon a person as doing this to her—" Here Miss Smith graphically sliced her throat with the blade of her hand and made a shivery, sizzling sound as one makes when choking.

"While I was unconscious, my plane dropped. I regained consciousness just as it was nosing for the ground. I was too near to glide to a landing. I had the immediate choice of hitting a brick wall or falling into the reservoir, and probably drowning, or of heading for a space between two tall trees.

"Now, I remembered that the night before I had dreamed of a crash. I knew what that meant for me; I knew I must take no chances; I must do anything to avert such a catastrophe. To fly between the trees was my only chance of escape. I had enough experience to know that if the plane flew between them the impact would slice off the wings, turn the plane over and wreck it.

"So I turned the plane over deliberately, from within and saved damage to it, instead of allowing it to resist the turn and doubtless be shattered.

"If I had not been in that dream I might have taken the same chances with those trees."

Mrs. Foocy—"Why did you take your little girl out of school?"

Mrs. Nutt—"Cause the teacher didn't know nothing. She told Elnora that IV spells four when any idiot ought to know it spells ivy."

Walter—"This hotel is under new management."

Walter—"Yes, but he got married last week."

"Wilfred! Wilfred!" whispered Wilfred Mrs. Jones, excitedly, "there's a mouse in the bedroom."

Wilfred sat up in bed and looked sleepily at his wife. "Well, what about it?" he groaned.

"I can hear it squeaking," she said. "Well, do you want me to get out and oil it or something?"

Do You Use Rolltop Stationery?

No disparagement of the noble old roll-top desk is meant! But, excepting the modern stream-lined rolltop, the old-timer really belongs in an antique store rather than an up-to-date office.

It's odd that many business men who replace their old rickety desks and files with new, efficient equipment stick doggedly to their old out-dated stationery. The same old stodgy layout and type faces; the same old civil war cut of a factory, the same old cheap cartoon style, and the same old—but why go on? You know what we mean.

Bring your stationery in line with your modern equipment. It costs no more than the old kind.

Let us design your stationery along modern lines. The cost is small. Just phone 47 and you will get quick service.
