City Applies for Federal Funds, Street and Drainage

City to Pave Streets, Build Storm Sewers

The city council has applied for federal funds to supply $3,000 worth of labor for street improvement.

It is planned to provide storm sewers in Floral addition, tear out the bridge at the intersection of Walton and Third streets, between the high school and the Baptist Church, and make a long dip at that place. The dip will be at least 100 feet long, with a slope from each direction.

It is also planned to caliche and gravel streets as long as the money holds out, and later if it is found that more money is needed, more will be asked for.

This will be the first federal project asked for by the city. The schools and Lions Club have used similar funds for improving the school grounds and making highway entrance parks.

REV. E. C. SNODGRASS
Pastor of the First Christian Church of Amarillo, who will preach the commencement sermon for the graduating class of the McLean high school, Sunday evening, May 12, at 8 o'clock.

There will be a meeting of local Democrats at the city secretary's office Friday night, May 3, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a young Democratic club. This organization is now state-wide and has wonderful possibilities. Young men 21 years of age and over are especially invited. There will probably be a state speaker for this occasion who will give information regarding young Democrat clubs over the state, their purpose and what they have already accomplished.

ALANREED CLUB MEET THURSDAY

Hitch Hiker Robs Motorist of Car and Money

Ernest D. Cavanaugh of Dallas who has been in McLean working in the interest of the PWA, was robbed of his car, ten dollars in money and his brief case containing valuable papers and records of his work, by a young hitch hiker who jumped upon the running board of his car when he slowed down to light a cigarette, last Friday.

The hiker boarded the car about two miles out of McLean, and when they arrived at Shamrock the youth produced a pistol and ordered the driver to proceed toward Wheeler. A few miles out of Shamrock Cavanaugh was forced to lie down in the back of the car, the youth driving to the river and turning off several miles into a field, where Cavanaugh was ordered to pull off his shoes. The youth attempted to tie him up with a belt, but the belt broke. The hiker then drove off, leaving his victim to find his way, barefooted, to a filling station on the highway, where the sheriff was notified.

The car belonged to the government, and Cavanaugh describes the youth as being tall, slender, fair, well dressed and well mannered, about 17 or 18 years old.

The well flowed 1,418 barrels for the first three hours after it came in at a depth of 2,540 feet. Several million cubic feet of gas was found with the oil.

This well is in the northeast corner of the west half of the northwest quarter of section 33, block 24, in proven territory. There are several big wells in this area, but none came in for the same initial flow.

Smith Bros. No. 7 Marlan was brought in last week with a five-day average of 2,027 barrels. They found 35,000,000 feet of gas at the top of the granite wash in their No. 1 Wood in the same section with prospects of a good producer. This well is about a half-mile south of present production.

We have heard many expressions of approbation of Mayor Davis' article in last week's News. The stock nuisance is evident to McLean citizens.

The city council is to be congratulated on applying for relief funds for street improvement. Many towns have already paved all their streets in this manner. It is an opportunity that may never occur again, and now is the time to take advantage of it.

Dr. Freeman of Yale reports after exhaustive survey, that the man who "takes it easy" while he works is likely to get the most done. However, we venture to state that this thing can be carried too far. The learned doctor might have profitably given some attention to those workers who take things "too easy."

John Chapman, a farmer near Sparta, Georgia, recently paid a traveling "specialist" $250 for a pair of ten-cent store spectacles. The old spectacle racket used to be mighty profitable to peddlers, but most folks have become educated to the fact that it does not pay to guess in buying things of this kind—and you are guessing at the quality of anything the traveling peddler offers, regardless of whether it is printing or spectacles.

I Want to Know

By D. A. Davis

When are you Old Democrats going to wake up and get on the job and go to contending for your rights? What is the use of us old experienced politicians letting these young whippersnappers over the country that call themselves Young Democrats horn in on us and take the "pork barrels" away from us and leave us nothing but the "baloney?"

Old folks, it's time for us to do something about this "flaming youth" movement that is taking this country by storm. We have simply got to come out of our shells and do something before this United States of America goes to the "puppies." Any time you let a bunch of kids try to run this government we sure will be in a bad way.

Folks, imagine us folks turning this over to Carl Greene, Slick Boyd and Thurman W. Adkins! Do you Old Democrats read your papers? And did you see in the Amarillo News Tuesday where a bunch of "young" Democrats met at Pampa Monday to organize a Gray County Young Democrat Club, and the three above named "kids" went up to Pampa to get some organizing dope so's to be prepared to organize a "young Demo-club"? And did you notice they headed or called themselves "Young Demos"? What I want to know is why they call themselves "Demos." Why do they want to act so short and cut that noble word "Democrats" half in two, and if they are determined to shorten this wonderful word why cut it down to demo? Why not just leave out the letter "C"?

Folks, I am good and mad, and I am calling on all you elderly ladies and gentlemen to rally to our good old Democratic principles and ideals and let's carry on and continue to uphold the banner of good old fashioned democracy and not allow these young dizzy headed, pleasure seeking, jazz dancing, jelly bean, speed smashing demons to get control of our wonderful, efficient and most capable well oiled, smooth running, perfectly controlled Democratic party. Wake up, you old Rip Van Winkles, get this Kansas dust out of your eyes and the cockle burrs out of your whiskers, and get on your toes, and let's not turn this country over to the "Young Demos." Some folks want to turn this country back to the Indians and some want to turn it back to the cowboys, but folks, just as sure as you are living, we can't afford to turn this country over to these "Young Demos." On with the battle, you old timers, oh with the battle!

SAFETY FIRST, A SECOND CLASS REQUIREMENT

Last summer during an outing the life of a nine-year-old boy was saved by his twelve-year-old playmate. The younger boy's clothing caught on fire and the older boy threw him to the ground, got on top of him and rolled him over and over on the ground until the flames were extinguished.

When the young boy was asked how he knew to do it, he replied, "I remembered what my scouting had taught me regarding safety." Every second class scout must know off hand twenty rules of safety and must be able to practice them.

There is no end to safety rules. The greater number of safety rules, however, apply to railroad crossings, streets, fire, health and accident.

The man who continually neglects to regard the rules of safety applying to railroad crossings and street travel is perhaps missed more after his demise by the traffic officers and railroad engineers than by his family.

When an accident such as clothing catching on fire, occurs, remember not to run, and if there doesn't happen to be anyone near to throw you on the ground and roll you over until the fire is out, be your own life savior; throw yourself on the ground and roll and beat the flames out.

At this time I would like to call your attention to a local incident which occurred about a week ago. One of the bus companies which uses McLean as a relay station one night unloaded six or eight drums of high explosive blasting powder back of Bingham's Cafe. During the night a skillet of grease caught on fire in the cafe. The cook carried it outside and it was so hot that he had to set it down as quickly as possible. As the cans of powder were next to the door, he set the skillet of fire on one of the drums of blasting powder. About this time his assistant noticed that it was labeled high explosive, and the skillet was moved without any lost time. The next day Tex Thornton, who is an expert on explosives, was asked about it and he stated that there was enough powder in those cans to blow McLean out of existence, which shows we are often too careless regarding safety first.

The rules of safety applying to health are perhaps less understood by the American people today than any of the others. For instance, people as a rule believe that colds are caught from sleeping in a well ventilated room, by sleeping out of doors, by getting their clothing wet or foot-wear soaked. But this is all a mistake. Colds are caught in only one way; from someone else. Never cough or sneeze in anyone's face. It is not only poor manners, but you are responsible for someone else contracting a disagreeable cold.

If you smoke, don't throw your match in the waste basket. Blow the flame out, then break it in two before throwing it down. Don't eat when you are over tired; rest first. Don't bolt your food; chew it. Don't drink ice water when you are over heated. Don't be careless; let your conscience dictate to you. Don't dictate to your conscience, however.

Now for the big procession of accidents. Don't play with an unloaded gun or point it at anyone. Don't play with fire. Don't venture out on ice until it has been proven safe or pronounced safe by a person who is an authority. Remember your don'ts for swimming. Don't lose your head. Think and act. You may be the means of saving a life.

In poisoning, remember to send for a physician. Induce vomiting by natural means, by having the patient swallow sweet oil or white of eggs, or drinking hot water or strong mustard and water. Remember that acids are antidotes for alkalines and vice versa. In many cases of special poisoning milk is a recognized antidote.

In any accident of any kind be sure to examine your patient thoroughly for hemorrhage, broken bones or severe cuts before moving him.

Practice safety. It takes no time to be careless, very little time to be careful, but no time to get hurt, killed, or crippled for life.

A business magazine tells of the enlightenment of a negro insurance agent, arrested for doing business without a license. "Don't you know you can't sell life insurance without a license?" the magistrate said. The agent replied: "Boss, you done said I'm faithful; I knowed I couldn't sell life, but I didn't know why."

Harry B. Thayer, retired telephone operator, made this sage observation at the end of his long business career: "It is easy to fool yourself; it is difficult to fool those you work with; still more difficult to fool those who work with; and almost impossible to fool those who work under your direction."

Text: "I am the Light..." John 1:9.

THREE-FOLD LIFE

Jesus Christ, our Master, gives life because He has life in Himself. This He has as the Son of God and the Son of Man. In the Gospel of St. John, the Evangelist gives testimony of Christ in this respect in the words, "In Him was life." John 1:4.

Christ also gives life because He has the power to give life. He gives temporal life, for John testifies, "Without Him was nothing made that was made." John 1:3. St. Paul also says, "By Him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth..." Col. 1:16. Christ created all things, and therefore created life. He not only creates and gives temporal life but also gives spiritual life.

Jesus gives spiritual life in order that we may come to Him and the heavenly Father. How does He do this? He gives us the Holy Spirit Who creates faith in us. He gives us His Holy Spirit through His Holy Word. This Christ gives graciously to everyone, to you, and to me.

Therefore, this spiritual life is necessary. Everyone must be regenerated, born again in the Holy Spirit, in order to know the Truth and to enter the kingdom of God, for Christ our Master says, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." John 3:3b.

Jesus also gives eternal life to all who hear His voice and follow Him, for He says, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me; and I give unto them eternal life..." John 10:27, 28a. John the Baptist also testified, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life..." John 3:36a.

Christ, then, has the power and authority to give temporal, spiritual and eternal life, because He is the Creator of life and the LIFE itself for He claims in our text, "I am the Life."

This indeed is a great consolation for all of us. Christ wants all of us in this changing world to learn and hear of Him, the Changeless Christ; yes, the same Christ that rose from the dead on resurrection morn; the same Christ that placed the stamp of approval on His Gospel by rising from the grave and proving to the world that He is the Savior of all men from sin and destruction. Let us firmly believe in Christ our Master Who gives us the three-fold life. Let us be faithful unto death and we will receive as a gift, a crown of eternal life in the heavenly mansions of the Father. Amen.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff, Pastor First Baptist Church

SIN, REPENTANCE, AND FAITH

(The Prodigal Son) Lesson text, Luke 15:11-24. Golden text, "If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 John 1:9.

We are all more or less familiar with the story of the prodigal son. A rich man had two sons. One of them was not satisfied with the administration of his affairs by his father. There could be no question that the father gave him all he needed and no doubt more, for he had the means and seemed inclined to yield to the desires of his children. The cause for the young man's dissatisfaction is not told. But when he demanded a division of his father's property, the father consented.

The division was made. The young man came into possession as owner and administrator of a great fortune. It was new to him. (In doing such a thing most fathers make a mistake as this one did.) The first thing he wanted to do was to get away from his father where he could do as he pleased. He used his own poor judgment in the spending of his money, and it was soon gone. He had the sensual satisfaction of riotous living while it lasted, but the end soon came and the paying time with it.

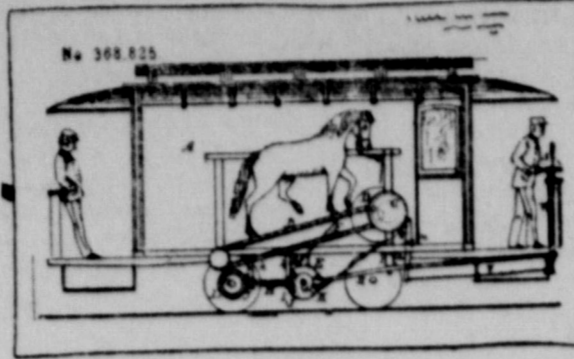

The young man suffered much before he was willing to admit his wrong. But admitting his wrong and going back to confess it to his father was another thing. But as time went on his better judgment and natural feeling for his home and father led him to make up his mind that that was the thing to do. He then went about to make the journey and finally came to his father with a deep confession. He had no demands to make now. He had wronged his father and the father was to be the judge. The natural love of the father heart welcomed the straying son back to his home with great joy. This is a picture of wandering humanity and the love of the Heavenly Father.

The revolt of the natural human heart against the authority and the righteousness of God is represented by the desire of the young man to be out from under the rule of his father. Men naturally do not want to be governed by the commands of God. The activities of the world appeal to them, and unrighteousness finds an easy asylum in their hearts; there is a revolt against God and there is not the strength within the man to throw off that spirit. Men have separated themselves from God—a great distance. Men have had both riotous living and husk eating. The pitiful thing is that no matter how much material pleasure men find in life it is as eating the husks left by the swine in comparison to the joys of God's everlasting salvation and ever present grace.

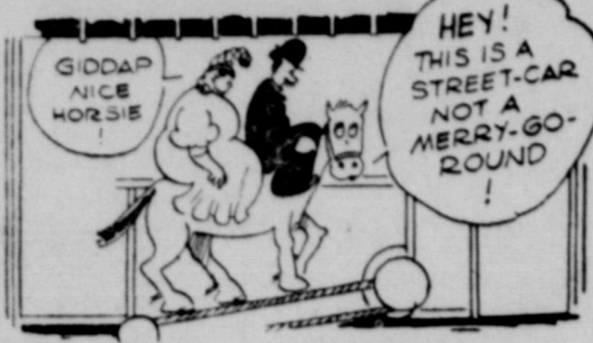

Men always realize their condition some time. Ofttimes the preaching of the Word, sorrow, difficulties, bring men face to face with their actual condition. Repentance is then in order. Dr. Dargan said, "Repentance is the action of a sinful soul in perceiving, realizing, deploring and forsaking sin." When men realize their sinful condition, repentance is the only logical thing. But it is impossible for a man of his own will and volition to completely forsake evil. He must, therefore, have faith in Christ. Repentance is far more than just making up one's mind to do better. That is reformation, provided the one in question actually does better from that time on. Reformation is a good thing. Every man ought to reform, no matter how well he is living. But reformation is merely within the man. God tells us that more is needed than that. Repentance is deeper and more far reaching and soul stirring than reformation. I cannot feel that a man has repented unless that repentance culminates in faith in Christ as Savior.

Faith is putting repentance into action—casting one's self upon the mercy of God. The young man repented of his folly and set about to return, confess his wrongs, and place himself upon the mercy of the father. He was not asking to be taken back as a son. Whatever his father did with him was satisfactory. He had faith that his father would at least treat him better than was his treatment in the strange land of sin. So is the faith of a sinner coming in repentance to God. He does not come demanding great things of God. He comes in humility, willing to trust God, his Heavenly Father, to care for him better than the world has cared for him. Here is the secret. Many would be willing to come if they could dictate to God just as to the feeling and the treatment they are to receive. Such is not faith. Faith is the trust one places in God, believing He will do well and right, with the determination to be satisfied with just what God does. So was the prodigal

The Road to Better Health

By Dr. William J. Scholes

DIET AFTER FORTY

Persons who have reached "mid-channel" will do well to give careful thought to their diet after that time in life has been reached. From then on it is simply a matter of keeping the fires burning, and not too brightly. Why the Adult Should Eat Less. It is a serious mistake for a man who has reached the age of forty, to continue eating as much as he did when he was a baby in proportion to his body weight. As a matter of fact he should eat only half as much per pound body weight as he consumed during childhood.

Not alone because he doesn't need so much fuel, but perhaps—even more so—because he should remember that his organs have been working a long time, and the less labor they are compelled to do from now on the longer they will last.

General Rules for Diet after Forty. One reason why people put on weight after forty is because of the changes in the endocrine system. The other is that this change causes the piling on of fat in an organism that has no other way of disposing of the over-supply of food.

The best general rule to observe is to take each day one small, one medium, and one fairly large meal—never, however, eating enough to give rise to a feeling of discomfort.

Foods That People over Forty Should Consider

Foods that may be taken freely: soups, toasted bread and crackers, plenty of butter, eggs, soft boiled, poached or raw with milk; most kinds of fresh fish, oysters and clams, poultry, lamb and mutton, raw vegetables (salads), celery, lettuce, cabbage (cold slaw), endive; cooked vegetables, potatoes, squash, cauliflower, beets, peas, string, beans; desserts, fruits, tapioca, sago and rice puddings, junkets; ice cream, gelatin, cheese, Camembert, Roquefort, cream, cottage; beverages, milk liberally, buttermilk, cocoa, coffee and tea (in moderation).

Foods to be taken sparingly: cereals, beef and game, freshly baked white bread, certain gas-forming vegetables such as beans, onions, and turnips; cakes and pastry generally; tea and coffee.

Foods to be avoided: salt or smoked fish, pork and fat meats generally, fried or highly seasoned foods, certain vegetables, such as tomatoes, cucumbers, asparagus, and cooked cabbage; hot biscuits and breads, rich puddings and sauces.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

Clean streets, yards and houses ought to be points of civic pride. And I'm sure all you folks want visitors in this community to speak favorably of its cleanliness.

Police the basement and attic in your home. Clean up the yards. Burn all refuse and waste paper. And add a touch of paint where it's needed. Let's make McLean known as "Spotless Town!" Let's go—everybody!

HOW TO CLEAN OIL PAINTINGS

During this time honored period of "spring cleaning" a suggestion as to cleaning oil paintings will not come amiss. To remove all specks and dust from a canvas requires care to avoid cracking.

Wet a soft cloth and wring out of tepid water. Fold the cloth and spread it over the picture, letting it remain about half an hour. Remove the wet cloth and wipe with a soft damp cloth, then with a soft dry cloth. This method always results in a clean painting.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

A soft varnish brush, with a string of wire through the handle to hang it by, is a desirable utensil in every dry pantry to be used for brushing bread, rolls and pastry with melted butter?

TO CUT FELT PATTERNS

The tiny figures and other designs of felt which are so popular applied on hats, coats, dresses, sweaters and even purses, are difficult to cut accurately from a large piece of the material unless sufficient care is taken. To do it, cut the pattern from paper and baste it with large, flat stitches to the felt. Then simply cut around it. It is really easy when you know how. Isn't it?

TOMATO SUPREME

Select six firm tomatoes; peel and remove pulp. Set in refrigerator to chill. Soften two-thirds of a tablespoon of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water; add three-quarters of a cup of hot boiled salad dressing; cool; add one-half cup of chopped celery, one-half green pepper chopped, one pimiento chopped; one cup of "chopped chicken"; salt and paprika to taste, and two teaspoons of vinegar. Put into tomato shells and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce and top with a spoonful of salad dressing.

Mrs. J. D. McLure and little daughter, Marie, accompanied by the former's mother, Mrs. Mary Fletcher, of Tulsa, Okla., visited Mrs. Joe Hindman Monday. They were enroute to California, where they will spend several weeks.

Miss Doris Hale of Lubbock spent the week end with friends here.

Electric Refrigerators

ARE BUILT FOR HOT WEATHER

It is in hot weather that you need refrigeration most. It is then that the demand for ice cubes, frozen desserts and salads is greatest, and it is then that the danger from tainted foods becomes a real problem.

Electric refrigerators have been tested under the most trying climatic conditions in the world. In summer or in winter you will find no variation in food preservation temperatures, or in the capacity to produce frozen delicacies.

Truly, electric refrigerators are built for hot weather.

HOME ECONOMICS NEWS

The girls in the first section of home economics 1 are observing children. On Friday they had a group of children to visit the home economics department. Toys and a sand pile furnished entertainment for the group. A mid-morning lunch was served to the following children: Kenneth Everett, Dorothy Humphreys, Laveta Je Gunn, Shirley Jean Walters, Imogene Peabody, Marcella Lemons and J. M. Garetson.

SENIORS ENJOY CARLSBAD TRIP

On last Friday morning 44 seniors accompanied by their sponsor, superintendent, room mothers and other adults, left McLean in eleven cars bound for Carlsbad, N. M. By five o'clock all the cars had arrived at Black River Village, the camp grounds where they stayed. The cottages were modern and well equipped. The surrounding grounds were very pretty and there was a swimming pool, which the seniors enjoyed, as well as a place for boating. The camp was 15 miles from the town of Carlsbad and 11 miles from the cavern. Food was taken and meals served picnic style.

The trip through the cavern was begun at 10:30 Saturday morning. There were eleven senior classes going through on that day, and with the exception of one from Colorado, all were from Texas. Four hundred and fifty-nine persons were in the group with the McLeantes, and 363 of them were Texans. The things the seniors saw in the cavern are indescribable. The formations were so large and so different from anything they had ever seen that it seemed like some wonderful dream.

Not all of the cars left the camp at the same time Sunday morning, so that each car arrived home at a different time. Some of the cars got on the wrong highway and drove many miles out of the way.

Every senior reports a most enjoyable time, "the best of his life." Many new experiences were enjoyed, new scenery was viewed, and to most of them this wonder of the world was entirely new. The trip will be held forever in the memories of those who went as the most wonderful thing in their lives up to date.

Three seniors, Imogene Myatt, Velma Thompson and Alma Brock, because of sickness, were unable to accompany their classmates on this trip. Besides the 44 seniors, the sponsor and superintendent who made the trip, three room mothers, Mrs. Hansen, Mrs. D. C. Carpenter, and Mrs. E. A. Massay, made the trip. Others who went were: Mesdames Butler, Carpenter, Carl Carpenter; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Thomas, Harold Hodges, and Mrs. Wilkerson, Mesdames Mc-

Laughlin and Laster of Lefors. The seniors are especially grateful to the room mothers and others who helped to plan and prepare for the trip, to the merchants for their generous donations, and to those who took cars. They realize that without the many courtesies extended to them by the people of McLean they would not have been able to go. They are thankful to all from the depths of their hearts.

SENIOR CIRCUS

Cleverly painted clowns inviting the juniors, seniors and faculty to the junior-senior circus which is to be held in the Presbyterian Church basement were distributed on Monday morning.

The piano honor roll is as follows: Georgia Coffey, Ermadel Floyd, Dorothy Sitter, Doris Rigdon, Joyce Dowell, Anabeth Gatlin, Frances Sitter, Ruth Strandberg, Doris Nell Wilson, John Kirby, George Gatlin, Martha Joyce King, May Lee Morse.

Women Folks

By Floy Wynn

"Yesterday is gone, and about tomorrow you know nothing at all," said a writer, which goes to show he never lived in the Panhandle; even proves more than that; he never once visited in the Panhandle, or else he'd know we can always tell today that tomorrow we will have a continuation of yesterday's dust storm.

Dozens of McLean women, and Boyd Meador, too, are complaining they are getting tired of cleaning house over and over again, which by the way, when we hear them grumble day in and day out about the sand in their homes, makes us really glad we don't keep house, meaning of course, that it is just an "at the moment" impression.

Meditations: Did a woman ever do anything quite so mean in her own imagination than she felt she had done the first time she dared to smoke in public? Did a woman ever feel, in her own estimation, that she appeared any tougher than she seems to feel while smoking in public? Did a woman ever imagine she was any more the center of attraction than she feels while smoking in public? Did she ever do anything that made her feel more superbly individual than she seems to feel while smoking in public? If a woman doesn't get a self-satisfaction in feeling she is a sensation while smoking, then I wonder why she waits until she gets to the edge of town to light her cigarette? Did you ever notice the striking resemblance in the expression on the face of a woman while she smokes in public, to that cold-blooded, heartless and delightfully self-satisfied look the young boy has just after he has stepped on a tiny red ant that happened to cross his path? Do you suppose the public feels like the little red ant? Although he ran like sixty to get away, he had to take it.

Just wondering, if I shall ever have a more embarrassing moment than the time we rushed off madly to church, forgetting to transfer the little change we had from the old purse to the brand new purse, and when we arrived, proud like, you know, and the preacher he would select, of all texts in the vocabulary, his text on "self sacrifice and contributions to the church." It's funny how every eye in the entire church is focused upon you at a time like that. We hope we live it all down some day.

We are planning to call a mass meeting soon, very soon, and see if there can't be some plan worked out whereby we can get the proper and just revenge on Peb Everett and Milton Banta. I'm not (very) afraid of mice, but these peep-a-boob jumpers simply get the best of me.

The Parent-Teachers have just closed a very active year, and according to Mrs. Campbell, president, this year isn't going to be a starting to what next year will be for accomplishments. Believe me, I am for her. Nothing, in my own estimation, can give a school patron more pen and more interest in their school than a good live, active parent-teacher association. I've seen it tried. McLean has the school, they have the teachers, and they have the people who will get behind the president and her officers in this matter. Let's start now booting for them.

Men hate to admit it, but when a woman, or a group of women, gets behind an organization or a group of organizations, they generally put it over. The best way on earth for a town to receive its proper and just publicity is through the women. When it comes to building a school, a town or a community, it is like a paper in the community, "if the women are pleased, then the men don't count." You watch this and see if I'm not right.

PRINTING

By A. T. Wilson

Printing is said to have been first practiced by the Chinese. It's a long way from the first letter that was whittled out of wood by a Chinese carver, dipped in the crude ink of the Chinese and pressed against the smooth surface of some other object, to the modern printing press that prints 100,000 copies of a Sunday edition of the big dailies, and there is just as much difference between the Chinese carver and the modern linotype operator. Printing has been with us a long time and I saw some figures compiled by a statistician some time ago in which he showed it to be the biggest business in America. Some other business may exceed it in dollars and cents, but not in importance. It has been said that the pen is mightier than the sword, but the printing press is mightier than big Bertha the Germans shelled Paris with, or any other big gun invented by man; in fact, the printing press is almost unlimited in its capacity to accomplish things, good or bad. Consider the way the people have changed their opinion on the liquor question. The principle was always the same, but the propaganda was different. The brewers, distillers and tobacco companies were quick to realize that the press was the most powerful agency under the sun for furthering their self-interests and sure did bear down on the propaganda plow that turned under the cover crop of temperance and abstinence. One big tobacco magnate said, "I will in time have all the women smoking," and he began to consistently advertise his wares in the newspapers, and he made the statement the other day that he had accomplished in seven years what he thought it would take fifteen years to do. There are other ways of putting out propaganda, political and otherwise, but the press has them skinned more ways than a farmer can whip a mule. The press is like a gun; you can use it to defend yourself or blow somebody's head off. There are other methods and news in general, but the press is the most universal, the most practical and the most impressive. You have seen a common newspaper admitted as prima facie evidence in court, as much as they have been accused of lying. You had better tell a lie with your mouth than tell it with a newspaper, for it won't go half as far and won't get to one-tenth as many people, nor come half as near getting you sued for libel. One of the most remarkable and outstanding characteristics of printing is its cheapness. The price of two cigarettes will bring a whole family the news of the whole world each day. Occasionally you find a man who never reads a newspaper but depends on absorbing or doing without the news, and it generally turns out to be a costly method of operation. In olden times people had no books and papers and thought the earth was flat, and when their thoughts were later put into print some few people read them and believed them but I have yet to see a man who has taken the advantage the printing press has given him that held to that belief. As powerful, as useful, as essential as the printing press is, it is well for us to sift out the errors and the mis-statements man has caused it to make and be a fair minded juror and arrive at the facts in the case. The art of printing holds the same relations to the other arts as a man does (or did) to the other members of the family, and as yet nothing can be seen on the modern horizon that will cause printing to be relegated into the background and become obsolete. Down poison gas and all the arts of war, up the art of printing and all other arts of peace and progress! Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Jordan, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Orrille and daughter, Margaret June of Perryton, visited the formers' sons, Ernest and Charles, in Dallas, last week. The Jordans also visited relatives at Hillsboro and the Orrills at Mount Pleasant. W. B. Andrews, minister of the local Church of Christ, preached at the Pampa Church of Christ at both hours Sunday. The suggestion was made recently that the ordinary citizen, who is neither on the relief roll nor on the government payroll ought to have a badge designating the honor, or, as it might prove the approbrium, of being an ordinary citizen and taxpayer. The estimate is made that the number of those who are either on the government payrolls or on government relief rolls is in excess of thirty million persons. This means one out of every four or five people in this country who are tax-supported in one manner or another.—Floyd County Hesperian. "THE only time I ever felt anything psychic was at The Hague," stated Sophie Kerr, the authoress. "Most of the time I am very matter-of-fact," she continued.

"One day while I was sight-seeing at The Hague I was guided into several buildings. My guide did not tell me where I was going or where I was until I had looked about me, and until I had been moved by the atmosphere of the different buildings.
"When I entered one building I exclaimed, 'I don't like this place. I have the sense of unspoken horrors being committed in this place.'
"There was nothing in the room to tell me where I was, but if ever I could feel the unspoken story of past events I felt it then. I was oppressed by a sense of unknown horrors. I felt the agony of horror upon horror. Radio-like waves with messages must have come to me.
"For, after a few minutes, the guide said, in a dull unemotional monotone, 'This is the Museum of Torture at The Hague. This is the empty room where condemned prisoners spent their last hour before their death. In the other parts of the building you will find a collection of all the instruments used to torture prisoners in former times.'"

Menus Are Endless
The menus in French are endless; the variety is overwhelming. The basic foodstuffs are abundant in this land. It is simply a matter of knowing how. And savoir faire applies to your French chef. He takes such a lovely worm as a snail, or such a croaking amphibian as a frog, or such a slimy snake as an eel, and delivers a plate of resistance that makes your mouth water.

Plan Carefully
When having electricity put into the home, have fixtures placed with a view to a combination of service and attractive arrangement. So often the general effect of a room is lovely, but when one desires to read or sew it is next to impossible to obtain a good light for these purposes.

THE DETECTIVE STORY
By Wynn
Public Ledger

The Secret of the Walnut Closet
MADAME DE POLVERE, member of the French nobility, was in great dread—she felt instinctively that the sword of death was hanging over her head.
In her extremity she communicated with Fouche, the French minister of police, asking that he send one of his representatives to her in order that she might give him a startling piece of information.
She laid stress on the fact that she did not want Fouche himself but one of his subordinates.
With characteristic perversity Fouche went himself—but in disguise. His own brother would not have known him any more than did the butler at the handsome ancestral mansion on the Rue des Fosse-Saint-Victor, although the famous detective had attended more than one reception there.
There were two Madame de Polveres in the house—the young woman and the dowager of the same name.
He asked for the younger one, and presently was greeted by a ravishingly beautiful woman.
After some hesitation she told the detective that she was in deadly fear of being poisoned by her mother-in-law.
She said she was the third wife of the nobleman and that the other two had died very mysteriously.
The older Madame de Polvere was fearful that the family name might become extinct.
When it became certain that the first two wives would bring no heirs to the nobleman they had languished and died.
The narrator told the minister of police that she had been married two years now, and it was improbable that she would have any children.
The mother-in-law had commented on this and thrown out ugly hints.
She had gone to the country and invited young Madame de Polvere to follow her.
She was afraid to do so and in her terror had sent for the detective.
Fouche listened to this amazing story and agreed to stay in the house and see the adventure through.
That night the countess returned home and was furious at the disobedience of her daughter-in-law.
She went to her room and gave orders that she was not to be disturbed under any circumstances.
Fouche felt that the solution of the mystery would come before morning. He managed to get a room opposite to that of the elderly one and he watched the door like a hawk.
An arrest could not be made on suspicion. He must have facts.
They came in the most unexpected and convincing manner.
The countess had the great misfortune—to herself—to be a sleepwalker.
About midnight the door of her room opened and the countess came out, clothed only in her nightdress and slippers and carrying an unlighted candle.
The police minister, who was in the hall, crouched against the side of the wall.
The woman passed without seeing him.
She walked up the staircase until she came to the third floor, which contained the servants' quarters.
Presently she reached a dingy passage which led to an unfrequented chamber.
She stealthily crossed the room, brushed aside a great tapestry, revealing a walnut panel.
She touched a secret spring and the door of a closet flew open, displaying a row of bottles containing poison.
Selecting one of these, she placed it in her nightdress and returned to her room.
The next morning she was placed under arrest and made an abject confession.
The police minister reported the case to the emperor, who declared that such a monstrous crime should not be permitted to go unpunished.
But he wished very much to save the honor of the noble house.
How could justice be done without casting lasting shame on an honored name?
"Leave it to me, sire," said the resourceful Fouche, "and I will guarantee that justice will be done."
He arrested the countess for an alleged political crime.
She was cast into prison for life.
Her husband and son pleaded for her, but when they learned the nature of her crime they broken-hearted left her to her fate.
The fate she chose for herself—she made the punishment fit the crime by taking a dose of poison and dying in great agony.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce
Although the United States Chamber of Commerce was formed at a conference called at Washington in 1912 by President Taft, it is not a government organization, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. It is, instead, a federation of local chambers of commerce, boards of trade, national trade associations and similar bodies. Its purpose is to co-ordinate and express the views of the various groups that constitute it, to supply information on economic conditions, and to serve the whole nation in much the same manner as local chambers of commerce serve their communities.

"NARROW-MINDED vs. LIBERAL"

The church people in a community are often criticised for being "narrow-minded." That, in itself is not as bad an epithet as some believe. It is all right to be "narrow-minded" if your narrowness means the elimination of the unimportant and the concentration of your entire faculties on the important.

Religion, however, cannot be expressed solely in lip-service, but must be lived, and, for this reason, any worth-while religion must be livable. For that reason the world has long since abandoned the conception of a religious man or woman as one who goes through life with a long face and spreads gloom and restrictions wherever possible.

Christianity, as expressed by the Great Teacher, did not include set rules so much as a rule of individual conduct. This being the truth, many have taken advantage of it and have tried to make any restriction of license un-Christian. This is just as foolish as intolerance or bigotry. It is, perhaps, more common in our land today, and, more dangerous, because it works under the mistaken assumption of liberality and tolerance.

No community can afford to let the so-called "liberal" element run wild. If it did the decent people would soon have to hold their noses or evacuate their homes. You will always find a minority of any group ready and willing to throw away all pretense of righteousness. They will raise a stench that will make living intolerable for many of better minds and morals.

A golf ball caused Malcom Bernarde to lose a couple of teeth while playing on a Florida course, although the ball never touched his person. While standing near a green another player's hard-driven ball struck his pipe, driving it back into his mouth and breaking his teeth.

Woman Customer—"Please give me half a dozen cigars for my husband. I want them for a birthday present."

Clerk—"Yes, madam. How would you like them—strong?"

Woman—"Oh, yes, very. The last ones I gave him broke to pieces in his pocket."

OUR FARMS INCREASE

Preliminary returns from the farm census indicate a marked increase in the number of farms, attributable, according to officials, to the number of persons who went back to the country when city jobs vanished.

In 1930 we had 6,300,000 farms, and the new count will show about 500,000 more. The farms, it is true, are smaller and the population larger. Whether the acreage in cultivation has increased cannot be determined until the census is completed.

The chances are that many of the new farms are subsistence projects, undertaken by persons who have been forced to go back to the primary source of life when other pursuits failed them.
