Young Demos. Organize Club for McLean

By M. C. Davis

At a meeting last Friday night at the city secretary's office, called by Precinct Chairman J. E. Lynch, a Young Democrat Club was organized for McLean.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Lynch and the plans and purposes of the club were discussed, together with the need of such an organization for this city. John Ketter, president of the Young Democrat Club of Pampa, made a talk telling of the organization of the club in his city, and stressing the fact that the main purpose of such an organization was to educate the members to vote intelligently. Mr. Ketter said that even though the club does not endorse special candidates, and that in the event a member of any club chose to run for office he would immediately become an inactive member; that there is a need for the education of young Democrats in voting.

Mr. Ketter's talk was followed by a talk from Mr. Webb, also a member of the Pampa club, urging the attendance of young Democrats at the State convention to be held in Amarillo in June.

Mr. Dial of Pampa made a short talk on just why he became a member of such an organization and discussed further the benefits to be derived from the same.

Thurman Adkins, eminent attorney of McLean, responded with a talk on his interpretation of the need of such a club. A. B. Bingham, Boyce Meador, W. W. Boyd and C. O. Greene also made short talks endorsing the movement.

At the special request of the precinct chairman, Homer Abbott responded with the "battle cry" of the Democratic party, and there was no question in the minds of those present that he was a true Democrat and had been associated with the long-earred specie of mammal, representative of the Democratic party, for many years.

After the above ear splitting rendition of oratory, it was unanimously decided to organize a Young Democrat Club in McLean. Thurman "Windjammer" Adkins was elected president; E. L. Turner, vice president; C. O. Greene, secretary-treasurer; and Messrs. Bingham, Batson, Meador, Wilson, Bogan, Allison and Abbott were elected directors.

It is planned to increase the membership of the club as soon as possible. Any male citizen between the ages of 21 and 40 is eligible for active membership. Those over the above limit may become honorary members.

Much merriment was had at the expense of the Honorable Lord Mayor and a few of the old guard of the city who were present. In fact, things got so warm it created a fire in a neighboring building and the fire alarm almost broke up the meeting.

Other members of the Pampa club attending were: Cecil Williams, Dub Williams and Bill Barnett.

Future meetings will be announced at a later date.

One Dead, Ten Injured Sunday Car Accidents

Two car wrecks Sunday night caused the death of one and injuries to ten people on highway 66 near McLean.

Lee Harlan was killed when the car in which he and Perry Everett were riding hit a California car occupied by Mrs. Ida Sigmon and son of Hollywood, in a head-on collision at the curve just east of the city limits.

Mrs. Sigmon had both legs amputated as a result of injuries, and Everett is in a Shamrock hospital, critically injured. Carl Sigmon was only slightly injured. Both cars were wrecked.

The Zane Smith family were seriously injured earlier in the evening when a car driven by Mrs. Fay Barnett struck their car just west of town.

Smith drove completely off the pavement on his side of the road, in his efforts to escape being hit, but the other car struck and completely demolished the Smith car, injuring all but one of the six members of the family.

Mrs. Barnett was driving Earl Stubblefield's car. Mr. Stubblefield had left his engine running as he stepped into a store on Main Street, Mrs. Barnett getting in the car and driving off.

Mrs. Barnett was carried to a Pampa hospital and placed under arrest for drunkenness and car theft.

The Smith family were given first aid treatment by local doctors and rushed to an Amarillo hospital in McLean and Shamrock ambulances.

Mr. Smith suffered serious head injuries and possible chest and back injuries; Mrs. Smith bruises and wrenched back. Moisture conditions now look favorable for a good crop year. It has been said many times that when it just has to rain we may expect it here; however, this year will have to see more rains during the growing season, as there is no bottom season whatever.

The NRA has made an effort to stop chiseling, and from a look at the court cases filed, it is making some headway, but as long as there are those who think little of principles and selfishly try to hog whatever they see, without regard to consequences, just so long will we have chiseling.

GIRLS GOT THE CREDIT

Neatness still seems to be one of the requisites of the American public school curriculum. Samples of just how neat the pupils are today are displayed at the close of the year on posters which the public is invited to inspect. In fact, this is a poster age. Chambers of commerce and other organizations over the country offer prizes to the schools having the best posters. Thirty-five or forty years ago penmanship was the one course of study used to demonstrate whether or not the pupil possessed that quality of neatness necessary for approval. Those were the days when sulphur and molasses was the chief spring tonic at home, but a more bitter pill was the everlasting penmanship drill at school. Sample papers in those days took the place of the present day posters. Each pupil had to turn in as near a perfect specimen of his penmanship as was possible, done on large foolscap size paper. The subject matter of these papers dealt with topics in geography, history, grammar and other studies. The process of getting these papers written, in pen and ink, was much more difficult than it would be today. There was one thing that interfered greatly with the boys of the class having papers that compared with the girls. That was what the boys termed "pig-tails." The girls wore long braids of hair with large ribbons tied in big bows at the ends of the braids. About the time a boy got a sample paper nearly completed, Sally, Mary, or whoever sat in front of him, would whip her braid across the freshly written paper, causing it to be smeared. A feud between the male and female members of the class was narrowly averted each spring. The saying, "In the sprintime a man's fancy, etc.," was not considered—Canadian Record.

Teacher (sternly)—"Elmer, who was it that threw that paper-wad while my back was turned? Do you know?"
 Elmer (the one who did it)—"Yes, ma'am, I know who it was. But I don't like to tell."
 Teacher—"That is very honorable of you, Elmer. Come to my desk when school is over and I will give you this nice red apple."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter, Wilma Jean, of Pampa visited relatives near McLean Friday.

OUTLOOK
 By A. T. Wilson

You will find more conflicting opinion in regard to the political, financial, moral and spiritual outlook than Carter had oats. Most of these opinions can be classified as optimistic or pessimistic, but a few people have no opinion or ambition and are not much concerned in the human race but just expect to live and die and be a long time dead, and probably these people would be better off if there was no resurrection. When a person is seriously ill and his life hangs by a thread, and a doctor is consulted those concerned have an anxious look on their faces when the doctor expresses his opinion of the patient's chance to fully recover. Now the United States and the world in general has been sick since the world war. It looked like recovery was in twenty-eight and twenty-nine but the U. S. had a serious relapse in thirty and seems slow to improve in spite of the most powerfully stimulating medicines administered in double doses. It looks like when this medicine fails to work we just increase the dosage and we are going to kill or cure.

Prominent and important men who are concerned in this matter don't agree as to the proper remedies, nor as to the results to the remedies that are being applied at present. Some folks seem to think that we are making a mistake in using a new doctor with his new and revolutionary remedies and that we should have depended on the constitution of the patient to eventually wear out the disease instead of trying to bring it to an abrupt end. Among these you will find Roger Babson, Alfalfa Bill Murray and Billy Sunday, who paint a picture as black as that Sunday night sandstorm. These men say that the best way to judge the future is by the past, and that in sacred and profane history where people have acted like we have lately, that we are making great strides toward the "Slough of Despond" and we should weigh their words as a jury sitting in a case wherein the public is charged with the violation of the true and tried conservative laws of common sense and reason.

On the other hand there is the President with his bland smile and his supporters that say that these other boys are just old sticks in the mud and that we are bound to try out some new and revolutionary methods of running the government, and that we want the honor of putting these policies over if they will work.

Politicians, lawyers, doctors, preachers and philosophers may contend and argue until they are black and blue in the face but the man that can advocate and preach a doctrine or code of action and then practice it consistently and demonstrate that his course of action is practicable, workable and can be carried to a successful conclusion, and then on top of that he can persuade the citizens of a democracy like ours to adopt, stand back of and defend that course of action, he is the Moses that can lead us out of the wilderness of the present predicament. The person who has no political, religious, racial or national prejudice is the only person who has the only true and proper outlook or philosophy of life, but is there any such animal?

SAYINGS

To scouts and scouters: Manly boys, boys of gentle minds and simple hearts, brave boys, fair boys, boys who say to the weak, May I? and to the strong, I will—boys to whom sham is dishonor and truth the guiding star, boys who look upon the sea, the plain the forest, the mountain, the rising and the setting sun, and the immutable heavens, with a deep sense of their own littleness in the great scheme of things.

Friday and the Number 13

Columbus sailed on Friday and discovered land on another Friday. The Declaration of Independence was introduced on Friday. Cornwallis surrendered on Friday. There were 13 colonies at the time of the revolution. There are 13 letters in the word revolutionary. The American flag has 13 stripes. There are 13 letters in Geo. Washington, the way the revolutionary commander customarily signed his name. The fathers of our country picked "E Pluribus Unum," our national motto, which has 13 letters. The foundation of the White House was laid on Oct. 13, 1792, and the Northwest Territory was organized on July 13, 1787.

President Woodrow Wilson, under whom the United States was victorious in its greatest war, had 13 letters in his name. Gen. John J. Pershing, commander in chief of the allied war-time forces, was born on Friday the 13th, and there are 13 letters in his name. And the great American victory of St. Mihiel was won on Friday the 13th.

Nature

The U. S. forest service has been investigating to find out what kinds of trees are most frequently struck by lightning. Pine, oak, spruce and fir, it reports, are most likely to be hit. In a study of 76,000 trees struck in the west, it was found that seventy-two per cent of all that were struck were western yellow pine and douglas fir. High isolated trees are especially attractive to lightning bolts, the experimenters believe. And smooth bark trees offer less chance of being struck than those with thick furrowed bark. These facts are important to Uncle Sam's foresters in preventing fire hazards, for lightning causes nearly 2500 forest fires in the United States every year.

B. ACIDOPHILUS

When Metchnikoff published his theory of the relationship between intestinal putrefaction and premature senility, in 1907, it created widespread interest. It led many to look deeply into the relationship between the chemical nature of the food ingested and the character of the countless millions of bacteria in the digestive tube.

The Intestinal Flora

The wall of the intestine is covered with a growth of vegetation that looks in miniature like the floor of the ocean through the glass-bottomed boats at Catalina. This flowering growth is made of unnamed myriads of germs some of which are pathogenic (disease-producing) but the majority of which are putrefactive only.

It is now generally known that an excess of animal matter in the diet encourages the growth of these putrefactive bacteria, whereas, a minimum of such foods together with a large amount of starchy foods will lead to a suppression of these bacteria and an overgrowth of a fermentative type of bacilli.

Of the starchy foods, two carbohydrates in particular—lactose and dextrin—are most potent in this conversion of a putrefactive into a purely fermentative condition. In other words, they bring about a "simplication of the intestinal flora" by destroying the putrefactive bacteria and substituting therefor one single bacterial form, the Bacillus Acidophilus. Under suitable dietetic conditions the B. Acidophilus finally dominates the bacterial population of the intestine and suppresses practically all other species.

Nature of B. Acidophilus

The name Acidophilus signifies that this bacillus is "acid-loving," that is to say, can exist in an acid medium better than in alkaline surroundings. It is widely distributed through nature and is undoubtedly ingested in large numbers in raw foods, especially milk. It is probably present almost universally in the human intestine.

The change in the intestinal flora by the growth of B. Acidophilus prevents toxins from accumulating, lactic acid (the normal stimulant of the intestine) is produced, and the normal intestinal rhythm restored.

Accordingly, such a change in the intestinal flora is indicated in constipation and diarrhea from intestinal stasis, in gastro-enteritis, colitis, sprue, intestinal putrefaction or auto-intoxication, and in the summer diarrhea and other intestinal infections of infants and children.

Household Hints

By Betty Webster

Not long ago I learned a delightfully easy and infallible way of making slip covers for furniture and am anxious to tell you about it. First, cut a strip of slip cover material wide enough to hang over the chair several inches at either side and long enough to reach from the floor in front to the floor behind, with four inches tucked away in the crease at the back of the seat. Pin firmly to prevent slipping.

Then, pin in plaits for an ample seam at front of seat and two seams at the top of the back. Be careful to get these exact so that the cover will neither pull nor sag. Where the material extends beyond the width of the chair at the top of the chair back, slit the plaits to chair width and pin the side pieces which will extend just below the chair arms.

Next, slit the material to fit over and around the arm where the arm joins the back and the seat. Run the scissors along the inside join of arm and seat, leaving two and one-half inches for tuck-in. Slit the plait at the front of the seat to chair width on either side.

And Then—

Next, pin pieces for the inside and top of each arm. Be sure to allow two and a half inches for tuck-in on each side piece. Then, pin in the large side pieces and trim off surplus material.

The next step is to pin in pieces for the front of each arm, being sure to carry the piece to the base of the arm. If the arm extends below the top of the seat, a small piece will have to be pinned on to return to the seat of the chair.

The final step in the making of a slip cover is the taping. The seams down the inside of the arm and along the join of the arm and the seat are not taped but sewed on the inside.

Tape the other seams in this order: Across the corners of the back, the front of the arms, the seat front, around the face of the back, along inside edges of arms, from back along outside edges of arms and down to the bottom of the cover. Clear around the back and around the bottom. It is best to use a material that has been shrunk. If it hasn't half an inch must be allowed in the seams for lengthwise shrinkage and a quarter of an inch for crosswise shrinkage.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

2. If, when making coffee, you run short of milk, you will find that a tasty substitute is to beat up an egg and put a little in each cup with a little milk?

PRIVATE CONFESSION

At preparatory services before the celebration of Holy Communion there is a general confession of all sins before God. A typical general confession reads: "O almighty God, merciful Father, I, a poor miserable sinner, confess unto Thee all my sins and iniquities with which I have offended Thee and justly deserved Thy temporal and eternal punishment."

"But I am heartily sorry for them, and sincerely repent of them, and I pray Thee, of Thy boundless mercy and for the sake of the holy, innocent and blameless sufferings and death of Thy beloved Son, Jesus Christ, to be gracious and merciful to me, a poor sinful being. Amen."

Besides a general confession there is also a private confession practiced among some Christians. Private confession is going to the pastor and telling him our sins in private, for the purpose of receiving private absolution.

Private confession is practiced in a certain Christian church under compulsion. All are forced to go to private confession before they receive absolution of their sins. Let us remember that private confession is not commanded by God. Therefore, no one should be forced to private confession.

However, private confession is not forbidden by God. It is a very good practice. In the Holy Bible we have an example of a private confession. In the second book of Samuel (12:13) we read: "And David said unto Nathan I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said unto David, The Lord also hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die."

David had sinned terribly against the Lord and against his fellowmen. He privately confessed to Nathan, his confessor. Nathan absolved David from his sins. As a result, David's conscience was relieved, knowing that God forgave him his sins.

There is, indeed, a great benefit in private confession. A Christian obtains the comfort that to him individually absolution is pronounced. In private confession a Christian may ask remission of such sins as worry his conscience especially.

We should, in private confession, receive absolution from the pastor, as from God Himself, and in no wise doubt, but firmly believe that by such absolution our sins are forgiven before God in heaven. We should firmly believe this because the pastor deals with us by Christ's divine command.

Private confession has helped many Christians. It is not commanded by God, but it is a good practice nevertheless because God does not forbid it. The example in our text should induce us to take advantage of this private, soul comforting practice.

S. S. LESSON

By Rev. Cecil G. Goff
Pastor First Baptist Church

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Lesson text, Acts 2:41-45; Ephesians 4:1-6.

Golden text, "So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another." Romans 12:5.

The Sunday school lesson this week deals with the church. Jesus, during His lifetime on earth following Peter's great confession of faith, stated that He was establishing His church. It seems to me that that establishment was upon faith—and indeed it has been faith that has brought the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ down to us through the centuries of trial, persecution and struggle. One thing among the many that we must recognize is that this early church of which we are told in Acts was indeed the handiwork of Jesus. And so, every church that is following the teachings and principles of the Master as laid down in the New Testament may recognize itself.

It is well that we consider the functioning of that first church and find in it exemplary activities for our modern organizations. First, there was a strenuous effort put forth for the winning of souls. There were great numbers won following the matchless sermon of Peter, and many others continued to be won daily and baptized into the fellowship of the church. This matter of winning seems to have been the uppermost thing in the hearts of these early followers of Jesus. Second, their fellowship was unrestrained. They continued, or daily lived, in the teachings of those who had been taught by Jesus and whom God was inspiring. They maintained a close fellowship one for the other in this manner and by observing the Lord's Supper (this they did at least once a day in the beginning) and in prayer. If Christians would conscientiously practice these things regularly and unselfishly, there would be no lack of fellowship. Third, they gave their possessions as they were needed as service to the Lord. There were many of their number who were poverty stricken beyond our possible conception. Therefore the members of that first group divided what they had, so there would be no want. There was nothing they withheld from God that was needed by that group which the New Testament terms as the Body of Christ. This church in Jerusalem was the only one, according to N. T. records, that practiced this type of communion. Certainly the spirit of it is always needed, whether the spiritual side of it is or not.

The lesson text then turns to God's message to the church at Ephesus. Note that in the New Testament the churches are called by the name of the towns in which they were located, or in some instances are designated by the name of the person in whose house the meeting is held, as in Col. 4:15. It was not until several years after the death of Christ that His followers were first called Christians in Antioch (Acts 11:26) and then as a title of honor. The message Paul is urging upon the Ephesian church members is one of consecrated fellowship and service. Paul was a prisoner when he wrote and pled with the people through his bonds for them to walk worthy of the calling of God. Their lives were to be spent in lowliness, meekness, long suffering and forbearance because of love. How the lives of so many of our church members need to be filled with these principles today. This will maintain the unity of the spirit and bond of peace. This is necessary, for we are bound up in one body (that of Christ) the same Spirit, hope, calling, faith, Lord, baptism, God and Father. But even though this fact is true, each has received grace from God according to his relationship with Christ.

God has given to each of us a task to perform. It is the duty of each to find and perform that task. It will not be difficult for us to find it if we will surrender ourselves in prayer life toward God. But every man may rest assured that the task he has to perform is one of healing, peace-making and building up the kingdom of God. If such is not the task we are performing, we may know that we have not heard the voice of God and have been misled by the temptations of Satan. This is true because Christ is the "head" over all. He would not have us tossed to and fro by every idea, and conception and way of thinking and doing that enter the heads of men, but he has for each one of His followers a task wherein he may glorify God.

Let us look at verse 16, "From whom (Christ, the head) the whole body (the body of Christ—any New Testament church following the principles of the N. T.) fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint supplieth (how compact and complete would be the work of a N. T. church if every member was in his place doing the thing God would have him to do each day—it would cement the fellowship and cooperation of the church into continual and everlasting service) according to the effectual working in the measure of every part (just one member falling mars the real effective value) maketh increase of the body (enlarging the body of Christ) unto the edifying of itself in love." ("And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.")

OUR ALUMNI CLASS OF '34

The wedding march has spelled "finis" to Sherman Crockett, Avalee Back (pleased to meet you, Mr. and Mrs. Crockett), Oleta Holloway, and Della Williams.

C. C. Bogan, Christal Christian and C. W. Bogan are helping Dean Boswell run McMurry College this year. We hope you have good luck, boys.

Brue Graham has been learning to say "Yes, sir," to officials at New Mexico Military Academy at Roswell.

Bathus Woodward is living in Little Rock, Ark.

J. C. Breeding, John Mertel and Sim Rhodes are assisting their respective fathers.

David Flowers is selling gasoline or "what-will-you-have" at the Gulf Service Station.

Emma Jean Ayer is owner and operator of Jean's Beauty Shop.

Dorothy Jean St. Clair is attending Amarillo Junior College, besides using her musical talent to advantage.

Charles Ashby is attending Texas Tech. How does it feel to be a freshman once more, Charles?

Erma Koen has turned politician. She now tells Supt. C. A. Cryer how to save money for his little daughter's education.

Robert Brewer, Harold Hodges and Arthur Lee Howard are wearing out pavement this year. Save a little for the seniors of '35. They may need it.

Artie Marie Robinson, Leona Wood, Lorene Turman and Mildred Finley are ladies of leisure, shall we say? Probably taking a short vacation and waiting for "something to turn up."

Carl Boyle resides in Shamrock, but the government really collects road tax from him. He keeps the pavement hot between Shamrock and McLean; the latter is his "old home town."

Elton O'Neal is attending Sam Houston State Teachers College at Huntsville. Some day we shall say, "Yes, sir, Prof. O'Neal."

The eternal freshman (Buell Ellison) has at last found his niche at Hardin-Simmons.

HOME ECONOMICS REPORT

The first year home economics girls have been making toys out of discarded boxes, spools of thread, wire, and pieces of wood given to them at the lumber yards. These toys have been made for children, without any expense to their budget.

The second year girls gave a sales demonstration Thursday morning in class. Geraldine Bowen was the clerk and Pauline McMullen and Lena Williams the customers.

PICNICS AND EXAMINATIONS

The final examinations will be given Wednesday and Thursday of next week. They will be finished by Thursday noon. Then all classes will go on picnics for the half day. Cards will be distributed on Friday morning.

SENIORS

It won't be long until the seniors will be alumni. They are getting invitations and cards this week. Spring fever has already seized many senior victims. When that bright sunshine streams into the room, a far-away expression settles on many faces, and the voice of the teacher becomes just a soothing drone. The seniors have recovered sufficiently from the Carlsbad trip to be interested in the senior picnic.

Members of ring three of the McLean high school circus were hosts to members of ring four, who are shortly to retire from this circus, and the "animal trainers," when they met under the "big top" which was pitched for the climatic performance of the year in the basement of the Presbyterian church on the evening of May 7. When the assembled group filed under the flap of the tent, gala colors of the circus were flaunted in the decorations. The tent was made of vari-colored crepe paper. Colored balloons were arranged in festoons over lights in the four corners of the tent and at other points. Tables were arranged in rings with the center left for the evening performers. The floor was covered with the proverbial sawdust, and the wooden rings in the center, together with the trapeze net made a true to life picture.

More atmosphere of a real circus became evident in a very short time, because each person donned the clown that he found at his plate and began to make noise with the horn that was beside it. Booklets with clown faces contained the program and menu and spaces for autographs of friends. White napkins with clown decorations, which were donated by Mrs. T. A. Landers, were very attractively arranged.

After the invocation was said by Rev. Cecil G. Goff, Marie Landers and James Emmett Cooke opened the circus performance with a clever song, "Sallie and Si at the Circus." The remainder of the program was interesting and well given in the following order: Welcome, Gwynne Carpenter; "Eleven Years of Training," class history, Alton Howard; "The Animal Trainers," charge from the faculty, Supt. Cryer; "I Love a Parade" and "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," songs by girls from ring three: Marie Landers, Mavis Brewer, Eva and Ava Swafford, Winnifred Ayer and Pauline McMullen; "After the Show," class prophecy Juanita Brooks; "At the Dime Museum," reading, Maxine Downer; "Last Will of the Performers," Charlie Marie Back; trombone trios by members of ring four; Neil Jackson, Donald Butler and James Massay; presentation of the key of work from Ringmaster Woods of ring four to the in-coming Ringmaster Christian, of ring three.

The clowns from ring two very capably served the following menu: tomato juice cocktail, baked chicken, dressing, gravy, mashed potato nets filled with buttered peas, jello salad, celery, pickles, rolls, ice cream, cake and red lemonade. The food was donated by the junior parents and planned and prepared by the "general flunkies" from ring three: Messdames Cooke, Christian, Carpenter, Finley, Andrews, Brewer and Landers. Clowns serving were: Marietta Young, Enia Faye Foster, Opal Goodwin, Flora Dunson, Mildred Binlon, Lois Bowen, Elizabeth Combest, Valeria Mae Stout, Katherine Belew, Mary Alice Patterson, Bobbie Lynch and Helen Price. Miss Aline McCarty, junior class sponsor, was chairman of the banquet committee, and made plans for the evening. John Harding was in charge of decorations. Miss Marie Landers, secretary of the student body, was toastmistress and she very gracefully executed her duties. Formality was banished and a spirit of fun and frolic ruled the evening and helped everyone to enjoy the final performance of the McLean high school circus for 1935.

By FAY BAINTER Actress

"A COUPLE of months before my son was born my mother died. Mother and I had been very dear to each other; we had lived together as great friends; I was terribly hurt by her death. I became resentful of life, doubtful of a God.

"One night my husband and I opened the French doors to our bedroom and retired early. I could not sleep for fretting and tormenting thoughts of my mother's death, the reason for it, the loneliness of it.

"Suddenly I heard a strange rattling sound. My husband, after I awakened him, heard nothing. He was more than kind; he said I only imagined the sound; that I was nervous due to my condition. I wanted to demonstrate, for I am a steady person not given to weeping or to weakness.

"As soon as he fell asleep I heard the sound again. This time it was a rattling sound, as if some one were shaking the ceiling.

"When my husband responded this time to my alarm he arose and searched the room. He lighted the heavy marble lamp, which, together with various boxes and books, stood upon the night table between our beds. No sign of anything or anyone strange could be found.

"I promised not to disturb him again. All became quiet once more. But only for a moment.

"The night table between our beds, heavily laden, arose from its position and crashed to the floor breaking the lamp and boxes. It was as if some one had lifted it and smashed it upon the floor. The crash was terrific.

"This time my husband did not refute me. He verified everything I heard and saw. He jumped to his feet and turned on the lights. Whatever had caused the crash had vanished.

"I have never been able to interpret the meaning or the mystery of this occurrence."
