Donors Asked to Donate Hall to Free Library

Mrs. A. B. Christian presented Miss Katherine Patterson, who outlined plans for the stocking and operation of the library, which would include a reading room and children's story hour. It was suggested that the building body be composed of one member from each of the four cooperating churches and one from the church club.

It was voted to hold the annual installation of officers at Lake McLean, Tuesday evening, July 9, with a ladies' night.

Twelve entrants for the soap box party were reported and additional entrants requested.

CANDIDATE

DESKINS WELLS
Candidate for Congress

WELLS FOR CONGRESS

Offering himself as a candidate who can and will serve the entire Panhandle, Deskins Wells opened his speaking campaign in Wellington Friday night, June 14.

Addressing the men and women of his home county, many of whom have known him for the entire 38 years of his life, Deck Wells laid down the platform on which he is seeking to represent the 18th Congressional District.

"When a man asks to serve you as your congressman, you have a right to ask what he thinks the duties are," Deck Wells told his listeners early in his speech. "How does he propose to do this work? What course will he follow? I tell you that I will be a representative for the entire district and for the welfare of every person in it. My aim is to preserve our democratic form of government at all costs."

Continuing, Deck Wells outlined the ten points in his platform:

1. An immediate defense program to enable the United States to adequately resist any and all potential threats of invasions of the Americas. In addition to fulfilling all modern mechanized needs of air force, the army and the navy, the defense program must be supported by sound and prosperous conditions of American agriculture labor and industry.

2. Strict enforcement of immigration laws, curtailment of immigration quotas, and rigid check on activities of all aliens by the United States Department of Justice. There is no place in the United States for any 5th column activities.

3. Recognition that international affairs might necessitate the United States furnishing planes and armaments to foreign powers; but opposed to sending American soldiers to fight on the lands of Europe.

4. Curtailment of the government farm and ranch programs to the end that soil resources be conserved; and the American farmer and rancher be assured of their rightful share of the national income.

5. Opposed to federal control of the Texas oil and gas industry.

6. Continuation of the OCC, WPA and PWA programs, with their future work related where possible to the immediate needs of the emergency defense program. Wages and rates of pay in Texas should be equal to those paid in other states.

7. Continuation of the Federal Security Program with government payments to the groups designated in the Social Security Act.

8. Continuation of the recognition of the right to collective bargaining.

9. Represent the entire 18th Congressional District including every person, every county, and every town and city in this district.

10. Dedicate my efforts and my life to the preservation of Democracy which has made us the freest, happiest, richest and most tolerant people on the face of the earth.

"With the richest nation on earth, the highest standard of living, vast capacity in industry and agriculture, over 70% of the world's gold stored in our land, it would be folly for us to relax our vigilance one second. Every other nation looks at us with envious and greedy eyes. We should defend what is our own," Deck Wells warned.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Reeves and daughter of Alanreed were in McLean Thursday.

Miss Billie Marie Stewart visited relatives at Memphis last week.

"Headquarters announced contributions to the nation-wide Red Cross war relief drive have reached a total of $12,178,262. The announced minimum goal is $20,000,000," said Mr. Cousins. "We appreciate those who have cooperated in helping the McLean chapter raise funds and make garments, and we hope to reach the quota set for us soon."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Farnham F. Dudgeon

Full Strength of German Army Hits New French Defense Line; First Nazi Bombs Fall on Paris

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

In Madrid, Spanish students, no doubt prompted by Rome and Berlin, recently staged demonstrations urging return of Gibraltar, world's greatest fortress, from English control to Spain.

MORE WAR: Big Push

With the same deadly technique that has humbled Poland, Scandinavia, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and Belgium, Adolf Hitler turned from his "triumph" in Flanders to launch a mighty drive through central France—aimed directly at that nation's capital, Paris.

As usual this technique included the thousands of well-equipped troops, supported by the now-famous and highly armored dive bombers, strongly armored tanks and the mightiest of heavy artillery.

Full strength of the drive struck at the heart of the French line which stretches across 200 miles of French soil along the Somme and Aisne rivers. This line of troops, under the command of Gen. Maxime Weygand, was hastily bolstered while the Nazis were busy with their attack on the British and French forces escaping from the Flanders battlefield via Dunkirk and the English channel.

But if the allied line of battle had been bolstered it was done with French soldiers and not British Tommies. For from London came word that for the time being France would be forced to bear the brunt of the German attack as the English in escaping the Nazi trap in Flanders, following Belgium's capitulation, had been forced to leave behind huge stores of equipment. Until these could be replaced the British army could do little to help their allies on the continent.

Wings Over Paris

Not only were the German bombers doing their work on the battlefield—they penetrated much further than the troops. For the long expected bombing attack on Paris was carried out.

Evidently the first air raid was not aimed at the city itself but at airports and other military objectives on its outskirts. Even French officials admitted that it did not look like the "bombing of an open city" and while they promised to repay Germany, bomb for bomb, their attacks would also be directed at strategic military points, they added.

In this first raid about 1,000 persons were killed, at least that many

NAMES in the news

President Roosevelt became a grandfather again as a boy was born to Mrs. Anne (Clark) Roosevelt, wife of John, his youngest son.

Movie Executive Joseph Schenck was indicted in New York by a federal grand jury on 24 counts of income tax fraud. A $400,000 tax evasion is involved, according to the government's charge.

Acting president of Smith college and mother-in-law of Charles A. Lindbergh, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow has urged immediate aid to the allies, asking that we send them "everything that could help them in their struggle against Germany."

Ambassador William C. Bullitt cabled the secretary of state, Cordell Hull, a dramatic account of his escape from a Nazi bomb during a raid on Paris. Heavy bombs fell on all sides of the building in which he was attending a luncheon and one "dud" that did not explode struck within a few feet of him, he said.

more injured and immense property damages inflicted. The French retaliated with bombings of a Munich motor factory and military bases near Frankfurt-on-Main.

PREPAREDNESS: 'Tragically Short'

As the nation-wide drive to build up military defenses went forward with every governmental agency straining to the utmost to be helpful, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, told congress that manpower is the army's "tragic shortage." And he added it is the "only thing in a large measure, that can produce immediate results."

Earlier he had said that procurement of equipment was the most vital need, but when his testimony before a house appropriations subcommittee was made public it was learned that he believed the army's maximum peacetime strength of 280,000 men would be unable to handle "emergencies stemming from the current international situation."

While he opposed suggestions that citizens military training camps be expanded to meet army personnel demands, he favored a plan, now authorized but never used, whereby young men could be trained for three or four months and then be allowed to go back to their regular occupations. Thus a huge reserve of partly trained men would eventually be built up.

Compulsory?

From some congressional sources came the prediction that if Germany wins the European war, such military training will become compulsory. Setting up a training system of this type has been widely discussed since the President's recent proposal to give him control of the National Guard and Organized Reserves was announced.

It is argued that under such a plan a defense system would prove less costly than attempting to build up a large army of permanent troops. Rep. Smith (Dem., Conn.) claims that half of the 1,500,000 youths who reach military age each year could be trained and would provide an adequate standing army during their terms of training. Under such a system these men would receive much less pay than regular soldiers.

C. O. D.

How all this (and the rest of the defense program) was to be paid for is proving a tough problem for congress.

For as it now stands the new preparedness drive is going to cost U. S. taxpayers some five billions of dollars. And as the cost of maintaining these new forces increases it is estimated that the annual bill for new defenses will be something like $1,000,000,000.

Most discussed plan for providing a major portion of this sum is one which calls for a broadening of the income tax base to include all incomes of $800 and up per year. At present the base exemption is $1,000.

AGRICULTURE:

Prospects

June cash income for U. S. farmers is estimated to remain at about the same figure for the month as in the past two years—$600,000,000—according to current reports of the department of agriculture.

While prices of several important farm commodities have hit the skids and declined sharply in recent weeks, due to influence of war on the markets, no startling losses will be evidenced currently in the farmer's income.

Running Mate?

Prime favorite in the current vice presidential nomination stakes for President Roosevelt's running mate (should he "choose to run") is Sen. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina. It is understood that the President made definite overtures to the senator to become his partner on the ticket during a conference on a recent Potomac cruise.

STARS AND STRIPES:

Salute

If state laws so require, U. S. school children must salute the American flag, according to a decision handed down by the Supreme court. Reasoning: The flag symbolizes a national unity—which transcends all internal differences—religious or otherwise. In its ruling the court upheld action of a Pennsylvania school board which had expelled two children for refusing, on religious grounds, to salute the flag.

In the little coal mining town of Moweaqua, Ill., four men, said to be members of a religious sect known as "Jehovah's Witnesses," were rescued from a group of aroused citizens who threatened violence after one of the four allegedly defamed "Old Glory."

In Waxahachie, Texas, 90 members of a religious sect were jailed after attempting distribution of literature described as "a pacifist nature." Officials were forced into action after a deluge of phone calls objecting to the literature which urged nonallegiance to "man-made" government.

PAN-AMERICA:

Mr. Dies Goes South

Rep. Martin Dies, chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, announced that his probe will be extended to take in all of the 21 American republics. This news reflects congressional concern over reports reaching Washington that German fifth columnists are active in South America. Mr. Dies said that his investigators are already gathering information along the Mexican border.

Closest co-operation with other Western hemisphere nations is being sought, he added.

Indelible

Voters of the Republic of Panama turned out in record numbers to elect Dr. Arnulfo Arias as their next president. This election had taken on particular significance because of reports that the government had nipped an abortive scheme to disrupt the election and turn the day into an occasion for a revolution. In addition, the other presidential candidate, one Dr. Ricardo Alfaro, leader of the oppositionist popular front, withdrew his name at the last moment and urged his backers not to vote as they were being "denied the right of franchise." Just what he meant wasn't exactly clear but one thing was evident. Election officials were taking no chances on "repeaters" voting. Each voter had to present his identification certificate and have his forefinger dipped in indelible ink.

POLITICS:

Clear Field

As the roar of Europe's war becomes louder, its effect upon the American political scene is daily becoming more pronounced. In the main, it has been most decidedly felt in the Democratic party, where party leaders feel these war conditions will surely "force" President Roosevelt to seek a third term.

It appears that he has the nomination of his party safely tucked away should he want it.

Paul McNutt has withdrawn from the opposition; Vice President Garner is quiet and his boom apparently has fizzled; Senator Wheeler of Montana has said, "It looks like Roosevelt."

Still there are many insiders who believe Secretary of State Cordell Hull will get the nod, come convention time. Amid all this guesswork this much stands out as fact: International conditions have plucked the choice of the Democratic party's candidate directly in the lap of the nation's Chief Executive. He can have the nomination, if he wants it and if not he can name the fair-haired boy he wants to make the bid. Until November, then, Franklin Delano Roosevelt has a clear field.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Most airplane makers who expressed an opinion about Henry Ford's offer to make 1,000 planes a day were doubtful about Mr. Ford's ability to deliver.

Industry 'Can Do Anything' in Our Defense Effort

Young and energetic Sherman M. Fairchild, president of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane corporation, thought "anything would be possible" provided sufficient money, materials and personnel were available. He was reassuring as to the industry's capacities in tooling, plants and other requirements for a quick shift to mass production.

Mr. Fairchild is, himself, reassuring in exemplifying the tradition of Yankee inventiveness. His father, the late George Winthrop Fairchild, once chairman of the International Business Machines corporation, was the inventor of the dial telephone, the computing machine and finally the adding machine, to keep track of his mounting millions—about 10 of which went to his son. He had begun his business career at $8 a week. "Anything is possible" seems to have been a sort of family slogan.

As a youth, Sherman M. Fairchild was mainly interested in cameras. His father had tapped him for junior executive of his company. When the young man stuck to cameras, this interest later shading into airplanes, his family was indulgent. They thought the boy was just having a "wanderjahr" and would round up at a desk when the time came. But the camera obsession wasn't just monkey business. At 21, he had invented a unique flashlight camera and several years later brought through a radial aerial camera, organized the Fairchild Aerial Surveys and caught attention with a trail-blazing aerial survey of New York. This led to plane-building. In 1927, he corralled several companies, set Igor Sikorsky building planes and turned out the first cabin monoplane in the United States.

SINCE chivalry is not inseparable from patriotism, this writer asked Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, to send to this column a few paragraphs about the work of the Red Cross in its greatest endeavor. He responded as follows:

Red Cross Chief Lauds Response Given to Appeal

"Anyone attempting to bring material assistance to the millions of homeless and miserable war refugees is inevitably seized with a sense of futility. There is so much that needs doing immediately, and there are so many obstacles to overcome that the burden of responsibility becomes almost overwhelming.

"These moods of futility I can dispel by concentrating my thoughts on the splendid support received by the American Red Cross from all over the country. When I think of the 350,000 volunteers sewing bandages and knitting garments, or of the millions of Americans in every walk of life who are contributing to the Red Cross war-relief fund, my spirits are immediately buoyed. Pride in the generous and patriotic response of the public gives each Red Cross worker new courage to carry out his tasks.

"The war-relief funds are going to work for humanity almost as fast as they come in. Relief supplies are being distributed, hospital supplies are on the way and ambulances have been ordered. Clothing and surgical dressings are being shipped to the stricken areas, in huge quantities. Our activities are rapidly being geared to greatly increased needs as the toll of invasion continues to mount. I have an abiding faith that the people of this country will help the Red Cross keep pace with its increasing obligations.

Mr. Davis is a Southerner by birth, and therefore fundamentally humane; as a successful business man and financier, he is effective, and as a European ambassador at large under five Presidents, he is discreet.

In the dark depths of the rear seat of his town car, one night two years ago, I had a talk with him about power politics in Europe. He was, indeed, discreet, but I gained an impression of his shrewd awareness of the deeper realities of the European impasse, as now tragically revealed. When, later, he was appointed chairman of the Red Cross, it seemed to me that our greatest humane tradition had been fortunately personalized, in a man with both a touch of homespun and the sophistication of one accustomed to getting things done.

ELECTRICITY AIDS FARM OPERATIONS

Power Yields More Work at Less Cost.

By NORTON IVES (Extension Agricultural Engineer, University of Minnesota Farm.)

When you buy electricity you buy work. The success of the rural electrification program should not be measured in terms of miles of line or numbers of customers connected. These only show the amount of money invested and the amount of debt incurred, the engineer warns. The true value of electricity lies in its ability to do work cheaper and better than by old-fashioned methods.

Unless put to work at productive labor or money-saving tasks, the "juice" is just another expense. When given a chance, however, it is the cheapest laborer on the farm. A small quarter-horsepower motor will do the work of one man and at an energy cost averaging only one cent per hour.

Feed grinding is accepted as a money-saving practice on most live stock farms, and when rates are moderate, electricity will do the job cheaper than any other form of power. At a rate of 2.5 cents per KWH (kilowatt hour), 25 cents will grind a ton of oats, 1,100 pounds of barley or 2,800 pounds of corn to medium fineness. Overhead bins, arranged for automatic self-feeding, practically eliminate labor cost and permit the operator to do other chores while the next day's feed is being ground.

In purchasing an electric feed grinder, the motor costs far more than the grinder, Ives points out, so provisions should be made to see that the power unit is made portable and may be moved from one job to another. A three-horse-power electric motor, in addition to grinding feed, will saw wood, elevate grain or corn, run machines in the farm shop, hoist hay and even shell corn. When put to work, highline current is the best hired man on the place. If left in the wires, it will "eat its head off."

One Out of Four Farms Served by Power Lines

About 1,700,000 farms, 25 per cent of all the farms in the United States, had high-line electric service at the beginning of this year, more than twice the number having service when the Rural Electrification administration was established in 1935, REA announces.

Electric service was extended to approximately 225,000 farm families and other users or about 1,000,000 persons last year—one for every 30 seconds ticked off from the beginning to the end of the year.

Users receiving service from REA financed systems now total about 400,000. Of the 638 such systems, 500 are in operation with more than 180,000 miles of lines energized.

Construction was equivalent to one average system completed per day, averaging about 400 miles of line per work day. During periods of favorable weather, construction has averaged more than 500 miles per working day, and at times it exceeded 560 miles per working day. The 180,000 miles of REA financed lines now in operation are sufficient to span the continent from Washington to San Francisco 60 times. An additional 60,000 miles are still under construction.

The average size REA financed system has an investment of $400,000, and serves 1,200 users from 400 miles of lines. Farmers' co-operatives constitute 88.4 per cent of REA borrowers.

Cow Now Has 'Rights' Under Britain's Laws

Talk about constitutional rights—cows in England, at least, can do just about as they please. No worrying about stop lights or parking tickets or being bawled out by traffic cops.

The high court of appeals in England has held that a cow had the constitutional right to stand in the middle of the road and chew her cud, and let traffic go hang or go round. At least the court said that cows do not move in straight lines and no driver could be expected to make them go in straight line or stay out of the road. The decision was made in a case where a motorist had collided with a cow and claimed damages to his car.

In announcing his decision, the lord justice said that cows have "strayed about the road for time immemorial" and will probably continue to do so.

Agricultural News

In recent experiments, cows produced more milk if given injections of a pituitary gland extract.

A motor of 1/4 horse power is a hired man that works for the unusually low figure of about a cent an hour. Good, high-quality roughage has long been recognized by dairy farmers as the cheapest source of feed for cows.

Son Knew Economical Way To Bring About Result

Father and son had gone together to a bazaar where a pretty girl was selling kisses in aid of local charity.

"My boy," said the father slyly, "here's a dollar bill. You go and kiss her. When I was young, you can bet I made 'em scream."

The son left his father, and shortly after returned in a high state of satisfaction.

"Well, did you kiss her, Son?" asked the father.

"Yes, you can bet I did, Dad," was the reply.

"And did you make her scream?"

"Scream? I'll say so! I kept the dollar."

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek, Mich. # TRAILER GIRL

THE STORY THUS FAR

Lynn Morrow, beautiful blonde New York girl, is stranded in Palm Beach in her bathing suit with only 50 cents when her employer, Mrs. Helen Warren, disappears with car and trailer from a camp where she, Buddy, her son, and Lynn had been staying. A note from Mrs. Warren advises Lynn to call at her New York attorney's office for her clothes and wages. She is rescued by Terry McNair, whom she met at the beach. She goes to his home, where she has a maid provide her with some of her sister's evening clothes. They then go to a beach club. His sister appears and a quarrel ensues. Lynn accepts the help of a stranger to escape. He takes her to his home where he identifies himself as Raymond (Wild) Austin. He accuses her of trying to blackmail him. Greatly incensed, Lynn flees. Stopping at a coffee shop, she meets a young artist, Rene Bouchier, who is returning to New York by trailer and offers to take her there. They enjoy roughing it along the road. She finds Rene to be a decent sort of a fellow.

Lynn was in the driver's seat and Rene, beside her, directed operations. Things went along smoothly, for Lynn took the road at a slow, even pace. Before they had gone five miles, Rene was asleep. The girl drove on until they came to a small town, and she stopped in front of the first garage. Rene awakened with a start. Lynn smiled and urged Rene to go back into the trailer and sleep.

"I'll drive carefully, honestly I will." But Rene preferred to doze in the car. "I want to be sure we get out of Florida tonight. We'll go on and stop before dark. We've got to shop, anyway. There isn't anything to eat in the place." They picked up some groceries in a small town where they were allowed to park on the street for ten minutes. When Rene came back with his arms full of purchases, he threw a New York paper into Lynn's lap. "Four days old, but we'll know what's going on in the home town!"

"Home town? I came from Vermont." "I'm from Ohio, myself, but I'm a New York painter just the same," he retorted.

They finally halted for the night ten miles out of Kingsland, Ga. Both of them were tired, but they'd made a good day's run. Rene pulled the trailer over on a side road. "I've got steak for supper and some potatoes," he said.

Lynn set to work, while Rene read the New York paper. He was deep in the sport page when Lynn was setting the table. She glanced over his shoulder as he read there on the settee. There was a large picture of a smiling young man receiving a golf trophy.

"Oh!" Lynn cried out, startled. "That's the man!" "What man?" "The one who followed us last night."

"You mean this guy?" Rene demanded, pointing to the picture on the sport page. Lynn nodded. "Listen, child, you made a mistake! 'Wild' Austin has all the money in the world! You should have stayed in Florida!"

Rene looked up at Lynn speculatively. She had made no explanation of the matter of the night before. "You aren't an heiress running away, are you?"

"Of course not! You saw 'It Happened One Night'! That's your trouble. And as for 'Wild' Austin, I hate him! I never want to hear his name again." Then Lynn had to rush and rescue the smoking steak.

CHAPTER IV

"The steak's swell. Best meal I've had in weeks," Rene declared as he fell to it. When they had finished and were sitting with their coffee, Lynn, her elbows on the table, brushed back her hair and remarked: "Why do they call him that?"

Rene, knowing quite well what she meant, said: "Wild, Wild Austin." "Because he is, I guess," Rene said as he lighted his pipe. "He's been in a lot of scrapes. I know some woman sued him for breach of promise or something. His brother's just like him, having a big fight with his wife. There was a lot in the papers about it before I left."

"I suppose I should explain about last night—" "It is not necessary." She told him her story. "I know what you're thinking—three strange young men in one day."

"And such young men. That McNair is a big shot, too, Lynn." The girl's cheeks flushed, there was disbelief in Rene's cool eyes. "I'm telling you the truth. How did you suppose I know how to work on a trailer? I'm a house maid, I tell you!"

Rene laughed. "Here I was making up all kinds of romantic stories about you." "I'm sorry I'm not more exciting."

"Well, it did seem funny, when you told me it was that Austin chap who was chasing you. I can't understand why you ran away."

"Oh, Rene! When he accused me of being an adventuress, of wanting to use him or something, it was too terrible. I couldn't believe he really meant it. If he hadn't been so good, I'd never had courage to run away with you like this."

"Well, it was pretty tough on you. But lucky for me. I needed a cook!" Rene began to laugh: "It is funny!" "Well, it wasn't very funny to me."

"I mean your being left in a bathing suit, flat in Florida." Lynn smiled wryly: "I can't look at it that way."

"I wonder why Mrs. Warren went off and left you?" "I haven't the faintest idea." Suddenly Lynn stretched out her hand and touched Rene's arm.

"Maybe some day I can repay you for everything you've done for me." "Forget it." "You see, I haven't any relatives except a married sister. She is in Bangor. She's older than I, and, well, I couldn't ask her husband to support me, too. Besides things aren't going any too well with them."

"I know. My mother died last year. I kept my nose to the grindstone. I had her to support. Then when she was gone, I decided I'd begin to see something of this country. Well, I did. But I suppose I'm not much of a business man. Money just seems to go. I thought I had plenty when I came down here."

Then the two went out to watch the early sunset. It set in a bank of clouds which promised rain. Lynn came in finally and washed the dishes.

When Rene came in, the oil lamp was lighted and Lynn was looking again at the New York paper. She threw it down quickly when Rene came in the door.

"I want to show you some of my sketches," he said. "What did you do with them?" Lynn opened one of the deep drawers under her bunk. They were piled there neatly. Rene handed her a water color of some bathers on the beach. It was a slight thing, and until that moment it had not occurred to Lynn to wonder whether or not Rene was a good painter.

The picture arrested the girl. It was full of white sunlight, and wind. "It's good!" she exclaimed taking it nearer to the oil lamp.

"Oh, I'm not much of a critic, but I've always loved pictures. Let me see some more."

They spent an hour over the sketches, and then Rene declared he was tired. They had agreed on an early start in the morning. With nine hours' sleep they felt they would be ready to forge ahead through Georgia. Rene got some blankets together, to go out into the car, when Lynn looked out the door.

"It's raining hard, Rene," she said. "I don't think you should sleep in the car tonight." "I'll be all right."

"No, that is not fair. I'm crew. There are two bunks here. I saw a curtain rolled up in the clothes closet today."

She went and got out some crumpled yards ofingham. "We'll rig this up. That's what Mrs. Warren always did. It makes complete little rooms."

Rene patted her arm. "Good girl! You're a real sport. I'll fix that, Lynn. I'll admit I didn't relish sleeping in the back seat of that car. I'm dead for sleep."

So that was the way it was arranged. Lynn kept her bunk at the front of the trailer, Rene's was on the sofa at the dining table. Lynn folded away the table, made up his bed while he went out to check everything for the night, to throw a piece of canvas over the motor.

"I have to nurse the old wreck along," he said. "If it gets wet, we'll never get her started." Lynn awakened first the next morning. It was a pleasant day. Quietly she slipped out of the trailer, wearing the only bathrobe Rene possessed. There was a stream nearby and Lynn bathed her face there, and dabbled her feet in the cold water. It was a lovely morning. Like Spring, but cool, for they were now farther north.

and began rattling dishes in the galley. "How long before breakfast?" Rene called in a sleepy voice.

"Ten minutes. Hurry!" Rene got up, called for the bathrobe, which Lynn threw to him over their gingham partition.

"That brook's a nice place for a bath," she said. "I won't be five minutes," he promised.

Rene was in great spirits. The weather this morning was perfect. More like a Northern Spring. Everything was green and fresh after the rain. He sang as he drove, and he told Lynn about his dreams.

"What I want more than anything in the world is to go abroad for a year to study. I've got to get to work and make some money somehow." He lapsed into silence. "Now I better let you tell me about yourself."

"I just want a job, that's all!" "What kind of a job? What's your ambition?"

"Ambition for me is foolish. I can't paint, I can't sing or dance, I can work with my hands, that's about all. I'm through high school and I can typewrite a little. That's the extent of my accomplishments."

"Wouldn't you like to go into the movies?" "No."

"What do you want?" Lynn hesitated: "What most girls want deep in their hearts, I suppose, a home, a husband and children."

At lunch time Lynn got their food ready as Rene drove, and then they stopped on the roadside and ate it. It must have been late afternoon when they crossed into South Carolina. The wind was colder, but the sun was still bright. They were discussing where they should stop for the day when the motor began to knock violently.

"Lord, something's wrong with this car!" Rene stopped and got out and opened the hood. Lynn smiled at his hopeless air. She could imagine what Rene would be as a mechanic. They pulled off the highway and reconnoitered. There was a farm house about a quarter of a mile down the road.

"Let's go down there. We can buy fresh milk, and maybe they'll have a telephone. I think we can make it."

Lynn thought afterward how different things might have been if they'd never visited the Lovell farm. When they came limping up the edge of the big farmyard, the farmer who was pumping water at the well came out to the road.

"How far to town?" Rene asked. "About five miles."

"Can I get you to tow me in?" Rene asked, getting out to unfasten his car from the trailer.

The man got his own car out of the garage, and they hitched Rene's sick automobile on with a chain.

"Will it be all right to leave my trailer here? We'll probably be stuck overnight."

"Sure. You and your wife can stay at the house if she wants to," the man added.

CHAPTER V

Lynn, standing at the door of the trailer, heard the farmer's offer of hospitality.

"Oh!" It had never occurred to Lynn that she and Rene might have to explain their unconventional but highly proper situation.

Then she forced herself to prepare supper. For Rene would be hungry when he came back. As she was lighting the stove, Mrs. Lovell, the farmer's wife, walked down through the barnyard and knocked at the door.

"Yes, you folks might like some fresh milk. And here are a couple of pieces of apple pie. There's just you and your husband?" Lynn managed the word. "What did you say his business was?"

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

EACH year Hollywood makes a "sleeper"—a picture that, during the making, created no excitement, but during the preview showing had all the earmarks of being one of the best of the year. "It Happened One Night" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" are two of the better known sleepers. This year's, according to some of the people who have seen it, may be "Down Went McGinty."

Written and directed by Preston Sturges, with a cast including Muriel Angelus, Brian Donlevy and Akim Tamiroff, it is the "saga of a bum."

It may be the making of a new star, Muriel Angelus. In England, she is one of the foremost musical comedy stars; she played the lead in "Balalaika" on the stage there—you'll recall that Nelson Eddy and Iona Massey did the picture version. She has been in this country for two years; last year, while singing on the New York stage in "The Boys From Syracuse," she was signed up by Paramount, and "The Light That Failed," with Ronald Colman, was her first picture. Then she did "Safari" and "The Way of All Flesh," followed them with "Down Went McGinty."

When John Barrymore seemed to be unavailable for the role of John Barrymore in "The Great Profile," at Twentieth Century-Fox, Adolphe Menjou was engaged for it. Then Barrymore's plans changed, he took the part, and Menjou took his salary, and the studio had no other picture ready for him.

Rod Cameron, a young, six-foot Canadian, went to Los Angeles a year ago to learn the dime store business. That didn't work out very well, so he quit, took up little theater work, and now finds himself acting for Paramount.

Death brought him his first role, that of "Corporal Underhill" in Cecil B. DeMille's "Northwest Mounted Police." Earl Askam, a former stage star and war hero, was to have played it, but he died recently of a heart attack, and young Cameron (whose real name is Rod Cox) was summoned for it. By a grisly coincidence, the role includes a death scene, but he's so elated over getting the part that he can't afford to be superstitious.

Now that they need passports to sail for a tour of South America, it has been discovered that many of Toscanini's NBC Symphony musicians are men without a country. It seems that there was a general impression among them that all they had to do to become American citizens was to file their intentions of doing so; now they're not Americans, and as they renounced their native lands, they don't legally belong anywhere.

George Brent, working in Warner Brothers' "The Sentience," offers to put up $10,000 at 10 to 1 odds that he won't marry for another three years. "That's no reflection on Ann," he says, meaning Ann Sheridan, whom gossips have him wedding soon. "It's just that I'm going to wind up my picture contract then, and I'm not making any marriage plans until I do."

Miss Sheridan (working in "They Drive by Night," same studio) is equally vehement. "George and I haven't even discussed getting married," she says. "But—it's the kind of buildup that so often leads to an elopement, in Hollywood!"

Carl Hoff, on the CBS Al Pearce show, drew an impressive crowd the other day and wished he hadn't. He parked his new coupe and then tried to get out of it, and couldn't. He went through assorted acrobatic convulsions, thrusting his feet and arms out of the windows in all possible combinations, while the crowd offered advice hilariously. The new coupe has patent thief-locks on its doors. Only after he had struggled till he was limp did it occur to Hoff to pass the key to one of the amused bystanders.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

MALACHI DEMANDS HONESTY TOWARD GOD

LESSON TEXT—Malachi 2:7-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me how herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.—Malachi 3:10.

Spiritually sick—and desperately so—was Israel in the days of Malachi. The nation had been released from captivity in Babylon and had been back in their own land for almost a century. The outburst of religious enthusiasm which characterized their return had resulted in the rebuilding of the temple (Ezra 1:1-4). In this they were encouraged by Haggai, as we recall from our lesson of last Sunday. They had later been led by Nehemiah in renewed interest in spiritual things and in the rebuilding of the city wall, but now again they had turned away from God. Malachi came with what one might call God's last word before judgment upon their sins. The lesson centers around four words.

I. Apostasy. "Ye have turned aside" (v. 7, R. V.). This was God's complaint against His people. In spite of His blessings upon them, they had intermarried with the heathen, they had dealt treacherously with their brethren, and had neglected to worship God. What was even worse, they felt no conviction about their sin and denied that they owed God anything, not even the debt of common gratitude.

Read the insolent, self-confident questions and assertions of the people in verses 7, 8, 13 and 14. Think how perfectly they fit the attitude of thousands of unbelievers and backslidden Christians in our day. One might almost think that Malachi were reading the secret thoughts of our own people, and possibly of our own hearts.

II. Robbery. Illness commonly has its center of infection, whether it be physical or spiritual sickness. Malachi struck at a very vital point when he revealed that the heart of Israel's difficulty was dishonesty toward God. That dishonesty reflected itself in spiritual things, but, since Malachi was talking to an arguing generation (just like ours), he gave them a concrete illustration of their deceit—they had withheld from God the tithes and offerings.

Men who would never cheat the telephone company out of a nickel will rob God consistently Sunday after Sunday by sanctimoniously slipping a thin dime into the collection plate. If that is all a man can and should give, God will bless it and multiply it for His glory. But certainly it does not merit one who lives in luxury to give God's work the smallest piece of change which he can decently slip into the plate.

Tithing may be said to be an Old Testament principle. Doubtless it is also true that the principle of New Testament Christianity is that all we have belongs to God, but often the one who hides behind that fact does not give as much as the people of Old Testament times. Is that honest?

III. Judgment. God is love, but that does not mean that His patience is without limit nor that He will forever withhold judgment. He says, through Malachi (v. 9), "Ye are cursed with a curse." The blessing has been withheld (v. 10). The devourer is in the land (v. 11). He promised them release and blessing if they repented and returned to the right way, which obviously means that their failure to do so would bring judgment. We know that Israel despised God's warning and to this day is paying for its sin. Will America be wise enough to heed God's call?

IV. Blessing. So often the loving God had to speak through His prophets of impending judgment on sin, but how gracious He is in that He always holds out the promise of blessing for repentance and obedience.

Look at the precious promise in verse 10. "Thousands of Christians join the writer in saying, 'That is true in A. D. 1940 just as it was in 400 B. C.' Read verses 11 and 12. Note that our God is not only a great God, but a good God. Consider the blessings of spiritual fellowship—the certainty of victory revealed in verses 16 and 17. One marvels that Israel could resist such a loving plea just as one wonders also why men of our own day of God's grace still resist His gracious invitation.

A Helpful Heart It is a fine thing to do kindly, helpful deeds. It is one of the very finest in the world. But there is something finer than the helpful hand; it is the helpful heart.

End Is Death There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.

Simply Designed For Women's Sizes

THIS dress has a beautiful line—slim-hipped, high-busted, exactly the silhouette in which women's sizes look best. And it's so simply designed! The bodice is fitted in with long darts above the waistline, and gathered just beneath the shoulders, where narrow ruffles add a soft, dressy touch, without any suggestion of width or weight. The paneled skirt flows into graceful fullness at the hem, accenting the narrow-hipped look.

Make this design (No. 1971-B) of small-figured print, flat crepe, georgette or chiffon, with decorative buttons down the bodice in the front. The plain v of the neckline invites all sorts of different jewelry and necklaces.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1971-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap. Send order to:

There is one virtue in the absence of interest in politics this year: there is no chance for the candidates to make speeches—there are no listeners.

The movies have educated people to appreciate good acting to the extent that amateur productions fail to entirely please, regardless of the money spent, or the size of the production. Only where personal friends are in the cast is there much interest in an amateur production.

Few merchants like to have their show windows cluttered up with candidate cards and the like, but one friend of a candidate for a state office tried out the plan of sticking gummed advertisements on the outside of the windows one day last week, necessitating everyone washing their windows the next day. ## Cottons Go to Top of the List In Fabric Aristocracy Class

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHEN it comes to fabric aristocracy cottons are tops this season. It's not only that gingham and piques and gabardines and sharkskin, dimities, voiles, chintz, percale, swisses and organdies are smart for daytime it is the style prestige that is accorded them for dine, dance and evening wear, no matter how formal the occasion, that is the news that is big news.

Speaking of smart cottons for party, wedding, and graduate wear, the new Swiss organdies are simply breathtaking in their loveliness. As a convincing argument behold the enchanting evening frock pictured in the foreground of the accompanying illustration. With its yards and yards of full-flounced skirt it is reminiscent of the old South. By the way, most stylish cottons this summer are of the romantic type, and this lovely model is no exception to the rule. The fine Swiss cloque organdy which fashions this lovely gown has a June-garden patterning of rose, blue, lavender and white flowers that is simply entrancing. Tiny rose and blue velvet bows prettily skirt flounces catching also the front draping of the flattering bodice. Soft shirring adds interest to the brief puffed sleeves.

Formal bands of fine embroidery and cutout are lavishly applied to sheer crystal-clear Swiss organdy for the graceful summer party frock shown above to the left. Under the demure collared bolero the low-cut camisole bodice is finely tucked below a wide edging of embroidery which is repeated as shoulder straps. The endlessly swirling skirt is caught at the waist by a wide pastel taffeta girdle finished with a miniature corsage in delicate shades.

It adds to the zest of the new summer fashions that they are that versatile in their styling. You can choose any silhouette you please and be "in style" whether your choice be mermaid slimmness or "Gone With the Wind" southern belle types that register picturesque bouffancy. One of the fascinating vagaries of the present mode is the tiered silhouette as pictured to the right in the group. An adorable multi-colored floral printed cloque organdy fashions this tiered frock which, we are quite sure you will agree, bespeaks a new high in summer prettiness.

Speaking of the now-so-fashionable cloque sheers, an exquisite tissue-like matelasse seersucker has been brought out this season that is taking the world of fashion by storm. This exquisite sheer in dark colors makes up beautifully for day wear as well as for night and it is ever so lovely in pastel colorings. For the woman who sews, these diaphanous seersuckers are a veritable find in that the simpler you make them the more effective is the gown, since the material is so all-sufficient within itself.

Another sheer enjoying a maximum of style prestige is dotted swiss, especially red dots on white, for white with red accents is all the rage just now. You will find, likewise, that cotton sheers that are spectacularly patterned with gorgeous red flowers or other motif in red are ever so good style this season. With these red and white cottons wear a red hat with matching gloves and for a fine finesse climax the ensemble with red shoes such as were so successfully launched for Southern resort wear earlier in the year.

Miss Fixit painted an old desk blue to match her chair. She had some enlarged snapshots that she wanted to hang over the desk but she also wanted to repeat the blue color and some of the red in the chintz used for the chair. So, she decided to make blue velvet frames for the pictures and then hang them with red ribbon. The diagrams show you exactly how the frames were made for I have a feeling that you are going to want to hang some of your photographs in this colorful way. Betsy, who streamlined an old iron bed, which she found in the attic, will be with us again next week with more "attic magic." Meanwhile better send your order for your copy of Sewing Book 5 to:

DO YOU remember Miss Fixit who, a week or so ago in one of these articles, made over an old rocker? Today's sketch shows how she used that chair at her desk. The full description of the transformation of the chair is in Sewing Book 5, which is offered here for the first time. This new book contains 32 pages of helpful ideas for homemakers and is available to readers of this paper for 10 cents in coin to cover cost and mailing.

AROUND the HOUSE

To remove whitewash from a ceiling, dissolve one pound of alum in one gallon of strong vinegar. Apply with brush, let soak in well and scrape and wash as usual.

Mix grated or chopped carrots into apple and other fruit salads. They will add to delicious crunchiness.

For whiter mashed potatoes or boiled rice, add a pinch of cream of tartar to the cooking water.

Never leave sugar, raisins, currants or peel in paper bags. They all go moist and sticky very quickly.

Moisture in the refrigerator encourages the growth of bacteria, causing food to spoil. Wipe off all moisture inside the refrigerator and be careful to remove spilled foods.

Always keep flour in a warm, dry place. Damp flour will never make light cakes and pies.

Origins of Cattle Brands

Probably most of the stories about the origins of the 1,500,000 cattle brands registered in the West are legends. One such outstanding tale, still told and published as a true story, is that Burk Burnett adopted the famous brand "6666" in 1900 because he won his great Texas ranch in a poker game with a hand containing four sixes.—Collier's.

The Tale-Bearer

Where no wood is, then the fire goeth out; so where there is no tale-bearer, the strife ceaseth.—Proverb.

Hoods Everywhere

Everything that can be consistently styled with a hood is being styled with a hood. Most of the hoods are detachable which makes them eminently practical. When you go motoring or stroll on the beach with a snappy wind blowing off the water, when you go to midsummer night dance parties a short coat with detachable hood made of camel's hair and lined with red Scotch plaid as here illustrated will serve you well. A coat of this type with its cunning hood is likewise lovely if carried out in pastels.

Off-Face Berets Control Hairdress

Much is being said lately in regard to the relation of hairdress and hat. The recent trend toward big off-face berets worn far back on the head may, so fashion experts declare, bring about a revival of the pompadour since most hats of this type are even now posed behind a mass of curls atop the forehead.

Fancy Is Turning To Pink Accents

If you will look about in the neckwear departments you will note a surprising showing of dainty pink collars and cuffs, jabots and other accessory items. Go to the jewelry section and it is possible you will think you are "seeing through rose-colored glasses" for many of the clips, brooches, earrings, bracelets and necklaces register pink tones and tints. The same may be said of gloves of flowers and down in Southland during the resort period the accent on pink expressed itself in dainty flannel coats such as many fashionable wore.

Which all goes to show that the flair for pink accessory touches is very much in evidence this season and all through the summer fashions one will see the new black or navy sheers so popular for afternoon wear, made lovely and appealingly feminine with flattering accents of pink.

All-White Fashion Gaining Momentum

The all-white movement is gaining momentum. The fashionable thing to do is to carry it out from head to foot. The young smart set are thrilled with the idea of all-white so much so they dance in white, play in white, in fact take keen delight in ensembling dress, hat, bag, gloves, shoes, to which they add jewelry and flowers all in white.

Quilted Velvet Is Popular for Wraps

Little jackets and capes of pastel colored velvet that is prettily quilted make charming evening wraps of wear over dainty lingerie frocks.

French Poilus in London Escape Flanders 'Hell'

Freed from the Nazi trap in Belgium and northern France, these French troops are shown marching from the railroad terminal in London, after a fiery crossing from the European mainland. Transports, convoyed by British naval craft, were bombed incessantly during the voyage.

THE PEDESTRIANS' PRIMER

No. 9—On Rural Roads, Walk Facing Traffic

THE RIGHT SIDE on which to walk is the left side. This enables you to watch oncoming traffic and to step off the pavement and out of the way in an emergency. Two pedestrians are killed walking with traffic for every one killed walking against it.

CHURCHES' GREATEST NEED

Every preacher, however optimistic, is subject to what is called "Blue Monday." This is due in part to the nervous let-down from Sunday's strain but more, if he is highly conscientious, to dwelling upon the imperfections of his work on that day.

The best remedy for this shadow of conscious imperfection is that one shall be the right sort of a preacher. If a man will be a true shepherd the shadows will come, but they will not discourage. If ministerial shadows are to be illuminated, the preacher must furnish a forward-looking, an upward-looking, and an outward-looking ministry.

The pathetic call of our churches is for shepherds; shepherds, not brilliant, spellbinding pulpites; shepherds, not skillful diplomatic ecclesiastical engineers; shepherds, not adept, tactful church financiers; shepherds, not partisan proselyting buccaners; shepherds, not egotistic, not cold-blooded logical doctrinaires.

A pre-eminent need of the church is an unselfish, sacrificial, spirit-filled ministry; not a self-seeking, ease-loving, worldly-minded ministry; a pure, holy spiritual ministry; not a gross, carnal, sensual ministry; a liberal, broad, bountiful ministry; not a niggardly parsimonious, sordid ministry; a vigorous, forceful, efficient ministry; not a flabby, feeble, flat-minded ministry; a strong, valiant, sturdy ministry; not a weak, flaccid, limp ministry; a firm, dignified, stalwart ministry; not a stale, languid, insipid ministry; a fertile, fruitful, prolific ministry; not a lean, barren, sterile ministry; a keen, effective, diversified ministry; not a spiritless, pointless, monotonous ministry; a resilient, buoyant, fervent ministry; not a heavy, prosy, frigid ministry; a piquant, seasoned, anti-lifeless ministry; a virile, masterful compelling ministry; not a vacant, void, vacuous ministry; not a hothouse, trembling, entrancing ministry; a gentle meek, tender ministry; not a vitriolic vituperative, vindictive ministry; a sane, steady, genuine ministry; not a sensational, spectacular, meteoric ministry; a modest unassuming, humble ministry; not a pretentious, pompous, ostentatious ministry; an alert, wide-awake, animated ministry; not a lethargic, comatose, moribund ministry.—Rev. Jeff D. Ray in Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

BOOKER VOTES DRY

Precinct Two, voting in a called election Friday to determine whether or not to permit the sale of legal beer, voted dry by a large majority. Two voting boxes in precinct recorded the following grand total: For sale of beer, 89; against, 214.—Booker News.

Eagles often build nests six feet across. Many this size have been found by Texas Game Wardens and biologists.

Wild house cats can attain immense size. One killed recently in Pennsylvania weighed 26 pounds and had a full-grown rabbit in its mouth.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Some time ago a laboring man was asked why he did not attend church.

"I have reasons which are satisfactory to me. One is I have not the money to buy clothes to match the ones my neighbors and friends wear to church on Sundays. Nor have I the money to meet the appeals made for the various causes the church is sponsoring. It is embarrassing to me to appear in everyday clothes when others have on their Sunday clothes. And it humiliates me to have the collection plate passed in front of me and not contribute something when others do. There are some of the reasons why I don't attend church. It takes about all I can make to feed and clothe my family."

Without raising the question of right or wrong in his statement and reasons, we are bound to admit that there are many cases similar to the one stated above. Many ladies have stayed away from church because they didn't have a new spring or fall hat like other ladies had. Many boys have stayed away from Sunday school and church because they did not have new suits like other boys. Many men have stayed away from church because they did not have Sunday suits to wear, and did not have money to put in the collection plate.—Rochester Reporter.
