CONGRESS:

State of the Nation

Calling upon all U. S. citizens to "make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands," President Roosevelt in his personally delivered message to the new Seventy-seventh congress pledged full defense and help for those "... people who are keeping ". . . people who are keeping war away from our hemisphere."

He pointed out that he believed the United States to be facing an unprecedented foreign peril and he asked for a "swift and driving increase" in armament production. Both the United States and the "democracies" would reap the benefits of such increased production, according to the President.

"I also ask this congress," said the President, "for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war sup plies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations." While he did not actually list the nations to which such aid would go it is generally believed that he meant Britain, China and Greece.

President Roosevelt then proceeded to make clear that he did not consider such aid an "act of war even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be." He stated further that "When the dictators are ready to make war upon us they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war."

He also said that the American people would never "acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

NEW BROOM:

Gets Sweeping Material The "old broom," namely the Seventy-sixth congress of the United States, 366 days old, having closed down, its successor found itself with a lot of "sweeping" to be done, and the evidence was plain that it was scheduled to be a stormy and epochal session.

Swearing in of new and re-elected congressmen accomplished, the senate and house hoppers, emptied of all unfinished business, rapidly began filling with the new, and it was plain that the bills would come under three general classes.

There would be bills aimed to test the strength of President Roosevelt's administration, most of them in the form of curbs upon his powers; there would be administrationinspired bills seeking wider aid to Britain and broader powers to rush forward the lagging American national defense; there would be something done about labor, unemployment and relief, what one might call the social relations field.

Rapidly, as the session rushed into its full stride, various figures of importance raised their voices in one or another of these outstanding issues, some expectedly, others to the considerable surprise of their con-

Back of it all the various polls, especially the Gallup Poll, which Ickes sought to stiffe, kept sounding public opinion on moot questions.
Eighty per cent of Americans wanted national defense industry speeded up; 54 per cent wanted all aid to England, even if it put the country into war; and so on.

It looked like a race to see whether congress would wag the polls, or if the polls would do the wagging. Outstanding among the early measures was one aimed to curb the President's financial powers, dubbed the anti-inflation bill; one aimed to change the national labor picture through revamping the labor board and creating an appeals "court" for labor; still another urging repeal of the neutrality act and a substitute permitting loans to England; and one that would set old age pensions at $30 the month.

IRELAND: On War's Brink

Aerial war reports were featured by a small but continued bombing of neutral Ireland, and George Bernard Shaw rushed an interview over the cables saying that either Britain or Hitler would get Ireland into the war somehow before long.

Hitler, said Shaw, wants Ireland in on the Axis side, to give him a possible landing site for aerial invaders. England wants Ireland actively in on the British side to give her good naval bases and a better defense against submarine activities in the eastern Atlantic.

Investigation of the bombs that dropped at first seemed to indicate that the Germans were attempting to line the Irish coast with magnetic mines and that some of them had inadvertently landed inshore.

This, however, was not borne out, for later bombs were not of the marine type, and then came a full daylight raider, with no excuse for missing, and popped one or two right into the streets of Dublin.

Examination of the bombs showed them to be of German manufacture. The Axis, both Rome and Berlin, immediately leaped into print claiming that the bombs had been taken from downed planes by the British, who had been calmly bombing her neighbor, trying to get the Irish mad enough to declare war on Germany.

GREEKS:

Still on Move

Despite the rumbling thunder of Germans about to swoop through Bulgaria toward Salonika, the Greek armies, facing worst blizzards in Albanian history, continued to move forward, but more slowly in the face of stiffening Fascist resist-

Picture editors in this country continued to get dozens of photos of Italians surrendering, one of the caperaman happened not to be present at one "surrender scene," the Fascist troops obligingly posed for the picture when one finally showed up.

"Tirana by Christmas" did not materialize, and the Italian stiffer resistance did-but there was continued evidence that if the Greeks were to be beaten back and Italy kept in the war, German planes and German troops would have it to do.

Hitler's statement, made when he was "mad" with Italy before her entrance into the war on the eve of the fall of France, that it would take 10 to 15 divisions to keep Italy going if she did come in, seemed to have been conservative.

And Swinging at oftrained dice

Everybody Else and a buried a ce. Such have been the diplomatic paraphernalia of the eminent Nazi statesman who, it is now reported in Europe, will be the new gauleiter, or Hitler straw-boss in Rumania. Lately, foreign correspondence has converged on the idea that Herr Goebbels is faking a possible run-in with Russia and letting word leak out in the Balkans that the Nazis are sending troops to menace Russia, while in reality, he is dealing under the table with Stalin, as usual.

That would be a grand way to dampen American war ardor-this country getting into the war on the side of red Russia. Anything as elaborate and devious as this would be right on Baron Von Killinger's target. With his genius for duplicity and complicated intrigue he would be a marvelous advance agent for just such a grand razzle-dazzle as that.

When Baron Von Killinger was German consul-general at San Francisco, from August, 1937, to January, 1939, Rep. Samuel Dickstein denounced him on the floor of congress as a "Nazi adventurer." On November 6, 1937, the Americanization committee of the American Legion demanded his summary rejection from this country as a spy delivering secrets of the American fleet to his government. He stayed on the job until the Nazis saw fit to recall him, as the war loomed, for more immediately urgent intrigue over there.

He spent nine months in jail, in 1922, on charges of complicity in the murder of the conciliatory Mathias Erzberger. Bullets like those that lend a festive air. used by the murderers, Schulz and Tillesen, had been found in his possession. He was acquitted and town hold in store for you. The moved through the turbulent years grandest thing about these sparkling of the Nazi ascendency to a spot at eye-catchers is the practical soluthe right hand of Der Fuehrer. His tion they offer to this bugaboo of a gift for intrigue was such at some midseason problem that always bobs times he ran the ball the wrong way, and during the blood purge of 1934, Hitler put him in a concentration camp and fired him as premier of Saxony.

However, they could find no substitute for his legerdemain and let him out to pick up his old line of mystagogy.

IN 1933, a young man from Pottsville, planting his typewriter on his bed in a New York hall bedroom, rounded out 25,000 words of a When the Utterly book he was ready available for an invasion of Improbable Does was down to Happen, It's News his last three dollars. He

The next day came three acceptances. Harcourt, Brace was first in line and got the book, "Ap-pointment in Samarra." The author got $50 a week for the three months and delivered the finished book within four days of the dead-line.

Such was the literary get-way of Young John O'Hara, author of the current hit musical show in New York city, "Pal Joey," the same being one of the most poisonous portraits of a "heel" ever etched with the steel-point of contempt. The book clicked and in the years between there was the routine stretch at Hollywood, and a series of magazine stories from which the unlovely portrait of "Pal Joey" gradually emerged.

"Pal Joey" isn't a show to which ou would want to take your Aunt Tabitha, but there is a moral in the story of how young John O'Hara began to rise and shine. When he decided to become an author, he swore off liquor, cut smoking down to a minimum, went on a diet and worked a punishing shift, seven days a week. He is tall, person-able and gathers his garlands and his royalties at the age of 35.

the left above in the illustration). The stems and flowers of the floralpatterned lace are delicately outlined with tiny pearls. A new and exquisite accessory for your simple basic dress! You will find it particularly flattering with pearl earrings and bracelet. Before you tour the neckwear sections, note the new vogue for deli-cately tinted pink lace. The accessory items made of it look as if they had been created in fairyland. They are exquisitely lovely, sprinkled over with wee beads that seem to dance all over the lace in a very ecstasy of glitter. You really should have jet-embroidered neckwear down on your memorandum. A little bengaline collar for a dress with high round neck, using jet beads in floral motifs in delicate tracery as pictured to the right will give your after-noon dress just enough of a festive look to tune to a "don't dress up" bid to luncheon or bridge party. You'll love this bit of delightsome feminine frippery with jet embroid-ered on flesh pink, new champagne or white bengaline. It is a small item to be sure yet it will give a touch of elegance to any basic dress. Try it and see! And jet is "the rage" you know.

Girls of teen-age or more or less, here's a very special message for you—see it pictured in the inset below. Your tailored pinafore dress (ever so smart this season) can be changed into a dressy afternoon up this time of the year-that of frock just like that! And it's a "keeping up appearance" with a charming lace guimpe that "turns wardrobe of winter leftovers until the trick." It's made of fine Alenspring comes along with its quota of "new clothes." The answer is found in the basic dress glorified con type lace with a double lace edging on the short sleeves and little pointed collar. Venise lace motifs with glittery neckwear and accessory "fixings" which will freshen up are used for contrasts in the collar and little front inset. Pearl earrings and prettify even the most prosaic and a three-strand necklace and bracelet are charming accessories to this dressed-up pinafore—makes it an adorable "date" dress! (Released by Western Newspaper Union.) For a touch of elegance on an afternoon dress nothing could be love-lier than a beautiful Venise lace

Lace Trims Velvet

That quaint and lovely custom of trimming with black lace has been revived. Our grandmamas and ancestral aunts used to glory in black lace edging to finish off most every-thing, especially their "stand-alone" silks and their velvets. Young girls looked bewitching in full-skirted plaid silks with wasp-waisted bodices all furbelowed with lace rufflings headed with bands of narrow black velvet ribbon. And now modern fashion is reviving that quaint custom. To such an extent has the edged-with-black-lace vogue been revived, that not only formal eve-ning gowns but smart daytime black crepe frocks have their necklines, sleeves and pockets edged with narrow lace. A most fascinating adaptation of the lace-trim theme is shown in the black velvet evening gown pictured. You will find touches of black lace ever so flattering and well worth trying out.

Multiple Colors

A costume with two if not more colors is the rule this season. Skirts, blouses and jackets in different tones are shown together, while a two-color dress will be topped with a contrasting coat.

Air Travelers Go In Flying Colors

Air-minded to the finger tips is the forecast by leading designers for the chic American of 1941. She'll wear flagship red on her finger tips, a shade that keeps pilots "on the beam" in any weather, or she will flaunt the new skyhigh which is a high-styled pink with enlivening violet undertones.

These colors will also be translated in fabrics and accessories, for as all fashion-wise women know pres-ent vogue calls for accessories and finger tips to "match up" in color.

And here's something that's "news," the chic American air-traveler who takes along a formal costume for party wear in cities she visits is including a most intriguing and decidedly original item, namely, evening slippers, made of a new transparent plastic that shows off highly colored toe tips.

Tucked away for the nights she

Basqued Bodices Continue Popular

Because of their almost universal becomingness basque bodices, pointed in front and usually longer than waist length, remain a favorite season-after-season style. For daytime or evening they top skirts that are flounced or gathered, or at least carry a suggestion of fullness. For evening, the peasant effect is frequently emphasized. For example, a dress of pale pink mousseline, shown by a West coast designer, has a pink and silver corselet laced

For street wear, this basque style is usually shown in materials that drape well, such as velvet, cordu-roy, or wool challis.

THE SLIGHTED INVITATION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are ow ready.—Luke 14:17.

Actions speak louder than words. What a man says is important, but it is his life which determines whether we accept his words as true. In spiritual things men have too often professed to follow Christ but failed to do His will. It is the business of the church to press home the necessity of an acceptance of Christ as Saviour which also makes Him the Lord of our life.

I. Pious Words (v. 15). We do not know whether the man who said, "Blessed is he that eateth bread in the kingdom of God," was expressing the sincere longing of his heart or merely making a bit of pious conversation. Jesus had just been dealing with some rather disconcerting matters (vv. 1-14). On such occasions there is usually someone on hand to spoil the effectiveness of the admonition by uttering some religious platitude which will direct conversation into more comfortable channels. Even though the man was sincere, he had evidently not made any preparations to be present at that great feast. This appears from the story Jesus related in response to his

II. Poor Excuses (vv. 16-20). It is not enough that we know that God has prepared a place of blessedness, nor does it suffice to speak approvingly of God's invitation to come; we must accept. God graciously bids all men to come; but all too many, while willing to admit the desirability of coming and admiring it as the ideal thing to do, begin to make excuses.

Observe that the men gave excuses, not reasons. There is a great difference. Note also that the excuses were poor ones. One had a new possession-a field-which he 'must go out and see." The second had a business matter to care fortrying out oxen he had bought. The third had a personal affection he wanted to foster—a new wife whom he could not leave.

The fact is that none of them wanted to come, and these were but excuses. What man buys a field without seeing it, or oxen without trying them? And we agree with Dr. Morgan that the one who had married a wife "was the most foolish of all. Why didn't he take her with him? Just excuses." Reader, what excuse is keeping you from accepting God's invitation?

III. Urgent Invitations (vv. 21-24). Those who reject God's invitation hurt only themselves, for He will find guests to fill the banquet hall at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Let us not fail to observe that it is the duty of the Lord's servants (and that means every born-again Christian) to be diligently about the business of urging men to respond to God's call. Let us beware that we do not miss that point by uttering some pious platitudes about soulwinning, and then failing to do anything to reach others.

It is the first business of every Christian who reads these lines to be engaged in personal soul-winning. If you want to do it and do not know how to start, I shall be glad to send you free, a copy of "Lessons in Soul-Winning," by Dr. Will H. Houghton. The important matter is that we get busy giving out these urgent invita-

It is the first business of the un-converted to accept that invitation. Dare you refuse? In one of his last meetings in Kansas City, Dwight L. Moody graphically portrayed the invitation referred to in our lesson. In closing his message he pointed to the wall of the auditorium and seemed to be writing out a reply to the invitation. He first wrote a note declining, the final words being, "I pray thee have me excused." He said, "Would you sign that, young man? Would you, mother? Would you come up to the reporter's table, take a pen and put your name down to such an excuse? I doubt if there is one here who would sign it. It s a loving God inviting you to a feast and God is not to be mocked. Go play with the forked lightning, go trifle with pestilence and disease, but trifle not with God."

Must Have His Spirit A young Italian boy knocked one day at the door of an artist's studio

you give me the master's brush?" The painter was dead, and the boy, inflamed with a longing to be an artist, wished for the great master's brush. The lady placed the brush in the boy's hands, saying: "This is his brush; try it, my boy." With a flush of earnestness on his face he tried, but found he could paint no better than with his own. The lady then said to him: "You cannot paint like the great master unless you have his spirit." So it is with us in the Church today; if Christians have not the Master's spirit they cannot successfully carry on the Master's work.—F. M. Townley.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor. During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employes, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05. According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00. If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employes, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income. Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour Semi-skilled . . .

Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour Skilled . . . Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employes. Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50c.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly onehalf the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

25,819 between 40 and 50 14,731 between 50 and 60 3,377 between 60 and 70 417 between 70 and 80 12 between 80 and 90

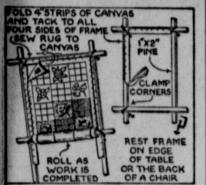

In addition to the so-called regular employes, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate worker can no longer produce profitably. The above are facts. They are open to anyone who really wants to deal in facts. Anyone who wants to get a job . . . buy a car . . . or place a national defense contract on the basis of fair labor treatment must place Ford at the top of his eligible list.

In no time at all a rug making group s meeting and it is difficult to carry a frame when one goes visit-ing. It is often difficult to find ace to put a frame away in nall house or apartment, too. You can see by this that I rather favor working without a frame though I know perfectly well that it is more efficient to work with one. Almost all professionals have frames that rest on a permanent base. I have sketched here the type of frame that most amateurs use. You can buy the corner clamps at the hardware store and put the frame together quickly. It may be the size of your rug or smaller. If it is smaller, just part of the rug is stretched on the frame at one time.

SEWING Book 5 tells you exactly how to prepare the burlap for a hooked rug like the one in this sketch and gives much other valuable information on rug hooking. There is still another hooked rug design in Book 6; also a braided and a crocheted rug. Send order to:

Our neighbors were coming back I rose to let them pass before she answered me and when we were seated again, she briefly and quickly patted my hand.

When the curtain fell and the house awoke, I must have shown my thought for Allegra looked at me sharply as I took up her cloak, and she said:

"You are a good egg, you know. I think you've suffered a lot to-

I did not tell her how much or why. I only answered: "Not at all."

She wrinkled her straight little nose at me and jeered:

Spoken like a gentleman of the old school. Mr. Wagner got you down and you know it. He helped me, though, if that's any comfort." "It's more than that," I told her, though she expected to find something in my eyes that was not there. We moved with the crowd into the lobby and to the street beyond where the starters' whistles stabbed through the racket of cars and, at last, found a taxi-cab. I helped her in and gave the driver her address. "Must we?" she asked as I sat down beside her. I was a little stupefied by too much music on an empty stomach.

"You ask the blindest questions." "And you," she answered, "don't seem to have any human feelings at all. Aren't you ever hungry or any-

"Anything! I'm practically everything. So what?" "All right," she snapped, "if you insist on being led, instead of leading me, astray! I'd like to go to Mino's." "Mino's?" Somewhere I had heard that name. She misunderstood my hesitation and tried so tactfully to reassure a poor employee of her aunt that I smiled. "One of the things I want most in the world at present is a chicken sandwich and a seidel of beer." "My child," I told her, "your ambition touches me. It does indeed. Give me the address."

The cab swung east at my new order. I asked:

"Why should Mino's mean any thing to a boy from the country-

"It shouldn't," she answered. speak of it. He likes it and he used to take me there a lot. Perhaps," she added, and I thought her voice grew tighter, "he'll be there to-

"That'll be swell," I said as heartily as I could but she marked the hollow sound.

"You don't like Grove. And it's my fault."
"No," I answered, "it's probably mine." "We'll go somewhere else if you'd rather," she said meekly. "I don't know why I said Mino's. If Grove burned up with delight at seeing either of us but-I don't know-I just have a hunch."

"Always play them," I advised

"Right," she said and her head came up again, "we'll do just that." Mino, himself, sleek as a black cat, ushered us into a wide, lowceiled chamber where a band presided over a square of dance floor. About the polished rectangle that dancers were quitting, tables were packed and beyond them along the walls were high-backed stalls.

"Dance?" Allegra whispered to I shook my head. The smell of food was hard for a starving man to stand "We'll sit over by the wall then, Mino," she told her guide. "Hashas Mr. Paget been in tonight?"

Mino seemed desolated that Mr. Paget had not. I did not share his grief. I gave our order to the waiter and prayed inwardly that he vould be quick. From the center of the dance floor, a master of ceremonies spoke amid gusts of laughter and retired as two lines of girls pranced out on either side of the band platform. "The midnight show," Allegra said, lifting her voice above the din. "Do you mind?"

"I can take it or leave it, I think." "Doesn't," she mocked, "any sort of music please you? Have you no savagery in your breast, at all, Mis-

If I had not matched her own deliberation when food arrived, she would have had her answer. Allegra lifted her seidel and grinned at me across it.

"Here's luck," she called through the racket.

Suddenly the music paused, the dancers held a complicated formation and before applause rattled, I heard a voice in the booth next to ours. The band reviving, blotted it The dancers stamped and whirled. I sat with my seidel still half-way to my lips. Reason told me I was mistaken. My ears defied it. "It's not poison," Allegra said.

I could not answer her. I was back at the switchboard at the Morello and the wheel had just come off Miss Agatha's chair and I had left a voice—that identical voice—to get its own number while I rushed to the old lady's aid. But the owner of that voice was dead. I must be mistaken. And yet I knew I was

CHAPTER XIII

I hit my foot against the wine bucket and I said:

'Excuse me. Instinct supplied the words. Thereafter, I had no others. In the booth, where I had heard the dire voice raised, sat Ione and Lyon Ferriter. I had rushed for an avenue to the end of mystery and had slammed up against a blank wall. If my face were stupid with amazement, the Ferriters' were calm. Ione smiled, though I thought and she glanced at me again as her eyes widened. There was no flaw in Lyon's greeting.

me. My mind was crawling from the wreck of another collapsed hope. "Maybe, you've heard Grove or me | Perhaps I was beginning to have | delusions. Maybe, I had only imagined the guttural voice that I had heard once before as the herald of murder. I managed to smile and released Lyon's cordial hand.

"Thanks," I said inanely, "I just wanted-to say hello." "But sit down," Lyon urged, mak-

"Do," Ione begged. "A glass of wine," her brother went on and signaled a waiter. 'You're a godsend. The fact is that we're killing time rather than"his lean face wrinkled in a faint grimace-"go home. We're also waiting for Everett who was to meet us here. We find Mino's rather more soothing than what the papers call 'the murder flat.' Louis, another glass." "Thanks," I said again and shook my head. I did not dare inspect now the fresh horde of doubts that cried for attention. The most I could do was to cover up and I tried to keep my voice and my face quiet as I went on:

"I'm in the next booth, with Miss Paget. I thought I recognized your voice.

I hoped that by some sound or sign he might show alarm. The thick voice must have come from this booth. I'was as sure of this as I could be of anything, but Lyon was drawling on in his faintly English accent:

"Then I'll not ask you both to join us, though you'd be most welcome. I think I'm beginning to bore my sister a bit." The fondness, that ever showed when he spoke of her, softened his face now. "We've been here," said Lyon, "for-when did we come in, Louis?"

"Seven-thirty, sir," the lingering waiter replied.

"For almost five hours, then. Which only goes to show how much misery loves any company, eh, Mallory? I wish you'd have a glass with us

The band brayed on. My mind gyrated with the dancing chorus. "I must go back," I told Lyon. "We were on our way home. I've had a rather strenuous day."

"Good God," he said with a lit-tle shudder. "Who should know that better than I?" He frowned at the welt on his hand. Ione said in her husky voice: "I think you're pretty generous to speak to him at all, Mr. Mallory." "Accidents," I answered flatly,

"will happen."
"Which," Lyon supplied with a crooked grin, "is scarcely news to our family, eh? Good luck, old chap," he added, as I mumbled farewell and backed away. "Nice of you to hail us." As I returned to my table, I craned my neck into the booth beyond. It was unoccupied. That voice could not have come from there. It had issued from where Ione and Lyon sat. That meant then that Lyon-

I managed to smile at Allegra but my pretense was poor. She asked: "What is the matter?"

"Nothing in the world," I lied, and sitting down, hid my treacherous face in the beer seidel. When I I managed to smile at my astonished companion and slid out from lowered the emptied glass, I added: "Lyon and Ione Ferriter are in the next booth."

She dropped her voice to match mine. Her earnest eyes probed and pried at the mask I wore. 'What happened?"

I jeered to hide my own confu-

"You seem, my child, to have the wrong sort of hunches. Unless your brother is under the table, he had no date with her tonight. They have been here since seven-thirty." She was only half satisfied, and mocked in turn: "And I suppose your stampede to their booth was just a social call,

She was the one person in the world to whom I wanted to tell everything and I knew I would gain merit in her eyes by confiding in her. She was watching me with a fairer version of her aunt's derisive grin. I only said:

"Curiosity rather. I thought I recognized his voice." Perhaps, for that, the recording angel pasted a gold star on my report.

"You are," she told me, "the most chronic liar I ever met." "You're just beginning to appreciate my virtues," I answered. After a moment, she shivered a little and drew her coat up about her shoulders.

"Can the rest of them be displayed in a taxicab?" she asked.
"I think we'd better go." I knew she was worrying afresh over her no-account brother. "There could be no better showcase." I boasted, as we rose, The band blared its climax; the dancing girls skipped back to their dressing room in a rattle of applause. Beer rested uneasily in my stomach as I got my coat and hat from the check girl. I found my-self shivering. Not even the smile Allegra gave me as I helped her milk may be added to dough if it into the taxicab dispelled my misery. She was of the flotsam, the dark whirlpool into which we all were caught and whirled about ever | 1 cup sugar more rapidly.

We sat speechless while the taxi rolled uptown until silence grew uncomfortable. I said at last, to keep thought at bay:

"I'll remember this evening. It's one thing more I owe you and your aunt. I hope the pay-off will come some day."

I knew the words were stilted while I spoke, but only half my mind had followed them. Lyon had been the murderer.

Why? Lyon had spoken over the telephone, again in the restaurant, in a voice not his own. Or were those blunted cadences really his, and the faintly English speech he employed, part of a disguise he

Beside me, Allegra chuckled. "Must you," she asked, "behave like Electro, the mechanical man?"

"Meaning what?" I heard something more than jest behind her question.

She said, with an impatient ges-"Meaning many things. Among them, your pretense of dumbness. You aren't dumb." "Thanks."

"Or not," she pushed her attack, as dumb as that. Why don't you play fair?" There was earnestness in her speech. There was appeal on the face turned to mine. The world at the minute was filled with many things I was unfitted to handle. Her warm voice was blowing away everything but thought of how much I wanted her. I tried to get out of

"I'm at least," I told her, "that dumb. How haven't I played fair?" She did not answer for a minute. Then she said in a quiet voice:

"I've told you more than I've ever told anyone else-except Grove. I-I trust you a lot. Why don't you trust me?"

"I'd trust you with anything that's mine," I said. I meant it too. She laughed, but not as if she were amused. "So you say," she answered. "You fall over a wine bucket, you're in such a hurry to see who is in the next booth." She gave me the sort of look that always robbed me of my wind. Then she made it worse by slipping her strong little hand in mine. Her bright head was against my shoul-"You're pretty swell at that," she

I think the angel must have run out of gold stars before he laid aside my record that night. If I forgot all but my need of her, it was because her eyes and her soft mouth dared me; if, for an instant, I let go of everything I'd sworn to hold fast and kissed her, at least, I aught myself on the way down.

It wasn't the sort of kiss I, or she, wanted, yet it left us both breath-There was ringing in my ears and I thought the cab had a flat till I found it was the pounding of my heart. The pressure of the diamond and platihum coronet against my forehead helped me to let her After a little, when I did not speak she asked in a shaky voice:
