FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

C. O. Huber, Pastor
Thanksgiving, we remind ourselves of God's yearly blessings through His merciful services. To celebrate not in feasts and parties, but in service and salvation.
There has been so much contention and conflict in dates and details that we are apt to forget the purpose of the occasion. We do not forget the occasion of feasts are apt to forget to share our joys with others. We will not go to vacation but are apt to value God's remembrance. There is a reasonable expectancy of rejoicing but we are apt to rejoice over our own accomplishments rather than remember that it is the giver of every good and gift.
We are thankful for life and Him who is able to give it more abundantly. Not only thankful for needs supplied but thankful to who supplies our every need that we live in a land where we are mindful of the needs of fellow man. Thankful that we in a land where men honor the flag, but also thankful for the and protection which is symbolized in our national flag. Be thankful for the peace which we as a nation, but more than pray for the continuance of peace.
An expression of gratitude to God for Him, serve Him, and give life in service through His this next Lord's Day and invite you to worship with us.

She had many pictures and much handwork sent to her by her son, Lowell, who was for six years a wholesale man for E. R. Squibbs and Son in India, Bombay, Ceylon and the Straits settlement, prior to his death in Bombay in February of 1939. Lowell was a member of the McLean Presbyterian Sunday school in 1913-14. ## HUNTERS MUST HAVE WRITTEN PERMISSION

Hunting on the farms covered by the Gray County Game Preserve Demonstration will be limited to the first week in December, that is December 1st to 7th; however, written permission must be obtained from the individual land owner to hunt any time during the week.
A survey was made last week and a meeting of the game preserve members was held in McLean Saturday afternoon. J. M. Carpenter, president of the Game Preserve Association, presided at the meeting. The decision was made in accordance with the majority of the members.

According to the survey, only about 50% of the members feel that there are enough birds on their places to allow a take and have sufficient seed stock for the coming year. According to the game preserve agreement it is the duty of each member to see that sufficient seed stock be kept from year to year to maintain the number of game needed to stock the land.
According to Mr. Carpenter, there are many times as many birds on the preserved area as there were when the preserve association was organized two years ago, but there is still need of more birds on most of the area due to the fact that the stock was so depleted. It is the hope of the members of the association that the birds can be increased to where there will be good hunting over the county within the next few years.

Persons are cautioned to be sure and obtain written permission before doing any hunting on the land covered by the preserve, as according to the state law no person may hunt or fish on enclosed lands of another without the owner's consent—and every member is pledged to assist in enforcing state game laws.

The McLean Tigers won the championship of district 3-A, when they trounced the Shamrock Irishmen at Tiger Field last Friday night to the tune of 19 to 6. The Tigers will now meet the Floydada team in a bi-district game to be announced later.
The Tigers became district champions after Lefors withdrew from the conference on account of an illegible player.
The Tigers were outweighed about 12 pounds per man, but they played a whirlwind game the first half, stacking up two touchdowns to the Irish none.
With the opening of the second half, the Tigers again scored, while the Irish made their lone counter late in the third period.
The game was perfect from the fans' standpoint, with plenty of open plays and field runs. The stands were packed to capacity, and there were standees all around the field.
While the Irish were stubborn opponents, they appeared to be sluggish, the Tigers were on their toes all through the contest.

Achievement Day Observed by Club

Achievement day was observed by Eastside Club members last Thursday. They met first at the home of Mrs. Floyd Lively, where she told the story of her living room improvements. The walls of the room had been painted white, the floor around the rug repainted, a linoleum rug designed in light tan and wine has been added, and new curtains of white and wine add much to the attractiveness of the room. Mrs. Lively has also reupholstered and refinished a divan and chair.
After visiting with Mrs. Lively, the group motored to the home of Miss Hettie Burr. Miss Burr displayed her frame garden, in which were the following vegetables: lettuce, spinach, parsley, onions and carrots. In one end of the frame is a strawberry bed from which the visitors gathered ripe fruit. Miss Burr then invited the ladies to the cellar to view her canned goods. Mrs. Julia E. Kelley, agent, complimented Miss Burr by saying that she not only had a good variety and quantity of canned food, but that it was also of excellent quality.
The next home visited was that of Mrs. Elton Johnston, who told the story of her living room improvements. She had upholstered a divan and two chairs. The divan and one chair are finished in a very pretty and durable material in wine color, the other chair being covered with used material. Mrs. Johnston has added new curtains made of unbleached muslin and trimmed with wine colored balls to match the furniture. A smoking stand and piano stool were also refinished.
Mrs. Lively and Mrs. Johnston did their own work with the assistance of their husbands.
Refreshments of coffee and cookies were served to the following: Miss Burr, Mesdames C. A. Myatt, H. M. Roth, Lively, Johnston, Luther Petty, J. H. Wade and Kelley.
Mrs. C. M. Curry made part of the tour.
PEP RALLY LAST THURSDAY
A mammoth pep rally was staged by the school authorities last Thursday evening when a large bonfire was built on the vacant lots across from the city hall, and several citizens made talks looking to the Shamrock football tilt held the following evening.
The band paraded and school pep leaders made the affair lively.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Strike Situation and Japanese Crisis Prove Washington's Toughest Problems; Winter Closes In on Eastern Front As Russia Reports Taking Offensive

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

STRIKES: At Showdown

Congressional passage of the Neutrality act changes was a victory for the administration in that President Roosevelt stood his ground on his labor position, declining to meet a growing demand for legislation outlawing strikes, and laws setting a ceiling on wages.

Yet the narrow margin in the house (20 votes) also was considered a severe rebuke to the President for his attitude, and there were signs in the press and in congress that legislators and editors were getting ready to kick over the traces.

Crucial situations had faced the President both over the strikes in captive coal mines owned by steel companies, largely occupied in defense work, and in the threatened railroad strike.

There had been little evidence that the White House was getting anywhere in either struggle, though the President had made manful efforts to dissuade John L. Lewis and his U.M.W. from going overboard.

It was this situation more than any other which had caused the defection of many administration supporters during the Neutrality act voting.

The "closed shop" issue in the mine strike, never very popular in circles not closely allied with labor unions, caused the outburst of anti-strike feeling to be particularly severe.

RUSSIANS: On Warpath

Long on the defensive, and having lost many thousands of square miles of territory, Russia had assumed the offensive all along the vast front. Moscow was reporting considerable success against the Nazis, and reported that the Germans had been suffering from frostbite, that they were exhausted and discouraged, but admitted that back of the front there were evidences that another offensive was being formed.

Those who believed Hitler would order any withdrawal because of the weather were having to revise their opinions. The Russian drive against the Germans was meeting with the same rugged resistance the Reds themselves had offered against the Nazis.

Successes were reported in the far north, where Kuibyshev dispatches declared 20 German transports had been sunk in what was to have been a major invasion attempt in the Murmansk sector.

Also 2,500 Italians had been reported "eliminated" in the Crimean sector, and victories also were claimed by Russia in the Donets basin area.

The Finns were being hurled back in front of Leningrad, and the general Russian tone was one of confidence, yet watchfulness, the latter being stressed because Red headquarters figured the Germans still had at least one more huge attack up their sleeves.

VICHY:

To Join Hitler

Hardly unexpected at this time, and with the hostage-shooting matter being what it was, had come the report that Vichy was planning to "go the whole hog" and throw in with Hitler's "new order."

It had been known for a long time where the sympathies of Darlan and Laval had been, but Petain was supposed to have been more or less on the fence.

History one day might recount, observers felt, that there was some strange and mysterious connection between the fatal plane crash which killed General Huntziger and the decision to join the Axis.

Huntziger, minister of war, had just been to Africa, presumably conferring with Mystery Man Weygand and was on his way back home to a momentous meeting of the government when his plane fell and he was killed.

Many wondered what bearing this would have on the situation in Nazi-Vichy relations.

KURUSU: Last Try?

Most observers of the situation in the Pacific believed that with the arrival of Saburo Kurusu in Washington the last stage of the difficult effort of Japan and the United States to avoid war had been reached.

During his plane trip to this country there had been little of encouraging press comment, and the state department had again and again repeated its gloomy outlook.

Officials of the cabinet, particularly Secretary Knox of the Navy, had expressed this same view of depression over any chance of a peaceful settlement.

Still Kurusu had arrived, had been greeted with smiles by American diplomats, and the conversations were on.

Basic difficulty of solving an equation where Japan was at war with China and both Britain and America had declared this war an act of aggression and had been giving and promising aid to China was openly apparent.

Japan was urging the United States: "Leave us alone in China!"

The United States was demanding of Japan: "You let China alone!"

These points were poles apart.

ARK ROYAL: Finally Sunk

Most famous of the British aircraft carriers, Ark Royal, sunk several times according to Berlin dispatches, finally has been sent to the bottom, and it was London, not Berlin, which announced it.

It sank 25 miles off Gibraltar, while in tow of other warships after a U-boat had torn a terrific hole in her side. Pumps were unavailing to repair the damage, and practically all of the 1,600 aboard her had been removed save just enough men to handle the towing lines.

Finally, when she was nearing shallow water at last, she suddenly turned over on her side like a "tired child" and went to the bottom. Only one man of her crew was reported lost.

It was regarded as probable that many of her planes had been able to fly ashore and make port. Thus went to the bottom of the Mediterranean the third aircraft carrier Britain had lost, the largest and newest, launched in 1933, of 22,000 tons.

TURKEY: An Offer

Axis sources were reported to have made Turkey an offer of Thrace as a last inducement to get the Turks to join the triple alliance.

The sudden interest in Turkey on the part of Germany, as borne out in reports from both Berlin and Bern was rather a puzzle to some, while others saw in it the possibility that Germany might, now that she was somewhat bogged down in Russia, be seeking a Turkish route to Russian oil wells.

Three possibilities were seen—that Turkey had already decided to throw in with the Axis—that increased pressure would be brought to bear on Turkey (in line with Bern's view of the situation) and third, that Germany might be satisfied to have Turkey neutral and aloof but fearing that American and British pressure from the south might turn her from her neutral course to a pro-British stand.

LIFE:

A picture of what life was like in Serbia following the collapse of resistance against the southward plunge of the Nazi war machine was painted by the refugee Yugoslav government.

Reports reaching it were that about 8,100 hostages, including intellectuals, priests and students, had been executed in three villages.

The executions had been maintained, said Premier General Simovic, had been carried out at the rate of 100 to 1 in retaliation.

BRITISH: Restive

JOSEF STALIN Tribute from Mr. Churchill.

The British were exceedingly restive under the continued inaction except for heavy bombing raids over the channel. Many members of the house, especially the Laborite critics of Churchill, were loudly clamoring for the establishment of another front.

England, they said, was aware that a munitions race was going on in North Africa, with the Germans doing all they could to bolster their strength, and the British receiving vast supplies from the United States, and using their navy to attempt to break German communication lines.

But the house was demanding action on that front, being highly dissatisfied with the "stalemate" situation. Many believed it was not yet too late to start something on that front and drive the Nazis and Italians back on their heels into Libya again.

But the government was giving its critics little satisfaction, and was showing no inclination whatever to change the status quo. Churchill paid a tribute to that "great warrior Stalin," and said that all possible equipment and munitions would be sent to aid him.

He also said that Britain would firmly back up the United States in its attitude toward Japan. Beyond this he would not move a step, nor would he make cabinet changes.

AXIS: Blues

All was not rosy in Axis countries, dispatches had informed the world.

A New York Times correspondent, returning with his bride from Berlin, told of no rest, of constant harassments, of poor food, of no entertainment. The few passenger trains were so crowded that trips were extremely inconvenient, he reported, and said that he had lost 20 pounds due to poor food.

Eatable food only could be obtained in the most expensive restaurants, he added, and in the poorer ones the dinners "just wouldn't go down."

People are not told what kind of meat they are getting, he said, but it makes no difference as they all tasted the same.

London said Germany was desperate for oil, or she would have abandoned the Russian offensive for the winter, and be willing just to hang on.

A reliable source was quoted as saying that if the Russian oil fields were not conquered, Germany would be out of oil reserves by the winter of 1942.

The official German reports were beginning to tell the public of fierce Russian attacks, and the color of Berlin dispatches confirmed the fact that the Germans were on the defensive all along the front.

At the same time Italy couped an announcement admitting severe and continued raids on Italian cities by British planes with the ousting of the chief of the Italian air force, General Pricolo, and his replacement by General Fougriere.

MISCELLANY:

London: Arthur Greenwood declared that the United States' revision of the Neutrality act definitely assured a British-American victory in the battle of the Atlantic.

Cologne, Germany: The Reich's commissioner for The Netherlands said that following the war Dutchmen would be given full equality with Germans but that no nation in Europe would know full independence of the Reich again.

New York: A radio broadcast heard here revealed that Germany is planning an auto road from Ostend on the channel coast to the Dardanelles, and a canal connecting The Netherlands with the Black sea, using the Rhine, the Main and the Danube rivers.

Philadelphia: A former German priest, the Rev. Damascus Winzin, said that the Crucifix had been replaced in German state churches by the statue of an athlete.

Washington: The plane carrying Ambassador Steinhardt from Kuibyshev to Iran landed safely at Pahlevi, it was authoritatively reported. It was, however, a forced landing.

New York: The populace had been thrilled by a mock air raid, in which sirens wailed, flares sent up smoke, and pedestrians ran for cover as imaginary bombers passed over Union square.

Jewels and Beads Glitter on Dresses for Every Occasion

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FLATTERING is the word for the charming dresses that are given a new loveliness with artful touches of gay embroidery and go glittering through the style parade with a wealth of nailheads, sequins, jewels and beadwork. Indeed, this is a season when it is every woman's duty to look her prettiest in gowns designed to "do something for you."

Now that sparkle for daytime frocks as well as evening gowns is the vogue the new fashions are playing up glitter for all it is worth. Every woman should yield to the call of black with a dash of color and the gleam of beadwork and jewels. A dress or suit of this description will prove your standby for almost every occasion. Pictured are several eye-appealing fashions selected from a collection of daytime modes designed and displayed by the style creators of Chicago at a recent winter preview.

The good looking black crepe tunic dress shown to the right emphasizes its molded shoulders and hipline by means of steel nailheads. Shown with it is a high and handsome hat of colorful feathers. You will make a well-dressed appearance in this dress wherever you go.

To the left a dressier type sparkles with rhinestones. The slim fitted jacket has rhinestone pockets and is worn over a dress with a sheer yoke outlined in rhinestones.

Speaking of sheer yokes, they are a new styling detail that is being worked in fascinating and versatile ways. The latest dresses have yokes of the sheerest black lace, and for extreme flattery designers are styling wools and crepes in black or browns or the new deep

"black cherry" tones with pastel chiffon yokes, some of which are beaded in matching colors, while others are joined to the dress top and the seaming is concealed under sequin bands and bordering.

The figure seated in the center wears a dress of velvet trimmed with revers. There is a double peplum on the pert jacket. The dress is finished off at the neckline with a deep rhinestone necklace and a glittering rhinestone buckle fastens the jacket. Curly feathers cut out of black felt make the pompadour hat, which is graced with a floating veil.

The dainty young lady in the background to the right is wearing a delectable gown which follows the new trend toward colorful beadwork on black. You can get this model with light blue or dusty pink accents. Here is an apt illustration of the new trimming effect achieved with a bordering of embroidery outlining the seams of the sleeves, which have the new wide armholes. The midriff belt in matched beadwork balances the color inserts.

Very smart dresses are shown with all-round pleated skirts, the bodice top being of the long-torso, fitted type with an all-over sprinkling of beads or sequins or tiny gold nailheads. The spray of flowers worked in metal threads and beads is placed so as to take the place of the usual bodice clip or ornament. Black jet beaded sweaters of the middie type are also in smart fashion.

Smartly Styled

Here is a perfect gown to wear under your winter coat. It gives you color. It gives you chic. And this slick town dress designed by Joseph Whitehead is in the best American tradition of perfect workmanship. It is of ravishingly colored striped wool with velveteen touches at neck and waist. The "pinch" beret has bright coq feathers.

Like a Cape

An English idea borrowed for our sport coats: Ribbon bands to slip your arms through when you just toss the coat over your shoulders, like a cape.

Wear a Scarf or Shawl

Over Your Formal Gown

As an avenue for expression in romance and feminine allure, there is no accessory that surpasses the witchery of a picturesque scarf or dainty shawl. That is, perhaps, the reason for the preference this season for flattering scarf or lacy shawl instead of a bolero or jacket to wear with evening clothes. This new acceptance of evening shoulder covering is further noted in the capelet shawls of self fabric, or long tulle scarfs matched to the dress. The vogue also accounts for the appearance of ostrich neck ruffs in the formal evening picture.

'Down in Back' Hems

Herald New Silhouette

In the very newest sophisticated dresses something happens to hemlines that give skirts an entirely new aspect. That "something" is that hemlines are made to plunge down in the back achieving a most graceful, pleasing new silhouette. For the most part the new "lines" are seen in slim black dresses for smart afternoon wear, and in narrow, seductive evening skirts. In the formal skirts the narrowness is relieved by a slit at the side that reveals your beautiful evening slippers.

Handkerchiefs

Fur fashions lead the way in novelty handkerchiefs with 22-inch chiffon squares bordered with genuine ermine. "Naughty Nineties" handkerchiefs are reminiscent of the era when every taffeta dress was the background for a big, bold cabbage rose. Brilliant colors and effusive floral patternings are featured in this group.

DATING PARTY

Skating party was held by the men and sophomore classes Friday night of last week in the school gymnasium. There were approximately seventy students present from the two classes. The party consisted of two teams. The new ladies' skates which came last week were used.

Boys Troop Irish District Crown

The McLean Tigers stepped onto the district 3-A throne Friday night by defeating a 19 to 6 victory over the Shamrock Irishmen. This was the first time in six years the Tigers have won the district crown.

It was evident after the Tigers' early lead in the first quarter that Tiger speed would overcome the Irish line. Some mighty flogging enabled Cooke to break into secondary a couple of times and there on it was speed and class that carried Cooke over the goal line. One of Cooke's touchdowns was an 80-yard jaunt and another a 35-yard run. The other touchdown came when Cooke went from the 1-yard line.

He was knocked out in the latter part of the first quarter and played most of the ball game not knowing much of what was going on. On all he knew was to get the ball with the ball, and three-fourths of the time Lee was the boy that had the man with the ball. Lee was the outstanding player on the team. Some of the hardest tackling has been thrown on Tiger in some time were thrown by Gene Autry who won the Tiger until the next morning.

freddie freshman says

Ain't it most nigh onto scandalous the way our teachers are doing? Think of it, Mr. Cryer and Miss Gadberry going on a trip together and staying almost a week! And this thing of Miss Cousins and Mr. Wilson taking a course in lockerology, locker 86, if you really want to know. . . . Hasn't this cousin of Gene Autry's created a stir? You know, I don't think her relation to Gene Autry has anything to do with it, because she is quite a sensation in herself. I sure would like to get better acquainted, but I am just a lowly little freshman. . . . Well, I guess Frances Sitter has just about forgotten Paul. She has gotten to where she just writes three letters a week. I bet Paul sure does get lonesome for news from home. And to top it off I have seen her with Bill Carpenter three or four times. . . . Have all you guys seen all the new jewelry that is being sported around? There's where a man's money goes. Joyce has a new cameo locket, at least I think that's what they call it, and Bernice Combs has a bracelet. I think that with all my experience I will have enough smart to refrain from buying such things. I noticed that Loyce Thacker had the bracelet Earl gave her, too. . . . All these college guys didn't waste much time in getting dates, did they? Over the "weak" end, I saw James Fulbright with Margie Ballard, Oran Back with Mary Lee Abbott, Sonny Back with Bobby Crisp. I don't know what was the matter with James' cousin at the game, but maybe it was because James was with his girl. . . . Well, I want to wish you all a happy Thanksgiving and remember Mother Murphy's meat balls if you eat too much. They are good for all aches and pains, including overeating and eating too much and indigestion and stuffing and getting an excess of food. They come in two convenient sizes, large and small. You can get them at your nearest baby counter. . . . Bye.

"The Horse and Buggy Doctor" by Hertzler, is the story of an American doctor with the most primitive of equipment (including a colt "peacemaker" for warding off wild dogs) and with no hospital facilities. Many a farm kitchen was a surgical arena in those days. Here is a book of intimacy and homely humor.

"The Road Back" by Remarque, is an outstanding war novel.

Other popular book titles: Northwest Passage, Green Light, Disputed Passage, All This and Heaven, Too, and Mortal Storm.

THANKSGIVING

We Have Much to Be Thankful for!

As our Nation girds to keep our cities and countryside free from blood and destruction, we feel that one of the greatest reasons for thankfulness this year is the fact that we as Americans have hope and faith that a better world will emerge from the wreckage of the present war, and that our country will share in this program of universal betterment.

Vanished Men By GEORGE MARSH Penn. Publishing Co. W.L.U. Service

INSTALLMENT EIGHTEEN THE STORY SO FAR: Six men traveled the Chibougamau trail and six men died. Later they were reported drowned. Murder is suspected. Garry Finlay, brother of one of the six; Red Malone, mounted Police officer, and Blaise, half-breed guide, posing as surveyors, arrive at Nottaway to investigate. Isadore, rich fur man, is thought to have made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out. Later they visit Isadore at his magnificent home and meet Lise, his stepdaughter. Finlay falls in love with her. Later they land on an island and are attacked by Indians. They learn that Isadore's men are hunting them and tense themselves as they hear the gunmen approaching.

Before the three men could drop to the beach below, where the canoe lay, there was the sound of something approaching over the shore path. "Club 'em with your gun, Blaise! Don't make a noise!" "Here dey are!"

With the impact of a sledge-hammer Red's clubbed .45 dropped the first man senseless. Finlay's heavy pistol glanced from the face of the next and he fell with a scream. In his surprise the third Montagnais fired his rifle in the air as a blocky body lunged into him carrying him to the ground. But the damage was done. The bush was now full of yelling Montagnais headed for the sounds.

"Launch the canoe, Blaise, while we stand them off!" cried Finlay. As the Peterboro shot past the point and into the moonlight a canoe broke from the shore shadows to bar their path.

"Everyone down!" warned Garry. The three paddlers flattened as spurts of flame leaped from the birchbark. But in the half-light the aim from the moving boat was poor. "Don't shoot! Run 'em down!" ordered Finlay.

The Peterboro leaped to the drive of the maple blades. With a crash the bow of the wooden craft knifed through the birchbark, amidships, rolling her under with its momentum. Before they could fire again the three Montagnais were in the water. With a lunge of his long stern blade Blaise pushed the filled shell of the birchbark clear of the Peterboro's stern. Then the maple paddlers bowed as the three friends drove their craft through the moonlit water and into the protecting shadows of the opposite shore.

"Close shave!" panted Finlay, "but we made it!"

CHAPTER XVIII Late that night, when Wabistan's canoe found the hidden camp of the police, the eyes of the old Indian glittered with triumph.

"You not hurt?" he asked, squinting into the faces of his friends as they wrung his hand.

"Not a scratch, chief!" Red patted the old man's shoulder.

"I'm glad we got clear of that canoe without using our guns," said Finlay. "Too many men have been shot here this summer."

"But it was their lives or ours, Garry. Tete-Blanche and his whiskey-fed crew would snuff us out as they would a candle!"

"I know, but headquarters may not see it that way. I'm sorry it had to be done."

With Flame and young Patamish, who was devoted to Finlay and would be useful as a scout, the Peterboro started at once through the islands, hugging the shadows of the western shores, for the moon was now low on the ridges.

The following night they reached their old camp and Patamish started with Finlay's message. Before dawn Garry was waked by something pulling at his blanket.

"Patamish!" whispered the boy. "I find dis undair stone."

Finlay's hand shook as he took the note, lit a candle lantern and read:

"Dearest: It has seemed so long—this waiting for you. Blondell is expected now, any day. Everyone except Jules and Labelle are at the head of the lake. I tried to learn what was happening there, but could not. They haven't returned. Jules is drinking hard. Corinne heard him tell Labelle that if you saw that plane arrive from the North and got away with the information, the jig was up. I don't understand for he knows that people in Montreal suspect he's shipping gold south by plane. That's no secret. I've tried to avoid him but he cornered me last night and said: 'You'll never see your friend again. He's walked into a trap, nosing around this lake. We'll take care of him this time. So, when Felix comes, you'd better agree to marry him. He's got plenty stowed away in Montreal—can give you anything you want. If you won't be reasonable, you can take the consequences.'"

"Dearest, I'll not stay a day after that plane arrives. I'll take Louis and camp somewhere in the bush. Send for me! Oh, send for me! Let me know, quick, that nothing's happened to you! With all my love, "Lise."

"You went to the post to find Mikisis?" asked Finlay. He could feel the drumbeat of his heart in his throat.

"Ah-hah! Mikisis was gone. Something strange was dere, on de water!"

"On the water?" The news he dreaded hit Finlay like the chill of ice. "What was it?"

"Beeg canoe wid wing like gull!" In his remorse Finlay crushed Lise's note in his hand. Blondell's plane had reached Waswanipi! He found a scrap of paper and wrote:

INSTALLMENT EIGHTEEN

and Blaise, half-breed guide, posing as surveyors, arrive at Nottaway to investigate. Isadore, rich fur man, is thought to have made a gold strike and aims to keep prospectors out. Later they visit Isadore at his magnificent home and meet Lise, his stepdaughter. Finlay falls in love with her. Later they land on an island and are attacked by Indians. They learn that Isadore's men are hunting them and tense themselves as they hear the gunmen approaching.

"Just got your note! I'll wait at the nearest island, tonight, tomorrow and every night following, for your canoe. Courage! I love you!" "Garry."

That night, before the twilight died, Finlay and Red lay in the thick alders of the shore of the island opposite Isadore's with binoculars focused on the anchored sea-plane and the post. Later, lights, like stars, glowed in the trade-house and the living quarters. The lights died. Hour after hour the two men waited. But Lise did not come.

"She'll come tonight, Garry. Don't worry."

"Somehow we've got to learn why that plane comes here from James Bay before we go after Isadore."

"We know she carries flake gold and nuggets from the river bars when she finally heads south. Isadore admitted that to McNab, at Matagami."

"Get shot for our pains and, besides, spoil the whole show? No, I'm going to learn more about that plane from the Bay first. We can't arrest Isadore without a gun fight."

"Very good, Sergeant Finlay! What are the orders?" laughed Red. "You'll get them, constable, when that plane shows up."

At daylight the faint hum of a plane's engine brought the police from their hidden camp to the shore. Far across the lake, above Isadore's, they saw a sea-plane spiraling for altitude.

"They'll make it hot for us, now."

The plane started for the outlet, twenty miles to the west, and, later appeared following the south shore.

"Tete-Blanche is back with the news and they're out for revenge," said Red. "They'll make it hot for us, now."

The plane passed overhead following the lake shore and the concealed police could see a man leaning from the cockpit searching the shore below with glasses. Shortly it faded into the east.

"It's the middle of August, Red. That plane from the Bay is due."

That night they waited on the shore of the island for Lise's canoe. Hour after hour drifted past but through the murk came no welcome sound of a paddle prying off a gunwale.

Finlay slouched on a stone, head in hands. What had happened to her? She had said she wouldn't stay a day after the plane arrived. She had begged him to send for her. She had had two days to get the note. What had happened to Lise?

He looked at the illuminated face of his watch. It was one o'clock. They had waited five hours. "She won't come tonight, Red," he said, rising.

"No, she won't—" Malone did not finish.

"Hear something?" "Didn't you? It was pretty faint—might have been a loon!"

The two men stood rigid—with checked breaths. They paddled hard for a minute, then stopped to listen. Suddenly out of the gloom, ahead, wavered the cry: "Gar-ree! Gar-ree! Help!"

Eyes stabbing the gloom in search of the crippled canoe, the two men approached the sound. "Where are you, Lise? Where's your boat?" "Here I am,—here!" There was a faint splash off the bow of the canoe and Finlay's straining eyes caught the dim outlines of a head and bare shoulder.

Because I love you!" she whispered, while Red paddled hard for the camp.

"Oh, my dear! My dear!" murmured Garry, shielding her body with his own from the night air. "I've worried so—been half mad!"

"It was too terrible, there! They're drinking and worried! I had to threaten to shoot Blondell!"

His arms tightened around her. "Mind? I love it, beautiful!"

"You seem to!" she laughed up at him. Then she called out to Red whose thoughts were far away at Matagami as he drove his long paddle. "Not going to speak, Mr. Malone?"

"It's Red to you, Lise! If you knew how glad I am to have you here! We've been pretty worried! I want to say they don't come any gamer than you!"

"Thanks, Red!"

Blaise stared open-mouthed as Garry led a girl wearing his coat over a one-piece bathing suit up to the fire.

"Blaise, this is Lise. We picked her out of the lake, swimming to the island."

"You swim—in de dark?" demanded the astounded Brassard. "By gar, you are brave girl! Tieni! She swim from Isadore's in dis black night?"

Shortly the group of men smoking by the fire burst into laughter. Stiff in front of the tent with hand at salute stood a mounted Policeman.

"So you're Mounties! I've wondered what you really were. Jules Isadore has been wondering, too. He's pretty worried about it. Now that I've fallen into the hands of the police, what am I charged with?" she laughed.

"You are charged with the felony of scaring two policemen half to death by swimming to this island, young woman."

"I had to." For a space her face was serious, then a smile broke through as Finlay handed her a steaming cup of tea.

The others left Lise and Garry by the fire while she told him her story.

"Since Felix Blondell came it's been hellish, Garry. They do nothing at night but drink and quarrel. I've learned what I could from Corinne. She's absolutely petrified. When Tete-Blanche returned, Jules was mad with rage at what happened. It seems Kinebik is dead. Did you know that?"

Garry's arm tightened about her waist. "Yes, I know it."

"Well, Tete-Blanche brought back a lot of drunken young Indians to hunt for you. Blondell is getting scared. He wants to return south."

"They're anxious about that plane from the Bay. It's overdue. They think, now, that that's what you came here for—to get that plane. Corinne asked Blondell if that was the plane that carried the gold south and he looked at her queerly and said: 'Yes, it carries the gold. That's what these people are here for, to highjack it, but we've got enough men here to shoot them out of their canoes if they try that.' Garry, you're not going to try to take Isadore—just you three, are you? He's got a lot of Indians over there and he's desperate."

He drew her red-coated shape close and kissed the velvet eyes that searched his bronzed face. "Don't worry about that, Lise. You don't think I'm going to risk losing you when I've only just got you here—safe?"

CHAPTER XIX The following night six canoes drifted silently up to the hidden police camp. It was Wabistan and his friends. Finlay decided that it was time to reveal his identity to the old man. He drew him to one side with Blaise.

"Tell Wabistan who we are, Blaise, and why we are here."

The eyes of the old chief glowed like black tourmalines.

"Wabistan navare forget. He come to help his fr'en'."

"We must wait until the flying canoe comes from the North," said Finlay. "Then we'll go to Isadore's."

"Yes, we wait," agreed the old man. "We wait." He turned to Blaise and spoke rapidly in Montagnais.

"Wabistan say he go to Matagami for flour, shell and tobacco. He come back in t'ree-four day. He start now."

On the morning of the fourth day after Wabistan's departure for Matagami, Finlay and Red were watching the post through binoculars from the shore of one of the islands.

"He's got a regiment of Indians over there, Red," said Garry. "It looks as if we'd bitten off a large chunk of trouble."

"We sure have, Red."

"But we're going in just the same and grab that ship."

"We are, Red."

That night, on returning from the lake with water, Blaise called to Finlay where he sat with Lise by the fire. "Come to de shore! I show you somet'ing."

People are urged not to repeat idle gossip. We have never heard any idle gossip. All we have heard has been able to travel fast and far.

After Thanksgiving, thoughts turn to Christmas, and with all the advice to shop early that has been given for the past 50 years, people still wait until the last minute to buy presents in total disregard for the tired clerks and depleted stocks. However, this year early shopping will mean something. Most things cannot be replaced by merchants after stocks are exhausted, and last minute shoppers will be sadly disappointed.

YOUTH AND COMMUNISM

By Rev. R. L. Franks

"Lenin of communism said that the youth section was the most important part of the international communist movement. Communist agents in America are feverishly working to influence youth in the schools, colleges, summer camps, clubs and by pacifist movements. "During 1936, Moscow used 86 different languages on its godless, missionary printing presses, producing some 10,000 publications. Of these 37 million copies that went out 32 million were for boys and girls alone."

The Vigilante says that each member of communist organizations is commanded to join the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Masonic Lodge, Odd Fellows, Parent-Teacher Associations etc. They are especially admonished to join church groups.

The seed of communism HAS TAKEN ROOT! Carl Ross, an American-born and American-educated youth, refused to say he would bear arms for his native country against Soviet Russia in case of war. The young man, who is secretary of the Young Communist League, said he represents 15,000 youths.
