Tigers Hold Broncs 6 to 10

The Tigers held the Clarendon Bronchos to a 6 to 10 score in the game played Friday night.

Early in the first quarter the Bronchos threatened the Tigers' goal line when a long kick from the Bronchos landed on the Tigers' five, but they lost the ball on the next play. The quarter ended nothing at all.

In the second quarter the Bronchos managed to score and the extra point was good. The Tigers continued to play good football, but made a few costly fumbles.

In the second quarter the Bronchos managed to kick a field goal on the Tiger 30-yard line, raising their score to 10.

The last half ended with the Bronchos making their lone score in the line pluses.

McLean led in first downs, 11 to Clarendon 4. Penetrations were made for each team.

The Clarendon and Kellerville games performed between halves. In appreciation feature of the game was removing spectators from the foul lines. This is the first time in years that the fans' stands had an uninterrupted view of the plays. Constable G. Nicholson and Deputy Sheriff C. T. Calvert patrolled the game as a courtesy to the team. Officials were from Borger: Referee, Joe Ed Forbis; umpire, McSpadden; head lineman, Tucker.

SGT. GARDNER WRITES

Starke, Fla., 11 Oct., 1945.
Editor McLean News,
McLean, Texas.

Dear Sir:

I presume I am writing this letter to a man whom I know very well, but then again maybe Mr. T. A. Landers isn't still the editor of my home town paper. Regardless of that, I will explain who I am, where I am and all such details.

I am S. Sgt. Stanton L. Gardner, a graduate of M. H. S., in 1938, the best bunch of seniors, in my opinion, that ever graduated from "dear old M. H. S."

I left McLean in June after graduating in May of 1938, and went to North Bergen, N. J., and made my home for some years. I was married while there to a young lady from Springfield, Mo. We had a lovely daughter born to us on Oct. 2, 1941.

In August, 1942, I moved to K. C., Mo., and worked on construction there until April, 1943. At that time I moved to Sunnyvale, Wash., and went to work on construction of the atomic bomb plant at Richland Village, Wash. I was working for E. I. DuPont at that time. I was called into the army in July of 1944 and have been in Camp Blanding, Fla., since that time. Since I finished my basic training in November of last year, I have been held here as training cadre.

The above information is for publication if you see fit; if not, that is all right, too, but I just wanted to contact my home town once more and try to get up some correspondence with some or all of my old friends there.

I am including one dollar and want you to send me three or four back issues of The McLean paper and keep sending it to me until the dollar is used up. Please inform me how much a six months subscription is and I will send you the money for same. If it isn't too much bother, I would appreciate it if you would look up the names of the class of '38 and inform me as to where they all are; that is the ones which you know of. I know this is asking a lot, but I certainly would appreciate it. Presuming that the editor is still Mr. T. A. Landers, I am sure that your daughter, Marie, if she is still around, would out of old friendship drop me a line or two and tell about my old friends there.

Respectfully yours,
S/SGT. STANTON L. GARDNER

LIBRARY NEWS

By Mrs. Gibson
National Bible Week, Oct. 15-21, 1945—"Non-secular in nature but all inclusive in character and meaning, urges people to read the Bible, citing Matthew 22:29, "Ye do err knowing not the scriptures nor the power of God," and recalling that "America was founded on man's consciousness of God, man's daily labor and the fruits thereof." In 50 years of best sellers, 1895-1945, the Bible is undoubtedly the best seller of all time. It has been called by John L. Lowes "the noblest monument of English prose." It is as well the richest monument for within its covers are found all types of literature, both in prose and poetry. Here are ancient songs, stories, men and women of all sorts and in all conditions, drama, biography, the best letters ever written. The language of the Bible, simple and direct, has placed its stamp upon our best writers from Bacon to Lincoln, and even to the present day. Without it there would be no Paradise Lost, no Pilgrim's Progress, no Whittier or Emerson, no negro spirituals, no address at Gettysburg. Without it the words of Burke, Washington, Patrick Henry and Winston Churchill would miss their eloquence and meaning. Without a knowledge of it the best features and qualities of our spoken language are threatened to extinction. We really learn only from those books we cannot criticize. The author of a book which we could criticize would have to learn from us. I am convinced that the Bible will always be more beautiful the more it is understood.

MYROSE WRITES

Venmor, N. J., Oct. 10, 1945.
Mr. Landers:

I know you will be interested knowing that the chaplain will be in the States within a few weeks. He has received orders for stateaide duty but must wait for his relief before returning.

He has written me about how much he has enjoyed receiving McLean News, but because of transporting so many troops in 4 weeks—has not had time to write for a month or more. He wants me to transfer any news to him by air mail. Would you kindly discontinue his subscription and add what is remaining to mine?

Body Lou seems lots better. Is not completely well. She will be able to attend school by the end of the year. Because of her health the specialists state we must move to warm climate so she can hope and pray "our daddy" will get duty in a southern base. God has been very gracious to me.

The war is over, but for me it is no time to rejoice. There are many saddened hearts and the war has caused many deaths. It sometimes looks like there may be another in several years, but we pray that God will help us and teach us to hate evil and live as brothers and sisters.

We think of all our dear friends in McLean so much. The McLean News has been a comfort and uplifted me many days. Some things seemed upsetting to read about friends in Texas and my spirits high.

Hope all of your family are well. If you ever get near where we live, do visit us. You and the chaplain can have one of our old time chats.

Many thanks for publishing my news and will impatiently wait for the next Monday when this news arrives.

Please say "hello"—I should say "hello" to all our McLean friends. There was one, it was a treat to have a letter from you—the trouble was she didn't stay long enough. I've written on and on and you have work to do before reading this scribble.

Love and bless you all.
A friend,

CATHERINE MYROSE
(Mrs. J. W. Myrose.)

C. Shall send to Dallas on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Jordan went to Pampa Friday.

Miss Graham was in Oklahoma City last week.

Mrs. Fowler made a business trip to Shamrock Friday.

One of the things civilians must get used to is that when a man is discharged from the service, he loses his title. An army title for a civilian is just a nickname and is poor taste.

The school athletic officials are to be congratulated on removing the big crowd of men and boys who always followed the line at the football games. Yet, the American people are asked

The need of a city permit to solicit funds for any purpose is voiced by several each week. As matters now stand, anyone can solicit business men and others for anything, and with a few names to a list, others hesitate to be called short and many times contribute against their better judgment. WHAT DOES A VICTORY BOND LOOK LIKE?

1. A funny question? Well, maybe. A Victory Bond looks like a Victory Bond. Like these . . .

2. But wait a minute! Hold those Bonds till maturity, when "E" Bonds will pay back four dollars for every three you've invested—and keep buying more Bonds—and they can look like this! Your home—all yours!

WHICH ISN'T WHAT INTEREST

Maybe radio is doing good things for American speech. Some- I wonder.

Certainly it is affecting dialects. There were many and now there are only three major ones—Eastern, Western and South- Eastern.

Certainly it is making our speech more uniform. But is that good? Are we losing something of the uniqueness of our American speech—those words and phrases that mark a man as coming from Boston or the hills of Kentucky?

Somewhere there is a certain beauty and humor and effective- ness in the homespun words we've come to look upon as colloquial- isms and even vulgarisms. Take the word "git" for example. When a man says "git" down in Brown county, Indiana, it's twice as ef- fective as "get." The same goes for that southern Illinois revival phrase, "As you do, you'll git ac- cordingly."

When the folk from back country say a man is do-less, it means much more than lazy. And no one would want to change the name of a man like the late president with his "My Frands"? The Kentucky mountaineers' phrase "Died abornin'?" So, things aren't what they were before the radio.—Rose- mary Redding in "Women Talk about" in Chicago Sun.

PLEASE NOTE

The story of the creation of the world is told in Genesis in 2,253 words. The world's greatest code—the Ten Command- ments—contains only 297 words. Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg ad- dress is but 266 words in length. The Declaration of Independence required only 1,321 words to set a new concept of freedom. The office of price administra- tion uses 2,500 words to announce a reduction in the price of cab- age seed.

To the People of this Community

Some day in the next few weeks a volunteer salesman will ask you to buy more bonds. You may be tempted to answer: "The war's over, haven't you heard? Would you care to give that reply to any one of the 300,000 young Americans now fighting for health in military hospitals from coast to coast? Would you care to walk a patrol in Tokyo or Berlin with a GI and tell him "the war's over?"

Of course, the bloody fighting is over. Your job in helping to clean up the money cost is the easiest patriotic chore any country ever asked of its citizens; loan of more dollars to be repaid at good interest in 10 years. Compare that job with the chore you have handed to your own son or neighbor's son to spend countless days in strange lands to nail down the victory.

Think you can afford to say no to the Victory Loan salesman? Have a talk with your conscience this very moment. Be ready for your Victory Loan salesman in spirit as well as in pocketbook. THE EDITOR

PICKLES

Industrially great as is Pittsburgh, it demands recognition, too, as the home of one of the nation's greatest food processors. Heinz pickles and other vegetable products in glass and metal containers are sold throughout the world. From a small brick building, this business has grown to require 26 major plants and 150 branches. The small sums housewives pay for its items everywhere contribute to national prosperity and help assure War Bond payments. U. S. Treasury Department

MACHINIST'S Mate Aurelio Tassone, Milford, Mass., recipient of a Silver Star Medal for gallantry in a Pacific island landing, should inspire thousands to buy Victory Bonds. When a Jap pillbox caused casualties in a construction force, he drove at it with a bulldozer. At a signal from an officer he dropped the blade of the machine and annihilated 12 men entrenched there. Lester Green, gardener, has found a way to fool cutworms. Before he sets out tomato plants he paints about fifty iron spikes with tomato juice and sticks them in the ground. After chewing on the spikes for a week the cutworm's cutter is so dull it can't cut off a plant. Then Lester sets out his tomatoes and the plants all live so he saves money to buy extra War Bonds. U. FINANCIAL STRAITS

Horace Greeley once received a letter from a woman stating that her church was in distressing financial straits. They had tried all sorts of devices—fairs, festivals, suppers, mock marriages, and socials. Would he suggest something new to keep the struggling church from disbanding? "Why not try religion?" the editor wrote back.

Friendly Thoughts By Womack

A spirit of friendliness lies behind most of the great discoveries of the world. The desire to make man's life a healthier, happier one is the driving force that enables men to endure years of hardship.

Ostentatious sympathy is often out of place. We perform our duties in a quietly solicitous manner that does not intrude.

DONKEY HAS MERELY CHANGED STATES

Rambler finds it agreeable to read the comments that appear in the open forum columns of the Houston Post, and especially those coming from able writers, comments in rebuke to what the Democrats—so-called—do offer for the manner in which the "Regulars" are claiming to have elected Truman. Rather amusing to read how these usurpers of right seek to tar the white record of the "Regulars" who succeeded, by defeating the nomination of Wallace (who would now be President) in having Truman nominated.

Why continue to use the tar brush? Why not save the emblem of Democracy? Why not recognize that the old donkey has a new expression, and a new location? Grass in the Missouri hills may be sweeter than they were in the Catskill mountains. Leastwise the donkey has become a Missouri mule, ears thrust forward and rear hoofs backward. His hee-haw has changed from the old familiar rumble to patient kicking. Eventually he will kick

LIVESTOCK IN KANSAS

Despite the general opinion, livestock, and not wheat, is a chief source of income in Kansas. This state also has the largest broom corn market and is first among all states for flour milling, averaging more than 13,000,000 barrels each year. Such diversified production helps build the wealth of a great nation. The Bonds of that nation are the world's soundest investment. U. S. Treasury Department

Feathered Interlude

TOM Rafferty gazed at the stuffed duck mounted over the mirror in Casey's Bar. He turned to Tim Eagan. "Wurra, Eagan," he declared, still eyeing the bird "there's sittin' a terrible waste of a timplin' dish. Och, how I'd love to be layin' me lip o'er a tinder slice o' roast duck."

"Rafferty," Eagan said smugly "ye're mintonin' ducklin' to a bucko who's after knowin' thir habits. Faith, lad, me shootin' succiss was the invy an' toast o' Dublin." He grinned confidently and plunged into a detailed recital of his prowess. "An' this bein' duck sea son," he continued, "I'll drive 'round early in the mornin' an' take ye huntin'. From a master ye'll be larnin' the fine pints o' the sport."

That night high winds swept down the coast and it was raining and cold when Eagan pounded vigorously on Rafferty's door. Rafferty's head popped from an upstairs window. "G'way!" he bellowed. "I'm after changin' me mind. The Lord's givin' a duck too many brains to be flyin' a night the likes o' this."

Eagan insisted that the lull after a storm always made for good hunting. "Tis to a pond tin miles from the sea I'm takin' ye," Eagan explained as they climbed into the car with boots and hunting equipment.

The car safely parked in a narrow lane, Rafferty and Eagan splashed through the marshland and into a natural blind on the rim of the pond. "Keep yer face outta sight," Eagan ordered as he knelt in the reeds. "Tis gittin' daylight an' 'twould be scarin' the birds."

Rafferty growled and squinted, then stepped to one side. His roar shattered the silence as he slid hip deep into the mire of a sinkhole. Eagan demanded silence and gazed upward into the drizzle and fog. "May the devil take the wither man," he sputtered in disgust. "The air's after havin' hairs on it."

He laid his gun against a pole and reached for his pipe. At that moment a duck, quacking softly, settled on the pond and glanced curiously about. Rafferty, spellbound, stopped shivering and stood motionless. The duck dipped daintily into the water and then, while Eagan scrambled for his gun, took off and disappeared into the blanketed sky. Eagan squinted at Rafferty. "Me dear frind," he said softly, "whin huntin' 'tis the object to be shootin' the bird—not charmin' him." His voice rose. "Why wasn't ye shootin'?" he thundered.

Rafferty shook his leg. "'twas a hin duck," he muttered weakly. "An' I'm shootin' no moother."

Eagan examined the loads in his gun and glowered at Rafferty. Then suddenly a graceful form swooped low. Eagan's gun barked. The duck wheeled sharply and, as Eagan fired the second shot, with an impertinent flip of its wings the duck disappeared into the mist. "Faith, he's after flyin' up, spittin' in yer face, an' flyin' safe away," Rafferty gloated.

It was then Eagan noticed the stranger. He stood on the edge of the pond examining a dead bird he'd picked up in the reeds near the base of an overhanging tree. "Och, the spalpeen's stealin' me duck," Eagan whispered to Rafferty. "But I'm the lad who'll make the bucko hand him over."

The man looked up astonished when Eagan, in a belligerent voice, demanded the bird. "Can you identify it?" he asked mildly. "I'd like to be certain this is the bird you killed."

Eagan peered through the fog. "'Tis him!" he affirmed promptly. "Sure, I'd be knowin' the shape anywhere."

The stranger moved closer. "Then," he said sternly, "actin' on your admission of guilt, as game warden I place you under arrest. This county protects its sea gulls."

The warden held out the bird and Eagan had his first good look. "Wurra, me eyes is after lyin'," he sputtered, moving away. "'Tis nivr the bird I thought. Mistakin' identity."

His eloquent pleas of innocence fell on deaf ears. "Just tell it all to the judge," the warden said coldly. Then he paused and studied Eagan's face. "Of course," he finally admitted, "there are, perhaps, extenuating circumstances. I am also chairman of the county Red Cross and should you care to make a donation of, well . . . er . . . shall we say a pint of blood . . ."

Eagan quickly agreed. "An' devil a bit o' punishmint is that," he muttered sourly as the warden handed the bird to Rafferty and wrote directions to the blood donors' headquarters on the back of a card. With a smile and thanks, the warden walked away.

Suddenly Rafferty stared closely at the bird in his hand. A wide grin split his blunt features. "Arragh," he chortled. "'tis a day I'll nivr forget an' I'm thinkin' the lads at Casey's 'll be lovin' this tale."

Eagan squinted. "'Twas but a mistake o' me keen shootin' eye," he growled.

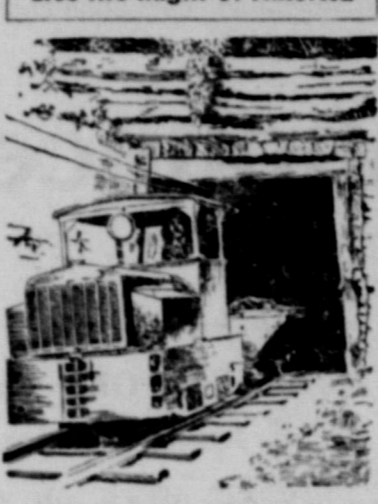

Rafferty glanced at the tree and his grin widened. "Eagan," he chuckled, "there's devil a shot in the gull. He's after breakin' his neck flyin' against the tree in the night's storm. Faith, 'tis me who's declarin' ye'd bist be stickin' to yer lyin' huntin' in Casey's."

COAL IN IOWA

Ranking second to agriculture in Iowa's resources, coal has been mined for 93 years. Twenty-two counties produce it. From 3 1/2 million tons in 1880, it increased to 9 million in the peak year of 1917. In 1910, 297 mines employed 18,000 men. Recently the output has dropped to 3 million tons but with peace there is a good indication that this quantity will increase. The state's industries need this fuel and its mining operations will contribute to the Nation's wealth behind War Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

MOUNTAINS OF ORE

Three Minnesota iron ranges produce 40 million tons of ore valued at $40,000,000 annually. Over 15,000 persons free the ore from virgin hills and 10,000 more transport it. Millions of tons of low grade and mixed ores remain to add wealth to the Nation, as speedily as it can be mined and processed. They constitute concrete resources behind your Bonds. U. S. GRAND CANYON

Since John Wesley Powell navigated the Colorado River in 1869, thousands have gone to the Grand Canyon in Arizona to marvel at its grandeur and enjoy the thrills of burro trips into the gorge. Plane trips have added to the resort's popularity. Grand Canyon is another exhibit of our Nation's wealth behind Victory Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

AMERICAN HEROES by WOODY COWAN

SEEING his two squads of infantry pinned down by enemy machine-gun fire, Lt. Beryl R. Newman, Fargo, N. D., boldly advanced, wounding two with his Tommy gun and chasing two others into a house. When the latter two attempted to retake a gun, he killed them. Then he kicked in the door of the house and forced eleven armed enemy gunners to surrender. He was awarded the Medal of Honor. Victory Bond investments can support men in all services who made this drive for final victory. U. S. Treasury Department

RAILS AND RODS

Very early in the steel industry in this country, mills arose at Joliet, Ill., which produced rods, rails and wire, important to the agricultural West. These items could be efficiently made there because of the city's proximity to soft coal fields. While the great plants near Chicago have since overshadowed the Joliet industry, this steel center stands high as an asset in the might of America, insuring full payment of all War Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

NO SYMPATHY FROM EDITOR

It seems to our way of thinking that it is a good time to be lightening up on the nation's purse strings instead of opening up and inviting the general public to take what they can spend. The war worker who failed to save a nest egg out of his high wages and overtime during the past four years need not come to this country editor for a whole lot of sympathy. We are apt to remind him that though maybe he didn't, at least some of his co-workers were quick on the trigger when their labor bosses said "let's strike."—Corrigan Press.
