The Veterans Administration announced last week-end that it will distribute a $285,000,000 life insurance dividend this year, beginning in April.

Stelli silk-shantung makes this two-piece suit-dress one of the smartest maternity fashions in the January issue of Good Housekeeping magazine. Pretty enough to take you anywhere in town. McKetrick makes it in navy, toast or tangerine for about $20.

HAVE A BETTER KITCHEN

Steel kitchen cabinets are especially designed to provide home-makers with storage space and counter work surface in the kitchen, but there are a surprising number of uses for these cabinets in other rooms, too. Some exciting adaptations have been discovered by housewives who have storage problems throughout their homes.

Illustrated here is one that is unusual and interesting. It's a dressing table for a powder room in a home and has also found application in rest rooms in business offices and factories.

The ensemble is a combination of two standard linen cabinets, a 30-inch wall cabinet, a standard base cabinet top and a mirror. These cabinets provide a great deal of right-at-the-fingertips storage space, and the combination is very attractive.

The linen cabinet, which is 84 inches high, 21 inches wide and 13 inches deep, also finds frequent use in bathrooms or in upstairs hallways to furnish extra storage room for linens, blankets, and towels.

Many young mothers, hard pressed for storage room for the wardrobes of growing families, find that kitchen base cabinets are a welcome addition to nurseries and bedrooms. These cabinets are ideal for keeping diapers and other tiny things a baby requires. The cabinet top, built for easy cleaning, is a good place to keep jars of cream, bottles of baby oil, and many other items of equipment used to care for the youngster.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Powell were in Amarillo Tuesday on business.

WHO'S Crippled?

Although he is only 22 years old, Paul Mitchell of Dallas, Tex., born with cerebral palsy, has successfully overcome his handicap, and is today entirely self-supporting and on his way towards a promising business career.

In recognition of his indomitable courage and outstanding achievement, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults and its state affiliate, the Texas Society for Crippled Children, recently awarded Paul the "Who's Crippled?" citation. Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas presented the citation at ceremonies held at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas.

This monthly award is conferred by the National Society, the Easter Seal Agency, through its state affiliates to courageous persons like Paul Mitchell who, in a determination to live a happy, useful life, outwit a severe physical handicap.

With the encouragement and help of his devoted mother, Mrs. John P. Mitchell, who started her son on a rigid schedule of treatment and training at an early age, Paul was learning to walk at eleven years of age, although he could not stand alone at seven. Mrs. Mitchell bought books and taught Paul at home during his grammar school years.

On his ninth birthday, Paul's parents gave him a typewriter. Since he couldn't hold a pencil, they hoped his writing problems would now be solved. But when he tried to type, they discovered he lacked the strength in his fingers to press down the keys. Mrs. Mitchell worked with him day after day, guiding his fingers again and again over the typewriter keyboard

Day Dreaming

with Bill Day

As I stepped in the room my wife was waiting for me. I know that I looked like a guy that had had something very close to him taken away. This is it, I said to myself, for it was only two weeks before that she had suspected, and now there was that accusing look in her eyes again. Automatically, I pulled off my coat. She gasped. I looked down on my shoulder and there was that stray hair. The expression on her face showed plainly that she now had positive proof. I glanced in the mirror—sure enough, it was all over me, splotches of face powder, and I suddenly became aware of the perfumed area around me. The odor was unmistakable and I had the very peculiar feeling that my wife knew what I knew.

"You've been there again, haven't you, Bill?"

"Yes, I won't lie to you. I have."

"What made you do it? You don't look the same."

"Well, honey, a guy has to get a haircut sometime, and Smokey is just across the street, and I can't help it if he pours all that

COLOR SYMPHONIES

Aladdin's lamp may have lit the way to wondrous deeds but as I call the illustrations, it didn't have a shade. Today's woman would measure the magical powers of that fabulous lamp, but she'd probably be tempted to run down to the nearest store and buy a shade for it. We're a shade-conscious nation of homemakers — even to vacuuming them to keep them bright — a very forward practice, in case you haven't tried it. But we've bigger, if not better, ideas to shout about: covering lamp shades, especially that inexpensive dime-store variety made from a delectable stuff called parchment.

As usual this takes a little effort and a little imagination, but lamp covers really aren't difficult to make. Place the shade on the material you want to cover it with and lightly trace the outline of the lower rim. Reverse shade and outline the upper rim, being careful when you turn it over to put it back exactly in the center of the circle. In fact, before you start, it would be smart to find the center of the material and mark it with a dot.

Now you have two circles and the next step is to draw dotted cutting lines which will allow a three-quarter inch seam all around. For the outer circle, make the cutting line outside the circle. For the inner circle draw the cutting line inside. If you've done this correctly, the two inner circles will be solid lines and the two outer circles will be dotted cutting lines. After you've cut it out, bind both edges with bias binding. Run elastic through upper seam and trim with ribbon, moss fringe, lace, ruching or whatever you fancy. This makes a straight, flat cover. If you want a full ruffly lamp shade, make two patterns as above. Cut open each ring and join the seams so that it becomes one large circle. Put a drawing through the top and arrange folds.

Material for a lamp shade cover should harmonize in both texture and color with your room. Organza and dotted Swiss usually suit a bedroom lamp; taffeta, the living room. Try to make use of any material you may have on hand. Silk draperies, taffeta evening dresses and kitchen curtains are perfect. If they're not the right color, change them with a good color remover and all-purpose dye. Keep in mind that the primary function of a lamp is to illuminate. Dark lamp shades or covers lessen the amount of light, so plan to have beige, pearly gray or pastels. They're your best bets.

County Home Demonstration Agent Council Plans

Mrs. Charles Warminski, new chairman of the Gray County Home Demonstration Council, presided at the called meeting of the group Monday, January 8. The purpose of the called meeting was principally to hear standing committee plans for 1951.

Mrs. Warminski stated that the council has three main responsibilities. First, to serve as an advisory committee to the agent and to the clubs. Second, to be a means of communication between the clubs and the agent and between various groups and individuals interested in the objectives of the extension service, and third, to be a demonstration in organization, with the home demonstration clubs as cooperators. "Each council meeting," says Mrs. Warminski "should be a training school for the organization and should contribute something definite to the demonstration as a whole."

Mrs. Walter Noel, vice chairman of the yearbook committee, reported that suggestions from the club members for the 1952 yearbook should be handed in by the April council meeting, and that general meetings for her committee would be held in May, July, and September.

Mrs. Ernest McKnight, chairman of the library committee, stated that her committee had set up five goals for 1951: To make good reading list available to each club; for each home to add two or more books to the home library; for each club to add two or more books to their club library; for the committee to keep up to date on the books added to the Pampa public library, and to encourage club members to make use of the Pampa library; and, fifth, to work out a result check sheet for tabulating reports.

Mrs. Vardamen Smith, chairman of the exhibit committee, read the plans for this committee. "Two floral arrangement exhibits will be part of our work for the year," stated Mrs. Smith. "One floral arrangement exhibit will be held in the spring of the year and another in the fall.

"Special work will also be done on the techniques of placing educational exhibits," concluded Mrs. Smith.

Miss Joy Williams, assistant home demonstration agent, reported for the adult 4-H Club committee. The plans of this committee include continuing to strive for more parent interest in 4-H Club work, and to get more 4-H adult leaders. Continued financial support from council and the clubs was asked to finance trips and other activities.

Mrs. Vern Savage, chairman of the reporters and radio committee, asked that every club keep a club scrapbook, including all club activities in the book. The books will be turned in at the November council. "As in the past, the books will be judged for originality, neatness, most interesting club meeting stories, most interesting feature story, snapshots of members and club activities, and recreation reports," said Mrs. Savage.

Mrs. O. G. Smith, chairman of the finance committee, checked with the committees to determine the amount of money needed for 1951.

Mrs. W. R. Nunn, chairman of the marketing committee, read the plans for this committee for 1951. Mrs. Nunn showed the members copies of the Monthly Consumer Research Bulletin and urged that Home Demonstration Club members study brands and labels before buying.

Mrs. A. M. Nash, chairman of the recreation committee, said more recreation for all ages in the club and communities was among the most important goals for her committee.

Mrs. Grayce Morris, chairman of the education and expansion committee, gave detailed plans for expanding the home demonstration program in 1951.

Detailed plans of the visual aids committee were presented by Mrs. Emmett Osborne.

After the plans of these committees were accepted by the council, Mrs. Warminski announced that copies of all the plans chassis, too! It is exposed to the clubs.

BOY SCOUT WEEK

FEBRUARY, a month of notable birthdays, sees the celebration of a "birthday" in which all Americans can properly join. Boy Scout Week, February 6-12, reminds us that one of America's largest youth organizations has reached another milestone.

Locally, interest in Boy Scout Week is on the upgrade, due to the very recent re-activation of the McLean Boy Scout troop. Three young men, Ted Simmons, James McClellan, and John Blevins, are in charge of the troop, and their energies and ambitions will pay off in the building of better citizens in our community.

Next week will see the one-day drive in our community for funds for the Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts. That money is used for various purposes to aid in Scouting work.

And along with this re-activation of the local troop, plus the drive for funds for Scout work, is coming the thought of organizing a Cub Pack in McLean for the younger boys who can learn much before they become of Scouting age. Phil Pegues, assistant Scout executive of the Adobe Walls Council, has already stated that he is ready at any time to come to McLean to aid in the organization of a Cub Pack.

So it is well that we remember the birthday of Scouting. The organization is now 41 years of age. Since February 8, 1910, more than 17,750,000 American boys and men have been influenced by the Scout Oath and Law. They have benefitted by using their leisure-time energies in outdoor living and activities of cultural and practical values which lead boys to become dependable men.

Today over 2,750,000 boys and men are actively enrolled in over 75,000 different units. Fortunate indeed are communities where Scouting flourishes. American adults of good character give generously of their time to give leadership. Others help by raising funds and are members of troop committees and councils, which in turn provide training for leaders, camp facilities, worthwhile year-around activities, personal advancement, and opportunities to render community service.

It is our sincere wish that the Boy Scouts of America may have many, many more happy birthdays. Scouting is good work; Boy Scouts make up a great organization.

TALK BY LESTER

I saw a man deliberately go out of his way and walk down an alley to miss facing the March of Dimes campaign solicitors when they were on the street corners recently.

To my knowledge, the man had contributed $1, although he was financially able to give much more.

Sometimes I wonder what kind of a reception such people will meet when they knock on the pearly gates of heaven. Other times, there is little doubt as to the kind of reception they will meet. I have deduced that the reception will be warm, but not at the pearly gates.

However, most all people of the area gave liberally to the March of Dimes campaign this year, much more liberally than they have given in this particular area in the past.

You see, the terrible effects of polio came home to us this year. Two of the four cases in our little town the past year were extremely serious cases, Lou Ann Graham and Roy Norvell. Both children are still pitifully paralyzed. Both will require much more treatment. There are hopes that both will walk again, but there are doubts, too.

I have heard rumors that Roy has not been treated as well as he should in the clinic at Plainview. The rumors have been reported to the Gray County authorities, and they are in the process of investigation. The wrongs will be righted in this case; I'm sure of that.

Half of the March of Dimes money collected in Gray County will be a portion of the Gray County chapter's treasury. The other half will go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. When our county chapter, or any other in the U. S., runs out of money, the national group will send more money. Much of the national group's treasury is spent on research work. Every day a new method for treating and curing polio is being tried. Some day that research, bought with your money, will pay off.

But I still wonder why a man will go out of his way and walk down an alley to miss facing such volunteer workers as those trying to do their best for the March of Dimes. I suppose I will never know exactly why any man would do such a thing. Except that I know this particular man pretty well.

This, as you are well aware, is the season for money drives. There is another coming up next week. It's for funds for the Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The local Scout troop has been re-activated, and is already going pretty strong under the guidance of Scoutmaster Ted Simmons and his assistants, John Blevins and James McClellan. These three young men can and will do a good job.

Cornell Grid Coach And Ring Cleat Shoe

However, they need some help and advice, not only from all of us, but also from the council workers. These council workers put in their full time, and must of necessity be paid salaries. Part of the money in the Scout drive will go for their salaries. Part of it goes for Scout literature used in the Scouting work. Part of it goes for maintenance of Camp Ki-O-Wah (I think that's the way it's spelled). Part of it goes to pay for the badges, etc., which the Scouts receive when they complete certain work.

Scouting is great work for a boy or a girl, and it's fun, good, wholesome fun. The jails and prisons of Texas—and the rest of the U. S.—house but very, very few men and women who ever were engaged in Scout work, even for a short time. Scouting builds character in boys and girls, and that character is so firmly embedded that it never leaves. In other words, Scouting builds good citizens. It plays a part almost as important as our churches and our schools.

Yet we in McLean have let the opportunity to train our youth in Scouting work pass by unnoticed. We have attempted, on a few occasions since I have been here, to get good Scout troops started. But each time failure has resulted. If Ted and John and James are given any support whatsoever, this effort will not be a failure.

The drive for council funds will be made Tuesday, February 13, following a supper for workers the evening before. The drive will be handled in one day, and the workers will have "prospect" lists of people from whom they will seek contributions.

There is no quota in funds to be sought. Instead, the quota is to contact at least ten per cent of the population for help. You will not be asked for any certain amount. You can give anything you wish, or, if you wish, you can give nothing at all. Any help you may be able to give will be appreciated.

I realize that money is a little hard to get hold of at the present time. I realize it as well as anyone. But, by the same token, I realize that character building in our youth is harder to accomplish than the making of money. Perhaps too many of us are working too hard for money, and not enough for the future of our young people. We cannot take the money with us, but we can take with us the satisfaction of having done some little something for our youth.

That is why I have accepted the task of serving as general finance chairman for the drive for Scout funds in McLean. I have no boys or girls of Scouting age. I have no prospects of ever having a boy of Scouting age, and it will be many years before little Chris will be old enough to want to join the Girl Scouts.

I also have plenty of things to do without taking on another job such as the finance chairman. But for some strange reason I did take on that job.

So please, please, won't you help the Scouting work when the drive is held next week? You might as well, for whatever you have left—and then some on top of that—will have to be paid out in taxes anyway.

Do you employ a domestic worker in your home, such as a maid, butler, cook, gardner, or chauffeur? If so you may soon be an employee under social security.

The amended Social Security Act brings regularly employed domestic workers under this insurance system effective January 1, 1951. A domestic worker is considered to be regularly employed if he works for one person on 24 separate days in a calendar quarter and earn at least $50 in cash wages during the quarter. Generally speaking this would mean that the domestic who works for one person on the average of two days per week would be covered under the amended law. Further it means that you will not be concerned with this new provision if you have a person who works for you only one day a week, or less than 24 days per calendar quarter.

Does all this sound complicated?

Well it really isn't. The Treasury Department and the Social Security Administration, working jointly, have just issued a brief booklet telling the few simple steps for you and your household worker to take. It includes a postal card for getting instructions about the easy-to-fill-out report form. The title of this booklet is "Do You Have a Maid?" Copies of this booklet have been mailed to your local postmaster. If he has not received his supply, you can obtain a copy by writing the social security office Amarillo, and asking for the booklet, "Do You Have a Maid?"

College Extension If we are to make progress in agriculture, if rural life is to be made more attractive, if food production is to be increased to meet the demands of growing population, the coming generation of the farmers must be educated in the principles of scientific agriculture. All thoughtful men agree that our colleges and schools of agriculture are doing a great and useful work, but when the number of persons receiving instructions in these institutions is compared with the total number of farmers, it becomes apparent that other agencies must be employed if we are to make progress commensurate with our needs.

In a speech delivered before the recent convention of the Texas Corn Growers Association, C. E. Evans, superintendent of the extension department of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, emphasized this fact when he declared that only 75 out of a total of 352,190 farm homes are represented in the student body of this institution. While the influence of this college in one way or another reaches many thousands of farmers, yet it is a fact that it is not reaching as many farmer boys as should be reached. This is not surprising, however, because it is not to be expected that every man who intends to make his home upon the farm should take a college course, although it is very much to be desired that he should receive training in the science of agriculture.

To meet this situation what has come to be known as "agricultural extension work" has been undertaken by practically all the agricultural colleges in the United States. This department through correspondence courses, lectures, literature, demonstration trains and movable schools undertakes to carry the agricultural college to the people. Thirty-three state colleges now have such departments and some of them make large appropriations for carrying on the work. The Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College established an extension department last fall on a small scale and without a specific legislative appropriation. Its usefulness has been demonstrated beyond doubt and the eagerness with which farmers and farmer boys are availing themselves of the opportunities offered by it proves that there is a demand for this practical instruction. More than 700 actual farmers are now taking a total of 2,800 courses in some branch of agriculture and the demand for short courses is greater than can be supplied with the funds now available.

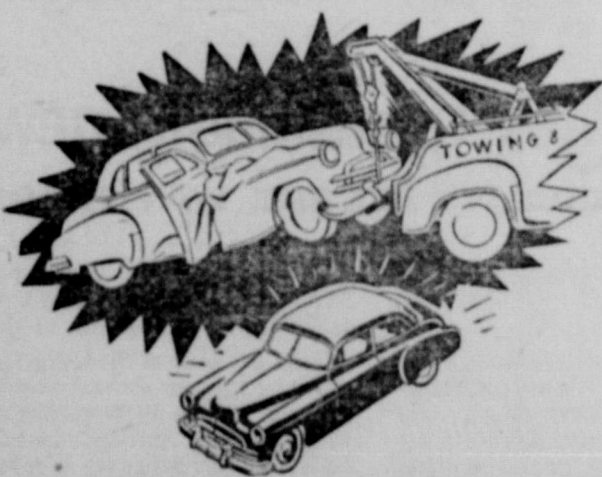

With an adequate appropriation for carrying on this extension work and the establishment of a number of junior agricultural colleges in different sections of the state for the benefit of those boys

Texas motorists, Texas highways and Texas taxpayers should be protected against the ONE PER CENTERS.

ONE PER CENTERS are truck combinations weighing, loaded, 20,000 pounds or more. Only one of every 100 vehicles registered in Texas pays a license fee for 20,000 pounds or more. FEWER than three out of every 1,000 are registered for more than 40,000 pounds.*

HAVE A BETTER KITCHEN

Eating in the kitchen is a time-honored American custom. Even the smallest kitchens in the thousands of new, moderate and low priced homes have failed to discourage this happy habit. In one way or another the family finds the space for a small table or a wall bar that admirably, if not always comfortably, serves the purpose.

If your kitchen is so small that it doesn't allow room for a kitchen dining table, perhaps this suggestion from the Youngstown Kitchens Planning Service will solve the problem.

Pictured here is a simple wall bar that can be made to fit almost any space and requires little work for installation. All you need is a little wall space. It consists simply of a standard base cabinet top, complete with a coved stainless steel back-splash, attached to the wall with either metal or wooden supports.

With a little ingenuity and a couple of hinges, the bar can be made to fold down against the wall. Then when the bar isn't needed it practically disappears from the kitchen. Base cabinet tops are available in a wide variety of colors and patterns to fit into the kitchen color scheme. A popular type of covering is called Cushen. It is a vinyl plastic material that will withstand common kitchen acids and will give many, many years of wear. It is easy to keep clean and will do a great deal toward giving you a better kitchen.

DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Two damage suits were filed last week in the Wheeler District Court by Bert Nipper and W. D. McCurley, against John Hrcial and George Close. Plaintiffs allege that the defendant built two dams across "Dry Sandy Creek" which runs through the plaintiffs' farms, and that on June 10, 1950, the dams broke, causing damages to plaintiffs' land and personal property of more than $8,000. The plaintiffs are represented by I. G. Robinson, local attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Turner of Nowata, Okla., spent the week-end visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kid McCoy. They were en route home from California.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

Since the Social Security Act amendments of 1950 were passed, claims receipts of the Amarillo office of the Social Security Administration have increased approximately 300 per cent, according to John R. Sanderson, manager. This has been due in part, Sanderson said, to the protection provided in the new law for servicemen of World War II or to their survivors if the serviceman died while in the service or after his discharge.

The amendments provide old-age insurance wage credits at the rate of $160.00 per month for each month of military service in World War II, just as though the serviceman had been working on a job covered by the Social Security Act. "The change in the law allowing these wage credits may now make a deceased serviceman fully insured and permit us to make payments to his widow, children, or dependent parents," Sanderson said, "or may permit us to increase benefits they are already receiving."

Sanderson explained that the 1950 Social Security Act amendments do not in any instance affect the insured status of persons who died before September 1, 1950, unless the deceased was a serviceman of World War II, and only then where the deceased was survived by a widow, child or dependent parent who could become entitled to monthly benefits. There are no steps that a living veteran needs to take at this time. Credits for World War II will be given on the social security account at the time the veteran reaches age 65 and retires, or at the time his survivors apply for benefits. Survivors of deceased servicemen should contact the Amarillo social security office to

Do You Know What You Own?

With so many fires reported over the state, it reminds us that in case of such an emergency, many people find themselves not knowing what to claim as a loss when the insurance adjuster calls. It might not be a bad idea for each family to keep an inventory of all durable goods. An itemized list of goods the family owns provides specific information regarding the loss if the family carries insurance and has occasion to collect on the policy.

A loose leaf notebook or a card file would be good for this use, as additions could be made and the notations of items no longer needed could be pulled out.

One such list should be kept at home. The other should be kept in a safety deposit box in the bank. Similar records should be kept of long-time financial commitments, life insurance policies, deeds, or other papers that are of value to the family. It may pay you to know what you own.

Care of the Shrubs and Trees

Right now is the height of the season for pruning, watering and fertilizing shade trees and some shrubs. Shrubs that bloom in late summer such as crepe myrtle, vitex, flowering willow, salt cedar, oleander, althea, and eleagnus should be pruned now.

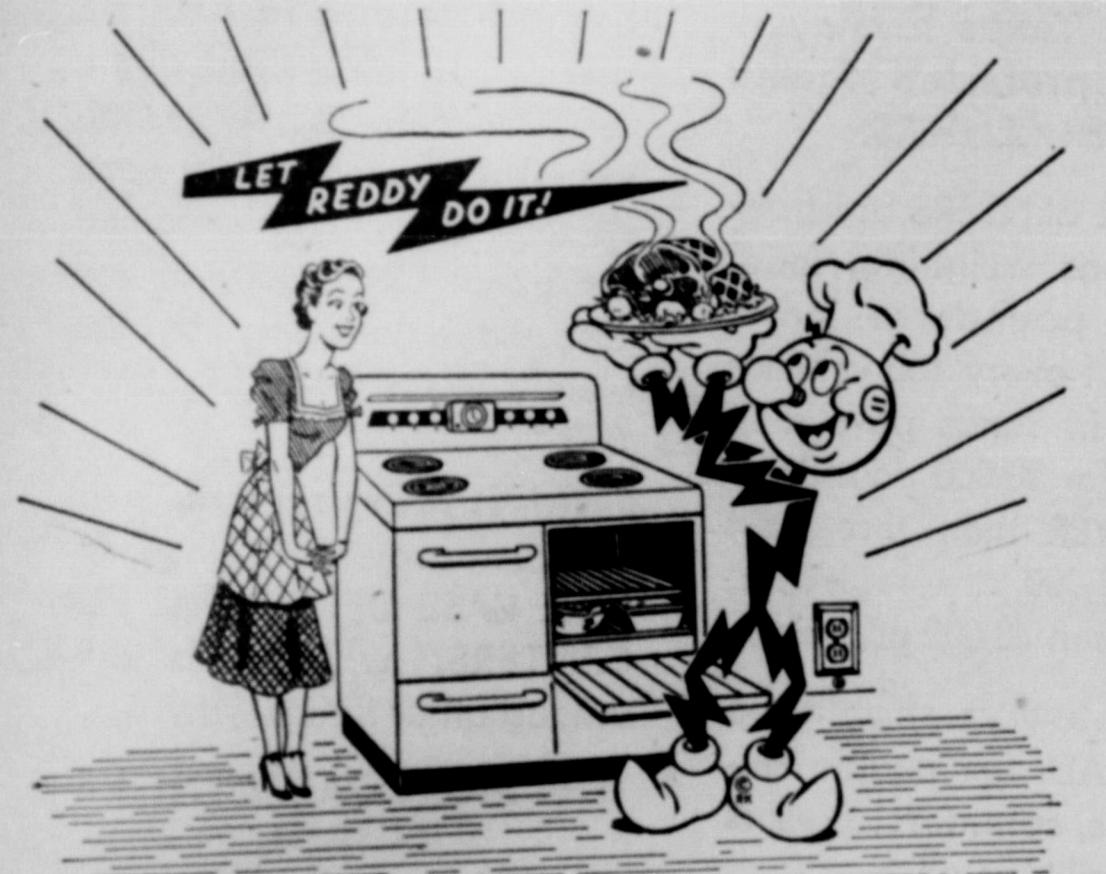

Right now is not a good time to prune plants that will bloom in early spring because there is the danger of cutting the flowers off. Bridal wreath, flowering peach, japonica or flowering quince, primrose, jasmine, redbud, and wisteria should not be pruned now.

Red cedars, arborvitae, and large growing junipers are difficult to prune at any time. For this reason, these plants should be planted only where large growth is needed.

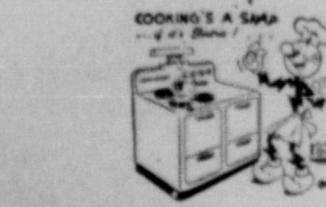

Of course there are cases where pruning should be done regardless of the time of year. Dead or badly diseased limbs should be cut off and burned as soon as they are discovered. To promote well-shaped growth, injured branches should be cut off. Limbs that chafe or rub across each other should be removed, as well as those which tend to sprawl out awkwardly regardless of the season. The Florida jasmine, abelia, and similar plants can be made to grow compactly if the tender tips of the limbs are pinched out now and then.

Sunday visitors of Mrs. M. M. Newman were Mr. and Mrs. Critchlow of Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Barham have moved to Pantex.

Aches and Pains— DANGER WARNINGS

Though there are a few illnesses which spread their poisons and destruction in a silent manner, one of the most common of the signs of sickness is a hurting. These signs of sickness are your body's SOS, a warning signal in the form of aches and pains. Aches and pains are the body's communication system of danger, reporting to you that some part of your anatomy is not able to carry on the function it is supposed to without difficulty. Pain is usually the warning of a definite area, normally associated with the soreness or hurting near the surface, while ache is more often a deep pain and seems to defy pointing to one small spot and saying "This is where I hurt." With an ache, you usually cover a wide area, whereas you can point out a pain.

The way you describe a hurting to your doctor and the changes from normal that led up to that hurting are frequently important. Pain seldom sets in without some other symptoms preceding it; a headache, dizziness, belching, or just a general fatigue which may be overlooked will usually herald the approach of pain. You ignore those forerunners in most cases and you even ignore the pain if some mild medication such as aspirin drives it away; but if the pain keeps coming back and particularly if it comes back hard, those little flickering caution lights that led up to the red light of pain may play an important part in finding out where the pain is coming from.

The source of pain, especially inside pain, is not always easy to locate. If you cut your finger and it stings and throbs, it's obvious what caused the pain. But if your fingers sting and throb when you didn't hurt them, not only must the source be located, but you're inclined to be much more worried about the pain from your fingers when you don't know its cause. Your first thought may be to stop the pain, but in the long run your main interest is in knowing what caused it, whether it will come back again, and what type of damage the cause might do to your fingers. It is that fear of not knowing and not understanding the cause of the pain that contributes to the distress of pain. That fear comes under the heading of reaction to pain; you not only feel pain, but you also react to it. Sometimes the feel of the pain is hard to separate from the reaction it arouses when you are trying to describe pain to your doctor. "I feel body all over" could be considered reaction, whereas "my nose and teeth hurt" might lead your doctor to suspect something definite, in that case, maybe it would be sinus. If you used adjectives to describe that hurt, such as stinging and burning, those particular types of hurting are associated with an interference of the mechanism or structure of nerves. Other pains, such as a sharp, cutting or stabbing pain, which comes in spasms, are also associated with nerves, but not with damage to the nerve or nerves.

Bones, when they send out a message of distress, usually produce a deep aching or boring pain, and muscles have a particular kind of ache that is called a "soreness."

The skin, which perhaps has the most variety of painful signals, will communicate with a burning feeling when the top layer is scraped off and a stinging when that same layer is cut with a knife.

Sometimes a number of aches and pains in different parts of the body will all add up to a definite sign of one special disease. These specific symptoms or signs are called a syndrome in medicine. Probably the most discussed syndrome is that associated with angina pectoris, a heart condition. The feeling of a great weight on the chest which accompanies a tightness and agony to the point of a feeling of impending death, with pain perhaps radiating from the left shoulder down the arm, paints the picture of angina pectoris so vividly that that cause will be the first thought, and action—frequently life-saving action—to relieve that cause will be begun before further examination is undertaken.

Pains actually serve as a protection. They are the burglar alarm system against forces which would rob you of your health.

HAVE A BETTER KITCHEN

Home builders who are building houses for sale and profit are quick to sense the advantages of modern kitchen equipment as a powerful selling point. Even in the so-called "economy" homes, the builder is supplying such items as modern steel cabinet sinks and storage cabinets, ranges and refrigerators.

Now they are carrying the idea one step further. Many builders are including an automatic dishwasher in their kitchens—even in homes selling in the $12,000 to $14,000 bracket. This significant development emphasizes once again the increasing popularity of the home appliance which saves so much time and work for the homemaker.

Meanwhile, the manufacturers of automatic home dishwashing machines are sprucing up their products and more makers are bringing machines into the field, and all are putting on promotional campaigns. The inevitable winner in this process is the homemaker who is able to buy a dishwasher that does an excellent job and gives long, trouble-free service.

One of the newest machines on the market uses an interesting new principle of automatic dishwashing. It consists of pumping water, superheated in a booster tank, through small holes in a square tube which extends up through the center of the tub. The pressure causes the tube to spin and the jets of water strike the dishes racked in surrounding baskets. This method is said to assure complete washing action in all parts of the tub. The cycle of one wash and two rinses takes less than 10 minutes.

FOR COLD COMBAT

This serviceman's cotton uniform designed for cold climates makes use of the layer principle of warmth without excessive weight. Instead of a bulky, heavy uniform for cold weather, this naval seaman is outfitted with many light layers of clothing to trap insulating air. One advantage of this type uniform is that men doing strenuous work can shed layers as bodily heat increases while men at stationary posts can add articles of clothing for warmth.

Uncle Sam Says

Our freedom is in danger! Every American knows that and I know that every one of you wants to do his or her bit to help preserve that freedom. We can't all go into uniform or into a defense plant, but there is one BIG way in which we can all help, every one of us. That is—the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds. They are not only as valuable today as the day you buy them, they grow in value. And they will always be that way. Enroll for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or if self-employed, the Bond-A-Month Plan at your bank.

HAVE A BETTER KITCHEN

Is your kitchen sink working for you or against you? Perhaps it's time to cast a critical eye at that very important piece of kitchen equipment to see whether it's saving you work or causing it.
 First, does your sink fill your particular needs? Is it big enough to adequately handle the cleaning and food preparation jobs that are concentrated in this area? If kitchen space will allow, the larger steel cabinet sink models provide a great deal of storage space and work surface right where you need it most. While size is important, there are many other factors to consider in the purchase of a cabinet sink. Because this is a long term investment, it is best to buy one of high quality even though the original cost may be slightly greater. Take a sharp look at its construction. Note whether the doors and drawers are sound and how easily the drawers slide.
 You will undoubtedly want a top of porcelain enamel, for porcelain is attractive, sanitary, easy to clean and will wear indefinitely. Look at the advantages of a double bowl sink—you'll find that dishwashing can be speeded considerably by using one bowl for washing and the other for rinsing.
 Your new cabinet sink should have a recessed front to provide knee room and a recessed toe space to make working at the unit easier on the legs and back. Deluxe models have other features, too, that take the drudgery from kitchen work—such as a handy soap-box rack on the undersink compartment door; compartmented drawers for cutlery, and a rinse spray.
 Think of the cabinet sink as a labor saving device and insist that your new one be the kind that will lighten the kitchen load.

Little Damage By Garage Fire

Two gasoline fires, one following closely behind the other, caused little damage in the repair shop of the Dysart Motor company Monday afternoon.
 The first of the series of two blazes came when L. M. Blaylock was pouring highly-volatile gasoline from one can to another. The fire was quickly extinguished on the arrival of the firemen.
 Not long after, when the electric power was turned back on, the gasoline was again ignited by sparks from burned wires. The firemen were again called, and the blaze was again put out.
 J. Lester Dysart stated that little damage was done, although some of the electrical wiring, damaged by the blaze, had to be replaced.

Hess Entries Place Second

Paris Hess of McLean placed second with his pen of five junior bull calves in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show in Fort Worth last week.
 Hess entered stock in only the one division.
 He reported that he sold seven junior bull calves, including the five in the winning pen group, to Frank Chambers of Canadian for $725 per head. Strange thing, Hess stated, was that he made the trip with the calves all the way to Fort Worth, and then sold them to a man in Canadian.

 games will be at 8 o'clock Friday night, 2 Saturday afternoon, and the finals at 7:30 Saturday night.
 The Shamrock lads are the defending district champions, having won that honor last season. The Memphis Cyclone were the district—and state champions the previous year.
 The McLean girls placed second in the district race last year. In 1949, they were district winners and went to the state meet in Hillsboro.
 The local girls will be the favored girls team this year. However, the district set-up in the interscholastic League now includes girls basketball teams, and the winner of this district will go to the regional meet instead of the state meet. Winner of the regional meet will then be advanced on to the state meet, as are the boys teams.
