talk with our lawmaker since coming here some 18 months ago, and he wasn't particularly happy over the idea of another stay in Austin.

And McIlhany is of the opinion that the governor's attempt to push through legislation to bring Texas banks under the escheat law could be a waste of time.

If no such law was passed during the regular session . it wasn't . . . the legislator can't see how such a move could be successful at this time. The Wheeler businesman-lawmaker feels that some sort of a compromise could be worked out between Gov. Daniel and the state's bankers. This, he points out, is a must.

A number of bankers in Me-Ilhany's district have voiced their opinions to him, and he sympathizes with them to a certain extent. They do have a point when they explain that their opposition stems from the fact that a law as requested by the governor would cause many people to change their banking habits.

-- jbu-McIlhany does think, however, that many banks do not put forth enough effort to locate owners of some long-held accounts. Listing of the names of missing account holders in newspapers could quickly find some of these persons, or their heirs, McIlhany McLean's Laura Switzer is becoming cuite a celebrity, it appears. Our All-American basketball player went to Wheeler Tuesday night to see the Tigers and Tigerettes in action, and the announcer on the public address system stopped the proceedings to introduce her. And a fine introduction it was.

-ibu-Life's embarrassing moments . . . When a newspaperman is scooped, it brings on a red face and a funny (or sickening) feeling inside. But it's most difficult to explain how we felt after an incident which occurred in the wee hours of Wednesday morning.

To begin the story . . . Our telephone jerked us out of bed at 4 a. m. Wednesday. On the other end of the line was Ralph Wayne, news director of Amarillo's KFDA-TV, for which we serve as a "stringer" on occasion. "Jack," he said, "We have a report of a big fire out your way and wonder what you have on it." We didn't dare confess that we were a delinquent fireman, as well
