JUNK
Nearly a year's experience with the plan, adopted by all of the large automobile makers, of offering a bonus to dealers for "junking" used cars, seems to have had a good effect, not only in stimulating the market for new cars but in removing dangerous vehicles from the roads.

Ford is paying $20 for each hopeless Ford car delivered at the factory. Other makers allow from $20 to $40 to dealers for each car junked in the presence of responsible witnesses or factory representatives. The dealer has to find his own "graveyard" for the wreck, and that is a difficult problem in some localities. Almost every abandoned quarry and mine has been filled to the top with old cars. On some of the undeveloped streets in the suburbs of New York ancient automobiles virtually line the roadway on both sides.

There is a fortune waiting for the man who will discover a cheap and speedy way of reducing ancient cars to their original raw steel.

TAXES

One of the things we are going to hear more about in the next two or three years is the proposal for a Federal Sales Tax on all merchandise, or on a good many items. At present the Government levies a sales tax on automobiles, corporation stock sales and some other things. A few states have tried the sales tax as a means of raising revenue. The gasoline sales tax is in general use, in almost all of the states, as everybody knows. New York levies a tax on the sale of stock.

Advocates of the sales tax contend that it is the fairest of all forms of taxation, being based upon definite transactions in which money changes hands. Since the war many European countries have adopted it, and it ranks second only to the income tax as a revenue producer. Germany gets 15 percent of her public funds from the sales tax, Belgium, France, Austria and Czechoslovakia somewhat more.

EINSTEIN

George Bernard Shaw, who has the clearest mind of any man in England, introduced Professor Albert Einstein to a London audience the other night as "the man who has created a new universe." Eight men, each in his own time, had changed our conception of the universe, Shaw said. They are Pythagoras, Ptolemy, Kepler, Copernicus, Aristotle, Galileo, Newton and Einstein.

Each of those scientists gave the world a new conception of natural laws. Each in his turn proved that the others had been wrong, but each of them served the purpose of his times. Over a period of two thousand years man is gradually learning the truth about the world he lives in. A few hundred years from now some scientist, equipped with better measuring instruments than are available today, may prove that Einstein is wrong in his theory that a straight line is not the shortest distance between two points and that light travels in curves instead of in straight lines. But his theory will stand until somebody finds an unscannable fact which contradicts it.

That is the way scientific knowledge grows. Man probably will never know all the facts about the universe, but we are learning faster now than ever before.

Lions In Game Here Saturday

To Seek Revenge On Rocksprings For 18-13 Defeat

After breaking even for the season with the Eldorado Yellow Jackets on the local grid last Saturday, the Ozona High School Lions will attempt to do the same with the Rocksprings aggregation on the local field next Saturday and avenge an 18 to 13 defeat handed them early in the season by the Edwards County lads.

The game here last Saturday left the Yellow Jackets with a one-point margin in the season's matches, Ozona having trounced the Eldorado squad on the Eldorado field earlier in the season by a 6 to 0 count. The score here last Saturday was 7 to 0 in favor of the Jackets.

The visitors' lone marker came in the third period after a series of successive first downs had marched the ball nearly the entire length of the field, a center rush, pushing it across for a touchdown, which was followed by a successful kick for the extra point. The Lions fell back into their early season loose brand of football while the Yellow Jackets showed considerable improvement over the performance they showed on their own battle ground in the earlier game.

Santa Claus Coming To Ozona In Annual Pre-Christmas Tour

Authoritative information has reached the Stockman that old Santa Claus himself is making plans for an early visit to Ozona, possibly within the next two weeks on his annual pre-Christmas tour.

As usual, Santa will be loaded with pre-Christmas "teasers" in the form of candy and other goodies which he is likely to pass out among the kids who turn out to welcome him.

Santa, as usual, will stop in front of a number of business houses in the downtown section for a momentary chat with the children and to pass out sacks of candy. Watch for announcement of the date of Santa's coming. He'll be here soon, according to advance information from him, and as soon as his plans are fully mapped out he will drop us a note fixing the date for his appearance in Ozona.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Taylor returned from San Angelo Tuesday after spending the week-end.

Model Laundry Adds Cleaning & Pressing Equipment To Plant

Approximately $2,000 worth of new machinery is being installed at the Model Laundry here this week preparatory to the opening of a new cleaning and pressing division to the plant, it was announced this week by Rob Miller, manager of the concern.

The new machinery is the latest and most modern the market affords, Mr. Miller said, and the plant will be fully equipped to do all kinds of work of this nature. Ross Hufstetler, who had been in the tailor business here for several years, will be in charge of the new division of the laundry. The new machinery is expected to be ready for operation by next Wednesday, November 26.

Simultaneous with announcement of the opening of the new division, Mr. Miller announced that the laundry would make drastic reductions from the prevailing local scale of charges for cleaning and pressing service. The prices quoted by Mr. Miller in an advertisement in this issue of The Stockman places charges for cleaning and pressing a suit at 75 cents, for cleaning and pressing trousers, 35 cents, for pressing a suit, 40 cents, and for cleaning and pressing a dress 75 cents and up, depending on the style of the dress.

"We are not setting these low prices to compete with local tailors, but to stop the cleaning and pressing business that is going to San Angelo", Mr. Miller declared. "We have made a thorough investigation into prices charged by the firms sending trucks to Ozona regularly and we have set ours just as low as the lowest. We have the best machinery available and we have a man who knows the business in every detail. We can do the work just as well or better and at the same price. Therefore, we see no reason why anybody in Ozona should find it necessary to send work of this class out of town."

Father Of Mrs. W. A. Adams Dies At His Ranch Near Angelo

J. T. Sims, who was born in Texas and lived all of his 82 years in the state, died at 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his ranch 14 miles southeast of San Angelo in the house which had been his home for the last 46 years.

Funeral services for the pioneer will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Johnson's Chapel with the Rev. Grady Timmons officiating. Burial will be in Fairmount Cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, whom he married 59 years and eight months ago, and two sons, O. L. Sims and W. T. Sims, with whom he lived on the ranch. A daughter, Mrs. W. A. Adams, eight grandchildren and nine great grandchildren also survive.

Mr. Sims was born in Red River county, Texas, in 1848. He was married to Miss Mary Wade Keopon in 1871. He moved to what is now Tom Green county 46 years and three months ago from Llano county and has lived on the ranch southeast of town since then.

He has been instrumental in the building of the country south and east of San Angelo and was well known throughout West Texas.—S. A. Times—Tuesday.

Toyland Is Open At Joe Oberkamp Store

Toyland is open in full blast at the Joe Oberkamp store. Thousands of pretty things to delight the child's eye have been stacked throughout the store and announcement of the opening is made in a page ad in this week's issue of The Stockman, on page 4.

Mr. Oberkamp says he has purchased one of the greatest holiday stocks ever brought to Ozona and that by reason of such heavy purchases he is able to offer this year the lowest prices that have prevailed in years. All the children, and grown-ups too, are invited to inspect the Christmas array.

P. T. A. Discusses School Problems

Interesting Program Given At Regular Meet Monday

The Ozona Parent-Teacher Association met in regular session Monday afternoon in the High School auditorium with a good attendance. Mrs. W. A. Kay, president, occupied the chair.

The sixth grade children under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Littleton presented a Thanksgiving drama in three acts, reviewing the early life of the Pilgrims. The children wore attractive costumes of the period and showed excellent training in dramatization.

The membership chairman reported 57 members enrolled. Mrs. Welton Bunger as county chairman urged co-operation in the sale of Christmas seals, explaining that the revenue from the sale of these seals is not used for Red Cross purposes but goes strictly to the organization leading the fight against tuberculosis, to furnish health nurses to visit schools and otherwise to promote health programs.

Mrs. Kay's article, selected from The Parents Magazine, was a plea for greater co-operation and sympathy between the patron and the school.

Mrs. Geo. Montgomery gave an interesting discussion of "What is Wrong with the American Home Today." Among the points brought out in her discussion were that there is too much drudgery, too great a demand for luxuries and not enough creative work in the modern home. Concluding the discussion with a comparison of the home today and yesterday, Mrs. Montgomery stated that after all there were the same perplexing problems, the same ideals to offer, the same personalities to mold and with Edgar A. Guest added "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make it a home."

Mrs. Tommy Hunter gave a very technical yet practical discussion on "Ways in Which the School May Develop Character." In explaining the direct and indirect method of training in character development, she said it was better to incorporate character building in every period of the day than to set aside one period specifically for character training, that the school program as a whole is an effort at character development. Mrs. Hunter listed books, music and art as means to an end in shaping one's personality and character, for "one who loves the beautiful loves the true, the noble and the good."

Mrs. W. L. Rogers was leader, and Mesdames L. B. Cox, Jr., Ira Carson, Bruce Drake, Ernest Dunlap and W. R. Baggett hostesses during the social hour.

LIONS GROUP MEETING HELD HERE MONDAY

San Angelo Gets Next Meeting Of Group In February

CALDWELL NAMED

Sonora Man Elected Chairman To Succeed Hardt Of Eldorado

Representatives of Lions Clubs at Sonora and San Angelo were here Monday noon as guests of the Ozona Club for the quarterly meeting of Group 23, which includes Ozona, Sonora, Eldorado, San Angelo, Ballinger and Sterling City. The meeting was held in the ballroom of the Hotel Ozona, where G. D. Oldham, manager of the Hotel and coffee shop, prepared a splendid banquet for the gathering.

Clubs at Eldorado, Ballinger and Sterling City sent their regrets at not being able to have delegations present.

At this meeting the resignation of Rev. L. D. Hardt of Eldorado as Group chairman was accepted and W. E. Caldwell of Sonora, past president of the Sonora club, was unanimously elected to succeed him. Rev. Hardt is the Methodist minister at Eldorado and the recent Methodist Conference transferred him to another charge out of the Lions Club group, hence his resignation was necessary.

The next meeting of the group will be held in San Angelo. The invitation of that city was extended by Lion Bradbury, chairman of the inter-club relations of the San Angelo Club, and was unanimously accepted. The next meeting of the group will be in February.

Reports of activities of the clubs represented and a round-table discussion of club problems occupied most of the session here. The gathering took enough time out, however, to enjoy a piano solo by Miss Norene Allison, teacher in the local schools.

H. V. Stokes, spokesman for the Sonora delegation, gave an exhaustive summary of his club's activities during its life. Among the activities mentioned were: Sponsored high school band, guaranteed payment for instruments and paid some $500 on them; encouraged bond issues for good roads in three directions from Sonora; organized a charity board and created fund to be dispensed by the city manager; and is now fostering a movement toward flood prevention.

E. V. Spence, former city manager for San Angelo, reported for the San Angelo club. Among the activities of this club mentioned by Mr. Spence was that of selecting and equipping a campsite for boys. The club has also done much toward bringing air mail and passenger service for San Angelo and sponsored a series of weekly free band concerts in San Angelo through the summer.

The report for the Ozona Club was given by Evert White as president of the club. An attendance contest now under way in the local club has resulted in marked improvement in attendance, it was cited. The club's part in aiding the campaign for issuance of $170,000 in bonds for the purpose of building a new high school building was mentioned. A considerable sum has been appropriated from the club's treasury for charity work during its existence, it was declared, and since the club was organized there has been no drive for charity funds made. Extending full privileges of membership in the club to the High School boy with the highest scholastic average was another activity of the local club mentioned. Gene Montgomery, present holder of the honor being present at the meeting. Among activities contemplated by the Ozona Club in the near future is the third annual Christmas tree

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Ozona merchants evidently consider this so-called depression more or less of a myth, judging from the enormous Christmas stocks they are beginning to unpack for the opening of the season. Many of the merchants already have their holiday displays up and have received a large part of their gift merchandise.

Faith in the growing tendency of Ozona people to seek first of their local merchants instead of going away to the city to buy or placing an order with the mail order houses has prompted local firms to invest heavily in holiday stocks this year. In fact, from a cursory examination of the displays already up, we venture the statement that Ozona merchants are offering one of the largest and most varied lines of holiday goods ever shown in Ozona. This should be an encouragement to Ozona people to do as much of their Christmas buying at home as possible. Your merchants are stretching every point to give you the finest stores of any town this size in the world and the more patronage they get the better able they will be to enlarge their stocks, improve their service and lower their prices.

If out-of-town purchases were restricted this year to only those things which can not be secured here, there would be a quick end to what effect the depression has had locally and you would see a marked improvement in your stores and in your town the coming year.

Shop at home first this year, and shop early. The Christmas displays are out early this year for your convenience and you will get better prices, a wider choice and peace of mind by buying early.

PATRIOTISM

With control of Congress equally divided as between Republicans and Democrats, there is something both novel and refreshing in the offer of seven Democratic leaders to cooperate with President Hoover and the Republican party in every legislative effort to relieve economic conditions and restore prosperity.

This seems to us to be a symbol of a new era in American party politics. The Democrats reserve their right to take sharp issue with the Administration and with Republican legislators on all matters which are part of their party's program. But on subjects which are not partisan in their nature they promise what amounts to a coalition government.

There are hundreds of such questions to be decided by every session of Congress. It has been the custom in the past for the party whose representative does not occupy the White House to oppose everything which the Administration wants, regardless of its merits. In the past this has resulted in delay and sometimes the complete failure of programs which would have benefitted everybody, merely because their sponsors were of a different political faith. Legislation has been partisan rather than business-like.

We hope both parties will prove their patriotism by living up to the promises which the Democrats have made and the Republicans have accepted.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

The Red Cross is making its annual appeal for funds. In a few days the Christmas Seals of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be offered every where.

These are two noble causes, to which everybody ought to contribute.

The work of the Red Cross is continuous. Wherever there is life to be saved, homeless to be sheltered, victims of catastrophe to be reclothed, fed, and started out anew in life, the Red Cross is the first agency in the field and the one which does the most good. By virtue of his office, the President of the United States, whoever he may be, is also president of the Red Cross. It is, in effect, an unofficial arm of the Federal government.

The recent drouth gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service. So did the Mississippi flood of a couple of years ago, the hurricane disaster in Florida, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. And hundreds of minor disasters, constantly occurring, keep this organization busy. It has no money except what the public gives.

The work of the Tuberculosis organization is of almost equal importance. Tuberculosis is diminishing, but only because of the constant watchfulness and educational work of the devoted men and women who are giving their lives to that work. Buying Christmas seals for a cent apiece is an easy and practical way for everybody to help.

BROKEN

By . . .
RUBY M. AYRES

"You can't say it! Julie . . ."
With a fierce little movement he drew her into his arms and kissed her lips.

"I love you," he whispered. "I've never loved any one but you. Forgive me, Julie—"

She put her hands against his chest, trying to hold him from her.

"Forgive you? And then what?" she asked hoarsely. She began to cry, softly and brokenly. "You might leave me alone—you might leave me alone," she sobbed, helplessly.

She knew she had reached the end of her endurance. She knew that if she gave in to him now there would be no retracing her steps. She tried to think of Lawrence Schofield—tried to believe that he was far the better man of the two, and that with him she would stand a greater chance of happiness, but common-sense and logic died against the magic of Chittenham's arms and the touch of his lips. She only knew that during all the weeks since they parted in Switzerland, she had ached for this moment, dreamed of it and longed for it, and that now, in spite of her proud defiance, it had come, and when Chittenham asked again:

"Do you love me?—do you want me after all, Julie?" she had no answer.

She let him draw her closer into his arms, and when he pressed her head down against his shoulder, she closed her eyes with a little sigh of spent resignation.

It was a long time before either of them spoke again. Chittenham did not attempt to kiss her, he just held her in his arms, his cheek against her hair, as if she had been a tired child who had come to him for comfort and protection.

It was Julie who moved first. "Bim will be in soon. Poor Bim. I've been such a beast to her lately."

She drew a little back from him looking at him with eyes that were all wet and ashamed, and yet happier than he had seen them since that night in Switzerland.

It was typical of Julie that now she had given in, she was ready to acknowledge herself fully beaten. With Chittenham's first kiss she put the past behind her and kept her eyes closed to the future. For the moment the present was all sufficient. The great ache and unhappiness of her heart had been taken away; he was here and he loved her. The happiness of that knowledge and the relief of her own admission that she loved him, for a little while blinded her to everything else.

"Bim is away—" Chittenham said. "I rang her up before I came here. She was called out of town—I forget what reason she gave—some friend, I think. . ."

Julie flushed. "I wonder if that was true? Or if it was I who really drove her away. I've been horribly lately—"

He folded her close to his heart once more.

"It's all over and done with," he whispered.

"Is it?" A little line of pain creased her forehead. "You must be a wonderful man if you can say that with such confidence," she told him sadly.

"What do you mean?"

She closed her eyes wearily before the insistence of his.

"I mean . . . I suppose no miracles have happened, have they?"

"Only that you are here, in my arms."

"That is not what I mean."

He knew what she meant, and he answered her directly.

"I am still married, if that is what you mean, Julie?"

"Yes." He could hardly catch the whisper.

He turned her face from its resting place against his shoulder and kissed her.

"I shall ask my wife to set me free. We are nothing to one another."

Julie shivered.

"Supposing she won't consent? . . . Shall you tell her about me?"

Chittenham hesitated.

"She may not be sufficiently interested to want to know. She and I have not been anything to one another for a long time. Where are you going?"

Julie had risen to her feet, gently disengaging his arms.

"I am just wondering how all this came about," she said brokenly. "How I . . . how you made me give in to you. It was the last thought in my mind when I came in. No—don't touch me, please—"

For he had risen also and moved towards her.

"Giles . . . do you think I've been very easy to break?"

Chittenham winced. Her words hurt him. She looked infinitely pathetic as she stood there, her face still stained with tears, and her lips trembling. He made a swiftly passionate movement to—

TOYLAND OPENS!

In a great blaze of glory, Toyland is opening at our store. We want every kiddie in Ozona to come here and see what Santa has left, to meet all the prominent denizens of Toyland including Cinderella, Jack The Giant Killer, and Little Jack Horner. You can't imagine how much fun there is in this store — with its lights and music — the sound of drums and laughter, happy children gazing with joy at countless toys, games and dolls. It's a veritable fairyland — colorful and appealing to the heart of every child.

Old Santa Claus

Is Coming To Ozona

We have it on good authority that Old Santa Claus himself will arrive in Ozona sometime within the next three weeks on his annual Pre-Christmas visit — just to see all the kids — find out what their little hearts crave for Christmas and possibly to pass out a few sacks of candy and the like just to remind them what good things are in store. Watch this paper for definite announcement of Santa's coming. He'll be here — and he'll be loaded with goodies like he has been on his visits in past years.

GIFTS FOR GROWN-UPS

We have assembled for this 1930 Christmas season the greatest stock of gift merchandise ever shown in Ozona. We have literally filled our store to overflowing with the highest quality merchandise available and there is still more coming. When we bought for the holiday season we anticipated having the building next door to display the lot, but now it must be crowded into one building.

Buying in such quantities as this we were able to get remarkably low prices. We have made a thorough study of mail order house and city store prices and we feel sure that if you compare our prices with these you will be surprised at the savings you can effect by trading with a home store. We have secured the best that money can buy—take advantage of this opportunity early.

You have never seen such an array of gifts for every member of the family—and for the home. You will find anything from a dime toy to a complete new layout of home furnishings. We have made a special purchase of fine furniture for this event—including the newest designs in complete suites as well as odd pieces suitable for more modest giving, such as occasional chairs and tables, foot stools, day beds, chests, mirrors, book stands, magazine racks and the like.

And don't forget that most acceptable of all gifts for the family—a Victor or Majestic Radio and Victrola. That newest Victor creation—The Self-Recording Victor Radio and Victrola combination is now on display in our store and we invite your inspection.

If you are thinking of silverware, glassware, vases, mirrors, make-up boxes, luggage, pictures, kitchenware, cutlery, tools, art leather goods, furniture, toys, novelties, watches, clocks, rugs, linoleum, General Electric Refrigerator, Victrola or Radio—come to see us.

"Eat More Lamb" Campaign Gains

Lower Prices Conducive To Greater Consumption

Preparations for the Eat-More-Lamb campaign of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas are underway.

Excepting for pork (half of all meat consumed) wholesale meat prices are from one-fifth to one-third lower than a year ago. Lamb is down most, 30 per cent; beef is down 20 to 35 per cent, depending on grade and weight; veal, 13 to 20 per cent; pork is only slightly reduced.

Stocks of meat in cold storage are low, 26 per cent under last year, 14 per cent under the 5-year average. We eat 45 million pounds of meat a day—not so bad for a "depressed" people. If no fresh supplies were forth coming it would take only 14 days to eat all in cold storage.

But lamb has given the packing houses a hard struggle in 1930. One Chicago packer summed it up recently when he said, "It's raining lambs."

Lambs slaughtered under federal inspection in September totaled 1½ millions, one-fourth million more than last year, one-half million more than in September, 1925.

Increase in sheep and lamb population, from 38 million in 1925 to 49 million this year, is the main cause of the glut.

Chicago Live Stock Exchange, which inaugurated a hog futures market early this year, attempted this summer to start a lamb futures market to deal mainly in feeders. The drought cooked the project, for the time being, at least.

Retail prices are fairly well adjusted to the new low wholesale levels. Merchandising of lamb is more intensive than ever before. In many meat markets it is being featured as a sales leader.

Consumption is considerably increased. In 1929 it was 5.8 pounds per capita, against 51.4 for beef, and 72.8 for pork. While the amount consumed was comparatively small, the increase over 1928 was more in the case of lamb than in any other meat, 4.5 per cent. For the first 8 months of this year slaughter was 17.1 per cent more than in the same period last year. Well-informed observers expect the 1930 per capita consumption to reach 7 pounds.

Where lambs is eaten, consumption is considerably more than 7 pounds, but it is not eaten everywhere. Sales are mainly in the east, particularly in the big cities and in the far west. Of all lamb, 75 per cent is sold east of Buffalo and Pittsburgh, and in California. In between it is little eaten, except in big cities. In scores of sizeable communities it is seldom found for sale.

Low prices, intensive merchandising and missionary work in new markets is helping develop the demand. Lamb is now being eaten by people who have always had some sort of hazy prejudice against "mutton." (Getting the public to realize the distinction between lamb and mutton is one of the sales problems.)

T. A. Kneaid of Ozona, president of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association of Texas, is hopeful. He realizes that present price levels mean losses to producers. He sees no prospect for decreased production. But he terms this year's increase in consumption "quick but permanent." New markets and broader outlets now opening up give promise of permanently increased demand that will enable producers to sell larger crops at higher price levels in the future. Lamb is a tasty and healthful meat. Those who start to eat it continue.—S. A. Times.

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such ride popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, as never before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

For—without departing from the basic features which have won the enthusiastic approval of over 2,000,000 buyers—Chevrolet has produced a six-cylinder car which represents an entirely new standard of quality, value and refinement in the low-price field.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar and chrome-plated parabolic headlamps. The long hood lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never was Fisher's fine craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six!

Not only are the smart, graceful, new bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements—many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership—improvement has been made. See the new Chevrolet Six—and you will agree that here is the Great American Value!

IT'S WISE TO CHOOSE A SIX

"Julie . . . do you really love me, my dear?"

The hot colour rushed from her chin to her brow.

"Will it sound very horrid of me if I say that I wish I didn't?" she whispered. "No—no, stay there. I want to talk to you. It's still all so unreal—I feel so muddled—as if it's just a dream that I can only faintly remember. Tell me—why did you come back this evening?"

"Because I heard that you were to marry Schofield."

"Oh!" Her eyes fell. Poor Lawrence! She had forgotten him completely.

"And now — what do we do now?" she asked softly.

Chittenham held out his arms.

"Come here, and I will tell you."

She went to him readily enough, and for a little while everything was forgotten in kisses, and the foolish words of lovers which yet hold all the wisdom of the world.

The chiming of a clock brought them back to earth.

She pushed him from her.

"It was your fault," she said feverishly. "I was weak enough to let it be your fault. I suppose I haven't any pride, or I should have gone on and got over it—"

"I'm glad you didn't, Julie."

With sudden impulse, Julie raised his hand to her lips and kissed it, then with revulsion of feeling she almost angrily pushed it from her.

He took her face between his hands, and kissed her passionately.

"Nothing shall ever part us any more," he whispered against her lips.

But she was not satisfied.

"Giles—supposing she won't divorce you?"

"I am not afraid of that."

"But supposing she won't?" Julie insisted feverishly.

"Need we suppose any such thing?"

"I want to suppose everything. I want to know what the worst is that we may have to face."

Chittenham looked away from her, and there was a hard line about his mouth.

"If such a thing happened—it would be for you to say—" he answered at last.

"What do you mean?"

He looked at her sadly.

"That then there would be only one way in which we could belong to each other, Julie."

She did not pretend to misunderstand him, but the hot blood rose to her soft hair and her eyes fell.

"Would you care well enough for that . . . if there was no other way, Julie?"

For a moment she was silent, then with a swift little gesture she turned to him, hiding her face against his breast.

It was two o'clock before Giles thought of leaving the flat.

"Such a scandal!" he teased Julie. "Neither of us would have a shred of reputation left if our best and dearest friends knew how abominably we have been behaving."

Julie made a little grimace.

"I haven't any best and dearest friends except Bim—" she answered, and then abruptly: "Giles what do you think of Sadie?"

"Sadie—" He was glad that as cheek was resting against his shoulder, she could not see his face. It seemed an ill omen that at this moment she should speak of his wife. He avoided a deliberate answer.

"What a question! I hardly know what to say," he said lightly.

"I only asked because she has spoken about you several times. I think she rather like you."

"Nonsense!.."

His voice sounded almost angry and Julie looked up at him in surprise.

"Don't you want her to like you? She and I are great friends. I prefer her to any one I have met since—" She stopped with a little shrug of her shoulders.

"Since you and I met on the top of the world," Giles added for her.

It was nearly three in the morning when he left the flat, and the streets were silent and deserted as he walked away through the darkness, pausing for a moment to look back at the lighted window where Julie stood with her face pressed to the pane to catch a last glimpse of him.

Behind him was the sound of other steps, a little slower than his, and yet in some strange way seeming deliberately to be dogging him.

Chittenham glanced over his shoulder, irritatingly conscious of being followed.

A taxicab on the lookout for a late fare turned a corner, and Giles hailed it. At all events it would put an end once and for all to his interested follower. As he slammed up the door he glanced backwards along the road the way he had come.

The man was passing beneath a street lamp, and in the sudden light his figure seemed strangely familiar, although for the moment Chittenham could not place the resemblance.

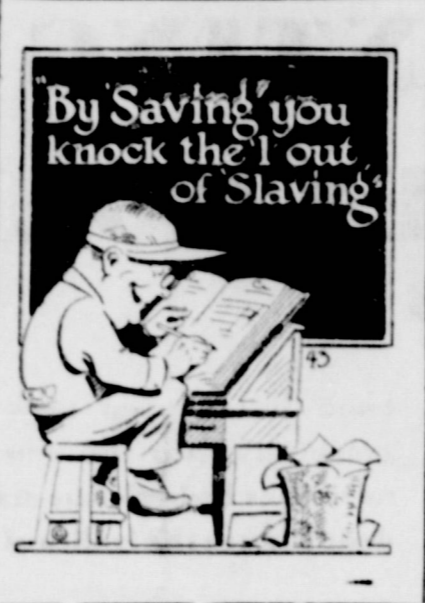

The taxicab moved away and then at last once he knew—it was Lombard! That was the resemblance he had seen—Harry Lombard!

For an instant he was conscious of angry premonition; what did it mean?—then he laughed at himself. The idea was preposterous! Why should Lombard have followed him? He remembered their last meeting—and Lombard's detestable insinuations.

Chittenham's face grew grim.

GOOD MORNING DOCTOR

One day when I was working at my first job and was—needless to say—hard up, I developed a severe pain.

A stranger in New York, I had read in the newspapers the name of a diagnostician who was internationally famous. I went to his office, which was in his beautiful home, at eight o'clock in the morning. The waiting room was already full. There was a rich man who tugged impatiently at his watch. There was a haughty woman. And there were also half a dozen shabbily dressed folk, including a poor mother with a very sick baby.

Without favoritism, each was ushered into the consultation room in the order of his arrival. Presently my turn came.

I said to the doctor: "I can not afford to consult you, but my health is my entire business capital. Therefore, I feel that I simply must come to headquarters."

He gave me a careful examination, wrote a prescription, and told me that I would be all right again in a few days.

I pulled out my pocket book, which contained two weeks' salary.

"How much are you earning?" he asked.

I told him $25 a week. "Well, if you'll promise not to tell anybody," he answered, "I'll charge you five dollars."

In the intervening years I have become the father of three children, and my salary has been raised a couple of times. I have had occasion to employ several physicians and three different surgeons. Some of the bills have amounted to hundreds of dollars. But I have never received a bill that seemed to me unreasonable or even adequate, considering the importance of the service rendered.

I have known several doctors who married rich wives, and some who made money in real estate or the stock market. I have met a number who gained modest fortunes from their practice, but none who became really rich. And the amount of free work done by even the biggest men in the profession has always been a marvel to me.

As an advertising man and a former sales manager, I feel that the health business is still too much an old-fashioned one.

I should like to see dozens of big clinics in every city, each with its group of specialists. I should like to see them use newspaper advertising, and draw most of their revenues from the healthy rather than from the seriously ill. I believe that if we Americans paid twice as much to good doctors every year it would be the best money we could possibly spend.

Some developments of this sort will come in the next generation. They are beginning already. Meanwhile, I feel a great sense of gratitude to the doctors. If my experience is typical, they are a swell group of men.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M. D.

EXCESS OF EATING

"We Eat More and More," reads a recent headline. A writer and compiler of statistics quoted from the Literary Digest says, "One hundred and fifty pounds a year is our increase in food consumption during a generation." He adds that, "We consume fewer cereals and more sugar, fruits, and milk products."

He says quite an earful; he speaks of a time when dinner arrived at noon, and was the big meal of the day. Supper was usually cornmeal, mush-and-milk, with fried mush, butter and molasses for breakfast the next morning.

Those were the days when people got along with some 500 fewer diseases than we "enjoy" at the present time—and when a fellow died of old age. There is everything except wisdom in many of the dietary customs of this on-rushing age of early death and big inheritance taxes.

In the last generation we have jumped from thirty-four to forty-four pounds in fats and oils; thirty years ago, we consumed sixty-one pounds of sugar, today we swallow our hundred-and-fifth pound for the year just past. We eat, according to this authority, 142 to 145 pounds of meat each per year—not varying much, except perhaps less when the price of meat goes up.

Our increase in dairy products is wholesome—from 840 pounds to 1040 pounds; the same may be said of fruits; the gain from 169 to 192 pounds of fresh fruit, points the way to better and more healthful living. There has been a most striking decline in the use of corn-meal, the summarist tells us. And here is the best and most correct "roughage" of all! It's a pity we can't get any statistics on the per cent of increase of loaded colons and constipation.

My purpose in this letter is to induce thinking on part of my readers; I believe they will agree with me, that the old way of feeding, breakfast, dinner and SUPPER is productive of length of days.

Cast Selected For Lions Play To Be Given December 17

The cast of the play "The Absent-Minded Bridegroom," to be presented under the auspices of the Ozona Lions Club at the Ozona Theater on Wednesday evening, December 17, has been chosen and practice has already started. This is one of the most laughable three-act comedy dramas ever written and is expected to make a big hit with local audiences.

The play is being directed by Rev. M. M. Fulmer. Members of the cast include Jake Young, Hugh Childress, Jr., John L. Bishop, Claude Denham, Evert White and Misses Mary Kincaid, Mary Childress, Beulah Baggett and Hester Bunger.

Rev. M. M. Fulmer will leave next week for Comstock where he will open a revival meeting on Wednesday night, November 26. The meeting will last ten days.

Misses Mary Childress, Lucile Ingham, Beulah Baggett and Wanda Watson went to San Angelo Wednesday to see the presentation of "Hamlet."

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Adams are here while Mr. Adams is recovering from a dislocated hip suffered recently when a horse fell with him on his Pecos County ranch.

Grover Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Jones, who was reported seriously ill the first of the week, is improving, according to reports from his bedside early this morning.

ON CASH BASIS

The McLeod Motor Company has announced that, effective December 1, the credit system will be abandoned by that firm in favor of the cash-with-purchase plan. This action has been found necessary to overcome losses necessarily suffered under the credit system and to bring about lower prices which the management believes will be possible through elimination of credit losses, expensive bookkeeping systems, etc., A. H. McLeod, manager, said. It is believed that the new policy will redound to the benefit of both the company and its customers.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Montgomery were in San Angelo over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mulroy returned Tuesday from a two weeks vacation trip.

Mrs. Charles E. Davidson, Sr., Mrs. W. J. Grimmer, Mrs. Bryan McDonald and Mrs. Pon Seahorn left Wednesday morning to spend the day in San Angelo.

CONSERVATION

The major conservation efforts in every field will have to come from organized society rather than from individuals. Let it not be assumed, however, that individuals have no responsibility.

The state needs alert and vigilant citizens to support its program.

No government is going to rise higher than the people upon which it rests. Public opinion is the ultimate source of power. We need to develop a new psychology.

The men who built America thought in terms of profit. The men who are to preserve America if it is to be preserved as a land of opportunity and progress, must learn to think in terms of civilization. — Field and Stream.

If So, You Cannot Fail To See The Justice In Our New Business Policy We Are Forced to Make Below

Effective Dec. 1, 1930
Will Go On a Strictly

CASH BASIS

And Will Discontinue
All Charge Accounts

THE ANTIQUATED credit system is doomed in America! Modern and Progressive business firms all over the country have long since abandoned the System as unfair both to the customer and to the merchant.

BUT OUR decision to abandon the credit system in favor of the increasingly popular cash-with-purchase plan should in no wise be interpreted as a reflection on your credit standing and integrity.

WE ARE GOING TO COME CLEAN WITH YOU!

WE MUST bring in some money with which to meet our obligations and the only sure way to do it—to meet an immediate demand—is to adopt the cash-with-purchase plan. Of course, we expect to meet you half way or more. By eliminating expensive book-keeping and credit losses we will be able to do business on a much closer margin of profit, consequently we will be able to pass along an appreciable saving to our customers on every purchase.

WE WANT to thank those who have traded with us on open account basis, and also those who have paid cash. We hope we will have your co-operation in the future by continuing your patronage on a CASH BASIS with us OUR PRICES WILL BE LOWER and you will be able to SAVE MONEY.

IT WAS a pleasure for us to carry the open accounts on our books for your convenience. Now that we NEED YOU we hope you will continue to give us your patronage on the cash basis—and SAVE MONEY.
