Roosevelt Asks Farm Mortgage Relief Passage

Broader Credit Seen If Burdens Are Alleviated

WASHINGTON, April 3. (UP).—President Roosevelt today sent a message to congress appealing for legislation to ease the mortgage-burdened farmer.

He said the legislation should be an "integral part of a broad plan to end forced liquidation of property, to increase purchasing power and to broaden the credit structure for the benefit of both producing and consuming elements."

He said refinancing of mortgage and other farm indebtedness would provide the means for farmers to readjust on reasonable terms, would lighten their burdens and give them a fair opportunity to return to sound conditions.

"I seek an end to the threatened loss of homes and productive capacity now faced by hundreds of thousands of American farm families," he said. "Soon, I will ask additional legislation for small home owners, reciprocal trade agreements to break through trade barriers, to establish foreign markets for farm and industrial products."

The program was introduced in the senate following his message.

Midland Winner of 1-Act Play District Meet

Midland high school placed first in the district one-act play contest held Friday and Saturday at Ballinger, San Angelo won second place and Odessa third.

The Midland cast, which included John Ed Crabb, Roberta Dunagan, Eddie Blanche Cowden, Jessie Lou Armstrong, Ernestine Holder, Helen Foster, Maggie Allen, Roy Skipper, and Joe Roberts, directed by Mrs. K. Barry, presented "Elmer," a comedy with a strong element of pathos, and received the unanimous decision of the three judges.

John Ed Crabb, who played the part of Elmer, was voted the best actor in the tournament, while one of the actors from San Angelo and one from Odessa were accorded second and third rank respectively. Roberta Dunagan was given third place among the actresses, first place going to an Odessa girl and second to one of the San Angelo cast.

The Midland play was remarkably well received by the audience which applauded so long and enthusiastically at times that action of the play had to be halted. The director expressed herself as well pleased with the presentation and particularly with the good work of members of the supporting cast to give a smooth and finished performance.

Favorable comments were heard on the interpretations given by Eddie Blanche Cowden and Jessie Lou Armstrong, and also by Ernestine Holder and Maggie Allen. Helen Foster, as the scared negro, and Roy Skipper and Joe Roberts, as young men of the 'teen age, also were favorably received.

The cast was accompanied to Ballinger by Mrs. Barry, director, Miss Stella Mave Lanham, makeup artist, Mrs. R. C. Crabb, and Mrs. J. Ellis Cowden. The next contest will be held at Abilene where Midland, on account of winning the district, will compete in the regional contest.

Van Camp Directs World's Fair Work

Van Camp, chief engineer of the Southern Survey Service, Fort Worth, husband of Mrs. Camp who is a teacher at North Ward school here, has been appointed district chairman of the Texas World's Fair commission, it was announced this morning.

Camp, who formerly conducted a civil engineering service with Midland as headquarters, will have direct supervision of World's Fair work for Fort Worth and West Texas, with headquarters in Fort Worth.

He was appointed by L. E. Snavely, general chairman of the Texas World's Fair commission.

Haight Named as Class President

Harry L. Haight was named president of the Men's class, meeting at Hotel Scharbauer, yesterday to serve the unexpired term. Haight formerly was president of the class, and has been active continuously in directing organization work. He was nominated by J. V. Stokes, Cam L. Fanning moved that he be elected by acclamation.

The count on the north side, in the reunion barbecue contest, was erroneously reported at 32 yesterday, a revised count showing only 25.

Miss Marguerite Bivins sang "My Task."

Beats Phar Lap's Record

The book-makers were right when they picked Gallant Sir as a certain winner in the $25,000 Agua Caliente Handicap race Sunday afternoon. The brilliant, thoroughbred, owned by Norman W. Church, set a new track record time of 2:02 3/5 seconds over the mile and a quarter, lowering the famous Phar Lap's time of last year by a fifth of a second. Waylayer finished second and Lemon Hills third.

District Convention of Rotary Clubs at San Angelo Expected to Attract 900; Local Men to Attend

SAN ANGELO, April 3. (UP).—Eight or nine hundred Rotarians and Rotary Anns are expected here May 1 and 2 when San Angelo is host city to representatives from the 61 clubs of the 41st district of Rotary International.

The district, described as northern and Western Texas, includes all of the Panhandle, southeast to Brady and Temple and northeast to Denton and Fort Worth.

O. B. Sellers, president of the Fort Worth Rotary club, is slated to succeed H. C. (Andy) Anderson of Ranger, as district governor at the election May 2. This is the only officer to be selected as the governor and presidents and secretaries of the 61 clubs compose the governing body. This choice is not official or final, but no opposition to Sellers' candidacy has been expressed.

While the conference opens officially Monday morning, May 1, a non-denominational religious service is planned for Sunday night, with Rabbi Henry Mersfeld of Beth El Temple, Fort Worth, as the speaker. His subject will deal with international relations.

Formal opening exercises are to be held Monday morning and four luncheons are scheduled for noon. These are to be for groups on (1) club service, (2) vocational service, (3) community service, and (4) international service. At least one delegate from each visiting club is to attend one of the luncheons. The business meetings follow immediately.

A barbecue dinner is planned for early in the first evening following by an entertainment and play at the municipal auditorium. Two dances complete the day's program.

A club executives' breakfast is to open the second day's program with business sessions and election of the new governor to follow during the morning. At noon the major luncheon, to which all delegates are invited, is to start, with the final business session and introduction of the new governor following immediately.

Carl Steeb of Columbus, Ohio, is to represent the international headquarters and will be one of the speakers. Other speakers are to be selected and announced by Governor Anderson.

The Rotary conference will be different from other conventions in that the various 61 clubs defray all expenses, the host city to furnish only cars for the delegates and the minor arrangements.

Banquet Tonight at Baptist Annex

Quarterly banquet of teachers and officers of the Baptist Sunday school will be held at the Baptist annex this evening at 7:30.

The meeting, strictly informal, will be in charge of J. O. Nobles and the Rev. Winston F. Borum.

Places for all teachers and officers of the Sunday school, approximately 65, have been arranged and a full attendance is expected, officers said.

Goal of 50 Set by Brotherhood Class

Goal of fifty members present was set for next Sunday by men of the Brotherhood Bible class of the Baptist Sunday school. Attendance yesterday was 37. An absentee list was read and members pledged themselves to make a drive to fill the class room. No contest is being held at present, but a steady growth is reported. The Rev. Winston F. Borum is teacher.

Health Board Meeting

A meeting of the Midland county health board will be held tonight at 7:30 in the commissioners court room. Miss Olga Bueresh of the state health department will attend.

City Federation to Meet

A meeting of the City Federation will be held Wednesday morning at 9:30 at the John A. Haley home, 423 West Wall, Mrs. Haley announced this morning.

City Officials to Be Elected Here Tomorrow

Polls Open at Eight For Voting at City Hall

Polls open at eight o'clock Tuesday morning in the city election, closing at seven in the evening, it was announced today by city officials.

The election will be held at the city hall, with R. V. Hyatt as manager.

A mayor, three aldermen and a city marshal are to be elected. The mayor's race ballots upon the J. H. Knowles, W. P. Dykema and the incumbent, Leon Goodman.

Aldermen candidates on the ticket include G. Ulmer, Ralph M. Barron and Foy Proctor, with three places to be filled.

Candidates in the race for city marshal are W. T. Blakeway, Lee Haynes and the incumbent, A. J. Norwood.

Gallant Sir Easy Winner in Handicap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., April 3. Gallant Sir, great 4-year-old thoroughbred owned by Norman W. Church, flashed home a comparatively easy winner in track record time in the $25,000 Agua Caliente handicap here Sunday.

The outdrawn favorite ran the mile and a quarter in 2:02 3/5, a fifth of a second better than the record set last year by Phar Lap. Waylayer was second, Lemon Hills third and Lovers All fourth.

Gallant Sir broke fast from the starting gate, and George Wood, his rider, held him back in fifth position around the first turn. Whiz James, stablemate of Gallant Sir, set the early pace, but Bahamas took the lead on the back stretch and stretched it to three lengths. Gallant Sir began moving up on the outside, overhauled Bahamas on the last turn and came into the stretch running like a flash.

Waylayer, one of A. A. Baroni's two entries, came from far back to challenge the big horse in the last sixteenth. For a time it looked as though Waylayer might overtake him, but Wood clucked to Gallant Sir and the Sir Galahad III coat came in a length to the good.

Gallant Sir won $24,200 as his share of the added purse. Waylayer got $2,500, Lemon Hills $1,250 and Lovers All $750. Lovers All ran a beautiful race for a young filly. It was the first time a 3-year-old filly ever had attempted the handicap in its 14 years' history.

Waylayer, after leading the pack a good half of the distance, faded badly in the stretch and finished fifth. Wirt G. Bowman was sixth, Sain Spar seventh. The Nut was eighth and Whiz James, Gallant Sir's pacemaker, was last. Despite the fact that Gallant Sir was a 1 1/2 favorite in the books, he paid $3.60 to win, $4 to place and $2.60 to show, on $25,000. Waylayer paid $9 to place and $3.40 to show. Lemon Hills $5.20 to show.

Pirates Demand Million in Ransom

YINGCHOW, Manchuria, April 3. (UP).—F. L. Pearce, British steamer engineer, returned today from the hold of pirates with a message that a million dollars cash ransom will be required for return of the other three officers abducted Thursday. Ammunition and immunity also were asked.

Britain Issues Trade Reprisals Against Soviet

LONDON, April 3. (UP).—Prime Minister MacDonald issued trade reprisals today against Soviet Russia, protesting the impending trial of six British subjects who are charged with sabotage in Moscow.

He will present an enabling act tomorrow governing imports of Soviet shipments and the enactment is expected Wednesday.

Soviet trade was unrelenting and threatened not to buy British goods if the embargo is passed.

Still Explodes, Injuring Family

HEARNE, April 3. (UP).—A whiskey still explosion in the John Dechiro home today critically injured his son, Joe, 20, Dechiro's father, mother, sister, Lena, and brother, Frank, were seriously scalded.

A wall of the house was blown away. Steam extinguished the flames following the blast.

Sanitation Commended

Sanitary conditions in Midland, under direction of Marshal A. J. Norwood, were complimented today by F. D. Brock, inspector for the state pure food and drug department, who was making his second trip of periodical inspection here.

"I find nothing wrong in Midland," he said.

Army Ship Lands

Major Hefner and Lieut. Nugent landed their O-25-C army ship at Sloan field this afternoon en route to Fort Bliss, El Paso, from Dallas. Two army ships were expected to land late this afternoon from Fort Sill. Their destination is not known.

Beer in Moderation

WASHINGTON, April 3. (UP).—Mrs. Roosevelt, tee-totaler, said today that beer will be served in moderation at the White House when it is legalized in the District of Columbia.

President a "Promising Cub Reporter"

"A promising cub reporter" was the commendation capital newsmen gave President Roosevelt (left) as he was made a member of the National Press club at its 25th anniversary dinner in Washington. Beside the president is Raymond P. Brandt, club president; and in the rear, Donald A. Craig, chairman of the anniversary committee.

Urge U. S. Aid for German Jews

Uncle Sam's intervention to halt mistreatment of Jews in Germany was asked by this delegation of Jewish War Veterans, pictured here. President Roosevelt, received the petition from J. George Fredman (right), Commander-in-Chief of the organization.

Qualifications of Dykema Are Cited

A letter of testimony to the qualification of W. P. Dykema, candidate for mayor in the Tuesday city election, has been received by friends of the candidate. It is from M. H. Hagaman, the man for whom Hagaman Lake at Ranger is named, who has been mayor of Ranger and who has served several terms to the Texas legislature from Ranger.

The letter read:

"I knew Mr. W. P. Dykema from the time he came to Ranger until the time he left. He built and operated a gasoline plant here until the plant was sold to one of the major companies. He was successful in the operation of this plant. While he was operating the plant I had quite an amount of business dealings with him and always found him very agreeable to do business with.

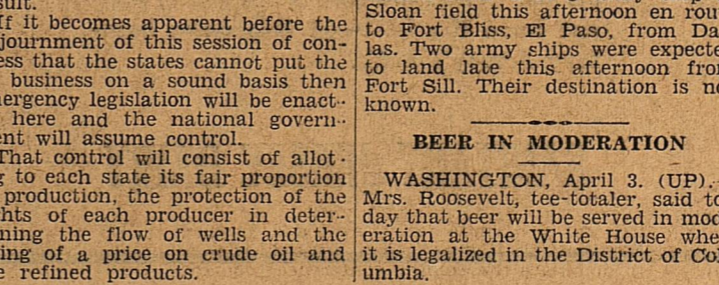

"Mr. Dykema is a very conservative man and I think that he would give your city a good business administration, and hope he is successful."

Donates Old Document

AUSTIN, (UP).—The original document, signed by Charles V. of Spain which sent Hernando Cortez, famous Spanish conquistador, to the new world as captain-general of New Spain, is to be a birthday gift to the University of Texas.

The document, purchased by Mrs. Miriam Luther Stark of Orange, Texas, will be given the university at its semi-centennial anniversary during the Fourth Annual Round-up here, April 28, 29, and 30.

County Poll Tax Gives City Vote

Everybody in Midland who aids or her county poll tax his year can vote in the city election tomorrow.

There is some misunderstanding by some citizens who think they must have paid a city poll tax to vote tomorrow.

There is no city poll tax. There never has been any such thing as a city poll tax in Midland. There is only the county poll tax payment required to permit voting in Midland.

Every man and woman in Midland who has paid his 1933 county poll tax can vote Tuesday for mayor, city councilmen and city marshal.

Local Golfers Win First Sand Belt Engagement

Midland golfers took the first match of the Sand Belt season Sunday afternoon, beating Big Spring's aggregation 22 to 18.

Perfect weather added to the desirability of the afternoon's engagement, a large gallery witnessing the consistent playing of the almost evenly matched teams.

Midland's players, selected from a spirited ladder tournament on the local links, were well chosen and gave an able account of themselves. Results, by pairs, follow:

Robbins, Big Spring, beat Clyde Jackson, Midland, one up on 19 holes, score Robbins 78, Jackson 79; Mason, Big Spring, beat Elliott Miller, Midland, one up, score Mason 83, Miller 84;

Gearty, Kild, Midland, won three and two over Morgan of Big Spring, score Kidd 80, Morgan 84;

Frank Day, Midland, won four and two over office of Big Spring, score Day 80, Coffey 84;

Billy Moran, Midland, beat Hicks of Big Spring one up, score Moran 78, Hicks 80;

Watt of Big Spring beat Joe Chambers, Midland, four and three, score Watt 82, Chambers 86;

De Lo Douglas, Midland, shot the day's low score to win six and five over Baxley of Big Spring, score Douglas 76, Baxley 84;

Red Knight, Midland, beat Griffin of Big Spring one up on 19 holes, score Knight 84, Griffin 83.

Baseball Practice Finds 25 at Work

With the cleaning off of the ground and the beginning of the first practice Sunday, baseball prospects are rather rosy, according to Dr. David M. Ellis, Indian club skipper.

Another practice will be held this afternoon at 5:30, Rainwater diamond.

Dr. Ellis announced that a proposed deal for playing north of the J. E. Hill home, which has fallen through, but that negotiations between club nabobs and a man living in the west end had been started and that hopes for closing a deal this week for another proposed site are held.

From 20 to 25 horsehide prospects reported Sunday. Due to the conditions of the ground manual labor preceded the workout, which consisted of the usual routine—tossing the ball around, hitting practice, fly shagging and pitching workout.

The pitching problem, which has more or less been matter for conjecture, has partly resolved itself with the announcement there are three hurlers available and two more in prospect.

The club will hold regular practices until the date of the first game, April 23, with Wink.

House Passes Bill Halting Forced Sales

AUSTIN, April 3. (UP).—The house today passed the senate bill postponing sheriff's sales until May 4.

The senate reconsidered its former action reducing the ranger force from 44 to 20 and allowed an appropriation for a larger number. Money to continue work of the state tax board was replaced in the appropriation bill.

Use Machine Gun to Rob Plant of $1,500 in Cash

DALLAS, April 3. (UP).—Three bandits today robbed the Adkins Packing company of $1,500 in cash soon after opening of the business. They used a machine gun and forced the manager, Henry Beck, to open the safe.

Jimmy Walker May Be Married Today

NEW YORK, April 3. (UP).—Friends of former Mayor Jimmy Walker said they understand he is to wed Betty Compton, actress, at Cannes, France, today. His wife was granted a divorce a week ago at Miami.

USE YOUR RIGHT TO VOTE

Saturday's vote in the school trustee election was unusually small, considering the interest in street talk for weeks before.

Tomorrow will see an important election in that a mayor, three aldermen and a city marshal are to be chosen by the voters. Contrary to custom, there are more candidates than usual in a city election.

All voters who have paid their state and county poll tax are entitled to vote in the city election. No city poll tax is required.

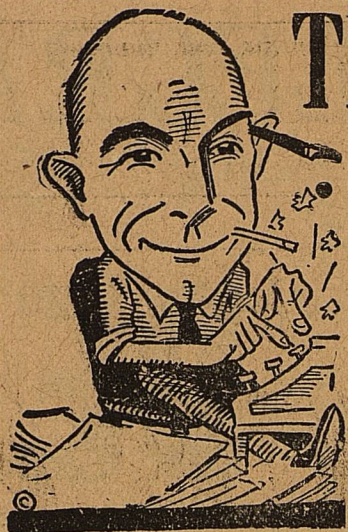

Exercise your right as a citizen and cast your ballot for the man of your choice. Small totals in voting reflect a disinterested citizenship.

Perhaps we are so busy getting out of debt in order that we can get credit to get into debt again that we haven't had time to figure out the cause of the depression.

I have been exploiting Pete as a valuable citizen now for several months. Leave it to him and he would hide his light under a bushel, or a bottle or something, but I have kept his name before the public to the extent that he got a vote for school trustee.

As he said, the only reason Bob Hill beat him was because Bob had a bigger family. Bob got five votes.

I will withhold practically all comment on the city election until Wednesday. However, I am authorized to quote Pete Flanagan as saying that if anyone plans to write his name on the city ticket to do so only for mayor. # VOTE for W. P. DYKEMA for MAYOR

If You Believe:

That the cost of operating the City Government has been reduced over 100% during the past three years—

That the Mayor and Council could further reduce it if this were true—

That the cash balance on hand has been steadily increasing—

That Midland cannot afford to ask lower public utility rates—

That any Midland Mayor has made any expensive trips at his personal expense for the city's benefit—

That the Mayor and Council have been working in PERFECT harmony—

That it is an outstanding accomplishment that Midland has not defaulted its bonds—

That the West Texas Municipal League has produced any benefit to you—

That the City's indebtedness is only $44,200.00—

That $41,588.60 is all the city hall and paving has cost—

THEN YOU MAY OR MAY NOT STILL BE SATISFIED.

Why Vote for W. P. DYKEMA:

He has always paid ALL his debts and does not approve of creating obligations that are difficult if not impossible to meet. He proposes to be candid and fair with the public regarding the city's financial condition.

He expects to dig deep for possible reductions in operating expense and keep the tax payers advised of actual operations.

He will insist on a lower tax RATE AND VALUATION, if possible, THEREBY ENABLING MORE tax payers TO PAY THEIR TAXES.

He would insist that EVERY user of water pay their bills alike, not favor any friends in any way, put those who CANNOT pay on the charity list if shown to be in that class and thereby effect a saving. Understanding the operation of public utilities, he would be able to intelligently discuss this vital public business with the officials of the utility companies thereby having a reasonable chance to reap real benefit for their patrons. There is scarcely need to resort to court action. Favors are not obtainable in that manner.

He would make no useless and expensive trips (Somebody always has the bills to pay), but put in all his time on the business of the city, hoping to save the people something and not seek personal publicity. He would expect to not only work in harmony with the Council but with the whole people whom he would also take into confidence and seek their co-operation.

Keen judgment, loyalty to the people's interest, faith in Midland, ambitions for Midland, knowledge of the city's finances, strict economy with the people's money are needed to continue Midland's good reputation and Midland's standing as a solvent, progressive city. With a knowledge and understanding of these important features, and no outside influences to prevent their free use, he has agreed to undertake this task at the insistence of his fellow citizens.

Should he become a member of the West Texas Municipal League, he would insist on beneficial results or that it disband and stop the expense.

A Vote for W. P. Dykema is TRULY a Vote for Midland.

The Reporter-Telegram presents this serialization of "Rasputin and the Empress," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picture version of the dramatic fall of the Romanoff family.

ly, starring the three Barrymores: Ethel, John and Lionel. We left Rasputin in our last installment just at the beginning of his power over the Empress.

CHAPTER TEN

Prayers of thankfulness and relief welled up from the hearts and souls of a hundred million Russian men and women; their beloved little Tsarevich, heir to the throne of all the Russias, again was able to laugh and to play. Only Prince Paul saw the glassy stare in the boy's eyes, saw the change that had come over the once radiant Alexei. Once the child's face had lighted up at Paul's approach; now he shrank from the Prince.

Rasputin, scheming craftily, allowed no one near the Tsarevich, dismissing even the boy's teachers, and devoting his time to instilling into Alexei a sense of cruelty and hatred. The peasant-monk's pious attitude in the presence of the court blinded them against the truth.

There were parties and banquets in Rasputin's honor. For weeks Paul pondered and planned means of exposing the man who was gaining in power with each passing day. Rasputin gloated with triumph when he received word that he was to be feted at the Palace of Prince Paul Chesedoff.

An orchestra played slow, languorous music. Six ballet dancers in flimsy costumes drew the attention of the male guests from their women escorts while dinner was served.

And still Rasputin had not arrived. Dinner over, the guests devoted their attention to small talk and to backgammon. Paul drew Natasha to a low divan, and in their original seats as they reclined against the soft cushions. Natasha noticed the worried expression on Paul's face.

"I hope you're not angry with Father Rasputin for not coming," she said earnestly.

Paul laughed shortly. "Of course not," he assured her, with as much sarcasm as he could use to one he loved so well. "I seldom attend dinners given for me."

"He probably got into one of his mystic moods and forgot all about it."

"Or else found out who was here and ran like a rabbit," Paul said grimly. "I wouldn't blame him."

He looked at her tenderly and his hand found hers. Natasha returned the pressure. She wished that Paul's feeling toward the man in whom she had so much faith were different. She sensed her lover's hostility toward Rasputin, despite his attempt to conceal it from her.

Paul suddenly disengaged his hand from hers and leaned forward, clasping them on his knee and staring straight ahead of him.

"Somehow, you've changed, dear, since that man came," he said slowly. "Natasha, you seem far away from me. It's not like it used to be."

For answer, the girl put her hand on his shoulder and gently urged him back against the cushion.

"Paul," she told him simply, "I love you. Nothing can ever come between us. There's no need—"

At that moment the major domo opened the door to the room and, standing stiffly at attention, announced:

"Gregory Efimovitch Rasputin." Immediately all was silence as everyone looked up. Conversation stopped abruptly, and the rattle of dice ceased at the backgammon boards. Paul, excusing himself to Natasha, rose and stepped toward the door.

Rasputin stood calmly, his attitude suggesting that there was nothing wrong or extraordinary in his being hours late for a dinner in his honor. He surveyed the room, a look of self-assurance on his face.

"Well! We were getting worried about you," Paul said, coming up to him. "Dinner was at eight. We waited until ten. Can I get you something on a tray?" he added solicitously.

"No, I just ate," Rasputin answered casually. "Some wonderful berscht. A little friend of mine makes it."

He suddenly seemed to become interested in his surroundings. "Who are all these people?" he inquired.

"I'm about to present you," Paul said hospitably.

"Never mind, I'll tell you who I want to know," the peasant-monk replied matter-of-factly.

He pointed out Kropatkin and he sneered when Paul helped to restore the Duma. He reminded Paul of the French revolution. Give the peasants a voice? Ridiculous! They would cut off the heads of royalty! They were born to the whip! Let them have it!

Paul's jaw stiffened as he cut in: "If you'll pardon us, Father Rasputin and I have something to discuss; the situation in the Baltic. This way, Father, please."

Rasputin smiled as he followed the Prince toward the gun room. Behind them a buzz of conversation arose. Paul was obviously irritated. Many of those present would have given many rubles to have heard the conversation between these two.

Rasputin continued to smile as Paul closed the door behind them. Slowly, he measured the nobleman, prepared for anything that might happen in that closed room.

"Sit down?" Paul said pleasantly, indicating a small divan.

Rasputin, looking curiously at Paul and trying to divine his thoughts, seated himself gingerly.

"Well?" he asked shortly. "What was that cock-and-bull story about the Baltic?"

The men understood each other. Paul smiled as he presented a magnificent humidor.

"Cigar?" Rasputin granted as he selected one. Paul closed the humidor, placed it on the table, his toe kicking imaginary objects on the floor, his brows furrowed.

"You're a stranger at court . . ."

Rasputin watched him narrowly as he picked up a rapier from the table and began to toy with it.

and while you've had a great deal of success with the royal family, you might want a little advice," he continued.

He stood up and with an expert thrust jabbed at the wall. Rasputin turned, attempting to disregard the Prince's motions. The peasant-monk bit his cigar savagely and spit out the end. He bristled as he said:

"Advice? About what?" Paul assumed a thoughtful look.

"Well, a man in your position . . ." he continued to jab the rapier at the wall until the steel blade bent almost double. . . . nobody yesterday, today a hero. You are trusted by Her Majesty—almost worshipped."

Paul tossed aside the rapier. It fell to the floor with a shrill cry of struck metal. He stood facing Rasputin.

"Such a man might let success go to his head," he said suggestively.

Rasputin fished with his fingers for bits of cigar leaf still sticking to his teeth. He spat them out onto the floor. Paul's hands clenched his lips trembled with disgust. With difficulty, he controlled himself.

"What's the point?" Rasputin demanded. "Say what you mean."

Paul hardened visibly. "Well, if you're wise, you won't meddle in matters that are none of your concern," he said slowly.

"Such as?" Rasputin prompted, smiling again.

Paul allowed himself to smile. "The Duma, my friend," he explained.

Rasputin stroked his beard slowly. His eyes shone with a flaming fierceness as he replied: "The Duma concerns me very much."

He stood up. He threw the cigar on the floor. It broke with the force of the throw, and the leaves opened and scattered.

"Some day I'm going to run this country," he said fiercely. "I'm not going to have my toes stepped on by a lot of peasant swine with their ideas of government!"

Paul was really amused at his audacity. "So that's what you're up to? The power behind the throne!" he exclaimed.

Rasputin sneered openly.

"You might as well know it now as later. My advice is for you to get used to it."

Paul laughed in his face. "When did you start getting these delusions of grandeur?" he asked.

Froth gathered at the corners of Rasputin's mouth and streaked onto his black beard. Passionately, he said:

"You think I'm dirt, don't you? Some ignorant priest, born in the gutter, that you had to kneel to for a miracle!"

The man's fanaticism was coming to the surface.

"Well, you never made a worse mistake," he went on heatedly. "I know my destiny and I know my power!"

Rasputin's voice rose in sharp crescendo. He gestured violently.

"Every minute it's growing! Growing, and as long as the life of that boy hangs on my will, it will go on growing until this fine court of yours rots away! You talk of the Russian people and their rights! Why, you pampered fool! In a year less than a year—I'll be Russia! Do you hear that? Russia will be mine!"

"People with your ambitions are sometimes unlucky, my pretty father," Paul said quietly. "There was a general, not long ago. He shot himself in the back. No one quite understood why he did it."

"Do you think I'm frightened at the threat of murder?" Rasputin asked angrily.

"Murder is an ugly word," Paul said easily. "When the rights of a hundred and sixty million people are at stake, we call it progress."

"Will the might of this man grow to such proportions, or will destiny find a violent end for him?"
