Gruver - The Gruver Greyhounds went on the war-path here Friday night and scalped the Booker Kiowas 34-0, in a rather one-sided football game. Jeff Tout rushed for 139 yards, scoring on long runs of 50 and 40 yards. The Greyhounds held a 20-0 half time lead and added two more touchdowns in the last half to win the game. The Greyhound defense was as impressive as the offense allowing Booker less than 100 yards for the entire game. The Greyhound scoring was rather sensational, for the opening game! Scooter Scott Gross scored the first Gruver touchdown on a 10-yard interception and ran for the TD. Rick Cazarez added another TD in the first quarter on a 10-yard run. Jeff Tout scampered 50 yards for a TD and added another 40 yard touchdown run with Gary Gibbreath taking a 40-yard pass for the final Greyhound tally. Dorman kicked 4 extra point tries for the evening to give the Greyhounds a final 34-0 victory!

Speakers call for profitable farming

Profitable farming was the underlying theme of all the talks Thursday night, Sept. 1, with Rep. Jack Hightower pointing out the possibility of another agricultural depression if profit is taken out of farming and Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown sounding the alarm for a national priority system for agriculture during the Poor Farmers Supper in Spearman.

Presentations by other speakers on the program lent support to the profit-oriented concept of farming with outlines of the efforts their organizations were making at home and abroad in attempting to profitably market agricultural products.

Leading into his remarks, Rep. Hightower paid special tribute to the Spearman W.I.F.E. Chapter members by noting that "anytime anybody tells you that nothing can be done about any problem in Washington, that nobody up there cares or listens, you tell them that you know better and I'll give you a for instance to let them about."

He noted that he did not have a lot of good news for the future of the nation. It was not all bad, speaking of the upcoming farm legislation with the questionable side program, but it was not as good as "we would have liked for it to have been."

He mentioned that a number of farmers in the Panhandle of Texas are going bankrupt today because they cannot keep going any longer in leading into his statement that if the farmer goes broke it is going to break the basic structure of the economy of this country because agriculture is basic and "we cannot afford to have another agricultural depression. We're in one and we can't afford it."

The past surplus and the money made in the past on the foreign trade put this nation in the black but the difference now is that this country is not now in the black—more export selling is necessary and this nation must continue to sell commodities worldwide. "It must be produced and we must keep the farmer in production in this country in just a short number of years."

Pointing out that there could be possibility of a food shortage in the future, a way must be found to assist the farmer in staying in business, he related that the farm bill as now written is not going to solve that problem and that all efforts are being concentrated on getting the Department of Agriculture to set a side acreage.

Bringing up another of the problems confronting agriculture at this point in time, Hightower said that he was very much concerned about the bankers all over the Panhandle who want to stay with the farmers but must operate under established banking rules and the bankers are very much concerned about the kind of credit they must have in making loans.

Touching on the sensitive issue of the representative said that he agreed with President Carter. There is an energy crisis. Alternate sources of energy must be developed.

Hightower noted, pointing out that the energy bill as it is now being considered has not one incentive for domestic oil and gas.

Adding that he realized that it was the constitutional responsibility of the government to collect the necessary fees of governmental operations, the representative from Vernon stressed the importance of the premise that it was not the responsibility of the government to impose a tax for a rebate to people who don't pay it at all.

His belief offered his audience that some incentive is required to increase the ability to provide oil and gas and restrain prices instead of raising taxes to the level of inflation with the rebate going to the public.

In the long range, he added, it is necessary to develop alternate energy sources and we must continue our research along those development avenues in order to continue to be a strong nation.

He concluded by urging farmers to become more politically involved, either through W.I.F.E. effort or more personally involved.

Brown, threading his opening remarks with a little East Texas humor, stressed four points—the national priority system, the definition of a farmer, the development of a long-range agricultural program and not our capitalistic system work.

Without a national top priority for agriculture, the nation is on the road to national disaster. Brown warned. He urged a priority because if the farmers go down it will endanger the entire nation. Noting that he believed in freedom, but not the freedom to go broke. Brown said he wanted a set side with price support as well, under the priority system, a crop insurance program to protect the investment of the farmer.

Moving into the definition of a farmer in his opening remarks to the audience from agricultural states, that Texas can become No. 1 state in agriculture if it is not already there.

Brown also voiced a warning of future possibilities regarding national policy by noting that about 10 years ago those who wanted to set national policy reached the conclusion it was necessary to get to where policy is decided and that those people are now in the key positions. He brought out this in touching on the fact that there is a concept extant these days that food is not for profit but for people.

He described disorganization as a sin when he mentioned the more beef referendums as disasters.

And he urged Texas farmers to continue to plant cotton because it will keep them in business. He underscored this with the present situation where farmers are planting wheat and they don't know what the program is which is like a football game where the officials are undecided on the scoring rules.

Calling for the requirement of letting agricultural system work. Brown emphasized that "We have to call the shots," adding that the farmer must make a profit in order to stay in business.

He called for emphasizing all the things good about the capitalistic system of ours if we set it to work and then noted that there must be more involvement in world trade.

He wound up his forceful talk on the positive approach of getting back to our system, giving the farmers a profit and letting our system work.

Marlyn Groves, member of Spearman WIFE, emphasized that the group, which was already made two trips to Washington in an effort to get the farmers' voice across, plans another to the nation's capital in December.

But with this graze-out situation, we may be up there sooner," she said.

Hightower said WIFE groups from Texas helped in getting wheat and other target prices increased by a four-man conference committee last month.

Dent of Texas Wheat Producers Association; Elbert Harp, executive director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association; Charlie Ball, executive vice president of Texas Cattle Feeders Association; and Carl King, president of Texas Corn Growers Association.

Bobbie Novak with the introduction of Bill Nelson. Wanda Brown introducing Charlie Ball.

Molly Turner who gave the introduction for Carl King. Marlyn Groves who introduced Dale Hendricks. Barbara McClellan who introduced Elbert Harp.

A child's faith is beautiful in its simplicity and in the little things it encompasses. Like, for instance, the nightly ritual that comes at the end of prayer. "God bless Mommy and Daddy and Cousin Peter and Kitty Kat and my blue teddy bear."

To a child, there is no reason why God should not bless also a crumpled and slightly soiled teddy bear, and a pet kitty. For God is goodness and love and kindness and tolerance . . . not perhaps in those words, but in the feeling this child has as she says her prayers.

Prayer, to the child who has been taught to pray, is a natural thing. It should be as much a part of everyday life as eating and sleeping and playing. To pray for what is good . . . to give thanks for what one has is an all-important step in that all-important right direction on the road of life.

A Marine who had not received any mail for weeks was finally handed a letter while lying in a foxhole while bullets whizzing over his head.

It was a bill for five dollars, and the note read, "If this bill isn't paid in five days, you'll find yourself in serious difficulty."

Life is one difficulty after another. But if there were no difficulties, there would be no success. Difficulties are opportunities to prove God.

Write over all your difficulties, inscribe it over your fears, post it over your struggles. God is able.

sovereign control with full power and authority to the entire exclusion of such rights by Panama, according to the Treaty of 1903.

The U. S. taxpayers bought the U.S. Canal Zone three times—from Panama, the private owners and from Columbia. The total cost was stated in 1964 to be over $144 million making it the most costly territorial purchase for U.S. taxpayers.

Total U. S. investment of Panama Canal including its defense is estimated at over $2 billion. Our U. S. taxpayers have paid an estimated $1 billion over 10 years.

The U. S. has kept its end of the Treaty of 1903 and has met its obligations to Great Britain under the Treaty of 1901, keeping the Canal open, neutral and secure.

States and recognized as such by the U. S. Supreme Court on two separate occasions.

Total benefits to Panama in 1975, including the territory, was $253 million, by far the biggest income for Panama.

With the sovereignty issue no longer a problem, the way will be clear for the next major step in the Canal's development... that of major modernization; enlarging it and making it more efficient, under the Flood-Murphy-Snyder Bill of 1977.

Should sovereignty be given to Panama, every problem or issue will become subject for internal bickering and contention among many factions. Chaos will result.

A modernization plan was started by FDR in 1939, suspended in 1942, resumed in 1959 and terminated in 1970 at a total cost of $171 million.

Modernization which is badly needed in the interests of Panama and the United States and oceanic commerce, cannot proceed unless the U. S. is assured that the money will not be lost through the loss of sovereignty.

U. S. Canal Zone is a territorial possession of the United States.

A free 64-page booklet dealing with the many tax situations faced by farmers is available free from most Internal Revenue Service offices.

"Farmer's Tax Guide," IRS Publication 225, covers numerous tax facets of agriculture, including crop destruction, sod sales, drought sales, poultry purchases and the Federal Highway Use Tax.

Also included in the publication are instructions for use by farmers in completing Form 1040 and related schedules, a listing of the important tax dates which affect farmers during the course of the year, and several useful tips on how a good recordkeeping system can help a farmer insure that he or she takes advantage of all legal deductions.

Farmers can order the "Farmer's Tax Guide" by calling the IRS toll-free number: 1-800-492-4830.

Laborless Labor Day, 1977

Traveling under a slight misnomer is the Labor Day holiday for all days specially set aside to honor this or that occasion, the one up-coming Monday, September 5, 1977, probably should be named "Laborless Day."

Observed both traditionally and contemporarily on the first Monday in September (one difficult for even Congress to change without changing Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, etc., all about also), the occasion has been noted since the earliest Labor Day September 5, 1882.

In recent years it has become a last thing type of holiday before the serious business of Fall and Winter setting in and has actually lost much of its original meaning. However, it still stands as the one day in which we celebrate an important American belief which is based on the axiom that hard work is important and necessary to achieve success and happiness.

Twice ninety-five years ago that Labor Day found its true champion when Peter J. McGuire, the tenth born of an Irish-American family, suggested as president of the Knights of Labor and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, that a day be set aside especially to honor all those who labor. Acting on his suggestion, the Central Labor Union staged the first Labor Day parade and celebration. Later on that day, September 5th, there were picnics, dancing, fireworks, and that favorite of all nineteenth-century pastimes—oratory. Being a great success, the affair was repeated the following year with further embellishments. The choice of the first Monday in September had no particular significance and McGuire said, "I suggested that the first Monday in September of every year for such a holiday as it would come at the most pleasant season of the year—nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving, and would fill a wide gap in the chronology of legal holidays." Today, all fifty states and the District of Columbia provide for the holiday in their laws.

Actually with the closing of the very obvious gap between management and labor (except at the strike negotiations table) Labor Day has become a family affair—a goodbye to summer and a prelude to Fall—not just a day but a time for everyone to get together and for remembering the abilities and efforts which made our country great for now and always.

As Daniel Webster wrote, "Labor is one of the great elements of society—the great substantial interest on which we all stand. Not feudal service, or the drudgery by one race of mankind subjected, on account of their color to another; but labor, intelligent, manly, independent, thinking and acting for itself, earning its own wages, accumulating those wages into capital, educating children, maintaining worship, claiming the right of the elective franchise, and helping to uphold the great fabric of the State—that is American Labor; and my sympathies are with it, and my voice, 'till I am dumb, will be for it!"

In Depth

This will be the first in a series of articles bringing you an in depth interview with one of the Lynx Coaches. This is the beginning of football season and these first articles will deal with football coaching.

Our first interview introduces to you Coach Ed Moore. Coach Moore is quite a colorful figure with his Kentucky wit. He attended high school in a small town in Kentucky called Catlettsburg where in Coach Moore's words, "the Big Sandy made the Ohio. I could throw a rock and hit three states."

He didn't play basketball or football until his junior year in high school.

Coach Moore furthered his education at Morehead State University where in Coach Moore's words, "the Big Sandy made the Ohio. I could throw a rock and hit three states."

with coaching the varsity football guards. Coach Moore is now the Lynx Defensive Coordinator specializing with the defensive guards. In his defensive duties he attempts to teach the guards how to read blocking schemes and tries to outguess the opponents offensive coaches. Coach Moore will send mail signals to the field again this year. A lot of work goes into a coach's job other than his regular teaching tasks. He spends from 30 to 40 hours outside of school time looking at scouting reports, examining game films, and doing other varied coaching duties.

When asked about his duties as the Head Basketball Coach, Ed Moore said "when basketball season gets here we just move football indoors."

Claude Newell, guidance director at Spearman High, has announced that juniors will be able to join over one million other students around the world in taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) this fall. The test, cosponsored by the College Board and National Merit Scholarship Corporation, is an important step in making college plans.

Scheduled for October 18, 1977 at Spearman, the PSAT/NMSQT measures verbal and mathematical aptitude—two abilities important in doing college work. The test also leads to other opportunities for high school students. For example, students can ask to Know how to pick good potatoes? The skins are the "spud-o-meter" of potatoes. Following are some hints to increase your "skin-sit-tivity" (potato talk for judging skins) in purchasing potatoes.

Peggy's Pointers

Look for firm well-shaped and smooth tubers with few eyes.

Avoid potatoes that have large cuts, growth cracks, bruises, skinned areas and decay. A small amount of skinning is normal in new potatoes. But new potatoes with large skinned and discolored areas are not a good purchase.

Have you seen potatoes with green skins? Greening is caused by exposure to natural or artificial light. Sometimes only the skin is affected, but it may penetrate the flesh. It contains an alkaloid solanine which causes a bitter flavor. It may not bother you, but solanine is said to be poisonous to some people.

Sprouted or shriveled skins are warnings of poor quality in potatoes. Even potatoes with irregular, knob-shaped growths are considered defective because they are likely to cause quite a bit of waste.

If you are purchasing pre-packed potatoes, judging for quality can be an even harder task. Bags labeled U.S. No. 1 have been inspected for quality by government inspectors. Packages with USDA grades tell you the potatoes should be cleaner, firmer, more uniform in size, and have fewer defects.

It is impossible to detect internal defects without cutting potatoes, but these "skin tests" can keep you from buying ones which already have external evidences of poor quality.

If you find potatoes you purchase are hollow in the center or have severe internal discoloration, take them to your grocer for replacement.

Bread buying for economy should be "by weight"—and for nutrition, its label should say "enriched" or "whole grained."

Other bread-buying notes include these:

- a compact loaf will appear much smaller than a larger soft loaf, yet it might weigh as much
- when consumers choose bread by "size" instead of "weight," they might pay 50¢ air.
- a two pound loaf usually costs less per pound than a one-pound loaf
- usually the standard white loaf is the least expensive item on the bread counter, and standard whole wheat breads cost little more—if any

- ingredients must be listed in order of the amounts used, from largest to the smallest.
- Some brief descriptions of various breads are these:
 - White—contains refined wheat flour, liquid salt, yeast and certain optional ingredients.
 - High protein—quantity of milk used is higher than in standard white bread, and it may contain pure wheat germ and high protein flour. Its texture is coarser and its color creamier than standard white bread.
 - French, Italian, Vienna—use high protein flour—and they use water instead of milk to produce thick, crisp crust.

Salt Rising—leavened with a special bacterial ferment instead of yeast. Texture is fine and close-grained, and the flavor and odor are cheese-like.

Hightower Seeks Set-Aside Details

Congressman Jack Hightower again urged United States Department of Agriculture officials to release details of the announced wheat "set-aside" including regulations that would allow farmers to graze livestock on the acrea withheld from production.

"If farmers are not allowed to graze land withheld from production, it is doubtful they can afford to participate in the program," stated Hightower.

"Winter wheat pasture is a vital portion of our agricultural economy. Farmers will not be receiving payments for diverting acres as they did under set-aside programs during the 1950's and 1960's. They can no more afford to have fertile acres not producing revenue any more than we can afford to have plowed ground bare to winter and spring winds."

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture John C. White announced Monday the long rumored wheat acreage diversion. The Administration is calling for farmers to withhold 20 percent of their normal wheat cropland from production to reduce the surplus of wheat. With well over two years domestic supply on hand, wheat prices have stayed close to $2 per bushel, making the farmers return as little as one-half of the cost of production.

Export markets have been weak since the 1975 embargo caused many of our best customers to go elsewhere for grain purchases. Favorable weather world wide has provided a glutted world market with nations like India and even Bangladesh having bumper crops.

Hightower contended that while the acreage diversion may be necessary to bring our wheat supply back into a more even level with the demand, the grazing supply back into a more even level with the demand, the grazing aspect of the program will be a major factor as Texas producers participating in the program. "The wheat acres that graze do not comprise a majority of the wheat states. A large part of our costs like irrigation. To the individual producer in the 13th District, grazing or not grazing means the difference between profit and loss."

Hightower underscored the need for producers to know the details of how the entire set-side program would work. "We have had producers planting wheat for over a week now. There are changes in this new bill. If our farmers are going to comply, if they are going to participate in the program, they must know how it is going to work. Our farmers deserve to have the cards on the table to make their plans for the year."

Watch Those Additions!

How much thought did you give to that new patio, redwood deck or room addition that you may have added to your home? In most cases, plenty! What you may not realize is that even before the project is started you should notify your insurance agent in order to avoid falling into what is known as the "homeowner's coverage insurance gap".

All too often a policyholder may put a $5,000 or $6,000 addition onto his home but not tell his insurance agent. The oversight can be costly in two ways. First, if the home is partially or totally destroyed by fire, it may not be covered for the full loss. Secondly, if the home is not insured for at least 80% of its replacement value, the policyholder will lose out on a special feature included in the homeowner's policy. Subject to individual policy limits, losses are covered for full replacement cost (as opposed to a depreciated value) when the amount of insurance on the home is kept at or above the 80 percent level.
