"TWO BITS WORTH"
JOHNNY VALENTINE

My wife, D'Linda, and my... are proud to be back in Texas after publishing Santa Anna News for the several years. We are graduates of Ropesville School and have two children, Jona and Les'lie, and three respectively. We purchased the Lynn County News from Wendell Tooley who lives in Floydada. Wendell purchased the News from Frank Hill. "Mr. Newsman" is what most residents in Lynn County think of when they see Frank. We do not only own the Lynn County News but will live and work in Lynn County for the benefit of the citizens. We will run the commercial print plant and welcome your business. We have talked and visited with most of the business and professional people here but the limited time this week have not been able to visit everyone. We will get acquainted with everyone of you in the coming weeks and will be looking forward to working and playing together. We sign in a Post business that we live in a free country so you had better sign up if you aim to keep it that way. We was asked this week if I had golf? WELL, I heard of the local golfers talking about another golfer recently. Apparently the man has been defeating them lately at the game because of the men in the conversation said that the only way to beat this fellow was to throw him out of the golf bag. The other fellow in the conversation said he would like to have to throw him out of the golf cart but would like to run over him with the car after he threw him out of the cart in golf. Well in the question I start with, I sure don't want to play golf with the fellow who ran over, even after they threw him. There are two basic items in the success of a newspaper. One is the advertising and the other the circulation. Both directly affect the popularity of the paper by their leadership. Another element of course, is the reaction by the news and editorial content. This reaction in the form of phone calls, and sometimes conversation between residents. We urge each one of you to write letters to the editor if you have something to comment on and we also urge you to know if there is something you would like to have in our county newspaper. Generally, with more home town advertisers using the Lynn County newspaper it will be TWO BITS PG 2

The new owners are living at 1721 north 5th street and want to welcome everyone to come in and get acquainted. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine bought the News from Wendell Tooley in Early June.

Tatum Bros. Softball Team Bounce Back After 3 Losses

After losing three games in a row Tatum Bros. beat the league leading Tigers 14-4 to go into a first place tie with the Chancy and Son Tigers. Playing head-up ball the game started out to be a low scoring ball game. It remained that way until the fourth inning when the Tigers, leading 4-3, were overtaken by Tatum Bros. by a batting attack that left the Tigers holding the short end of the stick by a score of 14-4. One of the night's highlights was the preceding game between the Bray Chevrolet Pacesetters and Paymaster Ginners. This game was taken by the Ginners in a come from behind victory by a score of 5-1. Ricky Edwards was the winning pitcher with Sam Davis relieving him in the last two innings. Leonard Dunn was the losing pitcher. The Ginners pulled the old

July 4th Official Holiday In Tahoka

According to the Chamber of Commerce Manager, Maurice Small, the 4th of July is an official holiday for most residents and business in Tahoka and Lynn County. The Declaration of Independence, signed on July 4th, is an expression of America's fundamental belief in freedom. It is up to us to use the freedoms. How many people in other countries of the world can own their own businesses, be financially independent and own their own homes? These are just a few of the many freedoms we enjoy as citizens of this great country. The Lynn County News

Lynn County production in 1968 was 416,622 barrels at the rate of 1,138 barrels a day. Texas has 36 counties scattered over the state which produced at the rate of 25,000 barrels or more per day. Bumper Crops Still Possible In County

Although the unprecedented heat wave and high winds have damaged or destroyed some crops, prospects remain exceedingly good over the county as a whole, farmers report. Most cotton is doing well, but early maize is suffering in many instances and much of it has had midge damage over limited areas south and west of Tahoka. With some timely rains the rest of the season, Lynn county can still produce a bumper crop this year. June was one of the hottest months on record here. From June 19 through June 30, high temperatures ranged from 97 to 104, according to the local U.S. Weather Bureau Observer, Frank Hill. During eight days, there were seven days with temperature readings of 100 degrees or more. Most damage was done by hot winds of June 21 through June 26. Warmer nights the past ten days, however, have promoted cotton stalks and root growth, farmers say. Rainfall for June totaled 1.93 inches in Tahoka, with 1.10 of this coming on June 13 with a hard, blowing rain, when the hail damaged crops west and south of town. This rain followed up the 5.80 inches received in May and brings the total this year to 12.91 inches officially in west Tahoka, where the Weather Bureau instruments are located.

Proving Pain

As the result of an auto accident, you are left with continuing pains in your shoulder.

At least, so you say. But the driver of the other car thinks you are faking. If it comes to a showdown in court, would your word alone—without supporting evidence—be enough grounds for collecting damages?

That is a difficult question. Accepting a person's unsupported claim of pain may mean throwing the door open to fraud.

On the other hand, the pain may be real enough to the victim, even though he has no way of proving it. Predictably, courts differ as to just how much weight to give to this kind of complaint.

Fortunately, however, there are usually other ways—besides the claimant's own testimony—to establish that he does have pain.

Most persuasive is medical evidence. Although a doctor cannot actually feel a patient's pain, he can find out a great deal through his instruments. For example:

Pain may speed the patient's pulse. It may affect his blood pressure, his metabolism, and his respiration. It may even put extra zigzags into his electrocardiogram.

Moreover, a doctor can learn much simply by watching a patient's expression. As one judge put it:

"There are symptoms of pain that write their story on one's countenance as clearly as lightning scribbles in the sky."

Will a court listen also to the non-scientific observations of a layman? Generally yes, because these too may be revealing.

Thus, in one case, an accident victim's pain was proven through the testimony of a fellow patient in his hospital room. The patient vividly recalled the victim's moans, groans, and weeping.

Of course, any method of proving that pain is present may also be used to prove that it is absent. Both instruments and observation, both doctor and layman may—in proper circumstances—help to expose false complaints.

One woman, claiming injury in a bus accident, said she had severe pains in her back. But a doctor noticed that when he was touching that area, she winced far too much in some places and far too little in others.

Result: she collected nothing at all.

March of Medicine

Ancient Life-Saver Refined By Modern Science

That versatile tool of medicine, the catheter, is perhaps one of the most important, and least understood by the general public, of the entire arsenal of equipment available to the modern doctor.

A catheter is a hollow tube used by nurse and doctors to drain waste body-fluids - when illness, or blockage of some sort, impedes their natural flow. This draining procedure is called "catheterization."

Today's catheter is capable of several of the important medical uses. It provides the doctor with a simple and direct method of supplying medicated solutions to an inflamed bladder. And it can do this either intermittently or continuously, without interfering with the basic purpose of the catheter, drainage. This is done by using an instrument with a special, added channel.

Scientists of the hospital products division of the Kendall Company, one of the world's largest makers of catheters and hospital supplies, also report that catheters can be used to halt minor postoperative bleeding from the prostatic urethra. This is accomplished by inflating a tiny balloon at the top of the catheter after it has been placed in the body.

30 Years of Progress

Just as in other areas of scientific and medical progress, more advancements have been made on catheters in the past 30 years than in the preceding 5,000 years. Today's instruments bear little resemblance to those used for centuries.

And catheters have indeed been used for thousands of years. There is clear-cut evidence that the ancient Egyptians made them from tubular reeds, from wood, and from gold.

In colonial America, Benjamin Franklin, whose inventive genius and other creative accomplishments stagger the imagination, invented a type of flexible catheter to aid his brother John who was afflicted with kidney stones.

Kendall Improves on Dr. Foley

The modern catheter is far less painful, much safer, and much more effective than its predecessors, of course.

Dr. Frederick E. B. Foley first perfected the "Foley Catheter" in 1929, the prototype of all modern catheters. Thirty years later, the Kendall Company dedicated a large portion of its research facilities, plus a number of its scientists, to the development of improvements on the Foley catheter.

Today, as a result of this intensive research and experimentation, Kendall has made available to doctors all over the world a series of remarkable catheters.

One of the latest catheters features a self-inflating balloon which holds the catheter in place as long as it is needed. Among other varieties are special kinds for babies. All are "bacteriostatic" - meaning that they inhibit bacterial growth.

In the relief of human misery and the merciful saving of human life, the catheter is indeed a basic instrument.

BED-PLAYROOM FOR SISTERS—The refreshing, airy look of this attractive room depends a lot on the major decorating fabric—a handsome poppy-printed cotton in tones of blue and white. A matching panel of wallpaper is used as flat headboard-canopies. The deep delphinium blue in the fabric is repeated in a room-darkening window shade. Tasty lime green serves as accent color on the shade hem, toss pillows, and painted cabinet.

Kitchens Come Alive With Exciting Color

Kitchens are now designed to be not only more efficient and packed with labor-saving devices, but recent surveys show that the American housewife regards her kitchen as a "conversation piece" and guest room as well. One of the chief devices employed to achieve these latter effects is to use colors that are stimulating or incorporate unique fixtures or appliances as a focal point for kitchen design.

This idea of using color in the kitchen seems to have no limitations since kitchens are informal, inviting and, when gaily color-matched in happy color combinations, can be downright inspirational. To achieve complete color co-ordination, major appliances, table appliances and even such usually unheralded items as kitchen sinks can now be obtained in a wide range of handsome colors that work well with a variety of kitchen styles and color motifs. One of the easiest ways to add a bright new spot of color is to replace your dull, discolored kitchen sink. One of the newest kitchen sinks available is the Fiesta by American-

Local Teachers Attend Adult Education Class

Mrs. Frances Dunagan Third Grade Teacher who teaches adult classes, and Mr. Melvin Burks, Director of Guidance and special programs with Tahoka Schools, attended an Adult Basic Education in Lubbock from June 22 through June 27. The workshop was sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and the Lubbock Independent School District. Mr. Harvey Owen, Director of Adult Education for Lubbock Independent School District was director of the workshop. Consultants from Lubbock, Amarillo, Abilene and the Texas Education Agency presented new ideas, innovations, methods and information.

Adult Basic Education is being emphasized by the Texas Education Agency and this workshop should prove valuable in expanding the program began here this year. Since Adult Basic Education is one of the newer programs in education, there has not been too much uniformity. This coming year there will be much more organization and instruction will be standardized, expanded and improved. Of particular interest to many local people will be an opportunity for a High School equivalency certificate.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

BY THOMAS W. CALDWELL

Even though unusually high winds and temperatures the past few days have caused considerable crop damage the value of soil, water and plant conservation adds to the comfort of all people by reduced pollution from wind erosion.

Air pollution from dust storms was at a near record low in Texas this spring, according to a wind erosion report released this week by W. Graham, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service. Graham noted that during the "dirty 30's", dust blown from several million acres of Texas land darkened the skies along the eastern seaboard and out into the Atlantic Ocean.

Of the land damaged this season 460,000 acres were cropland and 9,600 were rangeland. Some 17,000 acres of non-farm land, such as roads and bare city land, were also damaged by blowing.

Graham said work done under the popular Great Plains Conservation Program in the northwest one-third of the state has been a big factor in reducing Texas dust storms. He pointed out that in the last 10 years in this 99-county area, soil-protecting grass has been planted on 700,000 acres of rangeland; 463,000 acres of highly erosive cropland has been retired from farming and planted to grass; and strip cropping, stubble mulching, cover cropping, and other conservation measures have been applied to some 2.3 million acres of cropland. Vast areas of grassland have also been improved.

SCS conservationists help farmers, ranchmen, city officials and other users of land plan and apply measures to prevent wind and water erosion. This work is done through 187 locally run soil and water conservation districts, in Texas. Graham concluded.

THE PHILOSOPHER Traffic Problem

(Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm attacks the traffic problem this week, but we're not sure he wins.)

Dear editor:

Five cars drove past my mail box on the road near this Johnson grass farm yesterday morning in a span of two minutes and I walked down to see what was causing all the heavy traffic and while I didn't find out, any more than I've ever been able to figure out where all the cars are going bumper to bumper seven days a week on a regular highway, I did find a newspaper some passenger had thrown out.

In it I found an article that reported that a big bridge built four years ago to allow traffic to go around Manhattan—which certainly is a good idea, I've never seen a city yet I hadn't rather go around than through—last year handled 29 million cars, trucks and buses. Faced with such a mess of cars, the city decided to solve the problem by adding a second deck.

The second deck will now enable the bridge to carry 48 million cars a year, after which, when that proves inadequate, I don't know what they'll do.

It is hard for me to imagine 48 million cars passing by one spot every year—can you imagine that many going past the Leader-News office?—and the problem is increased when you realize half are going in one direction, half in the other. If they were all going in the same direction, you could maybe hope to see the end of the procession some day, but like it is, they aren't getting anywhere. The thing could go on forever. Every time you add another deck, you invite another 29 million cars.

I have a theory on solving this. What we ought to do is stop trying to keep a highway or bridge from becoming obsolete. Like it is now, one end of a new highway is obsolete before the other end is finished, and this drives people to widen or double-deck the first section, then the last section just in time to start over on the first section.

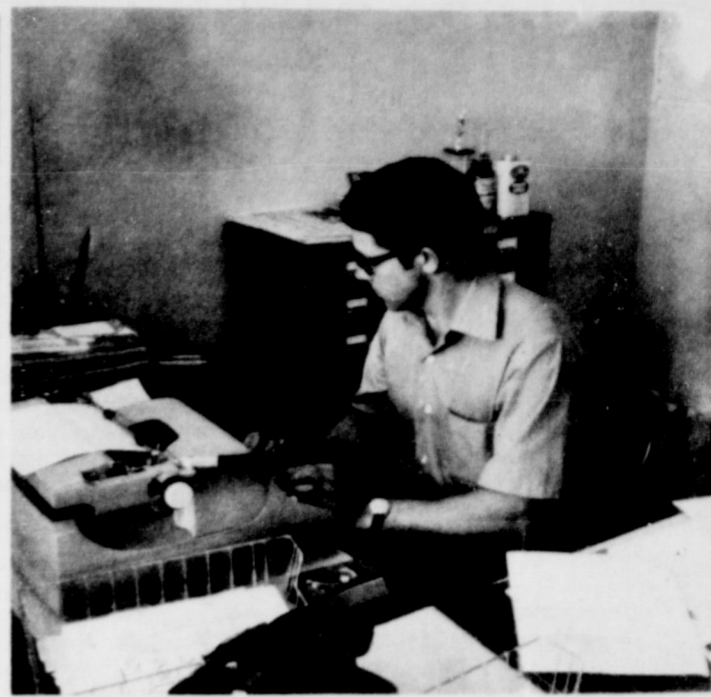

The entire policy should be reversed. Where we made our mistake was, when we found dirt roads were obsolete, we rushed in and built paved roads, then four lanes, then six, then eight.

Anybody should have seen that the more roads we built the more cars we invited, since highways attract cars like sugar does ants.

If we really want to stop the traffic jam-ups we'll stop building highways.

If this is not perfectly clear to you, I'll come into Littlefield and explain it further if you'll get somebody to fill up a chughole in the road going by my house. Actually it's too narrow too for safe driving.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

COTTON TALKS

"As you prepare to consider the Department of Agriculture Appropriations Bill for 1970 and the amendments that will be offered from the floor, we urge you to full consider the far-reaching impact of agriculture on our nation and its people, and we urge you to be extremely careful that your vote does not contribute to the crippling of agriculture, our nation's largest and most basic industry."

So reads a paragraph from a letter to all U. S. Senators written by Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock.

The Senate will soon be voting on the appropriations measure, and an amendment is certain to be offered that would limit the number of dollars that could be paid from the appropriation to any individual farm operator under 1970 farm programs.

The Appropriations Bill came through the House with an amendment limiting total price support and acreage diversion payments under all commodity programs, excluding sugar, to $20,000.

"Any limit on the payments a farmer can receive is a limit on the extent to which he can participate in existing commodity programs and would seriously impair the supply management effectiveness of those programs," the letter states, adding that because of the snap-back provision in the law for cotton, "... a payment limit at any level would bring about instant chaos in cotton marketing procedures."

The letter attempts to impress on the Senators the importance of agriculture to the overall economy of the nation, quoting at one point from the Agriculture Appropriations Committee Report of the House:

"If the United States of America were a primitive, isolated other 19, that one man would be hailed as the preeminent contributor to the commonwealth. For they would see clearly, in these simple circumstances, that they depended on this single individual for the most basic necessities of life itself."

"Agriculture is the principal source of new wealth. It is the main provider of raw materials which support all segments of business and industry. Reliable estimates indicate that each dollar of wealth taken from the soil generates $7 of income throughout the rest of the economy," the letter notes.

"Agriculture is our largest industry. Its assets exceed those of any of the next 10 largest industries. It employs more workers than any other major industry. It employs seven times the number of people in the mining industry, 23 times the number in the oil and coal industry and five times the number in the automobile industry."

"Agriculture is one of the major markets for the products of labor and industry. It spends more for equipment than any of the other large industries. It uses more steel in a year than is used in a year's output of passenger cars. It uses more petroleum products than any other industry in the country."

"Agriculture uses more rubber each year than is required to produce tires for 6 million automobiles, and its inventory of machinery and equipment exceeds the assets of the steel industry and is five times that of the automobile industry."

Johnson's letter says "It is no exaggeration to say that the health of the national economy is dependent on the health of agriculture, and agriculture cannot be healthy under present farm programs if its larger producers are to be discriminated against through a limit on their participation."

Appealing to Senators from urban areas, the letter points out that the U.S. consumer spends only 17.2 percent of his disposable income for food while Englishmen spend 30 percent, most other Europeans spend over 30 percent, the Russian spends close to 50 percent and the Chinaman's food budget runs almost two-thirds of his total income.

"Your vote against a payment limitation on the 1970 Agriculture Appropriations Bill will be a vote to continue agriculture's enormous contribution to the National economy and a vote to continue the provision of high quality, low-cost foods and fibers for your constituents," the letter concludes.

Linda Huffaker, CHD Agent, Says.....

Color, Home And You
Are you enjoying the full benefit of a potentially great association that is available to you right now?

That is, color . . . home and YOU?
Today, of course, we know that the creative use of color in our dress, as well as in our home environment, is one of the most gratifying ways we have to express our own personality.

Often, however, we cannot satisfactorily explain why we are immediately turned on by some colors — and remain completely indifferent to others.

A color - personality outline to help increase our color understanding, as well as exercise it more effectively in daily living.

It was conceived as a result of a recent national survey. The Young consumers... the very generation most responsible for pop and poster art movement . . . for swinging fashions and most definitely for color and imagination in home furnishings. The people who are setting the pace and establishing trends all across the country.

Taking note that the power of color has a deep impact on home furnishing, the Color outline shows how this can be creatively utilized to produce personal and harmonious home surroundings.

Although you and I may not always be aware of it, we have a continuing emotional reaction to color. A grey day depresses us, a rosy glowing fills us with delight. Furthermore, we incalculably use the vocabulary of color to express our emotions. Haven't you noticed?

We "see red" . . . "feel blue", often are "green with envy" or "purple with rage". We also experience "black despair" . . . "get bogged down with red tape" . . . and can "look at the world thru rose colored glasses".

A "doer" type will be attracted to the excitement of red and warm colors, the quieter, more calm individual will respond to blues and the cooler shades.

"The woman who selects neutrals," one color authority explained, "is probably calm and self contained and enjoys a quiet, well ordered background."

But blue, red and green are at the top of consumer color preference list - and in that order! Explanation? Well, according to the experts, red is positive, blue is tranquil and green provides a balance between the two.

The survey also revealed the following: In addition to color excitement in their home, a large proportion of young consumers want elegance without upkeep!

How about you? Want to inject more color drama in your home? The following color personality outline will help you make choices which will be true reflection of YOU...

Personality Color Outline
Blues: Usually takes top place in color preferences in general. The blue personality is apt to be very sensitive, a responsible person with a conservative nature.

Greens: A color of wide appeal, cool, fresh and comforting in its beauty; the "green" personality us usually a respectable neighbor, home builder, parent and good citizen.

Blue-Greens: (Aqua, turquoise): Usually indicates an exacting and discriminating personality is usually a real flair.

Reds: The most positive color and shows a warm, aggressive and vigorous personality.

Bill Griffin, County Agent, Says.....

Pesticide Label Has Purpose
"Read the label before using a pesticide!"

How often have you heard that statement? Probably many times, but have you paid any heed when using pesticides around your home and garden or in your greenhouse or field?

"The information on the label of a pesticide is put there for a specific purpose," emphasizes Dr. Bill Clymer, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "It tells you how to use a particular pesticide safely to avoid injury to yourself or your fellow man."

Reading the label is the most important step toward eliminating hazards from agricultural chemical usage. Information on the label includes the name and address of manufacturer, distributor or person for whom manufactured.

Pinks: A color that tells of love and affection. As a color performance among women it often relates to wealth, social advantage and a sheltered life.

Oranges: (Melon) The orange personality is very social by nature and able to get along with all types of people.

Brown range: (Tobacco, rust) These relate to the earth colors and those to whom it appeals are usually sound, substantial people.

A SHOO-IN
 For a relaxing season, it's tossable togs and new footwear that makes walking an absolute pleasure.
 Gay paper dresses will increase your wardrobe. They take very little upkeep, and hemming to the proper length is a snap—just use the scissors.
 Footwear, like Dr. Scholl's new "Contourettes," are cool, comfortable and have the new slightly-higher heel for a truly fashion look.
 Designed for casual wear, the shoes have a special contoured design that cups the heel, and lets toes rest comfortably over a raised "gripper." Wearing them is almost like walking barefoot in your own footprints in the sand.

EDITORIAL VIEWS

Criticism Is Okay

Every newspaper receives criticisms and praises. One thing is certain: A Newspaper cannot make every reader happy.

Abe Martin, the Indiana humorist, made this point when he said: "Tilford Moots wuz over to the Henryville poor farm th' other day to see an old friend of his that used to publish a newspaper that pleased everybuddy."

No, a newspaper cannot hope to win agreement from all of its readers, but it can strive to earn their confidence.

And, readers can do their part by expressing criticisms based on clear and specific evidence in place of generalized grumbling.

Quite often some of us in the newspaper business get blamed for the other fellow publishers.

If some paper is biased in its articles, we cannot do anything about it. He is running a business over which we have no more control than one local groceryman over another.

Many times the critics say "the press is wrong about this or that, putting us all in one basket. Also, readers are inclined to consider an article 'biased' if it does not agree with their thinking.

Then, too, readers still do not differentiate between the news columns and the editorial page or between signed columns of interpretation and straight news coverage.

Well, we don't mind criticism.

In fact, in this business it's the thing to be expected.

But we do feel that it should come from persons who are not afraid to identify themselves.

As Others See It

LIFE FROM THE DYING

(FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES)

The technique by which innumerable lives will be prolonged in the future was vividly demonstrated not long ago in New York. As a man lay dying of an inoperable brain tumor, his next of kin decided to make as many of his organs as possible available for transplantation after his death.

Physicians were able to give four patients the man's heart, kidneys and liver, and to implant his corneas in two others.

This multiple, two-hospital operation—in which more organs for transplant were made available than in any single earlier case—indicates that every human being who dies because of accident or localized disease is a potential spare-parts bank which, if drawn upon, can help others postpone death.

No doubt the idea still seems ghoully to many, but so did the notion of blood transfusions years ago.

Though work continues on efforts to overcome the rejection barrier and other obstacles to mass use of transplantation techniques, the need is already imperative for the organization of agencies to match supply and demand of transplantable organs, so as to introduce order in what is now a chaotic situation.

In the large cities of the nation, at least, a system of central registries or clearinghouses could keep an up-to-date list of those willing to donate organs—people nearing death and unlikely to be saved by known techniques—as well as of patients awaiting transplants of various organs in the area's hospitals.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE DO CARE
(From The Sea Isle City, N. J., Times)

Because their peaceful pursuits do not make news, there are folks who believe the majority of our young people are stupid and selfish and vicious, caring nothing about their communities and their country—nothing about their fellow-men, not even, most of them, about their parents. This, of course, is not so. Despite the troublemakers, destroyers and anarchists among them, the great majority of our young people are decent and intelligent and law-abiding and do care about others.

Topics Tersely Told

The day will come when man will get all he needs without money. That is Communism.—Fidel Castro, Premier of Cuba.

Nervous tension is the major occupational hazard of Congress. They are exposed to too much eating, talking, writing and too many pressures from their constituents.—George W. Calver, M. D., attending physician to Congress.

It will be of great importance to our understanding of the formation of the moon and to the plan for a lunar landing in a few year's time.—Said by Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Astronomical Observatory back in 1965.

"Drug abuse and narcotic addiction are major and growing public health problems of major national concern."—Stanley F. Zolles, M.D., director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

OUTER SPACE BOUND?

No moon-lit moon rocket this. Actually it's a special piece of glassware used by the materials evaluation group in IBM's Boulder, Colorado, systems development laboratory to help test the metals and plastics which are the building blocks for high speed computers.

APARTMENT HOUSE FISHING

Whenever a tree falls into a lake or stream, it becomes a giant, luxury apartment house.

The first occupants to move in are minnows and small fish seeking shade and shelter. Close behind will be crayfish, hellgrammites, caddis nymphs, frogs, worms and many other forms of aquatic life.

This abundance of natural food soon attracts some keeper-size fish and several of these will probably make the fallen tree their home.

Sharp-eyed anglers take advantage of logs and stumps in the water, say the fishing authorities at Mercury Outboards, and their fishing success improves when they learn how to use these underwater housing developments for fish.

In addition to providing shelter for small aquatic life (and thus food for fish) downed trees serve fish as protection from prey animals and as shade from the sun.

Largemouth bass like to lie under a log just where it enters the water and catch small frogs as they leave the water to sun themselves. A bass bug — or top water plug — cast so that it glances off the log will often tempt a bass into thinking it's his next meal.

The position of the sun makes a difference as to which side you should aim your cast. Most fish like the shade, therefore it's best to drop the first cast on the shady side of a log or stump. If a fish is at home, that's probably where you'll find him.

During the hours when the sun is almost directly overhead, fish move into deeper water along the log. They're reluctant to leave their feeding table and protection. When this happens, the Mercury lads suggest that it's time to change to a spinning rig and work the deep water at the end of the log.

Keep these tips in mind next time you see a fallen tree in the water. It might just be an apartment house for fish.

Professional Job Recruiter Gains Favor

More and more employers are using the services of professional recruiters to find personnel for key jobs.

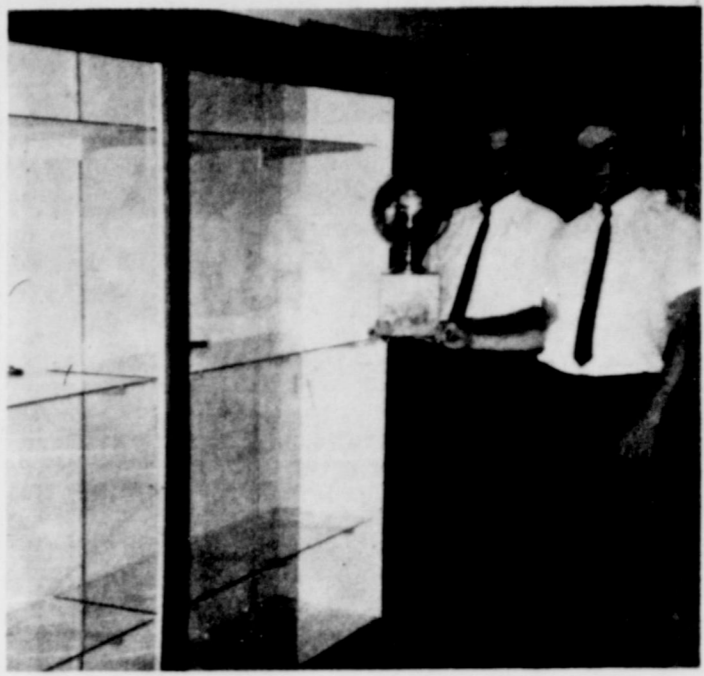

These professional recruiters are not the usual employment agencies, but they are organizations which specialize in finding the right man or woman for the right job. They do the research in processing resumes and often actually do the interviewing thus saving the employers much time and money.

Some of the professional recruiters are now using computers into which an applicant's qualifications are fed with the result that the right applicant for the right job can be determined quickly and efficiently. Such a professional recruiter is the firm of Falkenberg and Associates of Charlotte, North Carolina, headed by Carl F. Falkenberg, a noted expert in contract engineering and business management fields.

The Falkenberg organization operates throughout the southeastern part of the country and it has been swamped with requests from employers for men and women needed to fill key positions.

"There are many good paying positions open now," Falkenberg says. "We are inviting applicants for all types of positions to file their resumes with us. These vacancies are all over the southeastern part of the country — not only in the large towns but in the small towns, too." Falkenberg's firm has been doing professional recruiting for large companies for more than 15 years. His company is located at 1370 Briar Creek Road, Charlotte, North Carolina.

"We want to emphasize that financial and career advantages can be offered now in a more efficient way," Falkenberg reports. "The trend for employers to depend more on professional recruiters of personnel is increasing rapidly."

NEW TROPHY CASE AT WILSON—Curtis Bishop, President of the Senior Class of Wilson High School this past year helps Kenneth Baker, Wilson High School Principal place the first trophy in the new trophy case. The trophy case was presented to the school by the Senior Class of 1969, and the case is located near the entrance to the gymnasium.

Seamstress puts finishing touches on pressure suit of type that will shield Apollo 11 astronauts from micrometeoroids and deadly temperature extremes when they take their first historic walk on the moon. The 21-layer spacesuit is made almost entirely of products initially developed by Du Pont for civilian markets. Other products of the chemical company's research are finding important applications in the capsule and Lunar Module of Apollo 11.
