These reports are now in the hands of Marshal Stewart, who has been appointed temporary fire marshal in Tahoka. It is likely that the city will erect a fire station at an early date, which will serve to cut down the present high rate of insurance.

Lynn County has received near three inches of rain within the past week, beginning last Thursday evening with a fall of 1.93 inches, and again on Sunday night amounting to 1.03 inches. Considerable hail fell over the eastern and northwestern portion of the county, and many farmers will have to replant their cotton. This can be done very easily as there is still plenty of time to grow a cotton crop. The fruit and gardens were damaged to some extent.

One Frock Plan Proves Success

After all the shouting is over—the explanation of ultra spring fashions in detail—then comes the mental question for the average woman: "Now what shall I have for myself from among all this melee of smartness? How, in one or two costumes, which is what my budget allows me, can I march among the best dressed of the land?"

It is all very well to consider style and its contributing fine points. Every normal woman takes a certain satisfaction in that sort of mental gymnastics, but how to assimilate the length of this and the width of that with your own particular figure and the restrictions of your purse—oh, that is another matter, indeed!

It has often been said, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, that the woman with one frock can be as well dressed as the woman with ten. And it is astonishing how really well this theory works out when the woman with one has the head and the taste and the common sense to manage hers with cleverness. She is no boon to the dressmakers of the world, but she is a deal of satisfaction to herself. She has eliminated a woman's greatest source of worry and annoyance.

At this time of the year it is perfectly possible to apply one's mind so thoroughly and successfully to the matter of clothes that for the next six months one's intelligence need not touch the subject seriously again. Planning goes a longer way with clothes than women generally suppose, and the visualization of the coming season's wardrobe is something that brings infinite reward to the planner. It is this buying at random which earns for women that horrid reputation of being spendthrifts in the matter of their dressing. It is hard not to be emotional when a really pretty thing strikes one's eyes. But whether that thing is going to serve enough purpose to pay for its investment is a detail which so few women stop to consider. Then, again, they think and think, and nothing comes of their efforts because their education in this field of style practically applied is so very efficient.

The Dress for Every Occasion.

It can be done, you know. A dress that will be possible for the majority of occasions in the usual life is not at all hard to conceive nor to accomplish. The flappers are getting there with sport suits. They wear them everywhere. They seem to think there is no party too formal to set them off. They love themselves in these clothes and they cling to them.

Now, for those who are a little more mature, the negligence of this procedure is impossible, but they can accomplish the same purpose in another way. A serge dress does wonders in this direction. It can perform so many duties. It can enter so many classes of a social or a business day if it is designed with any care and knowledge of the many positions which a frock of its sort may be called upon to fill.

Then there is the more or less formal dress of heavy silk. It is an extremely fashionable form of dressing, and when it is made simply enough, it can serve a vast number of purposes without being changed or adjusted in any way. A plain black crepe dress smartly cut and put together is one of the most purposeful things that a woman can purchase this season. It is without doubt the best style of any of the dresses, and it carries on beautifully from occasion to occasion. A dress of this character can be donned at nine o'clock in the morning. It can live through business and lunch and tea. Then, when dinner time arrives, it is just as appropriate for that more formal gathering.

A woman who rather carried the reputation of being well dressed was scheduled for a dinner and theater. A friend called her up in the morning of the dinner day and asked the age-old question "What are you going to wear?" The first woman thought a moment, dragged her mind back from her portentous business in hand and said: "Why, oh, yes, I am going to wear the dress. It has come to this in my life. I paid a lot of money for it once, but it has solved the question of clothes in my life."

Colors Rich, Dark, Durable.

You may not believe that these silks wear as well as the serges and more heavy cloths to which your dressing minds have become accustomed. But you have only to examine the newer and more sturdily woven silks to be convinced that manners and customs in this direction have changed very materially. They have every appearance of the lighter woolen fabrics—that is, in stability of texture and in worthiness to be called wearable and formal clothes. Their colors are rich and dark and durable. In fact they suit the building of the all-around dress most admirably.

Then, if you wish a coat to make the dress more suitable for certain of the day's occasions, by all means have that wrap made from the same silk that constitutes the dress. These costumes that can be worn together or separately are one of the nicest things that the season has given us. They are beautiful. Everyone will acknowledge that. But only those who have tried them know how well they serve all of the purposes to which they might possibly be assigned.

A black crepe dress made over extremely simple lines is cleverly trimmed with quite an original touch of decoration. The bands about the sleeves and neck, touched here and there on the hips and at the waist line, are made of vermillion crepe and are outlined with narrow traceries of gold braid. It is a trimming trick that is quite easy to bring through, and it is just as effective as many other trimmings over which a deal more labor and time and energy might have been spent. Supposedly, the cape to go with this dress would be of the same crepe, with a lining of the same, bound around the edges and seams with somewhat narrower strips of the same vermillion and gold trimming combination.

The Topcoat.

There comes into every dressing calculation the question of the topcoat, for that is a necessary contribution to the whole. It must be at hand for rainy and stormy and coolish days. It must be ready for motoring and trips to the country, but once it has been chosen and added to one's wardrobe it then becomes a permanent fixture for some years to come. If you should need one of the outer coverings this season, then the choice is wide and varied. You are not confined to any one particular style. You can suit your figure and your taste in the most thrilling way.

If you like capes, then you can have a cape and be in the height of style.

The Material of the Frock Is Black Crepe de Chine, but the Style Is Achieved With the Trimming of Chinese Red and Gold, Which Adds Beauty.

But, be sure that your figure is thin enough and with enough height to carry off the lines of a cape. On the other hand, if a coat is more becoming to your style of beauty, then you can have a tailored polo coat and flatter yourself that you are thoroughly raked in fashionable circles. If neither of these designs meets with your approval, then you can choose one of the very latest models from Paris which combine so delightfully the lines of a cape with those of a coat and become a sweeping wrap that winds about the figure in the most graceful of folds.

The capes are easy to make. If you are at all apt with the needle you can do one yourself.

The Sports Costume.

The time has come in the history of women when sport clothes are so much more important than they have ever been before. And perhaps that is because the evolution through which they have passed makes them so much more beautiful than ever they were before.

ALLURING DINNER GOWNS; HAPPY MEDIUMS IN HATS

WITH a reservation in the matter of length, this handsome dinner gown undertakes to accent the modes of the season. It is made of crepe de chine and georgette. It takes advantage of the continued vogue for head trimmings, the sleeves make the most of their opportunity to be featured. It affects the last thing in neck lines and the approved low waist line—but it is shorter than the length decreed by style arbiters. In this one particular it lags, with plenty of good company, behind the very long skirt com-

The chic small hat arrives early and has many devotees—midsummer brings hats with generous brims that compel our adoration, but between them stand hats that strike a happy medium. They go hand in hand with summer the length of its journey, and mirrors reflect them more often than falls to the lot of these small or large rivals; for they are the becoming and useful trimmed hats that are designed to fit in with many backgrounds.

pany and takes its stand among those models that have made a compromise between one extreme and the other.

There are wonderful colors this season and women have grown courageous in using them. When considering dinner and evening frocks they may allow themselves to be daring, but for the street they refuse the reckless and have approved beige, tan, wood and other browns, green and dark blue. Gay colors and many of them make afternoon and dinner frocks and they are elaborated with embroideries and contrasting colors in fabric combinations. It can afford to be simple for it is the possessor of most becoming lines. Nearly all faces are flattered by it. The flower-trimmed hat with round crown that bells and flat brim is a great favorite in many braids. It is shown with a sash of picot-edged ribbon that is arranged in four loops, the two longer ones slipping through a slash in the brim.

GOOD YEAR

Belinda's Home Brew Pot

By RUBY DOUGLAS

Belinda was worried. A shadow appeared in her dark eyes and a pucker lingered on her lips.

"I certainly would not have set this brew if I had known I had to make this trip to Buffalo. It takes as much attention as a baby.

"Ten pounds of raisins at 30 cents a pound and two pounds of brown sugar at twenty, to say nothing of the tartaric acid—why—it's ridiculous. I can't afford to waste it. And it will be wasted if I do not stir it every day and watch it."

Belinda began to wonder what she could do. There was no one with whom she could burden the brew.

Her trip to Buffalo was necessary. She had promised Harry that on his next shore leave she would visit his mother in Buffalo so that they might both enjoy his holiday together.

In fact, she had promised that she would give him an answer to his proposal at this time.

Now, she seemed to feel it a nuisance to go so far away—just to see Harry. And she was beginning to wonder if this were the proper state of mind for an about-to-be-engaged girl.

She was very fond of Harry and very proud of his officer's uniform. Not that Harry's uniform had seen any special service but it was becoming, and he had graduated from the naval academy and had been in part of the war zone.

For the moment the uniform and Harry—she called him Henry when she did not feel so kindly toward him—

Then she began to wonder if he had liked her. Was she his type? That she was very much his type Tom Weston had decided as he stirred each day the now hissing brew. He looked about the little studio; he observed the hominess of it; he decided that Belinda was a domestic girl—as well as a most beautiful one.

One morning the postman brought an envelope that Tom decided must be a check, and this gave him an excuse to send an accompanying note. He explained that the brew was getting noisy and active—temperamental, as he explained it and wondered if it were all right, or if, perhaps, he did not do the right thing by it.

His delight at getting an answer knew no bounds. And it had come back so quickly that he was sure she had not minded writing it.

Belinda had a most uncomfortable visit that now—was not what she had once thought him. He had become, in her eyes, conceited. He thought only of himself, and while he was persistent in his wooing of her, she felt that she would not be missed so greatly if she were to tell him no.

And this she did. She said that she felt that she did not love him enough to marry him.

When she returned to her studio she found a cluster of roses on her desk and a spray of white heather.

When Tom arrived home that night she opened the door of her studio. He almost dashed toward her when he shook her hand. "And—the brew?" he asked, to cover his joy at seeing her. It was the way of the Scot—to hide his emotion.

"Oh, it's all right. Come in and see." Belinda's heart was thumping too quickly.

"The roses?" she asked, looking up at him. "And the white heather?"

"Oh, the heather is to make the cheeks come quicker. It's lucky, you know."

Belinda held the spray in her fingers, her eyes lowered over it. "And the roses?"

Tom looked into her eyes. "Could I tell you about the roses some other day, please?" He hesitated. "I—I just couldn't tell you now."

Belinda took the situation in her own hands and tried to make it casual. It seemed better.

"Of course you may. Why don't you come in and have a bite with me tomorrow night? I have to eat and so do you, and—it will be time to bottle the brew. Could you help?"

"I could help you do anything," he said.

And it was not long before the landlady in the house had to cut doors between the studios so as to make a real housekeeping apartment. Two of her tenants had decided to be married.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR JUNE 11

JEREMIAH CAST INTO PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 28:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Be not afraid of their faces; for I am with thee to deliver thee, saith the Lord—Jer. 1:8.

1. Jeremiah Predicts the Capture of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

1. To Whom—the People (v. 1). Jeremiah had been taken out of the prison by the king (37:17), and ordered confined to the court of the prison (37:21). The people seem to have had free access to him in the court (32:12). From this place of limited confinement Jeremiah announced to the people their approaching captivity.

2. Counsel Given (vv. 2, 3). (1) All that remaineth in the city shall die by the sword, famine and pestilence. (2) He that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live. "He shall have his life for a prey" doubtless means that he shall escape with his life, though losing all else.

3. The King's Cowardly Act (v. 5). Jeremiah is abandoned by his cowardly friend. The very one whom Jeremiah was trying to help deserted him. The king was afraid of the Chaldeans, the princes, Jeremiah and God.

4. Jeremiah Cast into the Dungeon (v. 6).

This was not a regular prison, but a cistern which had doubtless been emptied of its water during the siege, leaving only "mire." Into this mire he sank. The purpose was to let Jeremiah die there. There was no possible way to escape. In this situation Jeremiah is a type of Christ (Psalm 69). Jeremiah was one of the bravest of God's servants.

5. Jeremiah Rescued From the Dungeon (vv. 7-13).

1. By Whom—Ebed-melech, an African servant (vv. 7-9). The Jewish prophet whom his own countrymen tried to destroy is saved by a Gentile, which may be thought of as foreshadowing the Gentiles' attitude toward Christ. Though Ebed-melech had a colored skin he was the whitest man in Jerusalem. He was not only sympathetic, but courageous. He went to the king and boldly declared that the princes had done evil in imprisoning Jeremiah.

2. The Method (vv. 10-13). The king yielded to his request and furnished a guard to prevent interference with the work of rescue. He let down soft rags and worn-out garments by ropes and instructed Jeremiah to put them under his arms and under the ropes so as to prevent injury to him as he was lifted up. They lifted him out of the dungeon and he was permitted the freedom of the court of the prison.

Why did Jeremiah have such a hard time? Why do the purest and best men and women have to suffer? Why are God's prophets unpopular? Jeremiah, the prophet who declared God's power to deliver, goes to prison and suffers. "Why do the righteous suffer?" is an age-old question.

1. The power of God is more strikingly shown in deliverance than in keeping from trials. This was so in the case of the Hebrews in the fiery furnace and Daniel in the den of lions.

2. Great gain accrues to the sufferers; e. g. the Hebrews in the fiery furnace were not only kept from being burned, but had walking with them the Son of God; Job through his trials was brought to see himself.

3. Suffering turns out to be the furtherance of God's cause; e. g. Job becomes the priest through whose intercession his friends are pardoned; Paul's sufferings furthered the preaching of the gospel; John through banishment on the Isle of Patmos was given the vision of the Revelation.

Zion. But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed; for the Lord dwelleth in Zion.—Joel 3:20 and 21.

Be Honest. Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men.—Romans 17.

The Perfect Man. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man.—James 3:2.

Spring Song of the Flicker

Winthrop Packard, Secretary of the Massachusetts Audubon Society, Tells of Antics of Bird.

There was a big galvanized ventilator that surrounded an old-time schoolhouse where Winthrop Packard, the secretary of the Massachusetts Audubon society, went to school as a boy, and he tells readers of Our Dumb Animals that it used to attract unusual birds. Once a magnificent bald eagle perched there, and sometimes snowy owls made it a resting place even in the daytime, but one spring the ventilator was found by a flicker. He would light upon it, stiffen his tail down against it as if it were a tree, clutch at some convenient projection and pause a moment looking this way and that. Then he would begin to hammer out a rolling drum-beat tattoo on the metal his head becoming just a blur in its rapid vibrations.

"Here was instrumental music if you please," says Mr. Packard. "The spring song of the flicker. We used to think him foolish for trying to dig a nesting hole in the metal, but I later learned better when I found his nest in an old poplar stub not far away. It was not that. He simply was proclaiming joy to all the world and he did it daily for weeks until his nine children got so big and clamorous for food that he had no more time for concerts."

Great Wall of China. The Great Wall of China was begun by the Emperor Tsin Chihwangti 214 B. C. and was finished 204 B. C. It was built to protect the western and more fertile end of the Great Plain, of which 210,000 square miles of China's area consists, from the hordes of nomadic Tartars. This marvelous work extends over mountains and rivers for nearly 1,400 miles. The main substance of the wall is earth or rubbish retained on each side by a strong casing of stone and brick and terraced by a platform of square tiles. It commences at the Gulf of Liao-Tung, whence it extends westward to the Chia-yu barrier gates, the workman-ship gradually deteriorating. The thickness of the wall at the base is often as much as 25 feet.

Springtime in Venice. The day was one of those that can come to the world only in early June at Venice. The heavens were without a cloud, but a blue haze made mystery of the horizon where the lagoon and the sky met unseemly. The breath of the sea bathed in freshness the city the sea bathed in freshness the city at whose feet her tides sparkled and slept. The long garland of vines that festoons all Italy seemed to begin in the neighboring orchards; the meadows waved their long grasses in the sun, and broke in poppies as the seawaves break in iridescent spray; the poplars marched in stately procession on either side of the straight white road to Padua, till they vanished in the long perspective.—Howells.

YOU NEED A VITALIZER PE-RI-JUNA FOR YOUNG AND OLD. You are not feeling fit. Your food does not seem to agree, have headaches, dizzy, tired and sleepy even after a night's rest, bowels constipated. Nothing very serious the matter, you think, but you know you are not there with the punch and pep. The symptoms are those of systemic catarrh, which must not be neglected.

Memory. A joke is being told on an absent-minded eastern professor. He was talking some students to the country to study rocks. At the station he said, "We haven't a watch. We'll need one or we'll miss the train back. John, run home and get mine." "Have I time before the train comes?" John asked. "Yes," said the professor, pulling out his watch, "you have about 15 minutes." No faculty of the brain is as unreliable as memory. That's why man makes the same mistakes over and over.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement.

Strain Was Too Great. "A newspaper paragrapher was carried off to a sanitarium the other day a complete wreck." "Overwork?" "You might call it that. He made a solemn vow to go a week without writing a paragraph about Lloyd George, Lenin and Trotsky or any one of the reigning movie stars. At the end of the fourth day he broke down and wept like a child."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Views of One. "From fifty a week Flubdub is now earning ten thousand a year. Yet his wife is no happier." "Isn't the amount of money that counts. It is living within her income that makes a woman unhappy."

Patience is not exercised by master minds when it will do no good. One thread does not make a rope.

Didn't Know Joe. The examination of witnesses is an art, but one in which many lawyers fail because they do not put their questions in words that the common man understands. An able member of the bar was noted for his severity in the examination of witnesses, but he often failed to bring out an appropriate answer because he did not put himself on the same verbal plane with his witness.

"Did you speak jocosely?" he asked on one occasion. "I don't know him," answered the witness. The lawyer repeated the question with increased severity of manner: "Did you speak jocosely?" "I tell you," said the witness, angrily, "I don't know Joe Cosely."

To Help Working Children. Weekly clinics designed to bring working children up to a higher standard of health and physical development have been established by a group of women members of the First Unitarian church, Baltimore, in the parish house of the church. The work has the indorsement of the state board of labor and statistics, to which the children apply for their work permits.

YOUR HOME PAPER

Yes, your little old home paper isn't as large as some of the big dailies, and it may not be just to your liking in some ways, but its the paper that tells about the arrival of the youngster who "tipped the scales at ten pounds;" the paper that tells about the marriage of the "beautiful and accomplished daughter" and it's the paper that writes nice things about people who pass from the scene of action. The little old home paper is ready to say a good word for the town and the people, and always tries to avoid saying things that will hurt them. The home paper is a mirror and you can usually get a pretty good glimpse of the town that it is published in when you look it over. —Polk County Enterprise.

WE realize that it is often necessary for a firm to get printing done quickly. We do not believe that, in the case of the rush order, it is necessary to sacrifice GOOD printing for speed.

Considering the speed on this kind of jobs we have done, the quality of work is invariably surprising to our patrons.

correct the Avalanche with the statement that he lived at Tahoka. Why not let the Judge enjoy the honor of coming from a good own like Lamesa. It can't help but recommend him.—Lamesa Reporter.

In all probability, it would not hurt the character or reputation of Judge Lockhart to hail from Lamesa, but why should Lamesa falsely obtain this one item of publicity when it rightly belongs to Tahoka. The News considers Mr. Lockhart a valuable asset to our town and community, and we don't expect to stand by and let any newspaper of any consequence state to the world that he is from Lamesa or any other like burg in this immediate territory. Locate in Tahoka.

PANHANDLE PRESS.

It is the desire of the News to print all the news in an impartial manner. This means the church and society notes of interest to its readers. We have never yet been accused of being prejudiced in any manner when it comes to printing news matter, and we want to keep our record clean on this line.—Lynn County News.

Few newspapers of today can be charged with partiality in publishing the legitimate news of the day. When a newspaper takes up a campaign for certain things it is only natural that it should give more news stories and editorials to putting it across than it would to some other things. The newspaper business has reached the stage where it is a great commercial proposition. A publication that is not on a sound financial basis is bound to strike the rocks. If a paper has a field that should enable it to survive, then a good way to maintain the friendship of both readers and advertisers is to print the news without fear or favor. More newspapers are condemned by their readers because they fail to print the news than because they omit the stories. The Lynn County News is just like all of the Panhandle press in desiring to keep its record clean by not being partial in printing the news.—Amarillo Daily News.

"A GENTLEMAN"

A man who is clean, both inside and outside; who neither looks up to the rich nor down to the poor; who can lose without squealing and win without bragging; who is considerate of women, children and old people; who is too brave to tell a lie, too generous to cheat, and who takes his share of the world and lets other people have theirs.—Stolen

Young people who get married should bear in mind that the very first duty they owe to each other and to their family of future years, is to own a home. It does not matter how humble or poor that home may be—it will grow as the years roll by, and in time become the greatest comfort and happiness the family can possibly have. Altogether too many of them invest in a suit case and a can opener and rent a flat, and later on buy a flivver on the installment plan. The flivver starts on the road to the trash heap, the rent money never comes back and the can opener is mute evidence of a wrong idea of life.—Ex.

The Avalanche started a fuss last week, by our city editor making the mistake of stating that Judge Lockhart was from Lamesa instead of Tahoka. The News jumped on us with both feet because of the misstatement, just the same as though he does not make 'em in every issue that is printed, and now the Lamesa Reporter is taking a shot at the News for refusing the pleasure of being from Lamesa, if only for a few minutes even. Now boys, we do not want to cause any friction between you. The editor knew that Judge Lockhart lived at Tahoka, boosted Tahoka, helps to build Tahoka, and all that, but you know the Avalanche has grown to that proportion that the editor cannot read every line that goes into it before it is printed, and new men coming on the job of news writing causes these kind of errors, and they are not made with any ill intentions, but are merely innocent mistakes. However, cut out the quibbling over the judge and keep on building new brick business houses like you are both doing. The judge will take care of himself at any time and under any conditions. Keep building.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Thanks, Bro. Dow, for your very satisfactory explanation of the above matter. We want only a square deal and feel that your lengthy editorial squib has already set the world right on this one point. The News never did feel that Smith at Lamesa even had a look in on the proposition. We realize that the Lubbock Avalanche covers a wide range of territory and when a statement is corrected, as was this one, more than a handful of subscribers learn the truth as to where Judge Lockhart makes his home.—Locate in Lynn county.

LYNN ITEMS.

We have not seen anything from this community for some time. We will try to give a few of the important news happenings of late.

We have had some bad luck since our last letter to the News. A hail and rain storm came and partially ruined our crops in these parts. Still we are very thankful to the good Lord for what he has given us. The hail broke the window lights out of Mr. Davis' and Bartley's houses. Some of our people were scared during the worst of the storm.

Uncle Bill Bartley lost his best mare last week.

Everybody is rustling cotton seed to replant their crops.

Bro. Brunson filled his regular appointment here Sunday.

Messrs. D. C. Dameron and Irvin Shattuck went to Abernathy after cotton seed Saturday.

Saturday will be Baptist clean-up day at the church.

J. I. Bartley went to Brownfield Saturday after cotton seed.

If you are not reading your county paper, see Uncle Tom or the editor and have it sent to you forthwith or sooner. You should read your county paper.

UNCLE TOM.

H. D. Smith who has been in Dallas the past few months, came in the first of the week.

Mrs. W. Donald, of Slaton, stopped over in Tahoka a short time yesterday, on her return home from points south.

NOT MUCH DANGER IN AIR

Statistics Concerning the Casualties Among Flyers Are Something of a Revelation.

The airplane is the fastest machine man has yet built, but fast as it is, it has not yet caught up with its reputation for danger. That reputation was acquired when the plane was in its infancy, when man was just beginning to master the air, and in the mind of the average man it has not yet been downed.

The British air ministry collected statistics on all commercial flying in that country for the last seven months of 1919. The results amazed even pilots and engineers who long had regarded the risk in flying as negligible. The figures covered 25,330 flights by 403 machines of a total time in the air of 8,368 hours, during which time 583,000 miles were traveled. In all this flying in good weather and bad, one passenger was killed in every 16,666 passenger hours in the air. To put it differently, a single passenger might expect to fly about 1,180,000 miles—47 times around the world—before becoming the victim of a fatal crash. That sounds utterly absurd to the landsman, yet the British government stands back of the figures.

The pilots who tested experimental planes did stunt flying and ran other unnecessary risks, showed 48 deaths per 1,000 hours.

Coming nearer home, figures compiled by the Post Office department show to the end of last year 405,000 miles flown with a loss of three pilots. These pilots, of course, ran many risks, for they carried the mail through rain, snow and fog that blinded them.

Even in training pilots the figures are exceedingly low. From the beginning of the war until the end of 1918, 17,620 men learned to fly in the United States air service. One man was killed in every 2,310 hours, or one to about every 150,000 miles. With these positive proofs of aviation's safety before us, American airplane manufacturers are going ahead building planes, confident that the realization soon will come everywhere that man can take care of himself as surely in the realm of the birds as in the realm of the fishes.—New York World.

Flying Squirrels.

Along in April, if you are walking through a heavy piece of woods and you tap tentatively upon the trunk of a hollow tree because you see a promising looking hole higher up, then, once out of about 892 times you will see one or more curious little heads peering down at you. You will have found a family of flying squirrels, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

You will be apt to notice that the little rascals above have unusually large eyes and you will perhaps be surprised at the number of inhabitants which will continue to emerge from that hole upon continued tapping (sometimes there will be eight or nine); but particularly you will be delighted by the wonderful lightness and gracefulness of the jumping flights they will make to the nearby tree trunks. Of course they land at a lower level than the spot from which they jump, yet by repeating the process they are in no time distributed to the four compass points and out of your range of observation. If, however, the young are very small they may be caught and you can examine their silky fur and the little sails which they spread with their feet when they fly.

Famous St. Andrews.

Ask any man keen on outdoor games what St. Andrews is famous for and he will reply, without hesitation: "Golf." The sage who said that the Scots were brought up on porridge and theology is sometimes thought to have only partially stated the case, as he said nothing about the "royal and ancient game." The coastal towns of Fifeshire are indeed famous for their golf courses, but the Mecca of all those who "run about w' a bag o' sticks after a wee bit ba" is certainly the royal burgh of St. Andrews. Fifeshire was once described as "a beggar's mantle fringed with gold," but most people think it was the big golfing centers, and not the seaport towns themselves, which were thought to be the golden fringe. However, golf attracted visitors, and visitors mean more trade, but it is interesting to hear that trade is being improved also by the export of iron golf heads to the United States. This will all help to get the exchange value of the "bawbee" back to normal. The Scots sometimes think of other things than "golf."

Making American Synthetic Camphor.
Camphor is now being manufactured synthetically from turpentine. This step has been made in order to supply the American market with the aromatic substance. The majority of camphor is imported from Japan. It is used in medicine, in the making of celluloid, which is a combination of camphor and gincotton. The Department of Agriculture has established a camphor farm in Florida and is producing a very good grade of the substance.

Malicious Joy.

"John!"
"Well, my dear?"
"Last night burglars robbed the Jibway apartment next door. They stole $4 in money and Grace Jibway's ukulele. You'd better go over and extend your sympathy."
"I'd rather not, my dear. I'm afraid I couldn't keep my face straight."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
