Local Firemen Assist With Truck Accident

Tahoka firemen were called to the scene of a transport truck accident north of Tahoka last week, to retard the possibility of fire hazard from spilled diesel coming from the ruptured tank.

Investigators said the driver of the Farmland Industries tanker lost control of the big truck and overturned across the southbound lanes of US 87, blocking the highway for several hours.

The driver was transported to a Lubbock hospital by White Funeral Home ambulance, and his condition was described as fair. Two units of the Tahoka Fire Department were called to wash the spilling diesel from the roadway and remain on standby while wreckers were attempting to remove the wreckage from the roadway.

The tractor unit of the rig received heavy damage and a lighter damage was sustained by the tank.

Traffic was re-routed to the north-bound lanes until the area was cleared and highway crews repaired damage to the roadway.

County Farmers Watch Weather

Farmers have been keeping a close watch on storm clouds, fearing that heavy rains and hail would bring severe damage to the already growing and newly planted cotton and grain.

Several times the past two weeks, storm clouds and severe weather have hit county areas, bringing rain, hail, and wind. Hardest hit has been in Southern Lynn County with crop damage reported.

The immediate Tahoka area has skipped most of the heavy rains, experiencing some wind, light showers and brilliant electrical displays. However, some heavy showers have been reported within a five-mile limit from town.

Farmers are reporting that conditions were never better for top production of this year's crops, providing storm damage holds off until after harvest.

Thirty-five eager 6-year old children arrive at Tahoka South Elementary School each weekday morning for a day of fun and activity. These children are enrolled in the Tahoka Independent School District Title I Pre-School Program and are really eager to learn. The program, which began on June 3, starts at 8:00 a. m. and lasts until 11:00 a. m. Monday through Friday and will operate through July 29.

The objective of this program is to get children ready for school this fall and to insure transition into school life with the least amount of trouble possible. Activities consist of singing, patriotism, participation, cleanliness and sanitation emphasis, and readiness for reading. Time is also allotted for supervi-ed playground activity and group play. Since children are very energetic in the morning hours, the program moves at a fast pace. About mid-morning, a snack is served to all of the children in the school cafeteria. Here too, a learning process is involved as children march in straight lines to and from the cafeteria, wait their turn to be seated, and then begin to eat. They sit in groups and all remain seated until released by the teachers.

Mrs. Ruth Walker and Mrs. Louise Wyatt are the teachers who keep the activities varied and interesting so that the children are never bored. Connie Gardner and Yolanda Chapa serve as teacher aids in the classroom and offer assistance with the playground activities and organized group play. Time is also allotted for individual play with educational toys and games.

LOCAL residents are fighting a weed problem and are asking to the spray system of eliminating the nuisance. We have had some reports of tree and shrub damage from drifting spray, however these could be circumstantial reports. Even the city department has been accused of killing trees and plants from chemical spraying of weeds. Well, these charges won't hold water as the city has not used any weed killing chemicals. Residents should be cautious about using the chemical sprays. Even on still days, the fumes and spray can drift considerable distance, causing damage to plants and trees in the area. Some of your friendly neighbors might not be so neighborly the next day after.

KIDS, especially small ones have a habit of swallowing small objects, and oft times, takes a doctor and all the money to remove said object, if any more. There is an easier way.

Seems this baby swallowed coin and the mother didn't know what to do. She called a neighbor lady and was promptly given this answer. Call the internal revenue collectors, they can get your kid out of anybody."

WHAT do Tahoka merchants have to offer those persons visiting on Old Setters Day? It has been announced that a Sidewalk Sale has been scheduled June 21 and several Tahoka merchants are participating.

Such an undertaking requires the cooperation of all Tahoka businessmen. No one, or a few merchants can pull it off successfully. I certainly think it is worth doing and would be one to help do my share. How about you?

OUR congratulations to David Green, local attorney.

Linda Huffaker, CHD Agent, Says.....

Ventilation and cleanliness are the keys to mildew prevention. Soil on clothing supplies food for mildew to grow when moisture and warm temperature are present.

Most man-made fibers such as Orlon, Dacron, Dynel, and Nylon resist mildew if kept clean.

Dry ventilated closets are of great importance. Poorly ventilated closets get damp and musty during continued wet weather and clothing in them are likely to mildew.

Be sure to dry all wet clothing before putting it in the closet. Leave closet doors open occasionally to keep moisture from gathering and to circulate air.

A small electric closet light burning constantly will dry air in the storage area. Keep closet door closed.

The chemicals, silica gel and activated alumina, may be used to absorb moisture in closets. They will not harm fabrics. Hang cloth bags of one chemical in closets, or place an open container of chemicals on floor and keep doors closed.

For other helps with mildew problems, contact the County Home Demonstration Agent's office and ask for the bulletin No. 68 - "How to Remove Mildew."

Bill Griffin, County Agent, Says.....

Greenbugs, tiny green members of the aphid family invaded grain sorghum on the Texas High Plains for the first time last year, causing considerable concern. More than two million acres were infested.

"This year entomologists, farmers and concerned individuals will be keeping a sharp lookout for the tiny pest as sorghum stands become established," says Lyndon Almand, area entomologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "A considerable amount of research was conducted last year to develop guidelines for controlling the insect."

Almand points out that greenbug damage in grain is dependent on greenbug numbers, plant size, vigor, and stage of growth, moisture conditions and presence or absence of parasites and predators. "All these factors must be considered before initiating a control program."

A number of insecticides are recommended for effective control, should greenbugs reach damaging levels. These are carbophenothion (Trithion), demeton (Systox), diazinon, malathion and parathion (thyl). Demeton should be applied only once during a season while malathion is recommended for ground application only. Methyl parathion should not be substituted for parathion.

Farmers should also be on the lookout for beneficial insects which are important in keeping down greenbug populations. These include lady beetles, damsel bugs, green lacewing larvae, syrphid fly

Substantial, perhaps drastic changes appear to be in the making for future government cotton programs according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. He says "Cotton producers, generally, favor a continuation of the current cotton program with a few minor adjustments. But there are at least three reasons to believe it will be extremely difficult if not impossible for such a program to be enacted in this session or the next session of Congress."

His reasons include (1) the current mood of Congress where farm programs are concerned, (2) the attitude of the present administration, and (3) the lack of a unified cotton producer approach to legislation.

As an indication of the "Congressional mood" Johnson cited the recent passage in the House of Representatives of a $20,000 limitation on payments that can be made to any individual farmer in 1970.

"This limitation, which came as an amendment to the Agricultural Appropriations Bill, is clearly discriminatory, and unless legislative changes are made will clearly wreck the present cotton program," he said, "yet it passed the House by a vote of 222 to 142."

Not only is the margin of the vote significant, he noted, "but the amendment passed over the opposition of almost the entire House leadership, including Speaker Carl Albert, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee George Mahon, and Bob Poage, Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture."

There is hope that the limitations amendment can be knocked out in the Senate and that the Senate version will be upheld in Conference Committee, Johnson believes. "But there is still the problem of getting such a Conference report accepted by the House," he cautioned.

"Regardless of the final outcome of limitations on 1970 payments, it is obvious that cotton producers are in trouble when a measure so blatantly inequitable and so damaging to the supply-management concept of farm programs can pass the House under these conditions," Johnson said.

Concerning the attitude of the present administration, as reflected by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin, Johnson says is has been, at best, weak. "The Secretary has taken no strong stand for or against any farm program or program philosophy, and he certainly was of little if any help toward defeating the limitations amendment," he stated.

The Secretary's statement on limitations was: "The Department believes it is possible to design a sound farm program that limits the number of dollars that can be paid to any one farmer for programs following the 1970 crop year. However, to make such a limitation effective, legislation changes are needed. With only the simple amendment that is possible in connection with appropriations bills, the so-called snap-back provision for cotton would come into effect."

"The cotton program would then become subject to a loan-and-redemption or a buy-and-sell-back arrangement that would increase costs while the large producers would escape the intent of the payment limitations."

The Secretary went on to say the Department was ready to work with legislative committees on basic changes in legislation and suggested "later in this session or early next session" as the preferred time for such work.

Last, "but certainly not least," among Johnson's reasons for believing producers face an uphill battle in Washington is cotton producers' own failure in recent months to develop and get behind a unified approach to legislation.

A strong effort has been made over the past several months by regional cotton producer organizations, including Plains Cotton Growers, by the Cotton Producer Steering Committee of the National Cotton Council and by others to put together a legislative proposal acceptable all across the Cotton Belt. But up to now the effort has failed.

Johnson points out that this leaves general farm organizations and other groups, each well organized and each with different but definite ideas as to cotton industry needs, in a much stronger position to influence changes in new cotton legislation.

"Their proposals for change may or may not be in the best interest of cotton producers," he concluded, "but with the current situation in Washington they are likely to prevail unless something is done to correct the indecisiveness and lack of Beltwide organization among producers."
