

Liquor Ads Now Barred From All The Texas Papers

Austin, Dec. 8.—In an opinion rendered today to an attorney at Groesbeck, the attorney general's department has opened the way for a litigation that is of the utmost importance to the newspapers of the state.

"It is a violation of the law for persons, firms or corporations residing out of the state to solicit orders for intoxicating liquors in dry sections of the state and, newspapers which carry printed matter, the effect of which is to solicit orders in dry territory, are liable to prosecution as aiding the principal offenders in the commission of a felony."

This is the opinion handed out by the department.

The department, however, does not enter into the exact nature of the advertisements which may be considered eligible to classification as those soliciting orders, but the department holds that this is a question of fact to be ascertained in each particular case.

The Arkansas supreme court has held that the presence of the circular or advertisement of a soliciting nature is evidence enough to convict. Inasmuch as the newspapers cannot regulate to what sections of the state their papers are transmitted and inasmuch as advertisements would only be placed for the purpose or intent of soliciting orders if not so worded, the liquor dealers before any specific holding of the style of advertisements to be put under the ban is made, are practically prohibited from advertising. The newspapers also, being liable to fines, would likely refuse to carry the advertisements.—Fort Worth Record.

READ THE DICTIONARY TWICE

Gen. Caleb Cushing Noted as One of New England's Most Learned Savants.

To illustrate the abilities of Gen. Caleb Cushing, one of New England's famous men, a writer in the New York Sun vouches for the following remarkable feat. It was in the fifties that the publishers of Webster's Dictionary requested General Cushing to write a friendly notice of the work. General Cushing replied that he had read it and that if they expected complimentary notice of a work that contained five thousand errors they would be disappointed. The publishers replied that if he would prove his statement to the satisfaction of the editor, Professor Porter of Harvard, they would believe him. Thereupon he read the dictionary through a second time and mailed a list of five thousand errors to Professor Porter. This extraordinary achievement, declares the writer, justifies the statement made in 1876 by Wendell Phillips, that he considered General Cushing to be the most learned man of the day.

For Tax Assessor.

I take this method of announcing to the voters of Lynn county that I am in the race this year for the office of Tax Assessor for Lynn county, Texas. Although I want this office, yet I would not think of asking the citizens for it, if I did not feel fully competent to fill this very important office with the fullest satisfaction to all concerned. As to my qualification and capacity for work, I can cite you to those who will readily vouch for me, and as for my honesty and integrity, I have been here long enough so it will be no trouble for anyone interested to fully satisfy themselves on this score.

I am a native born Texan and have lived in Lynn county the better part of seven years as a farmer and merchant. I am and always have been a Democrat, and am making this race subject to the action of the Democratic Primary, and earnestly solicit the vote of all who can possibly help me secure the office of Tax Assessor. 15 11

An Automobile Speed Contest

From El Paso to Dallas by Way of Roswell Over the Southern National Highway in Mid-winter

Arrangements are now being made for a speed contest in the near future over the all Southern route from El Paso to Dallas, under the auspices of the American Automobile Association.

This contest will be similar to the recent race from El Paso to Phoenix, and will be a demonstration of the practicability of the Roswell route, as an all winter route, the race being arranged for mid-winter.

The entrance fee for participants will be $100.00 and 36 hour controls will be established at Roswell and Sweetwater. It is expected that the run from El Paso to Roswell will be made in one day, from Roswell to Sweetwater in one day, and from Sweetwater to Dallas in one day. The prize money will be distributed as follows: Fifty per cent of the Roswell prize money to go to the car making the best time from El Paso to Roswell, 25 per cent to the second best, 15 per cent to the third and 10 per cent to the fourth. The same proportion will be applied to cars making best time from Roswell to Sweetwater, and the same from Sweetwater to Dallas, but no car will be entitled to any prize money which does not make the entire trip. Eighteen entries are promised by El Paso and several by Roswell.

The utmost publicity will attend the race and it will do more than anything else that could be planned to bring the Southern National Highway into immediate use. The effort is now being made to enlist the interest and co-operation of the communities, along the line, and the responses that have been received give encouragement to the hope that the race may be put on.

Mr. J. W. Stockard of El Paso, one of the vice presidents of the American Automobile Association, has taken up the matter vigorously during his visit in Roswell, and local parties have joined him in presenting the matter to Sweetwater, Dallas, Texas, and other points along the line.—Roswell Morning News, Nov. 22, 1913.

Tahoka's All Right.

I'll tell you folks a good joke on John Marcy the mail man, if you won't tell any body. Old John was coming in Tuesday night as usual with the mail, over across Sulphur creek, this side of the big gate in the lane east of town, he had to turn to turn to the side of the road to avoid a bad mud hole, he run right square kadab into this fellow Travis, the freighter who lives over in New Mexico and who works a whole herd of burros to his freight wagons, and lodged two burros on each fender of his Ford auto, and of course John jumped out in his obliging way to square things and straighten the burros out again, and Mr. Travis told him he was carrying the mail and go on, that down at Tahoka that the train had run over one of those burros and never hurt it a particle.—Yoakum County News.

FEELING HARDSHIPS OF WAR

There will be bitter suffering in millions of families of Europe this winter. Coarse food will give place to coarser, belts will be tightened in place of meals, rations will be shortened, and every public and private agency of relief will be taxed to capacity to keep hardship from becoming disaster. For more than a thousand million dollars of Europe's liquid capital has been burned up in the Balkan war, or has gone into unproductive increases of armies already too great for taxpayers to support. The coming hardships will press most heavily on lands which felt the devastation of war; Turkey and Bulgaria and the fought-over regions of Thrace and Macedonia. In the first-named countries defeat has added bitterness to privation, and in Turkey the inchoate character of society will increase the ills of poverty. But, while these lands suffer worst, no part of Europe is wholly exempt. Fifty thousand men are already out of work in Berlin, and the authorities of that city are expecting a repetition of the bread riots of last year. Martial law prevails over large districts in Austria and Russia. Workers in Italy are striking for a living wage, and even in prosperous France and Holland the pinch is felt.

For County Treasurer

We are authorized to announce in The News this week the name of Mr. C. T. Beard as a candidate for the office of Treasurer of Lynn County, Texas. Mr. Beard moved to Lynn county about six years ago from Boone county, Arkansas, living in Tahoka three years, then he moved to a farm 10 miles north-east of town where he has lived until he recently moved back to Tahoka, and is now clerking for H. M. Larkin at the Fair, on the south side of the square.

Mr. Beard has a good common school education and has had considerable business experience and commercial training and feels himself fully competent to look after the office of County Treasurer in a manner that will satisfy all just persons. He has been a life long Democrat and this is the first time he has ever asked for any public office.

Mr. Beard will make the race subject to the action of the Democratic Primary and will be very grateful for the support and vote of a majority of the citizens of this county. His name will be found in our announcement column until the date of the primary and if he is successful until the general election. 15-11

The huntsman who misses the first shot usually loses the game. He has had the opportunity and he has lost. There's a parallel in advertising. Make the first shot—the main heading, the picture that gets first attention—hit what you're aiming at. If an article is going to be bought for comfort, mention the peculiar kind of comfort and the article, in the head if possible. Then elaborate. But don't expect a reader with a want for your article to read your sales talk if confronted by a heading that gives no idea of what you are talking. Make the first shot ring true.

Two More Years Great Prosperity For Amarillo.

By a majority of 161 votes the citizens of Precinct No. 1, Potter County, decided yesterday that Amarillo should remain saloonless for another period of two years. Despite the keen weather, interest was keen and voting was heavy, a total of 1,434 being cast, not far short of the total qualified voters of the precinct.

The majority for local option in the election held two years ago was 27, the result yesterday showing a marked gain in the dry contingent.

The election was a well ordered one. While interest was keen, the best of feeling prevailed, opponents on the issue meeting and joking during the day while they speculated on results, both factions claiming victory in advance of the closing of the polls.

The voting places were opened at 8 o'clock and in the two city boxes ballot-casters were in evidence throughout all of the day. For hours after noon the voters stood in line, resembling a box office crowd for a first-night production.

Rejoicing was marked among the winning contingent, but the anti good naturedly accepted the verdict of the ballot, and congratulated the winners smilingly.

Interest in the result was not confined to Amarillo. The News received a score of telegrams from outside points, and long-distance telephone calls were equally numerous.—Amarillo Daily News.

The Wild West Play was produced by the Tahoka High School Dramatic Club Friday night of last week in the Tahoka School auditorium to a packed house. We believe we are safe in saying it was the best thing of its kind ever presented here, either amateur or professional. The play as produced here is well worth seeing twice, and if you fail to see it at least once, you are looser indeed.

GIVEN A STRAIGHT WARNING

English Judge Resented Conversations Being Made at Too Early Hours of the Morning.

Judge Perry tells a story of how Lister Drummond, the new London magistrate, once received a delicious rebuke from Justice Mathew. Parry and Drummond were judge's marshals. "I fear we marshals," says Judge Parry, "must have been somewhat of a trial to our respective judges, and every now and then Mathew put his foot down. One morning we both arrived at breakfast rather later than usual. Mathew was reading his paper and eating his bacon alone, and looked at us in a very Johnsonian and surly manner, and only grunted a reply to our greeting. Breakfast proceeded in silence until the judge had finished, when he put down his paper and said, 'Whose bedroom is next to mine?' 'I believe mine is, judge,' I said with hesitancy. 'H'm! Then who on earth was talking to you until two in the morning?' 'Well, you see, I replied more cheerily, seeing a mischievous retreat, 'it was Drummond, but I am sure you will approve of it when I tell you that he wants to convert me to the holy faith.' 'Does he?' roared Mathew, banging his fist on the table and glaring at Drummond. 'Then you may take it from me that if you continue to convert Parry in the small hours of the morning I leave the church.'"

Advertising Talks

HUMOR IS FOUND IN ADVERTISING

Desire to Draw Trade Crops Out in Unexpected Places and at Odd Times.

Undoubtedly a real genius is responsible for the pronouncement that it takes a rich man to draw a check, a pretty girl to draw attention, a horse to draw a cart, a mustard plaster to draw the skin, a toper to draw a cork, a fee lunch to draw a crowd, and an advertisement to draw trade. It is along this latter line, for the purpose of drawing trade, that a newspaper exclusively for beggars is published in Paris. Its columns are filled with notices of funerals, baptisms, weddings and other social and public events calculated to guarantee generous responses to pathetic appeals from the beggars who, thus apprised, flock to the scene of the functions, night or day.

A choice sample of humor in advertising is furnished by the notice of dissolution of a disastrous business venture between two gentlemen of color in the south. The following bon mot for insertion in the local paper was penned by the survivor of the wreck.

"De copartnership heretofore existing twixt Mose Skinner on me an dis day resolved. Dem what owes de firm will settle wid me, en dem what de firm owes will settle wid Mose."

About the last place in which one would look for advertising is the churchyard, but it has been demonstrated that even there all is fish that comes to the net of the far-reaching advertiser. It is recorded of a certain shopkeeper possessing a grim sense of humor that he had his grave dug and a tombstone erected at its head some years before his death. On the marble he caused to be inscribed: "Here lies John Emerson, the Best Hatter in Ohio."

A Canadian firm went this one better. The senior partner having passed to his reward, his business associates erected a monument to his memory. The tombstone bore these words: "Here lies Abram Stokes, founder of the firm of Stokes, Stokes & Co., who for many years have manufactured pickles and bottled fruits. Best of all and without a rival."

For her late husband a grief stricken widow across the ocean put up a stone with this touching inscription upon it: "Here lies —, dear departed husband of —, who now carries on his business of general outfitter, and always gives good value; terms cash."

Bill Nye, the lamented provoker of smiles, once had a cow to sell, or professed to have, and he advertised the animal in this manner: "Owing to my ill health, I will sell at my residence in the township 19, range 18, according to the government survey, one plump raspberry cow, giving milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to anyone who will treat her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall red calf with wobbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell to a non-resident."

In the want columns of an English newspaper not long since appeared the following notice: "Widower, living retired, without encumbrance, would like to correspond with lady about forty, with small means, with one leg preferred, with a view to an early marriage." It is to be regretted that the advertiser did not explain why he preferred a one-legged helpmate.

Another Englishman in his home paper boldly declared his want of a wife, "who must be quite dumb and deaf, at least fifty years of age, and who hates music, children, pet dogs and strong drink."

RADFORD'S PLATFORM

Ex-President of the Farmer's Union Outlines Legislative Needs of Farmers.

MARKETING AND HELPING THE TENANT FARMER THE PARAMOUNT ISSUES.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Replying to many requests to run for Governor, Peter Radford gave out the following statement:

"My duties with the National and State Farmers' Union, I consider, present a wider field for rendering public service than that afforded by the Governorship of Texas. Many things are possible through mutual co-operation that can not be accomplished through legislation and I consider it my duty to work in this broader field.

"Our government has been run by city men and agriculturists whose knowledge of farming has been acquired by looking through the windows of Pullman cars and while the farmer bears the brunt of taxation, owns the larger per cent of property and seventy-six per cent of our population lives in rural territory, he has little voice and receives comparatively small benefits from government. The farmer asks no favors, but he is entitled to the same consideration from government that is accorded other lines of business.

"I follow the plow for a living and my views are gathered from actual contact with the soil and are acquired from association with the great body of organized farmers of this State, and I think fairly represent the consensus of opinion of the farmers of Texas as a whole and embody the elements of constructive legislation needed in Texas today.

Agricultural Legislation Needed.

"The laws of Texas relating to business are wholly unsuited to the transactions of the farmer. While primarily based and admirably adapted to the needs of commerce and industry, they work a hardship upon agriculture. We must give the same care and consideration to a system of co-operative laws extending to the farmer the facilities adapted to his business that is now afforded corporations. We need to enter vigorously this unoccupied and fruitful field of legislative activity and install the legal machinery adapted to permitting and encouraging co-operative business concerns and facilitating co-operation between different lines of industry.

"In glancing over our statutes I find that most of our laws are aimed at the punishment of individual and corporate criminals and while approving the wisdom and applauding the efficiency of these laws, I do not believe government can hope to fully perform its duty toward all the people by addressing itself to the suppression of crime alone. I want to plead for the able and law-abiding citizen that consideration from government that is now accorded the incompetent and criminal classes. We must not relax for a moment our efforts to restrain the avaricious and protect the weak, but let us extend the functions of government into developing new regions of agricultural, industrial and commercial activities for the honest, energetic and law-abiding citizens. There should be breathed into our statutes the spirit of the builder and hope and encouragement for the conscientious and ambitious should abound in our laws. New areas of opportunity should be opened up for the home-owner, the laborer and the investor. Legislation should be based upon the needs of that large body of intelligent and progressive farmers that constitute the great bulk of agricultural population as well as assisting the incompetent.

Co-operation the Remedy.
 "To meet the expectations and necessities of the farmers we must develop a co-operative system of rural credits that will make money, at reasonable rates of interest, constantly and easily available to maintain and expand their business. Farm tenancy is the greatest menace now confronting the State and can only be checked by affording the tenant and the laborer facilities for acquiring property and by reducing the high rates of interest which are now sapping the vitality of agriculture.

The curse of farm peasantry now confronts us and our farmers are fast becoming agricultural gypsies, wandering from farm to farm. We now have 219,575 farms in this State operated by tenants which is fifty-three per cent of the total and the tenant farmers have made a net gain over the farm owners of thirty per cent during the past decade. At the present rate of gain in tenant farming, the home owner will entirely disappear in thirty-four years. Our homes are the cornerstone of government and legislation that contains building material should be provided for the tenant farmer. This should be the paramount issue during the present campaign as the safety of the nation lies in the preservation of its homes.

COMMANDING SUCCESS

SOME people "command" success, others sit down and wait for it. Those who command success are the ones who watch for opportunity, getting ready meanwhile to seize upon it. Identify yourself with this successful bank, and get in position to command your success.

"Our methods of preparing cotton for the market are wasteful and our holding plans inadequate to meet the imperative needs of the farmer. Legislative facilities should be provided for co-operative ownership and operation of cotton gins; the establishment of a warehouse system and securing funds on storage cotton. Every movement and transaction from the field to the spinner should be carefully studied and methods of co-operation and assistance extended.

"The marketing of farm products should receive the diligent attention of the legislature. A marketing bureau should be established under the department of agriculture and marketing given equal attention to that of production. The bureau should be properly equipped for providing information and studying and assisting in the solution of the many intricate problems connected with the business of farming.

Anti-Trust Law Needs Strengthening.

"The farmers have felt the iron heel of the trusts and illegal combines and the vigilance of our state officials in policing industry is to be commended, but the benefit of these laws has so far been confined principally to lawyers, competitive concerns and politicians with inordinate ambitions. While we should hold all we have I favor extending the benefits of these laws to the producer and consumer and increasing their efficiency to a point where the trusts can not collect their fines from the farmers through increasing the price of their products.

"The combination of capital is universally recognized as necessary to develop the commerce and industry of the country and when properly managed, large business concerns are conducive to efficiency and economy and all conscientious and law-abiding capital should be encouraged to do business in Texas.

"The trust evil can be reduced by legislation, but it must be finally overcome by organization and co-operation of the farmers. These powerful corporate organizations dealing with the individual producer and consumer, place the farmer at their mercy and to satisfactorily cope with present conditions the farmers must acquire power through organization.

Railroads.

"Our railroad facilities should be improved and our mileage increased and I favor such amendments to our laws as in the wisdom of the railroad commission may hasten these results. I believe that all power conveyed to the railroad commission should be exercised exclusively by them and that neither the legislature nor the Attorney General should take the initiative in any matters within the control of the Railroad Commission. I consider dual jurisdictions confusing and unbusiness-like.

"The Railroad Commission, the railroads and the farmers should cooperate in moving farm products and especially waste products. Certainly our mutual interest and combined intelligence can evolve a plan for moving the tons of fruit, vegetables and semi-staple crops that rot on the ground each year. The loss of a crop is, I think, a tragedy of sufficient importance to justify the consideration of State government and the common carrier.

"The service of the common carrier fulfills every need of the merchant and manufacturer and our transportation system is built around them. They are shrewd traders with facilities for locating the best market, controlling its supply and presenting convincing arguments for rates that will move the traffic, but the requirements of the producer are vastly different from those of the trader and the business of farming will never adapt itself satisfactorily to their necessities. The farmer must have a co-operative system of business that extends the usefulness and utilizes latent powers of the carrier in assisting in the marketing of products.

"The problem is a monumental one, but probably no greater than the many difficulties that have been surmounted in handling the business of the merchants and manufacturers and I ask for the producer the same thoughtful consideration to his requirements that has been given other lines of business.

Opposed to Woman's Suffrage.

"It is the hand that shuffles the cards rather than the one that rocks the cradle that wants to cast the ballot. The home is the great contribution of women to the world and the hearthstone is her throne. Our social structure is built around her and social righteousness is in her charge. Her beautiful life lights the skies of hope and her refinement is the charm of twentieth century civilization. Her graces and her power are the cumulative products of generations of queenly conquest and her crown of exalted womanhood is jeweled with the wisdom of saintly mothers. She has been a great factor in the glory of our country and her noble achievements should not be marred or her hallowed influence blighted by the coarser duties of citizenship. Southern chivalry should never permit her to bear the burdens of defending and maintaining government, but should preserve her unswayed from the allied influences of politics, and protect her from the weighty responsibilities of the sordid affairs of life that will crush her ideals and lower her standards. The motherhood of the farm is our inspiration, she is the guardian of our domestic welfare and a guide to a higher life, but directing the affairs of government is not within woman's sphere and political gossip would cause her to neglect the home, forget to mend our clothes and burn the biscuits.

No Liquor Legislation Needed.

"I am a state-wide prohibitionist, have always voted against the saloon and do not use liquor in any form and I will always remain a life-long enemy to the liquor business. The home of the farmer is the hearthstone of morality and the fountain-head of all that is pure and noble in life and the farmer should ever stand for civic righteousness and the reduction of all forms of vice to the minimum. Not more than twenty-five per cent of our population ever tastes liquor and less than one per cent drink to excess. The delinquents we will always have with us, but the liquor habit affects so small a per cent of our population that I do not think it should be considered to the exclusion of important problems that affect the welfare of all the people. Where liquor sends one man staggering home to his family, our system of marketing and of rural credits sends thousands of families reeling down the thoroughfares of poverty.

"Each year 2,400 farmers become victims of an inadequate and brutal system of credits, cover their hearthstone with the ashes of failure and as many mothers, drenching the family altar with the tears of despair, cry aloud for help as they close forever the door of the home. Let us turn our attention temporarily from the delinquents and incorrigibles to the worthy and ambitious citizen struggling to feed and clothe his family, educate his children and own his home. Let government assist those who plead for opportunity rather than consume all our energies upon those who scorn the privileges of manhood. Experience has proved that when legislatures become involved in prohibition discussions much important legislation is abandoned and the business affairs of government neglected.

"I favor the rigid enforcement of all liquor laws now on the statute books, but am opposed to any state-wide legislation of any character on this subject by the next legislature.

Education.

"I favor compulsory education extending over the entire school term.

Our rural school system is inadequate to meet the requirements of our children. The difficulty of properly educating the children of tenant farmers who move from farm to farm is readily apparent. No matter which way we turn in dealing with the problems in our rural districts, we are confronted with the condition that one-half the population of the country is a floating one. The home and the school are closely allied and their success interdependent.

"Our system of education from rural school to university should receive the careful consideration of the legislature and efficiency and economy instituted wherever possible.

Labor.

"Labor is honorable whether performed by male or female. Skill and ingenuity should be rewarded, but no class of labor that uses energy, practices economy and lives a moral, upright life, should receive a lesser wage for their services than would enable them to lay up for a rainy day, for old age, to educate their children and place them in society to the best advantage to advance the citizenship and improve the same in the community in which they live. The farmer's family, as a rule, is the poorest paid of any laborer in proportion to the service they render for the general welfare.

"I favor conducting government on a strictly business basis and the proper care for our wards, humane treatment and character building of our convicts, encouraging road-building and the full performance of all the functions of government."

OINTMENT

DIDN'T SUIT MR. HARDROCKS

Sadder and Wiser Boy Finds Out That Virtue Must Still Be Its Own Reward.

"Please, sir," said the office boy, "may I get away this afternoon?"
 "What's wrong?" asked the great financier. "Is your grandmother dead?"

Little Willie had been taught that honesty was always the best policy. He was a good boy. He never sneaked stamps from his employer, and he never threw the pretty typewriter into fits by whispering to her that he had just seen a mouse scot under her desk. Being a truthful boy, Willie replied:

"No, sir. I ain't got no grandmother. But the club that's in first place is going to play here today, and I'd like to see the game."

The old gentleman stared at him helplessly for a moment and then drew from his pocket $2, which he handed to the boy.

Ah, reader, you have already guessed that the great man felt in duty bound to encourage such frankness—but wait.

"Here," said Henry Hardrocks, "here's your week's wages. Don't come back any more. A boy that can't get up even a poor excuse on such an occasion as the present one would never amount to anything in this business."

Thus do we learn that on being its own reward virtue continues to have few competitors.

HIS FEAR.

"Are you afraid of an unloaded pistol?"
 "No, but I am of a loaded motor car driver."

COMING MAN.

Griggs—Then you don't look upon Sharpe as a coming man?
 Briggs—No, but I would if I was in charge of the penitentiary.

APPROPRIATE.

"Forgers get a punishment fitting the crime, don't they?"
 "They certainly do when they are sent to the 'pen.'"
