

Total Valuation of Lynn County $4,974,916.00

Editor News: How many Lynn county citizens could give a correct answer if asked the question: "What is the total valuation of Lynn county property according to the last assessment?" This question bobbed up in the mind of the writer a few days ago and having a few moments of leisure he laid himself over to the court house and with the aid and assistance of some of the county officials, we secured the desired information and sent it in advance we had somewhat of an agreeable surprise coming our way. We found out that Lynn county was making rapid strides in material advancement and increased valuation. It is said "figures won't lie," so here they are:

Total assessed values of Lynn Co. for the year 1921 were $4,974,516.00; for the year 1919 were $3,992,915.00, an increase in assessed values for the two years of the magnificent sum of $981,601, or $490,800.50 increase for each of the two years, or just $9,200 per cent of half a million dollars a year. The county rate of 87 cents for each $100 assessed would, if all collected, produce a revenue of $43,239. A neat little sum that ought to keep our finances in good shape and enable the county "dads" to make such internal improvements as would be commensurate with the growth and development of our county. The tax rate is based on about 60 per cent of the valuation of the actual wealth of the county.

The Tahoka Independent School District for the year 1921 assessed $101,182 on a 90 per cent basis of total valuation. The tax rate of 50 cents would bring a revenue of $50,591 local tax for school purposes in our district.

The municipal valuations for the city of Tahoka for the year 1921 were $100,700, and for the year 1919 $100,200, an increase in value for the two years of $154,410, or $77,255 per cent.

By further pursuing our investigation we find by the census of 1920 that each inhabitant of Tahoka was assessed $345.00 in taxable property. Not quite as rich as the Osage Indians per capita, but making a pretty good showing. Thank you.
W. J. CROUCH.

Mrs. Ira Bacon and W. Donald, former representative of the Linotype Co., with headquarters in El Paso, the latter editor of the Slaton Slatonite, were business partners in Tahoka last Saturday.

Mrs. Raymond Weathers and children have returned from a visit with relatives in Florida.

Garza County Oil Well Makes Showing

Post, Texas, April 7.—Woodward Oil company, of Post struck a strong pressure oil gas in its Boren No. 1, well at Justiceburg at 950 feet, blowing the bit nearly out of the hole. The gas is still flowing.

Christy Bros. Circus Exhibited Here Tuesday

Christy Bros. Wild Animal Circus exhibited in Tahoka Tuesday. The show had been advertised extensively and the people came from far and near to witness the big parade at noon and the afternoon and night performances. While we have not heard any flattering compliments, it was the first of the season and something out of the ordinary for a town located on a branch line railroad and no larger than Tahoka, Lamesa and Brownfield. Those who attended seemed to enjoy the exhibitions.

The editor had business in Slaton the first of the week.

The work of dragging the roads leading out of Tahoka in each direction has been underway by the county since the recent rains. Our roads are regular pikes and the speedster can certainly "step on it" in going out or coming into the city.

Several of the school boys of the town got busy and picked up the nails about town last Saturday, for which the city authorities offered the sum of 5c per pound. While a large number of nails were gathered, still there are a number left on the streets about town.

Rev. H. S. Hatchett has purchased the residence property of Dr. F. E. Callaway, in the northwest part of the city, and will occupy same as soon as the new residence of Dr. Callaway's now under construction on Main street, is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Doak attended the funeral services of Mrs. Doak's brother, M. J. Lowrey at Seagraves, Sunday. Mr. Lowrey died of pneumonia.

Fred Graham of Waco, Federal Land appraiser and Pat Northcross, made a business trip to the Draw community, Wednesday.

Chamber of Commerce Elects New Officers

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce was held at the court house Wednesday evening of this week, at which time the election of new officers was made for the current year.

Attorney B. P. Maddox, was unanimously elected president and Attorney G. E. Lockhart, as secretary.

Quite a number of short talks were made by the members on various lines pertaining to the advancement and welfare of the town and county. Among the subjects discussed was the advisability of employing a paid secretary. It was decided not to employ a salaried man at this time.

It was voted to have a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the first Saturday night in each month.

Motion was made and carried that secretary be empowered to draw on the members for any amount to supply the necessary funds for any need in the future.

Motion was made and carried that committee, already appointed, proceed at once to place free camping grounds in order; to erect a camp house and equip same with lights and water. The committee was composed of Messrs. Doak, Howell, Larkin and Connolly.

It was voted to carry a full page advertisement in the special West Texas edition of the Fort Worth Record, to be issued in May, during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention at Plainview. The page will include a write-up and photographs of Tahoka and Lynn county.

A committee was appointed to investigate the installation of a radio receiving station in Tahoka. Each member was heartily in favor of installing the radio station.

A large delegation, will attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention at Plainview, May 22nd and 23rd.

AMERICAN LEGION TO ORGANIZE BASE BALL CLUB

One of the important items omitted in last week's issue of the News was the organization of a base ball team by the local post of the American Legion at their hall Thursday, two weeks ago. Paul Miller was unanimously elected captain and manager of the club. It was voted to have a local tailor place an order for twelve uniforms for the club.

The Legion donated the sum of $25.00 toward defraying the expenses of the club.

It is hoped that Mr. Miller will be successful in completing the organization of a first class club to represent Tahoka during the season of 1922. There are a number of good ball players in Tahoka and surrounding territory and it should be no big job to pick a winning team that would interest any team on the plains, outside of the West Texas league. Let's back up the ball team.

Guy LeMond has purchased the residence west of the public square now occupied by Henry Vinson and wife.

Among the copy lost in the mails last week, which was sent away to be set on the machine, was an item mentioning the special edition of the Randall County News, at Canyon, Texas. The number contained 32 pages and was full of good reading matter pertaining to the early days in Randall county. Editor Warwick and his force deserve special consideration for having issued this splendid edition of the News.

M. C. Fench and H. L. Tunnell and family left the fore part of the week for Dettle, N. M., where they go to settle on their claims near that place.

Death of E. S. Childs

E. S. Childs, age 43 years, died at his home in the Draw community, April 7th inst., and was buried in the Draw cemetery. Deceased was a sufferer from kidney trouble, which brought about his death. He had been in poor health for several years.

Mr. Childs was a consecrated christian, having been a member of the Baptist church since 18 years of age. He was a member in good standing of the Woodmen of the World.

Deceased moved with his family to Lynn from Shelby county, Texas. He leaves his wife and seven children, all boys, to mourn his departure. They have the sympathy of the citizenship.

A brother from Shelby county attended the bedside during his last illness.

Ft. Worth Record Representatives Here

Messrs. W. Hamilton Wright and W. J. Burgess, special feature writers of the Ft. Worth Record, were in Tahoka Tuesday. These gentlemen were gathering data for a special West Texas edition of the Record to be issued during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Plainview in May.

They also made the Tahoka C. of C. a proposition on taking a whole page in the special edition and would contain a description of the wonderful possibilities of Lynn county. They left Tahoka for Lamesa, and thence south.

Clay Hughes has begun the erection of a garage building on his lots in the north part of the city. Mr. Hughes will probably occupy the building as a residence until he is ready to build.

Statement of the ownership, management, circulation, etc. required by the Act of Congress of Aug. 24, 1912, of the Lynn County News, published weekly at Tahoka, Texas, for April 1, 1922.

The name and address of the publisher, editor and business manager, R. B. Haynes, Tahoka, Texas.

The owner, R. B. Haynes, Tahoka, Texas.

Mortgagee, J. L. Dow, Lubbock, Texas.

Duly acknowledged by R. B. Haynes on March 29, 1922, before Louie Weathers, Notary Public.

The News failed to state in last week's issue that Arthur McGonagill underwent an operation in the Lubbock Sanitarium and is recovering nicely. This is the third operation "Buddie" has undergone within the past three years. His many friends will be glad to hear of his complete recovery.

MORE RAIN FRIDAY NIGHT.

Lynn county was again the recipient of a good rain last Friday night, the fall amounting to .45 inches in Tahoka. It is understood the precipitation was considerably heavier in the eastern portion of the county. The western part did not receive nearly so much. Local farmers are jubilant over the flattering prospects for a bumper crop year during the fall of 1922. The South Plains is invariably the garden spot of the earth. Locate in Lynn County.

W. P. Freeman, of Sweetwater, district manager of the Planters Gin Company, paid our city a business visit the past week. Mr. Freeman stated while here that new equipment would be installed in the local plant preparatory to taking care of the 1922 cotton crop.

Superintendent H. P. Caviness of the Tahoka Public Schools and Prof. N. B. Hood, the principal, in company with some ten or twelve students, are attending the District Inter-scholastic meet at Lubbock today and tomorrow. Here's hoping they will be successful as winners in the contests.

H. M. Anthony has bought out the interest of J. C. Powers in the grocery firm of Anthony & Powers.

Bud Miliken has purchased the house on east Porterfield street from A. M. Sullivan and will occupy same with his family as soon as Mr. Sullivan can give possession.

A NEWSPAPER POPULARITY.

One way to find out a newspaper's popularity in a community in which it is published is for the weeks edition to be late getting in the mails, or in other words, twenty-four to thirty six hours late.

Such was the case with the News last week, and numbers called at the office and inquired as to the cause they did not receive their paper. Many telephone calls were received also regarding the lateness of the sheet. All of these questions the force was more than glad to answer, for it shows the popularity of the home paper with a large majority of the readers. It is the earnest desire of the News management to issue each number promptly on time, and will do so where not providentially hindered, as was the case the past week.

Rev. Hood Vinson visited his son Henry, and daughter, Mrs. Jim Dyer, a few days this week.

South Plains Country is in Fine Condition

From Amarillo News:

J. M. Lybrand, Jr. has just returned from a business trip throughout the South plains, country, and reports conditions greatly improved, as compared to the prevailing state of affairs several months ago in that portion of Texas.

In both Tahoka and Lamesa Mr. Lybrand found the mercantile business good. In fact, he stated that some of the hardware and implement dealers complained of shortages of certain supplies in their lines. The farmers are busy with their preparation for the approaching season's row crops. They are buying liberally. Mr. Lybrand says, and the general tone is optimistic in the various lines of endeavors, in and out of town.

DARWINIAN THEORY

WE ARE reading a great deal these days about the Darwinian theory. The newspapers tell us that Kentucky, famed for its blue grass, its blooded horses, beautiful women and chivalrous men, is deep in the study of its involved perplexities.
All the way from school houses to the Kentucky senate, the question of man's relationship with monkey is being discussed with fervor.
The world is pricking up its ears, arching its eyebrows and looking askance upon the creatures, who, according to the Scriptures, were created in God's image.

Just how will all this controversy benefit you and me?
Will it make us better men and women, elevate our minds to a higher sphere and give us greater power for usefulness?
Power gravitates to those who can use it, not to the wavering nor the weak. It belongs to those who have faith, who believe as a child and accept biblical statements without question.
Who among the sons of men knows himself? Who by gazing in his or her looking-glass can see himself or herself? The body which encases self is all that can be seen, yet who doubts that self, the image of God exists?

Who questions the truthfulness of the Bible, the origin of man, or the omnipotence of Him who created the heaven and the earth?
Is it for the atom of dust to deny: "So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them."

Let us not get out of our way to seek the dark places, whose mysteries must forever baffle human understanding.
There is more joy in the sunshine, more happiness in useful effort, more pleasure in the acceptance of existence as it is, more delight in self-abnegation and in doing good to others, than in the painstaking avoidance of childish faith.
It is not for us to become crazed about frisky monkeys, nor for us to try to make monkeys of ourselves.
But it is for us to work, to think good thoughts, to put unbelief and doubt far behind us and make ourselves more worthy of the Infinite love, the only anchor which will hold secure in this life and in the life to come.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"PIN-MONEY"
DURING the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries pins were so extremely expensive that only the wealthy could afford them. By a curious law, the manufacturers of pins were permitted to sell them on only two days each year—January 1 and 2—and when those days came around the women whose husbands could afford the expenditure secured "pin-money" from them for their purchases.
While savages have, for ages, used thorns and splinters for the purpose of joining bits of hide or making garments of leaves, pins—as we know them today—did not come into use until the early part of the Fourteenth century. They were introduced into England in 1540 but it was not until 1824 that an American named Wright invented a machine for manufacturing pins very rapidly, and now more than 1,500 tons of iron and brass are annually converted into pins in the United States alone, a condition which renders entirely obsolete the original meaning of the phrase "pin money" which, however, still persists as a synonym for "an allowance given by a husband to a wife to cover her personal expenses."

TIME WASTERS

THE gentleman who comes into your office, when he knows you are busy, and sits down for a friendly little chat, must be got rid of.
If he is intelligent, you can get rid of him without hurting his feelings. If he is stupid, it will be necessary to hurt his feelings.
But get rid of him you must, whether his feelings are hurt or not.
Efficiency experts could figure, no doubt, that many thousands of working hours go to waste every year because busy people are too good natured to invite idlers to get out of their offices.
Most of the precautions taken by the "hard to get to" business men are not due to their haughtiness, but to their knowledge of the value of time.
If every small business man could surround himself with inner and outer guards, to keep pests from bothering him, he might soon cease to be a small business man, and become a big one.
In most offices the clerical force and the general employees are not to be seen during business hours. It requires a very intrusive person to get by the boys at the gate.
But the boss or the manager has always some friend he hates to offend who will drop in during business hours, and consume several dollars' worth of time without a blush.
The victim of these gentlemen would far rather they would come to his house uninvited, and consume his food uninvited, than to come uninvited to his office, and consume his most valuable commodity which is time.
It may be that you are one of those who will lean back in your chair and listen to business-hour visitors who bring no business to talk about, rather than ask them to call out of business hours. If you are, break yourself of the habit.

Don't depend on signs saying, "This is My Busy Day," or "Five Minutes is Long Enough for One Conversation." They never take those to themselves.
Tell them as kindly as you can that you are busy, and ask them to go. If they get offended, their friendship is not worth having.
And if you happen to be one of the time wasters—well, break yourself of the habit, before your feelings are hurt.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT

AS EGGS are more plentiful, the following good dish which is not new, but worth remembering, should be served often:
Lucanian Eggs.
Break macaroni in one-inch pieces and cook in boiling salted water until tender; drain and pour over a cupful of cold water. There should be a cupful of cooked macaroni. Grease a baking dish and put into it a layer of macaroni; cover with a layer of rich white sauce, prepared by cooking together two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of flour, and when well blended add one cupful of milk, seasoned with anchovy and onion juice. Add five hard-cooked eggs sliced, season highly with salt and cayenne cover with buttered cracker crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.
Potato With Sliced Mutton.
Make a mound of mashed potatoes on a platter; surround with slices of roast mutton that have been simmered in the gravy with onion juice, butter, jelly and minced parsley. Strain the gravy over the meat after laying it around the potato.
Stuffed Baked Potatoes.
Wash and bake three good-sized long potatoes; bake until done, then cut potatoes into halves lengthwise, scoop out the potato and put through a sieve.

Add to a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and the potatoes. Mix a cupful of chopped cooked meat, one tablespoonful each of chopped onion and green pepper. Season well with salt, butter and pepper, adding a little gravy if at hand. Fill the shells with the minced meat and pipe the seasoned potato around the edges.
Cauliflower in Batter.
Cook cauliflower until nearly done; drain, divide into small bunches; dip into a fritter batter and fry in deep fat. To make the batter use one beaten egg and one cupful of flour, one-half cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, and one tablespoonful of olive oil. Beat well and let stand in a cool place for an hour. Serve garnished with parsley.

Stuffed Raisins.
Select a large bunch of raisins, wipe and remove the seeds by making an incision in each. Insert a small ball of fondant or a small salted nut. Almonds are best. Use as a garnish for the top of a box of home-made candy.

WHO CONSTRUCTED THE FIRST AUTO?

It is a safe wager that not more than one in every five thousand people can answer the question as to who built the first automobile. The first automobile, shown in this old cut, was constructed by a Frenchman named Cugnot in 1763—just 159 years ago. It was then exhibited before the Marquis de Saxe and in 1769 Cugnot built an improved model at the expense of the French monarch. The motor consists of two single-action steam cylinders, alternately propelling the single front wheels. Owing to the small size of the boiler it was impossible to travel faster than four miles per hour or longer than fifteen minutes without stopping to get up steam. Though a crude machine, Cugnot's first car was ingenious in many respects and a creditable piece of work considering the times. After several successful experiments, which excited much interest, it overturned with a crash while rounding a corner at three miles per hour and was promptly locked up in the arsenal as a public menace. Cugnot's automobile is still to be seen in the Museum of the Conservatoire des Arts et Metiers in Paris and is a most interesting relic of early locomotion.

MUFFLER IS NOT WATCHED CLOSE

Cleaning Up Process Is Overlooked or Delayed Until Openings Become Clogged.

INCREASES USE OF GASOLINE

Very Important Part of Automobile Is Located Under Car and Out of Sight, and Is Rarely Given Attention Needed.

One of the parts of an automobile most neglected by many owners and drivers is the muffler. As a boy with a dirty face puts off the cleaning up process just as long as possible, so the motorist with a muffler that needs attention procrastinates and thinks perhaps he will fix it up tomorrow. And tomorrow never comes. But today is always here with its greater use of gasoline and various other complications that a dirty muffler causes.

The muffler is located under the car, and being out of sight is usually out of mind. It is therefore often neglected or misused. And yet it ought not to be. The muffler is placed on the end of the exhaust pipe of the engine so that the driver of an automobile while taking pleasure himself does not wholly deprive others of it.

Let us consider the use of the muffler. The exhaust valve opens while the burned gas is still under a pressure of from 25 to 30 pounds per square inch. If this were exhausted directly into the air the resulting noise would stifle conversation in the car, annoy everybody along the street and quickly get the driver into trouble with the police. The muffler prevents all this. It provides a chamber in which these exhaust gases may expand and cool somewhat and at the same time breaks up the pressure by allowing it to leak out slowly through a number of very small holes, instead of letting it loose in one "big noise."

The "Cut-Out" Valve.

In the early history of the automobile mufflers were not used and everybody for blocks around knew when an auto was coming. As the automobiles increased in number this became a nuisance and was stopped by law. Then they sought, indeed had been seeking, a means of stifling the sound. In the early muffler there was trouble because the gas would back up in the cylinder and decrease the power of the motor. It was thought there was no way to decrease the sound without decreasing the power; therefore the manufacturers devised a valve to "cut out" the muffler on the car whenever extra power was desired.

Sometimes the back pressure was so great as to interfere when driving through heavy roads or up hills. The "cut out" let the gas exhaust directly into the air instead of going through the muffler. At the present time nearly every city has a law prohibiting the use of "cut outs."

The average driver does not know that his muffler needs as careful attention as any other part of the mechanism, and so he neglects it. In these days of noiseless cars it requires a great number of very small holes inside muffler. These become clogged with soot or carbon from the exhaust. The deposit collects very rapidly, especially when the grade of oil used is poor or too much oil is used. It also results when the carburetor is adjusted to give too rich a mixture.

Openings Become Clogged.

When these small openings become clogged the exhaust gases cannot escape readily, and naturally the cylinder of the engine is not cleaned at the exhaust stroke. Result: It is impossible to bring in a full cylinder of new gas on the next intake stroke. There is not a full charge to explode, and this means a loss of power to the engine.

Cases are known where the throttle was opened wide without any increase in power. Trying to find out what the matter was, the driver opened the "cut out" and this caused the machine to accelerate very rapidly.

TEST REVEALS LARGE TIRE NOT DANGEROUS

Wide-Spread Belief of Peril Shown to Be Erroneous.

Big English Vehicle Run Over Sharp ended Spike Making Perfect Blow-Out, But No Damage Done Except to Tire.

One way to overcome a prejudice is to remove it. The introduction of the large size pneumatic tire for buses in England, was hedged in by many difficulties because of a wide-spread belief that the use of these tires was dangerous.

In case of a blow-out, men argued, the tremendous concussion of the escaping air would thrust the car off the roadway. The difference in height between the two sides of the car after one tire had been deflated would be so great as to threaten to overturn the vehicle, was another argument. Pedestrians standing near might be blown from their feet by the force of the escaping air from the tire, it was said. The driver, himself, might even be in danger, in case of a blow-out while the car was travelling at rapid speed.

To meet this situation, E. R. Preston, managing director of an English tire company, in co-operation with two of the leading motor journals of the country, devised a unique test. "We'll stage a blow-out of a tire while the car is in motion," said Preston, "You can go along and see what happens."

A narrow and rutty dirt road outside of London, was selected for the test. A heavy plank was imbedded in the roadway, fitted up with a big iron spike, sharpened to a razor edge and set so that it would strike the tire at an angle just outside of the tread. When all was set, a big bus, in which rode the representatives of the two motor journals, came flying down the road at 30 to 35 miles an hour speed. As the big sharpened spike struck the side of the tire it ripped a jagged hole through carcass and tube. It was a perfect blow-out. The tire was completely flat within 15 feet. But no damage had been done except to the tire itself.

The men riding the car felt only a very slight jolt as the car struck the impediment. Examination of the surface of the road immediately after, showed that there was no perceptible lurching of the truck from the road. The wheels carried through straight ahead. There was no relaxing of the car. Examination afterwards showed that one wheel stood about an inch and a quarter below the other as the result of the tire being deflated. The test has gone a long way toward correcting the erroneous impression as to the performance of these large tires in case of a blow-out.

RADIATOR FOR AUTOMOBILES

Invention of Brooklyn Man Adapted for Use in Cooling Any Circulating Liquid.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a radiator, the invention of A. Nebel of 794 Knickerbocker Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., says:

The invention relates to liquid cooling devices, and is particularly adapted for use as a radiator for automobiles, but may be used wherever it is desirable to cool a circulating liquid. Among the objects is to provide a radiator having its parts so constructed as to bring the circulating fluid in contact with a large exposed surface whereby the liquid may be effectively cooled, in a limited space.

ALL INTERESTED IN ZONING

Matter in Which Every Citizen and Property Owner is Concerned, for Many Reasons.

Zoning, which has proved advantageous for a number of American communities, notably, it is said, for the city of New York, has lately been proposed for other towns, large and small, of the United States. A constitutional movement, zoning seems to seek that equipoise of relations between the people and the state, between one group of citizens and another, and between one individual and another which the growth of industry has disturbed. Primarily a land question, zoning is declared to make for stability of investment value to owners, and stability of tax values to the town.

More intimately, as described in a pamphlet issued by the Cambridge (Mass.) planning board, Prof. William F. Harris, former chairman, zoning is a question of a man's right to be protected in the occupancy of the place where he lives or where he conducts his work. Particularly, it is a question of his being able to enter his premises without having to stumble over obstructions put in his way by neighboring proprietors, to breathe the air of his garden without annoyance from the fumes of mill chimneys, and to look out of the windows of his house without having unsightly objects imposed on his view.

SELECTING SITE FOR HOME

Prospective Builder Should Remember That Value of the Land Is Highly Important Point.

After it has been decided that a certain site meets the requirements reasonably as to location, the next consideration is that of cost. The cost of an article, whether it be real estate or merchandise, is relative. A piece of land, the price of which appears to be very fair for its location, may increase the cost of building to such an extent that it is in the end expensive, and had this been foreseen would have prevented its purchase. On the other hand, the reverse is often true; the natural characteristics may be such that the construction is facilitated, thus saving to a greater or lesser degree the excess on the initial cost of the land, writes Gordon Robb in the House Beautiful. It is difficult to estimate with any degree of accuracy just how much can be gained or lost, but the following rule is a good one to follow. It is a generally accepted theory that the cost of the land should be from 20 to 25 per cent of that of the house. The investment is safer when the land bears the higher proportion. It is comparatively easier to dispose of property and the banks will lend money more readily on a home-building project when the land has "value."

The City and Its Builders.

The picture once painted or the poem once sung, it stands henceforth by itself; the artist can do no more for it. It must live or die without further help from him. But the city is never thus entirely separated from us, its builders. It remains tied to us by the visible cord of nourishing passions. It grows with us or it dies with us. It is in a more real and personal sense a part of us, as we are of it. It becomes then the reflex of the lives and aspirations of the people who dwell in it. So that a city—its streets, its highways, its buildings, its public places, as well as its business and life—is an embodiment of ourselves. It is this living spirit that may hearten and inspire us; that may delight and enchant us, and that may also break and destroy us.—Temple Scott.

Select Shrubs.

Now is the time to select those shrubs that you are going to set out around the house and around the borders of the lawn in the spring. Just allow your imagination to work a little and remember how the premises looked last summer and how the appearance could be improved. Then get a nursery catalog and make your selection of plants.—Farm Life.

Fordville.

Henry Ford says he will build a city 75 miles long in the Muscle Shoals region. It will be a chain of small towns.

Ford is looking ahead 20 years, when factories will get out of the cities so that workers will not altogether lose that great joy of life—contact with the open country.

Size doesn't make a town. The best American city is the village.—Chicago Evening Post.

Chinese Tongues.

Chinese tongues are societies of many kinds. Some are composed of the men of a province, much like state societies; others are fraternal. In the early days of Chinese on the Pacific coast Chinese who were not members of strong families, or clans, organized a tong to protect themselves against the aggressions and impositions of the four families. Later there were many tongues and Chinese tongues were organized as easily and readily as any fraternal society of white men.

NOW DO MY WORK WITH EASE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N. Y.—"I was in bad health and there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as I would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. HARRIS, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N. Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

Putting it off today won't get it done tomorrow. An advertisement in the News today will bring business tomorrow.

Miss Annie Webb Blanton has announced that she is a candidate for Congress to fill the unexpired term of the late Lucian W. Parrish.

This is just a reminder that every subscription payment now due will be gladly received at this time. If every subscriber finding themselves in arrears would pay promptly, it would aid materially in the payment of our own accounts.

The Plains Agricultural Journal, published at Lubbock, with Curtis a Keen as editor and W. R. Griffith as advertising manager, issued their first number this month, containing 48 pages. Finance and farming, editorial comment, criticism and reviews, poultry and livestock, automotive, politics and opinions, farm bureau, bed time stories, community service, homekeepers department and other folks are among the departments carried.

A good newspaper is the one thing that a town cannot do without and grow. The growth of all towns is intimately bound up with the home paper. In order to have a good paper, the paper must be successful; the paper must have the co-operation of the people, and must have advertising. The money that the subscriber pays for his subscription just about pays for the white paper it takes to print his copy of the paper. Advertising alone will not enable the publishers in a small town to keep up a good paper; there must be some job printing on the side. And we want to say right here that any man who orders his job work done out of town is striking a blow at that town. Even if a man could save a little money on the individual job—which is seldom possible—there are too many ways that the home paper benefits a man for him to have an excuse for this sort of thing.—EX.

Mary Marie

By ELEANOR H. PORTER

SOME GIRLS

"Father calls me Mary. Mother calls me Marie. Everybody else calls me Mary Marie. The rest of my name is Anderson. I'm thirteen years old, and I'm a cross-current and a contradiction. Mary Marie is telling the truth, but not all the truth—she isn't doing herself justice. For she's also adorable; that's just what she is. The story she tells proves it. You see, her austere father and her playboy mother are divorced and Mary lives fifty-fifty with them. So with her father she's Mary and with her mother she's Marie. And although she's a delicious blend of seriousness and liveliness, of sense of duty and love of mischief."

While you're reading Mary Marie's story you're absorbed in its romance and love. After you get through you realize that you've read a powerful preachment on marriage and divorce—and real love. The author? Oh, yes—Eleanor H. Porter, the most popular American woman writer, author of Pollyanna, "Dawn" and a dozen other novels that have sold by the million.

PREFACE

Which Explains Things. Father calls me Mary. Mother calls me Marie. Everybody else calls me Mary Marie. The rest of my name is Anderson. I'm thirteen years old, and I'm a cross-current and a contradiction. That Sarah says I'm that. (Sarah is my nurse.) She says she read it once that the children of unlikes were always a cross-current and a contradiction. And my father and mother are unlikes, and I'm the children. That I'm going to be a bigger cross-current and contradiction than ever. I'm going to live half the time with Mother and the other half with Father. Mother will go to Boston to live, and Father will stay here—a divorcee, you know.

I'm terribly excited over it. None of the other girls have got a divorce in their families, and I always did like to be different. Besides, it ought to be awfully interesting, more so than just living along common, with your father and mother in the same house all the time—especially if it's been anything like my house with my father and mother in it! That's why I've decided to make a book of it—that is, it really will be a book only I shall have to call it a diary, on account of Father, you know. Won't it be funny when I don't have to do things on account of Father? And I won't, of course, the six months I'm living with Mother in Boston. But, oh, my!—the six months I'm living here with him—when? But, then, I can stand it. I may even like it—some. Anyhow, it'll be different. And that's something.

Well, about making this into a book. As I started to say, he wouldn't let me. I know he wouldn't. He says I'm a silly waste of time. If not completely wicked. But, a diary—oh, he loves diaries. He keeps one himself, and he told me it would be an excellent and instructive discipline for me to do it, too—set down the weather or what I did every day.

The weather and what I did every day. Indeed! Lovely reading that would make, wouldn't it? Like this: "The sun shines this morning. I got up, ate my breakfast, went to school, came home, ate my dinner, played one hour over to Carrie Heywood, studied another hour. Talked with Mother upstairs in her room about the sunset and the snow on the trees. Ate my supper. Was talked to by Father down in the library about improving myself and taking care not to be light-minded and frivolous. (He meant like Mother, only he didn't say it right out loud. You don't have to say some things right out in plain words, you know.) Then I went to bed."

Just as if I was going to write my novel like that! Not much I am. But I shall call it a diary. Oh, yes, I shall call it a diary—till I take it to be printed. Then I shall give it its true name—a novel. And I'm going to tell the printer that I've left it to him to make the spelling right, and put in all those tiresome little commas and periods and question marks that everybody seems to make such a fuss about. I'll write the story part, I can't be expected to be bothered with looking up words as they are spelled, every five minutes, or fussing over putting in a whole lot of foolish little dots and dashes.

But I mustn't tell that here. That's part of the story, and this is only the Preface. I'm going to begin it tomorrow—the real story—Chapter One. But, there—I mustn't call it a "chapter" out loud. Diaries don't have chapters, and this is a diary. I mustn't forget that it's a diary. But I can write it down as a chapter, for it's going to be a novel, after it's got done being a diary.

CHAPTER I
I Am Born
The sun was slowly setting in the west, casting golden beams of light into the somber old room. That's the way it ought to begin, I know, and I'd like to do it, but I can't. I'm beginning with my being born, of course, and Nurse Sarah says the sun wasn't shining at all. It was night and the stars were out. She remembers particularly about the stars, for Father was in the observatory, and couldn't be disturbed. (We never disturb Father when he's there, you know.) And so he didn't even know he had a daughter until the next morning when he came out to breakfast. And he was late to that, for he stopped to write down something he had found out about one of the consternations in the night.

He's always finding out something about those old stars just when we want him to pay attention to something else. And, oh, I forgot to say that I know it is "constellation" and not "consternation." But I used to call that when I was a little girl, and Mother said it was a good name for them, anyway, for they were a constellation for her all right. Oh, she said right off afterward that she didn't mean that, and that I must forget she said it. Mother's always saying that about things she says.

Well, as I was saying, Father didn't know until after breakfast that he had a little daughter. (We never tell him disturbing, exciting things just before meals.) And then Nurse told him. I asked what he said, and Nurse laughed and gave her funny little shrug to her shoulders. "Yes, what did he say, indeed?" she retorted. "He frowned, looked kind of dazed, then muttered: 'Well, well, upon my soul! Yes, to be sure!'"

Then he came in to see me. I don't know, of course, what he thought of me, but I guess he didn't think much of me, from what Nurse said. Of course I was very, very small, and I never yet saw a little bit of a baby that was pretty, or looked as if it was much account. So maybe you couldn't really blame him. Nurse said he looked at me, muttered, "Well, well, upon my soul!" again, and seemed really quite interested till they started to put me in his arms. Then he threw up both hands, backed off, and cried, "Oh, no, no, no!" He turned to Mother and hoped she was feeling pretty well, then he got out of the room just as quick as he could. And Nurse said that was the end of it, so far as paying any more attention to me was concerned for quite a while.

He was much more interested in his new star than he was in his new daughter. We were both born the same night, you see, and that star was lots more consequence than I was. But, then, that's Father all over. And that's one of the things, I think, that bothers Mother. I heard her say once to Father that she didn't see why, when there were so many, many stars, a paltry one or two more need to be made such a fuss about. And I don't, either.

But Father just groaned, and shook his head, and threw up his hands, and looked so tired. And that's all he said that's all he says lots of times. But it's enough. It's enough to make you feel so small and mean and insignificant as if you were just a little green worm crawling on the ground. Did you ever feel like a green worm crawling on the ground? It's not a pleasant feeling at all.

Well, now, about the name. Of course they had to begin to talk about naming me pretty soon; and Nurse said they did talk a lot. But they couldn't settle it. Nurse said that that was about the first thing that showed how testotally utterly they were going to disagree about things.

Mother wanted to call me Viola, after her mother, and Father wanted to call me Abigail Jane after his mother; and they wouldn't either one give in to the other. Mother was sick and nervous, and cried a lot those days, and she used to sob out that if they thought they were going to name her darling little baby that awful Abigail Jane, they were very much mistaken; that she would never give her consent to it—never. Then Father would say in his cold, stern way: "Very well, then, you needn't. But neither shall I give my consent to my daughter's being named that absurd Viola. The child is a human being—not a fiddle in an orchestra!"

And that's the way it went, Nurse said, until everybody was just about crazy. Then somebody suggested "Mary." And Father said, very well, they might call me Mary; and Mother said certainly, she would consent to Mary, only she should pronounce it Marie. And so it was settled. Father called me Mary, and Mother called me Marie. And right away everybody else began to call me Mary Marie. And that's the way it's been ever since.

"First I found out how they happened to marry—Father and Mother."

The New Cult Leader

By MARTHA MACWILLIAMS

Emotionally Elinor ran on high, but only emotionally. In behavior she was the proudest mannered young woman that ever scouted bold adventures or cut the throat of heavy presumption. It had passed into a proverb among the younger set that you could trust her always to face and down a difficult situation. Hence the dismay, tinged with disgust, when she fell—fell hard—for the traveling apostle of the most ridiculous among ridiculous new cults, one whose jargon was incomprehensible to folk of decent common sense—full of the Now, Up-forthings, Awareness and such.

What could be understood by a way-faring man was that the cult held it the whole duty of men, eke of woman, to give all the money in both pockets to the spreading of the mystic creed. There was the rub. Elinor had a tidy competence, one that might serve as the cornerstone to fortune, provided it—and herself—were but properly husbanded. The apostle apparently had elected himself to the improper husbanding of both.

Yet though The Larger Humanity was his favorite text, appeals however poignant to humanity, common or garden variety, found him as resistant as a duck's back to rain. But he had not quite succeeded in insulating Elinor from the electric current of pity for starving children. She was among the first to give a sum every-body knew she ought not to afford for famine relief. But no friend protested, not even her trusty some-time guardian, now her trustee—heartlessly all felt that what the famine relief was so much saved from apostolic greed.

To say that her largesses pleased the apostle, Lorenzo-Magna-Rey by name, is putting the case more than mildly. Deeply as he grudged and sorrowed for the money, he was worse disturbed to find himself not quite her absolute conscience. He dared not show that openly. Instead he said sorrowfully, haste in such giving was unwise.

She ought to have let some friend investigate for her—himself would have done it, failing anybody else. There Elinor broke in, her cheeks hot, her eyes shining with: "Starvation does not wait to be investigated. If I have saved even one poor baby, I shall be glad—and if the money does no good, giving it at least acquires my conscience—I have done what I could."

"A lovely thought!" murmured the doubly hysteric one, feeling that he had gone too far. "We hope you believe what you say, Bahawdur, Tommy Sanson said behind the apostolic presence, Tommy had spent two years in India—hence his cur name for the apostle. "Prove that you do believe," Tommy ran on: "Lots of folk are pining to see and hear you. If you'll let us—the relief committee, you know—we'll fix it so you can speak in the Town hall—at $5 a throw, and every cent to go to the famine fund."

"Impossible! Simply impossible!" protested the Bahawdur. "Why impossible?" Elinor cried tremulously. He answered pompously: "I dare not vulgarize anything so sacred as my mission. It, in a way, consecrates my poor human self—can I let myself become the target of curiosity?"

"You do it for your own benefit," Tommy flung in nonchalantly. "Be a sport, general—come across in this excellent cause. If you don't—well, something may happen—something you won't like one little bit."

"Tommy, there are limits to even friendly jesting," Elinor broke in with quiet dignity that made Tommy sigh more than ever to shield and save her. Sticking out his chin belligerently he flung back, "No jest; I'm in dead earnest. But there are jokes in business—very big ones. For example, income tax returns—some of 'em"—wheeling upon the apostle. "Say, Swami, have you put in yours? Remember, you can deduct what you contribute to charity. If you don't want to make a holy show of yourself you can likely save money and trouble by contributing enough to bring you down a peg or so."

"Income tax!" the new Swami scoffed. "Man, you know earthly laws do not touch me—" "If it weren't so impolite I'd say you were a liar," Tommy answered, his hands clinching. "And prove it into the bargain. But I don't yearn to make myself a nuisance. I repeat—be a sport—and come across, handsomely. You will, if you are wise as you should be."

Deliberately, without a word, the apostle turned his back, walked away; at the top of the steps he was almost running, nor did he slack speed until he was in his waiting car. It had been Elinor—a fine, small electric camera on plan of the eye.

The camera is nothing more or less than a huge model of the eye. Light passing through the lens of the eye is focused on the retina, which corresponds exactly to the ground-glass screen or the plate of the camera. Though the retina's chief use is to send an impression in the brain, it is capable of retaining an image for some time. Light has the same effect on it as on a photographic plate. To test the truth of this you have only to look for a moment at some brightly illuminated object, and then to cast the eyes up to the white ceiling; you will find that you see the image of the object for quite a long time.

Thought and Speech. The precise relation between speaking and thinking is a matter hard to define but it is clear that in a person's education the word and the idea are inseparable. When a child learns a new word he learns a new idea. When you enlarge his vocabulary you enlarge his mind. Few people would deny that clear thinking is the greatest aim in all education as well as the chief need in our civic and social life today.

GREAT LAWYERS' ERRORS. Like many other great lawyers, Lord Halsbury made his own will, and did not do it satisfactorily. Affidavits from the witnesses were required as to its execution and condition before it could be admitted to probate. The list of eminent lawyers who made a muddle of drawing their own wills is a long one. Lord St. Heller, who is Sir Francis Leue, was for many years President of the Probate Division of the High Court, left as a will

As it sped him away Tommy, breathing hard, said through clenched teeth: "Well, I wish you only knew how hard I'm thinking damn." Tommy left town that night on a mysterious errand to the city four hundred miles away. Elinor was uneasy over his absence—he had been for so long a part of her everyday consciousness even the apostle had not washed him from her life. The apostle was uneasy still, but masked it with deeper mysteries of doctrine, more savage devoutness in privations, greater length of devotions. After three days he told his neophyte needs must they both go into a silence—neither speak nor listen to any but inner voices for two days and nights. Full of unquiet wonder, Elinor obeyed through half the allotted time. But upon the second morning she saw so strange a group discharged by a big limousine at her door she could not refuse Tommy's insistent summons: "Come down and see what I've brought you."

"She found Tommy, her trustee, a strange uniformed person, plus the apostle, fronting her in the big hall. "Now you can explain, Swami," Tommy said, jauntily, "about those deposits in bank—and things—especially the last big check from Miss Gray." "This is an outrage, you should recognize I am beyond earthly law—" the apostle began, Tommy interrupted: "Old stuff! I told you it didn't go—not with Uncle Sam nor his family. Speak up! Tell us what you are in truth!"

"A fructifying bough of the over-soul," cried the apostle. "You—you earthlings cannot understand. Only she," turning imploringly to Elinor. "Let me speak with her alone. I can make her see the truth."

"We see it already," said the trustee. Tommy gave him a silencing glance, saying before Elinor could speak: "Seems to us earthlings, Swami, you're more than fructifying, and pretty much the whole tree of this over-soul. Judging by your bank account this last year or so—your drafts and things to headquarters—you're a fair understudy for old friend Midas. Most of your work has been fine—real artistry. Must be I scared you into undertaking anything so coarse as plain forgery, on the edge of running away."

The apostle made a break for liberty, but the uniformed one stayed his flight. Tommy and the trustee looked pityingly at Elinor—she was so white, so shaken, they feared she would faint. Instead she rallied gallantly and heard calmly their explanation. Tommy, by help of city friends, had found out the apostle's secretest transactions. He had decee'd many people—mostly rich and lone women—out of much money, transmitting it through safe yet secret channels to headquarters, whose indefinite purposes might well be set down bad. Fearing exposure, he had planned a great stroke—forged Elinor's name for more than all her fortune, depending on the silence that he got away with it. After that she could do no less than marry Tommy and live happily.

Narrow Minds. It is difficult for the good Christian to acknowledge the good Pagan; almost impossible for the good Orthodox to grasp the hand of the good Unitarian, leaving to their Creator to settle the matters in dispute; and giving their mutual efforts strongly and trustingly to whatever right thing is too evident to be mistaken. Then again, though the heart be large, yet the mind is often of such moderate dimensions as to be exclusively filled up with one idea. When a good man has long devoted himself to a particular kind of beneficence—to one species of reform—he is apt to become narrowed into the limits of the path wherein he treads, and to fancy there is no other good to be done on earth but that selfsame good to which he has put his hand, and in the very mode that best suits his own conceptions.—Nathaniel Hawthorne.

a document which transgressed most of the rules and requirements for a valid will, and Lord Grimthorpe left a series of testamentary documents which were the subject of litigation and whose intention it was impossible to ascertain. Two other great chancellors, Lord Brougham and Lord Lyndhurst, left unsatisfactory wills, while that of Lord St. Leonard's could never be found. Judge Renton and Judge Bacon were also among numerous others whose wills were not in order.—London Times.

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets To Round Out Face and Figure With Firm Flesh

If you are hollow-cheeked, sallow-skinned, sunken-chested and generally weak or run down and want to round out your face and figure to pleasing and normal proportions you will find this simple test well worth trying: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Mastin's VITAMON tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamins as well as the two other still more important vitamins (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C) lime salts. They will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but on the contrary are a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic under its purifying influence, the complexion becomes fresh and beautiful, the cheeks rosy instead of pale, the lips red instead of colorless, the eyes bright instead of dull. So rapid and amazing are the results that thousands of people everywhere are now taking it to them as a quick way to put on weight and increase energy. Be sure to remember the name Mastin's VITAMON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamin tablet—there is nothing else like it so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON at any drugist.

Miserable With Backache?

Why put up with that nagging backache? You can't be happy when every day brings morning lameness, sharp, shooting pains and that all-worst-out feeling. The best way to get well is to find the cause of your trouble and correct it. Likely, a cold or a chill has slowed up your kidneys and that is why you have backaches, stabbing pains, headaches and dizziness. Just take things easier and help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Texas Case. Mrs. T. A. Robinson, 28 W. Mulberry St., Denton, Texas, says: "My kidneys troubled me and my back ached. Sharp pains shot through my loins when I stooped and my suffering was intense. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and it wasn't long before they entirely relieved me of kidney complaint. I believe my cure is permanent."

Advertising

Here is a convincing proof that the local merchants who do live advertising thereby protect their field against inroads from the big mail order houses.

Herman Rosenfeld, advertising manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co., is quoted in the current number of the Fourth Estate as follows:

"We have a bureau whose duty it is to read each week the country newspaper from all over the country.

"There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory that our bureau does not get. This bureau looks over these papers and when we find a town where the merchants are not advertising in the local papers we immediately flood the territory with our literature. It always brings results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants are using the local papers"

ALL GENERAL WORK STRENGTHENED BY 75 MILLION CAMPAIGN, IT IS SHOWN.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

Bums That Have Been Appropriated To Various Objects Set Forth By Headquarters Office At Nashville, Tenn.

Dr. E. G. H. Baptist Representative in Europe, on Left, and P. V. Pavloff of All Russian Baptist Union.

From the beginning of the Baptist $5 Million Campaign to January, 1922, a total of $30,356,319.41 had been paid in to objects fostered by the Campaign, it is announced by the general headquarters office at Nashville. Of this amount $28,799,971.16 came in through the payment of regular Campaign subscriptions and the remaining $1,556,348.25 in special contributions.

Regular receipts from the various states follow: Ala., $1,301,134.76; Ark., $714,683.09; D. of C., $123,280.01; Fla., $469,753.53; Ga., $3,000,174.10; Ill., $298,676.13; Ky., $3,187,656.15; La., $807,991.13; Md., $392,517.46; Miss., $1,249,846.50; Mo., $1,190,754.70; N. M., $145,229.97; N. C., $2,311,741.50; Okla., $940,562.65; S. C., $2,633,840.53; Tenn., $1,797,483.10; Tex., $5,162,658.85; Va., $3,279,985. More than 250,000 baptisms were reported by Southern Baptist churches last year.

How Money Was Distributed

Seven general objects of the denomination were embraced in the Campaign program, and from the regular Campaign contributions those objects have received the following amounts, according to a compilation by the headquarters office: Foreign missions, $6,434,012.53; home missions, $3,562,600.67; state missions in the seventeen states and local work in the District of Columbia, $4,554,813.25; Christian education, $7,192,442.79; Baptist hospitals, $2,094,099.16; orphanages, $2,103,787.33; and Relief and Annuity Board, which ministers to aged dependent ministers and their families, $799,126.99.

What Money Has Done

These funds represent an advance, ranging from 200 to 300 per cent, in the contributions of Southern Baptists to their general missionary, educational and benevolent work, prior to the inauguration of the Campaign, and have enabled the boards and other agencies to greatly extend their services in all departments. In addition to sending out more than 150 new missionaries since the Campaign began, and providing many church buildings, mission residences, schools, theological seminaries, publishing houses, hospitals and the like on the older fields the Foreign Mission Board has been enabled to open work in the new fields of Spain, Jug-Slavia, Hungary, Rumania and Southern Russia in Europe, and Palestine, Syria and Siberia in Asia, and Dr. Everett Gill, for many years a missionary in Italy, but more recently a pastor in Kansas City, has been named special European representative to supervise the greatly expanded work on that continent. Dr. Gill is giving much of his time to distributing Baptist relief funds in Russia and otherwise looking after the interests of the denomination there.

Home Work Enlarged

Among the outstanding accomplishments of the Home Mission Board are the aiding of more than 1,000 churches with loans and gifts for church buildings, completion of the big tuberculosis sanatorium at El Paso, enlargement of the work in Cuba and the Canal Zone, strengthening of the 37 mountain mission schools and the development of all eleven departments of the work of the Board. In all seventeen states of the Southern Baptist Convention the state mission work has been greatly extended, the number of Baptist hospitals in the South has been increased from eleven to twenty-three, all of the older eighteen Baptist orphanages have been aided in material ways and two new ones have been established, while the number of aged dependent ministers and their families has been doubled and the amount of aid given them increased 100 per cent.

Collections Are Pushed

While the collections so far represent a big gain over the contributions of Southern Baptists to their work before the Campaign, the sum collected is not all that is due and in all the South an effort is being made to collect as much more as possible by the close of the Convention year, May 1, that none of the work may suffer.
