THE SOCIALISTIC PARTIES.

Persons holding Socialistic views represented by a national political party are represented by two parties, the Socialist and the Socialist Labor party.

What does the Socialist party stand for? Its platform for 1904 the party said: "Socialism means that things upon which the people in common depend shall be commonly owned and administered. It means that the tools of production shall belong to their creators and users; that all production shall be for the direct use of the producers; that the making of profit shall come to an end; that we shall all be workers and that all opportunities shall be open and equal to all. The Socialist party stands for shorter working hours, higher wages, graduated income and inheritance tax, public ownership of public utilities, complete education of children and their freedom from labor for every gain or advantage for the workers that may be obtained from the capitalist system and that may relieve the suffering and strengthen the hands of labor."

Who was the first Socialist candidate for president? Eugene V. Debs of Indiana, who in 1904 received 402,283 votes. Mr. Debs ran on what was called the Social Democratic ticket, receiving 87,814 votes.

When did the Socialist Labor party first appear in national politics? In 1892, when Simon Wing was nominated for president, receiving 64,000 votes. The Socialist Labor party has not grown appreciably since 1899 a large majority of its members seceded, uniting with the Social Democracy founded by Debs and thus forming the straight Socialist party.

Viewing the Plains in an Auto.

Thru Randall, Swisher, Hale, Lubbock, Lynn, Garza, Scurry, Fisher, Jones and Part of Haskell Counties.

By J. C. HENY.

On Tuesday, March the 24 ult. at 1:45, I took a seat in Messrs. Hall and Abbotts' auto for a trip over the south plains and east to Haskell, Texas. The party consisted of J. H. Hall, G. L. Abbott, C. C. Doniphan and myself. We halted out 12 miles from Canyon City 45 minutes to mend a punctured tire and passed through Tulia about 2:30 without stopping to say hello, and onward toward the capital of Hale county we sped arriving at Plainview at about 4:30. We stopped there about an hour, and then started on our journey for Lubbock where we intended to stay over night but again stopped to mend a wheel for 45 minutes and dark came on and we stopped at a farm house just 25 miles this side of Lubbock where we found a typical Texan with a nice six room new house, plenty of cattle, horse land, a fine peach orchard and looks like he is doing something.

Early Wednesday morning of the 25, we left this farm house for Lubbock, arriving there after an hour and a half ride. We found Lubbock a pretty little place, still improving and a happy and contented people. We stayed there about 30 minutes and then made a 30 mile drive to Tahoka, the capital of Lynn county. This is a pretty little new town and the country is settling up too. They raise cattle and cotton mostly down there and Tahoka some day will be a great town. It is situated right for a good town. We had a fine dinner there of vegetable, meats, pies and sweet things and fair water. Here we made our first turn for the east. We left Tahoka at 4:30 and took a southerly course and went out of the county at its south east corner and onward we went bounding over the vast mesquite country with here and there a farm house, and now and then a prairie dog town with much wire fencing. We were trying to make Snyder that night which we did. But at about 5 o'clock we came to a nice little new village called Fluvana and just over east of this place about half a mile and of the same size, is an older village called Light, Texas. Fluvana seemed to have the best show for a railroad for they are like all people living in expectancy, expecting that ere long the railroad that is now building into Snyder will push into Fluvana and there stop for awhile. A pretty country this. Leaving these two villages, we started on our way to Snyder arriving there a little after dark, making the trip of 225 miles in about one and a quarter hours ride also we stopped twice on the road to mend a punctured tire. Snyder is a good inland town and the country is settling up fast. Here we stayed all night and on the next (Thursday) morning we started for Rotan, 35 miles away, where we arrived at 11:30 and took dinner. We found our old Canyon City friend J. H. Finson domiciled here, hale and hearty and doing well. Rotan is a fine little place, but is about grown for the present. We rested here for a half day making some improvements in the running gear of the auto and next morning, Friday, left there bright and early for Hamlin, the next town. This is a new and beautiful town but is at present on a standstill. On we went entering Jones county, we had an excellent run to Stamford reaching there at noon. We ate dinner then went north 18 miles to Haskell City arriving there at 2 o'clock. Here we found another good town which is still building up.

On this trip we passed thru the counties of Swisher, Hale, Lubbock, Lynn, Scurry, Fisher and Jones and parts of Randall, Garza and Haskell. I would judge that the population of the county seats touched is—Canyon City, 2,000; Tulia, 1,200; Plainview, 2,500; Lubbock, 1,500; Tahoka, 800; Snyder, 1,500; Haskell, 5,000. The other towns, Fluvana, 200; Light, 200; Rotan, 1,200; Hamlin, 3,000; and Stamford, 4,000.

During the whole 315 miles, I am sure we were at no time out of sight of a farm house. The country is settling up. It is fine too. We did not encounter but about three quarters of a mile of sandy road during the whole trip. We saw thousands of head of cattle and most of them were Herefords. Nearly all the way the barbed wire was to be seen and new farm houses and new roads were much in evidence. The first mesquite trees we saw were in Lubbock county and from there on we had more or less mesquite.

Just before we went off the Cap Rock, we saw in the distance that majestic wall of rock with its cascades and perpendicular descent. It is a wonderful and grand picture. "Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies," says the Psalmist, but here is a great table—the plains, prepared in the presence of many who are delighted to say with the Psalmist but a little different phraseology: "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death." We who are on the plains can say yea, though I walk not through the valley but on the great Llano Estacado, the most healthful, the prettiest and the finest section of country in the world. We have the best soil, water and people on earth and some day will outstrip all other sections in the way of fine cities and farming country. But how many it will take to settle up this vast country? How many are there who need to come? These in crowded sections of other states can find here a country equal if not superior to their own, where they can get from 2 to 25 here for one of theirs and will take it all in all, pay them a greater dividend on money invested, 2 to 1, than on higher priced land. I wish I had time and space to give you my impressions gathered during this trip of the future of this country. I must say in closing that the trip was one I much enjoyed, saw a great country, all fine but I never found any water on the trip equal to that of Canyon City. If I can have time and opportunity, will next week give you readers my idea of the future greatness of this country.—Canyon City News.

To My Friends:

I have decided to withdraw from the race for County Treasurer of Lynn county. After reconsidering the time the people would expect me to devote to this office and the small remuneration thereof, I feel very grateful to the many who have given me words of encouragement and assurance of election. In announcing my withdrawal I commend to your hearty support my friend Mr. McMill Clayton. As all who know Mr. Clayton are aware that he is not physically able to make a living by manual labor, and as I feel that he is more deserving to the office than myself, and having had considerable dealings with him I know him to be well qualified to discharge the duties of the office to the satisfaction of the people, and I am sure that you will not regret supporting him. Thanking you all for the words of encouragement and support, I am still, Your Friend, C. G. Alford.

 The weather man accepted our invitation of last week and made good with a splendid rain Friday, which has given our people hopes and greater confidence for good crops this year, and since which Edith's dreary Lenten season has passed away and the Easter-tide of prosperity (in prospect) has dawned as lovely and bright as the aurora of a June morning.

Mrs. McIntyre was out from town the latter part of last week selecting a site for their residence building soon to be erected.

Joe Elliott attired himself in his "glad rags" Friday and went to Tahoka to attend to some business.

Frank and Alex Vaughn were in town the latter part of last week meeting their friends and taking a casual "squint" at the political barometer.

Jesse Harrison and family, who reside southeast of town, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Jesse's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Harrison.

Bob Majors and wife Sundayed with Mr. and Mrs. Sid Sanders.

O. C. Stanbro made a business call at the county metropolis Monday.

Mr. Hickson was in Tahoka Friday on a business mission.

The editor of the News took a complimentary shot at PAT editorially in last week's issue and as a consequence we have been "muchly" puffed up since. No matter how undeserving the recipient, beautiful bouquets are always appreciated, and this one was a basket full of the rare, cut kind wrapped up in just a few lines of print. The editor is undoubtedly acquainted with the weakness of PAT's timidity so we will ask you to be considerate enough not to look us "square in the eye" while we awkwardly and blushing mumble "thankee."

This community presents a busy scene to even the casual observer since the rain of last week. Seed planting has opened up in earnest and every farmer has joined the busy club. There will be a large acreage of cotton as well as feed stuff planted here this year, and farmers are on the alert to get their crops planted as early as possible.

Chas. Brown and Boleman Wells of Tahoka were rusticated in Edith community Sunday and enjoying the hospitality of Charlie's father's home T. A. Brown.

G. W. Reed came out from town Saturday to see after business matters at his farm.

Mrs. O. C. Stanbro visited with Mrs. T. A. Brown Sunday afternoon.

 An Educational Rally is to be held at the T. J. F. Tank, Tuesday, April 21.

The purpose of this meeting is to arouse the people to a better educational sentiment, to have discussed before the voters of Dawson Borden and Lynn counties the purposes and necessities of the School Tax Amendment, and to allow the candidates of the three above named counties to circulate with and among us. Judge Yellott of Borden county, Judge M. C. Lindsey of Dawson county, and Judge T. M. Partley of Lynn county are invited to address us, besides others. Teachers, trustees and all who can, come and bring well filled baskets. Lunch will be served at high noon.

Mr. Dyer had the misfortune to have his house blown down Thursday and quite a lot of other damage done; the barn was also considerably wrecked. Fortunately no one was hurt. A very heavy rain amounting almost to a water-spout fell during the wind. Mr. Curtis, who is building a line to Lynn, phoned us about the disaster at Mr. Dyer's.

Mrs. Shattuck and Mrs. Cowan spent Tuesday afternoon with ye editor. We enjoyed their visit very much.

Mr. Howell came in last Sunday from New Mexico, where he has taken up land. He expects to move the family to the new home before long. We certainly regret their decision to leave Tahoka.

Full line of horse collars, hames, back bands and tugs for sale in full sets or separate at B. H. Black & Son's.

The Woodmen Circle entertained Wednesday evening, the occasion being the closing of their charter. A very nice program was prepared and rendered by the members. The ladies served a delicious fruit supper which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The Misses Shattuck were surprised by a few friends Tuesday evening. The Misses Henderson and Miss Eddie Dellis were among those present. A very pleasant time is reported.

Courtney Melard's sister died at Amarillo last Saturday morning and Mr. Mellard left for Plainview immediately after receiving the telephone message. He hoped to catch the 7 o'clock train north Monday morning.

Misses Grace Leedy and Linnie Cowan accompanied their music teacher, Mrs. Donaldson, to her in the country last Friday afternoon. They returned Tuesday and reported a splendid time.

A box supper was given at the Morgan school house last Saturday for the purpose of raising money to purchase an organ. Messrs. McDaniel, Whipp, Moore, Milliken, Bigham, and Misses Pearl McDaniel, Linnie, Lela and Nita Bigham and Cleo McGonagill attended from Tahoka. A fine supper was enjoyed by the participants; the boxes brought $40.50. Mr. Moore donated one of his famous tidies which sold for $4.25 making a total of $44.55. Mr. Lewis Milliken purchased the tidy and presented it to Miss Pillely.

Lost—Some where on King street in front of the News office or on Porterfield street down by the Baptist church, an old-gold brooch engraved with the letters H. M. Finder please deliver at this office.

The Canton No. 12 Planter

The only Cotton Planter made where the hitch remains the same relative position whether plowing deeper or shallower, avoiding all neck weight, which is accomplished by the small lever on the end of the tongue. The only planter made which throws the lead mechanism automatically out of gear without separating the gear wheels, avoiding all liability of breaking the teeth in the gears. These and other excellent features, protected by patents, can be found only on the P. & O. Canton Planter.

The bottom always remains at the same angle whether set deeper or shallower. This angle can be instantly changed by the lever on the tongue. Has detachable hopper with the plates and agitator moving in opposite directions, preventing the seed from bouncing. The finest Cotton and Corn Planter made.

Our Motto, The Best.

Can be easily changed from a Cotton to a Corn Planter, or it can be converted into a first-class Middle Breaker.
 Strong, simple, easy running.

TAHOKA, TEXAS.

"If we set the mainsail we might bear up a bit."
 "Try it."
 "Huh!" said Mr. Boyle, and he was off again into the spiridiff.
 He understood that the sails carried by a big vessel like the Kansas are of little practical value under certain conditions of wind and sea, when they are rigged to steady her and thus give help to helm and propeller. Still, they might serve now to carry the ship a point or two toward the north, and this was the sole avenue of escape which remained.
 Leaving the chart on the table, where it was secured by drawing pins, Courtenay went back to his cabin to obtain a pair of overboots. Seizing the pillow on his bed and shivering, unable to induce in a comfortable bed, because the taste of salt water was intolerant, he hunted for a padded mackintosh coat which he had procured for the dog's protection in cold latitudes. He rustled two lockers before he found it. Several articles were tumbled in a heap on the floor in his haste, and he did not trouble to pick them up again. He buckled the coat on, fastened his own oilskins and re-joined the second officer on the bridge. A glance showed him the dark wall of the mainsail rising stiff after the funnel. The quartermaster at the wheel, having recovered his wits, was keeping the ship's nose up to the wind by a steady pressure to port. The gale was as fierce as ever. The second officer shouted in Courtenay's ear:
 "I am afraid, sir, the wind has shifted a point."
 Courtenay looked at the compass. The ship was bearing exactly north-east. He had hoped that the sails would enable her to shape due north at least. Unquestionably some spiteful fiend was urging her headlong to ruin. Had the wind but veered as much to the south he might have chanced the run through the narrow strait or even weathered Duke of York Island. He decided to his junior, whose presence on the bridge was a mere matter of form owing to the powerless condition of the ship and the impenetrable wrack of foam and mist that barred vision ahead and strewn off on a tour of inspection. As wind and sea were now heaving more directly on the port side, there was some chance of shelter along the covered deck to starboard. He found that two boats had been cleared off their lamp; and lowered on the davits until they could be saved in on the promenade deck. The men were thus able to provision them more easily than in their exposed berths on the spar deck. He watched the workers for a few minutes, showed them how to stow and lash some biscuit, this most securely, and continued his survey, meaning to look in on Walker and the doctor.

Southwest Corner, Tahoka

He had to pass the cabin set apart for the two girls. The ports were lighted, and through the window he could see some one peering out at the davits, too the thickness of the glass and its blurred condition he could tell whether the occupant was Elsie, Isabel or Isabel's maid; but when it was a hand seemed to signal to him to open the door.

He unfastened the bolts and half-opened the door slightly ajar. Joy, ever eager to be out of the peeling stowage, stepped inside, and Courtenay, his Elsie's exclamation:

"Good gracious, Joy! Where is your life belt?"

"Do you want anything?" asked Courtenay through the chink.

Elsie smiled at him. She was well packed in a heavy ulster and had a tannish sash tied firmly on her head by stout twill.

"Mr. Malcolm thought we had better bring life belts from our cabins, come for mine, and I looked out to save you. I wanted to ask you what had become of Dr. Christink. Has he you don't mind?"

"Not in the least. I am just going to him. Would you care to come?"

"Oh, I shall be most pleased."

"He is attending the injured man you know, and there are others who are beyond his help."

"Perhaps I may be of some use."

"Come, then. When I open the steps out quickly and hold tight to rail, and don't move until I tell you."

His manner was curt enough, please the superiority of a man. Elsie was averted instantly by glimpse she obtained of the sky within the narrow area of the light, but she obeyed directions presently found herself clinging obediently to the brass hand rail which ran breast high along the outer edge of her cabin. Then she felt an arm her tightly around the waist, and heard a voice, which sounded as if had traveled down a long corridor, shouting in her ear:

"Lean well back and trust to let go."

She had no idea that wind blow like that, especially when ship was going in the same direction. It shrieked and whistled and in the canvas side awnings with a noise that threatened to rip from their stays. Courtenay had given to his left side, and then something massing in the air, she had a dim notion of what was not so much her quite so as by until she passed a quite a long look to the port side, between the
