Inflation

The democrats are easing closer every day to the big public works method of inflation. That was the motive in the choice of witnesses called for next Monday in the Harrison economic investigation.

The boys who will do things after March 4 are beginning to see how they might work it out. The only real objection has been that such a large bond issue would ruin government credit with the bankers.

The idea is only in its basic stage. Recent experiences with building programs has led politicians to be wary. The Federal public building program has been less than half success expected.

The chief thing in favor of it is that it will stop any tampering with the currency. A majority congress program of expansion.

The conservatives probably will insist the new building be restricted to productive enterprises. The Tennessee Valley thing would be expected to pay for itself.

In that way the budget could be balanced on paper without considering the new bond issue plan. All so financial confidence in the government would be stimulated by stricter economies.

Debits

A fundamental change in war debt sentiment has been quietly wrought here since the opening of congress.

Dr. Mayo Says New Outlook For Medical Research Is In Field Of Unconscious Nervous System

EL PASO—Dr. William J. Mayo, Rochester, Minn., famous surgeon, stopped here recently enroute to Arizona.

The new outlook for medical research is in the field of the unconscious nervous system, Dr. Mayo said. Workers are turning to an examination of heart and vascular system diseases, he said. They have passed cancer in the death rate.

"The changes due to advanced age are drawing attention," Dr. Mayo explained. "As great deal has been finished in regard to bacteria and disease research. Chemicals have been substituted for the old remedies to make them more powerful and effective.

"Only 25 per cent of the body's energy is under conscious control," Dr. Mayo said. "The rest of our energy works in spite of us. We have been so interested in the portion we could control that it has been comparatively recent that study has been directed to this portion of the nervous system which controls the unconscious expenditure of energy."

He pointed out that one of the peculiar diseases caused by uncontrolled energy is Burger's disease—a continuous pain in the feet and legs, most usually found in excessive smokers.

Talks About Depression
The depression's health prospects are none too good, he said. He believes that people are deferring the obtaining of medical treatment.

"Whether we are better off, I don't know," he said.

A doctor is not interested in being a medical merchant for hire, Dr. Mayo believes.

"He's too independent, and doesn't care to punch a time clock," Dr. Mayo said. "I don't believe that a municipal physician, or the guild system for employment of physicians and surgeons will ever work out. However, there should be some provision made for support of hospitals."

There are too many doctors, Dr. Mayo believes, as well as over-crowding in other professions.

"If a man goes into medicine with the idea of making more than a living and accumulating a little life insurance he's made a mistake," Mayo said.

Vice Clean-Up In Juarez Ordered
EL PASO—A "clean-up" of vice conditions in Juarez has been ordered by President Abelardo L. Rodriguez, of Mexico, Brig. Gen. Ignacio Flores Farias, garrison commander, said yesterday.

"The president and minister of war, as well as other officials, are anxious to make Juarez a clean, attractive city for tourists, and instructed me to give every facility and protection for visiting Americans," said General Flores Farias.

He said he would co-operate with city and state officials in a clean-up campaign designed to make Juarez "the model city of the border."

"Though a moral less legalized zone of tolerance has been permitted there in recent years, the border point has been an innocent place compared to what it was 15 years ago, authorities agree.

J. L. Goodman Dean Of Representatives

By CHARLES E. SIMONS
AUSTIN, (UP)—Rep. J. L. Goodman of Franklin is the dean of the House of Representatives of the Texas legislature.

Goodman started his service with the 22nd legislature in 1881 and 1921. His return to the 43rd legislature marked his fifth election to a seat in the lower House.

He was re-elected in 1906 and 1908 and then dropped out of the state political picture for 22 years. He ran again for state representative in 1930 and was elected to the 42nd legislature. Goodman was returned to the 43rd legislature and played a prominent part in organizing the House.

Goodman was elected representative each time he campaigned for the office. Since he started his political career back in the '90's he has been defeated only once in a political race and that was when he sought election to a third consecutive term as county judge.

The veteran representative is 80 years old, but his activity belies his four-score years. He has taken over the arduous duties of chairman of the House judiciary committee, one of the most important in the legislature. Goodman is the oldest man in either branch.

There are three members of the House between 70 and 80 years of age. The next oldest to Goodman is F. C. Weinert of Seguin, who is 75.

Others who have been more than three score and ten years are Rev. J. H. Fisher of Newcastle and J. S. Magee of Tyler. Fisher is 71 and Magee 74.

A total of 21 House members are more than 60 years old while 13 are 25 years old or under. There are 21 members 30 or under and 23 who are 35 years old or less.

The remaining 72 members are between 35 and 60 years old.

Two members of the House have seen service in the state senate, although it is unusual for one who has served in the senate to come back to the House. The reverse usually is true, a large portion of the senate having served in the lower House.

The two representatives who have served as senators are Weinert and T. H. McGregor of Austin.

Mrs. Louise Snow Phinney, chief clerk of the House, perhaps doesn't know it, but she took the oath of office to serve as a member of the 43rd legislature.

The chief clerk is charged with administering the oath to the members of the House. She instructed them to repeat the oath after her, using their own names instead of hers where the obligation reads: "I, John Doe, do hereby."

Mrs. Phinney began: "I, Louise Snow Phinney," and the members followed, several repeating Mrs. Phinney's name instead of their own.

Those who repeated Mrs. Phinney's name were mostly new members.

In performing the office Mrs. Phinney dispelled a notion that had gotten abroad as to who administered the oath to the House membership. It had been believed it was the custom for the secretary of state to swear in the members, but the constitution gives this duty to the chief clerk of the House.

The woman chief clerk has shown herself to be a successful campaigner. She took over the chief clerkship in the 40th legislature when Carl Phinney, later her husband, relinquished it. She has been elected chief clerk of the 41st, 42nd and 43rd. In the last campaign she received 123 of the 150 votes, whereupon her election was made unanimous.

Some new members of the House and there are 84 of them have not been in harmony with some of the older hands in advocating aid in drafting proposed legislation. The proposal was made on the theory that it would be helpful to the first termers. But during debate on the proposal one of the legislative neophytes stated that the "new members could take care of themselves" and didn't appreciate so much solicitude.

SPOTLIGHT

CHAPTER XXVII

Jappy shut the door of the dressing room behind her. "So help me, Sheila," she exclaimed, "I believe you're in love!"

Cold cream jar suspended in mid-air. Sheila stopped short in her preparations to unfasten her strap pumps. She was late by recognized standards but, being Jappy, she would probably reach the wings a good four minutes ahead of Sheila.

"That's what I said—in love! I've spoken to you twice and you haven't answered. And speaking of love, who was the Romeo you were with last night? And the night before? And today at lunch?"

Sheila rose from the dressing table, fastened her hair and slipped off her kimono and drew her costume over her head.

"You'll be late," she warned the other girl.

"I'll make it. Just saw McKee getting in."

"McKee doesn't open the show. I'll be on time." Jappy faced the mirror, spreading cold cream expertly, rapidly. A dusting of powder rove blue lines about the eyes. "What's his name Sheila? You're beginning to worry me? In the mirror, without seeming to know, she eyed her friend sharply.

"To bad we're leaving tonight," Jappy went on.

"I'm not going to leave. I'm staying over. I'll make the jump Monday morning. There's a train."

"Oh! The money! Sheila was expensive. Sheila usually liked to spend the show in the town where the show played on Monday resting shampooing, going over her wardrobe, doing her mending. To remain behind for Sunday a dreary day among strangers, meant just one thing. Sheila must be very much in love.

"Who is he?" Jappy asked finally.

"I can at least wish you luck." Sheila told her his name was Jerry Wynan. Just a nice boy who worked in a factory. He had shown her the little houses where employees lived. Little houses with tiny lawns and gardens ironing boards that went back into the wall, showers, electric refrigerators, every convenience.

"Did you discuss rents?" Jappy wanted to know.

"Doris Haynes married that automobile salesman we met in Carrville," Sheila said irrelevantly.

"And Grace Gordon married a cotton millionaire. But you notice

she's back on Broadway."

"The stage was all Grace cared about," Sheila protested. "Five minutes!" droned the caller and for four of them conversation was suspended. In the flurry of excitement Jappy's shoes could not be found until she located them in the cretonne pocket of the dressing chair.

As Sheila waited in the wings she thought happily of Jerry. Yes, she was in love with him. She remained in Spencer until Monday. Jappy bade her goodby with warnings not to take the country too seriously. She was joking but with that sort of gallery which veils deeper meanings.

Sheila and Jerry had planned a picnic for Sunday. They would start a little late for picnics but early. Jerry said, for stage people, the insignificant car he drove with the family. Sunday dinner was a family rite, too, but he said he could escape that. "Just this once," he told Sheila.

He had not told her much about his family. She guessed, in spite of the insignificant car he drove, that his family was important. She guessed that there were other cars but that this one was Jerry's to do with as he pleased.

Sheila ordered lunch for two packed in the hotel. The head waiter raised his eyebrows as she ordered and promised to see that everything was as it should be. It would have surprised Sheila to know that the head waiter was aware who was to accompany her on that picnic, just as he and half the hotel staff were aware what kept Sheila in Spencer over the week-end.

By 1 o'clock she and Jerry had parked the roadster and were seated by a brook far from town. Oh, yes, Sheila was in love with Jerry. She liked the way he moved as he leffly laid out the lunch and broiled the steak which he had added to the feast. Sheila understood that his acquaintance with woodland picnics exceeded her own.

He laughed when she tried to balance her plate on her lap, brought her water in a paper cup to serve as a finger bowl, dried her hands on his huge handkerchief and then abruptly swung himself beside her. As abruptly he kissed her.

"Do you love me?" he whispered.

Two bees were circling about the remains of the cake and Sheila fastened her eyes on the abandoned improvised table.

"You know I do."

"Sure!" His teasing blue eyes held hers now.

"I'm sure—but what will your family say?"

"What can they say, darling? Even so he kissed her again

Sheila felt a little coldness about her heart. He had evaded the question. All that week he had evaded any reference to his family. She did not know anything at all about them. To be sure his manner, his clothes were impeccable but that told little. She recalled some of the leading men she had known in the theater. Occasionally one saw a humble father, an overworked little mother, with confusion and pride blending in their faces as they watched their handsome son.

Sheila was an aristocrat in her own sphere but it did not matter to her from what stratum in society Jerry came. She loved him and that was enough.

He had said, "What can they say, darling?" Later he said, "They don't need to know." She was inexpressibly hurt at that. Jerry had implied that his family would look down on her because she earned her living on the stage. It was not that he had said those words. Had he put it bluntly it might have been easier to bear.

"But," she faltered, "they'll have to know some time, won't they?"

"Please, Sheila—why should we bother about my family? Let's just think about us."

There he was evading questions again. It did seem as if he would want to tell her about himself just as she had told him about herself.

"You've never mentioned a brother," he pointed out once when she was talking of rehearsal. Ma Lowell's rooming house, her father and mother, her early life.

"I've never had a beau."

"What Sheila wanted to say was, 'I've never been in love before,' but she did not say it. Somehow it did not seem quite the admission to make.

At dusk he brought her back to the hotel. This disappointed her. He had originally planned that they should dine together some where and ride through the moonlight, arriving back in town much later.

"I'd like to but I'm tied up at home," was his apology.

"But I'll see you again?" Sheila spoke timidly. For answer Jerry tilted her head back, holding his finger tip to her chin, gazed mischievously into her eyes and kissed her.

"Surest thing you know. I'll phone you about noon."

He did not phone about noon.

Utility Plan Is Proposed

Higher Load Limit For Trucks Purpose Of New Bill

AUSTIN (UP)—A bill to give the Texas railroad commission authority to regulate electric power and the telephone and telegraph companies and their rates was introduced in the Texas house of representatives by Representative Otis Dumagan of Big Sandy.

The bill also would increase the powers of the commission in regulating gas companies and the commission would be directed to prevent discrimination between cities and towns.

Cities would have the right to fix rates which could be appealed to the railroad commission if the utility was not satisfied. Appeals from the orders of the railroad commission would be taken to the district court.

A tax of one-fourth of the gross income of the companies regulated would be levied to defray expenses of the commission.

Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi sponsored a bill to abolish the state board of control and establish in its stead a central state purchasing agency.

A bill to increase the load limit of trucks from 7,000 to 10,000 pounds was introduced by Representative W. A. Few of Waxahatchie.

A constitutional amendment reducing the membership of the senate from 31 to 25 members and to reduce the house membership from 150 to 75 members was offered by Representative J. C. Smith of Elgin. The proposed amendment would limit the number of members from any one county to five. The members of the legislature would be paid a maximum of $1,500 a year, under the proposal.

Representative Fritz Engelhard of Eagle Lake proposed a constitutional amendment that would abolish the courts of civil appeal and increase the membership of the supreme court from three to nine members and the court of criminal appeals to five members.

The former record, 5,012 miles was set by Russell Boardman and John Polano, on a flight from New York to Istanbul, Turkey.

Crash Victim Enroute To Hospital Hurt Again

HOUSTON, (UP)—Injured seriously when his automobile overturned outside the city, Stanley Caton, 24, suffered further hurts a few minutes later when an automobile carrying him to a hospital skidded and plunged into a ditch.

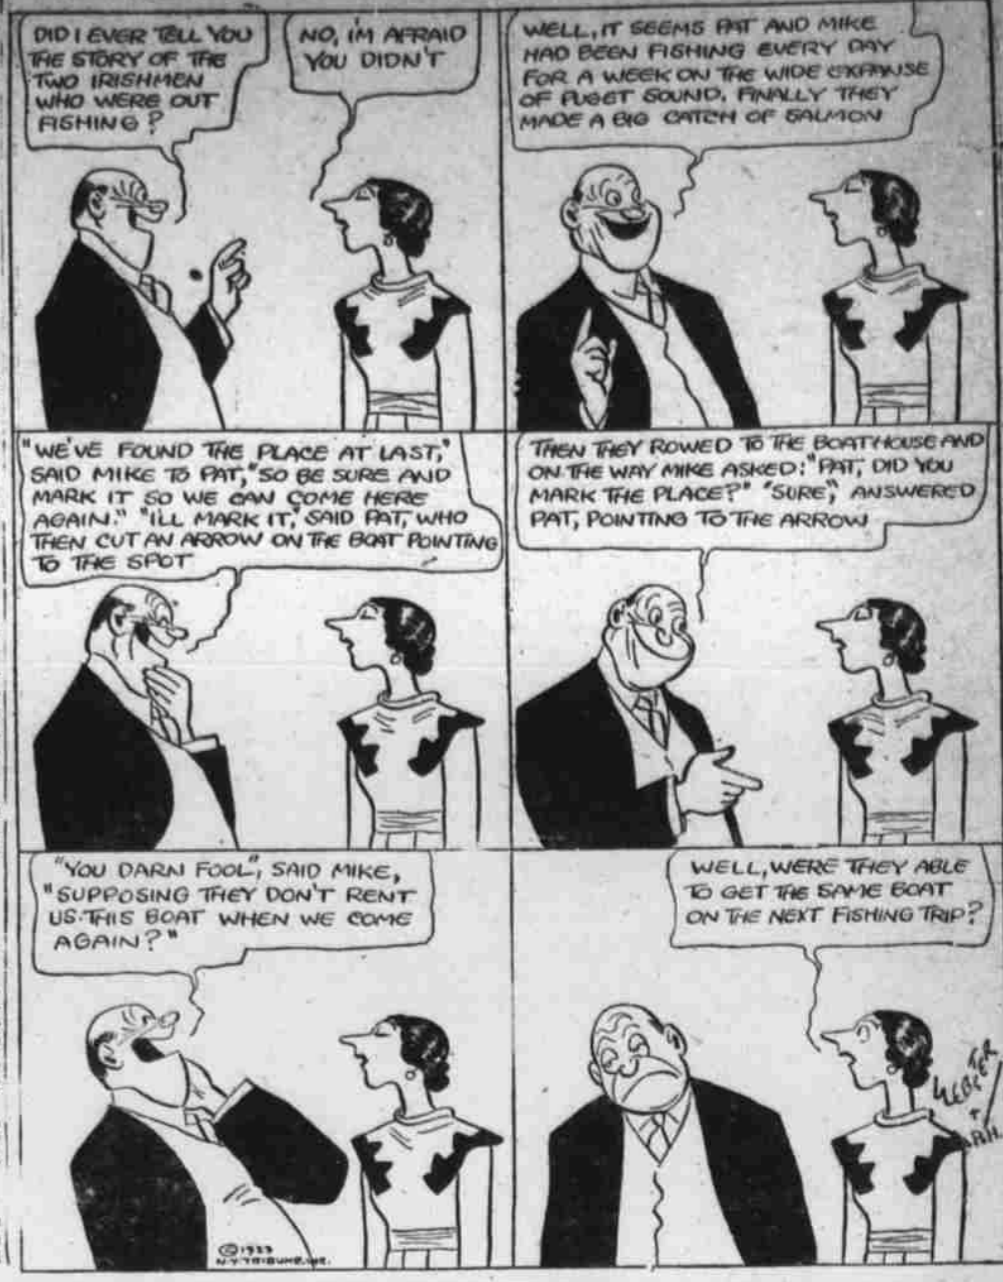

Two other men were injured slightly in the accidents.

Quick Action Planned On Mortgage Problem

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Decision to draw up and push ward enactment this session an emergency measure for farm mortgage relief was made Tuesday by the senate banking subcommittee considering the problem.

It was indicated the committee might combine some features of emergency bills already introduced.

That general underlying feeling would certainly embarrass Mr. Roosevelt's steps toward negotiation were he set on a direct attack.

FAR EAST— The reason Mr. Roosevelt carefully left his hands free in approving the Stimson Far-Eastern policy is privately explained by a Roosevelt spokesman.

This trustworthy authority says the president-elect intends to base his policy on the Nine Power Treaty instead of the Stimson doctrine. That is why he referred to the sanctity of treaties in his recent announcement.

The Nine Power pact pledges an open door in China. Any interference with free American commerce in Manchoukoo would be a violation of that pact by Japan. Denial then could be done with Japan direct. Other signatories would be bound to follow suit.

That would give Mr. Roosevelt an entirely new basis for action and extend the new deal across the Pacific.

Fishing— Politics is at least partially involved in Mr. Hoover's fishing trip after March 4 with some of his cabinet officers.

When asked if he liked to fish, Treasury Secretary Mills responded: "Fish need did anything to me." He does not know an angle worm from a trout fly.

The experts are interpreting the trip as a Hoover-Mills get-together on the future of the republican party. Those inside say Mills does not intend to tie up permanently with Mr. Hoover, but it is generally conceded he might inherit leadership of the Hoover wing.

In that connection a Republican leader in congress told his friends last week: "I think we should pass this beer bill and make Mr. Hoover veto it so as to eliminate him permanently from the political picture."

His assistant said: "That looks like a good program to me."

These two are not going on the fishing trip.

Bullitt— The hullabaloo being raised by the republican Senator Robinson over William C. Bullitt being in Europe is a minor political maneuver. Robinson was put up to it by Hearst newspapermen who think Bullitt is over there representing Mr. Roosevelt on war debts.

It can not be proved but every insider here thinks Bullitt is traveling in Europe for Mr. Roosevelt on the Russian question—not war debts. He is supposed to be ascertaining how European governments conduct their relations with Russia with a view to American recognition.

That calmer interpretation of the Bullitt case is substantiated somewhat by the fact that he once made a similar survey of Russia for Colonel House during the Wilson administration.

Notes— In connection with prospects for Russian recognition it now develops that the new Izvestia newspaperman who came over here a few weeks ago was in the Russian foreign office for ten years. He appears to be more of a diplomatic envoy than a newspaperman although that is ardently denied.

There was dismay and chagrin in high places when someone privately complained that a federal forestry building in Utah did not even have a splinter of wood in it.

The building was being constructed of steel throughout. The federal architects were ordered immediately to make supplemental plans putting some wood in the building. They are hopeful they can conclude their work before everyone discovers the faux pas.

Girl Who Offered To Marry For $5000 Is Wed For Love

EL PASO—Love will find away! Almost a year ago red-haired 26-year-old Alberta Louise Roca of El Paso placed herself on the marriage market, offering to wed any man who would give her $5000 for the education of her small brother and sister.

Yesterday, Miss Ross announced that she had married—but for love. E. W. Fredericksen, Utica, N. Y., is the man who won Miss Ross' heart after other men had failed to buy it. They were married in Jaurez Friday afternoon by City Recorder A. Delos Santos, the former Miss Ross said.

"It is a case of real love," she said. "Fred and I are sure to be very happy. When I first met him I knew that there could be no other man in my life. Money doesn't mean a thing when love is involved."

Mrs. Fredericksen said she had changed her ideas about men during the last year. At the time she announced her intentions to marry for money, she said she could learn to love almost any man if he treated her right.

"The right one always will come along," she said. The bride said she and her husband would leave this week on a honeymoon in Chihuahua. They will make their home at Utica. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Clark, who were their attendants at the Jaurez wedding, will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Fredericksen on the Mexico trip.

Mortgages, Employment To Be Topics

WASHINGTON (UP)—United federal and state action for unemployment and mortgage relief is expected to be a major goal of the conference of state governors called by President-elect Roosevelt to meet here March 8. Tax reduction also will be discussed.

Tax Reduction Also To Be Discussed At Governor's Meeting

The conference will convene at the White House less than 48 hours after Mr. Roosevelt moves in. It is expected the exchange of views will assist the new president in developing a coordinated program to lighten the $3,500,000,000 mortgage burden under which American farmers are struggling and in some places openly rebelling.

Congressional leaders concede there is virtually no chance of any permanent relief being granted in the remaining three weeks of the jammed short session. They agree that will have to wait for the special session to which Mr. Roosevelt can submit his own proposals.

The best that senate leaders hope for at this session is a temporary measure to lift from farmers the pressure of foreclosures and tax sales until permanent aid can be granted. This may take the form of a short moratorium on temporary loans from the R.F.C.

A senate banking sub-committee planned to go to work on such proposals today.

Mr. Roosevelt's invitation to the 48 governors, made public in New York by his secretary, Louis Howe, proposed discussion of the following subjects in addition to mortgage relief:

"Conflicting taxation by federal and state governments; "Federal aid for unemployment relief; "Better land use by afforestation, elimination of marginal agricultural land, flood prevention, etc.; "Reorganization and consolidation of local governments to decrease tax costs."

The invitation pointed out many governors already have arranged to come here for the inaugural ceremonies March 4 and expressed belief that would be a propitious time for discussion of "matters in which the federal government and the state governments are mutually interested."

The Comforts of the American Home IT IS a well-known fact that, home for home, the American household has more comforts and conveniences than that of any other nation. In foreign lands the modernized dwelling is found only in the better sections of the larger cities. In America, even in remote rural districts, you find the radio, the vacuum cleaner, washing machines, up-to-date heating systems, telephones and numberless labor-saving appliances. There is a well-kept look about residence, store or outbuildings with an atmosphere of prosperity and content. Did you ever stop to realize why this is so; how this condition was brought about? It is largely due to advertising. And a big share of the credit belongs to newspaper advertising. Stop and think how many of the foods you eat, the things you wear and other articles entering into your every-day life, you first heard of through newspaper advertisements. You will then realize what a part they do play, or should play, in your daily life. Read the advertisements in the newspapers regularly and thoroughly, if you are not already doing so. They mean more to you than you can tell.

Sir Malcolm Campbell Pays $100,000 To Risk On Daytona Beach Sands In Effort To Set New Land Speed

By HENRY McLEMORE
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., (UP)—One hundred thousand dollars is the price Sir Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, will pay for the privilege of risking his neck on the wave-packed sands of Daytona Beach.

The $100,000 represents the cost of outfitting the 1933 venture, which will mark his fourth assault in five years on the world's land speed record. And the $100,000 will come out of his own pocket, too, Sir Malcolm has no backers, does not make his runs as an advertising stunt for any firm. When the mighty Bluebird roars down the beach it roars solely for the honor of Sir Malcolm and the Union Jack.

It was Sir Malcolm who put up the check of many, many thousands for the Bluebird's new 2600-horsepower engine, who footed the bill for the transportation of the car and its four mechanics to this country, and, who when the runs are completed will see that everybody gets home again.

It isn't a pleasant thought, but just what one of his runs would cost him should the Bluebird swerve off course and injure a spectator or spectators, would depend on what the injured parties collected. For Sir Malcolm, an insurance broker himself, could get no liability policy. All he could buy was fire insurance.

No Trimmings
 Sir Malcolm's runs down the beach this year aren't going to be surrounded by the trimmings of past years. Daytona Beach, like Sank Center and New York, is finding ready money scarce. Back in the lush days of the city though, nothing of rounding up fifteen or twenty thousand dollars. In those days national guardsmen patrolled

The wounded man was brought to a sanitarium here.

Earl Averill of the Cleveland Indians wasn't so concerned about his rating as the best centerfielder in the major leagues but was mighty proud of the fact that he caught the largest steelhead trout displayed in Seattle in the last two years. (Associated Press Photo)

Under The Dome At Austin

By Gordon K. Shearer
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 AUSTIN (UP)—Lieut-Gov. Edgar E. Witt threw aside the dignity of his office as presiding officer of the senate during a vote, which required a four-fifths majority of the senate, to give a lesson in arithmetic.

"Senator, your arithmetic is bad," Mr. Witt informed Senator Walter Woodward, when Woodward maintained that 28 votes instead of 25 were required for a four-fifths vote.

"One-fifth of 31 is six and one-fifth," instructed Teacher Witt. "And four times six and one-fifth is twenty-four and four-fifths. The nearest I can get to that is 25."

The house has been termed as having its "four horsemen," but the senate has an entire baseball team. There is a "nine" in the senate, administration senators declare, comprised of nine anti-administration senators who "are organized to defeat administration policies."

The most difficult job around the state capitol until place hunters were barred was handled by John Wood (Timpon), member of Governor Ferguson's office staff.

It was his job to pass people into the governor's private office. Literally thousands sought to get in following the change of administration. Wood was a job for a diplomat and a diplomat with a temper that couldn't be flustered.

Wood, somehow, managed to keep the waiters in good humor. He took time to hear just what their business was and to explain just what the chances were of gaining admittance that day. A little kidding here and a little jollity there, he kept them out. But he was glad when each day was over and he could go home.

Wood is an old Ferguson enthusiast. "Jim stopped at his house the first time he went into East Texas on a campaign trip," Governor Ferguson said.

Rep. J. L. Goodman of Franklin, dean of the house members, once edited a paper with Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma. Goodman was in Dallas running the paper in opposition to the Populists, rather powerful in Texas at that time.

Murray, then a Texan, volunteered to use his vacation in helping get out the paper.

"He was good at it, too," said Goodman.

A. S. Walker, of Walkerton, approved by Senators Conally and Sheppard for collector of internal revenue in the southern district of Texas, presumably had the backing of Colonel E. M. House as he held the same position when Woodrow Wilson was president.

James E. Ferguson is not advising his governor-wife that the state is likely to lose valuable employees if salaries are cut. He has set $5,000 a year as the maximum salary that ought to be paid.

"When I was governor in 1916," he said, "the lawyers of the state insisted I must not veto a bill that raised judges' salaries from $3,000 to $3,600. 'They will quit,' the lawyers said.

"I'm for upholding the judiciary and if we go to hell we will go legally," said Senator W. R. Cousins, Beaumont, during the debate in the senate finance committee on proposed reductions of salaries of judges.

Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton wears spats, though he is the floor leader for Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the "common people's choice."

Sanderford Takes Lead For Governor In Upper Chamber

By R. W. BARRY
 AUSTIN, (UP)—Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton is assuming the administration leadership in the upper branch of the Texas legislature. He took the lead in the contest over Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's request for permission to withdraw appointees sent in by Governor H. S. Sterling before she took office.

Sanderford is a new member of the senate, but he isn't timid about asserting his convictions. There are others who always are ready to lend him some assistance. Senator W. K. Hopkins of Gonzalez had been picked by some to speak for the administration in the Senate, but he comes nearer being an independent. He does not like to be aligned with any partisan group, preferring to be free to espouse or oppose as the situation warrants.

Senator Grady Woodruff of DeCatur led the contest against giving Mrs. Ferguson permission to withdraw Governor Sterling's appointees, but during the debate he pointed out that he had opposed many important measures advocated by the immediate past governor. However, the governor can expect more opposition from Senators Woodruff, T. J. Holbrook, Waller Woodruff, George Purl and J. W. E. Beck than any of the others.

Frank Roach of Bogota, secretary to Senator Tom DeBerry of Red River county is that lawmaker's eyes and ears, almost. Senator DeBerry was maimed by an explosion during an Armistice Day celebration some years ago and as a result his sight was dimmed and his hearing impaired. Roach does all of DeBerry's reading and most of his listening. He has to be good because DeBerry is quick in debate and wants his prompting without delay.

Coyote And Bobcat Hunts Popular In Lower Valley

EDINBURG, (UP)—Young men in the lower Rio Grande Valley have added another sport to the section's repertoire of attractions—coyote and bobcat hunting. Early morning hunts are especially popular.

Several parties of hunters have trailed the noisy coyote and the cunning Bobcat through the Rio Grande bottoms with packs of hounds baying excitedly—and in one instance to the disturbance of residents at Pharr.

Coyotes have been much bolder and have made their dens much nearer civilization this year than in many years, due to a lack of small game in the brush country. Coyote pups have been found in tall weeds in several orchards.

Boy Defends Sister From Stones, Stabbed Painfully

DALLAS, (UP)—"That's my sister—you leave her alone," cried Cleveland Huff, 7, as he rushed to defend his 6-year-old sister against two small boys who were throwing rocks at her.

A moment later Cleveland lay on the sidewalk, seriously wounded. One of the boys, 8 years old, had stabbed him behind the ear with a pocket knife. The assailant and his companion 6, were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Cleveland was recovering, it was reported at the hospital to which he was taken.

Organized Minorities Blamed By Garner For Failure To Cut Costs

WASHINGTON (UP)—Speaker Garner told newspapermen Wednesday organized minorities had prevented congress from cutting government expenditures.

He said he favored an even greater authority to the president to reorganize the government than the senate provided in the treasury-postoffice supply bill.

At the same time President Hoover represented as being "delighted" at the action of the senate in voting to give Roosevelt broad powers for reorganization of the federal government.

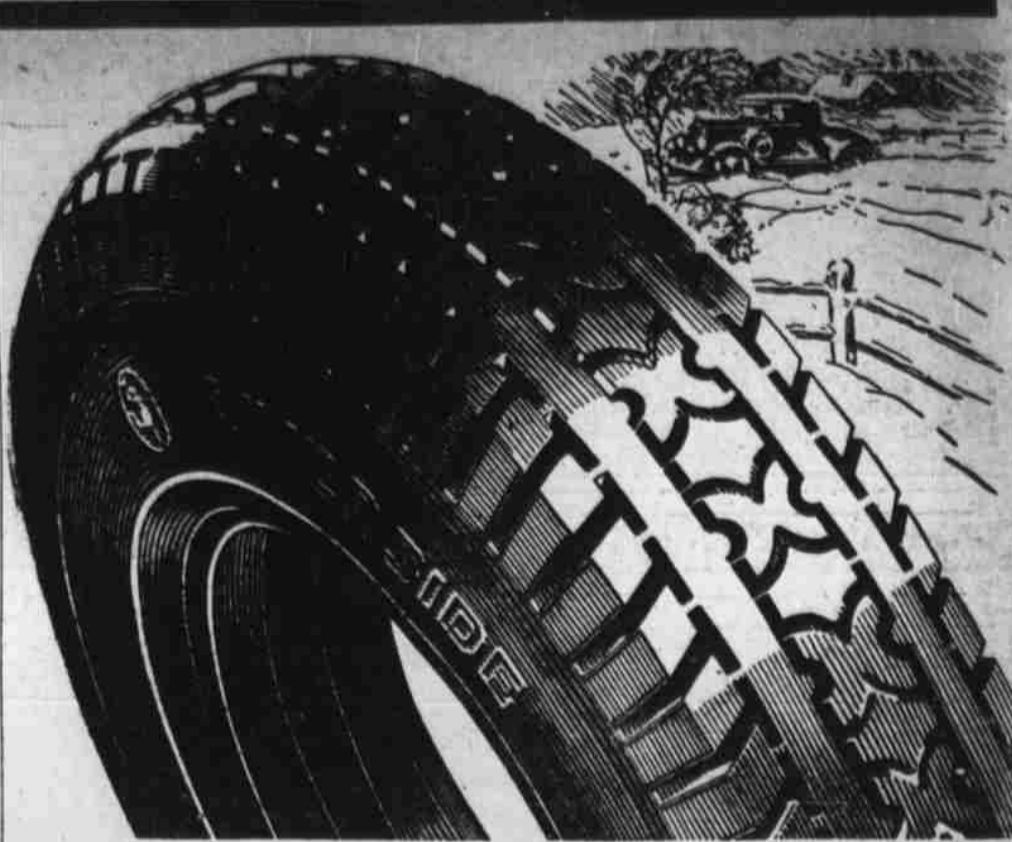

ABOLITION OF STATE DEPARTMENTS ASKED

AUSTIN (UP)—A bill to abolish the game, fish and oyster commission, board of water engineers, reclamation department, and the state park board and place the duties of these units under a conservation commission of three members was introduced in the house Wednesday by Representative Mackey of Galveston.

The commission would also take over the forestry division of Texas A. & M. college, predatory animal extermination, and duties of the live stock sanitary commission.

The beach for a run at five dollars a day per head.

The intricate electric timing device, which costs $150 per connection, was connected at any and all hours. Officials rode around in big cars.

This year, although the sum they are trying to raise is decidedly less than $20,000, it's been something of a task. The city fathers are holding prize fights, with 50 per cent of the gate receipts for the racing funds. Buttons, with a picture of Sir Malcolm and Bluebird are 25 cents. Covering the front of the garage where Bluebird is quartered is a soft drink, cigaret and candy concession and all its intake goes to the fund.

Nearby is an automobile and hard by the automobile stands a gentleman who will sell you a chance on the car for a quarter. The proceeds of the raffle will go into the racing funds.

May Earn Cash
 These various enterprises are likely to earn a tidy sum before Sir Malcolm sends his car down the course in earnest, for the beach was covered with raffles, which made it unfit for racing. No one is alarmed, however, for a beach that is like the rocky road to Dublin in the morning may be smooth as a gold brick salesman by afternoon. A favorable wind and tide are all the beach needs.

It is not the surface, but the contour, that has Sir Malcolm worried. A storm last December, instead of improving the beach as first reported, made it less favorable for high speed racing by cutting a curve in its old straight-as-a-die line.

The curve, impossible to negotiate at the speed the titled Britisher runs, shortens the racing strip from 11 to nine miles. The measured mile being the middle mile, Sir Malcolm will have but four miles in which to gather speed and four to lose it. This, as he explained, considerably lessens his chances of breaking the mark of 253.9 miles an hour he established last year.
