KIMBALL FARM MAKES GOOD ACREAGE YIELD

Ben D. Beck, wheat farmer of the Kimball community who received the first allotment check in Hansford county, again registered "first" by bringing in the first load of 1934 wheat to Spearman this harvest. The wheat was cut Sunday, and tested 62, and yielded an average of 12 bushels per acre. Mr. Beck termed his poorest looking wheat. The wheat was purchased by R. L. McClellan Grain Company and brought a price of 80c per bushel.

R. L. McClellan, manager of the R. L. McClellan Grain Company stated he was agreeably surprised at the quality of the new wheat coming into the market this early. The wheat coming in has a bright color despite the recent rains.

Estimates on the average yield of wheat to be made in Hansford county this year vary from 5 to 15 bushels per acre. It is the belief of the Grain Dealers of the county that wheat will start moving proper by the end of the week.

With the government allotment reduction in production of wheat and the very severe drought in the wheat belt all over the states, market students predict a high price for grain all during the harvest season, with a prospect of dollar wheat before the 1934 supply is marketed.

A gradual decrease in supply of wheat has been accomplished during the past few years, and the possibility of two-bit wheat at elevators is rather remote for the next few years.

Records of the Spearman Reporter files indicate a very satisfactory progress not only in the matter of the prospective yield of wheat but in the market price. In 1932, June 23, the first load of wheat came to Spearman from the Kimball community, being purchased by R. L. Porter Grain Company at 35c per bushel. A general story covering prospects for the yield indicated less than 30 per cent yield for the year. The test was 59 on the first load, and much of the wheat of the '32 season was poor in grade, and the harvesting was particularly trying because of the great amount of weeds in the wheat.

In 1933 Hayden Hart of Gruver marketed the first load of the county, being purchased by R. L. McClellan Grain Company at their Morse Elevator. The test for the first wheat was 56 and the price 70c. However, the story recorded the fact that the county was not producing any yield, the estimate being less than five per cent of normal.

Wheat producers were not expecting the immediate harvest that is apparent at this time, since most wheat producers expected the grain to ripen this week end and next week. However it is estimated half the producers of the county will start combining their grain by the middle of next week.

A real shortage of labor is apparent at this time. Most transient labor is not informed of the early ripening of grain, and probably some labor relief will be had by next week as the word goes out over the country that grain on the Plains is ready for marketing.

According to instructions received by Relief Administrator Dodson, plans have been worked out by the rehabilitation committee of the relief organization whereby milk cows can be sold to citizens who need them, without a down payment, and without interest. Another attractive feature of the plan calls for payment in small amounts either out of work funds, out of vegetables and products, or any other articles that the local relief organization can use in administering the office in Hansford county.

More than 100,000 dairy cattle will be purchased by the national Relief committee, coming largely from the dry area where the cattle are distressed and must be sold. The price will be reasonable and the terms the best ever offered according to the letter of instructions.

Mr. Dodson has made a survey of Hansford county and finds 27 families in the rural district who are without cattle and 40 families in the urban districts of the county without cattle, who could arrange to take care of a cow, and profit greatly by the ownership.

Those interested are instructed to take up the matter with Administrator Dodson and make immediate plans.

Hog Allotment In The Panhandle To Receive Preferred Consideration

According to information from President Wilbanks of the Hog Allotment Committee the members in the Panhandle will receive preferred consideration, and just as soon as all the counties of the Panhandle are checked and turned into the committee, checks will be issued. The original plan called for the entire state to be checked and recorded before the allotment checks were issued.

Did You Ever See A Garage A Walking Well Charles Did

Try this one on your piano. "Did you ever see a garage walking, a sliding, a gliding away. Well Charles Chambers did."

After the heavy winds had calmed a bit Friday night, Charles remembered that he left his fli- ver out on the drive, and as he expressed it, he thought hail might follow the strong wind, and he had better put his Chevvie to bed. Lights were out and he had considerable trouble locating his car but he finally got in the bus, started the motor, turned on the light preparatory to driving in his garage and lo, there was no garage to drive in. It was scattered all over the City of Spearman. Charles said he was satisfied his face turned red.

Hail Damage Sustained In Hansford County

Something over thirty sections of growing wheat in Hansford county and Spearman trade territory sustained heavy hail damage in which accompanied heavy rains Thursday and Friday nights of last week.

Reports coming from over the county indicate a wide strip West of Morse suffered greatly from heavy hail. Between McKibben and Morse another large strip was badly damaged by the hail and the Holt neighborhood sustained heavy damages. The storm seemed to follow the breaks into Hutchinson County.

Charles Chambers, Gulf Petal Agent, City Councilman and mail carrier has added another past-time occupation to his list of responsibilities. Charles has signed up to drive out new Ford V-8s to Hansford County owners. Leastwise, that is the way he talks about the matter. He claims that it really is not any work to sell Fords, and that he only took the job to keep in trim for his other work.

TRAIN SERVICE IS DISCONTINUED ON ACCOUNT WASH-OUT

Spearman and all towns along the Santa Fe branch from Shattuck to the West, due to a bridge on the Rock Island having been washed out by heavy rains last Friday morning.

The bridge that went out was three miles West of Sunray. Work in rebuilding it is being pushed and it is thought that by Monday of next week the service will be resumed.

All the mail coming to Spearman by train is now being sent in from the East causing a few hours delay.

Additional Rain Falls Over County During Past Week

Hansford County has in the past week received over two inches of moisture. According to the records of Fred W. Brands, U. S. weather observer at Spearman, .82 of an inch was received that Thursday, .56 inch on Friday, .40 inch on Tuesday and Wednesday rain totaled .30 of an inch.

Weird Electrical Disturbances
During the rain storm Tuesday afternoon the ether was heavy with electricity and several local people have told weird tales of the unnatural conditions that exist here during the storm.

Some five car loads of people who were assisting each other thru the mud near J. H. Wards place near Gruver, report having seen a ball of fire fall from the atmosphere to the power line and then slowly drop to the ground and burn for several seconds.

Mrs. Cap Richardson reports an incident that happened while she and her husband were sitting in the living room during the storm. Suddenly the lights went out and a ball of fire appeared on the chimney accompanied by a terrific noise sounding similar to a shot gun report. The flue plug was hurled from the flue and hit Mr.

Richardson on the head. Mrs. Bob Crawford and children had gone to a storm cellar and Mrs. Crawford was holding the door down with a chain when she received a terrific shock. Other people report the illumination of stoves and clothes lines during the storm as if they were red hot. Mrs. Ike Klutts stated that her radio was so electrically charged during the storm that fire played all over it, and it shows to have gone thru quite a shock as it will not play anymore.

The purchase of the Texas Wheat Pool Elevator by more than a hundred Hansford County Farmers, and the opening of A LOCAL FARMER OWNED AND OPERATED ELEVATOR The Directors of the new Spearman Grain Growers Incorporated feel that we have an announcement that will mean much to the wheat growers of this section of the state. We have formed a purely cooperative organization in which the grain produced in Hansford County and purchased at this elevator will be marketed direct to the consumer through a nation-wide marketing organization. To the stockholders of this corporation will accrue the profits of a nation-wide organization buying and marketing grain. The directors of the new organization wish to stress the fact that the new wheat elevator is not a closed corporation, and that we plan to enter the market, buying grain from any and all producers entirely on the merits of the organization. No stockholder will be compelled to market his grain through this organization. We extend an invitation to the general public to investigate the operating plan of our organization. We feel that you can learn how you will be benefitted by cooperating in this buying-marketing movement.

With the electric street lights turned on, a large crowd at the theatre, and not a single house or apartment in Spearman vacant, it shure does look like "boom" days of long ago.

And Folk! did you ever know a better contingent of business men than the Spearman business men, I never did—and it is not all because they have supported this paper liberally with their advertising.

I never have said just what I thought about the man that would bite the hand that was feeding him—but if you Folk who will have a few dollars after this harvest season take it out of Spearman to spend—I'll tell you what I think.

This may sound a bit insincere in view of the fact that out-of-town advertisements appear in our publication. However, this is a county-wide newspaper, and it reaches quite a number of subscribers who belong in the Borger trade territory. Naturally the out-side advertisers expect to draw some patronage from the towns of Hansford County, or they would not spend their money to attract only the small number that are in their own territory. This paper will sell em all they will buy but we reserve the privelege of advising our subscribers to make their purchases in Hansford County. If you can't get what you want at home, then we recommend our out-of-town advertisers.

I never had shot behind a dog that could handle blue quail satisfactory, so I drove over to see him. I questioned him carefully about the dog and he insisted on giving me a demonstration. Well sir that dog acted like he had gone mad. He circled, and he barked and cavorted around like he was herding cattle. Finally he stopped and held up his left foot. The nigger said, git all ready he is done got them quail spotted. In a few minutes the dog sat down and motioned us forward the negro telling me to get ready to shoot. The dog held up one paw and Uncle Jim says be ready days a blue debil ready to hop, and sure nuff a quail sailed out as pretty as could be. I had no sooner shot the quail until the dog sit down and raised two paws. Better look out for two more, says Uncle Jim. Blow me down if two quails didn't fly right into range. I was plumb excited and shouted to the nigger to ask him where the quail were coming from. He said the dog had done rounded up two coveys of quails and run them into a dog hole, and was sitting over the hole. Ever time we wanted to shoot the dog would release a quail.

Farmers May Plant Forage Crops On Contracted Acreage

By recent information coming from George E. Farrell, Chief of the Wheat Section, farmers may plant the contracted acreage to forage crops. The telegram received from him by John R. Edmonds, read as follows:
"New Administrative ruling permits forage crops except corn and grain sorghum to be planted on contracted acreage."
The instructions received here further stated that it will not be necessary for farmers to make application to the Allotment Committee for the privilege of using the rented land for the purpose of growing forage crops on such land. Farmers may do this on their own motion and it will not affect their wheat contracts if they do so.

CORPORATION FOR AGRICULTURISTS UNDER GOVERNMENT REGULATION

(By Geo. M. Whitson)

Continuing this subject from the last issue of the Spearman Reporter, we tried in that article to make it plain that the Ten Billion Dollars allotted to the President by the present Congress to enforce the provisions of the National Recovery Act of 1933, during the present year, is only a mere trifle compared to the thirty or forty billion dollars that according to figures compiled from the statistics of the Department of Agriculture, producers on the farms and ranches of this country lost through the exercise of that "rugged individualism" encouraged by the Hoover administration. Before we say more, common honesty compels us to admit that we voted for Mr. Hoover in 1928, along with that majority that gave him the electoral vote of Texas. That, however, is merely accumulative evidence tending to prove that old story that "to err is human." We may be sorry, but the deed is done. We must take our medicine. But to the everlasting honor of Texans, we did declare the independence of Texas voters. No longer do we vote "er" straight, but prize men and issues above that of party regularity.

Mr. Hoover's style of "rugged individualism" encouraged those freebooters, those manipulators of the Chicago Wheat Pit, and the New York Cotton Exchange, to rob the producers of agricultural products out of the fruits of their production. Instead of using the strong arm of the federal government in an effort to bring those fellows to the bar of justice, as is being done by the present administration, he blandly said to them: "If you gentlemen have that sense of patriotism that outruns immediate profit, and a desire to see the country prosper, you will close up these transactions and desist from your manipulations. The confidence imposed upon me by law as a public official does not permit me to expose your names to the public. If I could I would gladly do so." A sad, sad spectacle. The president of the United States of America, the chief executive of the most powerful nation on the face of the globe today, pleading with those freebooters, those despoilers of the nations wealth, as gentlemen, to desist from their manipulation of the markets of the country in times of national disaster. Why did not Mr. Hoover, cut out his soft pleading phrases and bluntly demand that they cease to convert to their own use the wealth of production that should have been distributed among the people. Could he have been surprised at the verdict of an outraged people in November, 1931.

These producers of the nations wealth lost their production to protect classes, who today are loaning it back to the government and taking the bonds of Uncle Sam as their security in order to enable President Roosevelt to relieve the distress caused by the mal-administration of his predecessors.

Let's come back home, and as lovers of home and country try to do our humble part to place our home units in line with the plans and purposes of the present administration. What do we want to do here at home as builders of home and country, as farmers and as stockmen, residing in this Spearman territory? The answer is plain.

Get together under the provisions of the National Recovery Act of 1933. Can this be done by fostering and encouraging the operation of two co-operative marketing organizations in the same territory? As stated in our article last week, we do not think so, and suggest their consolidation for the following reasons: It would be a move in the interest of economy. Manifestly one organization can be operated at less cost and friction than two, because its imperative that we present a solid front against the encroachment of our adversaries, who have no sympathy with the administrations plan of solving the farm problem; because through the medium of reorganization, co-operators now interested in the governments plan of wheat production and control will readily see the advantage of further cooperation in the marketing of the products of the farm and ranch, and will join in the new plan of government regulation and control because reorganization with new life injected into it, and with the broader purposes of the new deal in view will serve to remove criticism, just or unjust, that heretofore has been leveled against each of the old organizations; in brief because we are loyal to the flag of our country and are willing to accept the guiding hand of the present administration.

In addition to the reasons set forth above we understand that those long time, low rate of interest loans to be made in accordance with the provisions of the N. R. A. of '33, through the medium of the Farm Credit Administration, will be made to only one cooperative marketing organization within a given territory. Now what is the use for John Doe and Richard Roe, representative and influential farmers residing in Spearman territory, to attempt to secure a federal loan for their particular marketing organization that, under the law is intended for a cooperative marketing organization, representative of all cooperatives residing within Spearman territory or for Bill Jones or Charlie Smith to circulate a subscription list and solicit stock for their own particular cooperative, saying to prospective stockholders "you may sell your wheat where you please and still retain your stock in our corporation, but when you do business with us we want you to understand, that your grain will be shipped through the channels of our particular cooperative organization, legitimate competition is the life of trade to which subject we will refer at some future time, but how much better it would be not to stifle competition among genuine co-operative grain dealers, but to sell to any one of them, a tany time for the greatest profit possible to co-operative farmers who hold stock and patronize our home unit organizations.

We all are aware of the fact that our two local competitive organizations have been throwing bricks at each other for the last fifteen years and that each one of them today is trying to place their cooperative in a position to receive for their own, the consideration intended to be shown by the authors of the National Recovery Act, to all grain growers residing in any given territory.

The law was never intended for clique or faction to be universal in its application. Hence the ruling that federal loans will be made to one cooperative doing business in any given territory. The idea being of course, to supply the incentive for warring factions to lay down their implements of warfare and get together. The conception that law is placed on the statute books for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many reminds us of the interpretation placed on all law by Wall Street. The Hoovers and Mellons Raskobs and Smiths, Whitneys and Morgans, Kuhn-Loebs and Otto Kanhs and their lesser satellites throughout the country—the class our good president referred to in his annual message to Congress—the upper crust of gangdom in America, more dangerous to public welfare than the lower crust now receiving attention.

The Hansford County Wheat Production Control Association a creation of the Farm Credit Administration, stripped of its verbiage, is Uncle Sam's plan of securing voluntary cooperatives among wheat farmers. Likewise the cotton, corn, hog and cattle allotment contracts are part of the same general plan of cooperation for the Agricultural world. As a class grain and stock farmers have never been able to organize and cooperate with each other. Will we refuse the opportunity to get together under government regulation and controled organization? Why not accept the present administration viewpoint, and as united cooperatives, representative of all the cooperative benefits to be derived, not to factions, which is impossible under the law, but to a united organization, thus complying with the spirit and intent of the law. As we look at these things, this appears to be our golden opportunity.

NEW AND IMPROVED CONOCO GERM PROCESSED MOTOR OIL WINS THE TERRIFIC "DESTRUCTION" TEST!

AAA SANCTION NO. 3001

These six new strictly stock cars used in the "destruction" test, under AAA supervision.

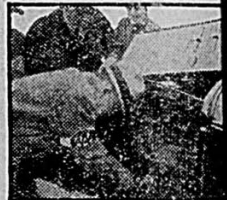

ADARING, competitive test—and what a result! New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil outdistanced five worthy rivals, thanks to the extraordinary film strength and penetrativeness our recently patented process gives it. Five quarts of this remarkable new oil lubricated a motor for the almost unbelievable distance of 4,729 miles before the motor was wrecked!

Five other oils, all nationally known, competed with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil in this test. All cars were driven under AAA supervision, under exactly the same conditions until the motors could no longer operate. The notable thing is that five quarts of New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil went more than 3,000 miles farther than the first oil to fail, and over 1,400 miles farther than the best of its competitors!

The results of this test should guide your motor oil purchases from now on. Look for the Red Triangle Sign.

Five quarts of each brand of oil same S.A.E. grade from: was checked by the Bureau of Weights and Measures, State of Indiana, were fully put in the cars by AAA officials.

The official sealing of crankcases of all of five quarts was put in. No destruction of oil was permitted in this "destruction" test.

Elevator Row Spearman, Texas

...ponder?" the girl shouted in his ear. He pretended he did not understand her. "I've been so busy I couldn't start on that new house I planned," he shouted back, "but we'll tackle it the minute we get back."

So she knew he had, at last, left his dead and his old bitter memories behind him; and there, above Eden Valley, as her little hand, calloused hand closed over his, she dropped hers also; she shed happy tears in the knowledge that never again would hard work, penury and loneliness be her portion. The sun was setting on Eden now, but when, for them, it should rise again on Eden, the serpent would be gone.

In June of 1927 the news spread through Forlorn Valley of the return of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley. Shortly thereafter huge trucks laden with lumber and building materials came through Valley Center from Gold Run, bound for the old Circle K ranch. Immediately Crenshaw, the manager of the Valley Center lumber yard, motored up to the Circle K to see Nate Tichenor and ask for a share of this new business. He had been received courteously and told that no orders for lumber or building material could be given him because Silas Babson was one of his heaviest stockholders.

When Crenshaw returned to Valley Center he informed the local chamber of commerce of the projected outlay of a great deal of money in Eden Valley. Nate Tichenor and his wife had merged their ranches, the old Bar H headquarters were to be razed and the old Circle K log ranch-house was to be given over to Rube Tenney and his family, after the Tichenors had erected on the Circle K a country home that was to cost not less than a hundred thousand dollars. There were stables and kennels to be erected also, grounds to be laid out and flowers planted. The rustic Tichenor was even going to build a nine-hole golf course and a huge swimming pool. Crenshaw thought that the payroll for labor necessitated in these operations should go to Valley Center, so the vice president of the chamber of commerce called upon Tichenor to suggest it.

"Forlorn Valley in general and Valley Center in particular wishes to forget the past and be friendly with you, Mr. Tichenor," he stated. "As proof of that feeling I call your attention to the fact that we gave you the use of the fresher waters of Eden Valley creek this spring when we found we couldn't use them for our diversion system. We didn't have to do that if we desired to make a friendly gesture."

"My dear man, I ordered those floodgates opened myself and I had men guard them with rifles so that nobody would close them until our lands had had their annual soaking. That's the sort of friendly gesture I made to Forlorn Valley. I was on my honeymoon at the time and didn't want to bother with the law, so I just went back to the old Eden Valley custom. It worked. And I'll engage no labor from Valley Center or Forlorn Valley. I do not like anybody in that section of the county. And here's another message you can take back with you; within two years I'll own every acre of Forlorn Valley that is included in the irrigation district; I'll fence it and run cattle over it. At least the wells will supply drinking water for my cattle. And when the farmers in the district have been dispossessed there will be no further necessity for the thriving town of Valley Center, so it and its chamber of commerce will disappear; Valley Center will then be a ghost town, inhabited by ghosts."

The vice president of the chamber of commerce was irritated but he was also amused. "Is there no way in which we can escape this horrible fate that awaits us?" he pleaded in mock distress.

"Yes, there is," Tichenor replied seriously. "Get rid of that buzzard, Babson, and start doing your own thinking. Show an inclination to be fair and I'll bet you two-thirds of the way toward an amicable adjustment of his water war. Continue to permit Babson and his paid newspaper to put lies about me and ridicule us, and I'll smash you. And after I've smashed you I'll buy up the pieces and own the district."

CHAPTER III

THE Forlorn Valley Irrigation district proceeded to once to the task of concretizing its huge diversion canal. Abast from the beginning the diversion canal ran half full and the Babson commenced to take him. The snowfall was unusual heavy that year also, but spring came early and the run-off due to melting snow commenced about the middle of January.

This was the season of overflow in Eden Valley, the season of God's gift, a free irrigation to the Circle K and the Bar H, and Nate Tichenor, taking the water's rise, and that in another twenty-four hours the fresher would be on, so Rube Tenney and half a dozen armed men opened the floodgates, in defiance of the ditch-tenants' protest and the flood roared down Eden Valley. The ditch-tenants immediately mounted his horse and rode down to Valley Center to report this act of vandalism to Silas Babson, who motored into Gold Run and, as president of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, petitioned the Judge of the county superior court for an order restraining Nathan Tichenor, et al., from interfering with the orderly diversion of the flood waters of Eden Valley creek to the canal of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district.

To Babson's vast amazement the Judge declined to issue the restraining order. "I hold, Babson," he informed the latter, "that the law under which the state water commission has been empowered to allocate to non-riparian owners the flood or waste waters of riparian owners, is unconstitutional and that, hence, Forlorn Valley has no legal right to the flood waters of Eden Valley creek."

"Why hasn't our Supreme court declared the law unconstitutional?" "Because nobody has carried a water fight up to the Supreme court."

A week had gone by since Nate Tichenor and his men had opened the flood-gates up in the Handle and as yet Babson had not been able to secure legal aid. Upon his return to Gold Run, therefore, he called upon the sheriff of the county and requested his deputies to take half a dozen employees of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district against attack of Nathan Tichenor et al. when the former closed the flood-gates in defiance of Tichenor's dictum. In the interest of peace the sheriff consented and the following day the gates were closed without interference from Nate Tichenor and his men.

The next morning Nate Tichenor dropped in at the Bank of Valley Center and said to Babson:

"I merely dropped in to tell you, Babson, that while you were scurrying around a whole week seeking an injunction against my wife and me you couldn't get our lands had a grand soaking from that week's overflow. We would have liked another week of it, but when you brought the sheriff and his deputies around I concluded it was the part of wisdom to be satisfied with the water we had already received. But as summer advances I warn you we'll have to have our legal share of that water and if we do not get it I'm going to put a couple of hundred pounds of dynamite under that concrete diversion dam of yours and blow it out."

"If you do you'll go to the pen," Babson warned.

"Only my kind forbearance has kept me from the pen. You do not know where he is but I do. I'm bringing him back to testify against you."

"You couldn't convict me." "Perhaps not, but I can shake public confidence in you, you snuggly hypocrite. You realize, of course, that when the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district was formed and a deed of trust on all of the lands embraced in the district was given, with a San Francisco trust company as trustee, to secure the bond issue the district floated, all of the first mortgages and deeds of trust on lands within the district given to your bank to secure prior loans have now become second liens against those lands. You realize, do you, that if the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district should go bust the foreclosure of the deed of trust given by the district will automatically wipe out the second liens held by your bank?"

"I do. But the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district will not go bust, and with the increased fertility and, consequently, the doubling in value of the lands and their increased earning power, this bank's security will be ample and the mortgages and deeds of trust will be paid. If not, they can be foreclosed and the bank can take over the lands, subject, of course, to the bond issue against them. And they can then be sold very readily. I have no apprehensions on that score."

Nate Tichenor pointed through the open door of the bank to a lot across the street where a gang of workmen were engaged erecting a one-story building. "That lot and building are mine," Tichenor informed the banker lightly. "I'm going to start a bank there with a million dollars capital."

...some sound hopes for you cannot do that while of Valley Center continues in its present condition as at present."

"Well, I'll be all set, Mr. Babson. I'm patient, I'll wait. The irrigation district reported to Babson the first of April Lake Babson would be filled to the gates."

Under his Forlorn of acres of alfalfa the had been seeded first rains, and a brief intervals had crops growing steadily. Moisture to last until rains ceased and it would be necessary to employ surface water to develop the first crop first of June. Babson decided, therefore, to open the Lake Babson gates for the first time on the first and to make the occasion of general rejoicing; the day for the first time upon Forlorn Valley creek should be an event.

A dramatic frenzy gradually seized him. May-day, immemorially dedicated to festivals, was to be his day of triumph, a day that should repay him for his years of labor, and self-sacrifice for the public weal. Of course, as president of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, his right to be the orator of the day could not be gainsaid and nobody tried to gainsay it. He dictated his speech to his secretary, edited it, revised it, labored lovingly over it, and when it was complete he memorized it and delivered it, with appropriate gestures, to Henry Rookby after the bank had closed for the day. Meanwhile he had had an electrical contrivance installed at the reservoir headgates, and a wire led eight miles down country to connect with a push-button on the speaker's stand at the barbecue grounds. He had the district engineer figure approximately how long it would require the water to flow from the headgates to the grove, for he planned, at the moment of mounting the platform, to press his push-button, which would raise the headgates at the reservoir and release the water. Then at a certain dramatic point in his oration the water would make its dramatic appearance. Henry Rookby was to discover its approach and interrupt Babson with shrill and appropriate cries of amazement and joy.

He was so happy he elected to forgo that Joe Brainerd had once punched him several times on the nose, and sent over to the office of the Register a detailed announcement of his plans, for he was ever one who loved publicity. Promptly Brainerd carried this news to Eden Valley, where Nate Tichenor's eyes glowed strangely. He set off immediately for the county seat.

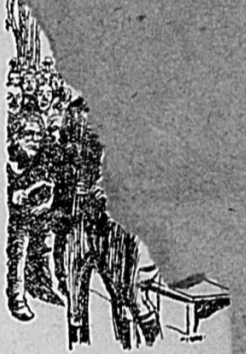

The great day arrived, and as Babson mounted the speaker's platform and gazed out over the hundreds of happy faces before him—as the Gold Run Silver Cornet band broke into "Hail, the Conquering Hero Comes!" and three cheers and a vigorous tiger burst from the audience, Babson turned to Congressman Beatty, whose valiant work in Washington had aided to tap Eden Valley creek and secure permission to run the diversion canal through the public domain, and remarked that he had not lived in vain.

Bowing to the audience, he removed his shiny top hat and laid it on a small plain table before him. He gazed lovingly at the magic push-button, his hand reached lingeringly out to press it, all unseen by his auditors (happily, he had taken the precaution so to place his hat that the pressing of the button would not be observed) when a rude interruption occurred.

A commanding voice cried sharply, "Stop that, Babson!" and Babson stayed his hand to glance up angrily. Nate Tichenor stepped up on the platform; behind him came his wife and Rube Tenney, and a silence that was almost thunderous settled over the grove as it was observed that all three were wearing two six-shooters each. Straight to Babson's side Tichenor strode; he delivered upon the Babson shoulder a gentle accolade with a blue-backed, legal-looking document and then thrust it into Babson's hand, the while he said so all might hear:

form waited grimly, then Nate Tichenor said, "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you'll be broke." His wife put her arm through his and together they descended the two short steps to the audience, while Mr. Tenney, grinning evilly, trudged stolidly in the rear. Down through the center aisle they passed to an automobile waiting outside the grove. They entered and rolled away, as Silas Babson was reading aloud to his people the damnable legal document that had changed his hour of triumph into one of despair. With difficulty controlling his voice he announced:

"Mr. Tichenor has a habit of dramatizing himself, and while he has, of course, robbed this historic moment of certain high lights I had provided for your entertainment, still his rude and ungenerous in-

...ing to revoke my previous view of the constitutionality of the act of 1917, and the Code of Civil Procedure, upon which the defendant corporation has based its argument in the issue at trial.

"In general, the Supreme court of the state of California holds that there is no such thing as flood storm, or freshet waters in stream, but merely a seasonal rise and fall of the stream, and that waters therein, not merely the so-called summer or normal flow, as riparian to the bed thereof, are not to be diverted from such riparian lands for the use and benefit of a non-riparian owner. The Supreme court holds that all of the waters of said river (which, of course, applies to all streams throughout the state) are an inalienable and vested right of the owners of the lands riparian thereto.

"This court has no alternative but to award to the plaintiff the permanent injunction prayed for, restraining forever the defendant public service corporation, Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, from diverting any of the waters of Eden Valley creek. This court also assesses the costs of this action to the defendants, as prayed for in the complaint, and it is so ordered. At a later date the court will issue a formal written decision, but the court can see no reason for refraining from rendering an informal decision at this time and referring the defendant corporation to its sole and inalienable right at law—the right to acquire the lands of the Bar H Land and Cattle company et al. through condemnation suit or purchase by private treaty. Court is dismissed."

There was nothing else for Silas Babson to do save weep—and he did. He laid his tired head on the counsel table and sobbed as if his heart must break. "Don't take it so hard, Mr. Babson," his counsel continued. "You have one more arrow in your quiver. The district can still condemn Eden Valley and acquire its water rights."

"Of course it can," Nate Tichenor was speaking from the other side of the counsel table. "But Eden Valley's fertile acres far exceed that of Forlorn Valley, and it is infinitely more valuable. You cannot have Eden Valley for less than two million dollars and the lands of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district are already mortgaged to the limit."

Babson, red-eyed, gazed at him with something of the malevolence of a trapped mink. "You've ruined Forlorn Valley," he quavered. "You realize that, don't you?"

"I haven't given any thought to Forlorn Valley," Nate replied coldly. "Just now I'm reveling in the joy that comes of the knowledge I have ruined you. All I have to do to save Forlorn Valley is to press a button."

"For God's sake, Mr. Tichenor, do it," Babson pleaded. "All these poor people—"

"Who refused to permit me to be kind to them and save them from ruin," Tichenor interrupted harshly. "All these poor people who followed their false leader blindly and stupidly, who refused to

When he bowed to the board and started to leave the chamber. There was silence until he was half way down the aisle, then a storm of hisses and boos broke around him. Gagan looked back as he reached the door and saw that Silas Babson was on his feet, his hand raised for silence. "So you're going to refute my statement, eh?" Gagan called back. "Well, before I depart I'll give you and your deluded followers some very good advice, free. The man who acts as his own attorney has a fool for a client."

CHAPTER XII

BABSON'S speech, in rebuttal to Gagan's, proved to be the masterpiece of his career. He read to the meeting the law under which the district proposed to operate—read it right out of the Code of Civil Procedure, too—and pooh-poohed the idea of a slick metropolitan lawyer trying to frighten honest and intelligent men with crazy bugaboos of unconstitutional law that was and for some years had been embodied in the code. "If this law was unconstitutional," he yelled, "its unconstitutionality would have been discovered before the bill was even submitted to the legislature; and if it hadn't been discovered then the legislature, a majority of whom are practicing attorneys, would have discovered it; and even if the legislature had, unbelievably, failed to discover it, the Supreme court, whose duty it is to pass upon the constitutionality of our state laws, would long since have discovered it. Pooh-pooh and a couple of what-nots for the mighty Mr. Gagan! We are not to be frightened by men of straw."

The project moved forward without delay. Sixty days from the date of the approval of the petition by the board of supervisors the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district had come into legal existence, by a very substantial majority of the residents in the area to be irrigated. Silas Babson, tired, but happy and triumphant, was its president. Henry Rookby, who owned ten acres in the district, was the secretary, and the Bank of Valley Center was the depository of the funds of the district. Within two weeks after the district had come into official being, the state water commission obligingly allocated to it the flood waters of Eden Valley creek. A bond issue was got out within a week; within two weeks the state board of certification had certified the bonds as legal investments for trust companies and savings banks and, by unanimous vote, Silas Babson was given the job of disposing of them to the came into his arms. He held her close, his finger under her chin, tipping her sweet face toward him, the while he appraised her hungrily, comparing her with the girls of her age in the world he had known before the homing instinct had brought him back to Eden Valley. He thanked God she wasn't lay. He thanked God she wasn't soft, that she had high courage, initiative, and the power of instantaneous decision in an emergency; that hers was the old, fierce, unquestioned loyalty that was his own heritage. A man could rely on her always (he told himself), know always exactly where she stood. Her code was a masculine one, but of a quality rare enough in this decadent generation—the code of a gallant gentleman, plus that of the very finest of her own sex. Yes, she had character, courage, humor, self-reliance, capabilities of extreme self-sacrifice, tenderness, helplessness—an angel with a touch of the devil in her. Well, better a touch of the devil than a trace of the cat. "Dear little outlaw, I love you so," he murmured, and kissed her a dozen times. "Make it snappy. Time and visibility wait for no pilot." Half an hour later, as they roared upward in great spirals to the gain altitude before crossing the mountains, they looked down on Eden Valley; to that tragic creek winding its silvery way through the meadows, to the little black dots that were Lorry's cattle and the little white dots that were the home-made tombstones, chiseled from native granite, and marking the graves of all the Hensleys and Kershaws that had gone before. assembly. Those who are pessimistic about the youth should have had a look at that fine group—then their ideas would have changed.

We are thankful for the great progress of our church. Dr. Keifer records a combined increase in all denominations of 655,482. Methodism contributed one-third of this net gain with 213,662 new members, which is 20,000 more than the nearest denomination's net increase in the United States.

INTRODUCTION
The lesson we studied last week by itself would be a dreadful one; that is, if it ended the story. But the cross never ends the story. This is one of the splendid things about it. Its dark, hopeless, incidents always have a bright, hopeful conclusion. The resurrection throws back upon the crucifixion a radiance that robs it of its horror, that transforms the hateful cross into a symbol of the victory of heaven's King over earth's sinfulness, of life over death.

What has been said of earlier portions of the narrative of the Gospels applies with even greater force to the account of the resurrection. The reports of the four evangelists should be combined, studied together, for they supplement and complement one another. Matthew and Mark are brief and incomplete in comparison to Luke and John.

JESUS APPEARS TO THE WOMEN.

The first group of women to appear at the empty sepulcher on Sunday morning departed quickly still terrified but full of great joy (Weymouth). With all possible speed they ran into the city, to bring his disciples word. It appears that Peter and John upon hearing the news ran to the tomb only to find it empty and return much perplexed into the city. Mary Magdalene following them appeared again at the sepulcher before the darkness was gone and to her Jesus first appeared as recorded by John. The other women, however, after they went away from the tomb actually met the Master who said to them, "All hail!" They recognized him at once "and took him by the feet and worshipped him." That is, they "grasped his feet" and bowed to the ground before him. By allowing them to touch his body he proved his physical reality.

THE WOMEN TELL THE GOOD NEWS, v. 8.

"And they departed quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy." A fear-filled awe because of the vision of the angel and their contact with the super-natural; a glorious joy because of the assurance that their dear Master and Saviour was alive again. After we have fully felt the awfulness of his divine power, we should go on to take comfort in the thought that he who is so great and mighty is also our Protector.—Dean R. W. Church. "If we are even now rising from death—from the death of sin, from the death of our evil hearts, from the death of our uncharity, from the death of our selfishness—if, even now, we are beginning to feel and know that Christ is the Resurrection and the Life, then, indeed, with angels and archangels and all the company of heaven, we may laud and magnify God's glorious name, praising him in the full tide of Master joys."—Dean W. W. Farrar. "And man to bring his disciples word." "Angels to the women on Calvary; the women to the Twelve; the Twelve to the world. So the fiery cross was carried from mountain ridge to mountain ridge, one bearer laying it down and another taking it up until it had summoned all the clan to the standard of the chief."—Rev. William Arnot.

THE TEN APPEARANCES OF JESUS.

"The argument from the ten appearances of the risen Lord is conclusive in favor of the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. These appearances could not in any sense be considered illusions. Indeed they had to be repeated a number of times in order to convince the Apostles of the fact of Jesus' resurrection. He appeared several times to individuals: To Mary Magdalene, to the other women, to Peter, to the Apostles as a group: Three times in Jerusalem—one on the evening of the resurrection Day, another on the next Sunday evening and the last as Ascension Day; and two times in Galilee—one to the seven disciples by the lakeside after a night of fishing, and again on the mountain to a group numbering nearly six hundred believers. As long as they lived they declared that they had seen the very person of their risen Lord. Can such testimony be doubted for one moment?"

THE GREAT COMMISSION

"All authority has been given unto me in heaven and on earth." What a staggering assertion! We after nineteen hundred years, hear it without surprise; millions upon millions, since that day when it was first uttered, have accepted it as his bare right. How is it that, after all these centuries of change and advance, men so readily accord Christ as distinction that he claims? Is it not because there was something in the character, teaching, and work of Jesus Christ which corresponded with and justified his assumption of prerogative so unique and startling?"—Rev. George Hanson, D. D.

"Whence the Nazarene's influence in every department of human life? Why have not such men as Plato, Socrates, Confucius and Buddha dominated the world? Why does this man, when introduced in China and India, displace Confucius and Buddha in the hearts of the people? Why has not one greater than he been produced by the advancing intellect of the centuries?" Rev. George P. Rutledge.

GO YE THEREFORE, v. 19.

It is significant that the first two letters of gospel are "go". Ours is an ever advancing, forward-pushing, missionary religion. And it is so because of Christ's authority; therefore it could not be so with anything less than infinite power and authority back of it. "And make disciples of all nations." This command is not to civilize; it is not to educate; it is not to heal, it is not to make converts to any special creed, or to propagate any special dogma; it is to make disciples of Christians of all nations."—Rev. Len G. Broughton, D. D.

FOR 1900 YEARS

The Church of Christ has been established. It has been wholly adequate for all of man's religious needs. It was that which was perfect. It has stood the persecution of the ages. It has persistently held up the plain, simple Bible teachings that pertain to man's salvation. It has taught man how to conduct himself in his Christian life in order to remain a child of God and to be acceptable to him at the end of life's journey. It has never changed its message. It has never changed any of its creed. It has never voted membership to the church. Its doors have never Christ is the door—He is not willing that any should perish—He gladly welcome all that will obey His will.

It has never been opposed to religious divisions, yet has never compromised with the world, nor with man made doctrines to bring this kind of a union about. The Church strives towards "Unity" not "Union." Unity can be had when all people are satisfied to take the Bible and it alone for their creed.

Salvation is offered through the church, the body of Christ. No one denies this statement. All that younger religious organizations claim to offer is something "just as good." This Church is worthy of your sincere investigation. Ask any member why they are a member of the Church of Christ. Better still, come and study the Bible with us. The Bible is all that we have to offer. We do not care to offer more!

June 11th., 1934
Dear Editor:

When we arranged for my announcement for reelection to the office of State Representative we should have made mention of the matter of securing passage of a concurrent resolution clearing the way for Pringle Consolidated School District, Morse Independent School District and Gruver Independent School District to receive money to which they were entitled as consolidated bonus, but which they had never received.

The matter was first brought to my attention by Supt. J. B. Speer of Morse and Judge J.H. Broadhurst of Hansford County, on behalf of the Morse school. After preparatory work at Austin, I suggested that Mr. Speer come down to help clear up some points and the final results was that there was authorized to be paid to these three school districts a total of $7,800. Pringle school was $800, Morse $3,000 and Gruver $4,000.

Credit is due Supt. Speer for his untiring effort over a period of three years, in behalf of the Morse school and in working on his case the others were developed.

Joining our efforts with those being made in the Senate by Margie Neal in behalf of the Tatum Independent School District in a similar case, all were included in Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 1.

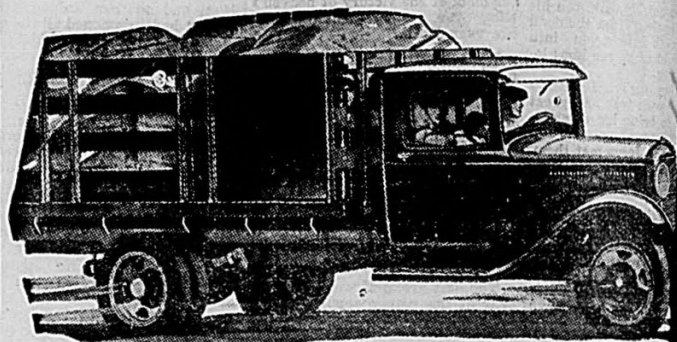

Senator Small supported my resolution in the Senate and other way on point of have prevented its passage in the Senate as and Snays.

In the Speaker overruled a motion of order made against the resolution and the vote on final passage was 100 for and only 2 against.

This will illustrate one of the many ways in which the interest and welfare of the people he represents depends upon the efforts of their Representative. Results are dependent there as elsewhere on energy and resourcefulness together with discretion and ability to persuade and convince others. After all there is no substitute for sincerity and honest hard work.

Tri-State Fair Races Begin Friday June 15th at Amarillo Track

Amarillo, June 16, 1934. The Tri-State Fair's horse racing program which starts here Friday afternoon at 2:30 will be conducted just exactly as the meetings at the famous Arlington Downs track near Fort Worth. Seven races will be conducted each day with eight entries in each race.

Faithful in every detail to the methods used by officials at the Arlington Downs, the Fair's program will give Panhandle racing fans all the thrills and excitement of any major track.

Under the guidance of Sidney S. Bender nationally known handicapper, the conditions for the Amarillo races have been made so that every race will be a contest insofar as it is humanly possible to rate horses. Everyone knows that every so often a long shot comes in to upset the carefully planned dope, which, of course, produces one of racing's greatest thrills.

Trainers, riders and color licenses must be paid before any horse can race here.

All weights assigned to horses tried. A double-check system will be used to guarantee this. Jockeys will weigh in the secretary's office and again at the tracks under the judges' stand.

Bender has been in Amarillo for several days arranging details. He came here from Dayton, Ohio, where he was an official at the big meeting there. He contacted horse owners and jockeys in Kansas City and reported he had succeeded in signing up outstanding horses and riders to race here.

Thirty-five thoroughbreds in the stables here Monday morning. Over 100 horses from Panhandle meetings were to move over Tuesday. The 35 horses on hand 125 definite ones.

The meeting will close the Panhandle derby, the final day on the 25th. The race will be Southwest's best for a $500 added purse offered.

A survey shows the market for automobiles is nowhere near exhausted, as there are still several million homes that have not been mortgaged to buy a car.

there are plenty of unnecessary kind left over.

Morse Faculty For 1935 School Year Completed This Week

Morse, June 8.—The president of the school board of the Morse Independent School District has just received official notice of the full accrediting of the Morse High School from the State Department of Education, Austin, Texas. The notice reads in part as follows:

"The superintendent, the board and the entire citizenship of the community are to be commended for their splendid little system of schools."

The Morse High School now holds sixteen accredited units as follows:

Band 1-2 unit; Commercial

Geography, 1-2 unit; Advanced Arithmetic 1-2 unit; commercial law 1-2 unit; all of which were granted this year, and the following credits which were previously granted: English 4 units; Algebra 2 units; Plain Geometry 1 unit; General Science 1 unit; Biology 1 unit; Physics 1 unit; World History 1 unit; Civics 1-2 unit; Economics 1-2 unit; Occupations 1-2 unit.

Plans are now being considered that may enable students of this school to take bookkeeping and typewriting next term.

County Agent Wendt Will Prepare County Exhibit For Fair

County Agent Frank Wendt plans to see that Hansford county is represented at the Tri-State Fair this year with a booth and carefully prepared exhibits of this county's products. In the future he will be on the lookout for exceptionally fine specimens of garden and field products. He also requests that anyone having fine specimens of wheat, barley, rye or oats to bring him a sample of such grain to use in the exhibit. Canned goods will also be used in the display.
