TRANSIENT SIGN PAINTER GYP SEVERAL HERE

A traveling sign painter visited Stratford last week and sold several business firms space on a sign board he proposed to erect on the highway, but failed to carry out his agreement. He went to the Panhandle Lumber Co., and secured some material and proceeded to paint the signs with cheap paint on canvas, which he tacked on the board, but the heavy rains came up and the paint ran on the canvass until it was a mess. He then threw his work down in the mud and has not been seen since. We should have some kind of an organization here to refer these crafters to and make them show legitimate credentials before they are allowed to work the town.—Stratford Star.

INTO THE SPOTLIGHT

"I understand you think of retiring from public life and going into the motion-picture industry." "I shouldn't call it 'retiring from public life,'" rejoined Senator Sorghum, for a statesman to associate himself with the films these days is like emerging from comparative obscurity."

HER MARTIAL CREED

Mrs. Worth had just learned that her colored workwoman, Aunt Dinah, had at the age of seventy married for the fourth time. "Why Aunt Dinah," she exclaimed, "you surely haven't married again!" "Yassum, honey, I has," was Aunt Dinah's smiling reply. "Jes' as of'en as de Lawd takes 'em, so will I."

NOT THE CAKE KIND

Mrs. Newlywed (tearfully, after complaints about sponge cake) —"It's that wretched drug clerk's fault—he must have given me the wrong k-kind of sponges!"

SINGLE TRACK MIND

"When is your daughter thinking of getting married?" "Constantly."

The Croon Sets A New Style In Singing

LILLIAN DAWSON

Many Singers Now Know This Trick, Declares Lillian Dawson

New York City—That broadcasting has done more than any other agency to give the natural, untrained singer an opportunity is the opinion of Lillian Dawson, famous radio crooner.

"Crooning which has become so popular cannot be done according to rule and rote of the singing teachers," declares Miss Dawson. "In fact, it is contrary to all accepted rules of the great masters but nevertheless a new sweet tone is being evolved and a complete revolution in singing technique is very possible."

"The commercially successful singers are nearly all crooners, that is, singers who can talk their voices into the microphone. The exact opposite means are used in the control of volume of tone. "The most popular crooners cannot be heard a foot away from the microphone. They sing with a peculiar softness akin to a whisper which the ether waves seem to pick up and transport with greater clarity than any other sound. They must also have songs of great sweetness and melody such as 'A Big Bouquet For You,' probably the crooningest song ever written."

Miss Dawson comes of a family of singers and is the first untrained voice in her theatrical family to make good.

MARY GARDEN

Mary Garden, the distinguished prima donna soprano who will be heard in concert recital at Amarillo on Monday night, November 3rd at the City Auditorium under the auspices of the Tri-State Fair was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, but came to America at an early age, living in New England with her parents until 1888 at which time the Garden family moved to Chicago and it is that city that has since claimed her as "their Mary."

Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the Tri-State Fair has secured a splendid contract for the Garden appearance at Amarillo. He has been able to announce his ticket sale at from one to three dollars. In other cities Miss Garden sings at much higher prices and at her New York City recital on October 25 at Carnegie Hall the tickets sell for $5.50 down. The fact that the engagement here is a percentage one and that Mr. Hawk will issue no passes makes the scale of from one to three dollars possible.

Miss Garden, who returned to America on the record breaking liner Bremen last October 8 will sing in three Texas cities, Amarillo, Waco and Dallas. She goes from Amarillo to the West Coast where she will make a motion picture voice test for M. G. M. In mid-December she will sing the world premiere in Chicago for the Chicago Civic Opera Company of the new opera by Hamilton Forest, "Camille."

Mail check or money order now for tickets to Wilbur C. Hawk, care of Globe-News, Amarillo, where they will be filled in the order of their receipt. Those patrons from out of town who happen to be in Amarillo can call at Mr. Hawk's office at the Globe-News and purchase their tickets direct from the chart of the Auditorium he has there for their convenience.

THE POWER OF WILL ROGERS

Ready wit, blunt candor, a shrewd ability to analyze men and events, have made Will Rogers the friend alike of Presidents and peasants, of cattlemen and kings.

His homely philosophy, his absolute artlessness, his straightforward reasoning and his knack for pure humor—humor which is true statement of fact—have made him one of the most widely listened-to men in the whole world.

Through the movies, from the stage, from lecture platforms, in newspapers, in magazines, over the radio, Will Rogers reaches regularly nearly every body who understands the English language. And every word he utters is his own idea, every sentence that appears in print under his name has been written by Will Rogers and by Will Rogers alone—except of course in the movies when he is playing a part. Even then he ad lib lines that never occurred to the author of the play.

If the President of the United States says a thing is so, the Democrats may doubt him. But if Will Rogers backs him up, even the Democrats believe. In Washington they say that the senate fears Will Rogers more than all the editors in America. For Rogers, in 100 words, can laugh away the effect of hours of oratory and weeks of research.

"You never can have another war in this country," a Washington statesman has said, "unless Will Rogers is for it."—Jerome Betty in the American.

KEEN COMPETITION

It is said that sharks will not bite a swimmer who keeps his legs in motion. The difficulty of course is to keep kicking longer than a shark can keep waiting.

The government has found that the new money is acceptable to the public. We wouldn't say that it required an expert to come to that conclusion.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

Football is a great game, but after all it is only a game. It is not to be taken too seriously. It is nothing over which there should be a lot of feeling and animosity. Good sportsmanship is another term for common decency—in accepting defeat with good grace, in recognizing that the officials know more about the game than the by-standers, in refraining from offering alibis when the game is lost.

This paragraph is offered at this time because scarcely a football season passes without some gross violation of the code of good sportsmanship on the part of football players.

Examples of extreme partisanship on the part of visiting rooters here are numerous. We have all heard the crowd cheer the decisions of alibis for the failure of their favorite team to make a good exhibition. Local people who have found this attitude on the part of the visitors extremely distasteful, will do well to keep it in mind when they visit other cities. Avoid similar unsportsmanlike conduct. Football is a difficult game to follow. It takes three officials to see that the rules are enforced. How then can the by-stander know very little about the logically dispute every carrier. Many things may while a play is on that not see. Officials all have parts of the game to watch can naturally see more. Poor decisions are often to be sure, but a team may by one and gain by another affected thereby. When on football for those who call it as a game.

Hasty Marriages Flayed By District Judge W. R. Ewing

The custom of going across the line into Oklahoma or New Mexico to get married was flayed in a scorching condemnation of hasty marriages by Judge W. R. Ewing in his 81st district court yesterday.

The court emphasized that the lesson to be learned by the plaintiff in a divorce suit which was brought up for trial yesterday was: "If one lives in Texas and goes across the Oklahoma or New Mexico line to get married and later files a suit for divorce in the 81st district court, that person will not get the divorce unless the grounds are exceedingly good."

Judge Ewing was emphatic on the point and he refused to grant a decree to the plaintiff, a man, whose grounds included "physical and mental brutality."

The judge announced that he was adhering to a proclamation he issued recently, in which he said he would be reluctant to grant divorces to people who are in such a hurry to marry they are unwilling to comply with the Texas law and post three days notice of their intention to apply for marriage license.

Cites Law Evasion

"Those people who run over in the state of Oklahoma for the express purpose of evading the laws of Texas, and enter into a hasty and often ill-advised marriage, and then after mature deliberation discover they made a serious mistake, and the marriage proves a failure—they can expect no favors from this court," the judge declared.

"Such marriages frequently do prove to be failures, and the parties fly to the courts of Texas and appeal to the very laws they were unwilling to comply with in getting married, to be relieved from the obligations of their marriage vows—vows that were so lightly taken!"

"Marriages contracted under such circumstances are frequently not entered into in good faith by either or both of the parties and finally culminate in a divorce suit, and the party suing, if the truth could be known, usually has no legal grounds for divorce. In such cases, the parties can go to Oklahoma or to other courts for their divorces—it will not be granted in my court, except possibly in exceptional cases."

"I do not mean to hold that going out of the state to get married is legal grounds for denying a divorce. But usually in such cases, if the truth were disclosed, and all the truth is not often disclosed, the party is not entitled to a divorce."

Up to Judge

Nearly all divorce cases are tried before the court without a jury, and the judge trying the case is exclusive judge of the facts proven, the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to be given to their testimony; that is, the judge may or may not believe the witness, and his judgment in such cases is rarely disturbed on appeal.

"At a meeting of the district judges sometime ago," Judge Ewing continued, "it was the opinion of the judges that more frauds were perpetrated upon the courts in divorce matters than in any other class of cases. The courts are too lenient in granting divorces. In my fourteen years' experience on the bench, some of the hardest cases I have tried have been contested divorce cases."

Judge Ewing said it was his belief that "in many instances vows mean nothing to either party—merely a means to an end—a marriage certificate, a mere scrap of paper. The divorce evil is growing. Court dockets are burdened with divorce cases. The fault is not with the law but with the courts. Courts as a rule are too hasty in granting divorces. If they were more strict, there would not be nearly so many hasty, ill-advised marriages. But when a divorce case is contested, and the defendant has the opportunity to present his or her side of the case, it is usually a different proposition."—Pampa News.

KNOWS A FELLOW

The Echo man knows a fellow in town that has sufficient of this world's goods for himself and family to live on for the remainder of their natural lives, and yet he is about to starve to death talking about hard times. He is always talking about what will become of him when he gets old and what will become of his loved ones after he is dead and gone. All the Echo man knows about this good friend is that he will never live to get old unless he will become so blue that he will literally starve to death, and his good family will have plenty to live on, to say nothing about that big life insurance policy that he has paid for. In fact, it begins to look to us that it would be a good thing for the old boy to turn up his toes some day and pass on. The Book says that when a man's work is ended he is called home. It won't be long now.—Hopkins County Echo.

The man who drove across the continent in reverse says that it gave him a pain in the neck. Strange, it did that for the rest of us too.

WATCH FOR BANDED DUCKS

Sportsmen going afield this season to take daily and seasonal bags of wild ducks and other game birds may find occasionally a numbered aluminum band on one leg of a bird. Bird-banding co-operators of the Bureau of Biological Survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in advancing its studies of North American water fowl, have banded game birds at more than 50 stations in the United States and Canada, from the Arctic region south to Louisiana and Georgia and from Maine to California. The Biological Survey desires a report on every banded bird that is recovered and requests the co-operation of sportsmen. The report should state the number printed on the band including any series designation, such as A, B, or C, and the date and locality where the bird was obtained. In return, the Biological Survey will tell the person rendering the report where and when the bird was banded, and send interesting information on the application of the banding method to bird study.

Bird banding, as conducted by the Biological Survey and its 1,700 co-operators, furnishes a means of obtaining information regarding conservation measures. The banding records of the bureau have furnished much information on hunting and conservation methods, such as showing the regions that are visited by particular concentrations of birds. The solution of these problems means much to the perpetuation of the sport of wild-fowling, and sportsmen are accordingly urged to examine the ducks and other wild fowl in their bags and report banded birds to the Biological Survey.

CHECK DEAL IS WORK FOR MATH SHARKS

Here's one for the mathematical sharks and bankers!

E. H. Brice of Dalhart, sold a calf worth $15 to a man here who gave in payment a check for $22.50. Mr. Brice did not have sufficient change so he went to the bank and cashed the check, later taking the $7.50 change to the purchaser of the calf.

Subsequently it was found that the check was no good, and Mr. Brice, because of his endorsement on it when he cashed it at the bank, was called upon by the bank to make it good.

Most of Dalhart was busy Monday trying to figure how much Mr. Brice will actually lose on the deal. Amounts have varied from $7.50 to $45. Can you figure it?

POWER OF ADVERTISING

Advertising has developed with a generation in the United States until at this time more money is spent for advertising than is expended for the entire heat crop of the United States.

ness, profession and art. Apparently there appears no reasonable limit to the continued growth of advertising.

Thirty and thirty five years ago there was a question in the minds of conservative people regarding the truthfulness of advertising.

Today the advertising columns of newspapers, daily and weekly, are read closely as are the news columns. Exclusive of fake advertising has taken place and new and improved methods or forms of advertising have won the appreciation of the general public to a marked degree.

The last 30 years has seen advertising become the most important factor in the distribution and sales of commodities and service, and the ensuing 30 years will witness even a more pronounced advancement and development in the field of advertising.—Harvard (Ill.) Herald.

SCHOOL EDITION PRAISED

The Spearman Reporter came out last week with a splendid twenty-page edition portraying the new $100,000 high school building recently completed and occupied there.

TIP TO CALAMITY HOWLERS

A firm of New York printers and lithographers, Ritterband, Reed & Co., has issued a book that is so short we can column the whole thing for you.

"A naturalist divided an aquarium with a clear glass partition. He put a rusty bass in one section and minnows in the other. The bass would strike every time a minnow approached the glass partition. After three days of fruitless lunging which netted him only bruises, he ceased his efforts and subsided on the food that was dropped in. Then the naturalist removed the glass partition. The minnows swam all around the bass, but he did not strike at a single one. He was thoroughly sold on the idea that business was bad. Moral: Take another shot at the glass partition. Maybe it isn't there any more."—Kansas City Star.

PESSIMISM AND FEAR

The man who complains about business but fails to make any effort to improve his own business is the only one who finds times exceedingly hard. The fellow who is hustling, comes out pretty well when the financial statement is compiled.

A friend observes that there is plenty of business right now according to his experience, but it is a little harder to get it, that's all. A little more hard work—a little more hard planning—and a little more optimism will soon drive this depression out of American life.

It is harsh reality, we know, to those who are out of work and are wondering how to meet their obligations, but their troubles are largely due to fear on the part of others who refuse to take a chance and do their part toward improving business.

A COMMUNITY DISEASE

One of the greatest obstacles to community achievement and to the development of co-operative activity is envy. Business men, farmers, in fact people in all walks of life find it hard to work with their more successful competitors.

This human failing is almost universal. Rare indeed is that man who is absolutely free from the vice. It is hard, as the editor knows from self analysis, to overcome the little spirit of jealousy that arises when a competitor prospers. But to get anywhere in our town it is necessary to recognize this disease and seek to eradicate it.

And to effect such a cure it is necessary first to start on yourself. Some day when you are taking a little walk try to pry into your own character. See if you have not been guilty of a feeling of envy and jealousy toward some of your colleagues. We'll hazard the guess that you will find many things for criticism if you are honest with yourself.

You will then come to realize that the real reason you failed to work on a committee with the right spirit was because of the same group might be able to attain greater success than you can see ahead for yourself.

Strive then to throw off this petty spirit. Reason that the way to greater success for yourself is through greater prosperity for the entire community. Forget about the little petty things that your competitor may do. Seek to be bigger in spirit than he.

And when you and others in the community acquire this attitude we will have a better town. We will secure the kind of co-operation that makes for achievement, and Spearman will take its place among the really good towns of its state and nation.

RESPONSIBILITY

As we look this day into the laughing eyes of innocent boys and girls, we shudder as we think of the events that have passed in review from 1:30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, May 23, 1928, until Jake Fleagle passed away on a hospital bed in Springfield, Missouri, at 3:55 a. m., Wednesday October 15. Must the patchwork of the thing we call a span of life always have some chapters like this one; must there always be little children who are some day to become wolves tearing at the happiness of those round about them and finding at the end that they have also destroyed their own happiness, which after all is all we can hope to achieve in this life. Are we as human beings never to be apply in a practical way the awful lessons we inflict upon ourselves. The great human family must some day learn that its safety lies in the interest that it displays in each member of that family. It is not enough to rear in the seclusion of your own home a boy, a girl, who becomes your own selfish pride, but that neighbor boy and girl also merit the attention of yourself and all society.—Lamar (Colo.) Daily News.

WELL-KNOWN PEST

"Why did you decline to express your opinion when that caller asked for it?" inquired the secretary.

"He didn't really want my opinion," replied Senator Sorghum. "He was lonesome and wanted to start an argument."

RIVAL BIDDERS

The clergyman's eloquence may have been at fault, still he felt annoyed to find that an old gentleman fell asleep during the sermon on two consecutive Sundays. So, after service on the second week, he told the boy who accompanied the sleeper that he wished to speak to him in the vestry.

"My boy," said the minister, when they were close together, "who is that elderly gentleman you attend church with?"

"Grandpa," was the reply. "Well," said the clergyman, "if you will only keep him awake during my sermon, I'll give you a nickle each week."

The boy fell in with the arrangement, and for the next two weeks the old gentleman listened attentively to the sermon. The third week, however, found him soundly asleep.

The vexed clergyman sent for the boy and said: "I am very angry with you. Didn't I promise you a nickle a week to keep him awake?"

"Yes," replied the boy, "but grandpa now gives me a dime not to disturb him."

Pres. State Federation of Women's Clubs Favors Amendments

OUNT PLEASANT, Texas, October 20.—Support of the constitutional amendments was urged at a civic duty Thursday by Mrs. R. F. Lindsay, president of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, speaking here. Mrs. Lindsay said:

"The constitutional amendments that have been submitted to be voted on in the general election will result in wholesome and desired changes in our fundamental law, and I hope that the voters of Texas, both men and women, will be diligent in the civic duty of good citizenship imposed upon them, but will vote without regard to party or factional differences for these wholesome changes."

"The amendment enabling the supreme court to sit at any time, as long been needed. The measure permitting the taxing of university lands by the counties in which they are situated meets a real need, and the one broadening the investment field for university funds will increase the income of its institution. The legislative amendments, providing as they do for an improved legislative procedure and for more appropriate salaries, are deserving of passage."

JOHN G. McLARTY PASSED AWAY

Word was received last week that John G. McLarty, a former resident of Texas County, passed to his reward on Tuesday, October 7 at his home in Sudan, Texas.

Deceased came from Georgia with his parents when a boy and settled with them in Ochiltree County, Texas, where he remained with them till reaching his majority. Later he moved to Guymon and remained for a number of years, engaging in the mercantile business, and leaving, again sought residence in Texas, finally locating at Sudan, Texas, where he was engaged in the retail dry goods business when the end came. John G. McLarty was in sympathy with and was a friend to mankind. The consideration and substantial accommodations extended by him to the farmers and laboring men of Texas County, particularly the southern portion, at times when crop failures and droughts were on, endeared him to them in a measure almost incomparable. His generosity, his fair dealing, his sympathetic nature and his heartedness at times when assistance was most needed, are acts and traits of character so indelibly stamped upon their memory that time itself will never erase. His passing away at the early age of 54 years was a terrible shock to his Texas County friends and old customers of this section. This paper extends sympathy to his widow, children and other relatives.—Guymon Herald.

Moody Wears Texas Made Clothes

Governor Dan Moody, guest of honor at the All-East-Texas Products Dinner, is to wear Texas Made Clothes from head to toes. The suit, shirt, socks, necktie, underwear and handkerchief were made for the governor by the Pool Manufacturing Co., of Sherman, Texas, and are all made of cotton fabrics. Shoes were furnished by H. J. Justin & Sons of Ft. Worth and hat by Willard Hat Co. of Dallas. John W. Carpenter, toastmaster for the occasion is also wearing Texas-Made Clothes, including a hat furnished by the Davis Hat Co. of Dallas.

DON'T GET HOOKED

Any firm or corporation which is not listed in the mercantile agency books should furnish unquestionable bank references if they desire credit for advertising. If they don't or won't do this, your chances of collecting are about one to one hundred. There are times when many schemers are out to hook the unwary. Don't get hooked yourself, and don't help some unprincipled schemer to hook your readers. If in doubt, throw it in the waste basket.—Michigan Bulletin.

Problems of Empire

Texas in area and natural resources often has been called, and rightly, an empire. It is the coming empire State, and within a generation will be admittedly a leading Commonwealth in the Union.

But this coming leadership demands that those who control the destiny of the State should have vision and foresight sufficient to plan in a large way a program as a guide for action in later years. Topsy "just grew," but scientific growth is based on intelligent surveys of situations and wise judgments.

Texas has enormous natural wealth, but the wealth from the production of it enriches outsiders; little remains within the State. It has much capital in its financial centers, but comparatively little of it is invested in Texas industries. The purchasing power of its almost six millions of population is huge in amount, but the goods purchased mostly come from outside the State.

Through ignorance the fertile lands of Texas are declining in fertility because of erosion and a one-crop system; its magnificent forests have been shamelessly wasted and practically no attempts made to reforest cut-down areas, suited only to timber. Texas is an empire of natural wealth, but its economic leaders accumulate wealth for themselves with small forethought for the future generations of Texas.

The best wealth of Texas consists of the energy and brain capacity of its people. Among these is much dormant talent that should have opportunity for expression in action. But more than half the population are so poor that their standards of living are necessarily low. In consequence, their children are worked prematurely, and obtaining merely the rudiments of education, they become stunted in body and mind—the greatest waste of a wasteful State.

What Texas needs is a definite program set for the younger generation to accomplish in the next twenty-five years. The resources of Texas should enrich Texas and Texans. Its farming population should own their lands, not be tenants in a condition quite like serfdom. Its empty forest lands should be reforested and exempted from taxation for the period of growth. Small industries should be established in every village and town of the State to supply work and to put on sale Texas-made goods. "Made in Texas" should be a guaranty of excellence in material and manufacture. Above all, the younger generation should be free to acquire a generous education, combined with a training for vocations on the farm and in the future industries of Texas.

Texas needs local Chambers of Commerce, civic improvement societies and city planning. It needs a new Constitution, a reorganized government, wise legislators who can think in terms of an empire State. It should place obligations on its professions to give to its people healthy, good laws, spiritual insight. It should aim to develop that broad intelligence that appreciates the value of the artistic in connection with vigorous applications of the many varieties of science to the problems of the State.

Talk Texas, think Texas, help make Texas famous for its comfortable homes and its wide-awake intelligent citizenship.—Dallas News.

Replacing Old Dairy Stock Good Business

The cheapest improvement in a dairy herd is made by replacing old poor cows with heifers bred from the best cows of the herd, using a purebred bull from a high producing dam. This reasoning is logical, yet many farmers pay little attention to which calves are saved for future milk cows.

Often when the best calves are retained to make up the future herd the calves are stunted in their early growth by poor feed. With proper supplements heifers do just as well on skim milk as on whole milk, after two or three weeks of age, and they can be raised with very little skim milk if the whole milk is desired for other purposes.

The old standard feeds for calves are ground corn, ground oats, wheat bran, and linseed meal. An excellent grain mixture for calves can be made of 200 pounds of ground corn, hominy, or barley; 200 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of linseed meal. This should be fed with skim milk or with a gruel made up of 100 pounds of Red Dog flour, 100 pounds of soluble blood flour, and 100 pounds of linseed meal.

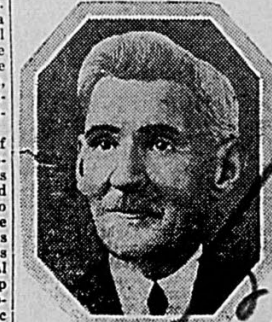

If whey is fed the protein concentrate should be increased, and the grain mixture should be 300 pounds of ground corn, 300 pounds of wheat middlings, and 400 pounds of linseed meal.

Calves should be given all the good hay they will eat, preferably alfalfa or clover, after the second week; they may be fed small quantities of silage after two months of age, if carefully watched. All changes in feeding should be made slowly, taking about 10 days to change from whole milk to skim milk or whey at about three weeks of age.

Success with calves, when they are taken away from the cows, depends largely on replacing the protein which is lost from the ration when the milk is dropped.

Venerable Citizen of San Antonio Tells What Konjola Did in His Stubborn Case

MR. WILLIAM DAVIS

"It was nine years ago that I began having trouble with constipation, indigestion, bloating and poor appetite," says Mr. William Davis, 71, of 732 Kayden Avenue, Dallas. "I took several kinds of medicine but nothing did me the good that Konjola did. I had to take laxatives daily and gas and indigestion followed practically every meal. At times the pain was so severe that I could scarcely bear it. My entire system was run down."

"I read so much about Konjola that I decided to give it a trial. I noticed an improvement within three days and in three weeks I felt better than I had in years. I am telling all my friends about Konjola and expect to take it until I am free from all ailments."

Konjola has done as much for thousands when taken regularly over a period of six to eight weeks. It is truly a master medicine for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Spearman at Hastings drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

MARK TWAIN GETS EVEN

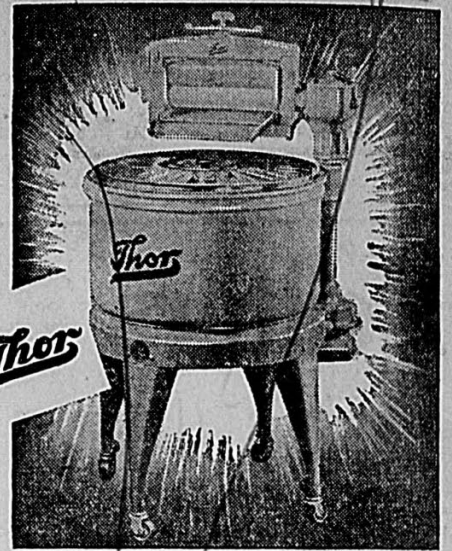

Mark Twain, at a publishers' dinner in New York, talked of his reporting days in Virginia City.

"We were trying a horse thief one day," he said, "and all of a sudden the big burly scoundrel pulled off his boot and threw it at the judge. It was a heavy boot, too. It was studded with hob nails. . . . I am still rather proud of the way I wrote up that little incident, doing it neatly, and at the same time getting back on a rival reporter whom I disliked. I got it all in one paragraph—something like this:

"Suddenly the blackguardly thief, pulling off his boot, hurled it with all his might straight at the judge's head. This desperate act might have been attended with most disastrous consequences, but fortunately, the missile only struck a reporter, so that no harm was done."—The Pathfinder.

Golden Text:—Every man that striveth in the games exerciseth self-control in all things.—1 Corinthians 9:25.

"The duty of citizens to support the laws of the land is co-equal with the duty of their government to enforce the laws which exist. No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor.

"Our whole system of self-government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they will enforce or citizens elect what laws they will support. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destruction of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes and property which they rightly claim under other laws."—President Hoover.

Personal Liberty

"One of the most popular words in the vocabulary of modern times is the word liberty. Yet when one thinks of the claims that are made under the guise of personal liberty, one is moved to say with Madam Roland, 'O Liberty, what crimes have been committed in thy name!' The advocates of the liquor business have been among the loudest in their proclamation of the doctrine of personal liberty; yet here is nothing in the history of the human race which has done more to destroy personal liberty than the drinking of intoxicating liquor. Society is coming to realize more and more clearly that no individual has any inherent right to pursue any course of conduct or indulge in any habit by which he becomes a menace to the social order. Men cannot live together without re-gnizing the truth that their individual liberty is limited by the interest of those with whom they are associated. No man is at liberty to do wrong. Any social custom or any personal habit that brings harm to men and women and children must be condemned."

The Supreme Court and Personal Liberty

"The Supreme Court has knocked the bottom from under the 'personal liberty' argument that what a man eats and drinks is not properly a matter of legislation, and furthermore that any injury following the use of intoxicating liquors is voluntarily inflicted and is confined to the party offending." The court says: "There is in this position an assumption of fact which does not exist, that when the liquors are taken in excess the injuries are confined to the party offending. The injury, it is true, falls first upon him; in his health, which the habit undermines; in his morals, which is weakened; and in his self-abasement, which it creates. But as it leads to neglect of business and waste of property and general demoralization, it affects those who are immediately connected with and dependent upon him." The advocates of a false type of personal liberty should remember that the individual cannot be developed at the expense of society without danger to both. The limitations of the individual's rights are justified either on the ground of his own good, or the self-preservation of society, or both."—J. M. Barker.

The Law of Love

Over against the Jewish idea of bondage to a ceremonial law, and over against the anarchist idea of obligation to no law, Paul sets the Christian idea of a life governed by the law of love. "Use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another." In the Christian relation to his fellow men the only limitation upon his liberty is that which is imposed by love. Love will not permit him to pursue any course that will bring injury to those whom he loves. Love, therefore, is the law of the Christian life.

What Caused National Prohibition

Individuals got a vision of temperance and began to work for it. Dr. Lyman Beecher in 1862 advocated the abolition of liquor from articles sold, saying that this was the only thing that would secure temperance. Others caught the vision and soon a national society was organized to carry on the work of reform.

The churches took up the fight. They could do no less when they realized the significance of the struggle. It was not a movement toward union of church and state. It was carrying out teachings of Jesus and of Paul which deal with the care a Christian should exercise for his brother's welfare. Space would not permit the telling of the many lines of temperance work done by the Protestant churches from 1830 to 1920 as they waged war for temperance. Corporations saw the advantage of temperance, and joined the ranks of those working against liquor. Their chief concern, of course, was efficiency, which involved profits. The individuals and the churches joined the fight for moral and spiritual reasons. The large industries were actuated by other considerations—and they put into force among their workmen total prohibition while others were working for high license and local option. They showed the rest of the nation the way. Thus high license, local option, and dispensary system were soon rejected by all temperance workers. The railroads were among the first to adopt prohibition for their trainmen.

Ten Years of Prohibition

National Prohibition is ten years old. It came into being after thirty-three states had adopted state-wide prohibition. Many states that were not "dry" had large areas that had banished the saloon by local option. The sections that were still "wet" bitterly resented the passage of the prohibition laws and have done much to prevent enforcement. Further, many have worked in many ways to discredit the law, and restore the liquor traffic. Anyone would be unfair to say that the laws had been 100 per cent effective, and would be equally unfair if he did not admit improvement. Those in favor of prohibition speak in high terms of the achievements of the last ten years; the opponents see no good in it at all. Would it not be of value to all old enough to recall the actual conditions of ante prohibition days and compare them with the present? There is good and there is bad. The good can be extended and the bad eliminated.

The Dispensary System

This is the type of liquor store advocated by those dissatisfied with prohibition. It was tried by South Carolina and many towns in other states, and found wanting. The dispensary system is now used in Ontario, and has made no contribution to temperance. It fails there as it did in South Carolina. It would not eliminate the bootlegger, but would give him an easy source of supply. The profits from liquor would probably reduce the tax rate, but who wants to build roads and conduct schools with money spent for liquor by men who do not provide food and clothes for their families? No community could retain its self-respect and commits such an outrage.

Abraham Lincoln On Observance of Law

Abraham Lincoln considered such observance as basic in the life of the nation. He said, "Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of '76 rallied to the support of the Constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property, his sacred honor—let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear up the charter of his own and children's liberty. Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles in her lap; let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling-books, and in almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. In short, let it become the political religion of the nation; let the young and old the rich and poor, the grave and gay, of all sexes and tongues, colors and conditions, sacrifice ceaselessly upon its altars."

Almost Out of Business

George Walker, six, son of I. and Mrs. P. H. Walker of Womble Hardware Company, is his first year in school. His mother was making him ready for school and incidentally imparting just a little motherly advice, when she was astonished to hear: "Mother, it is not necessary that you tell me anything more. Mrs. Olds knows her business and has matters well in hand."
