Band Boosters Doing Good Job And Are Deserving Of Support

One of the newer organizations and one of the more industrious is that of the Band Boosters Club.

The primary purpose is to support the bands in much the same manner that the Quarterback Club takes the lead in backing the football team as well as other teams and activities.

Major project for the year is the securing of uniforms for the junior high band. The uniforms currently in use are handed down from the senior high band and are, in most instances, well worn after years of use.

So far, the only direct appeal for funds has been through the membership fee of $1, a nominal but effective means of expressing confidence and appreciation for the young musicians.

Emphasis has been placed on raising money through enterprise, and the band members and backers have had refreshingly good luck. A scrap drive has yielded a substantial sum. Another activity is renting cushions at football games, a projthat netted $50 the first home game and which prompted an increase in the number of available cushions (friends of the band made it possible to secure these without cost to the band).

You can help by your membership, or by offering to donate scrap which might be cluttering up the place, or by renting a cushion when you turn out for the next

Fire Prevention Week and the lessons it seeks to inculcate is important stuff. How se could it be, when each year 12,000 Americans die by fire and more than twice that many are severely burned or disfigured?

Every day there are 920 fires involving American homes. Every day 33 Americans die in flames. Every day there are 78 store fires, 100 factory fires, 8 church fires, 9 school fires, 4 hospital fires,

In the U. S. and Canada combined, fires destroyed nearly a billion dollars' worth of property last year alone—the largest loss in history.

Oil Men Have Problem Keeping Production Geared To Demand

When one comes to a town like Tulsa, Oklahoma, the conversation soon turns to the subject of oil. Imports from foreign countries come to nearly two times the daily production of petroleum in Oklahoma, I am told, and nobody quite likes that. One matter that concerns oil men is the prospect of flooding the market with Iranian crude oil, which has been off the market since old Mossadegh drove the British out and to which act the world adjusted. That adjustment could be upset if the Iranian oil industry comes into full market sooner or later.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America is to meet at Fort Worth this month to discuss the problems arising from the overproduction of petroleum. Overproduction is a difficult term to use in relation to any commodity. At one period, all that appears on the market is purchased and consumed. Then comes a time when the same amount being produced, the market shows resistance. As regards oil, such resistance has already manifested itself so far as American oil production is concerned.

Already some of the oil states have cut the allowables, by which term is meant the amount of oil that may be taken from the ground each month. Oklahoma, Louisiana and Texas are cutting allowables by 35,000 to 85,000 barrels daily for October Kansas has instituted a 10-day shutdown of oil wells beginning October 15.

Oil is an irreplaceable natural resource which has become essential to our civiliza tion Estimates about how soon we shall run out of oil have proved to be unfounded prophecies. Everytime a frightening article on the subject is published, a new oil field is found or American engineers learn how to dig deeper or how to bring oil out of the ground more efficiently. Therefore, we are not dealing with an immediate lack of oil deposits On the other hand, it would seem to be stupid to waste any natural resource and It would be wasteful if the price of oil

During a war period, such commodities as oil and steel are expanded to meet war consumption, which is necessarily wasteful. While a nation is in the despair of war and is losing its sons, it is impossible to consider the costs in national wealth. Then comes a period of peace, during which there must be a retraction of production for two reasons, namely, that the requirements for consumption are less and the need for conservation of resources

At first, the retraction is resisted because it may involve some unemployment, possibly a reduction in wages, surely a reduction in taxes. But the economics of the situation will assert themselves; When production exceeds consumption, production must be reduced.

This situation is complicated by the fact that we live in an era when government controls determine the nature of the mar-There is no really free market in essential commodities anywhere. Therefore, governments actually determine how much of any commodity is to come on the market. For instance, countries which need dollars will flood the market with commodities with the object of getting dollars,

This problem is further complicated by the fact that most currencies are "soft" money with which the governments arrange to pay their workers, but when they export the commodities they produce, they sell for "hard" currency, that is American dollars. They therefore undersell not because they are more efficient producers but because it pays them to get dollars at almost any cost. Such imsound methods can only lead to disaster because there is no substitute for a free market, but politicians in all countries face economic problems not to achieve stability, but to keep themselves in office as of the moment. New Drama Looms Next Month At House Committee Hearing

WASHINGTON-The House Un-American Activities Committee has set a tentative date for another hearing in one of the hottest controversies that that stormy committee has ever touched off. In mid-November J. B. Mathews will be given an opportunity to testify on the charge he made in a magazine article that Protestant clergymen composed the largest single group supporting the Communist ap aratus in the United States today.

Chairman Harold Velde started the row when he remarked that the committee might find it worthwhile to look into Communist infiltration in the churches. This brought a sharp challenge from church-men, including Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Church. Thereupon a committee member, Representative Donald Jackson, (R., Calif), accused the bishop of serving God on Sundays and Communist fronts the other six days.

In a 10-hour hearing Bishop Oxnam answered point by point the allegations made against him in the committee's files. It was a remarkable performance and even hostile members were impressed by the way the bishop marshalled his facts to show either that he had not belonged to certain organizations at all or that he had participated in wartime, when Soviet Russia was an ally, along with leaders in the government. Just as the Protestant controversy broke, Senator Joseph McCarthy named Mat-thews director of his investigating committee. Then a few days later the magazine article came to public notice. It fanned the flames of a dispute with ominous overtones of hate, smear and bigotry.

Such conservative Southern Senators as John McCiellan of Arkansas and Harry Byrd of Virginia were aroused by Mat-thews' statement that at least 7,000 Protestants were "party members, fellow-travelers, espionage agents, party-line adherents and unwitting dupes." Byrd obtained a statement from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, saying he knew of no clergymen who was either a party member or an espionage agent.

Asked on a recent television program if he could under oath name Protestant clergymen in those two categories, Matthe 's said no. This left fellow-travelers, party-line adherents and unwitting dupes, all vague classifications.

Ever since Velde promised Matthews a chance to testify, some members of the Democratic minority on the committee have been nervous. They fear that the chairman will simply feed the witness the appropriate questions without challenging any of his sweeping statements. At a recent one-man committee hearing in New York the testimony of former Communists, all of whom had left the party years before, was relied upon for the statement that 600 clergymen had been Communist party members. Neither names nor documentation were offered in substantiation. But as committee members well know there is evidence of a mounting reaction against such sweeping accusations made ithout any offer of proof. A survey of editorial colnion following the Oxnam hearing showed that about 80 per cent favored

Seantor McClellan led a walkout of the Democratic members of the McCarthy committee. But it is doubtful that the Democrats on the un-American activities group could agree since Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania usually sities with Matthews, with his extensive files on Communist infiltration in New York, is reported to be doing intensive research in preparation for his appearance. Similarly within church groups researchers are digging into the Matthews record.

He has, of course, himself written a large part of that record in two extraordinary books. One was "Partners in Plunder," which accuses the churches and the schools of being hirelings of capitalism and greedy profiteering. In a remarkable passage Matthews implies that J. P. Morgan controlled the Episcopal church, Andrew W. Mellon the Presbyterian church and the Rockefellers the Baptist church.
Four years later in his 'Odyssey of a Fellow Traveler," he had almost com-pletely reversed his form. The instruction was that the churches and the schools were being lined up on the side of radicalism and even communism. In that same book the author discussed his own Dr.
Jekyll and Mrs. Hyde personality. The socialist and revolutionary was Mr. Hyde, the reformed character Dr. Jekyll.
"When I now assert," said Matthews,

"that Mr. Hyde of the Marxist revoluti died in that inner personal conflict, it is not, I hope, with any claim to ethical uniqueness. It was simply that deeper per-sonal satisfactions or more preferred pleasures arbitrated the issue in favor of Jekyll's mode o flife.

The Un-American Activities Committee has produced many dramas. But the billing just ahead looks equal to anything that has played before.

'Innocent' Shark Biggest Fish

If someone asked you to tell the biggest fish in the world, what would you answer?

I feel sure that few, if any, regular readers of this column would name the whale. In olden days, many persons supposed the whale to be a fish, but modern knowledge has pushed that idea aside. A whale is an air-breathing mammal; the mother whale gives milk to her young. The honor of being the biggest fish goes to a huge shark. Because it is so large, this shark has been named the "whale shark," but it is a true fish, and has nothing to do with the whale family.

Most whale sharks live in the warmer waters of the ocean, but a few of them swim northward. On an August day, some years ago, a telephone call came to the American Museum of Natural History,

The Indian chairman of the five-

He also noted that the 117 captives who have already changed their minds indicate that not all of the 22,600 Red POWs want to refuse repatriation.

Treasury Nears Legal Debt Limit

WASHINGTON UB-The Treasury will soon borrow an additional 1½ to 2 billion dollars, pushing the national debt as close to the 275 billion dollar legal limit as it dares approach.

This was disclosed yesterday by a Treasury spokesman, who also said the new borrowing must be got out of the way by the end of this month or early November to make way for refinancing on Dec. 1 of a 10% billion dollar maturing issue.

Just before it recessed, Congress turned down appeals by Presiden Eisenhower and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey to give the government more borrowing leeway by raising the debt limit to 290 billion dollars. The debt subject to the legal ceiling is now $272,-400,000,000.

On paper, the Treasury has some $2,600,000,000 borrowing room under the ceiling. But savings bonds and notes are always on sale, and each sale increases the debt. So two billion dollars is con-sidered the limit the Treasury could consider borrowing now.

Barring unforeseen emergencies the projected new borrowing will take care of the Treasury's needs through this calendar year and in-to January, when tax collections pick up again, a Treasury spokes man said.
