Vance Packard Blasts American Materialism

By DON JONES
Toreador Staff Writer

Vance Packard, one of the foremost authors on social science in America today, trained his sights on the highly materialistic American society Wednesday night in an address at Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

Packard spoke on "The Changing Character of American People."

The noted author, who has made household words of "depth advertising," "status seekers" and "waste-makers," said "Americans need to spend more time in the development of ideas and less time in building a more materialistic, more complicated domain."

Forensic Meet Begins Friday

Tech will host 16 colleges and universities from Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas at its ninth annual Forensic Festival Friday and Saturday.

More than 155 students are expected to compete in debate, extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading, after dinner speaking and discussion.

Texas schools are Texas Tech, McMurry College, North Texas State University, Frank Phillips College, Midwestern University, Abilene Christian College, Hardin-Simmons University, Texas Western College, West Texas State College, Lubbock Christian College and St. Mary's University.

Representing New Mexico are the University of New Mexico and Eastern New Mexico University.

Delegates from Arizona and Oklahoma are Oklahoma Baptist University and the University of Arizona.

Entrants will register in the Speech Bldg. at 8 a.m. Friday. Mrs. J. W. Jackson will speak to students at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the Tech Speech Bldg. Her subject is "How the Constitution Protects Rights of the Citizen."

There will be a noon luncheon Friday in the Union Ballroom and a round table discussion of the debate question. The guest speaker, Dr. Lester Levy, Tech economics professor, will make a brief analysis of the debate proposition which is "Resolved: That labor organizations should be under the jurisdiction of anti-trust legislation."

The finals in after dinner speaking will take place at a banquet Friday evening.

Certificates of Award will be made to all speakers receiving Superior and Excellent ratings and to all participants in discussion who have an average of Superior or Excellent ratings.

In debate Superior awards will be made to teams winning all debates and to individual members of any team whose average rating is Superior. Excellent Awards will be made to all teams winning all but one debate and to individual members of any team whose average rating is Excellent.

Tech will be represented by six debate teams composed of Mac Brommelt, Kip Glascock, Cleo Haston, Wynette Johnson, Tommie King, Mike Lange, Mike Pollard and Arthur Skibell. Other Tech students will enter individual speaking events.

Cheerleaders Try Out In Old Gym Tonight

Freshman cheerleader tryouts will be at 6 p.m. today instead of the original 6:30 p.m. as previously announced. The contest will be in the old Men's Gym.

Contestants in the cheerleader race were announced in last week's Toreador. The time change enables contestants to attend the pep rally at 7:30 p.m. at the Southwest Conference Circle.

The popular writer said the schools need to place more emphasis on moral and intellectual education rather than spending the time teaching youngsters how to "be at ease in their place."

"What will be our own contribution to society during our brief life span?" Packard threw at the audience.

Packard said in his address that he thinks the American consumer is awakening to the Madison Ave. techniques for selling products. He said indications were available to show that Americans are demonstrating a new prudence and interest in quality products.

Commercialization of the airwaves by radio and TV is largely responsible for the over-materialistic society in America, according to Packard.

Packard said one-third of all women in America are using some hair coloring.

He reported that Ford Motor Co. made a minor body change in its T-Bird products just to entice over 250,000 owners of T-Bird products back into the market.

Packard said one of the greatest advertising campaigns ever to be conducted in America is being directed at American teenagers.

"High school seniors have approximately $500 per year in allowances to spend, an all time high, and merchants are aiming at them with the slogan 'It is both moral and fun to live on credit.'"

One of the favorite slogans of money lenders, Packard said, is "Now you can afford to get completely out of debt if you borrow from us."

Packard reported that 65 per cent of all stores in America are offering credit cards as a means to "wise money management."

The author of "The Waste Makers," "Status Seekers" and "Hidden Persuaders," all best sellers, said bankruptcy has risen 300 per cent during the past decade and the average family in America is three months from bankruptcy.

"Too many families are unable to live on one income and more and more housewives are having to take full time employment in order for the family to keep up with the Joneses."

Merchants are urging indirectly that the consumers borrow, buy, waste and spend as much as possible, he said.

In his address Packard labeled Americans as happiness seekers who are spending nine times as much on liquor as books and more money on campus parking lots than salary increases for teachers.

He said the average American gets more satisfaction from being a consumer than a creator and that the average worker gets no satisfaction from his job.

Author Discusses Next 'Bestseller'

By BILL MCGEE
Toreador Amusements Editor

"The publisher doesn't want me to talk about my next book," Vance Packard said Wednesday afternoon, "but it's about executives and what it takes to succeed."

He explained that his visit to Texas is a combination lecture tour and trip for research to gather information for the book, to be published within a year.

What goes into a Packard book? "Well, I've filled 138 stenographic notebooks, interviewed more than 170 people and made a bibliography of over 1,500 entries."

Last summer was spent just transcribing notes, he said.

He is a deliberate, thoughtful man. Asked from what point of view he planned to approach the executive existence, he paused and said slowly, "Every way I can. From the psychological, sociological, from the skills, traits, strategies it takes... his appearance, his philosophy..."

He is harsh and scornful in criticism but has a ready humor. He said a chapter in the book about executives' wives could be called "The Little Lady and Other Distractions."

8 Coeds Enter Runoff In Homecoming Contest

Eight of the fourteen Homecoming Queen candidates were chosen by the student body Wednesday as finalists for the runoff election set for Nov. 1.

Beth O'Quinn, senior and member of Alpha Chi Omega, led the finalists with 254 votes. Jackie Howard, Kappa Kappa Gamma, received 170 votes.

Out of the 1429 students who voted 130 votes went to Nancy Therrell, Doak Hall. Pi Beta Phi Kay Woody received 127 votes and 105 votes went to Linda Lockett, Kappa Alpha Theta.

Other finalists chosen in the election are Carolyn Maniha, Sigma Kappa, 101 votes; Ouida Daugherty, Alpha Phi, 88 votes; and Joy Keller, Delta Delta Delta, 82 votes.

Tech students will again go to the polls on Nov. 1 to choose the Homecoming Queen and her four attendants.

The coronation of the queen will be conducted by Lyndon B. Johnson, U.S. vice president, at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 3.

The coronation will follow a pep rally set for 7:45 p.m. at the Southwest Conference Circle.

Tech's Homecoming Queen and her attendants will be featured in the Homecoming parade and will be presented at pre-football game ceremonies that afternoon.

Classes will be dismissed at 8:55 a.m. Nov. 4 so that students and faculty may attend the Homecoming Parade.

L-V Sets Contract Deadline

The final deadline for reservation of space in the 1962 La Ventana has been set for Nov. 15. All campus organizations must have their page contracts signed by this time.

Those organizations that wish to have special individual pictures made should sign both the picture and page contracts as soon as possible. Appointments will be made through the year-book's office for individual pictures with Avalon Studio.

The contracts can be signed in the La Ventana Office, Rm. 211 in the Journalism Bldg. from 2 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Mortar Board Prepares For Tapping Ceremonies

Mortar Board, national senior women's honorary service organization, is now preparing to select its membership for next year.

Not less than five or more than twenty-five coeds will be selected to become Mortar Board members. Those chosen will be among juniors or sophomores who plan to finish school in three years.

To be eligible for Mortar Board girls must have an over-all grade point average of 1.8 and must have completed at least 60 and not more than 100 hours at the end of the fall semester.

Those chosen will be tapped in the traditional ceremony which takes place in the spring.

Some of the qualities students must possess are those of scholarship such as interest in scholastic endeavor and going beyond the challenge of academic work. Other qualities fall under leadership such as the ability to work with others and dependability.

Service is another looked-for quality and includes genuine interest in other people and willingness to work behind the scenes.

Tech Wins Study Grant

The Public Health Service has awarded an $8,560 grant to Tech to continue basic studies on the biology of medically important mites.

The studies were initiated two years ago and are intended to last a total of five years. Research is being supervised by Dr. Russell W. Strandmann, professor of biology.

Mites are of medical interest because, like ticks, they are capable of transmitting diseases, particularly among animals. The studies at Tech will center on the life cycles of these mites, their classification and their hosts.

Such information will supplement other studies aimed at finding out which mites transmit diseases and what diseases they transmit.

Ex Student Joins Associated Press

Bob Horton, a summer graduate of Tech and former reporter with the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, recently joined the staff of the Associated Press in Memphis, Tenn.

A journalism major, Horton wrote several stories that appeared in the Toreador, while working full time for the newspaper downtown.

A transfer from Howard County Junior College, where he got his first taste of newspaper work with the Big Spring Herald, Horton carried a full load of college courses. Horton is married and has one son.

Kidnappings, Cuts Highlight Hectic Lives Of Pledges

By CELESTE HARDY
Toreador Staff Writer

Have you ever picked up parts of a conversation that sound something like this—
"...kidnaped after taking a pledge cut..."
"...have 15 signatures by tomorrow or..."
"...taking a retreat after rush..."

Rather confusing isn't it? These are terms used every day by members of campus Greek organizations.

Contrary to what many may think, kidnapping does not refer to the act of gagging, binding and carrying a member across the state line for immoral purposes. Rather, it is the act of rousing a sleepy-eyed member from bed at 6:30 a.m. and carting him off to the lodge for breakfast.

Independents might visualize the Greeks tearing across the campus armed with switchblades, machetes and daggers when they hear of a pledge cut. However, a pledge cut is merely when the pledges go AWOL from a scheduled meeting.

When an independent hears a pledge speaking of signatures, the pledge is referring to the initiated members' signatures, not autographs of Marilyn Monroe, Elvis Presley or Mickey Cohen.

Rushing and retreats have nothing to do with military war strategy, although after rush week members may well feel like retreating to the infirmary.

Actually, rush is a casual schedule of 33 parties in two days with ample rest periods between each party.

"Walks" are not leisurely Sunday afternoon strolls, but the abandoning of unsuspecting pledges in a remote area and leaving them to find their own transportation back to the dorms.

So now when you're in a crowd of Greek and feel left out of the conversation, all you need do is refer to this article and hold your own.

Union Meeting Features Maid Of Cotton Details

Organizations interested in sponsoring candidates in the South Plains Maid of Cotton Contest should be represented at a meeting in the Union Ballroom at 4 p.m. Friday.

Walter Heymeyer, a representative of the National Cotton Council from Memphis, Tenn., will explain the details of the contest—including the benefits to Tech as a whole, to the sponsoring organizations and to the girl who wins.

Wilma Heaton of Hemphill-Wells will describe the $1,000 wardrobe that will go to the winner of the South Plains contest.

The winner of the local contest will receive an all-expense paid trip to Memphis to compete in the national Maid of Cotton contest. The winner will participate in the Cotton Bowl Parade and Cotton Bowl football game on New Year's Day.

Any organization interested in sponsoring an entry in the local contest must do so by Nov. 7. Entry blanks are available at Underwood's desk in the Student Council Office, Rm. 161 in the Ad Bldg., or at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Office, 902 Texas Ave.

Studio Requests Pictures, Proofs

Fraternities and sororities must keep their La Ventana picture appointments with Avalon Studio, 2414 Broadway.

All Tech students whose photographs have already been made must return their proofs by the time indicated or pictures will be chosen at random.

Fraternities and sororities are reminded to pick up their proofs immediately if they have not already done so.

Pearce Attends National Meet

Dr. W. M. Pearce, academic vice president, will represent Tech at a meeting of the American Council on Education, scheduled today through Saturday in New York City.

More than 600 educators will exchange ideas on improving the quality and efficiency of learning.

Dr. Pearce will also participate in sessions of the Educational Records Bureau which is meeting in conjunction with this conference. It deals with college placement and academic records.

Straight Matter

by Nolan Porterfield

FROM THE HAULS OF MORE MAZUMA: During the national elections of 1948, the political fur was flying hot and heavy. There was rumor of dissension in the Democrat ranks. When an aide rushed up to inform Senator Taft of the impending Demo split, the G.O.P. stalwart shrugged and grinned wryly. "Any split among Democrats," he said, "is usually 50-50."

In one of his "Plainsman" columns last week, Avalanche-Journal Editor Charlie Guy made some rather surprising statements concerning the site of the proposed new museum building. Not that his conclusions were so startling (he wants the new museum, if approved, located near the downtown area), but some of his reasoning seems a bit out in left field.

The museum "should be a Lubbock, rather than a Tech, institution," says Guy, "so that visitors attracted to the city by the museum won't be inclined to stop 'on the edge of town.'"

To those of us out here "on the edge of town" who spend several hundred thousand dollars each year with Lubbock businesses and who, in many cases, pay city taxes, the distinction between a "Lubbock institution" and a "Tech institution" seems a bit unreal. Surely Mr. Guy hasn't forgotten the tremendous influence Tech has had on the growth of Lubbock.

"Texas Tech constantly is drawing people to its campus and needs no more bait for that," says Guy. I seriously question the fact that Tech can ever have enough "bait" for drawing people to it, if it intends to acquire and maintain the reputation it needs and deserves. True, the parking situation is already bad, but that's something that must be straightened out as a matter of course, museum or no museum. And I don't believe anyone would advocate building the new museum on the site of the old one, where room for expansion, as well as parking space, is limited. But somewhere, on the campus or near it, there's a spot that will provide adequate parking and easy access. Tech, as the "seat of learning" on the South Plains, is the logical location for the museum . . . and a museum so located will still be a "Lubbock institution."

Here's one of the reasons I have trouble sleeping at night: Secretary of the Army Elvis Starr, after more than six months on the job, admits he still doesn't know the difference between a battle group and a battalion. Wonder if he can distinguish a colonel from an overfed doorman?

SOME THINGS NEVER SEEM TO CHANGE: dormitory chow . . . the price of Lifesavers . . . the way a 98-lb. freshman coed learns to "whine" a 210-lb. fullback around her little finger . . . campus traffic lights . . . campus traffic . . . Dudley's big grin . . . the way that brown, husky smell of cotton gins and smoldering burrs comes creeping in around the edges this time of the year.

In addition to proving that they're the "fightin'-est" bunch of fellers around, the Red Raiders have established themselves firmly in the Southwest Conference, where any team worthy of its water-boy has to pull off at least one upset per season. They're beginning to love us around the circuit . . . even the Dallas News wrote glowingly of Coach J T and his boys after they scattered the Horned Frogs and other papers picked up the spirit of praise after the repeat performance over Baylor last week.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"LOOKS LIKE I'LL BE A LITTLE LATE FOR WORK, EDDIE, I JUST GOT WORD WE'VE A FACULTY MEETING."

...Name Change

We have received several requests from various groups to restate the position the Toreador is taking in regard to changing the name of Texas Tech.

We are for it.

We have openly stated this position in editorial after editorial the past two years. In fact, in an editorial written on Tuesday, May 9, 1961, and signed by the entire editorial staff, we urged the Texas Tech Board of Directors to take action on the matter in their May 27 meeting.

No official action was taken.

In the editorial we made the following statement:

"The time for discussion and bickering is past, the time for action is at hand."

Evidently we are the only ones who felt that way at that time. It should be pointed out, however, that the Ex-Student Association, the Faculty Advisory Committee and the Tech Student Association had all endorsed the name change idea. Each group had publically stated their endorsement. But . . .

It seemed that none of the organizations could agree on a particular name to recommend. This constituted the only disagreement between the three groups. All wanted—and as far as we can tell—still want the name of Texas Tech changed to include the word "University."

Why "University" status?

1. The switch from "college" to "university" means a stronger bid can be made for federal aid, for research funds and for foundation grants.

2. A more valid plea can be made in the future for state money, for a higher level of professional pay and for authority for a broader range of courses. . .

3. Texas Tech has outgrown the label "college."

These are just a few of the reasons. There are many more, too numerous to mention.

Let us pose this question,

Who will have the final authority on a name change for Texas Tech? The Board of Directors, of course!

Here then, is our plea.

Let's not wait until everyone can agree on the name change. We could be waiting for a long time if we do. Let the Board of Directors conduct their own survey among the different organizations, compile their findings and move on a decision that would produce a definite yes or no.

This matter has been kicked around too long.

Pep Rallies...

Here we go again.

It would appear that the better the Texas Tech football team becomes, the lower the student body spirit drops.

The poor attendance at recent pep rallies provides evidence for this conclusion. This is a sad situation.

Jim Isham, Tech's head cheerleader, summed up the situation in neat fashion when he said:

"The team is noticing this poor rally attendance. After they play a game and win, they feel as though the student body is letting them down."

Student attendance at pep rallies gives an indication of student spirit on a campus.

Let's attend the pep rallies.

—Editor

...Phone Calls

We dislike open letters.

We also dislike anonymous phone calls.

Following an editorial which appeared in the Toreador Tuesday, we have received several phone calls from individuals who gave The Toreador hell on its stand, but refused to identify themselves.

We're not ashamed of what we say; evidently these persons don't have the same feelings about their opinions.

Arts Festival Nov. 5-10 Includes Drama, Music

Tech's Fine Arts Festival, long-awaited and welcomed alike by Lubbock and campus residents, will begin Nov. 5 and offer an outstanding variety of programs or every taste. A series of discussions, entertainments, and musical programs highlight this year's festival.

Nov. 5

At 3:30 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium, the Tech Orchestra, Choir and Singers, directed by Paul Ellsworth and Gene Kenney, will perform the Cherubini Mass and Hayden's Symphony No. 97. Admission is free.

Nov. 6

At 11 a.m. the Tech stage band, directed by Dean Killion, will present a program of contemporary jazz in the snack bar area of the Union.

At 4 p.m., Anne-Marie Deval, visiting assistant professor of French, will lecture on "The French Theatre of the Nineteenth Century" in the Ballroom.

At 8:15 p.m., the speech department's production of the "Nineteenth Century French farce, "An Italian Straw Hat" in the Speech Auditorium. Admission is $1 or student identification.

Nov. 7

At 10 a.m., Dr. E. A. Gillis will give a poetry reading in the Ballroom.

At 4 p.m., faculty and students of the English department will

'Straw Hat' Shapes Up For Nov. 6

Rehearsals show "An Italian Straw Hat" shaping up to the usual high standards of Tech's speech department.

June Bearden directs the large cast of nine men, five women, singers, dancers and a pianist for the French farce, due to open Nov. 6. Technical rehearsals will begin Tuesday. Charles Buzzard has the myriad responsibilities of technical designer and director.

Bill Leonard plays the major character of the play, "Fadinard," whose difficulties in replacing a straw hat eaten by his horse provide the basis for many moments of merriment.

Written by Eugene Labiche and Marc-Michel, the comedy was first produced in Paris in 1851. Since that time it has received much acclaim from the French, but is relatively unknown in this country.

Admission will be $1 or student identification. All seats are reserved.

present a panel discussion of the works of Ernest Hemingway in the Ballroom. Questions to be discussed are "Is Hemingway a Great Writer?" and "Are Hemingway's Works Timeless?"

At 7:30 p.m., Basil Rathbone will read from the classics at the Municipal Auditorium. Admission is free. No performance of "An Italian Straw Hat" will be given that evening.

Nov. 8

At 10 a.m., students of the English department will present poetry readings in the Union Ballroom.

At 4 and 7 p.m., the film "Kind Hearts and Coronets," one of Alec Guinness' most well-known, will be shown in the Ballroom.

At 8:15 p.m., "An Italian Straw Hat" will again be presented.

Nov. 9

At 3 p.m., the stage band will present another program of contemporary music in the snack bar.

At 4 p.m., Sir Lawrence Olivier's "Hamlet" will be shown in the Ballroom.

At 7 p.m., the Tech Modern Dance Club will perform in the Ballroom.

At 8 p.m., "An Italian Straw Hat."

Nov. 10

At 4 p.m., the Pedal Marionettes of Chicago, will present Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid" in the Union Ballroom.

At 8 p.m., the final showing of "Hamlet."

At 8:15 p.m., the final presentation of "An Italian Straw Hat."

A series of prints and lithographs of the faculty of the University of Alabama, and exhibits from Tech's architecture and applied arts departments will be displayed on the second floor of the Tech Union throughout the week.

focus

Somewhat myopically this week, "focus" turns jaundiced type slugs toward the barest essentials.

"Unusual" is about all that can be said about "Blood and Roses" starting today at the Village. It stars Mel Ferrer and Elsa Martinelli, and to say more about it would ruin it.

Lubbock Christian presents Coward's "Blithe Spirit" Nov. 9, 10 and 11. It's a nice addition to all other productions scheduled for that week.

Any Dallas natives planning a trip home between Nov. 3-18, will be interested in student ticket prices for Dallas Civic Opera. They start at $1.50.

Tech's French clubs will show a movie (with English sub-titles) Nov. 14. Called "Daddy, Mama, the Maid and I," it deals with some hilarious episodes in the life of a young man who brings home a blond girl-friend to act as parlor-maid.

Ticket sales began today at the Union for the Homecoming dance. $1.50 stag or drag. Nov. 4, 8 p.m., at the Coliseum. Ralph Flanagan will play.

Tech Voice Teacher Sings In Washington

Evelyn McGarrity, dramatic soprano and Tech vocal instructor, performs Friday a preview of her recital to be presented Nov. 5 at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

Friday's program will begin at 8:15 p.m. and is free.

The National Gallery Series is a showplace for outstanding American musical artists, and is patronized by governmental and diplomatic officials.

Miss McGarrity's accompanist at both recitals is Charles Lawrie, assistant professor of music.

Her program will include a puccini aria, two songs by Mozart, seven by Shumann, an aria by von Weber, two Debussy songs and compositions by Samuel Barber and Charles Ives.

Described as "an unusually fine soprano" by the New York Herald-Tribune, Miss McGarrity is the 1957 winner of the young artist auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Gaston, Kappa Sigma Highlight Action

Gaston Hall captured the dormitory Tug-o-War championship and Kappa Sigma moved into the lead in Fraternity League touch football to highlight an eventful day in men's intramurals Wednesday.

Gaston defeated Thompson Hall to move into the finals against Carpenter Hall, who earlier gained a spot with a victory over Sneed Hall. Then the members of the Gaston team outplayed the Carpenter group for the crown.

Kappa Sigma and Sigma Alpha battled much of the game in a scoreless deadlock before the Kappa Sigs scored on a freak play to move their season record to 5-1. SAE is now 2-2-1.

The victors made their tally late in the final period when a pass was batted around in the end zone by several persons before Kappa Sigma finally caught it for the score.

The win shoved Kappa Sigma ahead of Pi Kappa Alpha in the league race. The two teams were in a virtual tie for the lead.

A definite favorite should emerge from fraternity play Sunday which pits two leaders against each other.

The Pikes are two games behind in the win column, but they're ahead where it counts, in the loss margin. The Pikes haven't allowed the opposition to score this year; in fact, the Pikes have a string of sixteen games going in which they haven't been scored upon.

Kappa Sigma has allowed only one TD, and that came in the lone loss of the year, an 8-6 setback at the hands of Phi Delta Theta.

In independent action, another explosion is in the making with the Misfits and the Baptist Student Union teams the main components.

Something's got to give when two teams who haven't been scored on all season meet head-on for the favorite's role.

The Misfits attained their perfect 4-0 record by grounding out decisions over the Dead Soldiers, Church of Christ, the Juarez Wranglers and the Rodeo Club, all by one-touchdown margins.

BSU, on the other hand, has shown signs of being a real offensive power, rambling to wins over the Juarez Wranglers, the Rodeo Club, the Newman Club and the Dairy Industry Club. BSU scored 38 against Newman Club and 49 against Dairy Industry in recording by far the two highest scores in the league.

Four games will still be left after today's game, so the loser will not necessarily be out of the running with a loss.

The Azures and Church of Christ are only a game back of the two leaders in one of the closest, most balanced independent football leagues in years. Both clubs have 3-1 marks.

The lone loss for Church of Christ came at the hands of the Misfits, 7-0, while the only black mark on the Azure schedule came in a narrow 8-6 loss to Church of Christ.

In dormitory play, Sneed Hall has virtually sewed up the title, although the race for runner-up has developed into quite a battle.

Sneed is unscored on after its first four contests in compiling a perfect 4-0 record that is far ahead of the rest of the field.

Bledsoe also has kept its goal line uncrossed, but on two of their three games played they too failed to score and with a 1-0-2 mark does not seriously challenge the lead of Sneed.

Daniels' Goal Renews Old Weapon

About a year before H. L. Daniels was born, Texas Tech, in 1940, first won a football game via a field goal.

A few yards shorter than the 34-yarder Daniels booted in the 19-17 win over Baylor here last Saturday night, it was kicked by E. J. McKnight in the final minutes of a 23-21 triumph over University of San Francisco. That was the last game of a 9-1-1 season and the final one coached for Texas Tech by Pete Cawthon.

Rivaling for suspense Daniels' kick in the final 27 seconds was the one Jodie Marek booted in 1938. Texas Tech, unbeaten and untied, was in its ninth game deadlocked 7-7 with University of New Mexico in Albuquerque with 40 seconds remaining. Marek sent the Raiders in front 10-7, then seconds later intercepted a pass for a touchdown and converted to make the score 17-7 and keep the Raiders headed toward the 1939 Cotton Bowl.

Infrequent as they have been, field goals still have played an important role in Texas Tech's short football history.

In the last action of Tech's opening game, with McMurry Oct. 2, 1925, Elson Archibald kicked a field goal, but the referee ruled it came after the gun. Tech's first points in history were scored a week later in a 3-3 tie with Austin College as Archibald was successful.

Texas Tech's first points ever scored against a Southwest Conference team were the result of a 43-yard field goal by Volney Davis in a 28-16 loss to the Raiders' 10-0 victory two weeks ago.

Daniels, a sophomore fullback from Marshall, has tried three field goals this season and succeeded on two. He missed from the six against TCU, then booted a 23-yarder for insurance points in the city where he was born. That's where the Red Raiders meet Southern Methodist Saturday afternoon.

Tech Plays Underdog Against SMU Saturday

The Texas Tech Red Raiders find themselves in a pleasant situation, from a coach's standpoint, when they meet the Southern Methodist Mustangs in a Southwest Conference football game in Dallas Saturday.

For the sixth consecutive time—the Raiders weren't favored to win any of the first five—Coach J. T. King's eleven will go onto the field playing the role of underdog.

The Ponies, winners of only one game in four outings, are two-point favorites over the Red Raiders, who have two wins in five tries. In other SWC games, undefeated Texas is a two-touchdown favorite over Rice at Austin, Arkansas is picked over Northwest Louisiana State in Fayetteville, and the Baylor and Texas A&M game at College Station is a toss-up.

Texas Christian is idle this week.

Texas Tech will leave Lubbock at 6 p.m. Friday for the SMU game and will stay at Hotel Stoneleigh while in Dallas.

Tech Agronomists Win 2nd In Regional Judging Contest

Three Tech agronomy students and Panhandle A&M hosted the event. The two high teams will attend the national contest, the time and place for which will be decided by the national convention of ASA Nov. 22-30 in St. Louis. Students representing Tech at the national event are Stahnke, Don Goss and Johnny Hajek.

Placement Service Offers Employment Opportunities

One of the busiest offices on campus is the Tech Placement Service, located on the second floor of the West Engineering Bldg.

The Placement Service acts as a communication link between the employer, the college and the student. Its main purpose is to help all students learn more about job opportunities in the various companies and businesses all over the United States.

"Don't wait until your senior year to make a visit to the office," advises Mrs. Jean Jenkins, director. "Come in and find out about your job opportunities now."

"Students who can definitely decide early in college on the company or business they wish to work for can be practically assured of a job when they graduate," says Mrs. Jenkins.

One advantage to choosing a possible employer early is that courses can be shaped and planned to meet the requirements of the employer.

The five employees of the Service keep records on hundreds of different jobs and the companies, agencies and organizations which are seeking qualified graduates. Interviews for prospective employees are scheduled by many companies between Nov. 1 and Dec. 15 and between February and June in the second semester.

Techsians who wish more information may go by the Placement Office between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Testing Center Offers Course

Registration begins Nov. 2. The reading improvement course sponsored by the Testing and Counseling Center. Students may continue registration until Nov. 10 when classes begin.

Because the improvement course is part of a self-supporting program, a $25 fee will be charged. The fee may be paid in the Testing and Counseling Center at the time of registration.

At the end of the six-week course students, on the average, double their rate of reading. Some have increased their rate as much as four or five times. The course which is designed as a reading study improvement course seeks to help the student maintain and increase in comprehension as well as rate.

Classes are on Tuesdays and Thursdays at these times: Section 1—3-4:30 p.m.; Section 2—5-6 p.m.; Section 3—6:30-8 p.m.; Section 4—8-9:30 p.m.

Dorms Submit Project Plans

Residence halls must submit preliminary plans for their Homecoming decorations to Men's Residence Council and Women's Residence Council today.

Women's halls must give plans to Glenda Johnson, Horn Hall, and men's halls must submit plans to James Cole, Wells Hall.

Construction costs of decorations must not exceed $75 and each hall must submit a financial statement to Miss Johnson and Cole by Wednesday.

All decorations must be in place by 5:30 p.m. Nov. 3 and will be judged that evening by three faculty members. Entries will be judged on originality, neatness and theme and must comply with the 1961 Homecoming theme, "Techsan in Fantasyland."

One first place award will be presented to the winning hall, both women's and men's division during Homecoming pre-game activities.

All materials used must be either fire retardant or fire resistant and decorations must be removed by noon the Sunday following Homecoming.
