Moratorium activities get official approval

All activities for the November Moratorium listed in the Vietnam Moratorium Schedule of Activities, have been approved. Dr. William H. Duvall, assistant dean of student life said yesterday.

The activities listed on the schedule are those which are to be held in the Tech Union Ballroom. These include speakers from the faculty and ministers from the area, debates and panel discussions, folk music and a memorial service.

IN A LETTER to Roger Settler, head of the moratorium committee, Duvall said that the activities had been approved with the condition that the programs and activities are sponsored by a recognized campus organization.

Earlier this week Duvall reported that no moratorium activities had been approved because requests submitted to his office had not been made by a recognized campus organization.

The only requests we had received then were from the Lubbock Moratorium Committee and since this was not a campus group we could not give the approval," Duvall said.

The November Moratorium is sponsored by the Channing Club, the University Young Republican Movement and the Student Action Organization which are campus organizations and by six off-campus organizations.

The letter, dated Tuesday, also stated that Memorial Circle may not be used for Moratorium activities at any time and "no religious ceremonies be held on campus at any time."

Other restrictions stated in the letter are that no Moratorium activities may be held outdoors at any time, with the exception of activities approved for the east Union green area during the daylight hours only, and that marches or parades in connection with the Moratorium may not be held on the campus at any time.

SETTLER SAID he expected an impromptu march although the Moratorium will not sponsor or encourage it.

Duvall, in his letter to Settler, said, "Both organization and individual sponsors of the Moratorium activities will be expected to observe all applicable provisions of the Code of Student Affairs which will be held accountable for other unapproved events which may occur as a direct result of the Moratorium activities or informal encouragement from Moratorium sponsors."

Disciplinary action for individual and organizational offenses range from a letter of reprimand to probation for a stated period of time with or without specified restrictive conditions to suspension in which the offense is committed.

TONY HUBLY, one of the founders of a group calling themselves the "silent majority" which supports President Nixon's policies and the war in Vietnam, said, "We have no planned activities — no marches or confrontation groups."

The group is planning to set up a table in the Union at which they will take signatures for a letter supporting the President's policies.

The letter will be sent to the President after the signatures are obtained. "We hope for 2,000 to 4,000 signatures," Hubly said.

Hubly said Weymouth Hall Association voted in a meeting last night to back the group in an effort to get table in the Union. He said the letter may be taken to the lobbies of some dorms, but that signatures will not be solicited; only the opportunity to sign the letter will be offered.

Suspects held in robbery

AUSTIN — Three masked Negro men carrying pistols stalked into the suburban Citizen's National Bank yesterday, ordered all employees and customers to the floor and forced at least one teller to fill a cardboard box with money.

But less than 30 minutes after the stick-up, the Texas Highway Patrol said it had three suspects in custody about 25 miles away.

The trio walked into the bank in the capital plaza shopping center in North Austin about 1:28 p.m. All three were dressed in green overalls of a twill-type material. Witnesses said they wore knit caps pulled down over their faces, with holes for their eyes.

Witnesses said the hold-up men placed the box on a woman teller's counter and ordered everyone in the bank to lie on the floor.

Chilean crew stops hijackers

SANTIAGO, Chile — Two dejected teen-age hijackers, bound hand and foot, were returned to Santiago yesterday aboard a Chilean jetliner whose crew foiled their plan for a flight to Cuba.

The two youths, armed with pistols, were surprised and knocked out by the pilot and copilot after the hijacked plane took off from Antofagasta in northern Chile.

As the plane landed in Santiago, two air force helicopters, both heavily armed, maintained constant vigilance overhead. Los Cerrillos airport swarmed with armed guards and hundreds of air force troopers with machine guns at the ready.

Fuel leak no problem

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. — A leak developed in a small fuel tank on the Apollo 12 spaceship Wednesday, but project officials were optimistic about launching man's second moonlanding mission on schedule tomorrow.

Technicians drained supercold liquid hydrogen from the tank, and then flowed warm helium through it, to remove ice that had formed, so they could inspect the casing.

To remain liquid, hydrogen must be kept under 423 degrees below zero.

The space agency felt it probably would have to replace the tank. So experts in a nearby assembly building removed a similar tank from the Apollo 13 spacecraft being prepared for a moon launch next March.

Another tank was flown from the North American Rockwell Corp. plant in Downey, Calif. It was estimated that a new tank could be in place late Wednesday night, and if there are no other problems, the launch schedule could be maintained.

Armored truck robbed

NEW YORK — A Wells Fargo armored truck, taking receipts estimated at more than $2 million from the Aqueduct Race Track to a bank, was held up yesterday by three armed men who escaped with the cash, police said.

They said the robber's car forced the truck to the curb in the East New York section of Brooklyn, handcuffed three guards, and took nine bags of money and put them in the bandit car.

They then locked the guards in the truck and fled.

Philippines view weaker ties

MANILA — Apparently reelected to a second term by landslide vote, President Ferdinand E. Marcos plans to loosen the Philippines' historic ties with the United States and pursue a more nationalistic course, his foreign minister said yesterday.

This eventually could mean relations with Red China, Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo told newsmen.

HEW to ban use of DDT

WASHINGTON — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced today that a new multi-agency agreement will be set up aimed at outlawing DDT use in the United States within two years except for "essential uses" for which there are no suitable alternatives.

Secretary Robert H. Finch, told a news conference that DDT, a pesticide, was a pervasive threat to human life and the environment and the HEW would move soon with the Departments of Agriculture and Interior to begin planning a phase-out program.

Stangel health problem generates confusion

By STEVE EAMES
Staff Writer

Questions of health problems in Stangel Hall grew complicated yesterday because of conflicting reports.

According to Dorothy T. Garner, coordinator of women's residence hall supervision, notices placed in the dormitory were prompted by the wishes of several residents in the hall to have discussions with doctors.

THE FULL TEXT of one such notice read: "Exclusive For Stangel Residents—Dr. Fred Kallina will talk to Stangel students in private conferences or in a small group (maybe a girl and her roommate or close friend), concerning any health problem."

MONDAY, NOV. 10, 2:00-3:00 p.m.
TUESDAY, NOV. 11, 3:00-4:00 p.m.
Anyone with any health problem please go. NO EXAMINATIONS — FREE MEDICATION IF NEEDED—STUDENT HEALTH CENTER.

Dr. Fred P. Kallina, director of the student health center, said statements concerning individual health problems have been grossly exaggerated.

ACCORDING TO KALLINA, only one or two girls have contacted him and their problems were concerned with individual personal hygiene.

Kallina said the problems were caused by trichomonas and monilia organisms, and the health problems caused by the organisms are not contagious.

No other dormitories on campus have had the trouble recently according to Kallina's information.

A RESIDENT OF Stangel reported her local doctor treated her for a "yeast infection" and that 10 other residents on her floor had the same symptoms. The resident said a list of the girls was submitted to the dorm counselor. Her doctor was not available for comment.

A second area doctor said yeast infections are "irritations in the genital tract, often female, which are not serious."

He added the infection is contagious but would probably not be widespread. "Yeast infections are not much of a public health problem," he said.

SOME STUDENTS expressed concern of the conditions of restrooms in the hall. "A legislator in Stangel Hall said the restrooms were 'unsanitary.' 'It's just not too clean around here,'" she said. She reported finding a rat in that restroom Monday night.

The doctor consulted about yeast diseases said the yeast infections can be transmitted by toilet seats, but added a direct discharge on the toilet seat would be necessary.

The doctor said one source of the disease, assuming it was the problem, could be birth control pills. Birth control pills can cause yeast overgrowths causing the infection.

Guy Moore, director of residence halls, gave no comment concerning the situation.

Mrs. Iris J. Norman, registered nurse superintendent at the student health center, said she knew nothing of the situation.

JIM J. NORTHCUTT, director of environmental health and safety, said he had not been informed of the situation.

Moore said field mice in the dorm were probably driven there by the first cold snap and enter most buildings on the campus through opened doors and service tunnels running to buildings.

New Delhi 'Syndicate' expels Indira Gandhi from Congress

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was expelled from the ruling Congress party yesterday by Old Guard leaders, a group that includes some of the closest associates of her father, the late Jawaharlal Nehru.

The Old Guard—also called the Syndicate—accused her of indiscipline, seeking to build a personality cult, setting up rival groups in the party and causing the defeat of the party's nominee in the presidential elections last August.

MRS. GANDHI, who became prime minister in January 1966, remained defiant. She described her expulsion as "illegal and of no validity."

But in a statement that was supported by her colleagues in the government and the party, she conceded that the move could have "far-reaching political and constitutional implications."

Of immediate concern, was the Old Guard's directive to Congress members in Parliament to choose a new leader.

Carol of Lights begins $5000 fund raising drive

A campaign for funds to help finance Tech's annual Christmas lighting program was kicked off at a breakfast meeting yesterday.

Co-Chairmen W. W. "Coach" Brown and Joe R. Horkey announced that approximately $5,000 is needed to help the University support the "Let's Light up the Tech Campus for Christmas" program.

THE INSTALLATION alone costs more than $4000, according to Ray Downing, director of building maintenance and utilities at Tech. The installation and operation of the 20,000 multi-colored lights on almost seven miles of electrical wire are under his supervision.

Downing told the approximately 20 campaign workers Tech has hopes of adding another building, the Tech Union, to the 11 structures which have been lighted in past years.

Lights will be turned on Dec. 2 and continue burning nightly through Jan. 1 for an estimated 150,000 visitors to see during the Christmas holidays.

HORKEY PRESIDED and announced that 17 donations for a total of $675 have been received as result of letters mailed to prospective contributors.

He also announced that checks should be made payable to Texas Tech Foundation and that gifts are tax deductible. DeWitt Thompson of the office of Vice President of Development showed slides of last year's lighting program and answered questions concerning plans for this year's lighting program.

Tech Business Manager John Taylor spoke briefly, welcoming businessmen to the program.

CAMPAIGN WORKERS include, in addition to Brown and Horkey, Sammy Tate, Terry Brewer, Bruce Kattman, Ken Weaver, Ken Abraham, Ken Edmonson, Maurice Snell, Jimmy Clements, James Braddock, Larry Goodwin, Dale Waterhouse, Cecil Turner, Bo Sexton, Jim Sexton, Bill Stephenson, Royce Kelly, Nolan Swain and Coy Evans.

The annual program is sponsored by the Women's Residence Council at Tech.

Ceremonies are planned by wrs members and other students for the night the lights are turned on for the first time this season.

Riot troops prepare for anti-war activities

WASHINGTON (AP)—The deployment of nearly 9,000 riot-trained Army troops yesterday contracted with the optimism of public officials over the prospects for peaceful anti-Vietnam demonstrations beginning today.

Planners hope the Saturday climax will be the biggest yet in the capital's era of demonstration.

ORGANIZERS HAD obtained a parade permit from a reluctant Department of Justice by the time first contingents of the 250,000 persons expected for the three-day rally trickled into town.

But the organizers were still locked in a harried, last-minute search for room to house and feed the participants. As of Wednesday, officials said they had only 22,000 of the 90,000 accommodations they'll need by Friday night.

The White House meanwhile announced President Nixon will be in the mansion Saturday night when the climactic Washington Monument rally takes place within sight of the White House South Portico.

But although the President might be physically able to view the rally, he has already declared his policies will not be affected by it. Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has denounced what he called the "carnival in the streets."

Tuesday night Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell declared: "The foreign policy of this government cannot and will not be formulated in the streets of Washington—or in any other street of this nation."

THE FIRST UNIT of the troops spreading around the capital was from the 82nd Airborne Division from Ft. Bragg, N.C., which saw action earlier in the Detroit riots and the 1967 march on the Pentagon.

A Pentagon spokesman said the other units would be in position by this morning. "This is a precautionary action only," he said.

He said the troops will enter the city only if called to assist the 3,800-man local police force and the 2,000 National Guardsmen due for duty over the weekend.

"I DON'T anticipate at this point any violence," Washington told newsmen at the White House.

This week's demonstrations are a sequel to a one-day candlelight march and Washington Monument Moratorium Day rally Oct. 15. And organizers say it is the predecessor to another, longer demonstration in mid-December if U.S. Vietnam policy doesn't change.

The first scheduled affair for today is a three-hour "Peace in the Park" affair at Farragut Square two blocks from the White House, where demonstration supporters will hand out literature and hold discussions on the war.

SHORTLY AFTER sundown, participants begin what is planned as a 40-hour "March Against Death" from the Arlington National Cemetery end of Memorial Bridge across the Potomac.

Each person, moving singlefiled is to pass the Lincoln Memorial carrying the name of a Vietnam casualty, pass the White House, then proceed to the Capitol up Pennsylvania Avenue, where workmen spent the day Wednesday removing the flags and star-spangled bunting left over from Veteran's Day.

Editorial Reflects poor leadership

Are Moratorium participants allowing their cause to be damaged because of the irresponsible statements of their leaders?

Statements such as, "I cannot prevent a drift of people toward the Circle," or "If it is not approved there will be an impromptu march . . ." are disgusting, and reflect poor leadership of Tech's Moratorium.

It is one thing to protest the Vietnam War. It is another thing to protest administrative policies. Only a poor leader would hurt the Moratorium by strongly implying that participants will not follow direct administrative statements.

The Tech administration may have been overly restrictive in its handling of this month's Moratorium requests, but participants still have no ethical or moral right to invite trouble by an "impromptu" march. An impromptu march would take place as a manifestation of disgust with Tech's administration.

Such a protest against the administration has no place in the Moratorium movement. For participants to allow an impromptu march would discredit themselves, and more importantly, it would discredit the movement itself.

BY CONTINUING to go out of their way to avoid violence, Moratorium workers vindicate themselves and if they get bothered by anyone, the Moratorium movement comes out smelling like a rose. Surely the workers learned this lesson at the last Moratorium.

By deliberately going against administrative policy, the Moratorium would drop its protective cloak of innocence and good intent. By following what publicly may appear to be harsh restriction of their movement, the workers would be reinforcing support gained when they unflinchingly withstood the egg barrage in October.

The supporters' rights to dissent must be respected, but their motives should be questioned if they sacrifice the integrity of their movement by an "impromptu" march.

Letters To The Editor YAF gives views on Vietnam War, protests

Saturday's march on Washington, D.C. will climax three days of renewed protest organized against the war.

The Moratorium Committee which organized the Oct. 15 protest has been replaced by the New Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. The "New Mobe" is composed of New Left groups running the spectrum from the weatherman, a SDS street fighting group, to the baroque figures of Senators McCarthy and McGovern.

We in Young Americans for Freedom understand that the great majority of those participating in "withdraw now" demonstration are sincere; they are demonstrating the same frustration that we in YAF have experienced by the continuation of a hopeless "limited" land war in Southeast Asia.

FURTHER, we do not question anyone's right to express their opinions on the war. What we do question is what the results of such protests will be in relation to the stated aims of the protest.

Will such protests shorten the war? I doubt it. They may prolong it.

News stories about United States' anti-war excesses are broadcast by Hanoi radio to communist forces, to harden their determination to continue fighting. Seeing disturbances in the streets of the United States.

Hanoi's negotiators could prolong negotiations in the hope that further concessions will be forthcoming as the war continues and frustration about the war increases.

IT IS unfortunate that the American prisoners of the communists suffer most severely as a result of anti-war protests in the United States.

An Associated Press report of Sept. 24 tells of the experience of Maj. James N. Rowe who was a prisoner of the Viet-Cong in the Mekong Delta for 62 months.

"An American soldier, chained in a six-by-three cage, can resist the blandishments of communism, but it gets tough when the Viet-Cong start quoting American wire services and national magazines . . . having to do with the anti-war movement, deserters, racial disorders, riots."

"Bring the Boys Home-Now!" Have any reasonable informed American political leaders actually advocated such action?

SENATOR MCCARTHY, on CBS News on March 12, 1968, stated: "While immediate withdrawal would end the war, it would lose the peace."

The late Senator Robert F. Kennedy explained: "I think it would be a major mistake to unilaterally withdraw," in the Wisconsin State Journal of March 28, 1968.

To consider the consequences of an immediate American withdrawal upon millions of South Vietnamese who have relied upon our word and our commitments, we need only to observe what the Communists did in the city of Hue during the Tet offensive a year and a half ago. The Communists held the city only for a couple of weeks, but when they were finally routed the bodies of over 2,000 civilians were discovered who had been buried alive or sprayed at the trench-side with automatic weapons.

ON THE DAY of the October Moratorium, none other than former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford was quoted in the Washington Evening Star as saying that immediate withdrawal of American troops would result in a "bloodbath in South Vietnam."

Finally the protest is aimed specifically at the President. Implying that he is the one keeping us in the war. It should be noted that:

- (1) He has brought home 12 per cent of our total troop strength in Vietnam.
- (2) He has reduced our casualties to the lowest level in over three years.
- (3) He has given top priority to turning the war over to the South Vietnamese.
- (4) He has offered to negotiate a ceasefire under international supervision.

(5) He has offered to negotiate everything except the right of the South Vietnamese people to determine their own future.

In an Associated Press story, the Vice-President pointed this out.

"THINK ABOUT this: a protest to the President for a war he did not start and never stops trying to conclude; who has reversed troop involvement . . . who has cancelled the draft for the last months of the year and cut deeply into the military budget; who has offered every conceivable compromise to the enemy." It seems that the national targets for responsible protest would be the North Vietnamese.

It is easy to generate opposition to such generally unpopular issues as the war and the draft. It is much harder to present solutions to these problems.

Sen. John Tower has stated his concern on Oct. 4 that in our search for peace we may become so frustrated that we grasp blindly towards our goal of troop withdrawals as a panacea for all our problems in Southeast Asia.

Wants less one-sided views from symposium

As a non-supporter of the Moratorium I would like to reply to Tom Burtis' recent letter.

I think that adding another day to the subject would only extend the lack of discussion; instead, I would like to see a less one-sided expression of the views from the symposium. With this thought I asked the Moratorium people to include faculty members of varying views and I myself volunteered to defend the position that our involvement in Viet-Nam is not a moral question.

My suggestion was received with courteous attention; in fact, the Moratorium committee decided to separate the symposium from the Moratorium and neither advertise it as, nor claim it as support for the position that we should withdraw from Viet-Nam immediately. I think that the Moratorium Committee has gone more than half-way and I hope that other faculty members like myself, who are not sure that immediate withdrawal would solve our problems, will speak up in defense of their positions.

Support Moratorium participation

"If men are to be precluded from offering their sentiments on a matter which may involve the most serious and alarming consequences that can invite the consideration of mankind, reason is of no use to us; the freedom of speech may be taken away, and dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep, to the slaughter."

The Vietnamese War today constitutes one of the most pressing problems in American society. Few questions in our policy have caused such prolonged discussion and agony among the American populace.

This fact should not come as shocking news to anyone. Why? Because this distant war reaches everyone: young and old, rich and poor. With the understanding that, on such a vital issue, no one can afford to remain silent, we, the undersigned, feel compelled to take a stand.

In true accord with the opening quote by George Washington and recognizing that the freedom of speech and expression are the lifeblood of any true democracy, we record ourselves as supporting Tech's participation in the Lubbock November Vietnam War Moratorium and encourage all interested students to participate.

Signed by Senators Jim Boynton, Angella Clement, Gaye Finney, Dennis Graham, Brian Harrington, John Hughes, Bill Scott, Bill Sewell, Allan Soffar, Buford Terrell, Tom Walsh, and Gary Wimmer.

I know that some will fear that they may APPEAR to be helping Hanoi. But I think that we ought to pay more attention to reality than to appearances.

The Moratorium people realize that war is in no way a glorious thing, while supporters of our government's view are concerned about the ultimate stability of our country. As long as there is no dialogue, both sides will feel self-justified.

Then there is a risk of further acts of violence which have no place in an academic community.

If the ACADEMIC community, which has a vested interest in knowledge, is not more concerned about reality than appearances, if it is not willing to debate issues without fear, then heaven help us all.

Aims of Home Ec

By Dean Willa Vaughn Tinsley
Dean of College of Home Economics

Editor's note: This is the first of the ten-year projections of colleges from their deans in response to The University Daily's request for their opinions.

One can think of the next ten years for Texas Tech University and for Home Economics at Texas Tech University only in terms of advancement and development toward greater maturity marked by excellence in teaching, in research and in public service.

Up to the present, Home Economics at Texas Tech University has held its impact largely at the undergraduate level but with a substantial number of master's degree graduates providing the basis for the current thrust toward a doctoral program in Home Economics.

Home Economics leans heavily on its so-called "root" disciplines such as the behavioral sciences—sociology, psychology and anthropology—as well as the biological sciences and other natural sciences. The uniqueness of Home Economics as a discipline lies in its functional approach to the betterment of personal and family living.

With the development of growing numbers of junior colleges at the present time, the number of majors in Home Economics at Texas Tech University seems to have begun to reach a plateau of between 1,300 and 1,400 undergraduates. This places our college among the top five or so in the nation in size of program.

The great need at present is to secure approval to begin offering a Ph.D. program in Home Economics to help supply the acute need for professional home economists in education, government, and business. The application for the new program is in process at the present time.

Tech students participate

Visual aids help students learn German language

Items ranging from picture post cards to the miniature furnishings of a doll's house have become "conversation pieces" for some 41 junior high school students studying German at Tech.

Used as visual aids, the varied items serve as springboards for introducing new words and phrases, said Theodor Alexander, professor of German and Slavonic languages and director of the program in conversational German.

These items also provide subject material for discussions in the two classes, one for beginners and the other for slightly more advanced students, which meet at 4:30 p.m. twice each week under Alexander's supervision.

SEVENTH, EIGHTH and ninth graders participate as learners in the dual purpose program designed to interest young people in the study of languages and at the same time provide practical experience for Tech students who plan to become teachers.

Participating Tech students are enrolled in course 4311 in applied Linguistics.

Instruction typifies the new approach to language studies, with emphasis on motivation plus application to verbal skills. Only German is spoken in the classroom as an incentive to vocabulary development and to give the learner "the feel of the language."

YOUNGSTERS LEARN from each other through directed dialogue, absorbing grammar as they phrase questions and answers. Group singing helps to smooth out obstacles in pronunciation and assists in coping with tongue twisters. Daily assignments rely on interaction between pupil and teacher, rather than upon a textbook, to achieve the desired goal—a working knowledge of basic German.

The future teachers, who take turns observing and participating in instruction, are called upon to exercise ingenuity in selecting and preparing topical materials that will challenge and appeal to their young charges.

Familiar fields of interest provide a ready fund of ideas.

THE MINI-FURNITURE, for example, sets the stage for all sorts of conversational gambits revolving around the activities in the home. Maps, pictures, newspapers and magazines recall a scene once visited. Role playing and similar activities demonstrate a favorite sport or recreation. Songs make a special contribution to the "happy family atmosphere" which Alexander favors as conducive to learning.

Alexander, for many years director of Tech's Kinderschule (Children's School), the predecessor to the current program, is a firm believer in introducing language skills at an early age.

"Youngsters can learn to imitate with ease sounds that might seem difficult to an adult," he said. "This early interest also motivates them for future language studies and paves the way for more complete mastery."

MANY OF THOSE WHO attended the Kinderschule from 1955 to 1964 have returned to major or minor in languages at Tech. Graduate student Judy Gordon of Lubbock, a student teaching assistant in the current program, attended as a fourth grader.

"It was," Miss Gordon said, "an ideal age for learning a foreign language. It helped my pronunciation tremendously."

The original program, discontinued when German was added to the local high school curriculum, was reactivated at the junior high level three years ago.

"CHILDREN SHOULD LEARN languages when they are young enough to enunciate properly, before speech patterns have become set," said Andreas Kirvakakis, native of Drama, Greece, working toward a master's degree in German.

Cindy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Bailey, 4831 11th St., is a seventh grader at Mackenzie Junior High, Cynthia, a fifth grader at Parsons, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hennigar, 2533 70th St.

Cobb, Halcomb officers of psychology association

Members of the newly organized Lubbock Association of Psychologists have elected Dr. Beatrix A. Cobb, professor of psychology, president, and Dr. Charles G. Halcomb, associate professor of psychology, secretary-treasurer.

The association was organized this year in an effort to "advance psychology as a science and to promote human welfare."

Dr. Cobb called the organization "a strictly professional organization to stimulate professional curiosity and interchange professional ideas." She said the association will "meet together, work together and advance in the field of psychology."

DR. COBB SAID that there will be no service tie-in with the campus, and that the organization is in no way affiliated with the Tech psychology department.

Membership is open to members of the American Psychological Association in Lubbock. Dr. Cobb expects most of the membership will include Tech faculty and students as well as area psychologists and school counselors.

Membership in the organization includes affiliation with both the Texas and American Associations of Psychologists.

In yesterday's meeting, Dr. Bill Landers presented a panel on the Psychologist Certification Law, including a discussion on what this law involves.

1103 UNIVERSITY PO3-5775

A $3,000 fellowship for graduate study in the field of rehabilitation at Texas Tech during the 1970-71 year will be awarded by Kappa Kappa Gamma, said Thomas P. Stover, director of financial aids at the university. Graduate study in rehabilitation fields are concentrated at Tech in the departments of psychology, sociology, special education and speech. Applicants will be women who plan to enroll at Tech for the 1970-71 academic year and who have a sincere interest in working in the rehabilitation field after graduation." Mrs. Frederick Weidmann of the fraternity's local alumnae group said.

"PERSONALITY, WILL and determination to work in the field will be considered above age or grade point average in determining the winner of the fellowship." Mrs. Weidmann said.

Deadline for applications is Feb. 15, 1970, and the selection of a winner will be made before March 15 by a university committee.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, a 100-year old fraternity for women, will award similar fellowships at each college and university where there is an active chapter of the organization.

WHEN THERE IS NOT a suitable candidate for the $3,000 graduate fellowship, Mrs. Weidmann said, a $1,000 scholarship will be available to an undergraduate woman student majoring in physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, speech pathology, rehabilitation medicine, social work, medical research, education for the exceptional child or a similar field.

Additional information about the fellowships may be obtained from Stover at Tech's Office of Financial Aids or from Mrs. Weidmann at 4511 21st St., Lubbock.

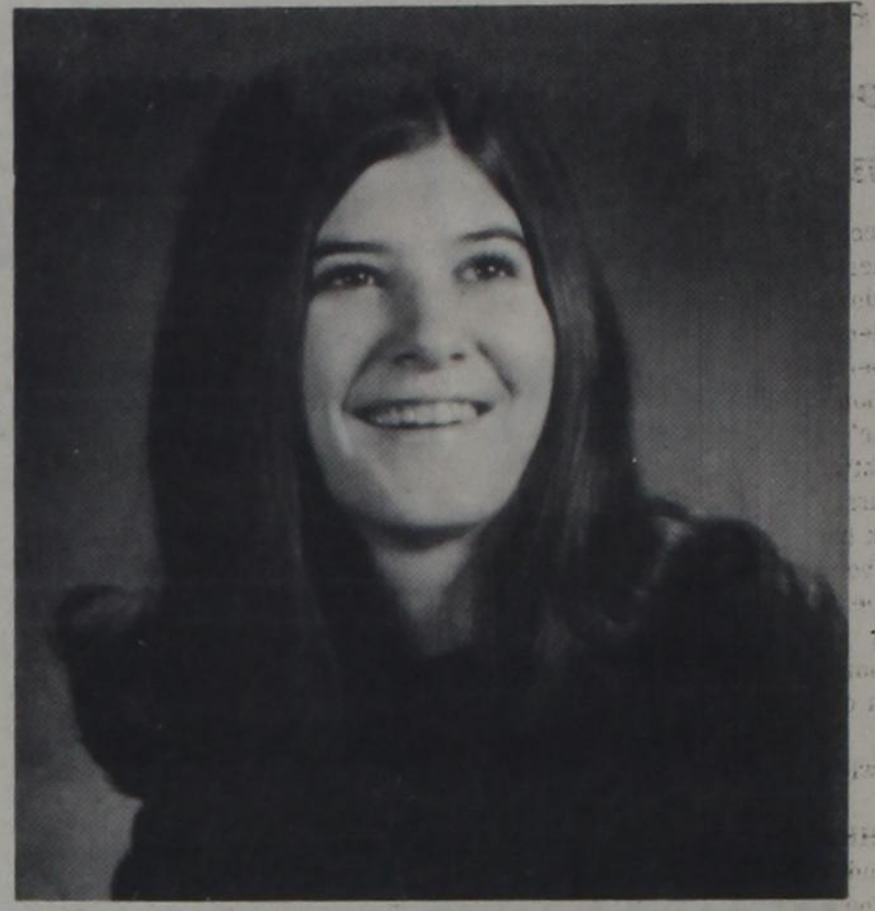

Prof to give talk on Russia to Slavic Club

Dr. Robert Newell, assistant professor of engineering, will address the second meeting of the new Tech Slavic Club today at 7:30 p.m. in room 271 of the BA Building.

Dr. Newell, who has traveled three times to the Soviet Union, will speak on several topics, including agriculture, his visits to textile mills and the collective farms, his tours of the building industries, and his travels in Ubakistan and Samarkand.

Highlight of the talk, which will be illustrated with 80 slides, will be Dr. Newell's evaluation of talks he made with students in Russia.

Future programs for the club, which is not a language-oriented organization, include Dr. David Rodnick, speaking on Czechoslovakia in December, as well as features on Russian art, folk dance and music in coming months.

ROSE PRINCESS—Sigma Nu fraternity elected Marsha Filley as the Sigma Nu White Rose Princess for October. Miss Filley is a sophomore from Midland.

APL systems aid many fields

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of five articles designed to acquaint the faculty and students with APL. A formal demonstration of APL will be offered at Tech through tomorrow by IBM. Eight demonstrations will be given in the fields of mathematics, chemistry, physics, government, agricultural, economics, industrial engineering, business and music.

In the last article the process of writing a subroutine was demonstrated. After the routine has been written it can be used with various arguments by the programmer.

In APL the subroutine is called by typing the name of the function, followed by the argument.

By using the function developed in the last article, type to obtain the square root of four or 2.

It is possible in APL to enter several arguments simultaneously, such as

SQRT 4 1 16

The response would be

If two or more arguments are required for a function, they are typed in the same order as they are given in the header line of the function.

For example, take the function HYP defined in the preceding article. This function gave the hypotenuse of a triangle when two sides are known. The header of the function was ZX HYP Y. In this case if the user wanted to know the hypotenuse of a triangle with sides 3 and 4, he would type and receive the answer

5

Similarly vector arguments can be used here. If the given triangles had sides 1, 1 and 3, 4, the proper instruction would be

1 3 HYP 1 4

This would indicate that the first values for X and Y were 1 and 1 and that the second values were 3 and 4, respectively. The answer would be

1.414213562 5

However, if the two vector arguments did not have the same number of elements, the instruction might be

1 34 HYP 4 2

LENGTH ERROR

In this case the computer does not know which sets of numbers go together and responds with an error message. To correct this instruction, one number must either be added to the second vector or be taken from the first vector. The correct instruction might be

1 34 HYP 1 4 3

and the result would then be

1.414213562 5 5

In the last example the lengths of the two vectors were equal and the command was executed.

1.414213562 5 5

3 HYP 4

Students make errors while changing courses

There were more than 2,300 errors made this semester by students who were dropping and adding courses.

Some students managed to drop or add a course section that didn't even exist. Others put an incorrect social security number on their forms.

The registrar's office spends at least three weeks making corrections and getting students' records in order.

SINCE THE beginning of the fall semester, almost 11,000 students have decided to make a change in their schedule by adding or dropping a course. That means more than 18,000 drops and adds have been made.

If a student is thinking of dropping a course with a passing grade, he has until the last day of classes. If his grade is somewhat below standards for a D, then he is too late to drop with a passing grade. The last day to be assured of a W (passing) on a drop record is the last day of the second week of classes.

The last day to add a course is the 10th day of classes. Adds will only be approved after that day in exceptional cases.

NO FEE ON drops will be charged after 10 weeks of the semester. This went into effect Nov. 10 for this semester.

"Some changes will be made in registration for the spring semester," said D. N. Peterson, registrar. "Although the changes will be general, we hope to improve the flow, the communication, and give the student a better opportunity to get the courses he wants."

"The student will be given a packet prior to registration," said Peterson, "and it will contain all of the auxiliary forms except form C. These forms may be filled out prior to registration and will save the students considerable time and effort. Therefore, less mistakes will be made in registration and fewer courses will be added or dropped later."

PLAN FOOD DRIVE AT TECH — Three of the student leaders for the annual Thanksgiving - Christmas food drive for needy families by Tech sororities are shown getting ready for the collection Nov. 22. Betty Garvin and Kipp Murray are holding trophies to be presented to the sororities which collect the most food by pounds, and Gwen Turner is carrying a sack of groceries for the drive. Murray is chairman of the food collection campaign.

Left coast groups to appear in pop music concert tonight

The Iron Butterfly and the Blues Image will appear tonight at 8 p.m. in the Lubbock Coliseum.

Blues with a Latin beat is the style of the Blues Image, the new musical group co-starring with the Iron Butterfly.

The Blues Image sound is a hodge-podge of styles ranging from black soul to a Caribbean flavor featuring conga drums, maracas and clavels.

The five inventive young musicians composing the group left their homebase of Tampa, Fla. slightly over a year ago to spread their new blues sound.

After an extensive tour of the east coast, the group left for what was to become a triumphant European concert tour.

UPON RETURNING from the continent, they opened Tampa's first psychedelic night club. After launching this very successful venture, they moved to a new club called Thee Experience at which the Blues Image was the premiere musical attraction.

The extraordinarily popular reception of the Image beat resulted in the management of Thee Experience changing the name of the club to Thee Image.

After an extended engagement at the renamed club, the Blues

Image decided it was time to take their sound to the west coast. In August, 1969, they departed for Hollywood. They had been there for only a few hours when they were signed to perform at Whiskey - A - Go - Go, one of the city's top evening attractions.

THIS WAS THE FIRST stepping stone to a recording career for the Image. In February, 1969, they were engaged by a major recording studio who eagerly signed them to a long-term contract. The new album was titled simply 'Blues Image.' It was an overture to the new feeling in music they were trying to generate.

Originality is the theme of the Blues Image musical philosophy. This was put into words by Mike Pineria, a member of the group.

"All of us are created in an image of happiness. But most are unaware of this. They are sad and uptight. We feel music should reflect that feeling. We're not going to make people forget their problems, but just see what those problems are."

THE BLUES IMAGE makes sure that no matter where one sits, whether it be in the 'Peanut gallery' or front row center, he will not miss a single beat of the concert. To insure this, the group is travelling with a sound system worth over $11,000.

Tech sororities plan holiday food drive

The third annual Thanksgiving-Christmas food roundup by members of 13 sororities at Tech will be conducted from 10 a.m. to p.m. Nov. 22.

The food will be given to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy families. An estimated 600 to 700 sorority members are expected to participate in the food collection.

Phi Kappa Psi vice president Kipp Murray, drive chairman, said theme of this year's drive is "The Sky is the Limit."

MURRAY SAID THE sororities will have their choice as to how they will make their collections, and some will begin their drives early.

Most of the food in years past has come from retail grocery stores; however, it is anticipated there will be some house-to-house canvassing this year.

Phi Kappa Psi members will be in charge of accepting and weighing the food and keeping a running report on the poundage turned in by sorority members. The collection will be made on the parking lot immediately south of the Administration Building.

A TROPHY WILL BE presented to the sorority which collects the most food by weight.

Two years ago—the first year of the drive — Alpha Delta Pi took first prize with approximately two tons of food collected. Last year's winner was Zeta Tau Alpha, with four tons. The goal for this year's drive is eight tons, Murray said.

Salvation Army trucks will pick up the food at the conclusion of the drive.

If the Raider defense shines against Baylor this weekend and forces the Bears to punt often, the Tech offense may find itself operating deep in its own territory most of the afternoon. Baylor's kicker Ed Marsh is currently leading the nation in punting with a 45.1 yard average.

Marsh is bidding to become the all-time Southwest Conference champion punter and may have had the best individual day in SWC history with six punts for a 52.0-yard average against Texas last week. SWC record researchers have never compiled single-game marks, but Marsh's showing is probably the best for that many punts. In just six games this season, Marsh has punted 48 times for 2,165 yards.

Tech continues to hold on to their SWC pass defense lead, yielding an average of 121.3 yards via the air game. The Raider's nearest competitor is SMU with a 131.6 average.

Defensive halfback Denton Fox gave up his lead in the pass interception department to Pat Curry of SMU who has snared five wayward aeriels to Fox's four. Fox continues to lead in interception return yardage though, with a total of 101, thirty yards more than his closest competitor, Tom Campbell of Texas.

Tech kicking specialist Jerry Don Sanders kicked his eighth and ninth three-pointers of the season Saturday, tying the mark set by Tony Crosby of Texas in 1963 and tied by Tech's Kenny Vinyard in '67, and he still has two games in which to claim a new standard of his own.

Sander's record of nine field goals in 13 attempts is one of the reasons the SWC is challenging its all-time best season mark for field goals. It was set in '65 when the eight schools hit on 48 of 90 attempts. With 10 games to go, the current SWC mark is 39 of 72. This is already well ahead of the totals for the last three years and right on the schedule of the record '65 season.

Despite all this prodigious placekicking, Tech saw a long string of successful extra points come to an end in the TCU game when Sanders sliced a point-after attempt off to the left, halting a streak of 64 he and Vinyard had going. Tech had been successful on 47 attempts prior to that run, all of which translates to 106 successes in the last 107 PAT attempts.

Although the Tech Picadors only won one of their four grid contests this year it did not stop them from re-writing a mark in the freshman record book. Andy Lowe, Wellington runningback, set a new mark in kickoff returns by running back seven kicks for a total of 126 yards, one yard better than the previous record set by Andy Hovle in 1968.

RED RAIDER CROSS COUNTRY TEAM—The Tech cross country team worked out yesterday in preparation for the Southwest Conference meet to be held at Mackenzie State Park Monday at 3 p.m. This is the first year the conference meet has been held in Lubbock and the Raiders are expected to make a good showing before the home fans.

Baylor worries Raiders

The Raiders finished their last contact workout yesterday before meeting the Baylor Bears here Saturday. Denton Fox, defensive halfback, Richard Cambell, Bruce Dowdy, defensive ends, and Joe Matulich, quarterback, were the only Raiders to be held out of the hard contact drills.

Coach King said of Cambell and Fox, "We would like to see them start, of course, but right now it is hard to say if they will or not. Cambell received a bruised thigh against TCU and has been favoring it all week.

Matulich, who hurt his ankle against Rice, was held out in some of the drills but Coach King said he may see action against the Bears.

Tech's other defensive end, Bruce Dowdy, was also held out of the workouts. King listed Edy Windom as a possible replacement for the injured starter.

Most of the workout was spent polishing the defense and returning punts. Baylor's Ed Marsh leads the nation in punts with a 45.1 average. Last week against Texas he averaged over 52 yards a kick. Coach King said that Marsh kicks a low line drive which is hard to handle, but he also said that the only weakness of Marsh's style is that the Bears can't get good coverage on them.

On the other hand, if the Raiders can not get to Marsh's punts Tech more than likely will be in bad field position because of the lengths of the punt. King also said that the Bears worry him because they return 20 men of 22 that stunned Tech in Waco last year 42-28.

The Raiders will go through a short light contact workout today to cover things missed in yesterday's drills.

Thompson defeats CCC to win IM championship

Quarterback Jack Strange kicked and passed Thompson Hall to the All-University football title last night as Thompson defeated the Crusaders for Christ 9-0 in the championship game.

Strange kicked a 36 yard field goal in the first half and then capped a Thompson drive in the last quarter with a one yard plunge to account for all the points scored.

The remainder of the game was a tight defensive battle with the CCC never being able to get their offense untracked. Thompson limited the CCC to only four first downs throughout the contest. Two other long field goal attempts by Thompson were short of their mark.

Yesterday's victory left Thompson with an unblemished 10-0 record for the season. Thompson went through the regular season unscored on but was touched for 20 points in the final matches.

Last year's champ was Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

Tech Judo Club does well in Amarillo meet

The Tech Judo Club entered 10 participants and came away with 10 trophies last weekend as they competed in a tournament in Amarillo.

In the mens division Pat Quillin, sophomore, took third place in the 139 lb. class and Bob Nolan, sophomore, took second place in the 176 lb. class while Bob Taylor received third place in the same weight division. Taking first place for his fifth straight time was senior Bobbie Dobson who got first place in the 205 lb. division.

The women's competition was dominated by the girls from Tech. In the lightweight class first and second places were won by Linda Wooten and Fran Feeser respectively.

In the heavyweight division Carla Smith, sophomore, won second place while Camilla Vincenti, freshman, won both first place in the division and the overall trophy for the outstanding woman competitor.

All Tech students interested in Judo and would like to enter a class are asked to sign up in the Intramural Gym. Classes are now being held through November 24.
