

THE REWARD FOR GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP
... is the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Trophy which was won by Tech for the second consecutive year and presented to Carlyle Smith, Student Assn. president, at halftime of the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

Tech Captures SWC Trophy

Texas Tech has again proven its ability to support the Red Raider teams in the right way by capturing the Southwest Conference Traveling Sportsmanship Trophy for the second straight year.

The trophy was formally received by Carlyle Smith, Student Assn. president, during halftime activities at the Cotton Bowl game.

The winner is selected annually through voting of committees in all eight conference schools. The committees are made up of the school president, editor of the school paper, head cheerleader, an athletic representative and a junior representative.

The Sportsmanship Committee meets twice yearly to grade the schools in accordance with the Sportsmanship Code. This code outlines the principles of behavior for the competing teams as well as the spectators.

Each year there is a different "chairman school" to act as a coordinating element, and an executive secretary is chosen from this school to take care of correspondence among the conference members. Tech was the chairman school during the past year and Wayne Underwood held the job of executive secretary.

Underwood said he thought winning the trophy again has helped the stature of Tech in the Southwest Conference and that the trophy would probably be placed in the case at the entrance of the Ad. Bldg.

Presidents Sign Petition For Athletic Integration

A petition for the integration of SWC athletics was circulated by Reed Martin, student body president of Rice University, at a meeting of SWC student body presidents Dec. 30 in Dallas.

"The petition stated that it was definitely a matter of personal opinion. Every school signed except the University of Arkansas which didn't have a qualified representative," Carlyle Smith, Tech student Assn. president, said.

The petition was circulated following a general session of the SWC Sportsmanship Committee.

At an impromptu meeting before the general session, the presidents discussed the possibility of forming an association consisting of the heads of student government of SWC schools. It will be further discussed at a meeting Feb. 17 at TCU.

Union Committee Sets Poetry Hour

"The Poetry of Woody Guthrie" will be read by Grover Lewis at a Poetry Hour in the downstairs lounge of the Tech Union at 4 p.m. Friday.

The Poetry Hours are sponsored by the Union's Ideas and Issues Committee.

Informed sources reported the target date for the launching has been shifted from Jan. 16 to Jan. 23.

AUSTIN

Gov. Price Daniel handed the third special session Wednesday a long list of proposals that he would like to see written into law the next 30 days.

Shrugging off attempts in both houses for an early adjournment, the governor told the opening session that he has four main legislative aims—inclusion of banks in the abandoned property act, regulation of small loan firms, permanent maintenance funds for farm roads and more money for tourist attraction and juvenile parole.

'The Champs' Take Easy Win Over Texas In SWC Opener

by CHARLES RICHARDS
Toreador Sports Editor

The Texas Tech Red Raiders, defending Southwest Conference basketball champions and eager to show they still have what it takes, convinced the Texas Longhorns Wednesday night with an easy 77-66 victory in Municipal Coliseum before 9,500 fans.

The game was the conference opener for both teams, and Coach Gene Gibson's quintet followed the 18 point scoring of lanky Roger Hennig to their 14th consecutive home victory and their 10th straight home conference win.

Hennig had able support, however, as four teammates also scored in double figures. Harold Hudgens had 17, Mac Percival contributed 14, and Del Ray Mounts and Sid Wall added 11 each.

The Raider victory left Texas Tech in a first place tie in the conference with Arkansas, 64-59 victors over Texas A&M in Fayetteville, Ark., also Wednesday night. All other league teams were idle. Tech's next game is against the Aggies in College Station Saturday while the Longhorns play Arkansas in Austin.

Although it wasn't the Mutt-and-Jeff combination that provided all the scoring, the game was just as much a crowd pleaser. The Raiders once again found themselves in the familiar role of being at a height and weight disadvantage, but once again as in previous games, Percival and Hudgens did a masterful job in bringing the ball off the boards for the Techs. They garnered nine rebounds each to pace Tech, although the Longhorns' 6-8 forward Jack Dugan gathered in 14 to claim honors for the game.

It was Dugan who provided much of the scoring punch for the Longhorns also, as he traded out with teammate John "Mutt" Heller in connecting on long jump shots from 15 and 20 feet out.

Heller, a 6-3 substitute, finished with 15 and Dugan with 14. They were aided by the 14-point scoring of Jimmy Gilbert, an oddity as a 6-9 guard, but otherwise, the show belonged to Texas Tech.

Bobby Gindorf completed 3 for 3 from the free throw line in the game to run his consecutive string to 27. He hit 1 for 4 from the field to finish with 5 points. Mike Farley made good on his lone effort from the charity line to contribute 1 point to the Raider cause.

Hudgens made a free shot with only 23 seconds gone to send the Raiders out in front, 1-0, and Hennig's 6-foot jump shot from the right base line sent Tech out front, 3-0, before Texas tied it at 3-all with 18:06 left.

The first of Gindorf's free throws put the Raiders out front, 4-3, and then with 17:16 left, Texas took its only lead when former Midland all-stater Mike Humphrey connected on a long set shot from the left hand corner. Hudgens then hit on a short hook, a 10-foot jump

Ethel Glasscock Places Third In Maid Finals

by JEANNIE BOOKOUT
Toreador Society Editor

The South Plains Maid of Cotton, a brown haired, brown eyed Tech sophomore named Ethel Glasscock, passed over 19 girls in the National Maid of Cotton contest when she was named second alternate at Memphis, Tenn.

"I thought it was wonderful," exclaimed Miss Glasscock. "I never dreamed of placing and I was really happy with the outcome."

The Maid of Cotton added that she thought all the contestants at the national contest were wonderful girls. Speaking of the national winner, Penne Percy, she said, "Penne is the perfect All-American type of girl. She is a fine representative of the cotton industry."

Miss Glasscock, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Harold Glasscock, arrived in Memphis Dec. 26 to begin five days of fun and excitement. She and the other contestants appeared before reporters and TV cameramen in a whirlwind of pre-contest activity.

The 22 contestants, representing 14 cotton states, were honored at various events including a Rotary Luncheon and a ball in the Skyway Room of Hotel Peabody.

At the final contest, after being judged on TV and in interviews, each girl walked down a 30-foot ramp into an audience of 5,000 and made a short speech.

Miss Glasscock was presented a $100 U. S. Savings Bond for placing third. The following Saturday she appeared in the Cotton Bowl parade on a float with the South Plains Maid of Cotton alternates, Jan Barton, Tech sophomore, and Denise Rose, Tech junior.

Techsans Continue 432 Hours, Set National Talkathon Record

Two tired Techsans, tongues hanging out, wearily placed the receivers on the hooks at 10 p.m. Dec. 21, to officially end Tech's talkathon.

As Tech's Christmas vacation began, Susan Kershner, Dallas sophomore, and Joe McMillan, junior from Yorktown, said their goodbyes to bring the talkathon to a close. With the last words, West and Gaston Halls became the holders of a national collegiate record—a 432 hour gabfest!

Only once during the 18 days was there any trouble with connections between the dorms—an unknown intruder attempted to spoil all plans to break the national record. However, girls in West discovered the dead line and immediately "found" Gaston on another phone making it possible to maintain the connection.

Although both dorms agreed that the talkathon provided a good outlet for enjoyment as well as study and boosted morale, neither would commit itself to plans for a future contest.

Students Enter Forensic Meet

Tech students will enter the Sixth Annual Golden Spread Forensic Tournament this Friday and Saturday in Amarillo in competition with more than 20 other colleges and universities.

Representing Tech on the senior debate level will be Hack Brummett, Mike Lange, John Compere and John Byrum. On the junior level are Cleo Haston, Wynette Johnson, Mike Pollard, Arthur Skibell, Ellen Weisinger and Jane Nugent.

Extemporaneous speakers will be Arthur Skibell, Hack Brummett, Mike Lange, Wynette Johnson and Jane Nugent.

In the oratory division the speakers will be Kip Glasscock, Ralph W. Carpenter, Genie Joyner, Cleo Haston, Tye Hilger, Anna Gayle Ryan and Jan Barton.

In the poetry division are Rick Malone, Joe Barlow, Karla Alexander, Betty Mabry, Mike Pollard, Kay Porter and Gail Green.

Straight Matter

by Nolan Porterfield

I departed from these hallowed, hollow halls two weeks ago with the best and most honorable intentions of Catching Up During the Holidays. I checked out reference books from the library. I stopped by the bookstore for erasable typewriter paper, a German Verb Wheel and (ignoring the latest "Peanuts" anthology) a set of ear plugs. I turned down innumerable party invitations, and I trudged solemnly home, grimly determined to write two term papers and a book report, translate forty pages of German and wade through "The Moral Philosophy of William Godwin."

Instead, I slept, went to four parties, watched three football games on television, slept, read Patrick Dennis' new rib-tickler, "Little Me," ate endless amounts of turkey and the necessary accoutrement, slept, saw more tv, rang in the New Year and indulged in assorted and miscellaneous other elbow-bending, log-sawing and merry-making.

I may not graduate, but it was fun. Hope you had a merry, likewise.

I'm as proud as anyone that Tech copped the SWC Sportsmanship Trophy again this year, because it's a fine tribute to our deserving Raiders. . . . but I can't help wondering how it happened, in view of several "performances" on the part of the student body. There must be some awfully lousy sports at all other Conference schools.

If anybody happens to remember who played the part of Harrington on the old "Mr. District Attorney" radio series or what Ibis Stick is or was, please contact the Chief Researcher for our Does Anybody Remember Department. He's forgotten and keeps pounding on his padded cell. Moreover, he refuses to do any more Does Anybody Remember until he finds out. The situation is critical, so don't hesitate. (Personally, I think an Ibis Stick was something Superman or somebody used to whip the bad guys, sorta' like Tiny Tim's Magic Amulet, but that doesn't seem to ring any bells.)

From the bulletin of a woman's club in Tacoma, Washington: "The annual rummage sale on the clubhouse lawn will be hell on Thursday."

Heard an interesting angle recently on the possible name change for Tech. "With all the opposition to losing the Double T," says my informant, "why not settle on a good name—perhaps Texas State University—for the whole works. Each school would then become a 'college'—College of Arts and Sciences, etc.—and the schools of Agriculture, Engineering and Home Economics could be known collectively as Texas Technological College. Results: we'd have a better name for the school, and still keep the Double T." Any comment?

Finally, from my golden treasury of cherished puns: Seems that a midget in Pargue, Czechoslovakia, was being chased by the Commy cops. Knowing that the citizenry was often happy to help thwart the Reds, he dashed into a drugstore and whispered to the clerk, "Think you could cache a small Czech?"

Valuable Recognition

Texas Tech Proud Of Trophy

The new year jumped off to a resounding start Monday with the news that Texas Tech had been named winner of the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Trophy for the second consecutive year.

The award was presented during halftime festivities of the Cotton Bowl in Dallas New Year's Day, with Tech Student Assn. President Carlyle Smith receiving the trophy from the 1961 Maid of Cotton. A capacity crowd of 75,000 saw the presentation, in addition to national television audience.

Texas Tech won the trophy after year-long competition with the other seven conference members, and unlike other conference awards, this trophy is won largely by the fans and not necessarily by the athletic teams.

Evaluations were made by members of the Southwest Conference Sportsmanship Committee in each school following each conference football and basketball game over the year in several broad areas. Fans were graded on their courtesy to opponents, overall hospitality for visiting fans, respect for opponents' school songs, traditions and mascots, and acceptance of game officials' decisions with good spirit.

Competing athletic squads were also graded. Each SWC team was compared by its ability to abide by fair and proper means of conduct in its contests, to treat contest officials with due respect, to accept officials' decisions in good spirit and to be gracious in victory or defeat.

No conference school graded its own fans or teams, but graded each league opponent immediately following each athletic contest. At meetings during the Cotton Bowl weekend, the ballots were counted and Texas Tech received the nod.

Selfishness is not ordinarily a good quality, but it would be an extremely good attribute if each student would strive to see that Texas Tech is again on top when the voting for the trophy is tabulated again next New Year's Day. The time to start is now; with the conference basketball season begins another year of competition for the honor.

The trophy is a symbol of outstanding sportsmanship for the year on the part of the winning school, and as a representative of the winning school, each student at Texas Tech is to be congratulated. A lot of work and cooperation are necessary to capture the trophy, but by taking the trophy again, Tech students have shown that they have these necessary qualities.

Winning the trophy is just another in a series of incidents that point out that although Texas Tech is the newest member of the Southwest Conference, she is not a "weak sister," but on the contrary, one of the leaders.

Toreador Mail Call...

Dear Editor:

The Toreador seems to have gone a long way—down. Gone are the days of hot controversy. We realize that this is not the fault of the Toreador staff. There is a rumor that restrictions have been placed on the Toreador staff as to what may be published. It is believed that this policy has arisen out of last year's discussion of the possibility of a Supreme Being. Apparently the administration, because of outside pressure, was influenced to restrict the material which could be discussed in the Toreador. In other words, the Toreador is not a student publication at all, but simply a puppet publication whose policies are controlled by local prejudice.

In short, we believe that the Toreador should be divorced from the influence of the administration, and allowed to operate in the bounds of acceptable journalism.

Sincerely yours,
Barker D. Chunn, Jr.
Thomas Durwood Wylie
Tom E. Adams

To The Editor:

It seems a great deal of attention and space are being devoted to the changing the school song. This is due entirely to the efforts of the managing editor, Mr. Ralph W. Carpenter. One wonders if, indeed, these efforts are not misdirected. Although I doubt if he could conduct a successful campaign to raise money for orphans, I feel sure he has better things to do than to harp on old songs.

Mr. Carpenter, it appears, belongs to the old school of journalism, which came complete with one crusading editor. One is not sure whether The Editor believes in this theory or not. One cannot be absolutely sure what he believes! On the one hand he has urged the Student Council to make a decision on the school song issue. However, the following week, he criticizes their decision to table the matter for further study. "Somebody must make the decisions", he cries! One wonders whether or not "Crusader Ralph" would not like to be the one who makes the decisions for the entire student body, rather than the duly elected Student Council.

Finally, I think "Crusader Ralph" is trying to pull the wool over the eyes of the Student Body. Are the rumors true that he is on the ASCAP payroll? What will be his next crusade? Will he really try to get the room numbers in the Administration Building changed? It is up to the intelligent to speculate where it will end.

Thank you,
Bill Hurley

Young Democrat Club Sends Jones On Washington Tour

"It was certainly a great surprise to hear my name," said Don Jones, after winning a five-day, all expense paid trip to Washington, D. C.

The trip was offered by the Lubbock County Young Democrats to the member signing up the most new members. Jones, a junior pre-law major, enrolled 70 people into the organization.

The Young Democrats had a fund raising dinner Dec. 22 at which time the guest speaker, Congressman Jim Wright, Ft. Worth, announced the winner.

Jones will fly to Washington between semesters where he will visit several prominent politicians and tour the city. He is the vice president and campus coordinator of the Young Democrats.

The member winning second place in the contest was Jack Phillips.

Speech Department Remodels Radio Studio Over Holidays

While most Techsians were enjoying a few days of leisure and rest from the rigors of school, certain members of the speech department were hard at work on the process of construction of a play set, rehearsals for the Jan. 24 opening of "Five Finger Exercise" and the complete rewiring and renovation of the KTXF-FM studio.

According to Charles E. Buzzard, faculty representative for the radio station, the work on the studio was necessitated for better sound and the replacement of 95 percent of the wires was a result. "We now have a station that is equipped better than most small commercial radio stations, and the sound should be improved 100 percent," Buzzard said.

KTXF will be on the air starting Monday from 2-12 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 12-12 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The station encourages campus organizations to use the facilities for advertising their activities. Live broadcasts are made as well as tapes that can be sent to the other local radio stations for only the cost of the tape.

Professors Attend Various Meetings

Several members of the animal husbandry department will be representing Tech in various parts of the country during the month of January.

Stanley Anderson, associate professor of agriculture, will sponsor a junior livestock judging team to compete in the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Jan. 13. On Jan. 27 Anderson will sponsor a team at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show.

K. B. Turner, associate professor of animal husbandry, will attend the annual Turkey Federation in Dallas, Jan. 25, to learn of future trends in the turkey industry.

J. H. Baumgardner, animal husbandry prof. will participate in a West Texas tour beginning Jan. 20 to study livestock feeding methods and grain sorghum market development.

Art Show Features Californian's Work

The West Texas Watercolor Assn. annual membership art exhibit will feature ten watercolors by Rex Brandt, a California artist of national repute.

A preview showing will be from 7-9 p.m., Friday, in the West Texas Museum on the Tech campus. The show will run Jan. 6-28 at regular museum hours.

Two primary objectives of the association are to provide good art locally and to raise the standards of development of local artists by cooperating with cultural and civic groups in a specified area.

Artists from Midland, Sudan and Lubbock have contributed watercolors to the exhibit.

Raiders Win Opener...

shot and an under-the-basket tip-in in quick order to send the Raiders out front, 10-5.

Coach Harold Bradley's cagers then staged a mild rally to close the gap to 10-8 on baskets by Butch Skeete and Joe Fisher, but Hudgens hit again from 12 feet out to widen the margin to 12-8. Mounts added a free throw, Skeete scored for Texas on a lofty hook shot, and then the Raiders really took charge.

Wall hit a 20-footer from the center, Mounts and Hennig each scored on driving lay-ups, Mounts hit a free shot, and Wall and Mounts scored again on jump shots to send Texas Tech way out front at 24-10, and from then on the Raiders had nothing to do but listen for the victory bells to start chiming.

Texas moved to within 10 points at 26-16, but that was as close as they could come before the Raiders moved out to a 15-point advantage, 34-19, with 4:44 left in the first half, and later to the biggest lead in the game, a 17-point, 46-29 margin with 0:49 left. Heller scored a three-point play for the Longhorns with only 3 seconds left, and at the halftime intermission, Tech led, 46-32.

Texas scored two quick baskets after a tip-in by Hudgens to move the margin to 48-36, but then, led by Percival, the Raiders took a 16-point margin, 56-40, and then were paced by Hennig to another 16-point lead, 63-47.

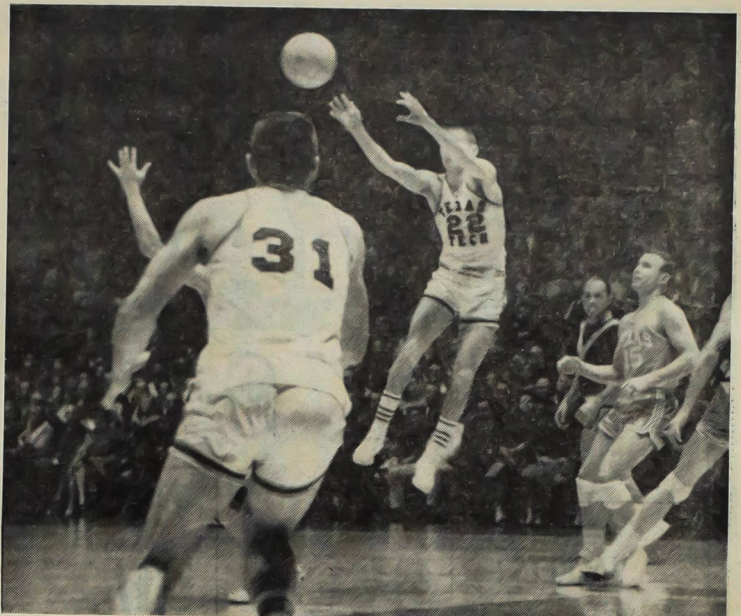

Heller then made two goals, and Skeete and Gilbert added three points on free throws to make the score 64-54. Farley made a charity shot and Wall two to make it 67-54 with 5:35 left as the Raiders began to slow up the game with delay tactics.

It was a conservative-type of game for Tech from then out as they often passed up A-zone shots to move the ball back outside. Hennig made one goal, but all the rest for Tech were from the free throw line as the Raiders traded out baskets to take the final margin, 77-66.

Meeting Is Today

The Double-T Assn. will have its first meeting of 1962 today, Gerald Hodges, president, announced Wednesday.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Double T Lounge in the athletic offices at Jones Stadium.

Frosh Win Second, Defeat S P C, 72-56

will be Jan. 9 against the Ince Oilers preceding the Tech-Rice battle.

The Tech Picadors, who looked like ugly ducklings at the start of the season, blossomed into swans Wednesday night and turned away the South Plains Junior College Texans, 72-56.

An almost capacity student crowd watched as the Picadors turned in their finest effort of the season against the older Texans.

It was a matter of just trading baskets in the early minutes of the first half. Glen Hallum, 6-4 cager from Brownwood, scored on a jump shot and gave the Picadors a short-lived 2-0 lead. The Texans' Donald Ivie matched Hallums basket to knot the score at 2-2.

Big 6-8 Harold Denney connected again for the Frosh, but James Collins made good a three-point play to give the Rangers their only lead of the contest, 5-4. Collins put the South Plains group back into a tie after a jump shot by Jay Walling for Tech, and then the Picadors pushed into the lead for keeps.

Hallum hit on a jump with five minutes left in the half to shove Tech to an 11-point lead, 31-20, and that was the biggest margin of the half. As the buzzer sounded, it was 35-27, Picadors.

Tech really sacked it away in the last 20 minutes. With 9:56 left in the game, the Picadors had a 10-point lead, 52-42. Four minutes later that margin was upped to 64-42, and the game was all but over.

Hallum led all scorers with nine field goals and a trio of free throws for 21 points. Denny came in second with 15 and Walling had 13.

South Plains had only a pair of cagers in double figures, Collins with 14 and Sage with 13.

The polished Picadors gave new coach Charlie Lynch an even break for the season. Tech fell to the West Texas State freshmen, then to Midwestern before breaking in to the win column. KCLV and the South Plains group have become the first and second victims of the young Raiders.

The next game for the Picadors

COME TO ME! — Del Ray Mounts reaches high for a pass in the Raiders' 77-66 win over Texas Wednesday while Mac Percival stands by to help. The conference victory, coupled with a 54-49 defeat of Texas A&M by Arkansas, made Tech co-leaders with the Razorbacks in the young conference campaign. About 9,500 viewed the contest in the coliseum, the largest crowd of the season.

Well, cheerio and welcome back. The life of Lubbock is Texas Tech and when Tech leaves, Lubbock looks like a rest home at midnight. And the campus looked like a deserted dry gulch through the holidays. It's tough to be left with that but when you live here there's not much you can do about it.

There was a little activity last week, though, on Thursday and Friday. Quite a few Techsians journeyed from their neighboring bergs to see the Raiders and Texas bounce around with Ole Miss and William & Mary. And a good number of those students who did come to see the games found a sweet little surprise awaiting them at the coliseum door—behold an admission, for students, right after Christmas.

Yes indeed, presentation of ID's PLUS a one dollar bill, and Tech students had the privilege of watching THEIR team on THEIR court. Hmmm . . .

Presentation of ID's alone is supposed to admit all students to ALL scheduled athletic events involving Texas Tech. And the holiday doubleheaders were on the Tech schedule in English and black and white.

One explanation says that school is not in session and thus students are not students and must pay. Well, the first football game two years ago was before the opening session of the fall semester and students didn't have to pay for it. So why pay during the holidays? Maybe there are good excuses, I don't know yet.

One thing for sure, nowhere was there more basketball activity over the holidays than here in Lubbock. The annual Caprock Holiday Tournament progressed from Wednesday through Saturday last week, intertwined with the Tech doubleheaders.

An all-Lubbock final in the tourney held quite a bit of interest in the area and a good crowd (about 3,500) saw the championship game between the Monterey Plainsmen and the Tom S. Lubbock Westerners. Monterey, who had trounced the Westerners earlier in the Odessa Tournament, 49-31, found a bit more resistance in the cross-town group this time and edged by with only a 53-48 margin.

The Plainsmen, coached by former Raider star Gerald Myers, have the potential to win District 3-AAAA for the first time in the school's history. Myers, in his debut as head mentor last year at Monterey, led the Plainsmen to a surprise second place finish in the district. The group lost the title in a one-point defeat at the hands of Amarillo Palo Duro, the team which eventually took second in the state tournament.

Not only did Texas beat Mississippi in the Cotton Bowl Monday, but Texas Tech gained a victory, too. For the second consecutive year Tech owns the SWC Sportsmanship trophy. And the presentation of the trophy during halftime with a nationwide audience gave Tech a boost in the publicity department. As Joe Kelly, sports head of the Avalanche-Journal commented, "If the Raiders get the trophy for a third year, it might as well be called the Texas Tech Sportsmanship trophy."

Charles Richards, long famous as Toreador Sports Editor, was at the Cotton Bowl in the flesh. Charles was appointed a member of the SWC Sportsmanship Committee some time ago and took part in evaluating member schools for the award. But, since he could not vote for Tech, there must be some other sensible reason why the Raiders got the trophy for a second year. 1. All member schools are bad (Texas made sure of that) but Tech was "less" bad than anyone else (sorta "the lesser of a few evils" idea). 2. Somebody miscounted the ballots. 3. Tech really deserved the honor (which is, naturally, the real reason).

Edsel Buchanan has announced the arrival of all trophies for those who have won Intramural events during the semester and would like for the recipients to pick them up as soon as possible.
