Tech Divides With Indians In Opening Pair Of Games Of Week's Abilene Series

El Toro

By WILLIAM SEWELL

Now that the new coach has been announced, the next issue of importance that comes before us is the question of the Staked Plains conference. Even those who are opposing the proposed plan will agree that the Tech Athletic council is doing all that it can to promote the college athletics, and at this time it is our privilege to read the opinion of a member of the council who has given us a definite idea about the new conference. Dr. W. A. Jackson has clearly outlined the plan and supports his position with some good reasons. We are glad to present the following article by Dr. Jackson to the followers of Tech athletics:

"Apparently there is a good deal of loose thinking regarding the proposed new athletic conference. The Tech Athletic association has been criticized for abandoning its efforts to be admitted to the Southwestern conference. The fact is that efforts were not abandoned until it was apparent that further efforts would be of no avail. The Southwestern conference is now a compact organization except for the University of Arkansas. This school has been and is a 'thorn in the side' of the other conference members when it comes to making schedules. It is unreasonable to suppose that it would take on a second 'thorn.' At any rate the Tech made application for three successive years, and failed each time.

"The question has been raised—why do we not try to enter the Texas conference? The Texas conference is not a compact organization now. The admission of Tech, granting that Tech could get in, would not make it any more so. If we were in the Texas conference there are two schools with whom we could arrange games without a financial loss. Both of these, Simmons and Howard Payne, are proposed members of the new conference. It is easy to say that the financial side is not the only one to be considered. On the other hand when intercollegiate athletics must

Cotton Tested By Textile Students

Study Made Of Difference Between Machine Picked And Hand Picked Fibres; Other Tests Requested

Students in the Textile Engineering department are doing some experimental work for cotton job. Deere Machine company of Moline, Illinois to determine whether a cotton picking machine put out by the company affects the spinning of the material. Two lots of cotton have been sent to the department from Abernathy. One of these is hand picked and the other machine picked, and both are to be experimented on to determine the difference, if any. This work was started early this week, but it will be at least two weeks before it is possible to announce any results, according to Mr. Carl Brandt, head of the department.

Two more lots of Arizona cotton, furnished by the same company, are now on the way here to be used in similar tests. The machine in question is said to be carried in the picker's hand, being held over the boll to scoop the cotton job. The value of the cotton is a matter of interest to progressive farmers of the entire south. Mr. Brandt states that the experience in the selection of practical problems will be of considerable value to the students in his department; furthermore, he says that the tests will increase the interest of textile industries throughout the country in Tech's work in this line. It will be inquiries along a similar direction have been received from a hosiery mill in Dallas. The concern makes full fashioned silk hose, and wants the textile department to make tests of the raw silk

Zimbalist, Famous Violinist, Says He Likes Jazz If It Is Played Perfectly

Likes This Region For People's Democracy And Speech

BY EVA ROB WATKINS

"Good Jazz I like it," said Efrem Zimbalist, who appeared in concert at the gymnasium Tuesday night, "but it must be played perfectly before it is beautiful." He added smiling and wrinkling up the corners of his eyes. "A few years ago Europeans had a low regard for American music, but they have been forced to change their ideas because Americans are becoming more and more appreciative of better music. This is possibly because so many European masters are coming over here."

Zimbalist, although a Russian by birth, is an American citizen, making his home in New York with his family. "Oh I have two children," he said enthusiastically, "a little girl fourteen and a boy ten. My little girl—ah, she grows so tall already—goes to a girl's school in Boston, and my little boy goes to school in New York." His wife, the famous Alma Gluck, has retired from grand opera to devote her life to her family. She is now at their New York home. Although both his children love good music and are learning to play, they do not have any desire to be professionals.

"This great musician is very enthusiastic about the radio. It is a wonderful step forward in civilization. Good music can reach so many people. But of course it is not so good as the real thing. No canned music ever is—like canned soup exactly—fairly good, but not like the soup that you get at home."

"Isn't this college out here democratic?" he asked. "I know it must be. One has a chance to learn so much more I think in a school of that kind. I went to school in Petrograd, but it was not at all democratic. Over there we call our school the gymnasium. But everything has changed since the revolution.

"I like it down here" he said quite spontaneously "because I can see so far, and I do love to hear you people talk." To Zimbalist the southern drawl is the most beautiful accent there is in America. "You people—ah, you don't realize it. Why when you come to New York you try to lose it soon as possible, and when you do you lose half your charm."

Zimbalist is glad the dresses are longer. "They are beautiful I think just what the American woman needs. She is already the best dressed woman in the world though."

"Better dressed than the French

Revives Dead Hour Proves Love Will Find A Way

"Where there's a Western Union there's a way"—So might be rendered the old proverb about the will in light of the recent exploits of a certain Tech collegian.

Seven and a half tinkles sound the dead hour at College Inn on week days, and after that no man may pass, nay, nor even call. But Love waits for nothing, not even house mothers and college regulations. Thus it was that a young swain, finding it most urgent to get in intimate violation with his heart's latest, called up College Inn by telephone and delivered Cupid's decree in the following way:

"This is Western Union. We have a telegram for Miss Smith. Will you call her to the phone please?"

And of course the matron complied with the request. The young man continued:

"We have the following wire for you, Miss Smith: 'LUBBOCK TEXAS, 8:30 P.M. MISS SMITH COLLEGE INN LUBBOCK TEXAS WANT DATE WITH YOU SATURDAY NIGHT STOP I LOVE YOU JOHN!'"

A.W.S. To Sponsor Detailed Program For Woman Leader

Miss Leahla Anderson will speak at Convocation on Wednesday. To Be Here For Entire Week

Miss Leahla Anderson, Episcopal student worker, will be the chief speaker at convocation Wednesday February 12. This convocation is sponsored by the Association of Women students, and the men of the college are invited to attend as well as the women. In addition to Miss Anderson's talk, there will be music and readings on the program. The officers of the A. W. S. and a girl from each school in the college will be seated with Miss Anderson on the stage.

Miss Anderson will arrive here Saturday afternoon from St. Margaret's school in Berkeley, California. She will spend the week of February 9-15 in Lubbock. Thursday and Friday have been left practically free in her program so that she may speak to various campus organizations and have personal interviews.

Sixteen pretty Tech co-eds are to appear in song and dance numbers in the musical show, "The Jollies of 1930," to be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock at the high school auditorium. The beauty chorus of the show is under the direction of Miss Zella Egeles, instructor in physical education at the college.

Tech girls who will be presented in the "Jollies" are: Misses Mary Beth Sheely, Malba Mae Tatum, Louise Garrison, Margaret Boykin, Rawley Long, Margaret Rayzor, Edna Kane, Frances Gunn, Evelyn Rutherford, Dorothy Wilson, Mary Frances Gale, Alice Green, Marion Meriwether, Ruth Little, Louise Pressgrove and Eloise Nelson.

The lecture on "Culture and Religion" by Professor C. B. Qualia which was scheduled for last Sunday will be given next Sunday in the chemistry auditorium at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Qualia was unexpectedly called away last Friday to attend the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Chris Qualia at Del Rio Texas.

Buffalo Head Is Given To School

A large, beautifully mounted buffalo head has been contributed to the department of Geology by Clifford B. Jones member of the board of directors of Tech. The head, which came from the Goodnight ranch near Clarendon, will be put up in the hall of the geology department in the Chemistry building.

Large Number Attend 3-Day Program Of 2nd Annual Texas Tech Farmers' And Homemakers' Short Course Here

College Officials Pronounce Meetings Decided Success And Williams And Manley Fail To Appear

"An unqualified success" were the words used by Dr. F. W. Horn, president of the college, in describing the second annual Texas Tech Farmers' and Homemakers' Short Course held here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Professor H. J. Bower, head of the department of agronomy and director of the short course, also expressed his complete satisfaction at the success of the meetings. Although definite enrollment figures are not yet available, Mr. Bower stated last Tuesday that he was confident that before the end of the course the total attendance would equal the expected 1,500.

Dairy Barn Being Repaired After Last Week's Fire

Will Be In Good Condition Again In A Short Time; Walls And Roof Of Damaged Parts Being Rebuilt

Reconstruction of the part of the dairy barn destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning of last week was started Friday. The contract was let to J. J. Clements, local builder.

At the present time the departments of animal husbandry and dairy products manufacturers are suffering from lack of equipment because of the damage resulting from the fire. Workmen are busy rebuilding the milk wash, boiler and sun rooms, and the part of the main barn where cows were stationed which was badly damaged by fire. Within a few days the building will be in practically as good condition as it was before the fire.

Sufficient insurance was carried to cover the loss of the buildings, but much of the equipment belonging to the department of dairy products manufacture was not adequately protected. The total loss in equipment has not yet been determined.

The equipment that is absolutely necessary for conducting the dairy manufacturers work at this time will be ordered and replaced immediately. On account of shortage of funds all equipment will not be replaced until an appropriation of funds has been secured from the state.

Who's Who Books Name Tech People

President P. W. Horn, Dr. S. S. McKay and Dr. J. J. Granberry are listed in the 1929-30 "Who's Who in American Education," a biographical dictionary of eminent living educators of the United States.

Six Tech people are in "Who's Who in America," for 1929-30. They are Dr. Horn, Dr. Granberry, Dean J. M. Gordon, Dr. L. T. Patton, Elizabeth I. West and Dr. A. B. Cunningham.

In "American Men of Science" for 1927 the names of Dean W. E. Miller, Dr. W. F. Read and Dr. E. F. George appear.

W. T. Gaston Works For Appropriations

Mr. W. T. Gaston, business manager of the college, is now at Austin representing Tech in its plea for sufficient funds for the college for 1930-31. It is likely that action will be taken on the matter soon, but as yet Governor Moody has not made his request for appropriations to the legislature.

Tech Admitted To Rifle Organization

Universities Of Southern California, Washington And Iowa State Are Members; Matches Arranged

Announcement of Tech's admission to the Western States Intercollegiate Rifle League has been received by Charles Adams, secretary of the Rifle club, and targets for the freshman division match already have arrived.

Other colleges which are members of this division of the league are the State University of Iowa, University of Washington, and the University of Southern California. Since admission to the league requires weekly rifle matches, it has been arranged for the Tech club to compete with Iowa university this week ending February 11, with the University of Washington the week ending February 22, and with the University of Southern California the week ending March 1.

He's The Campus Boss At Night

Jack Hightower, Tech Nightwatchman, Dominates From Cape Cod to Pecos Valley As Dark Sets In

All the way from the gym to the dairy barn the collegian and the co-ed holds sway over the campus throughout the day, but there's a little man known to but a few who wields the big stick on the campus at night. He crashes every basketball game, and like a true collegian man he is "in" on every necking party that is staged on the Tech acres. After dusk he rules, to put it in his own words, "all the way from Cape Cod to Pecos Valley." He is generally known as "Jack," but his full name is Jack Hightower. He is the guardian of the buildings at night.

Possibly you've seen him. A little man, with high brown shoes scuffed by countless encounters with the ups and downs of the campus topography wearing blue overalls, blue shirt minus necktie, and with a rolled cap cocked over his right eye, he is. If the night be unusually disagreeable, the whole of his small stature will be probably be swaddled in a large black overcoat. Apparently he is one man who has not been harmed by an excess of "night life." For, although he is still in his early forties, he looks to be much younger. He fairly radiates amity and good will, except when he encounters one in a parked automobile. For, among other things, it is his specific duty to keep would-be neckers and spooners on the move and off the college properties. In his spare time, however, he makes his beat which includes regular visits to each of the major buildings on the campus.

Usually he is seen tugging at a small portable time clock suspended from his shoulders by a leather strap. A curious instrument this little time piece. It contains a small roll of paper. When Jack "makes a station" he inserts a key into the clock and the time is recorded on the roll of paper. Periodically this paper is removed, and Jack's boss checks up on his nocturnal vigil.

After all it's no fun wandering through on a lonely college campus "all by yourself in the moonlight" or in the rain, snow, sleet, or whatever the weather man sends.

New Tech Coach

Pete Cawthon Selected By College Directors To Be Tech Football Mentor

Southwestern Conference Official And Former Austin College Coach May Come Here In April For Spring Training

Pete Cawthon is to be Tech's football mentor and director of athletics for next year following a selection by Tech's board of directors at a meeting in Corsicana last week. The announcement came from Dr. Paul W. Horn Tuesday morning.

Comedy Presented At Dramatic Club

Comedy and realism of the modern family life were admirably combined in "Not Quite Such a Goose," a one-act play written by Elizabeth Galsworthy and presented at a meeting of the Sock and Buskin club last night in room 202. Briefly, it is the story of a brother and sister who display all of the traditional antagonism, but who, nevertheless, end their quarrels after each of them has fallen in love.

The play was directed by Claudine Cook, vice-president of the Sock and Buskin club.

Due to a conflict between the appearance of Zimbalist and the regular time of the club, the play was presented last night instead of Tuesday night.

Engineers To Give Slide Rule Award

Two chances on a slide rule will be given to each engineering student purchasing a ticket to the annual Engineers' banquet during this week, according to an announcement by Cary Lodal, secretary of the engineering society. From February 26 until the date of the banquet on March 1, the lucky number will be drawn at the banquet, and the slide rule will be presented at that time.

E. C. H. Bantel, assistant dean of the University of Texas engineering school, has accepted the invitation of the Tech Engineering society to be the main speaker at the banquet.

The ticket sale for the affair is now progressing rapidly, according to reports. A desk has been set up by the reading room of the first floor of the engineering building for the purpose, although no particular effort to sell tickets will be made during the next two weeks.

Grading Revision To Be Considered

A faculty meeting is to be held Tuesday afternoon in room 302 at 4:15 o'clock Dr. W. L. Ray, chairman of the recently appointed faculty committee on the revision of the grading system, will present the recommendations of such faculty members as have submitted letters announcing the faculty meeting. Dr. Horn calls attention to the recent fire at the dairy barn and urges that all precautions be taken against the recurrence of such fires. Special attention is directed upon the fact that smoking is forbidden in the buildings of the college and that the rule against smoking be enforced.

Grid Schedule For 1930 Is Announced By Athletic Council

Is Framed To Meet Situation In Case New Conference Is Formed; Includes Tilt With Horned Frogs

The 1930 gridiron schedule for the Tech Matadors has been announced this week by the athletic council. The card of games includes several new teams, as it was framed to meet the situation in case the new Staked Plains conference becomes a reality. The New Mexico Aggies and the Texas School of Mines are the two new opponents for the Matadors of 1930. Besides these there are seven old enemies of the gridiron five of whom Tech has defeated in other past seasons.

The schedule contains but one Southwestern conference team, T. C. U. will be played in Fort Worth on October 24. The first four games will be played in Lubbock before the team goes to Cowtown for the annual grid struggle. The week after the T. C. U. game the West Texas Teachers will be played in Canyon. This will be followed by the Armistice Day game with A. C. C. after which the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets will be met in Brownwood. The season will close with the second annual Turkey Day clash with the Simmons Cowboys in Lubbock. This will be the most outstanding contest on the local grid next fall.

Schedule For 1930
Sept. 27—Wayland at Lubbock
October 4—New Mexico Aggies at Lubbock (Sanhandle-South Plains Fair)
October 11—McMurry at Lubbock
October 17—Texas School of Mines at Lubbock
October 24—Texas Christian University at Fort Worth
November 1—West Texas Teachers at Canyon
November 11—Abilene Christian College at Lubbock
November 19—Howard Payne at Brownwood
November 27—Simmons at Lubbock

Transfer Credits

The standards of a school are indicated not only by the quality of work it expects of its own students but also by its policy of dealing with transfers from other schools. These transfers are absorbed into the life of the institution to which they change. They help determine the progress of the classes; they help to determine the scholastic ideals; they ultimately become graduates from the school to which they transfer. They are a real part of the school.

Granting, then, the close relationship between a school's standards and the recognition it gives transfers, it may be said that Tech's manner of dealing with that group is not indicative of entirely satisfactory scholastic requirements. The statement in the catalogue covering this matter is as follows:

"Students transferring from other colleges will be given credit for only courses that have been passed with a grade which is one letter above the passing grade in the institution from which the student comes; and then only when such courses or their equivalent are given for credit in Texas Technological College."

The above provision means the unconditional acceptance of grades earned in other colleges, including junior colleges, teachers' colleges, and the smaller denominational schools. It is understood that in the school of engineering in Tech transfers are given only tentative credit for their work in other schools, that the final acceptance is dependent upon the transfer's ability satisfactorily to pass the advance work in this college, but it is also known that for the most part in the college as a whole, there is no condition attached to the acceptance of credits. In other words a student might do preliminary work in a small, poor junior college, transfer to Tech, have his credits accepted, fail his advanced courses here, and yet retain credit for the work done in the school from which he transferred with no requirement that he learn the preliminary work satisfactorily before continuing to attempt advanced work. He may therefore continue to show up in his classes, embarrass the instructors, clog up the general machinery, and lower the standards of the college.

At this point it might be well to point out that the matter is of no minor consequence in Tech. A large portion of its enrollment comes from other schools of inferior quality, and a great many of these are unable to pass the grade of work that members of the Tech faculty try to hold up. This condition especially and frequently holds true in those fields of study where success in advanced work is dependent on thorough groundwork—such fields, for example, as foreign language of any kind, the physical sciences, and mathematics.

The evils of the system may be summarized as follows:

- (1) The progress of the class is delayed by the incapable transfer student.
- (2) The entire educational machinery is retarded by the necessity for repetition of work in attempt to retain advanced standing.
- (3) The professor is embarrassed because the failures are charged against him in the reports to the administration. The failures are caused by inadequate preliminary work and not by his inability to instruct or interest the student.

- (4) A poor quality graduate is ultimately turned out.
- (5) The general intellectual tone of the college is lowered by the standards of the poor quality transfer.
- (6) The college is not consistent in the policy followed in that part of it, as already mentioned, does make only a conditional, tentative acceptance of credits, whereas the rest of the school accepts them at face value.

Believing that the standards of Tech will not be what they ought to be as long as it accepts incompetent transfers from schools that do not have the resources to train their students properly, it is suggested that all credit for work done in another institution should be accepted here only tentatively subject to the ability of the student to perform his work here satisfactorily.

Dean Says Morals Of Tech On Incline

Trouble Over Milk-Stealing Declared To Be Practically Gone; Drinking Reported To Be On Decline

Morals are on the incline in Tech if the number of boys called into Dean J. M. Gordon's office for discipline is any criterion, because there are fewer cases which necessitate "calling them on the carpet" than ever before in the history of the school.

"The first two or three years we had trouble with milk-stealing," says Dean Gordon, "but there is practically none of this going on now. Drinking is on the decline, too, and it seems that students in general have a higher conception of what school life is and should be."

"There has been some trouble with hot checks, and this has become a matter of discipline for the school, but in every matter of trouble which boys may get into there has been a decided improvement all along."

Tech Four Years Ago

(Compiled from old copies of the Toreador and newspaper clippings for the week preceding February 6, 1926.)

The Texas Tech Matadors won their second straight game from McMurray college, Abilene, 30 and 28 when a belated rally in the last five minutes of the play netted seven field goals.

Tech is presented with briefs prepared by the 37 cities of West Texas which sought to be its location. Each document permanently bound, presents a brief history of one of the towns, the advantages of its location and the surrounding country, its population, industries, and business and its hopes for the future. Each is illustrated with views of the town, showing business buildings, homes, schools, churches and activities.

Clifford B. Jones was reappointed regent.

The major part of Cheri Cass embarked for California in a freight train.

The street light in front of College Inn was mysteriously and brutally demolished—possibly to facilitate student activities of various kinds.

Y. W. A. convention held at Tech.

Members of the Las Chaparritas Club, Tech's first successful social organization, altruistically offer to sell annuals. (These were the thirty days before library deposits were invented).

"Beautiful Sunset" was presented by the Dramatic club.

ARTISTS "BUST" POWELL DURING PICTURE MAKING

Nine plaster cast busts were made of William Powell at the Paramount studio in Hollywood as part of his role in "Behind the Make-Up" the all-talking picture adapted from Mildred Cram's popular magazine story, "The Feeder." Powell is featured with Hal Skelly and Fay Wray in this picture which will show at the Palace theatre, starting Thursday for 3 days.

Powell plays the part of an Italian artistic genius and his image, in plaster, oils and photography, appears frequently throughout the picture. Powell posed for one of the studio's four foreign-trained sculptors and, since other spare minutes had to be given to Italian lessons for the role, he was only able to spend, in all, three hours with the artist.

Eleventh Straight Victory Taken By Scarlet And Black Cagers In Winning Two Game Series With Sul Ross Crew

Tech Takes First By 33-22 And Second By 44-19; High Point Men Are Hodges And Maxwell

Two more scalps were added to the belts of the campaigning Matadors Wednesday and Thursday nights of last week. The victims of the Scarlet attack this time were the Sul Ross Lobos from Alpine. Tech copped the first game 33 to 22 and annexed the second 44 to 19. These victories ran their number of wins to eleven, out of as many contests.

After the tough series with A. C. C. the Tech quintet was in somewhat of a "let down" mood Wednesday evening. The boys seemed to be just playing fast enough to keep a few points ahead of the Lobos. The half ended 14 to 10, Tech. Coach Payne sent in a number of substitutes in this period in effort to find a quintet that would function as it should. Captain Fisher was the first to be replaced. Grimes went in and played a good brand of ball, but was not able to give the necessary punch to the scoring machines.

In the second half the Matadors took the floor minus the services of Fisher and Maxwell. Dalton, Grimes, Tadlock, Vincent, and Hodges were holding up the scarlet standard about as well as any combination had, but it was not until the Lobos came within two points of tying the score that the Tech five realized what it was all about.

Matadors Pull Away

The Paymen suddenly developed an eye for the basket, and it was not long before a comfortable lead was established. Maxwell and Fisher went back into the melee and showed the customers that they had not lost any of their fighting ability. It was Hodges that had kept the lobos out in front all evening, and with a little assistance from his mates he was able to continue his pace in the latter stanza to count a total of 17 points, which was high for the evening.

Second Game

The second game started off as if it were going to be even slower than the first contest. About nine minutes elapsed in the first half before the Tech shooters registered a field goal. The Lobos counted but two in this time. At the half the Matadors were in the lead 13 to 6.

By their uncanny ability to take almost every tip off, the Tech floor-men were able to walk far into the lead in the latter half of this game. Maxwell was the hot number this time. He sank 17 points for high honors of the evening.

This was the last game that will be played in the Matador gym until February 10 and 11 when the Canyon Buffaloes come to town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hardin, Gatesville, spent the week-end with their daughter, Louise, who has been ill with the measles.

Astounding Optical Illusion Created By Marionettes; Seem To Be Life Size

Everyone wants to know, even after seeing Tony Sarg's Marionettes soon to be here under the auspices of Tech Artists Course, Feb. 27, "How Large Are the Puppets?"

The accompanying drawing by Tony Sarg, shows Charles E. Searle, the manager of the Tony Sarg Marionettes as he appears, at the end of each performance, in relative proportion to a marionette or a number of them. He seems to be sixteen feet in height, and invariably brings forth a chorus of "oh" and "ahs" when he finished the performance in this manner.

Perfect In Proportion
Erander Mathews, Gordon Craig and others have remarked upon the astounding optical illusion, which, after some twenty or thirty characters appear in turn before King George's inn, in Rip Van Winkle, in proportion, and in appearance life size.

There is really very little difference in the effect upon the crowd, as may be seen when the pathetic scenes bring moistened eyes. The comedy, which is the larger part of the marionette plays, brings roars of laughter as the funny situations follow each other so rapidly that there is no counting the laughs in a Tony Sarg production.

Appear In Large Cities
The Tony Sarg Marionettes appear each season in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and all the large cities of the East in the largest auditoriums and theatres and once in two years make a trip to the Pacific Coast, appearing in the largest cities en route.

The Tony Sarg Marionettes have their own stage and this is complete with scenery, lighting effects, and transformation and other realistic scenes, all like the equipment of a master magician.

The supply of dumb freshmen never runs out it seems. The other day some girls were studying for a Latin mid-term in the "Y" room. One of them turning through her book, was heard to remark: "And who was Acropolis?"

A special meeting of A. W. S. is called for this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock in room 203. Members who have not paid for their annual lectures are requested to pay Care Mathews as soon as possible.

ured it out. That may be a slight misstatement of the facts. Tech was gaining on the Indians toward the last and a disagreement between the timekeepers resulted in Coach Vic Payne's protesting the game. If Coach R. M. Medley will agree to play the game over, the Matadors will remain in Abilene for the play-off Friday night, according to M. T. Warlick, athletic business manager for the Lubbock team.

Warlick was timekeeper for Tech and Howard Miller, McMurry athlete, for the Indians. The case, in brief, as presented by Mr. Warlick follows: Nine minutes before the close of the last half, Coach Medley seated himself beside his timer with instructions that no time be taken out for fouls or on any other occasion except when called for by either team.

Mr. Warlick says that they had been stopping the watches for fouls throughout the game before that time, and that he continued to do so; that at the time Miller fired the gun to end play, his (Warlick's) watch showed three minutes left to play. If the case has been correctly put, the rule book gives an edge to the plaintiff.

As to the game itself, all arguments to the side, it was about the biggest success on the hardwood for McMurry since the Indians walloped the mighty Mac Miller and company of Daniel Baker here a couple of seasons back. The Indians had the lead all the way. At the half, their margin was 13 to 5, and at one time during the second period the difference amounted to 13 points.

Turner's 12 points for McMurry won scoring honors, but the smashing style of Bob Fulkerson, football star, the passing of Jones and the guarding of Bob Tharp got a big hand from the audience.

Hodges led the scoring for Tech with nine points, but Coach Payne removed him from the scenery in the last half when he swung on Fulkerson without connection after a run-in between the two.

MONDAY NIGHT'S GAME

ABILENE, Feb. 4.—Coach Victor Payne's Texas Tech cagers opened their four-day invasion of Abilene courts Monday night by taking the first game of a two-play series with the McMurry college Indians, 37 to 21.

Although the play of the undefeated Matadors was not up to advance notice, the visitors were strong enough to down the Redskins handsly and hang up their twelfth straight victory of the season.

There were flashes of speed and activity in the last half, during which the bull fighters gained most of their majority. By means of a rally toward the close of the opening period, the Indians had cut the visitors' lead to four points, 14-10, at the rest period, but they fell behind rapidly in the closing chucker.

Maxwell Scores High

Maxwell, the tall center for the Matadors, obtained a plurality in the point making with a total of 13, most of his counters being made by bating the ball in the basket on the rebound from the back-board.

Vincent, veteran guard for the Crimson, annoyed the offensive efforts of the Redskins persistently, and managed to stay in the game all the way, a rare feat for him in the local gyms. He made four fouls, but the last was charged against him just as the gun fired to end the game.

Tharp Stars

Bobby Tharp, playing at guard and center was the all-round star of the McMurry team, and he also topped the other Indians on the scorebook with four field goals for eight points. Johnson, rookie guard of the Indians, distinguished himself by wading into the Matador attack to block many potential counters.

Tech put on a brand of the stall in the closing minutes which was less flashy than that several other teams have shown the local customers in the last few winters, but it did save some energy which the Matadors may need in the hard week ahead of them.

be self supporting it is impossible to ignore the financial side.

"The proposed new conference includes West Texas State Teachers college, Tech, Howard Payne, Sulphur Springs, and the Texas School of Mines. This would be the most compact organization in Texas, and we believe it is destined to become the strongest conference in the state with the exception of the Southwestern conference.

"Past performances show that the proposed members would be worthy foes. A glance at the map shows that the proposed conference would be a much more compact organization than any now existing in the state.

"As a matter of fact if the T. I. A. A. makes of itself two groups with the champions of each group playing the champions of the other group for the conference championship, as is now contemplated, the Tech would be better off in the T. I. A. A. than in the Texas Conference. The proposed conference, however, would be better than either of these."

This is the first time that the real reason and idea of the new conference has been presented to the students. Previous press reports have not been altogether clear especially as to the membership. This probably accounts for some of the disapproval that we have been hearing on all sides lately.

Nevertheless we want to know all about the thing and what other people, especially the athletic officials of other proposed member schools think about the proposed plan. The main objection as we have found it on this campus is the hope that a lot of us have cherished of Southwestern membership of Tech.

women?" "Indeed, oh indeed she is. The French women—they're slouchy. True, French designers are the best in the world, but they create beautiful clothes, not for the women in their own country but for the women in America. The Japanese women are the most gorgeously dressed, but in European clothes they don't go at all."

Zimbalist Hears Miss Holland Play

Cordial recommendation for entrance into the Curtis Institute of Music at Philadelphia was given Pauline Holland, senior in public school music, by Efrem Zimbalist after a brief piano recital following the program given by the great violinist here Tuesday night.

Zimbalist is head of the violin department of the institute. He had been requested by Joseph Hoffman, great pianist, to pass upon Miss Holland's ability for the entrance examination. Only about four hundred students are accepted into the institute.

Zimbalist expressed himself as being very pleased with the four compositions in different styles played by Miss Holland.
