Goodwin Talks Against Plans In Legislature

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas Tech President Dr. Robert C. Goodwin told legislative budget writers Thursday the Legislature should not regroup state colleges as proposed by Gov. John Connally.

"The allocation of the institutions of higher learning of the state among systems of colleges and universities should be a function of the Commission on Higher Education or its replacement," Goodwin told the House Appropriations Committee.

However, Goodwin did support Connally's recommendation for a strong college coordinating board.

Tech Opposed

Connally told reporters Wednesday he felt Tech opposed his plan, as well as the University of Houston, but that he believed a majority of the Legislature and colleges consider his plan the best solution.

Connally proposed putting Tech under a system headed by Texas A&M. The University of Texas would head another system, and a third would be composed mostly of small colleges. Goodwin said a distribution of schools into systems should be made only after a careful and deliberate study of the problems involved.

"A basic principle of the establishment of these systems should be that within each complex of institutions opportunity should exist for students to obtain instruction under any program and at all levels."

Retain Autonomy

Goodwin also said college governing boards should "retain as much autonomy as possible." Under Connally's proposals, all but A&M and Texas governing boards would be abolished.

Asked about Connally's proposal for a strong college coordinating board, Goodwin said:

"Closer coordination between institutions is necessary to attain a more economic and effective higher education system. Although some progress has been made by the institutions, other and stronger measures are needed.

Dillard Designated President Of MUN

By MARGARET EASTMAN
Asst. Fine Arts Editor

Lonnie Dillard, Lubbock sophomore, has been appointed president of Tech's Model United Nations (MUN).

Dillard is presently a student council representative, the freshman class council sponsor, head of the freshman orientation committee.

Two new committees have been set up for this year's MUN. The delegates have created the UN Truce Supervisory Commission and the Mixed Armistice Commission. The committees are patterned after committees in the United Nations. The former is set up to keep peace in Palestine and the later is concerned with border disputes between Israel and Arab countries.

Keith Strain, Lubbock junior, explained the committees: "Last year we had a problem at the sessions because the delegates didn't know what was going to happen. For instance, the Albanian delegation added an amendment to the Nigerian Resolution for the admission of Red China. Because the countries weren't prepared for it, they didn't know how to vote . . . it's purpose was to kill the resolution."

"This isn't realistic. In the United Nations, the other countries know something like this is going to happen. This is the reason we have set up these committees."

In the past, there have been only bloc meetings between the countries in one area of the world — Western bloc, African bloc etc. — and there was no inter-bloc cooperation. With the new committees, countries can find out what all of the delegations are planning.

In addition, the delegation from France called a meeting of all nations who are planning on proposing charter revisions. Sweden also plans to meet with all other countries that will present a solution to the Jordan River problem. The MUN will be Feb. 25-27.

300 To Discuss Water

More than 300 businessmen, ranchers and farmers from the high plains are on hand today for the third annual West Texas Water Conference.

The Conference is sponsored by Tech and 30 governmental agencies and private businesses and is expected to attract interested persons in the future of water in this region.

Dr. Marion Clawson, director of Resources for the Future, Inc. of Washington, D.C., will be the key speaker during the noon luncheon in the Tech Union.

Clawson has served as economic consultant to such nations as Israel, Pakistan, Venezuela, Chile and India. His luncheon address will be centered chiefly on the natural resources problems and opportunities for the future. Clawson has spent 24 years in U.S. government service, first in the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics and later in the Bureau of Land Management of the Department of the Interior.

Open With Welcome

Dr. Gerald Thomas, Tech agriculture dean and director of the sponsoring West Texas Water Institute will open the conference with announcements and an introduction. Welcome will be given by Jack Springer of Abilene, president of West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

J. J. Vandertulip, chief engineer with the Texas Water Commission in Austin, is scheduled to present a report on the state-wide activities of the commission at 9:15 a.m.

Before a mid-morning break, Dr. J. Wayland Bennett, associate Dean of Agriculture, will talk on the topic "Economic Influences of Irrigation on the General Economy."

The last item in the morning session will be a major address delivered by Rep. Bill Parsley of Lubbock. He will discuss the outlook for water legislation during the current session of the Texas Legislature in Austin.

Reports On Research

Following Clawson's luncheon address, delegates will receive reports on research at two Texas universities.

Dr. E. F. Gloyna, director of the Texas University Water Resources Center, will begin a report to open the final session.

"Socio-Economic Changes Brought About by Deplanishing Water Supplies," a case study of Lynn County, Tex., will be the afternoon topic of discussion. Robert Rubel, research assistant in the agricultural economics department, will make the presentation.

Final item on the agenda will be a panel of Tom McFarland, manager of the High Plains Water Conservation District, Lubbock; Jim Valiant, with the High Plains Research Foundation, Plainview; Shelby Newman, with the South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock; and Victor Hauser, from the Agricultural Research Service, Amarillo.

Discussion topics in corresponding order are "Playa Lakes as Potential Water Supply Sources," "Recharge," "Sub-Irrigation and Other Irrigation Application Practices to Make Water Use More Efficient" and "Farming Systems for Efficient Water Use."

Trade Seminar Speakers Call World 'Shrinking'

"Trading partners seldom fight," keynote speaker Gen. Robert Smith, told participants at the second annual International Trade Seminar here Thursday.

Purpose of the all-day seminar was to encourage Lubbock businesses to enter the international trade field.

Gen. Smith, president of Pioneer Texas Corporation of Dallas, spoke of "the shrinking world" emphasizing the importance of international trade, during his keynote speech in the Union Ballroom. Approximately 550 persons attended the program.

Vere G. Stock, consulate general of the Republic of South Africa, told of the "South African Scene" at the 12:15 p. m. luncheon. In his discussion of the state of affairs, Stock indicated that things were going quite well in South Africa despite the fact that many felt nothing but calamity would occur following South Africa's withdrawal from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Friday's program also included speeches from prominent businessmen throughout the state, and a panel discussion composed of leading businessmen.

"Due to the success of this year's program, it is probable that Tech will host another trade seminar next year," said Dr. John Hildebrand, associate professor of economics.

ID Cards Ready

Students can pick up ID's at Harold Photo. ID's will be required for admission to the Rice-Tech game Saturday.

The freshman game will be played at 11:45 a.m. with the varsity game beginning at 2 p.m.

Film, Speech Slated

Two of the fine arts events on today's agenda are the film "Animal Farm" and a speech at the Baptist Student Union (BSU).

"Animal Farm", adapted from the book by George Orwell, will be shown today in the Union Coronado Room at 4 and 8 p. m. and Sunday at 3 and 7 p. m. Tickets are 25 cents for students with ID's.

Dr. Elizabeth Sasser, professor of architecture and allied arts will emphasize French religious architecture in her talk at 4 p.m. today at BSU.

Dr. Sasser will illustrate her lecture with slides of European and American churches taken during her tour in 1960.

TGIF BAND — Today's TGIF Dance will feature The Impacts. The group, formerly called The Markers, consists of Dennis Reed, Al Faison, Jim Lokey, Rusty Jacks and John Hanlon. The dance will begin at 4 p.m. in the Snackbar of Tech Union.

Play Offers TW3-Type Satire, Fun

"Beyond the Fringe," described by Basil Rathbone as "the funniest play I've ever seen," will be shown at the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium at 8 p. m. Fri., Feb. 12.

"Beyond the Fringe" played in London, and on Broadway, and has been touring the U. S. for the past two years. The television series "That Was The Week That Was" is an outgrowth of the satire of the production.

The play is a set of satirical sketches. The scene of the vicar of the parish of St. Jack in the lifeboat trying to be folksy with God to lure young people into his Church is enough to give any archbishop shudders.

Another example of the satire of the play is seen when one character is complaining of the violence and degeneracy in the theatre today. He says, "I don't go to the theatre just to see rape, lust, violence and depravity. I can get all that at home."

Tickets are $1.25 for students, $1.75 for faculty and $2 for the public. Tricia Hayes, chairman of the Union Special Events Committee, said, "If you saw this play on Broadway, it would cost six times as much." Tickets are available in the Union Program Office.

Footnotes

By MILLER

DRAMA students love to reminisce. If you're ever bored, go over to the theater and listen to some of the "tragedies" that have befallen our young actors and actresses.

For instance, there was that time in "The Merchant of Venice" when Launcelot had to change costumes in 15 seconds. He exited stage right crying and then had to enter stage left laughing, with a new costume. Stage hands were stationed backstage to undress and redress him as he walked from stage right to stage left. As it went, one of the hands put his vest on inside-out.

NATURALLY, while Launcelot was turning his vest around, he lost a little time and didn't quite make his cue. In the meantime, the actors on stage were ad-libbing Shakespeare. Roland Myers, who played Launcelot, merely said, "Have you ever tried to ad-lib Iambic Pentameter?"

In the same play, the young man who played Shylock was chewing gum and forgot to dispose of it before he went on stage. When he came to his line, "I spit on thee and spurn thee too," he spit his gum right into Launcelot's eye.

THEN there was the Speech Dept's production of "The Miser" in the spring of '53. The man who was playing the miser was giving a long speech in which he had to turn around. When he did, his suspenders snapped, his pants fell down, the curtain closed abruptly in the middle of a scene.

Drama people are superstitious, and instead of saying "good luck" when an actor goes on stage they say "break a leg." In "McBeth" a witch was going on stage, and at the sound of "break a leg," she stepped into a hole and broke her leg.

"McBETH" seemed to have a jinx on it anyway. Four members of the cast came down with measles during the rehearsals and the play was postponed a week—a cardinal sin in the eyes of an actor.

When "Cave Dwellers" was presented, the stage crews used recordings for the music. As it happened, when it was time for a tango, the audience heard, "Sound Cue—Three 'A'."

In a scene in "Ondine," in the spring of '60, Hans was supposed to eat a slice of ham and enjoy it immensely. After the performance, the director called "Hans" backstage and said, "What happened? You didn't look like you enjoyed it?" The stage crew had served a piece of molded baked potato.

ANOTHER problem with "Ondine" — the stage crew didn't get the set built in time for the first performance. Thus, the set was still being built while the audience sat waiting for the first act. A prop man finally had to hold up one of the flats in the first scene. The audience couldn't quite figure out the purpose of the fingers protruding over the top of a wall.

There was a very emotional scene in "A Doll's House," in which Nora had to light a cigar for the doctor. The doctor was going out to die, and the match was very important to the scene, as it symbolized the doctor's life. Nora struck the match again and again and it wouldn't light, so they finally had to forget it. After the performance Mr. Schulz, director of the production, went backstage and asked the prop chairman why the match didn't light. She answered, "I don't know, Mr. Schulz. I got safety matches."

Piracy, Murder, Love: 'Golden Hawk' Themes Gets Approved By Committee

By BARBARA WORLEY
Fine Arts Editor

The typical swashbuckling devil-may-care Douglas Fairbanks type hero is epitomized in Frank Yerby's "The Golden Hawk," a novel of piracy, murder and, of course, passionate love beneath the moon.

The hero, Christopher Girardeaux in a French port, Cristobal Gerado in a Spanish port or just plain Kit when he is being a bold pirate, is a mixed-up character who has only two real passions in his life.

One is his hatred for Don Luis del Toro, a Spanish inquisition. Kit's anti-Don Luis feeling stems from the fact that said villain was responsible for the death of Kit's mother at the crucial time when she was about to reveal the identity of his father.

Our hero's other burning passion is his love for two women. One he calls Rouge because she has red hair and he doesn't really know what else to call her. She is a female pirate, bent on the destruction of all manhood.

Kit's other love is Bianca, a beautiful Spanish maid and uncomfortably enough the wife of Don Luis.

Yerby's list of characters is substantiated here and there with Bernardo, Kit's closest friend and counsel; Rosalind Parrish, who accuses the pirate of dastardly crimes and then risks her own life to help him escape from the galloons; and a continued cast of thousands.

Kit alternately reminds one of James Bond when he is being adventurous and Holden Caulfield when he is being romantic.

For those who enjoy a lot of adventure with a fairly discernible plot, "The Golden Hawk" makes for enjoyable and entertaining reading.

Jenkins Missing At Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two psychiatrists and a lawyer showed up Thursday in place of Walter Jenkins at the Senate's Bobby Baker hearing.

The hearing was closed and newsmen got only second-hand accounts of what happened, but the psychiatrists were reported to have urged that Jenkins, a former top aide to President Johnson, be excused from testifying.

Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., said no decision was reached at the Senate Rules Committee meeting on whether to insist that Jenkins put in a personal appearance.

Jenkins was under subpoena to appear before the committee Thursday morning and produce certain records. He did neither.

Republican members of the committee have been demanding that Jenkins be questioned about an insurance agent's charge that Jenkins pressured him into buying $1,208 worth of advertising time on the Johnson family's Texas television station.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved unanimously Thursday a constitutional amendment to establish procedures for dealing with presidential disability and keeping the office of vice president filled.

Only minor changes were made in the proposal authored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who called them clarifying and said the basic provisions of his original version were preserved.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the committee, said some members who favored sending the proposal to the Senate floor for action reserved the right to support amendments during the debate.

Bayh said he understands the Senate will not act until after the traditional Lincoln Day break at the end of next week.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N. Y., of the House Judiciary Committee plans to have his group work on a similar proposal next Tuesday.

The Senate passed substantially the same proposal last year 65 to 0, but the House did not act on it.

One change made by the committee is in the procedure under which Congress would decide whether a disabled President should resume office if he and the vice president disagree on the question.

As written originally, the section said Congress should "immediately" settle the issue. Some senators said this could raise doubts about the right of Congress to have brief hearings to question doctors and other witnesses. The wording was changed to read that Congress should "immediately proceed to decide." The committee changed the wording in several places to substitute "president of the Senate and speaker of the House of Representatives" for the word "Congress." This, it was explained, is designed to make clear that congressional action would be operative when Congress is not in session.

If the vice presidency became vacant, as has occurred 16 times, the president would nominate a successor for confirmation by a majority of both houses of Congress.

Bill Gives 'Bit Of Hope'

THE "FOUR UNIVERSITY SYSTEM" bill introduced into the Legislature Wednesday gives us the first opportunity in more than a week to feel a bit optimistic about Texas Tech's future.

Gov. John Connally's attack on the bill, however, indicates we cannot be confident that Tech's multi-purpose university status is not now in danger of being destroyed.

The significance of the bill introduced by Sens. H. J. Blanchard, Lubbock, and Dorsey Hardeman, San Angelo, is that it assures a debate in the legislature over Tech's status.

We hope from this debate Tech's multi-purpose university status will become known.

The "four system" bill follows closely along the lines of the suggestions made by the Governor's Committee of Twenty-Five. Under the proposal four systems of undergraduates and graduate education will orient the schools geographical rather than functional lines.

Although both the Governor's proposal and the four system plans will have to be studied carefully by the legislature and the people of Texas to determine what is best for higher education in Texas, we must continue work to place Texas Tech in the system to which it rightfully belongs.

Because Sens. Blanchard and Hardeman have emphasized Tech's nature as a multi-purpose state university, we commend them on their recent action.

Committee Could Help

TEXAS TECH CERTAINLY will benefit greatly if the suggestion of several Lubbock businessmen is put into action.

This week initial plans were made to form a Lubbock citizens committee to work for Tech by opposing Gov. Connally's plan to place us in a technological grouping.

Such a committee could not only help Tech in this respect but could help improve the school's image and create an awareness of its importance in the Lubbock community.

The committee would unite Lubbock citizens with students, faculty and administrators in building a greater university here.

VIEWPOINT

Asian Conflict Causing U.S. To Consider Force

By RONALD GORE

The deteriorating situation in Southeast Asia is, as in Korea fifteen years ago, forcing the United States to decide on whether or not to oppose force with force.

It is quite tempting to disengage and let the communists have the whole miserable mess. The local populace is too occupied with internal politics to worry about a concerted effort to end the encroachment from the north; the army spends more time quelling riots in the capitol than it does killing the Viet Cong.

Viet Nam is even farther from home than is Korea, and from a tactical point of view the terrain over which Americans would be required to fight is some of the most difficult in the world. A war here could drag on for years (the French have, through lack of resolve lost one protracted conflict here) and cost as many casualties as did Korea.

Our allies might not be willing to support us in such an operation, particularly if it led to a direct confrontation with Red China and could possibly escalate into a general conflict.

The possibility that we might lose the dubious favor of the so-called neutrals and newly emerging nations is not even worth considering, but the possibility that we might lose the war if it were fought on a no-win basis is considerable.

But we cannot afford to withdraw (or disengage, realign, neutralize; pacify etc.) If we draw back here, where do we draw the line? India? The Philippines? The Pacific Island chains? Anywhere?

The long history of man shows that you can never negotiate with an aggressor except from a position of strength; appeasement does nothing except increase his appetite; there is no such thing as a last demand from a demagogue who is out to make the world his private property. Aggressors are never "mellowed" by anything except hot lead and cold steel, or the sober implication of its use.

If freedom of humanity is worth defending, it is worth defending wherever it is threatened. It must not be compromised simply because a few small people are afraid to spill blood in the process. We cannot give the world liberty by fiat; we fought to win it and we fought to keep it.

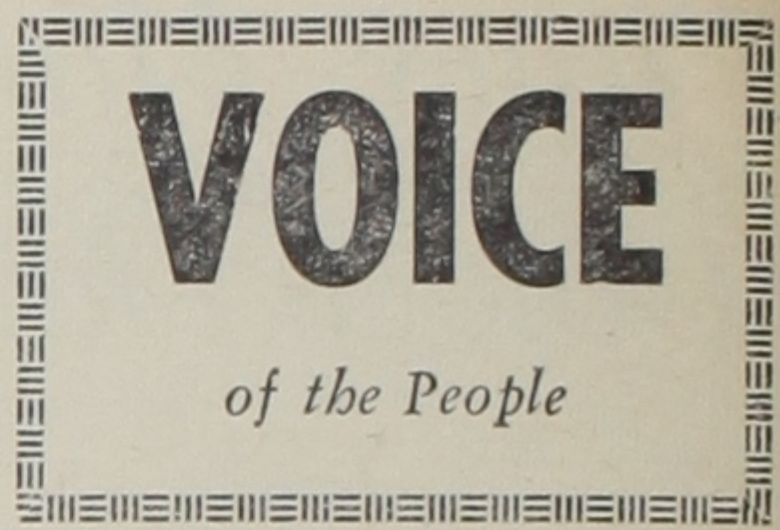

Thomas Jefferson warned us that the price of liberty was the blood of patriots. We have paid that price, from time to time are still called upon to renew that pledge. The freedom of Southeast Asia is going to cost as much as our own, and a fair down-payment has been made in the last few years.

If we back down now; the dead of a hundred battlefields have been betrayed. If we are unwilling to insure the freedom of other men, then how long can we count on our own?

Let the fight be to win, not to maintain a status quo. You can only win or lose in a war, and second place is not worth anything. If there are those who are so doctrinaire as to believe, after having reflected upon the relative humanity of themselves and the enemy, that it is a sin to win, then let them be the ones who go and die for a tie.

No general worthy of the name wants to limit his men, get them killed uselessly, or ask them not to give their all just because a sensitive soul back home will have nightmares if he thinks the poor, misunderstood enemy is being harried with too much vigor.

The time is coming to decide whether to fight or run and run and run. I have made up my mind. What about you?

Says Denver Trip Tells True Story

Dear Editor:

I am pleased to announce my wholehearted devotion to the causes of the Joint Name-Change Committee. Being new at Tech this year and in Graduate School, my original impression of this whole name-change controversy was that it represented an avalanche of unnecessary agitation on the part of neurotic critics.

I have, however, been recently confronted with situations which demanded that I re-evaluate the arguments on both sides.

While in Denver, Colo. during semester break, I interviewed several national public accounting firms regarding a position after graduation. To my frequent embarrassment, I was asked what type of engineering I was majoring in or what kind of MBA programs would a "Technological" school be offering? When I explained the nature, quality, and extent of the programs and facilities existing here at Texas Tech, these CPA's were absolutely astounded. They even asked me if I were "putting them on."

Now I ask you, if people in Denver, only 550 miles away, are misled by a name which, incidentally, is so hopelessly inconsistent as to be utterly preposterous, then it would seem that the vast majority of the nation's population, concentrated on the east and west coasts, must be virtually ignorant of the caliber and diversification of our fine institution.

And today we are being sold down the river by our own Governor who, qualified though he may be, is simply unfamiliar with Texas Tech. There has been much talk of a proposed medical school, dental school, and law school to be added to the programs already offered at Tech. Now I ask you again, not only what would be the quality of the students coming to these professional schools at a "technical" college; but who would even think of looking in a technological college catalog for programs in law and medicine?

This whole situation is rapidly coming to a head and must be resolved in favor of the elimination of the words "tech" or "technological" from the name of our institution. We must continue to write letters to President Goodwin, to the board of directors, to the legislature, and to our Governor emphasizing the importance of a proper name.

Edmund Burke once said, "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing." I am personally convinced that unless good men start emerging from out the cracks and crevices on campus, we will be short-changed more than anyone can now realize, and will never achieve the status of a sophisticated university.

Let's get together on this !!!
Most sincerely,
James A. Largay III

Askit

Questions Answers

ASKIT—Why isn't Tech in the Southwest Conference in baseball?

—A. B.

Texas Tech, admitted to the Conference in 1956, and the University of Arkansas, a long-time member, do not participate in Conference baseball because of the time required away from classes, the expense involved, and the extreme weather conditions in the two areas.

ASKIT—Why don't any of the athletes live in the new men's dorms?

—D. T.

Tech athletes live in Gordon, Bledsoe, and Sneed because the athletic training tables are in the Sneed dining hall; and the majority of our athletes eat lunch and dinner at these tables.

ASKIT—Why did Kent Hance, vice president of the Tech Student Assn., make a secret trip to Austin en route to the Washington, D. C. Presidential Prayer Breakfast?

—M. H.

Vice President Hance's primary purpose in going to Austin was to join with other delegates to go as a group to the Washington meeting.

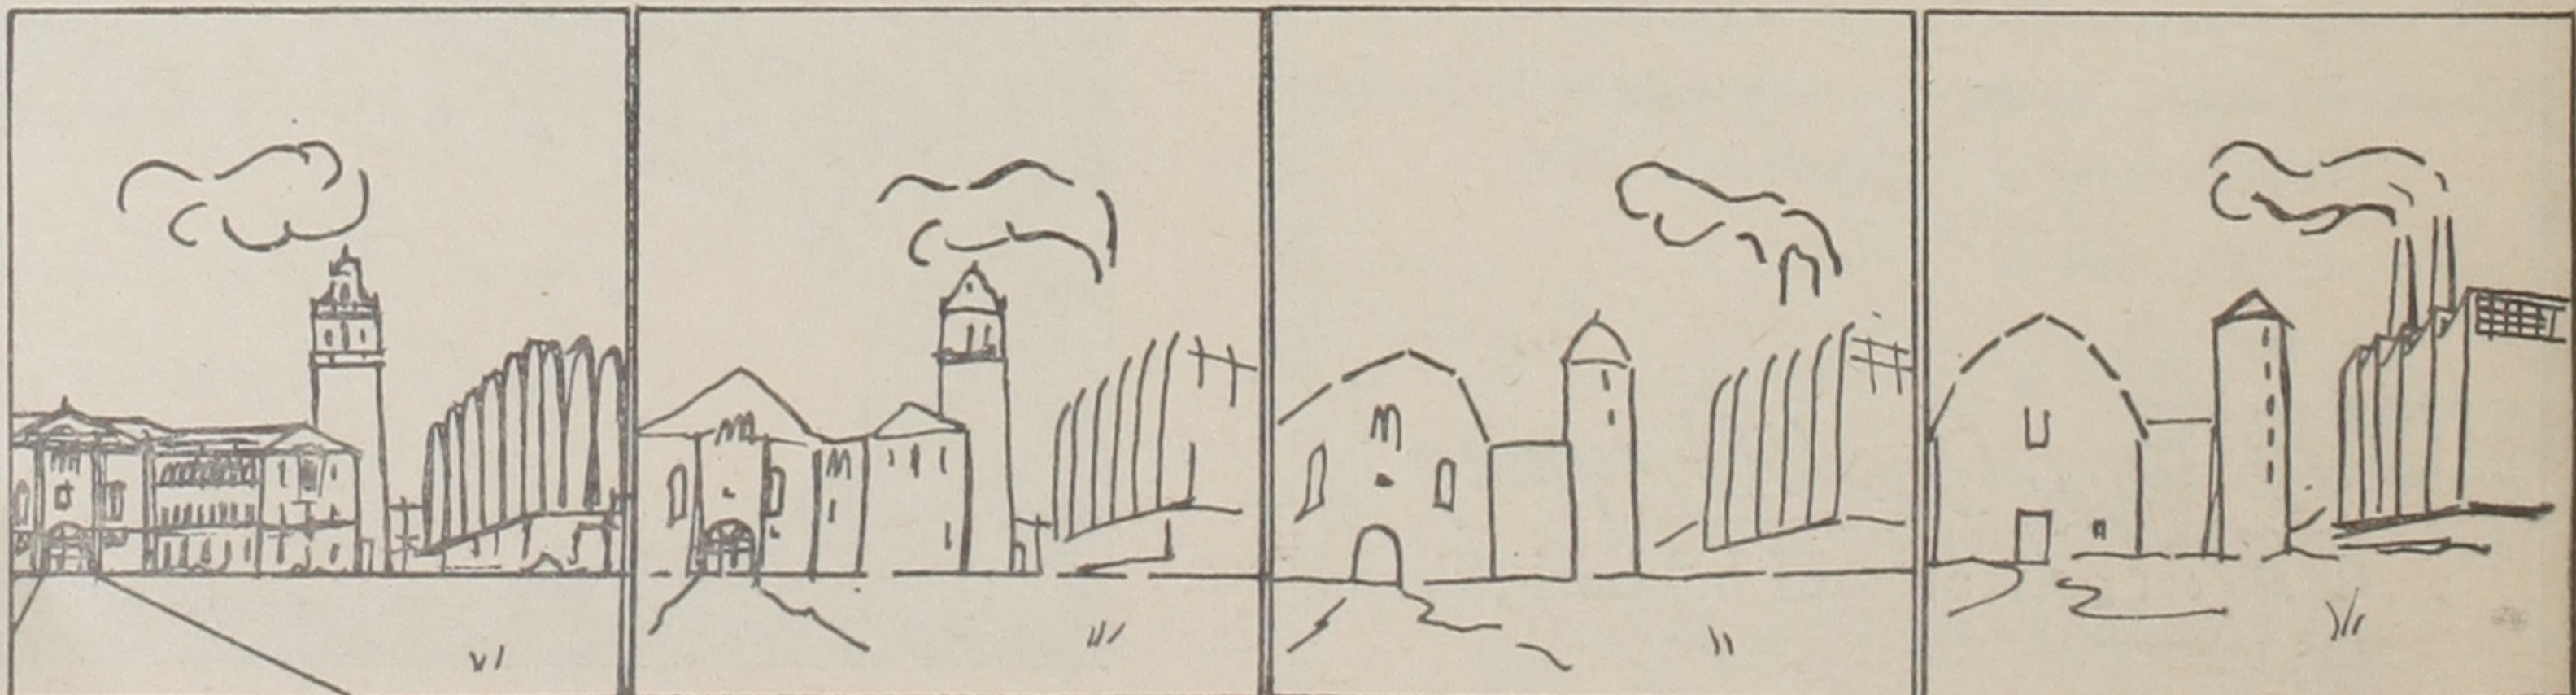

However, ASKIT has learned that his secondary motive was to gather more information about Gov. Connally's university system proposal and to find out what the Lubbock county legislative delegation plans to do.

ASKIT—Who is officially representing Tech in Austin?

Mr. M. L. Pennington, vice president in charge of business affairs, Dr. R. C. Goodwin, president of Tech, Roy Wells, secretary of the Board of Directors, and members of the Board are our representatives.

Tech Cashes Hot Checks To The Tune Of $10,000

Tech students gave hot checks to Tech amounting to more than $10,000 during registration and they didn't stop there.

H. L. Burgess, supervisor of residence hall room reservations, says a continued increase of bad checks might result in a crackdown.

Businessmen Complain

Six Lubbock businessmen said they regularly have Tech students' checks returned marked "insufficient funds". The consensus was, however, that although many checks returned, little difficulty is encountered in collecting them.

Rules put in force by the Board of Directors and administration three years ago set up the present central hot-check collection operation within the Office of Room Reservations.

Under these rules, a student giving three hot checks during one fiscal year will be dropped from the rolls. Suspended Students must file a request for readmission with the dean of admissions and registrar the following semester before he can be readmitted.

Burgess said these rules were necessitated by a sharp increase of hot checks three years ago that resulted in complaints by the state auditor.

The rules are not designed to offend students who keep their financial matters straight, Burgess said, but for those who habitually pass bad checks.

Find On Returned Checks

Present rules call of a $2 penalty for each hot check. This fine finances the collection of the checks. A clerk-typist works full time keeping up with returned checks. Burgess said 95 per cent of the checks are from the Tech Bookstore and Tech Union. The office handled more than $100,000 worth of hot checks during the 1963-64 school year, Burgess said.

Tech union and the bookstore are required to split the cost of collection should the $2 fines not finance the operation.

Losses For Businessmen

Owner of a drug store near the campus said he receives approximately $375 worth of hot checks each week. He estimates that he cashes checks for more than $5 million for Tech students last year. Of this amount he estimates that he lost $400.

"Sure we get bad checks", he said, "But we are willing to bear this inconvenience. Why our check cashing service is our biggest drawing card. It brings them in. I only wish that some wouldn't resent our asking for an I. D. As long as they have an I. D., we don't worry about it."

He added that most of the checks come back at the end of the month and when they are sent back through the bank, most of them clear. The others he has little trouble in collecting.

Manager of a liquor store on the "strip" said that the only losses they incur are due to dropouts. "As long as they're in school we can get our money."

A collector for a super market chain, a dry cleaning proprietress, small grocery store owner and another liquor store manager said the same thing. "We have to take checks to stay in competition". Most are willing to take the loss and inconvenience in order to lure business.

The drugstore owner said that if they tried to put in a bank near Tech, "I'd fight it."

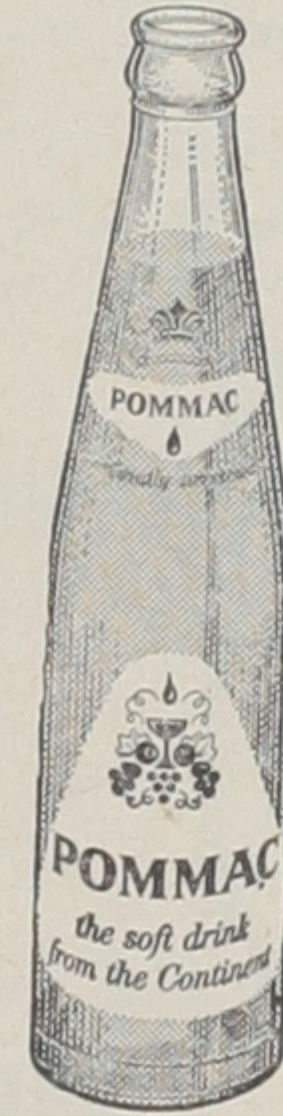

The college, however, is not trying to lure business. The office has been lenient with hot checkers so far, Burgess said, but if the situation continues, a crackdown may be in the offing.

China, USSR Still Debate

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Communist China's Premier Chou En-lai was quoted today as saying that the ideological debates between Peking and Moscow will continue.

Chou was quoted by the official news agency Antara as making the statement to a group of Indonesian newsmen who visited Peking recently.

Shou stressed that the "debates between Marxism-Leninism on one side and revisionism on the other will not halt but will be continued," Antara reported. The Red Chinese refer to the Soviets as "revisionists." Chou did not mention Moscow by name.

He also was quoted as saying the Soviet Communist party was trying to "monopolize world communism by trying to hold a world Communist conference."

Bundy Trip Starts Off Deal Rumor

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Presidential assistant McGeorge Bundy began a round of fact-finding conferences with U.S. officials Thursday amid speculation in some Vietnamese quarters that a U. S.-Soviet deal on Viet Nam was in the making.

Bundy's arrival happened to coincide with the departure of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin from Moscow for talks in Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam. Bundy denied his trip was related in any way to the Kosygin visit.

Bundy's arrival statement reiterated American pledges to continue support for Viet Nam's anti-Communist struggle. But the statement contained the diplomatic hint that Viet Nam was expected to do its part.

"The record of the last 25 years all around the world," Bundy said, "shows that those who stand firm for their own freedom can be confident of the strong and untiring support of the United States."

The phrase was greeted with a certain amount of cynicism from some Vietnamese officials.

"This could be a hook by which America could disengage itself, on grounds that our government is torn by divisions and upheavals and therefore not able to stand firm for its own freedom," one Vietnamese official said.

Several Vietnamese took particular notice of friendly overtures from the White House proposing a trip this year by President Johnson to Moscow and a return trip to the United States by Soviet leaders.

I DO'S AND I DO NOTS — Pot throwing may not be on the new television educational program, "Preparation for Success in Marriage," but useful information will be discussed. The program, sponsored by the Home Ec Dept., will begin Tuesday Feb. 9 at 6:30 p.m. on KTXT-TV.

— IN MARRIAGE CLASSES —

TV Series Replaces Lectures

Television will supplement "Preparation for Success in Marriage," a three-hour course offered by the Dept. of Home and Family Life of the School of Home Economics, for the first time this semester.

The 13-part film series will cover such topics as "Working at Marriage," "Woman, Wife, or What?" "Bridging Romance and Routine," and "Accommodate or Assimilate." It will be broadcast each Tuesday from 6:30-7 p.m. on KTXT-TV, channel 5, beginning Tuesday.

Timing coincides with an evening section of the class which will discuss the films. Four other sections of the course meet during the day, with 290 students enrolled in the five sections. This is about 120 more than the department expected.

Purpose Of Course

The purpose of the course, according to Assistant Professor Kay King, by the way, King is a male, are to give students an opportunity to evaluate their own readiness for marriage and to acquaint them with various aspects of dating, courtship and marriage, based upon research findings of the social scientist.

The course differs from a sociology course because it takes a functional approach to the subject, stressing practical application rather than sociological statistics.

Open To Men, Women

The course is open to both men and women regardless of classification. Many attend as couples, he said, although many men do not enroll because the course is offered by the School of Home Economics. As a result, less than one-third of the students are men.

The course, which is now in its fifth year at Tech, is part of a nation-wide trend toward education in marriage preparation.

"A person usually spends more than half his life in marriage. It doesn't seem illogical that he or she should spend less than two days' actual class time in preparation for this," King said.

Great Speakers

Lecturers include lawyers, pastors, doctors and insurance representatives. Discussions concerning dating, love, college marriages, premarital sex, in-laws, family planning and other specific areas are an important part of class meetings.

Dr. J. Joel Moss is narrator-instructor of the television series. He is a research professor in the School of Home and Family at Southern Illinois University.

Television programs will present dramatic scenes and cartoon figures intended to furnish lecture and discussion materials for the classes.

Mrs. Wildring Edwards teaches the course in addition to King.

The department plans to offer one section of the course in the summer session.

Espionage At High

DALLAS (P) — Communist espionage directed against the United States has been stepped up to an all-time high, the FBI chief of domestic intelligence said today.

"Espionage directed against this country today by Russia, the Soviet Bloc nations and Communist China is one of the most difficult and serious investigative problems facing the FBI," said William Sullivan.

The target for this espionage, said Sullivan in an interview includes "all phases of classified scientific research relating to national defense."

"Sensitive industrial areas, wherever they are, and installations of the armed services throughout the country" are sections where the espionage agents center their activity, he said.

Academy Not Badly Hurt By Players' Resignations

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Air Force Academy coaches are getting ready to pick up the pieces and rebuild for the 1965 football season after losing 20 players in the examination theft scandal at the school.

Of the 105 cadets resigning during the investigation, 29 were football players, but nine of these were seniors. No names have been released.

"This is a body blow, but not a knockout," Coach Ben Martin said.

"Heck, I've started some seasons with fewer established winning football players. In my first year here, 1958, there were only 23 out for football the first day of practice."

He figures to count a lot more helmeted heads than that when the Falcons open spring drills March 29. None of the freshman players were caught in the two weeks and they had some capable-looking performers in their ranks last fall.

Martin said of the 20 players lost, "only about 10 or 12 figured in our plans."

Martin, once a football player at the U. S. Naval Academy, declined to say how many lettermen he expects in March, but it was reported there will be not more than nine or 10.

There were 21 seniors on the squad last fall when Air Force won four, lost five and tied one. About a dozen of these were first-stringers.

Air Force will play Nebraska, Stanford and California at home on successive Saturday's and also will meet UCLA and Colorado in Falcon Stadium. Games away are Wyoming, Oregon, University of Pacific and Arizona, in addition to AT Chicago.

Tennis Feud On

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Suggestions that Maria Bueno of Brazil feigned an injury rather than lose to Margaret Smith of Australia, her chief rival for world honors, has touched off a feud in international tennis.

The incident happened last Monday in the title round of the Australian tournament at Sydney. Miss Bueno was trailing 5-2 in the final set when she fell to the ground, grabbed her leg and rolled around in apparent pain. She defaulted because of a leg cramp.

Instructors For 'Mural Boxing Set Schedules

Instructors for intramural boxing lessons for the spring semester have been named.

Pete Peterson and Dale Stroud, who have been intramural boxing instructors for the past three years will handle the fisticuff lessons.

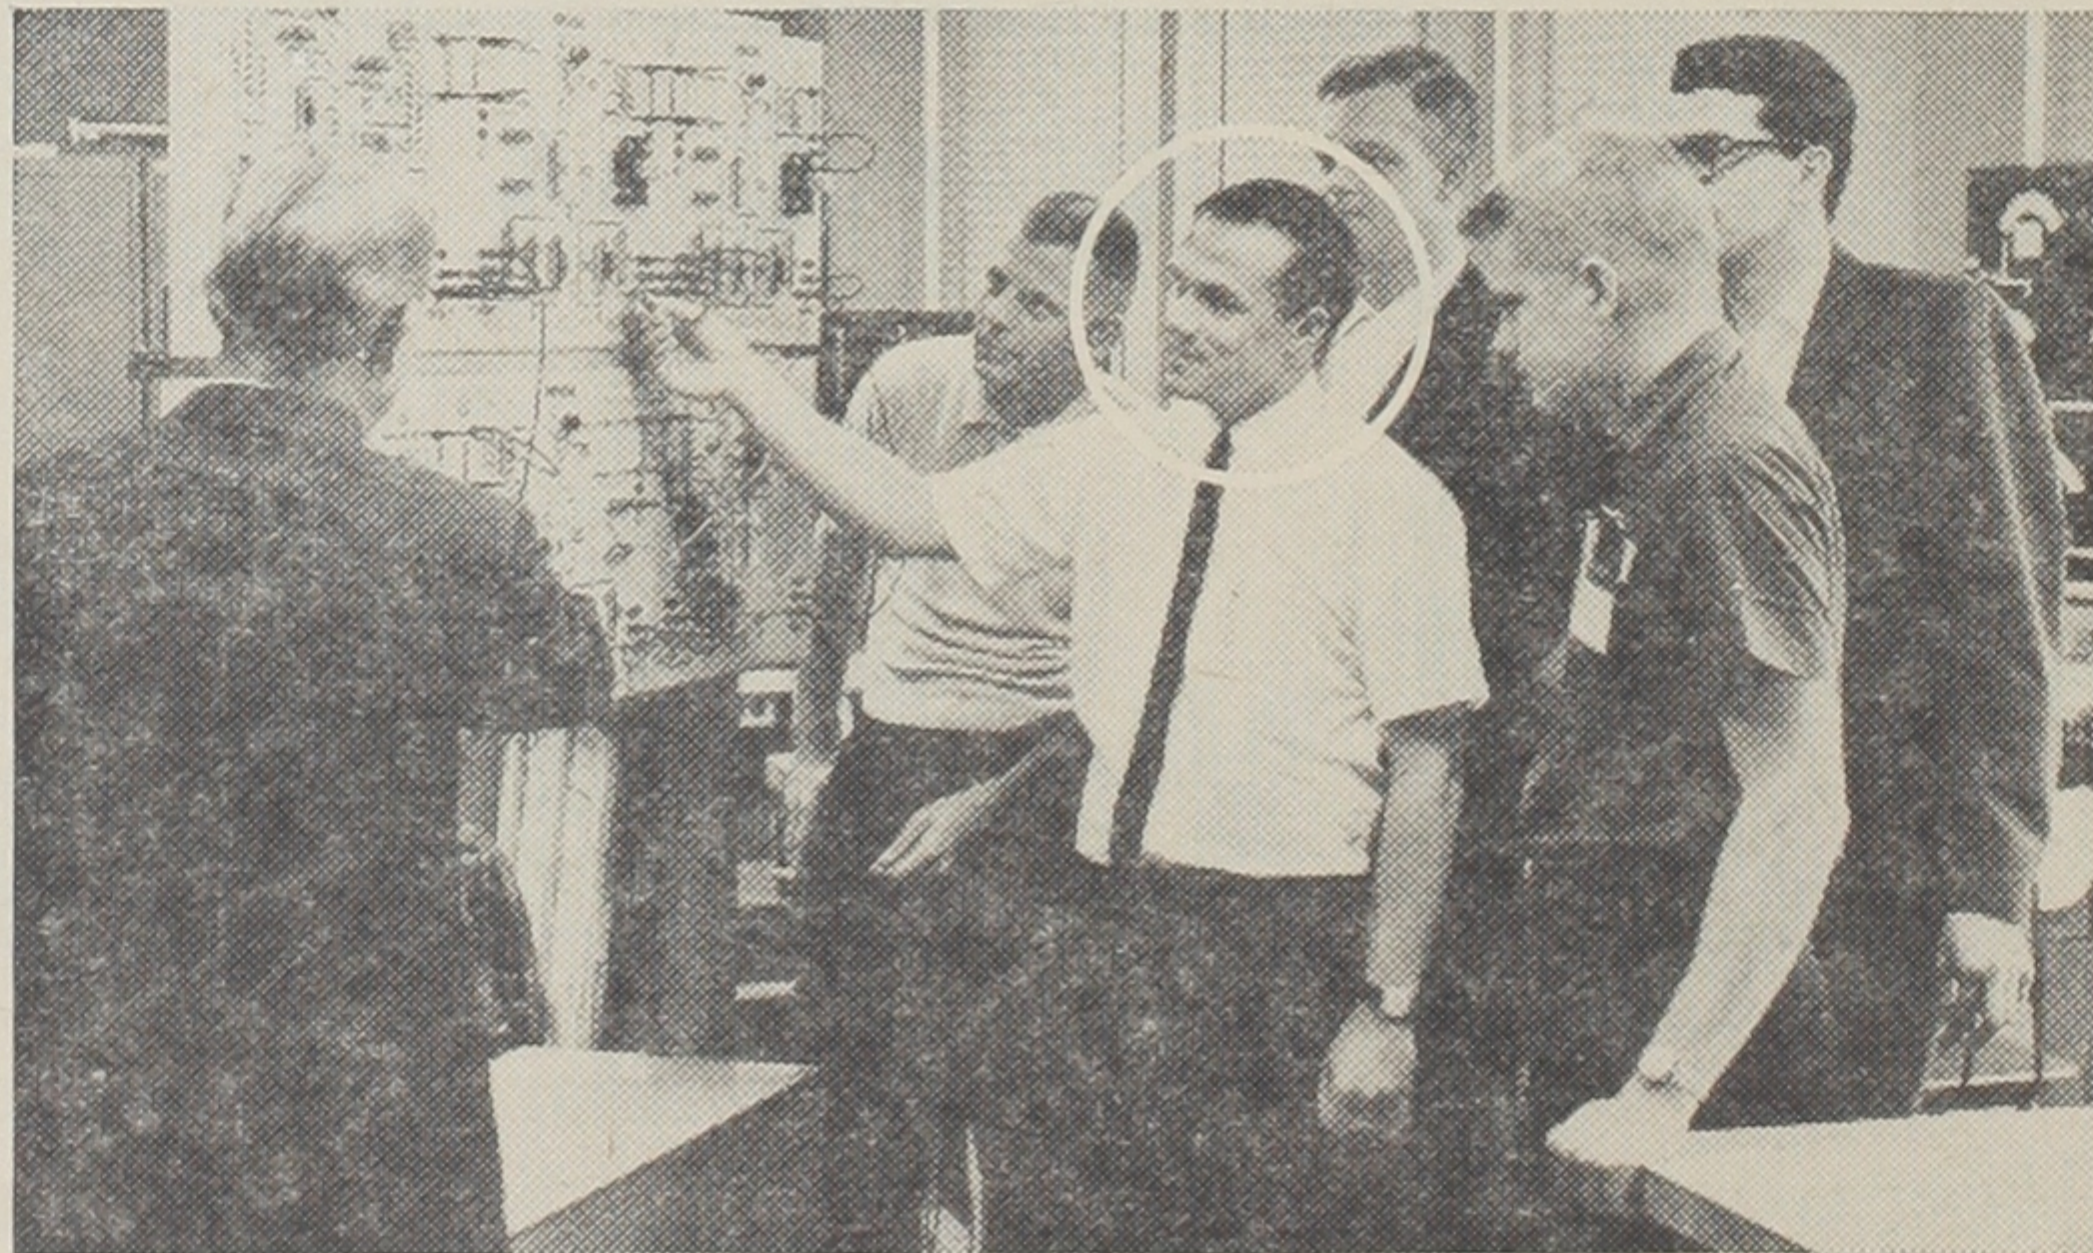

Peterson will be available to teach interested students on MWF from 11 a. m. to noon and on Wednesday from 3-5 p. m.

Stroud will be available Mondays from 5-6:30 p. m., Tuesdays from 3-5 p. m. and Thursdays from 5-6:30 p. m.

Students interested in participating in the program may get further information by phoning the Intramural office, 3113.

Graduation was only the beginning of Jim Brown's education

Because he joined Western Electric

Jim Brown, Northwestern University, '62, came with Western Electric because he had heard about the Company's concern for the continued development of its engineers after college graduation.

Jim has his degree in industrial engineering and is continuing to learn and grow in professional stature through Western Electric's Graduate Engineering Training Program. The objectives and educational philosophy of this Program are in the best of academic traditions, designed for both experienced and new engineers.

Like other Western Electric engineers, Jim started out in this Program with a six-week course to help in the transition from the classroom to industry. Since then, Jim Brown has continued to take courses that will help him keep up with the newest engineering techniques in communications.

This training, together with formal college engineering studies, has given Jim the ability to develop his talents to the fullest extent. His present responsibilities include the solution of engineering problems in the manufacture of moly-permalloy core rings, a component used to improve the quality of voice transmission.

If you set the highest standards for yourself, enjoy a challenge, and have the qualifications we're looking for — we want to talk to you! Opportunities exist now for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, and for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. For more information, get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. And be sure to arrange for an interview when the Bell System recruiting team visits your campus.
