

The TOREADOR

Bulldogs To Enter Matador Arena Today

To say the least of it, the two classes in old Tech are certainly "getting their stuff." What with quite a bit of excitement when certain fish tried to enter a Soph meeting, and stayed there a few minutes; and with the big Fish meeting Thursday night, when the Sophs retaliated by methods that were not quite so "fair," to say the least.

The first show of class rivalry occurred at the Male Barn last Thursday night, when the Soph class, or members of the second year outfit, attempted to break up the first Fish meeting of the year. It was a smart boy who thought of the trick, and a nifty one who did the "second story" act and poured the suffing stuff on the slime gang. Freshmen showed their colors in response to the act, and had the marauders been caught, it would probably have gone hard with them.

The gang of Freshmen boys who fell in the parade, after the meeting Thursday night, had all the appearance of Cox's Army, and it looked, for a while, as if there might be a Sophomore hunt.

Some of the fellows seem to have adopted the wrong attitude toward class rivalry. For instance on two or three occasions, bunches from different classes have confronted each other with clubs, lead pipes, etc., regular stone age stuff. An onlooker would think that homes, and the honor of sweethearts and mothers might be at stake. The Freshmen's conduct of it all, take the fair, or either side, out of it. If in the minority, why not grab ankles, and then laugh it off.

We heard a remark the other day, and we saw immediately the wisdom of it. At a time—one of them last week, when several things were scheduled for the same time—a certain Soph remarked that he didn't see why they didn't have everything at once, instead of all of the week.

Really, Alphonse, we're no mind reader; but we just 'spect that it's because it wouldn't give the fish enough chances to get back at the other class.

Press Club is pressing right on, nowadays. Officers on the staff of the "Toreador" were announced at last meeting. The Annual is to be a thing of reality within a very short while, when some plans that were formulated get on foot more completely. Within the next few days some things are going to happen that will assure Tech of the Yearbook—RAY! TECH!

There's a politician in the teapot, now. Somebody did something that contrary to the usual run of things, was real nice, and forgot to say what his name was. We know of one lady who frequents the grounds and buildings of Tech who'd like mighty well to know just who it was! See us if you're it!

A few days ago the Agriculture Department of the College was the owner of one lone, purebred Duroc Jersey sow. However the number has grown to eleven since the presentation of ten piglets by her majesty Wednesday night. Things happen at the Tech.

Don't tell anybody; but we heard one of those girls say she wasn't going to wait that long. Don't blame you, Susie, at all—this year'll more than likely be the last time you'll get quite such a chance to pick what you want, without so much competition!

Spooks And Goblins To Hold Sway Over Hallowe'en Party At Pavilion

Black cats, spooks, goblins, phantoms, Ku Klux—in fact everything from the land of mystery—will be in vogue at the Hallowe'en party which students have planned for next Friday night at the stock judging pavilion.

Plans have been pretty well developed already and that old "mule barn" will be decorated in up-town style for the occasion.

The idea of a Hallowe'en party began to develop last week when representatives from the various student organizations met with Mrs. Doak, Dean of Women, and Miss Gilkerson, physical education instructor, to work out a plan of procedure. As a result of this meeting, committees were appointed from the clubs to care for the financing, decorating and entertaining features of the party and a committee to arrange refreshments was also appointed.

Tickets to the party have been placed on sale at a nominal sum and

INJURIES FATAL TO MEMBER OF MATADOR SQUAD

GEORGE CROW DIES FROM INJURIES RECEIVED IN BALL GAME

The Death Angel has made its first visit to the Texas Technological college and claimed as its victim George Crow, youthful football star on the Matador squad, who died at a local hospital at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening. As the body was borne away on the east bound train Wednesday morning to its final resting place at Haskell, birth place and permanent home of the youth, Coach Freeland, members of the faculty, and approximately 400 students—friends and college-mates of young Crow—stood at the station with bowed heads and sorrowed hearts to pay their last tribute to the first lad who gave his life for the Texas Tech.

The flag on the campus before the administration building was placed at half-staff Wednesday morning upon order of Lieut. Killm. Dr. Horn, together with Mr. and Mrs. Crow, the youth's parents, accompanied the body to Haskell.

Crow was injured in a scrimmage between a Tech squad and the Lubbock High School team here last week. Although he finally recovered his speech, he never regained the use of his body at any time following the accident.

Crow's relatives were notified of the accident and they came to be at his bedside during the short time he lived. After Crow regained consciousness, he made the statement that he held no ill feeling toward the institution nor the game of football. A similar statement was made by the parents of the youth.

George Washington Crow was born at Haskell, Texas, April 30, 1906, and was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Crow, who live on the farm. He was a graduate from the Haskell high school and was enrolled as an engineering student in the Tech. He went through the Matador training camp, playing tackle on one of the squads. Many Tech students had formed an admiration for Crow, and especially the boys at Salon Soltero, on 14th street, where he roomed, and fellow members of the Matador squad.

Palbearers in charge of the body here were: Messrs. Carlton, Carpenter, Smith, Calloway, Reid, and Denison, stars on the Tech squad. More than 100 friends of the young man followed the bier to the station, marching in procession.

Mr. Harrison of the English department, speaks before the Teachers Institute at Littlefield today.

Miss Pittle, head of the Public Speaking department, who has been ill this week, has returned from the Lubbock Sanitarium, where she has been since Sunday. Mrs. White and Miss Gilkerson have been meeting her classes this week.

Those in charge of the entertaining features state that there will be plenty of action for all. According to their story, every manager and buy man in the mule barn will contain some kind of deep mystery for the masqueraders to work out, and thrilling will be no word for the adventure that is promised.

This affair will furnish students the first opportunity to meet in a social way since the reception tendered by Dr. Horn at the opening of the college, and all will be eager to take advantage of the opportunity for association.

Press Club Takes Initial Step In Planning Annual

"Los Escritores" the well organized press club of the Tech, met in the library last Wednesday evening with approximately seventy students present. Harry Montgomery, president of the club, was in charge. The meeting was peppy in every detail, and when some important features of the club's work were mentioned, everything else was dropped and attention centered on these things.

Roll was called by the secretary, after which reports were received from the various committees. The committee on a name reported first with the ultimate result that "Los Escritores" was selected for the club. This is generally considered an appropriate name and is in keeping with the Spanish atmosphere which prevails about the college, and which is reflected in the architectural design of the buildings, the name of the college paper, and other details and manners.

The staff for the Toreador, as suggested by the nominating committee, was as follows: Associate editor, Tom B. Morrison; assistant editor, Virgil Hobby, feature editor, Richard Cavett; sports editor, Winfield Watkins; humorous editor, James Biggers; society editor, Eula Howard; circulation manager, Otis Koen; assistant business manager, Kenneth Hemphill. This list of nominees was accepted in full by the club.

R. C. Harrison, head of the English department, was unanimously elected faculty advisor. This office carries with it an honor such as may be conferred upon a member of the faculty by the student body. Mr. Harrison is the representative of the faculty, and the medium through which the faculty will act with the club in its functions.

One of the most important features of the evening's program was the discussion of the annual for this year. Steps will have to be taken, of course immediately, if the annual is to be the success that it must be. After a quite a bit of discussion, involving nearly all phases of the undertaking, a committee was appointed by the president to handle the preliminary steps toward the building up of the annual staff; and in conjunction with the faculty, will have something definite to report at next meeting.

James Biggers, a member of the Toreador staff, is chairman of the committee to receive application for a place on the annual staff. Action is the word for the hour now; and by the time of the meeting next Wednesday, something definite will have been done, and work will be started on the annual proper. Other members of this committee are: Misses Alexander and Skeen; Messrs. Bradshaw and Raliff. Those who are interested in the annual work are requested to make application to some member of this committee.

New Instructors Take Up Duties

As has been the case in the other departments of the Tech, the College of Liberal Arts has found it necessary to add new members. A superintendent of farms has also been secured by the school of agriculture.

Dr. Ames arrived in Lubbock Monday from Lelano, California, and took up his duties in the department of mathematics. He has had several years of teaching experience in the University of Missouri, and is a graduate of Harvard University.

Mrs. J. T. Marshall of Lubbock will assist in the chemistry department. She has had several years of experience in teaching chemistry in high school and is highly recommended by E. P. Shock of the Chemistry Department of the University of Texas, of which institution Mrs. Marshall is a graduate.

Dr. Harrison To Address Teachers

Dr. R. C. Harrison, head of the English Department of the Tech, will address the teachers of Lamb County, assembled in Teachers Institute at Littlefield, at 10:30 a. m. today. He will represent the college in the institute there, and in his address will have much to say concerning the work that is being done in the Tech and the part it will play in the promotion of higher education in this section.

Bugology Studes And Schoolma'ns Give Out "Dope" On Rare Animal

Some of the readers of the Toreador have been putting rather embarrassing questions to the biology teachers lately as to the Gassenhaufensnaufer, an animal recently alluded to in the Toreador. As a result, the instructors have had some research work done and are able to give the following enlightening information:

The Gassenhaufensnaufer (pronounced Kischinpoznouwe) is a small animal of immense and grotesque proportions, found only in Texas, the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, Africa, Europe and Asia. Great herds of these rare animals, who are very exclusive and will not even associate with their own kind, are to be found also in Australia, Iceland and Greenland.

The Gassenhaufensnaufer is a strict vegetarian, but will eat any and all the meat it can procure. This is especially true of the young Gassenhaufensnaufer who have not yet developed their digestive organs.

One of the peculiarities of this animal is that it is equipped with a full set of false teeth. The purchaser can, by special order, specify as to whether these teeth shall be gold plated or ebony finished, without extra cost.

The Gassenhaufensnaufer is very dangerous to the male species of the human race, but has learned better than to attack a woman.

The only way to kill one of these animals is to pick it up by its tail. When this is done the eyes drop out and the animal dashes out its brains against the first tree it hits.

Since a great deal of interest has been created in the wild gassenhauffensnaufer, which was so closely associated with the naming of Cheri Casa, ye editors have delved into the matter for further information and have been greatly assisted in their work by two of the school ma'ns in the Lockney high school, whose names will be withheld. The co-operation came about in this manner:

A few days ago, ye editors received by special delivery a very conspicuous looking package, tattooed with such markings as: "Fragile," "Handle with care," "Don't crush," "This side up," etc. Carefully peering into the contents, we found a jumbled assembly of unjoined fragments. The remains being well preserved, we called out the geology, biology, zoology and most every other kind of -ology department, and soon had assembled a very striking resemblance of the animal under discussion, which was thought to have been extinct until this investigation started.

With the assistance of these ladies, we are now able to furnish curious and inquisitive students with a good mental description of the mammal—and a mental picture is all that remains, for the animal has long since been devoured by the carnivorous species which now inhabit Cheri Casa, some one having made the discovery that the miniature likeness was candy.

The good work that is being accomplished by the members of the fair sex in this connection is to be commended. Of course we are much too modest to suggest a continuation of the work, but the originality was remarkable and their contributions to (domestic) science will long be remembered.

Zoology Class Quite Peculiar; Here's The Best

One of the classes in zoology, under the instruction of R. A. Studhalter, is evidently made up of "early birds" and "night owls" if one is to judge from the spirit shown in arriving at a definite period for lab exercises.

Due to the large number taking the course, it was found necessary to make a division in the class. As no convenient hour for lab exercises could be agreed upon, a vote was taken with the following results: 13 voted to have laboratory from 6 to 8 a. m.; 17 favored the hours of 7 to 9 p. m.; and a compromise was reached by making the exercises come between 3 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

It can readily be seen that those who favored the morning exercises had an eye for being late each morning, due to the early hour, you know; or probably they expected to have it "served in bed." Those who favored the evening hours either expected to sleep through the class, or believed that the exercises would include such novelties as necking, netting, attending to the feminine sex, and the like, students at those hours. It is a safe bet that Prof. Studhalter had something to say in bringing about the compromise.

Amarillo Daily News Compliments Tech Publication

The following bouquet has been passed out by the Amarillo Daily News in the form of an editorial. We consider this one of the highest compliments that could be paid the Toreador and reproduce it with pleasure:

"While the management apologizes for the crudeness in arrangement" of its initial number of The Toreador, the official publication of The Texas Technological College at Lubbock, the appearance of the paper in general shows it to be anything but imperfect. The paper is newsy, well balanced in make-up and will be well patronized by the business men of Lubbock, judging from the large volume of advertising carried in the first issue. If the standard set last week is to be maintained the Toreador will take its place at once in the ranks of the leading college publications of the state.

"An expression in the editorial column states the policy of the college paper will be to 'co-operate with the local papers in boosting for Lubbock,' while publishing all the news pertaining to Texas Tech and the student body, indicating the new paper's existence and influence will be felt in an area wider than that bounded by the campus."

New Tech Bulletin Deals With Formal Opening Of Tech

"A New Institution Opens its Doors" will be the title of the new bulletin of the Texas Technological college, which will deal largely with the formal opening of the institution and the program that has been outlined for the future. Copy for the new bulletin was placed in the hands of the printers the first of this week, and the bulletins will be ready for distribution within a short time, according to information given out by Dr. Horn's office.

This bulletin will be the fourth to be issued by the institution and will probably be the largest of the four. It will contain information concerning the large enrollment, and the reports of the five deans of the college with regard to their respective departments, as well as a word from the librarian, Miss West, and Prof. Waghorne, director of music. The report of the architects concerning the future building program will also be included in the bulletin.

It is understood that only two cuts are being used in the bulletin: the textile engineering building, and the entrance to the administration building. A schedule of classes and various announcements will be included.

Co-Eds Threaten Domination Despite Great Minority

A new danger is threatening the men of the Tech. Another sacred prerogative of man bids fair to fall before the onslaught of the feminine sex, which has wrought such havoc with the world of men in the last few years. The latest victim is the concert band. Co-eds have demanded permission—aye, have been granted permission—to practice with the band. They state they have no desire to appear with the band in public, but even the permission to practice will serve as an opening wedge which will eventually lead to feminine domination of the band.

The men of the Tech must stand together and repel this invasion of masculine rights by the fair sex. The poor, harassed male has been hard pressed in the last few years and of all the places that man once was wont to point with pride and exclaim that men and men only could use, only a pitifully small number remain today. The barber shop has become the "bobber shop," with the trusty cuspidors removed and lace curtains substituted. Cigarettes and synthetic gin have long since been adopted by the sex as theirs. It might be said that they can't even call their trousers their own.

College Belles Entertain Boys From Cheri Casa

What was probably the most elaborate social event arranged by students since the opening of the Tech College was given by the girls of College Inn on last evening honoring the boys of the Cheri Casa dormitory. Approximately seventy-five of the students who are enjoying dormitory life were in attendance. Mesdames Doak, Summers and Studeman were honor guests.

The lobby and reception room of College Inn were beautifully decorated in black and scarlet, with a touch of Halloween decorations fitted in to add to the attractiveness. The color scheme was also carried out in the delightful refreshments.

Much to the delight of the boys from Cheri Casa, the affair was informal and no one experienced any difficulty in getting into the spirit of the occasion. The boys proved regular "chumps" by jumping headlong into every pitfall suggested by the fair lassies, which made it much easier for them to entertain but in some instances was nothing short of disastrous for the guests. Parlor games of various and sundry arrangements were engaged in to the delight of all. These were very original, amusing and entertaining.

In sending out invitations, the girls advised that all the "dead 'uns" would be thrown out, indicating that the affair would be a lively one. This idea seemed to be emphasized in every feature of the program.

It is unanimously agreed at Cheri Casa that the girls of College Inn are delightful entertainers and that they have established a complimentary precedence. This affair was the first of many such occasions which will be enjoyed by the students at these halls.

Fall Enrollment Closed Saturday

Enrollment in the Texas Tech for the fall term closed Saturday, October 17, with the number of students standing at 906, according to Registrar E. L. Dohoney. The number had grown steadily since the first day of matriculation and several were received the last week and as late as Friday.

The number now enrolled in the Tech is in keeping with the estimate made by President Horn early in the life of the institution, and all but fulfilled the prophecy of Registrar D. A. Shirley of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon, who predicted at the formal opening that the enrollment would reach 1,000. The fact that this number is a record for new educational institutions merely reflects the foresightedness of these gentlemen.

Students doing special work are still being received. These special are made up of teachers in the grammar schools who have classes on Saturday only, or teachers in the rural districts where the schools have been dismissed for the cotton picking season.

B. S. U. CONVENTION

The delegates from Tech who are attending the Baptist students' union in Waco, Oct. 23-25 are: Pearl Hensley, Velm Barr, Margaret Pringle, Veda West, Annie West, and Marie McDonald.

400 Fish In A Mule Barn Create Nasty Uproar At Slime Meeting

Approximately four hundred slimes convened in the mule barn last Thursday evening for their initial class meeting. There was one fact stressed at the beginning of the meeting; and that fact was that there were just plenty of Freshmen in Tech. After it was ascertained that Fish, only, were present, the business of class organization was taken up immediately. Bradshaw was chairman pro tem, with Harry Horn secretary.

When nominations for class president were called for, quite a number responded, with the result that before anyone quite knew what was taking place, the nominations had been made, and nominations closed. In view of the fact, however, that quite a number of representatives of the class were coming in late, it was decided to discard the nominations, and give them all a chance.

Accordingly, other nominations were declared to be in order; and five "fish-boys" retired from the barn to await the verdict. Majority vote determined the fact that Bruce Reid, a Matador, was elected to hold that office. A greater honor could hardly have been bestowed upon a member of the Freshman class than that of being its first president.

CLARENDON HERE TO MEET TECH IN 1ST GRID BATTLE

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED SEE CLASH BETWEEN WEST TEXAS TEAMS

Keen for another victory and lured on by the first taste of blood from last week's morsel, the Matadors, in the peak of condition, will clash with the Clarendon College Bulldogs at Fair park this afternoon in the fourth game of Tech's schedule. West Texas as a whole, is looking forward to this game with more enthusiasm than any other game of the season, since this is the first West Texas college the Tech will have met this year. Since Clarendon has adopted as its slogan "Beat Tech," and since not only the Tech squad, but the entire student body feel it a personal obligation to send our neighbor back with a spanking, this afternoon's prospects point toward a tough scrap.

The following excerpt from "The Clarce" the Clarendon college newspaper, reveals the fact Bulldogs are here with a winning spirit.

"Although dopes gives Tech a slight advantage, Coach Burton believes that the team he sends on the Lubbock field will give an even break at least. The team that meets Lubbock will be decidedly different from the crippled representation that lost to Southwestern. Powell and Johnston will be able to play and others on the hospital list are expected to be in the pink of condition by Saturday."

With a speedy backfield and plenty of beef and light in the Matador line Coach Freeland will probably send his boys out to open up with an offensive attack. Aerial stunts will more than likely take a brilliant part in the course of the game since the attempt last Saturday was so successful. The Bull Fighters have been going through a daily practice grind in preparation for the game, including two or three scrimmages, and the squad is worked up to a fine point.

Since this match brings together the sections oldest college and the state's youngest college, it is thought that the game will draw the greatest crowd in the Lubbock arena that ever witnessed a football struggle in this part of the state.

Tech Baptist Men's Bible Class Formed

At a meeting of the Tech Baptist Men's Bible Class last Sunday officers were elected as follows: President, Ralph Fikes; 1st Vice president, Minny Roberts; 2nd Vice President, Hurley Carpenter; 3rd Vice President, Erwin Coleman; Secretary-Treasurer, G. Cummins, Chorister, Alec Taylor; Pianist, Rose Owens; Reporter, James Hodges.

OUR SPARE TIME AND THE LIBRARY

One of the greatest problems confronting our civilization is the proper use of our leisure time. Modern mechanical inventions and discoveries has created a large amount of leisure time even with the commonest laborer. It has been charged time and again that the present generation knows astonishing little about present trend of affairs, political, economic, social, or otherwise, despite their great advantages in amount of literature available, the cheapness of price, and the amount of leisure time at our disposal.

Our library, although not complete in everything that it should and will have, has a good collection of current magazines and newspapers. Newspapers and magazines are today recognized by the best educators everywhere as one of the best and most vital sources of information available. Many men who have been unable to secure a college education have been able to compete with college men because of the intensive study of current affairs through this medium.

In that off hour between classes just step into the library and read some of the current topics of the day. Make it a habit and you, as a college student, will be more respected for your ability to give an intelligent opinion on the affairs of the world. In addition it will remunerate you in making you better able to render the maximum amount of service to your community which should be the main motive in any student's career.

GOV. FERGUSON SUPPORTS THE TECH

The fact that Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson is still co-operating with the college authorities in making the first year of the Texas Tech a decided success was substantiated by her action in signing the deficiency warrant presented by R. M. Chitwood, business manager of the institution. Mrs. Ferguson has been liberal in her support of the appropriations for the Tech, and the press of the state on last Sunday carried the announcement of her latest official action in the interest of the college.

Manager Chitwood made the announcement upon his return from Austin last week that Gov. Ferguson would approve the request, and the word was received with great enthusiasm here. The deficiency warrant amounted to $58,180, and will be used in caring for the large enrollment. This will care for the salaries of the new instructors and general expenses, the appropriations for these purposes being insufficient.

"The governor in signing the deficiency warrant said she hoped that the college would prove most successful, and that she was interested in it," Mr. Chitwood said. He also added: "I know that all who are interested in the welfare of the institution will appreciate the governor's action in providing funds to make the first session a success."

Mrs. Ferguson has been loyal in her support of the Tech, and this last action indicates that she believes in the future of the institution and is interested in the great value it will be to the state.

THE "WHY" OF ADVERTISING IN THE TOREADOR

Perhaps the question has occurred to you since you began reading The Toreador: "Why are so many advertisements printed in it?" And this is not a question that can be answered thoughtlessly or in a dozen words, because it really goes way back into the fundamentals of the American standard of living and deals with the development of American business ideals. It has to do with the buying and selling of merchandise, the quality of the clothes we wear, the food we eat, and many other things that enter into our daily lives. And with The Toreador it is of still greater importance; it means "self-preservation," for the advertisements make the publication possible.

The careful and cautious buyer divides merchandise into two classes—the kind he trusts, and the kind he doesn't trust; or the grade that is advertised, and the grade that isn't advertised. And it is easy to tell the difference. But years ago, before the days of advertising, it wasn't so easy to distinguish good merchandise from bad merchandise. Our grandmothers sugar, flour, crackers, etc., in the bulk, and made grandfather's shirts from cloth bought in the bolt. There were no breakfast foods in clean packages; no canned soups in sanitary cans; no tooth paste and chewing gum nor hundreds of other things which we now consider necessities of life. Buying was then done on chance—chance that it would prove satisfactory. But the standards of modern advertising have been a means of determining quality and value, and this condition no longer exists.

When you read the advertisements in The Toreador you have a directory of the leading business establishments in Lubbock, where quality merchandise is handled. The merchants who advertise in this publication are inviting you to supply your needs with merchandise which was sold to them under the standards of national advertising, or they offer you individual service which they are not afraid to recommend. Lubbock merchants who advertise in The Toreador are dependable, and the thrifty student-buyer will avail themselves of the suggestions offered in the advertising columns before going out on a mission of shopping.

Advertising, then, in The Toreador is a medium through which Lubbock merchants introduce their merchandise to the student body of the Tech. And when you, as a student body, patronize the merchants who advertise in The Toreador, you are showing loyalty to the student publication, for it is dependent upon the support of Lubbock merchants.

Another fine thing about travel is that it teaches you to appreciate home.

You can't eat your cake and have it too, but if you don't eat it the cake gets stale.

A cash register may benefit the business, but it makes it much harder for a poor struggling clerk to get ahead.

Dairy Barn Is Near Completion

The College dairy barn is expected to be ready for use by December 1st, although like other buildings of the College, plans for building extend over an indefinite length of time. The building will be in the form of a "T" when completed. The long section of the "T" to be completed in the near future will consist of two stories but will be only seventy-six feet in length. In final form, this particular part will measure 136 feet.

The present structure will contain: A milk room equipped with separator, mixer, cooler, Babcock milk tester, a washroom for washing milk bottles and cans, a boiling room to furnish hot water for sterilizing, and a sun room. The barn proper will contain stands for forty cows besides three box stalls, and calf pens. It will also contain a feed mixing room, attendance room and an office. The barn is constructed of hollow tile and plastered on outside. The interior is equipped with Jamesway stanchions. An overhead rail has been provided for distribution of feed, and removal of litter from barn. In addition to the barn, a sufficient amount of fence material is on hand with which to provide lots to take care of all cattle to be housed in the barn. These will be built as soon as the land, which is at present in col-

An additional silo will be built when funds become available and when the need is felt for it. The barn is being built to fill the future needs as well as present needs of the College. In final form, the barn will contain stands for one hundred cows, besides box stalls and calf pens.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All students who have not left their Lubbock addresses in the office of the Registrar and those who have moved since registration should report to the Registrar immediately.

It is very important that the College authorities should know how to locate students at all times. Special delivery letters, telegrams, and long distance telephone calls cannot be delivered except to definite addresses.

The following students are requested to call at the office of the Registrar:

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God, in His great wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst, by death from accidental cause, Mr. George Crow, a highly esteemed and honored student of the Texas Technological College and admired member of our College football squad, the Maradors, and

Whereas, in his death we feel sincerely and deeply the loss of a friend to all who knew him, as well as the loss of a valiant, clean, and high-minded gentleman and sportsman, and Whereas, it is the wish of the Athletic Council of the College, as well as of the entire student body and faculty to express our admiration for our deceased friend, and our deep sympathy for his family and his other friends and loved ones.

Therefore, be it resolved that we furnish a copy of these resolutions to our College paper, the Toreador; to our daily papers of Lubbock, The Lubbock Morning Avalanche, and The Lubbock Daily Journal; and to his bereaved family at Haskell, Texas.

Signed:

W. A. A. "KID PARTY"

All college girls were cleverly entertained Thursday evening by the Women's Athletic association on the campus.

The calendar rolled back as the party progressed. Everyone came in "kid" costume, and the little god "Pan" was everywhere. The guests were favored with whistles bearing scarlet and black ribbons. Tech colors. "Andy Gump" cookies, with red soda pop refreshed the enthusiastic kiddies.

Seven girls, clad in sports togs presided at the tables, where the guests were asked to "sign up" for the various sports of the year. All the girls present expressed keen interest in the W. A. A. plans for the coming year. Miss Glickerson, who was the hostess for the occasion, and physical education director of the college, is to be the able sponsor of the plans, which means that they will be put over in a worth while way.

Prof. Wagborne directed the singing of college songs, and presented the W. A. A. song, which he composed for the club.

Rex Theatre Opens Midnight Matinee

The Rex Theatre has made the announcement this week that it will begin a midnight matinee for Sunday nights, opening tomorrow night with "The $50,000 Reward." The shows will begin at one minute after midnight on Sunday night. The Rex is the first of Lubbock theatres to undertake the midnight matinee.

Next week the Rex is featuring for four days, October 28-31, "The Phantom of the Opera," with Lon Chaney supported by a strong cast. This picture is said to be greater in every way than "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." It is one of the strongest romances ever written, laid amid the gaiety and glamour of Paris intrigue, sparkling with life, beauty and excitement—a dazzling, thrilling spectacle.

Scandal! Red Smith is again in the limelight. There is one little point on which the boys of Cheri-Casa would like a little enlightenment. Where was our Red Smith Saturday night. He came reeling up the ladder with three blankets and an overcoat under his arm, and his rosy face assumes a redder hue when the more inquisitive of Cheri-Casa attempted an impromptu investigation as to his actions prior to his return. The investigation has been unable to ascertain any information as yet. It is thought that there is some connection between his hurried return and several pistol shots which were heard just previous to his arrival.

Ice water and Bromo-Seltzer were the two most popular beverages at Cheri-Casa last Sunday morning. Like Grape Nuts—there's a reason!

Saturday night has once more assumed its traditional significance for Cheri-Casa. The bath tubs have been installed.

Jenkins (after feeling all around telephone post): Ish no use, boys, we're walled in.

Cheri-Casa was thrown into a great panic last Thursday, by the arrival of the sheriff of Sweetwater, seeking one Ralph Johnson, well known Cheri-Casa "rat" and "mugger." It seems as if the aforesaid Mr. Johnson had been intimate with a certain young bootlegger of Sweetwater, who, upon being juggled for plying her trade, named Mr. Johnson as co-respondent.

Mr. Johnson was sitting out in front of Cheri-Casa, talking to his father, when the sheriff arrived. The sheriff, who, by the way is a very large capable looking man, walked over and laying his hand on Johnson's shoulder, said in a firm, but gentle voice:

"Ralph Johnson, I arrest you for bootlegging, and warn you that anything you say will be used against you."

"At last the blow has fallen," gasped Johnson.

"My gawd," groaned Johnson Senior.

"Is this true?"

"Father, I cannot tell a lie," replied Johnson, "I did it with my little still."

"Oh, to think that my young hope, pride and joy would come to this," moaned the father, and began to weep.

Johnson began to weep, also which was too much for the spectators, who, by their laughter, disclosed the fact that it was all a frame-up. After Johnson's actions, however, some, are wondering if the charges are so very false, after all.

Cheri Casa is in deep mourning. "Sister" has moved and her inspiring presence is sorely missed.

no more. "Sister" stated in his farewell to the gang, that if anyone desired a small portion of this inspiring and refining personality, that they would be welcome at any time at his present address on 15th street.

"Now I have you in my grip," hissed "Ox" Keys, as he shoved the tube of toothpaste in his valise.

Red Thompson—(Reading the College Inn invitation) "What does R. S. V. P. mean?"

Bob Board—"It means Return Silverware Very Promptly."

And speaking of the College Inn party: several boys have been trying to discover the significance of the Bull on the invitations.

Ogden Horns—(Not the Prexy's son) is so absent-minded that he puts his umbrella in the bed and stands up in the corner all night.

As bad as the man who put his shirt to bed, and jumped down the clothes-chute.

Miss Johnnie McCowry, professor of Food and Nutrition of the Home Economics Department, will spend the week end in Dallas visiting relatives and while there will select some suitable equipment for the department.

TECH TRIMS MOUNTAINEERS IN SPECTACULAR BATTLE SATURDAY

The scarlet jerseys of the Tech College Matadors showed blood red and the color was reflected in the eyes of the Matadors at the Fair Park Saturday afternoon, and Coach Freeland's athletes, determined in their efforts for a win after they were held scoreless on one occasion and to a 3 to 3 tie on another, drove into the defense of the Montezuma College Mountaineers for a count of 20 while they were holding the visitors helpless.

The Matadors, apparently at will, tore through the defense of the Mountaineers for long gains and kept them almost wholly in the dark as to what might happen next. Shifting from plunging tactics into their open style of football, with an occasional long gain or long end runs, the Matadors were at all times master of the situation during the entire time.

Visitors' Offensive Crushed. With but one exception the visitors were never given a chance to show their offensive machine, as each time they were in possession of the ball they were within the danger zone, and were forced to punt. This chance came late in the second half, but here they proved unequal to the occasion, and again took the punting route for their offensive was totally crushed by the heavier Tech line.

One time toward the latter stages of the game, the visitors threatened an attack from the air, but with the completion of one pass for twenty yards they again resorted to line plunges which proved futile against the Matadors.

The Mountaineers, it might be explained, were working under severe handicaps from more than one cause, primary of which was the method in which they were forced to reach Lubbock for the game. They left home early Thursday morning by truck and arrived here Saturday shortly before noon with slippery roads enroute. In addition to this, they were outwitted somewhat, possibly twelve or fifteen pounds to the man.

They showed flashes of sensationalism at different stages of the battle, but this was cut short by the heavy onslaught of the Tech crew. Wolfman, backfield man for the visitors, stood out on the defensive, several times getting through the Tech line to deal misery by attacking from the rear on end runs.

Relief Squad Shows Well. The relief squad sent in by Coach Freeland at the opening of the second half, broke into a breezy style of football, and apparently made a better showing against the invading crew than the heavier first string which opened the affray. Coach Freeland denies that this was his second squad, saying that he doesn't have a second squad, and he evidently is right, for one seems to be about as hard to handle as the other.

Woodridge, who came to the Tech from Bryan high school, Dallas, opened up a fiery aerial attack at the opening of the second half when he took charge of the new crew that entered the field at this time. The flashy youth easily proved the sensation of the exhibition, sipping off several long gains in a beautiful display of broken field running. Woodridge made a total gain of 140 yards on three runs, two of which came from forward passes, when he dashed 40 yards one time and 35 another, both times cutting a wide swath across the field with his speed and sidestepping.

Woodridge Races 65 Yards. In the early part of the fourth quarter, Woodridge took a long punt from Montezuma on about the 35 yard line, and raced 65 yards through perfect interference for a touchdown. Archibald then sent a darter through the goal for the extra point.

Tech showed a total yardage gain of 546 against 86 for the visitors, and lost fourteen by tackle while the Mountaineers were downed for a loss of eight. Montezuma, however, was penalized five yards for offside, almost equaling things on this score. The Matadors completed fifteen first downs with only one for the Mountaineers. Three fumbles were charged against the visitors, and two for the Matadors but none of them counted for very much.

Attempting to break up the passing machine of the Matadors, the Mountaineers intercepted five forward passes, the most of which were in their own danger zone, and they gained only by punting. Two passes were intercepted by the Matadors.

The lineup:

Montezuma	Position	Tech
Ford	Left Tackle	Carpenter
Biggs	Center	Miller
C. Ford	Right Tackle	Knowles
Pipkin	Right End	Calloway
Bondchamer	Quarter	Hamilton
Brown	Right Half	Alford
McClure	Pullback	Fields

Score by quarters:
Tech 3 7 6 14—30

Summary: Yardage gained—Montezuma 86, Tech 456; yardage lost—Montezuma 8, Tech 14; Punts—Montezuma 5, Tech 7; Downs—Montezuma

Dramatic Club Installs Officers

The Dramatic Club of the Tech met last Tuesday evening at seven o'clock in the assembly hall of the administration building. Miss Pirtle, director general of the club, was unable to be present on account of sickness; but the business of the club was carried on in a measure despite that fact.

The meeting was opened by Richard Cavett, who has been acting as Chairman pro tem for the club. The officers of the club were presented, and they took over their active duties at the time. Richard Davis is the new president for the club; and in speaking to the assembled members during the course of the meeting, he stated that the Dramatic Club had the right to be, and would be, before long, the liveliest, most profitable to the student, and most interesting club that may be found on the college campus.

Irving Coleman was installed as vice president; De Ann Sammons, secretary, and Richard Cavett, reporter.

Due to Miss Pirtle's absence, the program which was to have been given was not presented; so the meeting adjourned at an early hour.

After adjournment, twenty-six new members were enrolled, upon payment of their initiation fee. This brings the membership of the club to the total of eighty-four, which certainly bids fair for the success of the club.

We welcome to College Inn Miss Reva Newsome from Brownfield.

Mr. W. S. Lanham of Slaton was the guest of his sister, Miss Stella Mae Lanham, Friday.

Lucille—Where is that whiskbroom?
Lib—We had it for breakfast.

Ruth Benedict—Do you want a date for the Hallowe'en party?
Tid—Sure.
Ruth—Will Mil-dew?

Allene Bartley—She told me you told her that secret I told you not to tell her.

Margaret Oliver—The mean thing, I told her not to tell you I told her.
Allene—I promised her I wouldn't tell you she told me, you told her, so don't tell her I told you.

Some girls may not be popular but you can always depend upon "Ponjola" giving the boys a "square deal."

Some saps at College Inn felt it necessary to sleep with blankets Tuesday night. "I wonder why?"

College Examiner Pleased With Tech

Dr. Peyton Irving of the State Department of Education was at the College last week in the capacity of State College Examiner. He will render his report to the State Board of Examiners, November 5th, and while an official report cannot be had until then, Dr. Irving appeared highly pleased with the College and Faculty. Dr. Irving came here at the invitation of President Horn.

Dr. Irving was to inspect three colleges at Abilene after leaving here. He was on a tour of West Texas colleges for the annual round of data on the colleges of the state.

Tech Trumpeters Red Hot Exponents Of Syncopation

The Texas Tech Trumpeters, eight red-hot sons of Jazz and Syncopation, made their bow before Tech students and Lubbock people at the Elk's club room Saturday night before last, and also played the Elk's dance last Saturday night. The manager of the orchestra states that he has made arrangements to play the regular Saturday night Hop at the Elk's Hall.

A number of Tech students, through the courtesy of the Elk's social committee, have issued complimentary permit cards, and indulgents of the "light fantastic," who have been attending the dances report that they are plenty good, and insist that the Trumpeters are "poison."

The personnel of the orchestra consists of eight Tech boys, the instrumentation of which is, trumpet, piano, bass, sax, clarinet, trombone, banjo and drums.

Dr. L. D. Ames who has been just recently secured as a professor of mathematics, arrived in Lubbock Tuesday. Dr. Ames is a graduate of Harvard and has formerly taught in the University of Missouri.

WARNING! If any of you little fish get locked up in room 220 some Saturday night, and decide it's time to take a swim—well, all you need is an umbrella. "Los Bandidos" Echo Sentiment From College Inn

"Los Bandidos" are in for inns. Out on the Plains where the West begins. Oh yes, fair maids we hear your call. And want to meet you one and all. So if you please you'll give the chance. At dinner, picnic, show or dance. Yes, "We are with you right or wrong." We'll be there when the day is gone. Read our creed; see where we stand. Then be the sisters of our jolly band. —Ralph Collins.

Tomorrow's sun will rise in the west and set behind purple tinted eastern hills; the silvery moon and twinkling stars will be blotted out of the blue dome that bends above us; the Gulf of Mexico will become a solid block of ice, and the Arctic Ocean a seething, boiling caldron; the rugged snow capped Rock Mountains will become a broad, level prairie; and the coral covered bed of the Atlantic a virgin forest; the majestic waters of the Mississippi will flow back toward the frozen North and the foam churned turbulent torrents of the St. Lawrence will roll back over Niagara Falls; the rock of Gibraltar will float like a cork on the Mediterranean Sea; and the Desert of Sahara will blossom into a garden of roses; the Pyramids of Egypt will stand on their apex, and the Sphinx will go swimming in the river Nile; the Pope or Rome will be president of the United States, and the Kaiser of Germany will rule the world; Cal Coolidge will be able to out talk a woman's sewing circle; Henry Ford will be a pauper in a Wall Street Poor House, and John D. Rockefeller a common beggar in a fourth class oil town; fishermen will quit lying, and negroes, will refuse to shoot craps; the polar bear and arctic seal will migrate to the equator like a goose; dogs will have wings like an eagle; and elephants will roost in trees; Hell will freeze over in August; and we'll skate to the poles on ice—When "Los Bandidos" go back on "The Girls at College Inn."

Tom Graham, one of the Salon Soltaro boys, who had his collar bone broken Saturday, Oct. 10, is improving rapidly and he says that he will be in fine shape by Hallowe'en. We hope so.

Dr. Horn Addresses Farmers Over Radio Solon Soltaro

Dr. Paul W. Horn, President of the Texas Technological College, spoke to the farmers of the country over radio from Station WFAA, The Dallas News, during the noon hour Friday, October 23. His discussion was of matters of importance and particular interest to the farmers, and touched slightly upon the service the Texas Tech hopes to be to the farmers of the state and especially of this section.

Dr. Horn left for Dallas Thursday and will probably be away for several days. Attending a meeting of the board of regents.

Where Quality Counts

The boys' dormitory, located at 1515, 14th street, will be known in the future as Salon Soltaro (Bachelor's Hall).

At the first meeting of this group of boys the following officers were elected:

Robert Archibald, President; Robert Kirk, Vice President; Jack Rogers, Secretary-Treasurer and Reporter.

The advisory committee was then formed and the following were elected on it:

Tom Graham, Elson Archibald, Jack Howell.

At this meeting a few by-laws were adopted.

This group of boys are behind the Faculty, Student Body and most of all, behind the Matadors, winners or losers, and we never expect to trail our colors.

We want to be sure that Fatty gets a square deal with Ponjola at College Inn, else the boys of Salon Soltaro will visit her again soon.

We are wondering where the little boys went who stole his football from us.

It has just been discovered that some of our boys have been paying a nickel to ride the little boy's bicycle in front of our house. Who are these boys?

The W. A. A. entertained the Matadors and the Montezuma Mountaineers with a delightful informal reception in the administration building last Saturday evening, Oct. 17. Members of the college band played for the affair.

Miss Margaret Huff of the Music department gave an interesting talk to one of the classes in ancient history Monday. Miss Huff has spent several years in Egypt and was able to give first hand experiences which were much enjoyed by the class.

Dr. Granberry, professor of history in the College, will speak to the Senior Epworth League at the Methodist Church Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. Granberry's subject will be "Personal Observations of Missions in Northern Africa."

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Lubbock has begun work on a student loan fund. Mr. Robert Noble, a student of the Tech, spent last week-end with his parents at Tahoka.
