"He Profits Most Who Serves Best"

SMOKE FROM THE MOUNTAIN

Charlie Evans is going in the rock moving business. He went to Coleman by a detoured route Monday—the rockiest road he could find, blew out two tires, bounced over some high rocks and lit into a "boulder" about 600 pounds in weight and pushed the rock about 30 feet. He decided maybe he'd better take it into town a little slower so he came on in at about 45 miles an hour with most of the car hanging together.

We heard that some of the town's leading citizens were having a swell time in Brady Saturday night. Nowadays you just can't get away from home without someone spying on you, can you? The main consolation is the folks that told it were there, too, so you can get even.

The city COWBOYS Joiner and McAnnelly went to the Big City of Abilene for a rodeo this week. Wonder if they rode a Ford or a bronc.

We really didn't know just how to take the generosity of one of the merchants this week when he came in Monday to pay us for running his name in the list of firms closing July 5. We explained that we did that walking around for nothing and were not asking the merchants to pay us, but after insisting that he would pay us, we couldn't refuse. He said, "You remember it was hot that day, don't you?" and told us to go get some drinks. Thanks again. We'll encourage a holiday offener for that.

We'll hand it to Tucker Newman. He'll play on any team, any position, any time, and will stand razzing from anybody. And he gets a big kick out of it, too.

Attention Carter Duggins: You owe the soft ball league one buck. If we give you a year's subscription to the paper for the nightly collection, a statement from the league for $1.00 due is forthcoming. Be prepared to jar loose.

Now when Mr. Mulroy loses anything as big as a ten foot ladder and then can't find it after a day of searching we wonder just what kind of a wilderness he was in anyway. Someone is just the possessor of a nice new ladder and Mr. Mulroy doesn't care so much for the ladder, but anyone knowing the whereabouts, please tell him. He (and other folks) would like to know where he was when he lost it.

Take it from Ford Barnes—the river is no place to go Hollywood and start beach sitting and bathing. His advice to prospective fishers and swimmers is not to try to be the main attraction on the river like he was and come out with a sunburn that required two jars of Prep to make him half-way comfortable.

Jack Mobley, like Braddock, just couldn't take it. It seems that he agreed to pay off to a certain fellow if Braddock won and when he didn't Jack reneged to fulfill his bargain. Braddock wasn't a piker, anyway.

Hillcrest Club Wins Golf Meet

The Santa Anna Hillcrest Golf Club defeated the Phil-Pe-Co Club from the neighboring towns of Cross Plains, Rising Star and Pioneer in matches Sunday at the local course by a final score of 6-5.

This meet was a return tournament, since the local players visited the Phil-Pe-Co Club two weeks ago.

Winning local golfers were Mr. Garrett, Fels Newman, Mr. Marshall, Dr. Lovelady, Mr. Cheaney and Mr. Oakes.

Hundreds Attend Home Coming Day at Local Church

Presbyterians Celebrate With Annual Reunion Sunday; Miss Boyd Is Main Speaker

Several hundred members of the Presbyterian Church and visitors attended the annual Home Coming Day last Sunday at the Church at the morning service, basket dinner and afternoon meeting. Miss Lena Boyd, missionary to India from this local church, gave the principal addresses of both the morning and afternoon services. Rev. M. L. Womack, pastor was in charge of the program.

Miss Boyd spoke during the sermon hour of her work in the Indian territory, her contact with the native people and the itinerary of the travels to the native villages to spread the Gospel. Following her interesting talk, she sang in the Indian language a verse of the well-known English hymn, "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood."

The service was concluded with communion. A basket dinner was served to all present in the church at the noon hour, when old acquaintances were renewed among the members of the church who came from far and near to attend this reunion.

During the afternoon, beginning at 2 p. m., a song service was given. Miss Boyd spoke again, this time dwelling on the personal contact with the native people. A brief memorial service for the departed members since the last reunion was also held.

Bible School Students Get Diplomas Fri.

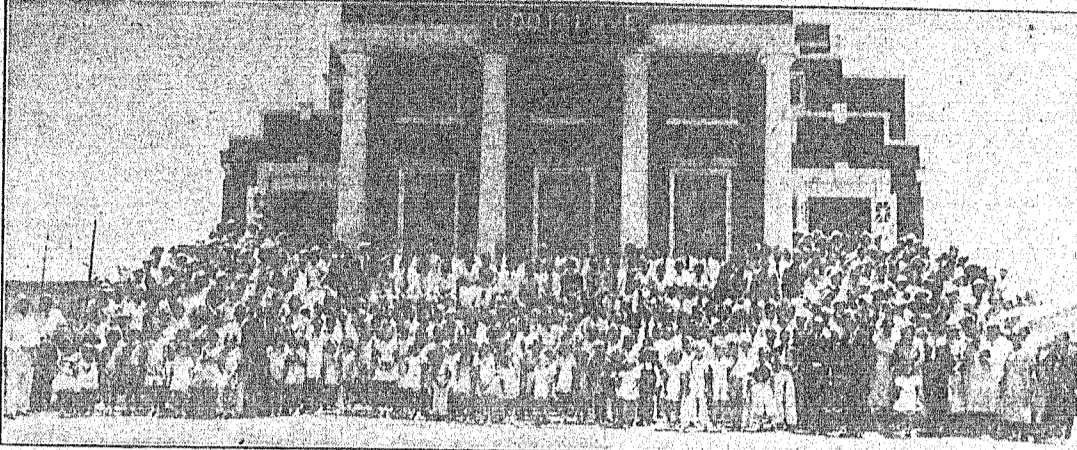

Diplomas were presented the children of the Presbyterian Vacation Bible School last Friday night as the conclusion of the program given by children from East Sweden and from the local church.

The visiting children presented an interesting pantomime of "The Old Rugged Cross." Little Miss Johansson, 10 years old, sang several old favorite hymns. Immediately preceding the program the Bible School enjoyed a picnic as the concluding event of the week's Bible study.

Local students presented a play depicting the events of the sermon on the Mount and also presented their homage to the United States flag, the pledge to the Bible and to the Christian flag.

Chambers Family Moves to Santa Anna in 1887 When Present Business Firms Were Being Established

By Miss Luella Chambers

CHAPTER II

After mama's second visit she and papa decided to sell and go west. They sold out and we spent two pleasant months next door to Major Erath and with Mrs. Erath over to see us every few days while papa and mama were out here buying land and soon shipped everything out. They arrived April 17, 1887. My sister and I stayed a few days longer and the night before we left several friends came to bid us farewell. Dr. Rufus C. Burleson, President of Baylor University, told us the history of the mountain Santana named for the Indian Chief and not the Mexican General. Next day the gang was all there to bid us farewell. After we left Temple some of the passengers seemed worried over two girls going to a strange place and no one to meet them. They found a hardware salesman who knew us and he wired Mr. R. H. Hare to engage the best room in the hotel and have a pitcher of ice water for us.

There was not a house on the south side of main street from Walker's drug store corner to the middle of the next block toward the Leeper lumber yard except a little market open one or two days a week and run by a Mr. Melton and he soon left. Then Mr. L. W. Hunter opened a market in a house under a big live oak tree north of the depot. I bought meat the first day and still am buying from Hunter's market.

All of the buildings were of wood for a long time. Mr. Stockard built the first rock building. It is the two story house occupied by Walker's drug store and the Gehrett dry goods store. Wofford Bros. had a general store in a two story wooden building and Major W. F. Lewis had a studio and watch repairing shop upstairs and later Mrs. Lewis a millinery store.

Just west of Wofford's was the office of Mr. F. J. Buck, a lawyer. Dr. Mathews had a drug store where the National Bank now stands. The Masonic Lodge met over R. H. Hare and Co. store later owned by Col. A. G. Weaver on the lot where the W. R. Kelley & Co. store now stands.

DR. LAYTON HERE SOON
Dr. Layton, state veterinarian, will test Dairy cattle for tuberculosis next week beginning about July 10. He will test no other kind of cattle unless they are registered range cattle.

YOUR MONEY SPENT HERE HELPS YOU
When you help your home town you are helping yourself. Money spent here builds your town and very directly comes back to you in services and employment. Money spent out of town is gone forever into the hands of merchants who do not care if you or Santa Anna prosper. They want your money, nothing more.

THE MORE MONEY SPENT
The more money spent here the more we have for street improvement, band support, Boy Scout work, fall fairs and Trades Days. The more spent here, the better your schools and your churches, since much of the money you spend is contributed by the business firms to these organizations and projects.

Canning and Meal Preparation Will Be Taught in 3-Day School to Start Next Thursday

W. R. Kelley & Co. will sponsor a free three-day cooking school beginning on Thursday, July 8 for the demonstration of meal preparations and canning. The ladies of Santa Anna and surrounding communities are cordially invited to be at W. R. Kelley & Co. store Thursday at 2 p. m. and Friday and Saturday at the same hour.

Very interesting discussions and demonstrations have been planned in regard to canning, since the fruits and vegetables for canning are now ripe and many will begin canning within the next few days. The demonstrator will show the added convenience of canning with the equipment which she will operate and will give the housewives some helpful suggestions in meal preparations for the hot weather.

Seats will be arranged within the store for the comfort of the visitors, according to Mr. Kelley.

An Expensive Holiday

Each Fourth of July hundreds of men, women and children are killed, chiefly in auto accidents or firecracker explosions. When the toll of death is added up we find that celebrating for the forefathers who made this land a free and peaceful country is an expensive proposition.

Since the day is on the calendar and cannot be abolished and since some people think we should celebrate it out of respect, although very few Americans think very much on the 4th about their debt to the men of 1776, the next best thing is for everyone to try to be careful on that day to prevent deaths.

The highways will be crowded, with sober drivers who want to drive carefully and with drivers not so sober who don't care if they are road hogs. Where ever you do drive carefully. Let the fatalities of local citizens and Texas citizens reach the minimum.

Firecracker burns often cause a large number of fatalities on the 4th and regardless of the fun they may be, parents should be cautious about letting their children celebrate too much with these explosives.

No holiday gives a family or a party enough pleasure to be worth death or tragedy. Be careful on the Fourth. Over two hundred years ago the soldiers thought they had won a war to make this country safe for its residents. We can help keep it that way by a "Safe Fourth." Do your part.

Stop The Flea Hoppers

Meetings of farmers are being held in various Texas counties this month to consider ways and means of stopping what is said to be the worst infestation of flea hoppers in years. The cotton flea hopper has become in recent years one of the major pests on cotton in Texas, ranking with the cotton boll weevil and at times actually doing more damage than the boll weevil. In Dallas County, for example, the 1935 cotton crop was cut more than 50 per cent by the flea hopper, which literally strips the cotton stalk. So the farmers are out to stop the hoppers' depredations. And apparently the best way of doing that is through the use of a mineral which Texas produces in enormous quantities: sulphur.

Research of State and Federal agricultural authorities has developed the fact that finely ground sulphur dust is one of the cheapest, safest, and most effective insecticides for controlling the flea hopper. Sulphur ground so that at least 93 to 95 per cent passes a 325-mesh screen is of the proper degree of fineness. It may be obtained commercially in the conditioned and unconditioned forms. Conditioned sulphur contains from 2 1/2 to 8 per cent of a light fluffy material or conditioning agent to improve its physical qualities for dusting purposes; unconditioned sulphur and pure sublimed sulphur give satisfactory results when properly applied, but a good application may be somewhat difficult to obtain unless the dusting equipment is new or in first-class operating condition. At any rate, coarsely ground or lump sulphur should never be used to control the flea hopper. Dusting should be started when it becomes evident that the cotton plants are not putting on squares as ordinarily would be expected. From 12 to 20 pounds per acre should be used for each application, the determining factors being the size of the cotton, the severity of the infestation, and the lateness of the season.

The bulletin of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station on cotton flea hopper control has this to say about the cost of sulphur dusting: "Suitable conditioned sulphurs have been selling for 3 to 3 1/2 cents per pound retail, making the cost of an application about 75 cents per acre. The average cost of controlling flea hoppers during the past several years has varied from $2.00 to $4.00 per acre for the season. This expenditure has produced an increase in yield over untreated areas of 102 to 361 pounds of seed cotton per acre and provided a net gain of $2.08 to $10.44 per acre as a result of controlling the cotton flea hopper."

That gain is worth going after. And farmers in areas where cotton is suffering from flea hopper depredations should be told how the Texas mineral can be used to save Texas cotton. -The Texas Weekly, June 19.

Enrollment Campaign

As the inaugural effort in a "Summer Evangelistic and Enrollment Campaign" which is to last through the months of July and August, we are conducting an Enrollment Campaign during the two weeks from June 27 to July 4. We hope to enroll anew every resident member of the Christian Church. The purpose of this effort is to bring the church roll down to date and keep it alive. This is an endeavor in which we need and request the help of every church member.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Preparing to close her summer home and spend the winter in France with a great-aunt, Anne Vincent, a middle-aged widow, accedes to the pleas of her adopted daughter Rachel, twenty and pretty, that she tell her about her real mother. Anne, an unselfish, understanding soul, finds the task difficult, since she feels Rachel is putting a barrier between them. Rachel learns that her real mother was beautiful eighteen-year-old Elinor Malloy, deserted by her young husband, before Rachel's birth. He was killed in the World War. In desperate financial straits, Elinor had agreed to Rachel's adoption at birth by Anne, whose own baby had died. Elinor subsequently had married Peter Cayne, a wealthy New York business man, and had a son. To soften the story for Rachel, Anne omits telling her that her mother had been callous and selfish.

CHAPTER II

Rachel sat still after Anne had left her, she was stirred and excited, she hoped that Anne did not know how much nor how strangely. A faraway hail brought her back to the boat and the hour. A little one-lunged boat was put-putting into the bay and Bob Eddis's red sweater identified it. "Hey," he called, "hey, Rache, over here—" waving his arm toward the side of the beach where landing was easiest. Rachel leaped up and ran to meet him, her white scarf flying behind her like a banner, then, as she steered in close, she snatched off her shoes, waded barelegged through the shoal water and climbed expertly over the side.

"You looked comic running along," said Bob, swinging the boat around. "Your legs are as brown as the sand so your white shoes seemed to be going all by themselves."

"And so what? You need a shave and your sweater's foul and your pants are a disgrace to the whole pant world. Are we going fishing?"

"If you want. I've got bait and tackle."

"How's the engine doing?"

"Terrible, but I guess she'll last the trip."

"Don't let's go out too far. Mother and I have to finish packing this evening."

Bob frowned at this. "Wish you weren't going."

"Wish you'd show some sense and give up your idea of wintering here, like a woodchuck. You could get a job in New York."

"I've got a job here. New York's jammed to the gunnels with bright young men hunting for jobs. I did three months of that last winter and never again, so help me. Set the lines out, we can troll right off the lighthouse and if the engine goes dead they'll see us."

With Rachel intent on the lines and bait Bob could watch her openly and his too-thin, too-old face took on a young and telltale softness. "She's gorgeous like that," he thought, "one long curving line as clear and clean as marble." Aloud he asked, "What's on your alleged mind?"

"Nothing," said Rachel, twitching at a hook.

"She's Never Shown the Slightest Interest in Me."

and stop beelng. How do you get this way? Look out, that one's twisted."

Rachel applied herself to paying out the lines with perfect calm. "What's burning you up is that we're talking about me and not about you," she said amiably. It had eased her tension to tell Bob, some of the strange bitterness she'd felt was gone. Proportion was coming back to her life.

They stayed silent, absorbed in their catch. At the tenth fish Bob dropped the lines. "That's enough; two for you and one for me and two for the Kreels and five for Mrs. Duffy's boarding-house. Look, Rache, you steer around the lighthouse into the lower bay and I'll get out my trough and clean these fish right now. How's about it, wench?"

"All right. You can come along up and eat with mother and me; there won't be much, for Ada's brother is sick and she hadn't been working for us for three days, just when we needed her most, of course, with all the packing. But there'll be enough, with the fish."

"I'll have to stop in my house and wash and put on clean clothes. Your mother would throw me out if I showed up in these stinking rags."

"Bob, I do think it's dumb of you to stay on here running a town library and doing carpentry and woodwork on the side," said Rachel after a pause.

"That's your theme song, isn't it? Nevertheless I'm going to stay. There's only one bad spot in the program, Rachel, you won't be here. I wish you'd stay with me."

"Oh, Bob, are you going to begin on that again?"

"I certainly am and I shall keep right on till you give in. You think it's dumb for me to stay here in this perfectly grand place and keep on with my work and be independent and not worry about money, but you're the dumb one, going back to New York and racketing round with that crazy crowd, gin and hot jazz and wisecracks and a lot of cheap foolishness."

"My heavens, you're full of purity and virtue all of a jump. Don't be one of those tiresome people who find something odd to do and then try to convert everybody else to doing it. It only shows they know it's no good and want to bolster themselves up."

"That's not fair."

Rachel smiled. They had almost reached the pier, first of a row of half a dozen that made the mooring place of Rockboro's fleet. "It's as fair as saying my friends are gin and jazz babies. They're not and you know it. Anyway, I'm going to get a job. And mother thinks it's all right." The boat slid alongside the pier and Rachel climbed out. "Going to tie up?"

"Yes, catch." He threw the rope and turned to put a tarpaulin over the engine, then set the basket of cleaned fish on the pier and leaped out beside Rachel. "Six o'clock," he said. "Heaps of time."

They sauntered the length of the pier and up from the water front through a short street of small houses and stores to Rockboro's main thoroughfare.

quit, the plumed design and fine stitching a marvel of ancient taste and skill. One entire wall was a cupboard in part of which he hung his clothes; in the other the cooking stove and sink, his few pans and dishes were kept compact and hidden. As Rachel looked round it she had an instant's vision of herself living there with Bob, serene, contented, a life without stress, leisurely, thoughtful, tender. "No," she thought, "it's too—adult for me. This isn't any place for youth."

Bob came bursting in from the outside door. "Now look!" he said and pulled down a long elaborately drawn design of a swag in fruit and leaves. "How's that?"

"It's grand. But it'll be awfully hard to carve."

"That was the idea. Anybody can do easy bits." He smiled at her. "You think I'm just a nut, don't you, Rache? You don't see how I can get such a kick out of a piece of wood and a bunch of tools?"

"If you want to hear it again I'm pleased to oblige: I think you're perfectly crazy about practically everything. Now I'm going home and you skin into clean clothes and come right along."

She saw Anne sitting on the terrace and waved her hand and called to her from the road: "Bob's coming up for dinner and I've brought some fish. I'm going to take a couple over to the Kreels."

Anne had been waiting for her anxiously, but now she relaxed. Rachel couldn't have been greatly agitated if she had gone fishing with Bob and asked him to dinner. What on earth they'd give him to eat—she hurried to the kitchen and was investigating supplies when Rachel returned, laughing.

"There's a frightful row going on over there. Mrs. Kreel and Sister Susie are raving about our letting Mr. Kreel use the radio. He ought never to have let them know it. My heavens—" she looked at Anne's rummagings—"nothing but bread and potatoes and that crumb of cheese!"

"I'll bake the potatoes and toast the bread," said Anne. "There's a can of asparagus, that'll do for salad, and a can of apricots for dessert. There's enough coffee for tonight and some in the morning before we start."

Through this homely patter Anne had been listening to Rachel, watching her to discover if there had been any change, any ferment of feeling since their talk on the beach. She could detect nothing. The barrier which had been high between them before she had told Rachel what the girl demanded to know seemed to have gone.

Bob arrived before the meal was ready, bringing cocktails in a paper container and a package of salted nuts. "They're probably stale," he said. "They were bought for the summer folks and as you're the last to leave it's right you should have them."

Rachel had put on the yellow crepe dress she'd saved to wear the next day, she had tied a velvet ribbon about her head and pinned a knot of floppy velvet roses at the point of the plain collar. "Decorations for the party," she explained.

Bob poured the cocktails with ceremony and the cheese canapes looked smart and professional. "Renewed assurances, girl friends!" he said, lifting his glass. "And am I going to miss you?"

"You could come to New York," said Rachel.

"So you mentioned. You know, Mrs. Vincent, I've been doing my best to persuade Rachel to marry me and stay here this winter instead of leading the wild life in the great and wicked city. She won't listen to me. I wish you'd use your influence with her."

"Mother wouldn't want you for a son-in-law," declared Rachel. "Look at her struggle between her truthful feelings and her kind heart."

"That's a shameful lie. Your mother has known me a long time and thinks I'm marvelous. Don't you, Mrs. Vincent?"

"In no sane ways you're certainly marvelous," Anne agreed.

sharply with herself to get away from self-pity, to accept, as she had always accepted, the hard limiting things that happened to her, and go on calmly. Both she and Rachel were up too early and were restless with this extra time and nothing to do. Bob was to come for their baggage and take it to the station and they would talk. The bare house got on Anne's nerves. "Let's take our coffee out on the terrace and watch the sea," she said, "it's a divine day."

Mr. Kreel appeared as soon as they did, anxious and eager. "You haven't changed your intention about the radio, have you?" he asked.

Rachel gave him the house key for answer.

"Mis' Vincent, I hate to keep on applying for favors, but could I look through your trash and see if there's any empty cereal or cracker boxes? I could mail the tops in with my letters, in the contests. She—" he nodded toward his own house—"she gets upset if I buy anything special for that puppus."

"You can look through everything and welcome," Anne assured him.

"Listen, Mr. Kreel," added Rachel, "here's an idea. You speak to Bob Eddis, he's going to be here all winter and if there's any special cereal or cracker you want I'm certain he'd buy it and eat it and give you the box."

"That is an idea, Miss Rachel! No waste, no cost, no argument in the house. Is there something I could do for you to help out this morning? No? Well, I wish you both a safe trip and an early return next year, and I'll look after everything here for you. I'll miss you sore."

They shook hands with the gentle little man and he scurried away.

By the time Bob's car rattled up they were both ready, the bags on the terrace, the house locked and the extra key for Ada hung behind the nearest shutter.

Bob's thin face was drawn tight and his eyes were tired, unhappy, but Rachel said nothing about it, nor did Anne, either to him or later as they walked down to the station. The stores were just opening, the housewives had not yet begun to sweep their walks. The streets were empty, cool, waiting yet content.

The early sunshine was white gold through which the long shadows of morning made a frail and shifting pattern. "It's like walking on a stage set," said Rachel. "How people do spoil this town!"

"But you don't want to stay here when most of the people are gone?"

"Not as Mrs. Bob Eddis. Not a chance."

"I hope you'll have a good time with Pink this winter and I do hope you'll find a job you really like, not a mere something to do in the daytime."

"I'll find something," said Rachel. The train was waiting and Bob had piled their baggage just inside the door of the one passenger car. "I've decided to go as far as the Junction with you," he said, and all the way there he talked about nothing with defiant cheerfulness annoying to Rachel, pathetic to Anne, but both were glad when they left him and settled into the express train's swift impersonal comfort. "If there's anything I hate it's being sent off," said Rachel crossly. "Come on, let's dash into the diner and get some food."

Uncle Jim Says

"Field seeds of unknown origin are not dependable. Use seeds of known hardness."

Texas farmers will do well to buy, whenever possible, seeds bearing the familiar state certified or state registered tag. The tag means that state representatives have visited the seed producer's plant, that they certify to the purity of the variety. The producer must fulfill strict requirements to insure the purity of the strain.

Texas now certifies several varieties of cotton, corn, grain sorghums, wheat, oats, and Irish potatoes. The plan used by many farmers is to buy enough certified seed to plant their entire acreage with the increase. When reasonable precautions are observed to prevent cross-pollination and mixing, such a plan is usually worth while, and the only expense is the annual purchase of a small amount of seed.

The state certified tag means that the seed is true to variety and free from noxious weed seed. It should not be accepted as a recommendation of the variety represented. Farmers should plant only varieties of field seed known to be adapted to their section.

This is especially true of legumes, which are particular as to their soil and climatic requirements. County agricultural agents can recommend soil building crops which will yield the utmost return in soil improvement.

LOCAL H. D. C. MEETS

"If you have too tall windows tie them back with a valance, which will give a broadening effect. If windows are too broad let curtains drape plain and straight. Use some of the same methods as dressing the figure." Miss Alice Glenn Young, county home demonstration agent explained to members of the local Home Demonstration Club last Friday in the club room.

Miss Young also stressed the fact that window curtains should always be of simple washable materials made plenty long and full and hung just across the roll of the shade.

Each member was asked to send her recipes for the cook book to Mrs. John Williams by the next meeting, July 2. Each member is urged to send at least three recipes, one meat or meat substitute, one vegetable or salad and a dessert. Recipes are to be signed with the members name and name of the club.

J. H. Nance of Coleman Dies in Dallas Hospital

Funeral services for James Howard Nance, 73, Coleman business man, were held Monday from the residence, Rev. D. K. Porter, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and Rev. O. L. Savage, pastor of the First Baptist Church officiated.

Mr. Nance is well known in Santa Anna and surrounding communities since he has been in the leather and harness business since 1900 and has served many customers from this territory. He has been active in his business until a few weeks ago, when he became ill. He died at a Dallas Hospital Sunday.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Ethel Nance; a son, Bennett; a stepdaughter, Mrs. Frank Harbour of Coleman; a brother, Henry of Brownwood; and a sister, Mrs. Susan Hindman of Houston.

Funeral services were held at the Coleman Cemetery, Horne Hardware Funeral Home was in charge.

The world is full of anxiety, most of which is revealed in the five little words: "What will the neighbors say?" Automobile heating system invented for backseat drivers. Well, somebody ought to put the heat on 'em.

Dairy Industry in Texas Gains in Production

April Reports Show Good Record for All Dairy Products

Austin, Texas, June 30 — The dairy industry in Texas during April made a highly satisfactory record, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Creamery butter production was nearly 50 per cent above that of the preceding month and 8.5 per cent greater than during April last year, Dr. Buechel said. Ice cream production was up 58.8 per cent and 3.1 per cent respectively, and cheese production 12.9 per cent and 51.9 per cent respectively.

"There are two important reasons why the development of the dairy industry of Texas is of general interest to the people of this State," Dr. Buechel pointed out. "First, because milk and milk products are ranked high by all leading dietitians as an economical source of the vitamins and energy which make for human health and efficiency. Second, expansion of this industry can be made to contribute substantially to a rational readjustment of agriculture in a number of areas in the State."

"Such limited studies as have been made in Texas indicate clearly that in the case of a large percentage of the population, per capita consumption of milk and milk products in Texas is far below the minimum standard recommended by dietitians. Further studies should be made in representative localities over the entire State in order that the actual situation may be more definitely known. If, as a result of such comprehensive studies, present indications of the inadequacy of milk and milk products in the diet are verified, consideration might well be given to meeting the problem by an appropriate educational program. The conduct of such a program would involve the schools, the farmers, the distributors of milk, and the manufacturers of milk products."

Santa Anna Lake Project Approved By President

Work Likely Be Delayed Until Fall

President Franklin D. Roosevelt has given his approval to the construction of a 600-acre-foot lake near Santa Anna by the Works Progress Administration and the Central Colorado River Authority, according to E. L. Andrews, area engineer for WPA.

However, it will be impossible to begin the work until early next fall because of a shortage of laborers in this county. Many workmen are now engaged in the county's grain fields.

Word that the project has been approved is good news to the people of Santa Anna, farmers and ranchmen in the Santa Anna area and to officials of the CCRRA.

The lake would have a dam more than 900 feet long, would supply Santa Anna and the Santa Anna area with a permanent water supply. It would be located on Mud Creek, about four miles north of Santa Anna, and would cost approximately $42,000.

Softball Game Played Wednesday

Sheffield and Baker were umpires.

"INVENT-A-WORD-FOR-HOUSEWIFE CONTEST"

A growing "suspicion" that West Texas women resent being called "housewives" prompts a radio contest to find a new name for the home-maker, W. R. Mulroy, local manager for the West Texas Utilities Company, announced yesterday.

Prizes valued at approximately $500 will be awarded in the contest, he said. The grand prize will be a large sized electric refrigerator (Frigidaire).

The contest will begin July 5, lasting six weeks. It will be conducted over Radio Stations KGKL, San Angelo, and KRBC, Abilene, and will be supplemented by newspaper advertising in their broadcasting radius. Details of the contest, W. R. Mulroy said, will be given on the company's woman's news programs over the two stations Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock in Abilene and 9:30 o'clock in San Angelo.

Women will be invited to invent a substitute name for "housewife" and explain why they prefer that particular name in a 100-word letter. It was learned. Second prize will be choice of electric dishwasher or washing machine, and third prize will be a food mixer. The next 10 best names will each win their author a small electric appliance.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION AND THANKS

I have a list of names of friends that have shown their kindness and love during the dark hours of sadness, from the loss of our dear husband and father, Douglas Rhoads.

As it is impossible to see or write each one personally, I am taking this method of thanking you all.

We appreciate every kind word that has been spoken and thank each for the offerings we have received.

There are no words to express our thanks and appreciation. May God bless all of you.

Mrs. J. D. Rhodes and children.

Blessed is he that expects nothing, for he shall not be disappointed.

Brady Jubilee Plans Big 4th

Annual Festivities Scheduled for Twelfth Year on July 5-6-7

BRADY, June 28.—After two successful one-day advertising trips over Central West Texas, and the polishing up of beautiful Richards Park, officials of the 12th Annual July Jubilee and Race Meet are ready to pronounce the celebration ready to open on July 5th, and to continue through July 7th. The affair will be officially opened, however, Saturday night, July 3rd when the Queen's coronation ceremony will be held at Richards Park, in one of the highlights to the Jubilee.

Upwards of 50,000 persons attended the festival in 1936, and with people in fine spirits following good grain crop, and the ranchmen never in a happier frame of mind, Chairman G. C. Kirk has expressed the opinion that the 1937 Jubilee will top them all. "We heard lots of favorable comment on our booster trips, and it looks like everybody within a radius of a hundred miles will attend at least one of the three days," Kirk declared.

Brady has never heard anything but favorable comment on its celebration, inasmuch as thousands of men, women and children flock here on each occasion of this nature enjoying the festival without having to spend a cent. The entrance to the picnic grounds is free to all, and there are any number of entertainment features provided gratis by local committees.

Horse races, and rodeo events each afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, will provide the main attraction of the Brady July Jubilee, and officials have been promised a fast field of horses. Other race meets in West Texas will close on July 3rd, enabling all horses to come here for the meet. Purses totaling $2,435 will be awarded the race winners each day, with the rodeo purses aggregating approximately $800. The rodeo events will be held between the races each afternoon.

That the races will be run off in an efficient manner this year is assured, with C. H. McMillan, veteran starter, having been engaged. He will bring his 12-stall starting gate. John H. Mays of Floresville, will serve as presiding judge; H. H. Sessions will act as superintendent of racing and H. A. Wulff will serve as secretary.

FORMER RESIDENT WEDS

Miss Edith Lowe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lowe of Brownwood and former residents of this city, became the bride of George H. Herman of Brownwood at the home of the bride's parents Sunday.

Dr. S. E. Chandler officiated. The couple will make their home in Brownwood following an extended trip through the East and Canada.
