Willis-Ferguson

Miss Ruby Willis and Mr. Elton Ferguson were married in Coleman Saturday night. We have been unable to get a report of the event, therefore, we are at loss to make the mention usually given. Here's wishing this splendid couple much joy and happiness and may their future be crowned with success.

Rollins-Ford

Miss Kathryn Rollins and Mr. Seth Ford were united in marriage last Saturday evening, the ceremony being performed in the U. S. A. Presbyterian Church with the pastor, Rev. M. L. Womack, officiating. The bride is the charming and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins, and the groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ford. They are a splendid young couple, and we wish for them much success and happiness throughout the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Daniels visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Daniels in Zephyr Sunday.

Third Annual Arkansawyers' Reunion May 27

Date for the third annual Arkansawyers Reunion, which is held at Oak Creek, in Runnels county, has been definitely set. The date is the fourth Sunday in May, which is May 27.

Dr. J. D. Sandefer, Abilene, president of Simmons University is president, and Rev. D. M. West, Bronke, editor of The Bronke Enterprise, is secretary of the organization of Arkansawyers that promotes the Arkansawyers reunion.

Two very successful reunions of the Arkansawyers have been held. The attendance at the reunion last year, which was held the last Sunday in May was far beyond all expectations of those directing the meeting—more than 5000 people attended. They were present for hundreds of miles in every direction over West Texas. Native born Arkansawyers, those who once resided in Arkansas, whether or not they were born there, and those who are descendants of either of the above, are eligible to membership. Then, "Everybody who is a friend to the 'Arkansawyers'" is included. Hence it is one of the most unique gatherings ever assembled. The section of country throughout the Bronke, San Angelo, Ballinger, Winters, Abilene, Sweetwater, Coleman territory has an immense number of native born sons and daughters of Arkansawyers. And they and their descendants make an army.

At a meeting of the Corn and Hog Growers held in Coleman Saturday, W. Ford Barnes and Howard Kingsbery were elected to places on the district and county committees. Mr. Barnes and Mr. Kingsbery are both capable men and we believe they will render a trustworthy service on the committee.

The Birth of The Lone Star State

The above is the title of the History of the Texas Revolution, written by George W. Winningham of Mexia, Texas. Mr. Winningham has written this poem in five parts, setting up some very important points of Texas history. A copy of the poems is in our possession, and may be published in a series at some future date.

Mr. Winningham composed a number of poems that were published in the Santa Anna News about twenty years ago, which will be remembered by many Santa Anna people. His theme is intended to arouse sentiment favorable to the Texas Centennial Exposition, to be held in Texas during the year of 1936.

Public sentiment is dragging in the Centennial movement. Unless the public is more favorably aroused in the interest of the Texas Centennial, it will not succeed. A few patriotic Texans are devoting considerable time to the Centennial movement, but have not succeeded in creating much sentiment in favor of the great cause, which every Texan, whether a native or adopted child, should take an interest and a part.

Hunter Bros. Remodel Store

The Hunter Bros. grocery and market has been remodeled and greatly improved recently, and is now one of the most attractive food stores in this part of Texas.

The partition between the grocery and former barber shop has been removed, the entrance doors centralized, newly painted, and in every way made a much nicer looking store. It is also a much more convenient place to trade than it was before being remodeled.

LUKE TRAMMELL RE-CAPTURED AFTER FOUR DAYS DODGING THE LAW

Luke Trammell, one of the gang who terrorized people in Coleman and adjoining counties for several weeks early last summer, and was arrested near Coleman at the time his younger brother, Starkweather Trammell was shot down at his side, was re-arrested in the southern part of the county last Sunday morning.

Trammell has stood trial in several counties since he was tried in Coleman and has about 150 years now hanging over him for murder, robbery and theft.

Trammell was being held in the jail at Guthrie, in King County, Oklahoma, where he was on trial for a crime committed in that county. Having worked an iron bar out of the cell in which he was confined, Trammell waited his chance, struck the jailer on the head with the bar and made good his escape. He escaped Tuesday night of last week and arrived in Coleman county Friday night or Saturday morning in an automobile stolen Friday night in Dublin, Texas. His whereabouts Saturday and Sunday night were not very much in question by Sheriff Frank Mills, who is exceedingly good in trailing criminals. Sunday morning Sheriff Mills and Deputy H. T. O'Bar, a deputy sheriff from Stephenville, and Constable Mace Blanton, drove to a farm house south of Fisk and west of Gouldbusk, in the southern part of the county, where Trammell was arrested with but little resistance.

When Trammell saw the car approaching he ran in a stooped position to a place of safety and took refuge behind a barn. The officers' spied him, and drove the car close to the place before stopping. When the car approached, Trammell threw his gun in a bunch of prickly pears reached for the sky, and begged the officers not to shoot. He was taken to Stephenville immediately for questioning about the stolen car.

Luke Trammell was reared in Coleman county, and it seems that when he commits a crime elsewhere, as soon as he can, he makes a break for his home county.

Trustee Election Saturday

The patrons of the Santa Anna Independent School district will elect three trustees Saturday, April 7th, to serve the incoming term.

The following names will be printed on the ticket, and the three receiving the greatest number of votes will be the ones to serve.

J. Frank Turner, W. H. Ragsdale, C. G. Hensley, and I. Shield.

Select from the list the three that will, in your judgment, render the best service for the best interest of the school.

No person is allowed to vote who has not paid his poll tax, and no one is eligible to serve who failed to pay his poll tax prior to February.

Buster Dodgin has purchased the lease and stock carried in the Texaco Service Station in east Santa Anna, and is now in charge of same. Buster says he will carry a small stock of candy cakes, pies, bread, tobacco and cold drinks in connection with his service station, and will also purchase eggs at the top prices. See his announcement in this issue of the News.

I. Williamson of the Corner Drug company, and R. H. Hollingsworth of Coleman, spent the week-end attending the famous races at Arlington Downs.

Commissioner Carl Lohn of Gouldbusk was a Santa Anna visitor Monday afternoon.

The Function of a Bank

We believe if the public kept in mind the true function of a bank it would make far better understanding and banks would be more esteemed by the communities which they serve. The officers who work in a bank work for its stockholders and they do not own the money which they handle and which they loan.

As we understand it the function of a bank is to gather up the resources of the community in which it exists and, as far as they can safely do so, loan these funds to the customers of the bank. These loans must be so made that they are liquid because the bank is pledged to return the deposits on demand and if its loans are bad or frozen then it can not be in a position to pay the depositors when they want or need their funds.

It is the duty of every person who borrows from a bank to not only pay his note, but to, for at least a part of the time, have funds on deposit in the bank that can be loaned to other customers. In other words a good bank is a mutual proposition, its customers combining their resources to accommodate each other and thus it follows that no one who is not a depositor of the bank should expect a loan from the bank.

A thoroughly known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments. Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Add. 6742 N. ROCKWELL ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

For 15 years assistant to Dr. Seeley, famous rupture expert of Chicago.

SIT AND THINK

Well, we consider the Trades Day Tuesday a fair success. The rodeo program was an improvement over the previous occasions and the other attractions were worthwhile.

No one got rich, neither was anyone hurt for what he invested in the advertising and other expenses incidental to carrying on the program.

It is generally conceded that the day was a success, and even exceeds what some expected it to be. We believe the day can be made a bigger and better day by changing the advertising to include at least one good special for the day, from each merchant, coupled with your general invitation to the public to attend. Some customers may not purchase anything except your specials, but many will buy other goods while in your store or place of business.

Anyway the day was considered a success and will be repeated each first Tuesday throughout the year, according to the subscribers and the several committees.

Don't try to be the whole parade.

Good ancestors are no excuse for being sorry.

No one has a right to refuse to work.

No one wants to hear you brag on yourself.

SPANISH II CLASS FINISHES TEXT BOOK

The Advanced Spanish II Class finished the text book last week and has been reviewing since that time for examinations. The class has had many interesting lessons, which were made even more interesting by the admirable sponsor, Miss Land.

The six-weeks examination was taken on Monday, April 2, and final examinations will be taken at the regular examination period.

The last six weeks will be spent in reading a Spanish daily newspaper, "La Prensa," and more interesting days of reading and studying are expected.

ALUMNI VISIT SCHOOL

Edwin Niell and Clifford Wheeler visited school Friday afternoon. They helped keep the sixth study hall.

Any alumni who wish to visit their old classes will be welcomed back again.

Robert Dempsey visited classes Wednesday afternoon.

HOME MAKING III GIRLS FINISH DRESSES

Miss Hays, instructor of Home Making, discussed interesting ideas when she returned from institute. One feature especially was the changing of the name from Home Economics to Home Making. The course consists of broader subjects therefore a broader name was needed.

The Home Making III girls finished their last garment, which was a special occasion dress, last week. Some very attractive dresses are the result of the fine workmanship of these girls. They are equally proud of their skill, being efficient in this line.

Home Making is so helpful and interesting the girls feel reluctant about this being their last year.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Xoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments. Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired. Add. 8742 N. ROCKWELL ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

For 15 years assistant to F. H. Sealey, famous rupture expert of Chicago.

SIT AND THINK

Well, we consider the Trades Day Tuesday a fair success. The rodeo program was an improvement over the previous occasions and the other attractions were worthwhile.

No one out rich, neither was anyone hurt for what he invested in the advertising and other expenses incidental to carrying on the program.

It is generally conceded that the day was a success, and even exceeds what some expected it to be. We believe the day can be made a bigger and better day by changing the advertising to include at least one good special for the day, from each merchant, coupled with your general invitation to the public to attend.

Some customers may not purchase anything except your specials, but many will buy other goods while in your store or place of business.

Anyway the day was considered a success and will be repeated each first Tuesday through out the year, according to the subscribers and the several committees.

Don't try to be the whole parade.

Good ancestors are no excuse for being sorry.

No one has a right to refuse to work.

No one wants to hear you brag on yourself.

EXAMINATIONS START

Slam Bam! Goes the lockers. Examinations start this week. All students are trying to get note books in on time and to see that all back work is in.

SPANISH II CLASS FINISHES TEXT BOOK

The Advanced Spanish II Class finished the text book last week and has been reviewing since that time for examinations. The class has had many interesting lessons, which were made even more interesting by the admirable sponsor, Miss Land.

The six-weeks examination was taken on Monday, April 2, and final examinations will be taken at the regular examination period.

The last six weeks will be spent in reading a Spanish daily newspaper, "La Prensa," and more interesting days of reading and studying are expected.

ALUMNI VISIT SCHOOL

Edwin Niell and Clifford Wheeler visited school Friday afternoon. They helped keep the six-study hall.

Any alumni who wish to visit their old classes will be welcomed back again.

Robert Dempsey visited classes Wednesday afternoon.

FRESHMAN NEWS

The Freshmen made fifteen dollars by serving the Lions Club last month. This is only a start toward acquiring funds for our various class activities in the future, such as the Junior-Senior banquet.

The Santa Anna Freshmen High School team of Girls Baseball went to Coleman Saturday, March 21, 1934. Our team played Novice High School and won, with the scores 17-15.

In the game played by High School boys last Saturday our team also won. The scores were 18-13.

Who's Who in the Junior Class?

This student has often been cited as proof for the statement that "Good things are done up in little packages." He is the smallest boy in the class, but that fact does not prove his brain minute. A peep at his grades could do no other than convince one of his ability as a scholar, for he always gains the honor roll. Besides this, he has been football manager, sports editor of The Mountaineer, and treasurer of the class this year. Who is he?

HOME MAKING III GIRLS FINISH DRESSES

Miss Hays, instructor of Home Making, discussed interesting ideas when she returned from institute. One feature especially was the changing of the name from Home Economics to Home Making. The course consists of broader subjects therefore a broader name was needed.

The Home Making III girls finished their last garment, which was a special occasion dress, last week. Some very attractive dresses are the result of the fine workmanship of these girls. They are equally proud of their skill, being efficient in this line.

Home Making is so helpful and interesting the girls feel reluctant about this being their last year.

LITTLE DAVE

In Line

By Gus Jud

GUS JUD

Homesteader and Ex-Buffero Hunter

By O. C. HARRISON
Seymour, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)
R. J. C. Crabb, 90 years old, who now resides in the Round Timber community of Baylor county, Texas, tells in his own words the following story of homesteading on 160 of State land in Texas in 1872:

"In the fall of 1872 my wife and I drove through from Parker county in an ox-drawn wagon and located in the southeastern part of Baylor county. The surveyor, a Mr. Ham, came out from Jacksboro and surveyed the 160 acres of State land for our homestead, where I built a house of cottonwood logs, covered it with poles and then covered the poles with dirt. It was six months after locating in this home before my wife saw another woman. My nearest neighbor lived 12 miles from me. To fence my crop I set posts in the ground and tied poles from one post to the other; then hung buffalo hides on the poles, tying these on with thongs cut from the green buffalo hides.

"When there were moonlight nights, the Indians would make raids. No one could keep horses of any kind very long, because the Indians would steal and drive them off.

Killing Buffalo for the Hides

"I had five yoke of oxen and a big wagon, so decided I would kill buffaloes for their hides. At one time I killed 300 buffaloes, loading my wagon with 500 pounds of the meat and the 300 buffalo hides, which I hauled to Dallas and sold the hides for $2.00 each and the meat for 10c per pound. I brought back a load of lumber from Dallas, the first to be hauled into Baylor county. This trip took one month. The gun I killed the buffalo with was a regular buffalo rifle, weighing 14½ pounds. For this gun I molded my own bullets. I had another gun in my wagon, with 100 cartridges, that I never used excepting to shoot Indians, which was not often. I always let Indians alone if they let me alone. I killed 9 buffalo late one evening about 7 or 8 miles north of where Seymour now stands. Next morning, when I started out to skin my buffaloes, there were 18 Indians there among my buffaloes cutting out meat for their own use. I just waited a while until the Indians went off toward the west, then skinned the 9 buffaloes.

Nearest Store Miles Away

"There were no stores where you could buy groceries nearer than Fort Belknap and Graham. After I had been here about a year the Texas rangers were stationed about one mile from my home. I had raised a good crop of watermelons and sold two wagon loads of melons to squaw they had captured. They built a pen of logs and covered it with logs and dirt to keep the squaw from getting away.

"For Christmas dinner, in the winter of 1873, we had quite a variety of meat—bear, buffalo, antelope, deer, pork and turkey. Two men living three miles southeast of me, on the Brazos river, (Mr. Karnes and Mr. Foster) came to our house for dinner Christmas day. Up to this time there were few cattle in this part of Texas, but men, seeing the advantage of an open range, soon came with great herds of cattle to eat out the free grass. The Indians had been troublesome, but were kept quiet by rangers stationed along the border. I owned a dog which knew when Indians were near and always barked and looked in the direction that Indians would be coming.

Dog Could Scent Indians

"One morning while I was fixing fence, half mile from home, this dog came running to me barking and looking toward the East. I turned in the direction he was barking and saw fifteen Indians riding in a gallop. I brought out old Betsy, where she'd be handy in case the rangers, getting some ready money with which to buy groceries. The rangers stayed in camp there about four months, but broke camp and were gone some three or four months; then came back, bringing with them an Indian

Limpia Canyon, the Scenic Wonder of Texas

By AUSTIN CALLAN
Calvert, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)
LIMPIA CANYON, which winds through Davis mountains of Southwest Texas, in Jeff Davis county, is a marvel of scenic grandeur. Texans who live on level prairies or in heavily timbered sections of our State, and who have never seen this canyon, can hardly visualize its tortuous, craggy passages and high perpendicular walls that rise to almost 1,000 feet.

I have just completed an automobile trip through Limpia Canyon by way of San Antonio over the Old Spanish Trail to Del Rio, Alpine, and on to Fort Davis. This southern route is a good hard surfaced and gravelled highway, as is also the northern route from Dallas west to Fort Worth, Pecos, Toyahvale, Balmorhea and Fort Davis.

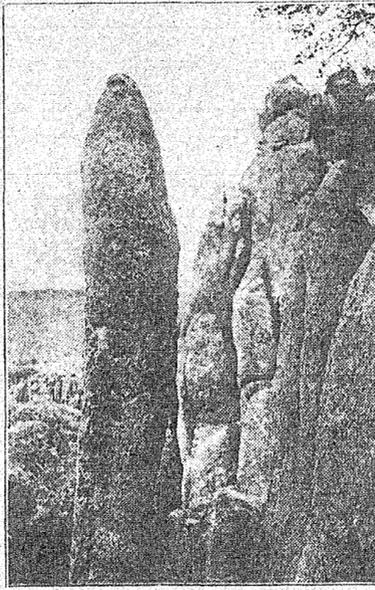

The source of Limpia Canyon is near Toyahvale. South and west from there you enter a broad defile of the canyon which gradually closes about you like great folding doors. Journeying on the pathway narrows until you are hedged in on either side by solid rock columns rising perpendicular from the bed of the canyon to impressive heights.

Deep and Shadowy Gorges

The character of scenery continually

changes. Sometimes little coves stretch out across the highway dotted here and there with pine and cedar trees. Swinging around sharp curves, one is suddenly confronted with picturesque peaks and deep and shadowy gorges running down between naked slopes. Here again the canyon narrows to a path where high stone sentinels of a peculiar formation stand guard. Further on one is imprisoned by lofty walls of many shapes, sizes and colors, while below a clear sparkling stream ripples over gravelly beds. Now and then is passed a "box canyon," opening to right or left with strange carvings on the walls, mystic symbols of a bygone race that once inhabited this mountainous region. Stone altars stand here and there and natural benches of granite, where visitors can sit down and restfully contemplate the surrounding vistas.

Westward up the canyon is an opening which leads out to a rolling terrane with rich grazing lands and tall mountains rising abruptly from the plain. It is here that historic Fort Davis nestles beneath a background of high and stately columns. This formation has the appearance of a massive pipe organ built into the eternal hills.

"High stone sentinels of peculiar formation stand guard."

Established by Jefferson Davis Fort Davis was one of the old military posts established while Jefferson Davis was Secretary of State, to give protection to the Texas frontier. In the early days caravans of camel rested in the shade of these cliffs and soldiers, who immortalized themselves on battlefields, were barracked in the fort.

Pausing amid the ruins of old Fort Davis long enough to view "Officers Row," the deserted barracks and parade ground where swords of Merritt and Lawton once flashed in the sunlight, we followed a scenic driveway to the mountain top which boys in the Conservation Camp have built and which is nearly four miles long. This scenic driveway admits automobiles safely. At the crest of the mountain are shady nooks wherein tables of stone, ovens and pits for baking bread, cooking meals, and other conveniences are provided for tourists who care to climb by foot or in autos. A view of the surrounding country from this height is sublimely beautiful.

"Old Blue" 7,500 Feet High

Above the walls of Limpia Canyon westward may be seen "Old Blue," the highest mountain peak of that section, having an altitude of 7,500 feet above sea level. Other high peaks are "Sawtooth" and "Baldy."

The terminus of Limpia Canyon broadens into small fertile valleys with smooth, sweeping slopes that extend gracefully from the roadside to wooded heights miles away. Pine and juniper trees grow on these slopes, covered with gramma grass, that afford excellent grazing for cattle and sheep. Further down the canyon in the valleys are many comfortable ranch homes.

Wild life is still abundant in these mountains. We saw a herd of black-tail deer running up a hillside, and it is not unusual to see a black bear emerge from some sheltered retreat.

Near Limpia Canyon is Mount Locke, the highest point in Texas, I believe, to which an automobile may be driven. The University of Texas is erecting an observatory on Mount Locke, known as the McDonald Observatory. This will be one of the major observatories in the United States, where astronomers can specialize in photographic plates of the heavens in order to better study suns and planets.

South of the Davis mountains are the Chisos mountains that extend down to the Rio Grande. Some day I am going to visit the Chisos range, which is said to be more rugged and far grander than the Davis mountains.

How Presidents Exercised Powers of Veto

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)
PRESIDENT Roosevelt's first veto since inauguration was the independent offices appropriation bill, with its increased pay allowances for veterans and Government workers. The power of veto, the most formidable of a President's prerogatives, was never exercised in the case of eight of our Chief Executives, but the average to a Congress has risen from 1.1 vetoes before the Civil War to 8.9 since then. There have been about 650, not counting pocket vetoes, and less than fifty have been overridden.

Outstanding among the negatives of the element of constitutionality and the assertion of the principle of discretion, are the two by Washington. One obstructed measure would have increased representation of certain States beyond the fixed limits; the other he objected to as hastily drawn and self-contradictory.

Two of Madison's six vetoes resisted infraction of the fundamental "that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion."

Initiated the Pocket Veto

Jackson initiated the pocket veto. By not acting within ten days of the adjournment of Congress he let die a bill to distribute among States moneys received from sales of public lands. He, too, emphasized the right to interpose his judgment on the policy of an enactment, saying that the oath of office implied support of the Constitution as each officer understands it, "not as it is understood by others." His historic veto was against rechartering the Bank of the United States. Two later bills for rechartering a central bank drew negatives from Tyler.

Lincoln said he held the Jeffersonian view of the veto—that it was to be used only in cases of violation of the Constitution or because of manifest haste and want of consideration by Congress. He vetoed one bill because its content already had been covered in another, and another because it was to correct an error in legislation, yet left more errors uncorrected. He used the pocket veto to kill a bill that would have excluded from the franchise about all the whites in States that had been in rebellion.

Between Johnson and Congress friction developed, and twenty-one measures, mostly on reconstruction procedures, were vetoed. Fifteen were re-passed.

Grant's 43 Vetoes

Of Grant's forty-three vetoes, the most interesting was that of a bill to increase legal tender and national bank notes. Grant argued that it would expand paper circulation by $100,000,000 and lead to greater inflation.

Bland's silver coinage measure was passed over the Hayes veto. Cleveland set himself against a flood of pension bills that did not exclude army deserters and ex-soldiers never injured in war. These individual enactments gave him highest score for vetoes—344 if his two terms.

Conservation of natural resources for the public was Theodore Roosevelt's heartiest concern. His significant vetoes operated against a private power plant at Muscle Shoals and similar projects on various rivers. Taft vetoed an appropriation bill that contained a rider exempting labor unions and farm organizations from prosecution under the anti-trust law. It was re-passed, and so was the vetoed bill guarding dry States against wet State liquor shipments.

Like Cleveland and Taft, Wilson disapproved the literacy test, but it eventually became law without Presidential approval. Wilson vetoed agricultural tariff increases, holding they would delay trade restoration and interfere with foreign debt-paying. He withheld signature from an extension of time for stopping interlocking rail directorates. Over his veto, Congress re-passed the National Prohibition Act, which endured till the next Democratic President came in.

"Unwarranted expenditure" was the occasion of many Coolidge vetoes. Mr. Coolidge opposed additional benefits for victims of Indian, Mexican and Civil Wars, and his veto of the bonus bill was notable. He also disapproved the Federal Farm Board Bill to aid disposal of farm surpluses.

A Unique Sunday School Class at Midland

By VAN BLARCOM
Seventh and Taylor, Fort Worth, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)
SCHARBAUER Men's Sunday school class of Midland, Texas, is one of the most unusual Sunday school organizations in the country. It is made up of a rough and ready lot of West Texans who call themselves the "Hairy Chested Gents." Men who ride the range, having never attended Sunday school or church before, belong to the class and are active in promoting its welfare.

Attendance ranges from 80 to 100 men each Sunday. The class had an attendance of 521 one Sunday in a contest with a men's class from Abilene. Midland won the contest.

The class is non-denominational, but church attendance is continually urged by all of its members. The class was organized four years ago from men's group classes of other denominations. Acting on the biblical declaration of Christ that "He came to bring sinners not the righteous to repentance," boot-leggers, gamblers and sinners of various types are among those earnestly sought as members of the Sunday school. Jews, Gentiles, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Christians, Church of Christ, Lutherans, Episcopals, infidels and men of other faiths and beliefs compose the class and attend its meetings each Sunday.

No Formality

Simplicity as to dress is the rule. Men attend the class attired in boots, spurs, shirt sleeves, overalls, or any other way they choose. The class meets in the beautiful crystal ball room of Hotel Scharbauer, Midland, furnished without cost by Clarence Scharbauer, millionaire cattleman.

Some cowboys come from a great distance to class meetings. E. B. Dickenson, prominent rancher of Martin county, now makes a round trip of 86 miles every Sunday to attend the class. Several men who hadn't been in Sunday school for a quarter of a century regularly attend and solicit others to attend. M. W. Whitmire, holds the attendance record, having missed but one class meeting in nearly four years. Several men over 70 are regular attendants.

Three Annual Barbecues

Three barbecues are given the class annually by T. O. Midkiff, E. B. Dickenson and Clarence Scharbauer. Though cowboys and wealthy cattlemen are among the most faithful members, yet men in all walks of life, merchants, ditch diggers and professional men are members. Contributions are voluntary. No member need contribute a dime if he is not able to do so. Unemployed men are especially welcome.

Harry L. Haight, the president, is office manager for the Scharbauer Cattle Company. Paul T. Vickers, lecturer for the class since it was organized four years ago, is secretary of the Midland Chamber of Commerce. Vickers recently delivered a lecture on "The Last Round-Up," which he was requested to repeat in a church pulpit of Midland two weeks later.

Officers of the Sunday school admit it is composed of a rough and ready bunch, but rejoice in the fact that wives of some of the men testify the class has saved their husbands from lives of drunkenness and brought them back to a consciousness of moral duty to home and to church.

TELL AMUSING EXPERIENCES

There are nine sets of twins enrolled in the Reagan high school at Houston. They recently held a round-table discussion of their most amusing experiences.

One boy, who stars with his twin brother on the school football team, told how he thought he saw his brother in a restaurant. He walked inside. His brother was gone. It was his own reflection in a mirror. Another set are on opposing baseball teams. One was running bases while his brother played second. The pitcher, unable to tell which twin was on his own team, threw the ball to the wrong twin. He refused to catch it and ran on in home for a score.

A pair of girls said they doubled-dated for a time with twin boys, but had to give up. They attracted too much attention. Another pair, who became sick together, related how one of them was forced to take medicine for both.

LABOR HEAD GIVEN PECANS

John L. Green, president of the Federation of Labor, is enjoying a box of the finest paper shell pecans grown in Texas. And they are the first he had ever eaten. They were sent Mr. Green by Maury Maverick, a Bexar county official. Mr. Maverick, while in Washington not long since, met Mr. Green, who he told him he had never heard of pecans. So, upon his return home, the Bexar official sent the labor leader a box of the nuts.

CURRENT COMMENT

By HOMER M. PRICE

Marshall, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

Mother's Day

MOTHER'S Day comes as usual this year on the second Sunday in May. The postoffice department proposes to honor the day by issuing a special 3-cent Mother's Day Stamp. This stamp will have a miniature reproduction of Whistler's great picture—"Mother." This picture has been shown in all the world's great art galleries. These stamps will be on sale at all post-offices soon after May 1. It has been only a few years since Mother's Day was first suggested but now it is celebrated all over the land. There will hardly be a church anywhere that will not honor mother. On that day we all should wear a flower in her memory. There is a little couplet that tells us what kind of flower to wear:

For a Mother Living, a flower bright,
For a Mother in Heaven, a flower white.

When the day was first observed the carnation was the flower used, but as the day became universal the supply of carnations was too limited, so any flower can now be appropriately used. And then the carnation was a costly flower, out of the reach of many who revered their mother as much as those who "wear purple and fine linen and live in King's houses." So the humble daisy or the modest violet will be worn with pride over many a heart that beats loyally and lovingly in memory of the wearer's best friend—Mother.

The Texas Centennial

The called session of the Texas Legislature voted $100,000 to form a nucleus for celebration of the 100th anniversary of Texas Independence. The question of where the exhibition will be given is left to the city that will make the highest cash bid for it. It is understood that Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and probably other cities will be bidders. That Texas should celebrate this important event is imperative. No State in the union has so much of the romantic and heroic in its history as the Lone Star State. And then the wonderful opportunity to bring to the attention of the world the greatness of the natural resources of Texas should be embraced. That an exhibition worthy of the occasion would be a financial success there can be little question. The Century of Progress at Chicago last year put that city in first place in the country's program of recovery. Not only did those who financed the proposition come out ahead but every business and industry was stimulated, labor was employed, hotels crowded and every mercantile establishment from a popcorn stand to the great department stores did a flourishing business. I predict the city in Texas that secures this exhibition will be the most prosperous one in the State.

Let the Young Folks Alone

All this scientific talk about the race going to the dogs unless we enforce eugenic laws is the veriest rot. We are told that there should be a scientific mating or the race will degenerate. There will be degeneration when young folks in their mating allow anything to influence their choice except that of love. This may be said to be an old-fashioned word but it is a better one than scientific selection. Just let the young folks alone and they will choose their life partners with greater intelligence than to follow the advice of people who have nothing better to do than to follow some faddists' theory about matters which God has implanted deep in the hearts of every man and woman. I presume that before many years if these faddists have their way the question of whom a young man shall marry will be settled by some board of health and every young girl must present herself to this board to allow the board to select the peculiarly physically adapted person for her husband.

Let the young folks alone. The past generations have been producing some pretty good folks by allowing the parties to the union to make their own selections; anyway, they are going to keep on making their own selections regardless of scientists and faddists.

Most Popular Hymns

The Etude, the leading musical magazine of the United States, has completed the count of the votes of 32,000 people who were asked to name their favorite hymn. Here is the result:

Hymn	Votes
Abide With Me.....	7301
Nearer My God To Thee.....	5490
Lead Kindly Light.....	4161
Rock of Ages.....	3432
Jesus Lover of My Soul.....	2709
Holy, Holy, Holy.....	1444
Just As I Am.....	875
My Faith Looks Up to Thee.....	236
All Hail the Power.....	220

Apparently the feeling of the futility of war had an opposing influence on some hymns. "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War" received few votes, the first receiving 148 votes while the latter was not considered at all.

The White Man's Burden

Just now while the Philippines are expecting their independence it might be of interest to know that we have put into that country $700,000,000 since we took them under our protecting wing. Not a cent of this money will we ever get back. It is a tax the American taxpayers pay for the privilege of playing guardian to a race of people whose gratitude is somewhat in question just now. But Kipling told us a long time ago that playing big brother to the little brown man was somewhat expensive and equally thankless.

Yet at the time we took over the Philippines there was nothing else to do. Spain had despoiled them until she could no longer hope to hold them. If we had not taken them they would have gone to Japan or Germany. It was a burden the God of Nations placed upon us and there was nothing to do but take it up and bear it courageously.

Whether these islands have progressed far enough under our tutelage to assume their place among the nations of the world is doubtful.

What a Price We Paid

Sometimes we are prone to forget what the Great War cost us. It is not only that we spent undreamed of amounts in treasure, it is not only that more than 100,000 young lives were sacrificed, but a loss, a terrible and a continuing one, we find in the lives of those millions of our boys who experienced the horrors on the cruel fronts in far-away France.

This writer had a vision the other day that impressed him very much. He saw standing in line almost a score of young men wearing caps which indicated they had been over seas. These men look, upon an average, ten years older than their real age. These men would resent the idea that they are due any special favors from the American people. Any offer of pity or sympathy would be scorned. And yet, taking the twenty men as a whole, there was something strangely pathetic, indefinable, as I saw them standing by the open grave of a comrade who had been wounded in the battle of St. Mihiel and who had spent 15 years in pain and helplessness. Only God knows what a price we paid!

What They Are Not Good For

A movement of a national character has been started to have children walk to school instead of riding in autos as many now do. It is pointed out that it would be very much to the benefit of the health of the children and at the same time do away with an envy that the children may have whose parents cannot afford a car to take them to school.

The automobile is very useful and necessary but one of its necessary and useful attributes is not hauling a lot of healthy youngsters a few blocks to school.

Some Recompense

There are some recompensing things coming out of the hard times we have had for the last four years. It has enlarged our vision of what we owe to our fellows. It has shown us the superb courage with which those on whom the burden rested heaviest have met the situation. And the women, heaven bless them, how heroically they have acted. They have not whimpered, have not bewailed their condition, but with undaunted courage have stood by their men, helping, working, skimping, making over old clothes, keeping up appearances and wearing faded calico as though it was a queen's robe. Then the depression called on us to sacrifice, and in many a home family ties have drawn closer. Children have been taught that wonderful lesson of yielding to another's need, the lesson that they can't have everything they want, that "there is more in life than meat and to the body than raiment." Probably the greatest benefit has been to the very poor. In times of plenty we had them with us but we did not give them much thought. In our complacency we said, "Be thou fed," but we did naught to see their wants supplied. The hard times that have struck us all brought about a Godlike sympathy to make us share what we have. Then the government in its gigantic relief plans has sought these submerged ones and the result is that they have had more to eat and more to keep them warm than they had when we thought prosperity was riding high. This is shown by the health statistics. The years 1932 and 1933 were the healthiest twenty-four months in half a century. So, old hard times hasn't been entirely a loss.

Discouraging Thrift

For the life of me I can't understand the wisdom of the banks in their recent movement to discourage the small depositors. For many years the banks have done everything possible to encourage the person with a few dollars to start a bank account. In looking over the newspaper files in my own town the other day I saw an advertisement of one of our local banks stating that deposits of one dollar would be welcomed in opening up an account. All the banks only a few years ago were having much to say about thrift and saving. One bank in one of the larger cities had for its slogan: "No account too small or too large." But now in most cities if your deposit is less than $50.00 you are charged 50 cents a month by the bank. And in addition you must pay 3 cents on each check you draw; in some cities you are charged for making a deposit. In justification of these charges the banks claim (and truthfully no doubt) that the bookkeeping expense for these small accounts is more than the deposits are worth. But possibly if these small depositors were encouraged in their efforts to save some of them would become big depositors later. Nearly all businesses have transactions on which they lose money. Yesterday I went to a hardware store to buy two screws of a particular size. It took the clerk sometime to locate the exact kind I wanted, but he was courteous, wrapped them and charged me 2 cents. Of course there was no money in selling me those two screws, but I am thinking of buying a new refrigerator this spring. If that clerk had told me I had to pay him 5 cents for his time in making that screw sale, it might have caused me to go to some other store when I get ready to buy that refrigerator. The banks' rule to make these charges is likely to cause many persons of small means to withdraw deposits from banks with the result that they may be lost, stolen or spent unnecessarily. I just don't believe these arbitrary charges are a good thing for the community and what is not good for the community is not good for the banks.

What is Poetry?

Considerable discussion has appeared in the magazines regarding Joyce Kilmer's poem—"Trees." It all seems to have been started by Miss Helen Rhoda Hoopes. In a magazine article Miss Hoopes hopes she may never see another poem as terrible as "Trees" and is positive the lines infer that all poets are fools. Her tirade has encouraged other heretofore unknown poets to voice their disapproval of the lines:

"Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Miss Hoopes' identity is somewhat obscure though she puts in the claim of having written much better poetry than has Joyce Kilmer, but the lady labors under the handicap that the world doesn't know it. The only claim she has for fame is her attempt to attract notice by criticizing a poem of reverence and beauty and faith in the Divine Creator, which in my humble opinion will outlive Miss Hoopes and all the critics.

The Cherry Tree Story

The celebration of Washington's birthday was probably more generally observed this year than usual. Many incidents in our first President's life were published and I was particularly interested in the cherry tree story. In my youth this little story was repeated over and over again to give us youngsters a lesson in truthfulness. And it was a wholesome lesson but now we are told it was a fanciful fabrication, that instead of inculcating truth the story itself was a lie. I have gone to some trouble to find out if there was any historical backing to the fact that the Father of our country really did use a hatchet on his pa's favorite cherry tree. No history of Washington tells the incident excepting the one written by Parson Weems, an itinerant preacher in the early times of our Republic. The Parson, however, did not have the story in the first edition of his Life of Washington, neither did he use it until the sixth edition was printed. And even then the Parson did not assume responsibility for its truthfulness, but said it was a story told him by an old Virginia lady who lived near the Washingtons when George was a little boy. The Encyclopedia Britannica alludes to it as an "absurd fancy." These iconoclasts would destroy all the sweet little stories surrounding, not only the life of Washington but nearly all of the great and near great. For instance: we are now told that no such person ever lived as William Tell and yet in an amateur exhibition I posed as Tell's young boy upon whose head the apple rested. However, I had another apple concealed under my "weskit" with an arrow piercing its exact center, which I proudly exhibited after the shot was made. I talked with an old Swiss not long since who came to this country when he was a mature man. I told him that the William Tell story was only a myth and that no such man ever lived. I shall never forget his indignation and his reply. "Vat, no Villium Tell? Mein Got, I have seen his grave."

A Startling Statement

The superintendent of the Texas penitentiary in a recent statement says that 30 per cent of those received in that institution during 1933 were what are known as repeaters; that is, they had served previous terms. It is quite likely this percentage would apply to all of the States of the Southwest. In fact, in 1932 Arkansas reports that 43 per cent of all the prisoners received at the penitentiary had served terms in that and other State penal institutions.

The most startling thing in connection with the 30 per cent repeaters in Texas is that more than four-fifths of them were out on pardons or paroles. And a number of the most vicious criminals now robbing and murdering people all over the Southwest have their liberty because of pardons issued by our Governors. This freedom by the pardon route is not confined to leniency extended by any particular Governor, but for the last decade most of our chief executives rarely let a day pass when they did not turn loose on society men who had been convicted by juries of various crimes, by juries who heard the evidence and juries convened in the same county where the man convicted lived. And what is still more serious is the fact that so many of these men pardoned have been convicted of murder, robbery with firearms, burglary and other crimes of such nature. We all know how hard it is to convict in our courts. We are all familiar with the technical reversals of our higher courts. It certainly looks as if the State, with all advantages favoring the criminal, when finally successful in landing a malefactor in the penitentiary that there should be mighty good reason for again turning him loose on society. The pardoning power in the hands of the Governor is a proper one. Unquestionably there are cases where leniency should be extended, but such cases are really few. The above criticism is not meant to apply to any certain chief executive, for it has become customary, no matter who is Governor, to open wide the gates and set free all classes of criminals. And we are reaping what has been sown. The State is put to a heavy expense to capture and convict those pardoned ones for repeating their crimes. What is worse, many persons have lost lives in robberies committed and many officers of the law have met death at the hands of these pardoned men. Some new way of dispensing pardons should be instituted.

A Dramatic Story of Youthful Adventure

By JOE SAPPINGTON

522 Seidwick Ave., Waco, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

ABOUT the time I started shaving fuzz from my face I decided to leave home and go where genius and ability would be recognized and appreciated.

Wherefore, one morning at the family breakfast table I suddenly announced that I was leaving Cave Creek, never to return. To my surprise, no one objected to my going but mother. Other members of the family seemed to receive the home-leaving announcement with more or less levity and indifference.

"It's going to be a terrible blow to all of us," father said, trying to look sad and serious, "but we must be brave and try to bear up under the calamity that's about to befall us."

"I know what ails him," observed one of my smart brothers, "Tom Jones took his girl from him and he is going to travel to drown his sorrow. I'll bet when he comes back he will have gray water."

You forget that it takes a long time to grow gray whiskers and I predict Joe will be back home in less than a week."

my elder sister gayly remarked, which caused all the family to laugh excepting mother.

This was not the first time I had threatened to leave home, always changing my mind, however, at the last minute. But now I was in deadly earnest.

While my brothers and sisters were still merrily jesting about me leaving home, I strode out to the horse lot with extra clothing under my arm, saddled my pony and left in a fast lope toward the Southwest, where fame and fortune, I hoped, awaited me.

Three Long, Eventful Months

Dear reader, three long, eventful months had passed since that fateful morning when I saddled little paint, kissed mother goodbye and went out into the great unknown world. The sun was just rising over the big oaks in the front yard of the old home as I rode up on a flop-eared, straw-colored mule. My youngest sister spied me first.

"Joe's come back! Joe's come back!" she shouted, which instantly brought mother out to where I was tying my mule. Without asking any questions she threw her arms around me and cried.

"Come right in son, for I know you are tired and hungry; pay no attention to what they may say to you."

Which was so like a mother. Who ever heard of a mother going back on her boy, no matter how many fool stunts he may pull. However, in spite of mother's admonitions to certain members of the family, there was considerable laughter and joking when I sat down to my accustomed place at the breakfast table. One of my younger brothers got so tickled that mother took him by the ear and led him from the table. This had a sobering effect on the rest of the jokers.

Inspect Traveling Outfit

Breakfast over, pa and the kids went outside to look over my traveling outfit—the mule, saddle, etc.

"That's the least mule and the longest toe-fenders I ever saw," father dryly remarked.

"How much boot did you get," inquired the older brother, "between your pony, saddle, that old mule and the pair of toe-fenders?"

"None of your dern business," I replied, with some heat.

"All of you have got to let Joe alone. If you don't, you are going to drive him from home again and the next time he may never come back," said mother, in a voice gentle and reproving.

I had been home but a few hours when everybody in the neighborhood heard about the return of the "prodigal." Some of the more curious wanted to see me in order to ask a lot of foolish questions, but I evaded them by staying alone up in the attic for a whole week.

Eventually I emerged from my hiding one night to attend the Cave Creek Debating Society. Tom Jones, the boy whom my brother said had taken my sweetheart from me, was master of ceremonies. In a voice loud and sarcastic, he said:

"Before starting the debate I suggest that Joe Sappington give us a short talk on his travels abroad and tell us what has become of his mule and that side-saddle with toe-fender attachments."

Resenting an Insult

That was a little more than I could stand, so the words were hardly out of his mouth when I knocked him down, jumped on him and beat his head up and down on the floor until several men pulled me off his prostrate form. While they were holding me back, Mary Tillingsworth, the girl Tom was "sweet on," pushed herself through the crowd, placed her hand on my shoulder and said simply:

"Thank you, Joe, for whipping that contemptible sissy."

For ten years there were echoes and repercussions from that youthful run-away-from-home adventure. But I lived them down. The most embarrassing incident in this connection was about three months after I had married and while working in a store.

Polly Perkins Shows Up

One day a large, fat woman, chewing gum with all her might, rushed up to me and exclaimed:

"Hello, Joe, don't you know me?"

"No, I don't think I do," I said.

"Why, Joe, this is Polly Perkins, an' my pa was a travelin' horse-trader an' you went with us for mo' or less two weeks, an' you an' me set in the back of the wagon while I played the accordion an' you sang 'Mollie Darlin'.' Sometimes, when pa wasn't lookin' we'd hold hands."

"Oh, yes, I remember you now, Polly. Is your father still living? I suppose you are married?"

"Edging up to me a little closer, as though she wanted to be confidential, she said:

"Pa's here today tradin' hosses an' I ain't married yit. Say, Joe, you ain't married air ye?"

"Yes, Polly, I have a wife."

"Is she as purty as you said I was when I played the accordion an' you sung to me as we druv along in pa's wagon leadin' all them thar horses an' mules?"

"My wife's tolerably pretty, Polly, but I'm sorry I'll have to leave. I was about to go when you came in. I'll be gone at least two weeks. Tell your pa howdy for me. Goodbye!"

Whereupon and without further ceremony I bolted out of the back door, remaining away from the store long enough to be sure that Polly and her itinerant, horse-trading father had left Cave Creek for parts unknown.

But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Mat. 10:30.

"I rode up on a flop-eared, straw-colored mule."

BLACK DUCK LAYS WHITE EGGS

Wallace Womack, a Jones county farmer living near Anson, has a black duck that lays pure white eggs. Mr. Womack says he never heard of such a coincidence before.

QUAIL BEING TRANSPLANTED

Sections of Texas that have been depleted of quail are being restocked by the State Game and Fish Commission with the Gambol quail, which is about the size of the Bob White. They are being trapped in Hudspeth county.

MAYOR PAYS FINE IN NICKELS

A Longview policeman "tagged" Mayor Birdsong's car for over parking. His honor, who also is chairman of the city commission, pleaded guilty and paid his $1 fine with 20 nickels, laughing heartily as he laid each coin on the judge's desk.

LONGEST RESIDENTIAL RECORD

When John Taylor Marshall died February 13 at his home south of Temple, it was claimed for him that he had lived on one ranch longer than any other man in Texas. He was born on the ranch 77 years ago and had always resided there. His father, John Marshall, was one of the heroes of the Battle of San Jacinto.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rice of Cuero decided to adopt a baby. Mrs. Rice wrote a Dallas home for foundlings as to proper procedure to adopt an infant. A few days later she found a 17-day old baby boy on her doorstep, left there by an unknown party. There was nothing to indicate from whence came the child.

MAY EXTEND CARLSBAD PARK AREA

Congressman R. E. Thompson of El Paso has introduced in Congress a bill seeking an appropriation of $250,000 with which to purchase 40,000 acres extending into the Texas portion of the scenic Guadalupe mountains, thereby enlarging the Carlsbad (N. M.) Caverns National Park.

MONSTER STEEL TANK FOR TEMPLE

Temple is to have a million-gallon steel water tank that will rise 100 feet from the ground. It will augment Temple's water system. There is only one other tank of similar size in Texas, on Omar Heights at San Antonio. The tank to be erected partly with PWA funds, will cost approximately $65,000.

GARNER'S PORTRAIT IN HOUSE CHAMBER

A striking portrait of Vice-President John Garner now adorns a wall in the House chamber at Annapolis. It is by the brush of Emil Hermann of Wichita Falls who has never seen the executive. He produced the portrait from a photograph. It is said to be an exceptionally good likeness of the Vice-President.

SPELLING BOOK 106 YEARS OLD

A copy of "The American Spelling Book" by Noah Webster, Esq., published 106 years ago by Morgan Saunders Company of Cincinnati is owned by R. L. Perkins who lives 20 miles northeast of Abilene. The book is in good condition, all pages being clearly legible and the binding intact. Mr. Perkins secured the speller from a Louisiana named Joe St. Andre, who found it among possessions of his father.

LEAVES FAMILY OF 22 CHILDREN

When George W. Ivey, 92, died February 24 on his farm near Sumner Mill in eastern Bell county, he left a family of 22 children. The oldest is 70 and the youngest 22. Mr. Ivey was married three times and never lost a child. His last wife also survives him. It is said the Ivey family is a record one for Texas, with so many children, born and all living.

SAN SABA NEWSPAPERS HAVE RECORD

The two newspapers in San Saba are noted for their continuous service under the same management. The Star was founded in 1902 by W. D. Cowan, and is now edited by his son, Joseph Cowan. The News was founded 60 years ago, and the present owner, W. A. Smith, has been editor since 1906. "Along Wallace Street" is the name of the editorial comment column in the Star, and "Son-of-a-Gun" is the editorial column in the News.

MULES AND HORSES COMING BACK

Good horses and mules are in greater demand on Texas farms today than in some years, according to J. E. McDonald, State commissioner of agriculture. More than 400 requests are on file in the department for use of the State's stallions and jacks, purchased under the horse racing law, which appropriates part of the State's revenue from race betting for this purpose.

Most of the farmers have been interested in breeding the heavier type of draft horses, such as Percherons, Belgians and Morgans. There is a big demand for saddle horses and polo ponies. These are mostly for sale purposes. The first animals purchased by the State have been distributed in 20 or more sections of Texas.

A CHAIR MADE OF HORNS

E. I. Bourke, taxidermit of San Saba, has labored three years in making a chair entirely of steer horns. There are 20 evenly matched and highly polished horns in the chair, neatly bolted together. The arms, legs, back and frame of the chair are all horns, with velvet upholstering for the seat.

UNUSUAL COLLECTION OF DEER HORNS

Bert Haynes of Marble Falls has one of the most unusual collections of deer horns in the Southwest. There are 83 sets from deer that Mr. Haynes killed himself. He began the collection when a boy. They range from small heads of just enough points to be legal to a fine head of 34 points.

STARTS ON 54TH CROP

J. C. Meyer, 83, who farms near Waller, is preparing to put in his fifty-fourth crop. For 53 years he has followed the plow, which he says is one of the reasons why he has lived so long and has such good health. He eats whatever he pleases, drinks coffee three times a day, and occasionally takes a glass of beer or wine.

SHE DIDN'T LIKE THE "SYRUP"

A Mexican woman on the San Antonio relief rolls suffered in silence the "syrup" which was issued to her. She didn't like its taste. The more she used it on pancakes and other food the more distasteful it became. Finally she protested to relief workers, producing the almost empty can. An investigation revealed the woman, for five weeks, had been using castor oil for syrup.

LAST CHARTER MEMBER

Col. P. L. Downs, the last surviving charter member of Midlothian lodge, No. 59, Knights of Pythias, at Temple, was tendered a birthday party March 17 by members of the order throughout Central Texas. He attained years ago the highest honor in Texas Pythianism when elected Grand Chancellor, and later served as a representative from Texas to the Supreme Lodge. The Temple lodge was chartered 51 years ago.

BEAUTIFYING U. OF T. CAMPUS

Mrs. C. B. Whitehead of Fort Worth visited many nurseries in Texas to select the more than 20,000 trees, shrubs, rose bushes, plants and vines which she will use in beautifying the University of Texas campus. She will transplant more than 10,100 trees, including broadleaf and coniferous evergreens, almost 3,000 flowering shrubs, 7,000 perennial plants and 455 vines. Mrs. Whitehead hopes to make the campus the most beautiful in the State.

HOUSTON SHIPS MORE RICE THAN CHINA

Houston sends more rice into the markets of the world than does China. Though China is commonly known as a great rice producing country, in reality is an importer, according to a rice company official at Houston. Most of that grain milled in Houston comes from fields in Texas and Louisiana, and is considered of high quality. During 1933 500,000 sacks of rice were exported through Houston.

TEXAS FARM METHODS STUDIED

Methods used by Texas farmers are being studied by Dr. Jan Dakadol, professor of agriculture in the National College of Agriculture of Czechoslovakia, with a view of teaching the methods in that country when he returns home. Dr. Dakadol's research work will be confined to Brown, Dallas, Tarrant, Harris and Lubbock counties. He will pay special attention to county home demonstration agent's work, saying he would like to teach his students that phase of farm and home work.

THE FOURTH ESTATE

The McAllen Monitor is the name of the new daily newspaper in that city. Pat Moran has established a weekly at Balmorhea which he calls the Balmorhea Booster. George Baker, who published the Devil's River News for about three years, has sold an interest in the paper to Robert W. Jones, former business manager of the Big Spring Herald. Mr. Baker has bought the Fort Stockton Pioneer and will make that city his home in the future.

ANTELOPE THAT TOOK RIDE IN AIRPLANE DEAD

Penny Ante, the antelope that gained national distinction above the common herd last year through a 250-mile trip as an airplane passenger, is dead, according to notice received this week by the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

He died peacefully in his bed at the Irving, Texas, farm of Charles Pedley, American Airways pilot who raised Penny Ante on a bottle after bringing him from Big Springs to Fort Worth in a crate aboard the big tri-motor plane that flies the El Paso section of the Southern transcontinental line. Two veterinarians and the Pedley family doctor said Penny Ante died of liver trouble. He was registered with the commission under the Texas game conservation law.

OIL INDUSTRY OF TEXAS

The petroleum industry annually spends $600,000,000 in Texas, according to William H. Francis, councillor for the Magnolia Oil Company. He says further:

"It pays State and local governments $62,000,000 annually in taxes. Has under lease 30,000,000 acres of Texas lands, nearly one-fifth the total area of the State. Total production since the first well was brought in at Corsicana amounts to 3,000,000,000 barrels, estimated to be worth $4,000,000,000. The industry provides a livelihood for more than 500,000 Texans, approximately one out of every 12 persons in the State. Seventy-five of the 254 counties in the State are producing oil, which provides 60 per cent of all the export tonnage through Texas ports. The known petroleum reserves of Texas are estimated at approximately 3,500,000,000 barrels, or more than the total so far taken out."

HARPER'S FERRY RIFLE FOUND

A Harper's Ferry rifle, made in 1845, has been found near Brownwood. It is in fairly good condition. How the rifle came to be buried is not known. An inscription, "Harper's Ferry," and the date, "1845," are engraved on the rifle; also the name and date of "F. C. Mayer, 1874."

Mr. Mayer was a pioneer in that section. He brought the rifle to Texas in 1874. It was won from him by John Shannon, former Brown county tax collector, in a turkey shoot. Later it was stolen from Mr. Shannon and not seen again until recently unearthed.

The rifle is 54 inches long and weighs eight pounds. The bore is about half an inch in diameter, and is rifled, but the grooves make only one turn in the barrel. The rifle trimmings are solid brass. There are two triggers—one is a safety trigger and must be pulled before the other can be pulled.

TROPHY FOR VALLEY FISHING RODEO

Above is a championship trophy to be awarded at the first Rio Grande Valley fishing rodeo to be staged at Point Isabel, Texas, August 8 to 18. Trophy goes to person catching the most silver tarpon.

OCCUPATION OF PARENTS AT U. OF T.

A survey shows that a total of 2,256 parents of students at University of Texas are employed in various trades, while 1,315 are professional men and women. Their occupations range from diplomats to furriers, with farmers first, totaling 618, and merchants numbering 581. The agricultural group totals 940. The 243 different occupations represented are divided into 10 groups, the totals of each being as follows: agriculture, 940; extraction of minerals, 47; manufacturing, 521; transportation, 294; trade, 2,256; public service, 441; domestic service, 400; professional, 1,315; clerical, 108; and miscellaneous, 417.

OIL WILL HELP COLLEGES

The fact may not be generally known that one of the most remarkable oil fields in the world is on land owned by the University of Texas and A. & M. College. It comprises that part of the area of the Big Lake field, in Reagan county, which is devoted to the largest group of producing deep wells known to the oil industry. There are 22 of these wells, ranging in depth from 8,525 to more than 9,000 feet.

The wells are strikingly illustrative of what science and invention have accomplished during the last 25 years in providing methods and equipment for testing geological formations far beneath the earth's surface. Old operators recall that at the time the famous Lucas gusher was completed, marking the discovery of the Spindle Top field at Beaumont, in 1902, the drilling of that well to between 2,000 and 3,000 feet was considered a remarkable feat. At that time there had not been devised machinery or equipment which would drill little if any below 2,000-foot levels.

COTTON BALE 33 YEARS OLD

A bale of cotton ginned in 1900 is held in storage by a Galveston warehouse. As far as known it is the oldest bale in the world. The staple is very long and the fiber seems to be as strong today as it was 30 years ago. The bale was received by the compress for the account of a Galveston resident who has never disposed of it.

WATCH YOUR AUTO BRAKES

Texas highway patrolman has received strict orders to arrest motorist whose breaks are found to be in such a condition they will not operate effectively. A testing crew has been assigned from the highway department for an all-year round campaign against drivers who take chances with their own lives and endanger the lives of others. Chief L. G. Phares says that in no event will excuses be accepted from motorist found to have defective brakes. Charges will be filed against every such motorist.

LONGHORNS FOR UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Four pairs of unusually long steer horns are to adorn the walls in the handsome library building on the University of Texas campus. One pair measures nearly eight feet from tip to tip. The others stretch more than six feet. Horns like these are extremely rare, for long-horn cattle are almost extinct. The horns are highly polished and have the appearance of mother-of-pearl. This finish was achieved by a process of scraping, an art developed to a high degree by the Mexicans.

PREFERS PONY TO AUTO

Dean Joseph Lucien Pritchett of Sam Houston State Teachers' College, at Huntsville, "got in a hurry" to go to Houston the other day and rode in an auto.

Pritchett does not like an auto and never uses one unless he "gets in a hurry." Ordinarily he relies upon his pony.

Although "Professor Joe," as he is called, is 75, he rides his pony to and from school, about three-quarters of a mile, four times a day. "Ginger," his pony, is tied on the campus while the dean lectures to the students on mathematics and astronomy. For 46 years he has been on the Sam Houston faculty, and his ponies have become a tradition of the school.

PURE MILK ADVOCATED

A campaign of bovine tuberculosis eradication is in progress in Texas under the direction of Dr. Louis Crabb of the Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission, assisted by a large corps of veterinarians.

As pure milk is Nature's most perfect food, it is essential that cows should be in a healthy condition. It is estimated that 8 per cent of all milk cattle have bovine type tuberculosis. Cow owners should have their animals tested at least once a year.

About 25 per cent of tuberculosis in children is of the bovine type. It generally attacks the lymph glands and bones. Though not always fatal, when it attacks the joints or bones, it usually leaves the child crippled for life.

MANY ACCIDENTS BEFALL DOG

Marion Coffman, 3, has a collie named "Hooch" who was 15 years old a few days ago. His life has been filled with more thrills than the average human being. He has been shot twice; poisoned twice; was road-foudered so badly from traveling on foot 300 miles, averaging 50 miles a day, that he had to crawl around on his stomach for two months; had sore mouth once; had mange twice; had two tusks pulled out by the roots in a dog fight; and escaped death by an hour in a pound at the hands of the dog catcher because his owner did not know he had been impounded.

When Marion was only one year old, Hooch killed a tarantula which was coming toward her. That same year he killed a stinging scorpion that got near the child. Once Hooch dashed between his mistress and a skunk, grabbed it and choked it to death.

WOMEN FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Texas club women have become interested in a movement seeking increased security for the United States from possibility of foreign aggression. It seeks to bring a clearer understanding of the country's defensive needs to the women of the nation, and to give them guidance in work for adequate defensive preparations. It is a nation-wide movement of women's patriotic organizations, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, with the support of 35 other leading women's patriotic organizations, including the American War Mothers, United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary, Women's Relief Corps, Women's Overseas Service League, National Patriotic Council, National Society of New England, Daughters of the American Revolution, Gold Star Mothers, Auxiliary of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Dames of the Loyal Legion and Daughters of Founders and Patriots. A number of prominent Texas club women were delegates to the conference held the latter part of January at Washington, D. C.

WOMEN RIDE TO REDUCE FLESH

A number of women at Wellington who think they weigh more than they should, and not desiring the rigors of a strict diet to take off superlative flesh, have organized a Cycle Club as a means to regain that girlish figure. They meet once a day with their bicycles and enjoy spins through town or many miles out into the country. They have found, so they say, that the exercise is gradually reducing averdupois, at the same time building up physical endurance.

FAWNS PROTECTED BY GAME WARDEN

Ray Williams, a State game warden in the Fort Davis section, has killed more than 800 Mexican black and golden eagles from afoot, horseback, auto and airplane in his endeavor to preserve the herds of antelope in Southwest Texas. The animals were about to be annihilated a few years ago by large, fierce eagles that preyed upon the fawn of the mother antelope. Frequently Mr. Williams finds a "dogie" fawn and raises it on a bottle, using goat milk. Many of his "pets" eventually find their way into zoos or State parks.

COINCIDENCE OF SEVEN

The numeral seven has played a freakish part in the life of Arthur Croxton Maddox of the Staffield ranch, near Nocona. He is a son of Mrs. J. W. Maddox of that city.

Arthur was the seventh child, born on the seventh day of the seventh month. He weighed 7½ pounds at birth and entered school at seven. He graduated in 1927, and married the seventh child of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Flados. His first son was born on the 17th of the month and is now seven. His second son was born at 7.07 o'clock and weighed seven pounds and seven ounces. Mr. Maddox is 27 and has been married seven years.

SCHOOL CLASS IS AIDED

The home economics class of the Bluff Dale high school now works in a house all its own, secured through the co-operation of the school board, T. P. A., CWA workers and patrons of the school. Recently the association bought a two-room house which was moved to the campus. CWA workers re-painted it inside and out; friends of the school contributed a new stove—painted green to harmonize with the appointments of the kitchen—aluminum cooking utensils, tables, chairs, two foot peddle and one electric sewing machine. Recently the class gave a style show, all dresses made by its members.

TEN NEW CCC CAMPS

Seventeen camps of the Civilian Conservation Corps will be maintained in Texas throughout the summer to improve State parks. Ten of these are new camps and will be located as follows:

Caddo Lake Park at Karnack, Harrison county; Sam Houston Park, Cedar Bayou; Ottine Park, Ottine, Gonzales county; Zilker Park, Austin; Lake Worth Park, Fort Worth; Corpus Christi Park, Corpus Christi; two in Big Bend Park, Castolon, Brewster county; Longhorn Caverns Park, Burnet, and Brownwood Park, Brownwood.

In addition to the seventeen camps improving State parks the CCC will maintain throughout the summer twenty-five other camps in Texas with a total of 8,400 men.

TEXAS HAS WORLD'S FAMOUS LIBRARY

The famous Wrenn Library, one of the greatest book collections in the world, belongs to the University of Texas. The room in which it is housed is accounted by experts to be one of the most beautiful in the world. It is decorated and furnished with handsomely carved American walnut. Between the carved beams of the ceiling is worked an intricate decorative scheme in three distinct divisions. One group traces the history of printing, the second shows the coats-of-arms of six American and English universities, and the third the history of dress from early Greek and Roman times until the end of the World War.

The collection was gathered by John Henry Wrenn of Chicago, who died in 1911. It was secured through the efforts of Major George W. Littlefield of Austin, when he was chairman of the board of regents, for $250,000, a small fraction of its real worth. It consists of some 6,000 first editions, some manuscript material representative of American and English literature from the time of Spencer until the middle of the Nineteenth Century. Poetry and drama make up the most valuable portion of the rich collection. Many of the items are irreplaceable and their value beyond computation in dollars and cents.

There are two other valued collections in the University library, the Aitken of almost 7,000 volumes, and the Stark. Mrs. Miriam Litcher Stark of Orange spent almost 40 years gathering the 7,000 books.

When the front unit of the new library on the campus has been completed it is proposed that the Wrenn, Aitken and Stark collections be housed in that building, making it one of the most beautiful libraries in the world.

There were 32 commercial failures in Texas during February, an increase of 23 per cent over the 26 in January, but a decline of 55 per cent from February, 1933, when there were 71. Liabilities amounted to $468,000, an increase of 55 per cent over the $303,000 in January, and a decrease of 67 per cent from the $1,421,000 in February, 1933. Assets of firms that failed were $265,000 against $96,000 in January, and $561,000 in February last year. Average liability per failure was $14,000 against $11,000 in January, and $20,000 in February a year ago.

A PIONEER'S RECORD

John C. Black, 80, died recently at Temple. He moved to that section before Temple was located. For 50 years he was a contractor in that city, erecting more than 250 buildings. He built and operated the first grocery store in Temple and bought the first bale of cotton sold on its market. He moved from his farm to Temple when it was founded in June, 1831.

A LITTLE FUN Jokes to Make You Laugh

Pugnacity
Bill was pugnacious, but he didn't live long. A few days after his funeral his widow was hanging pensively over her front gate. A neighbor came along. "Well, poor Bill," she began, "he'll be hittin' the harp with the angels." "Not he," said the widow. "More likely he'll be hittin' the angels with the harp."

Buckshot Buzzing
Two colored men who had just reduced the population of a farmer's hen-roost were making a getaway. "Laws, Mose," rasped Sam, "why you 's'pose dem bumble bees follow us so close?" "Betta run faster, nigger," said Mose, "Dem ain't bumble bees; dem's buckshots."

Fads
Jessie had been sent to a fashionable boarding school, and after the first two weeks she signed her letter home "Jessica."
Her father, a plain but sensible old farmer, replied: "Dear Jessica—I received your welcome letter. Mamma and Tomica are quite well. Tomica has a new friend by the name of Samica Jonesica. Aunt Maryca and Uncle Georgia have gone to Bostonica. Your loving Dadica."

Mother (coming home at 2 a. m.):
"Why daughter, you needn't have waited up for me."
Isabel: "I know, mother, but somebody had to let Grandma in."

Unsophisticated Maid
A colored maid in a certain home answered the phone. "Yas'm," her mistress heard her say. "Yas'm," said the maid a second time. Then she added, "It sho' am," and hung up the receiver. The telephone rang again, and the girl made the same replies, and hung up.

"What kind of a conversation was that, Lucy?" the mistress asked. "What did they want?"
"Wellum," said the maid, "dey asked if dis was de Jones house, an' I say yas'm, an' dey ask if Mrs. Jones am home, an' I tol' em yas'm, an' den dey say, 'Long distance from Washington,' an' I say, 'It sho' am.'"

The Answer
Why don't you go to work? Don't you know that a rolling stone gathers no moss?
Madam, not to evade your question at all, but merely to obtain information, may I ask of what practical utility is moss to a man like me?

Night for Skipping
The guest in Room 343 had greatly annoyed all the other hotel guests by jumping and skipping around his room. Finally, the manager objected, and demanded an explanation.
"Well, it's like this. My doctor gave me some medicine for my rheumatism and told me to take it for three nights running, and then skip a night."
"But what does that have to do with all the noise?"
"Well, this happens to be my night for skipping."

Poultry Facts

Watching Washington! That seems to be the popular pastime at present. Many business people are developing weak spines because of inactivity—too much hesitation and waiting—too much waiting on what is going to happen in Washington. There are only two sure things to come from Washington—increased taxes and politics. You will never get helped until you help yourself.

Business is showing some definite improvement, not because of any help from Washington, but in spite of it. We are several rungs up the ladder and are climbing out of the depression. We are on our way out—just as sure as anything can be—but waiting on Washington is not going to get us anywhere, in fact, it positively will cause us to fall back. Washington, through publicity and propaganda, may claim to drive the wolf from your door, but as certain as anything can be it is driving in a circle and before you know it will bite you in the back.

Efficiency Price of Success
In these days it is more difficult to make an honest dollar. Efficiency is still worth a premium in the poultry business. It is my observation that waste and inefficiency are the two parasites that often prevent us from making a profit. On many poultry farms waste is the ghost. You see it in wasted feed, rusting equipment out in the weather, brooders out in the weather going to pieces, sick and uncured flocks, wormy flocks, poorly constructed houses and many more wasteful practices—all of which drain your profits. I don't know why it is true but inefficiency in the poultry yard appears to be the general rule rather than the exception. You may have been efficient yesterday, but today you may be a back number and hopelessly out of date. Time marches on. Progress is made daily. Don't permit an attitude of "standing still." Keep alert and ever watchful. Today, tomorrow, the future and efficiency will demand a premium.

No Centipede
An auto had just knocked down a man and run over his toes, and the victim was claiming damages.
"Good God, man!" gasped the owner of the car, "you say you want $500 for a damaged foot. I'm not a millionaire, I'd have you know."
"Perhaps you ain't," tersely replied the victim, "an' I ain't no centipede, either."

Foreign Debts
Our money lies over the ocean. Our money lies over the sea. They laughed us to scorn— And left us forlorn— O, bring back my money to me!

Timid Little Girl
The little girl was a very timid little soul, and her father was trying to reason her out of her fears. He tried to tell her that there was nothing to fear in mice and frogs and bugs.
"Papa," she asked, "ain't you 'fraid of bugs?"
"No, dear."
"Ain't you 'fraid of snakes?"
"No, dear."
"Papa, ain't you 'fraid of nothing else in the whole world but just mamma?"

Swapping Yarns
Sitting around the bunkhouse they were swapping lies.
"When I was up in Montana," said one of the drillers, "I saw a mountain lion come right up to the rig one day. It was a fierce beast, but I, with great presence of mind, threw a bucket of water in its face and it slunk away."
"Boys," said another driller in the corner, "I can vouch for the truth of that story. A few minutes after that happened I was coming down the side of the hill. I met this lion and, as is my habit, stopped to stroke its whiskers. Boys, those whiskers were still wet."

Unusual Reply
A Chicago theatre advertised for an organist and pianist, either a lady or a gentleman.
One of the replies was rather unusual—it read:
"Dear Sir: I notice you have a vacancy for a pianist and organist, either a lady or a gentleman. Having been both for a number of years I would like to apply for the position."

"When my wife needs money she calls me handsome."
"Handsome?"
"Yeah, hand some over."

An All-Day Job
T. Roy Barnes is almost as well known as a story-teller as he is as an actor and movie star.
Here is one which he has told with tremendous success at Hollywood dinners:
"A little boy had been absent a whole day from school and the teacher next morning sent him home to get an excuse from his mother. Presently he came running back and handed the paper to his teacher. It read as follows:
"Dear Teacher: Please excuse Tommy from being away yesterday. He got wet in the A.M. and had to be dried in the P.M."

to get eggs from your flock during these higher egg prices. For the last six months egg prices have made some gains. Next year will see a big improvement. Better join the parade and get into the front ranks.

Broiler Prices
At this writing broilers bring the producer about 20c per pound. They may go up a few cents more, but we are sure of a firm price on broilers for several months. You can figure it costs you about 20c each to produce a two-pound fryer. In other words, you should make a little money several months in the year growing fryers for the market. Yes, we will have opportunities of making a living, but we will have to work for it. Waiting and watching won't bring it to us. Sell your cockerels for broilers or fryers and keep your selected pullets for next year's layers.

PNEUMONIA A SEASONABLE DISEASE

Pneumonia is a seasonable disease in that the contagion and mortality is much increased during wet, cold weather. It is more prevalent and serious in towns where personal contacts are more common. Pneumonia is always dangerous, but especially so to persons in a run down condition. This accounts for the number of cases which follow patients convalescing from other diseases. Pneumonia germs are spread by careless coughing, sneezing and spitting. The first symptoms are usually a severe chill and fever, a very sick feeling, loss of appetite, rapid breathing and a heavy sensation or pain in the chest, frequently accompanied by spitting of blood. When these symptoms appear go to bed and send for a doctor. Pneumonia ranks second as a leading cause of death in Texas. Almost 6,000 persons died of the malady in this State in 1932. Watch for pneumonia symptoms during the inclement weeks of the late winter and early spring.

TEXAS CHARTER STATISTICS

New charters granted corporations to do business in Texas totaled 130 in February, against 146 in January and 140 in February, 1933, a decline of 11 and 7 per cent respectively. The number of charters granted to oil companies increased 41 per cent over January and February last year; manufacturing charters increased 41 per cent over January and were equal to February a year ago; out-of-State projects increased 16 and 41 per cent, respectively. New charters to public service companies, banking and finance, real estate and building, and miscellaneous types decreased materially, both from January and February last year.

AUTO REGISTRATIONS INCREASE

New passenger car registrations in the 16 most populous counties of Texas totaled 3,237 in February, against 1,851 in January and 1,793 in February, 1933, gains of 75 and 81 per cent respectively. Registration for January and February combined totaled 5,088 against 4,281 during the corresponding period last year, a gain of 20 per cent.

ANCIENT BONES FOUND IN CAVE

A hind leg, or cannon bone, of an animal resembling the musk ox was recently found in close proximity to human bones in a cave in Brewster county, close to the Jeff Davis county line, a few miles from Fort Davis. This is considered an important discovery because the musk is known as extremely ancient. The animal bones were sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C.

HUNTS COYOTES BY AIRPLANE

Roy Baumgardner, a Fort Stockton aviator, employed by a rancher, bothered by coyotes, finds slaying the pests by airplane both a lucrative and an exciting sport. He kills the animals with a shotgun after they have been "jumped" by hunters on the ground. He slays from one to two coyotes a day, and reports a good demand for his services from other ranchmen.

MAKE THESE MODELS AT HOME

PATTERNS 1730 and 1762
When the crowd suggests a spin into the country, a "bite to eat" at a wayside inn, shopping in town, bridge at Jane's, or off to a good movie—then you may be sure Pattern 1730 is a smart number to wear. Its lines and details express youth and vivacity—note how the collar and its little bow flatter the face, and the clever use of contrast would fool even your best friend into thinking you're wearing a belero frock. Here's where a print and monotone would combine effectively, though all one fabric may be used, too. Silks or cottons would be equally delightful.

On the other hand, you may be all set for a good game of tennis, or golf—or you may be "spectator sporting" at the races, or meet—then slip into Model 1762. It's sporty in every sense of the word! The smart yoke is cut to perk out over the shoulders, and pleats lend lots of animation and snap to the skirt. Any of the new cottons would be perfect to choose, pique, seersucker, broadcloth—or linen or shantung. This frock may be made with a contrasting yoke, too. Trim with a good looking, bright colored button and belt to match.

Pattern 1730 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 takes 2 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric and 1 3/8 yards contrasting.

Pattern 1762 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

EFFICIENCY IN HOME-MAKING Market Problems

In recent articles I have told you the value of flour, described how it is made and why a high grade product gives more for your money than an inferior quality. I tried to emphasize the different minerals, vitamins and other food compositions needed by the body to make you healthy and strong. This month I have a new story for you.

When I wrote about flour I cast about in my mind for a subject on some flour product that is well known and a healthful food. With this in view I visited a macaroni plant to acquaint myself with this product. Never having been through one of those plants, I enjoyed the experience.

I was much impressed at the care taken to insure a clean product. It was one of the sweetest "smelling" plants I have ever visited. Many plants have a rancid or musty smell. Not so at the macaroni factory. The air was sweet and wholesome.

Macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli and noodles are usually the products of one plant, as they are largely identical, noodles excepted, the difference being in the size of the product. Flour and water are the only ingredients used in the manufacture of these foods, excepting noodles, to which eggs are added. They are truly a flour product. The flour and water are mixed in prescribed proportions. The dough is then kneaded by machinery. The roll of dough makes one think of a large, twisting serpent. This dough is then placed in another machine, and under great pressure is squeezed through holes known as "dies." In the center of each is a pin that leaves the hole in the macaroni. Different sized dies are used to make macaroni, spaghetti, vermicelli and noodles. As the product is taken from this machine it is cut into desired lengths.

On another floor the products are spread upon trays, stacked criss-cross, and dried with fans. Packing is done by hand.

There are two grades of macaroni and spaghetti. The first is made from a special flour known to the trade as "Durum Semolina." Semolina means cream of the wheat. This wheat is produced in only a small section of the country. When ground it looks more like the breakfast cereal, Cream of Wheat, than it does ordinary flour. This flour is exceptionally nutritious, being high in protein. It is one of the best substitutes we have for meat.

Ladies, here is a tip. If you are reducing, eat all of the macaroni or spaghetti made of this wheat you want. It is not fattening. The starch content is very low.

Perhaps you have wondered why the cheaper or second grade macaroni "cooks up," while the other does not. This is due to the starch content. The first grade contains very little starch. It is not necessary to blanch it after cooking. The second grade is made from ordinary hard wheat, and contains considerable starch.

Many have the wrong idea about macaroni or spaghetti being served as a side dish at meals. Their food value is such that either should be served as the main dish of the meal. When served with a leafy vegetable, and milk as a drink, you can desire no better balanced meal.

The main point to consider in selecting the different grades of macaroni, from the housewife's point of view, is whether your family needs a food high in protein or one high in starch. This is for you to decide. Either grade is an energy producing food.

It must be remembered that the healthy family should have a well balanced, nourishing diet all the time to properly carry on. Vermicelli makes a delicious soup, as do noodles. Noodles contain a slightly higher nutritive value than macaroni and spaghetti because of the addition of egg yolks.

The relative food values of macaroni and spaghetti to other foods are as follows in protein content:

	Per Cent Protein
Macaroni	13.4
Potatoes	2.2
Bread	9.1
Rice	8.0
Flour	11.4
Butter	1.1
Eggs	11.9
Milk	3.3

Next month we will take up a subject entirely from flour and flour products. Watch for this article. We have a survey on the condition of our food prices today, as to the difference paid to producer and that paid by the consumer, drop a card to the following, and ask them to put you on the mailing list for the "Consumers' Guide," distributed free: Consumer's Counsel of the A. A. A. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C.

(Editor's Note: These articles on Home Efficiency are being compiled through personal investigation, and not through syndicated articles. Mrs. Stute is making personal investigation of every item mentioned here. She is trying to give the women readers of this page some first-hand information on food products and their relative food values. We suggest you keep these articles as they will make an interesting study book.)

GOOD RECIPES

Most families have their favorite recipes as to how they like macaroni and spaghetti, but here are two we like and wish you would try them.

Plain Spaghetti
For a family of five, cook 1 pound spaghetti in rapidly boiling water (slightly salted) for 15 minutes. We try to have only enough water to cook the macaroni to keep from sticking. If any water is left at the end of the 15 minutes we drain, (blanch if second grade is used) add 4 tablespoons thick cream and 3 tablespoons butter, replace on stove where it will just keep warm and cover until ready to serve. My children will eat this dish when everything else fails.

Macaroni With Tomatoes
Butter a baking dish, put in a layer of boiled macaroni or spaghetti, then a layer of tomato sauce; add successively macaroni or spaghetti and tomato sauce until the dish is nearly full. Have the top layer of tomato. Brown in a very hot oven. Cracker crumbs or cheese may be added according to taste. Many delicious dishes can be made from this product.

Baked Carrots
3 cups cut carrots (uncooked)
12 soda crackers crumbled
2 tablespoons onion
2 tablespoons melted butter
1/4 teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons grated cheese.
Boil carrots in salted water until tender. Drain (reserving 2/3 cup liquid) and mash well. Stir in crumbled crackers, onion, butter and pepper. Put in a greased baking dish, pour liquid over and cover with cheese. Bake in hot oven 15 minutes. This makes six servings.

Eggs Goldenrod
5 hard cooked eggs
2 1/2 cups medium white sauce (hot)
6 rusks
Paprika and parsley.
Remove the yolks from eggs, cut whites into strips and add whites to white sauce. Serve over rusks, and force yolks of eggs through strainer or potato ricer on top of creamed whites. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with parsley.
This dish is delicious for a Sunday evening hurry supper. Eat more eggs. They are healthful and cheap.

HISTORICAL MAP OF TEXAS
A map of Texas in four colors, each color for 100 years of its history, is soon to be placed in the capitol at Austin. Curtis Pruett of Dallas, planned the map, and a staff of artists directed by Guy Cahoon executed it. Col. J. K. Hughes of Mexia purchased the map for Texas, which will be presented by daughters of the Republic of Texas. Copies of the four-color Centennial map, 24 by 36 inches, will be sold by the Daughters to raise funds for the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936.

Texas' colorful history under seven flags is portrayed by 1,100 items and figures on the map. The history of Indian tribes, trails of early explorers, old missions, battle grounds on which Texas independence was won, natural resources and early industries are portrayed on the map by geographical locations.

Karo has almost twice the energy value of eggs and lean beef—weight for weight (there are 120 calories per ounce in Karo.)

By serving plenty of Karo to the entire family—especially the children—they will be continually well supplied with a quick energy food.

Karo Syrups are essentially Dextrins, Maltose and Dextrose, with a small percentage of Sucrose added for flavor—all recommended for ease of digestion and energy value.

BARBER IS SHARPSHOOTER
Harve Chief of Houston, a barber, has won 30 medals as a sharpshooter. He is one of the best marksmen in the country. He has both State and National championship medals. In other spare moments he has given instructions in marksmanship, including instructions to Houston police officers. Mr. Chief has no regard for the gangster as a marksman. He says of the hoodlum:
"Most of them are poor shots. That is why they use shotguns and machine guns. They want to spray the landscape. Almost anyone can hit with a machine gun or a shotgun. But it is an entirely different thing when it comes to hitting the bulls-eye with a rifle or a revolver."

MEMORABLE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY
Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bargley of the Lacassa community, 10 miles north of Ranger, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on March 15 in the house which they have occupied for 50 years. Rev. C. H. Ray, retired Baptist minister of Weatherford, who married the couple, was present. Four generations of the pair watched the cutting of the wedding cake, decorated with 50 candles. The old family organ, the first one brought to the community 42 years ago, was played while 130 friends and relatives grouped themselves around it and sang old-time songs.

And they said one to another, Behold this dreamer cometh. Gen. 37:19.
