A handshake is personality itself. Women too often miss the experience of tasting the good feel of a man's firm handclasp. It's one of the finer points of life. But they also miss some of the unusual grips, which, like we say, are as varied as personalities themselves.

As a newspaperman, we get lots of chances to meet lots of different kinds of people, and we have tried about all the handshakes that have ever been figured out.

We believe that the kind that unnerves us most is the pumper-type. This is when the fellow you're shaking with seizes your hand and begins a vigorous up-and-down motion not unlike the kind necessary for the operation of an old-fashioned well pump.

A few strokes would not be so bad, but often, the chronic pumper-type individual will continue this action through the opening introduction or greeting, and far on into the conversation.

It is at this delicate point that one wonders what to do: keep pumping with 'im, try to put on the brake, or impolitely pull your hand out of the exercise and leave him pawing the air.

Another type we hate to run into (but only because it results in actual physical pain) is the grab-and-squeeze-em-hard type. This fellow doesn't only meet you half way.

He grabs your hand before you can begin to get ready and instantly puts on a vice-like clamp that makes your knuckles pop like they had been stepped on by a horse.

Worst of all, people like us who wear big, fancy college rings suffer real torture when one of these guys hangs on. If our acquaintance comments that we're not looking so good, it's usually because we have almost passed out from the just-completed handshake.

We should add here that this type of grabbing is absolutely no test of strength whatever. The first guy to start squeezing can reduce his opponent's hand to pulp in a matter of seconds because the late starter can never get the leverage to meet brute strength with brute strength.

Of course, nobody likes to get hold of the mamby-pamby, "fish-tail" handshaker who offers the limp appendage as if it was meant to be kissed instead of gripped. This Victorian-age character is still about in sizeable numbers, however, and hardly a week passes that we don't run into him.

The fellow who uses both hands to do the shaking also bothers us considerably. He will either put his left hand over yours and his right while the shake is being executed, or grip your right forearm or elbow and gently apply a hammerlock.

This device seems to be handy for drawing the subject up to a nose-to-nose distance for intimate conversation. It is unfortunate in instance of where either party has halitosis.

There is the wax-and-wane type who begins by muscling up as if he intended to crush every bone in your hand, then suddenly relaxing and leaving you returning the mighty squeeze all by yourself.

About the time you taper off, here he goes again at a bone-crushing rate. This type usually looks you straight in the eye and expects you to carry on a conversation while the gymnastics are in progress. Hard to do.

The handshaker without peer in these parts, of course, is Judge Smith. With a hand the size of his, he needn't worry about all of these confusing types. If

Pinky Primps for Fair

Pinky, a Sears Chester-White gilt owned by Joe Jones, gets brushed down by her owner in preparation for the Parmer County Fair this weekend. This is the first year that Joe, who lives south of Bovina, has ever entered an animal in fair competition. It's Pinky's first test, too, as she was acquired by Joe as a weaning-size pig on May 26 of this year.

Annual Soil Conservation Tour Starts Wednesday at Bovina

Details of the annual soil conservation tour which will be next Wednesday were announced by the Parmer County SCD this week.

Persons interested in making the tour will assemble at the Bovina Legion Hall at 1:30 and at 2 o'clock will go to the A. R. McCutchan

First PTA Meeting Set for Tuesday

First meeting of the Farwell PTA has been set for Tuesday night, September 13, at 8 o'clock in the Farwell School auditorium.

Committees will report on the planned activities of the organization for the coming year. Year-books outlining the schedule of events will be presented at this time.

Business left unfinished at the close of last year will be discussed.

President John Getz urges that all citizens interested in the school be present. He adds that he is expecting a year of success and great activity for the group.

Broomcorn Thriving On Dee Owens Farm

An experiment with bringing in broomcorn as a cash crop in this area is proving satisfactory, according to Dee Owens, one of the few farmers who are trying it this year.

It should be pointed out that Owens has not harvested or sold his crop as yet—so, definitely the story is not complete, but from the looks of things this week as harvest got under way, the outlook from broomcorn is at least considerably better than grain sorghum.

Owens, who farms two miles northeast of Farwell, has about 65 acres in the unusual crop this year, and Tuesday of this week got started with pulling the 'corn and laying it in the rows for drying.

On better portions of his crop, he

Old Timers Know It

Broomcorn, a crop that used to occupy considerable acreage in the area many years ago, is making a comeback on a minor scale this year. Here, Dee Owens shows how broomcorn is pulled. He has about 65 acres, and is pleased with the crop so far.

The last leg of the trip will be the Walter Watson seed farm east of Lariat, where tourists will inspect registered grain sorghum production, hybrid seed corn production, and fertilizer demonstrations on grain sorghum and corn.

September 12-17 is Parmer County Soil Conservation District Week, and the event will be concluded with the annual SCD banquet Thursday night at the Friona High School Cafeteria.

'55 Crop Outlook Is Dimmer

Prospects for the county's crops—which looked "excellent" three or four weeks ago—have continued a general downward trend during the past week, fears County Agent Joe Jones after a county-wide survey.

The 45,000 acres of cotton in Parmer County are still "looking good" in Jones' words, but he adds, "but not as good as last year at this time. The survey shows that quite a bit of cotton is 'throwing off,' and in general, it seems to be later than last year."

The agent reported spotting a few bollworm eggs and small worms, and he issued a caution to farmers to watch their fields and

Jack Spurlin Plans New Business Here

Jack Spurlin this week announced plans for a new business in Farwell, to be known as Spurlin's TV & Radio Sales & Service, which will open in about two weeks.

The Main Street building east of Farwell Hardware, which is owned by Frank Seale and Nathan Harding is being remodeled preparatory to the new venture.

Spurlin says he intends to hire a serviceman and to engage in both the sales and service fields.

Lines to be handled will be Zenith, Emerson, Maytag, Crosley, Tappan, and Whirlpool, says Spurlin.

Steers Open Season Against Buffaloes

Farwell Steers have been preparing this week for an encounter with the more experienced Melrose Buffaloes of District 4-C on Friday night, 8:30 at Farwell. Boasting 12 returning lettermen, the Melrose starting 11 has an average weight of 155. Junior tackle, Jimmy Rogers, will be key man in the line at 215 pounds. Pat Roberson, senior at 175 pounds, will probably man the other tackle position. Two returning lettermen will fill the end slots and senior O. B. Coffey will see action as center.

Trouble can be expected from the Buffalo backfield with 5 returning lettermen and 145 pound track star, Sonny Burnett, to fill the posts. Probable starting lineup for the Steers, their positions and jersey numbers for Friday night's tussle include Troy Christian, FB, 40; Jerry Dee Owens, R HB, 50; Truitt Hardage, L HB, 20 Eddie Smith, QB, 14; Gerald Hardage, C, 26; Harvey Lesley, RT, 54; Preston Cain, LT, 60; Dean Jones, RG, 24; Rolland Hillock, LG, 42; (Continued On Last Page)

It's fair time again, and folks from in and around Parmer County are expected to go in numbers to Friona this weekend to visit or participate in the thirteenth annual Parmer County Fair and Dairy Show.

Faced with declining livestock population on county farms, directors and workers of the Fair Association this year have turned to other areas of interest in a determined effort to improve and enlarge the Fair's attractions.

In previous years, the fair had leaned heavily on beef, dairy cattle, dual-purpose stock, swine, sheep, and other farm animals. The recent trend away from livestock on the farms of Parmer County has brought about a change however, and it is reflected in fair entries.

Many entirely new events have been brought in to draw visitors this year. A talent show sponsored by the Parmer County Farm Bureau is a major addition to the fair for 1955. So is the addition of the "little olympics."

"We believe we'll have the best fair in several years," says Bill Sheehan, secretary of the Association. "We have had more planning, and we have had more to participate, than in some time."

As to finances, $1100 was on hand as of Wednesday of this week, according to the secretary, who added that he expected "$200 more before we are through."

Finances will likely fall some short of what is needed, however, and Sheehan says he won't be surprised if the Association winds up in the red after the fair this week.

"We could certainly use $400 to $500 more," he said, "and we will appreciate any additional contributions from anyone."

The cost of the annual fall fair and dairy show, in addition to the spring fat stock show, totals about $1800 per year. The Association is carrying forward $400 which was left over from last year's exposition.

Lariat Church of Christ Has Meeting

A gospel meeting is to begin at the Lariat Church of Christ Sunday, Sept. 11, announces Abe Martin, minister. The meeting will continue through Sunday, Sept. 18.

W. B. Andrews of Dallas is evangelist for the meeting, and Wiley Baker of Lariat will lead singing. Morning services begin at 11 o'clock; evening services at 8.

Minister Martin extended everyone an invitation to attend.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Late changes in the times of some of the events scheduled for the Parmer County Fair this week has resulted in some confusion. The annual free barbecue, sponsored by the Friona Chamber of Commerce, will not be held Saturday evening as reported in last week's Tribune.

The barbecue will begin at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Friona park. The fiddlers' contests will be held immediately after the barbecue.

It should be noted that the printed fair programs which will be in general distribution by this weekend are inaccurate in reporting the time of the barbecue, for the reason that they were printed before the final and correct date was announced.

New exhibit space has been made available for extra entries. "We'll have a lot more entries in the food division this year," reports Miss Stinson. Exhibits from 4-H Clubbers will (Continued On Last Page)

25 Girls Now in Race For Fair Queen Title

Entries in the Parmer County Fair Queen race, sponsored by ESA of Farwell, totaled 25 as of Wednesday, according to Mrs. Joe Helton, chairman of the contest.

She added that an additional five businesses have paid $5 entrance fees for candidates, but have turned in no names.

Votes, which are going for one cent each, will be turned in at The State Line Tribune booth at the fair grounds at noon Saturday, and an early count will then be made.

The positions will then be posted and voting will continue until 6 o'clock when final tabulations will be made.

John Getz of Farwell, a director of the fair, will act as emcee of the crowning ceremony, which will take place at 7:30.

Earlier that afternoon, most of (Continued On Last Page)

THE TRIBUNE'S EDITORIAL COMMENT

Present Water District Is Closest to Local Control

People often associate the news stories appearing in newspapers with the editorial viewpoint of the management. The two do not always coincide. Good editors strive at the goal of making use of their news columns as an objective "sounding board" for the events of the day, and reserving their personal reflections for editorial or columnated comment. Liberties occasionally are taken, to be sure, but this generally holds true.

We feel that it is especially significant that we bring out this point as there this week appears a story in this newspaper which definitely presents an argument from one point of view. The persons involved were certainly entitled to their side of the argument, and we have been more than glad to get their story into print.

In the matter of irrigation regulations, there appears that a great deal can be said from either the individual's or the Water District's point of view. The District's outlook is a long-term one, and sometimes is hard to reconcile with day-to-day problems that demand immediate attention.

However, it is our conclusion that the District represents what is the best interest of the people as a whole, and we support its aim of conservation of our most precious natural resource, even though temporary hardships that are very real indeed may be imposed on some individuals.

No agency is perfect, and the farmers who are protesting the District's position have some suggestions that may well be studied seriously by that body.

The Tribune campaigned vigorously several years ago (just about the time irrigation on a large scale was getting started in Parmer County), to get this county into the District which was coming into being.

At the time we were convinced that the District which was being organized would represent control on as local a level as we could devise it, which, in our estimation, is of foremost consideration of the desirability of any regulatory body.

Had not the District come to be, we might well now be under the regulation of the state—or even worse, the federal government—in the drilling and pumping of our irrigation wells.

Our prosperity of recent years has been undeniably tied with irrigation, and were we curtailed in the development and use of our tremendous water resources, we certainly would not be as far along as we are today. Even the most pessimistic will have to admit that we have fared marvelously well in spite of great droughts and a tightening farm economy.

Local problems will continue to come up, just as they are appearing on farms similar to the ones appearing in the news story. And only local control will ever be able to find a satisfactory solu-

Free Commerce Necessary For Lasting Peace

The question of whether the United States should engage in sale of agricultural and other commodities with Soviet Russia is supported with a vigorous "yes" by this newspaper.

Free commerce between nations of the world is an absolute necessity for the widespread economic well-being that will preclude a lasting peace.

Russia and her string of "Iron Curtain" countries present a very good market opportunity for a substantial portion of what America produces, especially farm products which are in great supply at the present time.

It appears at the moment, however, that we have hamstrung ourselves with a regulation that forbids us to dispose of surplus commodities to Russia or any of her satellite neighbors. We agree that these items ought not to be given away, or even disposed of at a reduced price to these nations, but we feel that nothing should interfere with the possibility of a free barter or sale of anything between this country and any other—including Russia.

uranium dirt, and started letting just anyone who wanted, sit in his dirt—for a charge of course.

Hundreds came to sit, and now other dirt-sitting houses have been opened in Comanche. Latest one, we understand, is one in a theatre, where customers can sit in the dirt and see a movie at the same time.

The soil will be hauled to Brady from San Saba County, and the owners say the dirt will be changed every six to eight days.

We like the story about the mail order house that received a letter saying "Please send me my money back, as after taking six cans of your corn syrup, my feet aren't any better."

The next time you hear someone fussing about the way people are running the county fair, the city government, the school, or any other such organization, ask them what they do to make any of the insitutions better. Nine times out of ten, all they do is "fuss." The people who do the work don't have time to think-up ugly things to say about others—they're much too busy, giving their time for the benefit of their neighbors.

Mrs. Lee McDaniel and four children brought five weeks of sunshine into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Humble, and others in the Humble neighborhood when they visited here. And like all proud grandmothers, Mrs. Humble caught every little antic of the younger McDaniel, who is only two.

Most of the children call Mr. Humble "Daddy Ralph," but the little tyke liked to greet him when he came home in the evening with "Hiya, Ralph."

Pop Spurlin, who had a big birthday celebration over the weekend, was heard to remark "I'm 65 now, guess I won't have to work anymore." Must have been jest, cause he was back on the job the first of the week.

The Joe Crumes spent the weekend on a jaunt to the mountains. One of their stops was a big fish hatchery, where they watched the attendants care for the finny inhabitants. Suddenly, Bobby Crume noticed that they were standing by a red-headed woman who looked familiar.

Sure enough, it was the movie star, Greer Garson. The boys have really been teasing Linda, who is a movie fan. They relate that she pours over movie magazines by the dozen, but when she spied Miss Garson, she didn't even remember to ask for her autograph.

But Dean's observance was the one that amused all the Crumes. After the family was in the car, he remarked "Didn't she have GOOD English?"

New Senior Students

The senior class at Farwell welcomed three new students for this school year. New additions to the class include Carolyn Cantrell from Roswell, N. M., Howard Woods from Anton and Patricia Berry from Portales, N. M. Patricia attended school with this group for a while during grade school days.

Condition Improves

B. O. Faville, who is still confined to a Clovis hospital, is reported to be showing gradual improvement this week. He has been receiving treatment at the hospital for several weeks.

It's startling to find how many men have made no preparation whatever for their family in the event that something should happen to them. Are you one of these? Contact us and we will be glad to show you how easy protection really is.

Mrs. Tena Roth of Texico has a favorite recipe, which she is permitting us to print this week. Her family likes spaghetti and meat balls and she has an easy, tasty preparation for the dish.

SPAGHETTI AND MEAT BALLS

Fry one diced onion in fat. Add one pint tomato juice, one can of tomato sauce and 1/2 cup tomato catsup. Season with chili powder, salt, pepper and a dash of garlic if desired. Let simmer 30 minutes.

Blend 1 1/2 lbs. ground beef with salt and pepper, shape into balls. Drop meat balls into sauce and let simmer one hour. Cook long spaghetti in salt water in separate container. Serve the sauce over the ghetti with the meat balls.

Thank you Mrs. Roth. We have a weakness for spaghetti, and particularly like to try new recipes.

The uranium dirt-sitting fad is catching on. It hasn't been too long since the story of the "curing" qualities of uranium dirt on a place in Comanche, made nationwide story material.

We hadn't thought much more about it until this week when we noticed a story in the Brady paper, about a new "dirt house" opening there. A couple of Brady businessmen were promoting the venture.

This particular fad began when people with various ailments began going to this Comanche dairyman's place and sitting in the soil. They claimed the uranium eased their pain. Although the dairyman didn't guarantee anything, people kept coming and he finally moved his cows out of the barn, added some

Mrs. Nathan Harding of Ft. Worth, who took the highest honors scholastically during her high school years at Farwell, is still carrying away honors. She is the former Mary Joyce Rolland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Rolland.

The former local girl is enrolled in classes at Texas Christian University. In February of this year, she was designated as a freshman of distinguished scholarship. Alpha Chi, National Honor Society, sent her a special letter of congratulations. She was also one of the students honored at a social that month, at the Student Center.

Then in July, Mrs. Harding received word that the deans had checked on scholastic records of all scholarship students to determine eligibility for extension for 1955-56. Her grades entitle her to a continuation of her scholarship for this year.

In a letter from Thos. F. Richardson, dean of students, was this quotation "We appreciate the type of work you are doing and hope that you may continue. We are looking forward to having you back in the fall."

Williams also announced that on Monday night, September 19, at 7 o'clock in room 101 of the high school building, the school budget for 1955-1956 will be read.

Rogers returned from a 31 month stay in Japan a month ago and visited with his parents until this weekend. His wife and son will remain here with Mr. and Mrs. Rogers until Christmas when they will join Allen in Florida.

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

By RAYMOND EULER

Unfortunately, the potato assistance program mentioned last week will not help potato producers of this area at all. It appears that if it helps producers, it will be those in areas with many years of history in the production of potatoes.

The per family income of full time farmers in 1950 averaged $3,630; in 1954 the average was $3,262; less than $400 difference. The thing that concerns farmers is not so much what they made, as what it cost them to make it. We think the trend that is becoming evident regarding an organized effort on the part of producers themselves to expand domestic and foreign markets and control diverted acres has a lot of encouraging promise. Most farmers are beginning to realize that politically controlled operation of their farms is not the most desirable situation they can hope for.

We hope every farmer, with his future success or failure in mind, will be concerned when his Farm Bureau Directors and Resolution Committee announce the county wide meeting where plans will be heard and discussed by the farmer himself. If enough farmers turn out to give a true picture of our people's wishes, you can rest assured that resolutions presented to the committee will be exactly what the majority of Farmer County Farmers believe is best for them now and in the long run. If you have been critical of your community director, we believe nothing will make him happier than to come and tell the membership what you think your director ought to do. You can be sure that if your idea sounds good to most of your fellow farmers, it will appear in black and white, with all delegates from Farmer County supporting it in Fort Worth in November. How else can you get the power of over seven hundred farmers behind your plans? You are urged to participate.

Before long we should know what is legally (or illegally) "a lewd, depraved or corruptive comic book." It is now against Texas law to sell them. It is also unlawful to bring intoxicating beverages into any stadium or field where school athletics are being staged.

The "Soil Fertility Bank," a farm program intended to give farmers more freedom and more net income is gaining nationwide attention. Originator and promoter of this program is Texas Farm Bureau's President, J. Walter Hammond, of Tye, Texas. The American Farm Bureau is studying and recommending the program, too. We think you'll like the idea if you know it.

Consider this: My son, if thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice, even mine. Proverbs 23:15

Integration Stopped Pending Court Case

Integration plans at Farwell Schools are being held in abeyance this week pending action by the State Supreme Court, according to Jack Williams, superintendent.

Williams noted that as the Big Spring case held the threat that state aid funds might be withheld from integrating districts because of a state law, and that $80,000 hung in the balance of the local district, the decision to delay de-segregation had been made.

Colored students are attending classes in the former vo-ag building on the southern part of the campus.

A decision on the court case is expected to be made next week or perhaps in two weeks.

Interest Scant In Antelopes

A surprising lack of interest in the October antelope hunts was reported by the Chief Clerk of the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

He said applications are running well behind the usual pace when, ordinarily, requests greatly exceed the number of permits to be granted.

The Commission has authorized hunts in both the Panhandle and West of the Pecos. About three hundred head of buck antelope are earmarked for harvest in the 28-county Panhandle regulatory area, and more than six hundred buck and doe antelope are listed as surplus West of the Pecos.

The Chief Clerk emphasized that interested persons should NOT—repeat NOT—send in their money for the $5 individual special licenses but rather should write first for an application blank and instructions.

Separate drawings for the two hunts will be held in Commission headquarters in Austin in early September. Midnight August 31 is the deadline for mailing applications.

Judging from what we hear, more people with coughs go to theatres, than to doctors.

MR. AND MRS. CARROLL JACKSON

Elanda White Weds Carroll Jackson

Double-ring ceremony in the Lariat Church of Christ on Thursday evening, August 18, united in marriage Miss Elanda White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam White Jr., and Carroll Jackson of Detroit, Mich.

Stephen Eckstein, director of the Church of Christ Bible Chair at ENMU, read the vows as the couple stood before a wedding setting formed by a rose covered arch backed by palms, green candles in tall candelabra and baskets of pink and yellow gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length dress of white lace and satin. The dress was fashioned with a fitted bodice and high neckline with a lace train and high stand up lace collar. The long sleeves buttoned at the wrists and came to points over her hands. Her tiered veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and extended to the hip line.

She carried a white Bible topped with pink roses and streamers. For something old and borrowed she carried a pink lace handkerchief belonging to her mother. Something new was her dress and something blue was her garter. She wore a penny in her shoe for good luck.

Miss Lou Haragan of Fox, Okla., was maid of honor. She wore a dress of green net over taffeta styled similar to that of the bride's. Her flowers were pink carnations. Miss Haragan was a roommate of the bride at ENMU last year.

Ringbearer was Tony Marley, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Marley of Portales.

Ennis Franklin of Houston served as best man and Buddy Marley and Doyle Kootz, both of Portales, were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. White wore a two piece suit of gray trimmed with white. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents east of Farwell. The bride and groom and her parents formed the receiving line. Assisting as hostesses were two aunts of the bride, Mrs. Alice Nickels of Cleburne and Mrs. Bill Armstrong of Seagraves.

Mrs. Abe Martin of Lariat registered the guests and Mrs. Mildred Eckstein of Portales and Mrs. Margaret Curtis of Farwell presided at the serving table.

The table was laid with a lace cloth over green and was centered with an arrangement of dahlias. Completing the table decoration was the three tiered wedding cake and a punch service.

Gladioli from the wedding setting formed the background for the table. Miss Gertie Moutz of Farwell furnished summer flowers which were arranged throughout the house.

For a wedding trip to parts of Texas the bride wore a two piece brown suit with white accessories. Her wedding corsage completed her going away costume.

The bride is a 1953 graduate of Farwell High School and attended ENMU last year. Jackson received his diploma while serving in the U. S. Navy and also attended ENMU last year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sonny Graham
Publisher
State Line Tribune
Farwell, Texas

Dear Sonny:

Enclosed herewith is a dollar for a copy of the cotton edition you published during National Cotton Week back in the spring. I picked up one copy when I visited your office recently, but I misplaced it. I plan to feature a cotton harvest edition, and your cotton edition would be valuable to me if you don't mind my stealing some of your ideas.

I notice you are winning many honors with your newspaper. Congratulations. In my eyes, they're well-earned honors that I'm mighty happy to see you win. You're setting an impressive pace in the weekly newspaper field, and you're proving a lot of things that I have argued for many years.

Never have I seen anything in the daily or weekly field that would come close to comparing with your cotton edition. It was by far the best edition of any kind, and received my "vote" as a prize-winner.

Thanking you in advance for a copy of the edition, I remain,
Yours truly,
Tom Rambo
Hale Center American
Hale Center, Texas

Editor's note:
We have about 30 more copies of our cotton edition which we would be glad to sell for $1 each. Any takers?

Isn't it odd that it takes a baby two years to learn how to talk and it takes a man 40 years to learn to keep his mouth shut.

Look behind most any baby buggy on any Main Street for proof. The statistical fact is that one new mother in four is under 20, and will be the parents of teen-agers in her thirties, and most likely a grandmother in her forties. With people living longer all the time, the prospect is that a lot of young parents today are a cinch to become great grandparents someday.

also be increased, and the HD educational exhibit on living room improvement will be brand new.

"The response from the women of the county has been wonderful this year," says Miss Stinson. "We have had a lot of interest and cooperation."

Loyde Brewer, chairman of the fiddlers' contest, pointed out this week that this event is mis-termed an "old fiddlers' contest," and actually, string musicians of all ages are urged to participate.

The fiddling competition will begin immediately after the barbecue Friday evening at the Friona park, and Edd Hardage of Farwell is master of ceremonies.

Prizes of $25, $15, and $10 will be handed out for the best talent. The contest will be held in time for viewers to leave in time to see evening football games, emphasizes Brewer.

not quit "in the middle of the race for a crop."

He also reported a few leafworms and said these bear watching, also. They shouldn't be confused with the cabbage looper, cautions Jones. When leafworms begin to rag the leaves, they're doing damage, he notes.

Grain sorghum prospects pointed downward with continued dry, hot weather. Considerable yellowing or "firing" of plants is evident.

Jones said it is his opinion that under conditions such as those of the past few weeks, the effects of continued heavy cropping under irrigated conditions makes itself felt on crops.

"I believe lack of plant food has been an important cause of some of the fields which appear to be hurting," he said. "There have been numerous instances where sufficient water was available, but it alone won't do the job. The plants just wouldn't respond because there was insufficient plant food in the soil."

Considerable Parmer County land is going into its third or fourth year of irrigated production, and in instances where farmers have not practiced returning plant food to the soil in one or more of the several ways possible, the effect is being felt this year.

It's not too late for a rain to do grain sorghum some good this year, believes Jones.

Wheat seeding is just getting started in Parmer County, and about all of the 108,000-acre allotment is expected to be put in.

The agent pointed out the need for treating seed wheat against wireworms and smut, especially where the grain will be "dusted in" on dryland.

Information on inoculants and rates of application can be obtained from the agent's office.

A practice which is gaining favor in wheat production on the Plains (irrigated conditions) is to reduce the elevation of furrows which are used to guide water.

"Farmers have found that the flatter they can get their furrows and still guide the water, the better off they'll be," reports Jones. "It's becoming a common practice to run a stalk cutter over furrows to flatten them out a little before planting."

Harvests of the 10,000 to 15,000 acres of sudan for seed is well under way in the county. Some rust has reduced the yields, notes the agent, but the big cloud on the sudan horizon is the market. Following last year's good market, the sudan sales outlook is extremely poor this season.

HOPPERS—

there's anybody in a fifty-mile circle who hasn't felt the clasp of the Judge at some time in their lives, we'd like to meet 'em.

When we can find time to do it, we intend to move our recently purchased typesetting machine. There's a chance we may get it done within the next two weeks.

The cost of new machines of this complex type is absolutely fantastic. One like we'd like to have was last quoted at about $24,000. We expect there's been a price rise or two since that time.

Well, the machine we are buying is hardly new, and its cost was substantially less than $24,000.

Gabe, our banker, will most certainly set you straight on that point!

More on increasing prices: New cars will be up substantially this coming year, and the new models are just around the corner. Major implement dealers have been notified by their companies that tractors and other equipment are going up, too.

In fact, just take time to ask ANYBODY how the prices of the things he must buy are holding, and he'll tell you they're going UP.

The primary reason is increased cost of production, and the primary reason for increased cost of production is increased wages for union laborers.

It's hard for businessmen to explain to farmers of the area why they must ask more for the things which the farmer must buy, when all the farmer can see is lower prices for the things he must sell.

Manufacturers, processors, distributors, suppliers and the like can pass these increases along to the next man in the trade line easily enough. The retailer ought to, but often he doesn't because he feels he can't.

But farmers are up against it. They can't mark their prices up when costs of producing crops increase.

There's some real fat for the political fire next year if we ever saw it.

Broomcorn Is Good On Dee Owens Farm

fully expects 1000-pound per acre yields, but the crop will not average this across the board.

This is not the first time the Farwell farmer has raised broomcorn. As a former resident of Floyd in Roosevelt County in New Mexico, Owens became very familiar with broomcorn production in that area.

His experience no doubt has contributed to his success in getting the crop this far along in such fine shape, although he says that it is not a difficult crop to raise.

Owens says that he is familiar with the pitfalls, for instance, of planting too heavy. He uses no more than two pounds of seed per acre. Heavier stands may look better, he says, but the heads often develop in "mule tails," which lower the grade of the crop considerably.

Asked what price he expects to receive, Owens said that he has no definite word on the market as yet, but he had heard the price of $350 per ton mentioned. That would be very good if it holds, but the broomcorn market, like that for other minor crops, enjoys great fluctuations, particularly at harvest time.

Labor in harvesting operations is a big headache to the broomcorn producer, according to Owens, who intended to start work last week in pulling, but had no more gotten into the field when his Spanish American help deserted him for something that looked better.

He has arranged with another crew from Clovis to work this week, he says, although he will have to pay 85 cents an hour—which, he believes, is a bit too high.

Plans should have been made, he now is convinced, to secure Mexican National labor on a contract basis, which would have been available at 50 cents.

However, it's too late for that, and such plans will have to be postponed until next year. It is Owens intention to continue growing the broomcorn.

The cost of harvesting his 65 acres is expected to run about $1400, estimates Owens, and this would be too much if a tight market situation develops.

The crop in dryland areas has been short this year, and may help the local market situation. Next year, especially if the price is good this year, Owens looks for considerably more acreage in broomcorn on irrigated farms such as his.

The Lions Club of Texico-Farwell will tonight welcome Lion Cleo C. Ainsworth, District Governor District 40X, Lions International, which includes 27 clubs in this section. Lion Ainsworth is a rancher and lives in Elida, N. M. He is a member of the Elida Lions Club, and has served in nearly every office of that club.

The purpose of Ainsworth's visit will be to advise and assist President James Patrick, Secretary Wilfred Quicel, and the officers and directors, and members of the club on matters pertaining to Lions administration and the Lions' program of humanitarian service.

Lion Ainsworth is one of the 283 District Governors who supervise the activities of the 11,670 Lions Clubs.

Have Water Problem

These three men, who farm northwest of Bovina, say it's tough to make a feed crop on their sloping, tight land without running water into the bar ditches. They are James Readhamer, Melvin McClaren, and Bobby Evans.

Bovina Farmers Find Water Laws Hard To Comply With

By W. H. Graham Jr. And Dolph Moten

Not all irrigation farmers are happy with the pumping regulations of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, of which Parmer County is a part.

This was evident last week after Dolph Moten, publisher of The Bovina Blade, received a telephone call from Melvin McClaren, who lives five miles north and five miles west of Bovina, near the Rhea community.

"Come up and get our side of the story," he suggested in a tone that hinted he was not in a good humor with District laws. McClaren had noticed advertisements appearing in newspapers of the District which pictured instances of what the District officials considered to be wasteful conditions.

These advertisements were prepared and paid for by the Water District and have been timed with a vigorous program of educating irrigation farmers to the laws under which they are supposed to operate their irrigation wells.

Following McClaren's invitation, Moten and W. H. Graham Jr. of The State Line Tribune visited the McClaren farm Saturday morning to observe the conditions of which he spoke.

McClaren, who owns 1100 acres, came here from Lubbock in January of this year.

The husky farmer was busy irrigating his crop, but seemed glad to interrupt his work to talk with the newsmen.

He began by explaining that he and several of his neighbors have been called on several times during this year by officials of the Water District and warned that they must take steps to see that irrigation water from their fields of cotton and maize does not go into bar ditches.

Nearly always, this water that drains into bar ditches from irrigation farms is known as "tail water," and is the water that has already run through the field from high points where the ditch has been cut, and runs out the ends of the rows.

Any irrigation farmer, of course, knows the meaning of "tail water." "Let's drive around a little bit, and I just want to show you some examples of where we have tried to comply with irrigation regulations, and what the result has been," said McClaren. The three climbed into a car and started slowly down the road adjacent McClaren's farm. Pointing to water which was running into the ditch from one of his fields, McClaren noted that in that instance, the water which was running off was being used by a neighbor, J. A. Triplett. That, however, was not the main part of his argument.

After going about half a mile west and turning a mile north, McClaren pointed to a field which was (Continued On Last Page)

This view of the Evans grain sorghum field shows the south or lower end where poor and good grain stood almost stalk-to-stalk. In the foreground is good feed where water retained by a border "backed up" in the rows and furnished ample penetration for about 30 feet. From there northward (up the hill) can be seen a strip about a quarter of a mile wide which is exceptionally poor, and may not pay harvesting.

Streets Are Selected For Paving Project

Friona City Commission met Tuesday evening in the city manager's office for their regular monthly meeting with all members of the commission present.

Members, along with the developers of the Lakeside addition, Warnick and Hunnicutt, worked on the proposed paving project in that portion of the city.

Members of the commission have tentatively selected the streets in Friona which will be paved under the bond issue voted last May. This list is published below and Manager Wilson says that anyone interested in getting their property paved is urged to petition the city for this work.

Those present also discussed the door-to-door salesman problem in Friona and decided that the commission would look into this problem and see what could be done about it.

Wilson states that the commission hopes that the city can put a stop to all peddlers in Friona. This, he adds, stems from the many complaints received at his office by people who do not desire to be bothered by these salesmen.

List of proposed paving is as follows:

- 10th from Pierce to Washington, 36 feet wide, 2 blocks, 600 feet;
- Columbia—9th to 11th, 36 feet wide, 2 blocks, 690 feet;

Fire Demonstration To Be Given Tonight

Friona firemen wish to repeat that they will give their demonstrations on fire fighting tonight (Thursday) at 7 o'clock south of the fair grounds in Friona. They would also like to take this opportunity to thank all the service stations in Friona for supplying them with used oil which will be used in the demonstrations. They would also like to show their appreciation to Opal Jones of Jones Wrecking Yard for donating the car, also to be used in the event.

Demonstrations to be given include controlling and extinguishing a pit fire with low pressure fog; rescue of a dummy from a burning car and extinguishing the blazing car; putting out a service station blaze; demonstrating fire extinguishers, their uses and limitations; burning of two houses with one of them treated with Flarmont (a fire-proofing chemical); and controlling and extinguishing a butane fire which will be the final demonstration.

The department would also like to add that the water polo game will be held tomorrow evening (Friday) at the local park, between the department and members of the Lions Club of Friona. This event will be staged during the course of the Chamber of Commerce barbecue to be held that evening beginning at 5 p. m.

Umbarger Wins Over Friona in Second Game of Play-Offs

Playing without the able assistance of Stan Barrett (pitcher) and the manager, John Renner, the Indians ended up forfeiting their game with Umbarger last Sunday after seven innings with the core standing at Friona, 0, and Umbarger, 13. Barrett and Renner were engaged in a golf tournament at Hereford and were not able to play in the baseball game with Umbarger.

The Indians had two men who had been injured in college football practice who played in Sunday's game. Lindley Davis, one of the injured, pitched the entire game and held the Umbarger team to no runs up until the fifth inning. The other man who was playing under a handicap was Jimmy Oliver.

Winning pitcher for the shut-out game was Dennis Brant. It had not been decided at the time of this report where the third and final game of the series will be played.

It was believed that the game will be played at Hereford although nothing definite has been set at this time.

Chiefs To Play Vega Friday Night Here

The Friona Chiefs will begin their action on the gridiron this Friday when they meet Vega on the home field. Game time is 8 p. m.

Vega is in the 1B district and Coach Means says that his mentors have nothing to win and everything to lose in this, the first game of the season. (Friona is in district 2-A).

Means says that the following is his probable starting line-up, but he adds that this may be changed because of pre-game injuries suffered by his team. He adds that out of 26 starters, 13 are bruised or injured in one way or another.

Since school began last Thursday, Means' hopefuls have been working out immediately after school and he adds that the hot weather has hurt his practice sessions. "The boys don't have the energy to practice because of the heat," Means says.

Probable line-up for Friday's game is as follows: Don Reeve, center, Charles Kirk and Weldon Tatum, guards; Weldon Fairchild and Don McMahan, tackles; Philip Weatherly and Mickey Ready, ends; Wesley Barnett, quarterback; Billy Parker, fullback and Leon Massey and Jerry Chiles at the halfback positions.

At the Friona Methodist Church on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, Miss Tommie Ruth Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Martin of Honey Grove, became the bride of Billy Joe Mercer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Mercer of Friona.

Rev. U. S. Sherrill of the Lorenzo Methodist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Altar decorations consisted of baskets of white gladioli flanked by blue tapers in candelabra entwined with greenery.

Miss Vera Ann Jones of Friona was the organist. She accompanied Miss Betty Agee of Friona, who sang "Always" and "Because." She sang "Wedding Prayer" at the close of the ceremony. Miss Jones also played the traditional wedding marches.

Mrs. Lewis Hargrave of Carlsbad, N. M., who acted as her sister's matron of honor, was attired in a blue ballerina length dress of antique taffeta. It was fashioned with a scooped neckline, short sleeves, a full skirt and a tight fitting bodice which came to a point at the center front. She carried a bouquet of pink asters.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a ballerina length dress of Chantilly lace over tulle fashioned with a high neck with a stand-up collar. The tight fitted bodice, which came to a point at the center front, was fastened down the back with tiny lace covered buttons. Her long sleeves tapered to a point at the wrists. Her skirt was full with a frill of lace around the waist which tapered into a lace panel in the center-back of the skirt.

Her finger-tip illusion veil was attached to a satin covered head piece. She carried a white Bible centered with a white orchid and stephanotis with white satin streamers edged with stephanotis.

Mrs. Martin, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue dress with navy blue accessories. She had a white gladioli corsage.

Mother of the groom, Mrs. Mercer, was attired in a blue dress with blue accessories. She also wore a corsage of white gladioli.

A reception was held at the Methodist annex immediately following the ceremony.

The serving table was laid with white lace over blue with table decorations of blue and white pommums and blue tapers. The table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with the traditional bride and groom.

For the wedding trip the bride changed into a charcoal gray wool suit with avocado accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Four more candidates for queen of the Farmer County Fair have been nominated from Bovina.

New candidates and their sponsors are Patricia Lloyd, Sheryl Grain Company, Sue Hoffer, Warren Auto Supply, Donna Smith, Charles Oil Company, and Lillie Ellison, Bovina Implement Company.

Janie Alverson, sponsored by the Rainbow Girls, was announced as a candidate last week.

Votes are one cent each and "ballot boxes" are stationed in businesses around town. The candidate that receives the most votes will be crowned as queen of the fair. She will ride in the fair parade and will reign over the festivities the weekend of the fair.

The contest will continue through Saturday, September 10, with the queen to be announced at 7:30 that evening, said Mrs. Joe Helton, president of ESA. Voting will close at 6 p. m. Saturday.

It is possible that the line will average 164 pounds.

The squad scrimmaged Vega High School last Saturday night at Vega. Wills said he was satisfied with the results of the scrimmage. Wills offered no opinion as to the outcome of the Springlake game except—"we'll do our best."

Y&R Electrical Contractors Plan Opening Saturday

Y&R Electrical Contractors, a new business in Bovina, is planning a grand opening Saturday, September 10.

Wayne Young, who will run the business, has had 15 years experience in the electrical business. He said that a complete line of light bulbs, fuses, wire, switches, conduits, etc., will be sold by the firm.

Free coffee and doughnuts will be given to the adults attending the opening and there will be balloons for the kiddies. Young emphasizes that the public is urged to attend the opening.

The business is located next door to Edd's Auto Service.

Young, his wife, and three boys, two of which are in school, moved to Bovina August 22, from Hillsboro where he had been in the electrical and picture show business. They had lived in Hillsboro 14 years.

Young said that he is making plans to sell electrical appliances some time in the near future.

More information on the opening will be found in an ad in this issue.

W&M Machine Shop Building Going Up

McCutchan said that a first class machinist would be hired to handle the machine end of the business. They will also do welding and general farm repair. At present, they are working on a deal to sell pumps. If pumps are sold, Grady Whitesides will be in charge of that part of the business. McCutchan will do the welding.

"We hope to have the business open in about a month and plan to have one of the best equipped shops in this area," McCutchan added.

The men are in the drilling business in Bovina now.

School Open House Attracts 1000 People

A crowd of an estimated 1,000 people attended Bovina school's open house Monday, September 5.

Barbecue with the trimmings—red beans, apricot preserves, onions, pickles, ice cream, and coffee or lemonade were served to the group about 8 o'clock on the mosquito-infested football field.

After the meal, the standing-room-only crowd went into the auditorium of the new $600,000 school building for a musical program. Al Kerby and the All-Star Texans opened the entertainment with a song, "Basin Street Blues," featuring Betty Hawkins on the vocal.

The Texans were followed on the stage by the baton-twirling Bell cousins of Clovis, New Mexico—Judy and Sandy. The twirlers who have appeared before as many as 23,000 people at one time are barely in their teens if that old. They twirled first one baton, then two.

Nancy Cumpton, Joan Kay Ezell, and Janice Leake sang "Thirty Pieces of Silver" accompanied by Mrs. Doris Wilson. Kate Jacobson and Suzan Stanfield, dancers, did the Charleston dressed in the attire of the Roaring Twenties, they later, after a change of costume, presented a tap dance.

Another feature of the program was the Wilsonaires, a trio, composed of Lois Terry, Lillie Ellison, and Wannette Barron. They were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Wilson and sang "This Ole House" and for an encore "Take My Hand, Precious Lord."

Kerby and the Texans came back on the stage to play, "I'm Casting My Lasso." It was sung by Charles Phillips and Betty Hawkins teamed together to sing "Satisfied Mind" and conclude the Texans' portion of the show.

Miss Mary Richards of Melrose, New Mexico, was the final performer of the evening. She sang "The Lord's Prayer" and was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson.

Odus Echols, owner of radio station KCLV in Clovis, emceed the show.

Superintendent W. H. Willoughby introduced the teachers, the school board, and employees of the school. However, those introduced did not go on stage.

Willoughby said, "We've waited a long, long time for this building, but personally, I believe it's been worth it."

Wendol Christian, member of the school board, said that the board was of the opinion that Willoughby deserved more credit for the building than any other individual.

The program was dismissed with a prayer by Rev. W. R. Beard.

Following the program, the majority of the crowd made an informal tour of the building. The teachers were in their rooms to assist the visitors.

Willoughby announced that the school's dedication will be Armistice Day, November 11.

FARMERS PROTEST—

Claren stopped and pointed out the spot where a photographer hired by the Water District had taken a picture of water in the ditch which had been used in the district ad on waste.

The farmer obviously was disturbed over his farm being used as an "example" of wasteful pumping.

Moving from McClaren's farm, the party toured the lower end of a maize field owned by James Readhamer, young farmer from Plainview, who is spending his first year in Parmer County.

The car stopped. "Look there," said McClaren. "They (the District officials) said 'shut 'er off' when the water gets to the end of the row. Not more than sixty percent of that grain will ever be harvested where he complied with regulations."

Just then, Readhamer himself drove up and joined the group in a discussion of farming problems as related to their particular cases.

Readhamer and McClaren agreed that the reason for the poor condition of the feed on about the last quarter-mile of the field where regulations were complied with was two-fold:

1. The land of the area is a very tight "gumbo-type" soil that is highly fertile but which receives water very slowly.

2. The slope of the fields, which prevents even distribution of water.

What Can You Do?

The reporters asked the farmers what could be done under these conditions.

"About the only way we can get enough water to our feed right now," said Readhamer, "is to continue running it through the rows until that tight land can soak it up."

This means running it into the ditch on the lower end and resulting in waste or "tail water."

Readhamer was asked about possible levelling. He indicated the pitch of the field was too much for this to be done at anything less than great expense.

He was also asked about the possibility of cutting a ditch at the bottom of the field and collecting the water in a basin, then returning it to the ditch at the top of the field by the use of a centrifugal pump.

"Yes," he said, "that would work, and it's been suggested by the District. But that extra equipment is expensive, too."

At this point he suggested what he considered might be a possible solution to problems of farmers such of those of his area.

"It looks to me that if they are going to make us comply, and tell us that we need to install this equipment, there should be a system of financing such heavy expenses. My operating capital is all tied up in this year's crop."

Another suggestion of eliminating waste water has been to change the direction of the row. This might work, believes Readhamer, but it opens the possibility of soil erosion.

"A hard rain would wash everything away," he said, "and I believe that soil erosion is worse than 'tail water.'"

To illustrate, he pointed out a border that had been thrown up on the lower end of his field to stop water from running into the ditch. The border was full of breaks and gulleys.

A rain of 1½ inches which fell two weeks ago did this damage, he said, and much worse conditions could have been expected if the rows of the field were running another direction.

The third farm viewed that morning was that of Bobby Evans, also of Plainview, and who also is farming his first year out here.

Evans' field presented the most extreme conditions on its lower end. It was not difficult for the untrained eye of the newsmen to see where he had irrigated his crop in accordance with District regulations.

It makes me sick every time I come down here and look at this," said Evans (who was irrigating the field at the time.)

Evans had attempted to route his water away from the bar ditches by cutting a secondary ditch across the lower end of his field.

It had not proved to be too successful.

He and the others pointed out that when borders are built up at the ends of the fields, and the water is forced to stay, it "backs up" seldom more than 20 or 30 feet, and then is in danger of drowning out the crop if allowed to stand for too long a time.

McClaren brought up another point: "We know we are wasting water when we run it into the bar ditch—and we don't want to waste water—but we think that we waste more water when we don't produce."

He was speaking of insufficient irrigation of certain parts of the crop, which although they received some water, were practically not worth harvesting. The water put on this poor part of the crop has been wasted, believes McClaren.

Readhamer, who came from Hale County where there are no pumping regulations (Hale and Swisher Counties are not in the district), said, "I never heard of a Water Board until I came to Parmer County."

"They have taken the attitude that keeping the water out of the ditches is their business, and that what to do with it in the field is my problem."

"I would appreciate some suggestions on how to solve these water conservation problems. I think that some program such as what now exists with the Soil Conservation Service ought to be worked out."
