FROM THE HOPPER

I see in the papers where a North Carolina preacher has announced a public burning of copies of the new Revised Standard Version of the Bible at his church next Sunday.

The poor sap! I wonder if he actually believes his public denouncement of the new version of the Holy Bible will affect the distribution of the new text. He needs to be reminded that history records various attempts that have been made down through the years to stamp out the word of God, and in each and every instance the Holy Will has emerged with even more widespread acceptance and circulation.

While laying no claim to being a Bible scholar, I personally prefer the King James version to any translation I have ever examined. I like it because of its force and beauty of expression. On the other hand, to my way of thinking, many of the passages of this version need a more modern translation for clarification.

The new Revised Standard version is the fourth authorized Bible to appear in 400 years. With the exception of the King James version, none of the others became popular; they all died for the lack of acceptance on the part of Bible scholars and run-of-the-mill readers. For more than 200 years the King James version has been the accepted translation of the English-speaking people, and it is my prediction that it will continue to be this popular choice of these same people.

If the new translation of the Bible is of divine inspiration no power can stop it; if it is of none, it will soon be numbered among the other rejected works.

Ben Smart, Texico furniture dealer who'll sell or swap for most anything, was heading his list of used furniture in his ad this week with a white face cow. He wanted $100 for her.

He was having some circulars printed up with the ad, and right in the big middle of our circular run he phones up to say, "Stop your press. I've got an addition to make to my list of used furniture."

"You know that white face cow we have up for sale?"

"Yes," an employee answered.

"What about her?"

"Well, she just had a blessed event. The cow still goes for a hundred bucks, but I want $135 for the family."

Felix Monroe attended a livestock sale in Clovis on Monday. He shook his head the wrong way during the bidding, and as a result he suddenly found himself in the sheep business.

Before he could get all his sheep removed from the pens a seven-inch snow covered the ground and Felix has been faced with a real task of caring for his small flock.

But he is optimistic about his venture and the ultimate outcome of his investment. He says he has adequate facilities for the proper care and protection of his flock and predicts it will prove a good investment.

Let's hope his venture into the sheep business will not result in one of those old time sheepmen's wars so characteristic of early days. Bill Hall has a small flock just across the fence from the Monroe "spread" and such proximity of locations has been responsible for conflicts between sheepmen of the Plains Country in past years.

And speaking about early days in the Plains Country, I am reminded that B. N. Graham of this city is now

School Dedication Postponed Wednesday

Dedication of Farwell's new school building, which was scheduled Wednesday, Nov. 26, was postponed because of bad weather conditions, school officials say. No school was held Tuesday at Farwell. At press time, it had not been revealed if classes would be scheduled Wednesday.

Texico schools had classes Tuesday, but were dismissed Tuesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving holiday, a day earlier than was previously planned.

Workers Are Named For Dimes Drive

Parmer County March of Dimes campaign chairman, Raymond Euler, this week announced appointment of community workers for the January March of Dimes campaign.

These people will devote more energy and effort to the drive than is realized by the average layman, says Euler, and he urges everyone to cooperate with them in their efforts in this necessary and worthwhile battle against crippling poliomyelitis.

Community chairmen are S. O. Billington, Farwell; Mrs. Harold Carpenter, Oklahoma Lane; Mrs. Joe Jesko, Lazbuddy; R. E. Everett, Bovina; Mrs. Glen Roberson, Black; Mrs. Paul Koeltzow, Rhea; Mrs. Bill Buchanan, Lakeview; and Carl Maurer, Friona.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis pays more money to American hospitals for treatment of patients than any other philanthropic organization supported by voluntary contributions from the public, Euler says. This money is raised exclusively through the annual March of Dimes.

Since 1943, the National Foundation has returned more than $50,000,000 from its half of March of Dimes funds to county chapters which have gone "broke" paying for local patient care.

Euler reminds that 1952 has been the worst year for polio of all time—twice as many cases occurred in America as in 1951. Gamma globulin has recently proven to be a temporary protection against contraction of polio viruses of three types.

"Our hope now," says Euler, "is that through further research, financed through March of Dimes, we will be able to provide a certain, permanent preventative."

TWO MARRIAGES RECORDED

Two marriages were recorded at the office of the county clerk in Farwell last week. They were to Felix Martinez and Sandra McCollum of Santa Fe, Nov. 17; and to Melvin Dean Hall and Ella Mae Wood of Friona, November 22.

TRIBUNE STAFF LIKES HOLIDAYS, TOO!

Excuse the abbreviated edition of The Tribune this week if you will. We're racing the clock in an attempt to squeeze in a day off for Thanksgiving—our usual date of publication.

If everything goes well, this edition should be in the mails late Wednesday afternoon.

Thanks for your consideration, those of you who have cooperated to make this early paper possible. The staff likes a day off for Thanksgiving, too!

THE DAY BEFORE THANKSGIVING

This story, written by Jo Sondra Magerus, Texico High senior and editor of the school newspaper, "The Wolverine," explains the origin of Thanksgiving Day. Animation is used to tell the story, and children will no doubt enjoy the story as much as you will. Read it to them.

By JO SONDRAS MAGERUS

This story is only for people who have imagination. If you are one of the unfortunates who don't possess this magic quality, then you may skip this story. For you who are still reading, let's imagine that we are in the back yard of the Brown home, and we are listening to the conversation of two fat turkeys. We'll call them Tom and Sally Gobble.

"Say, Tom, why all the bustle in the house today?" asked Sally.

"Didn't you know," replied her husband, "that tomorrow is Thanksgiving day for people, although we poor turkeys have very little to be thankful for on that day."

"Why is that?" queried Sally.

"Because people like to celebrate by eating a nice fat bird, stuffed with the gills with brown dressing, and covered with gravy, and we happen to be their favorite bird," answered Tom.

"Oh! How cruel!" gobbled Sally. "How did this custom originate?"

"Well," Tom began, "way back in 1620 the Pilgrims came to America. They had a hard year, trouble with Indians, cold weather, and a lot of other hardships. So they decided to have a big feast, and give thanks for their survival through that perilous year. It was harvest time, and they had all the food they had raised, and all the turkeys they could shoot, for, you know, turkeys were wild then.

"They invited the friendly Indians to feast with them. This custom has continued down through the years. Now, it is the last Thursday in November which they celebrate as Thanksgiving Day. That's the story," he concluded. "What do you think?"

"Well, it seems a very good custom. There's only one way I would like to improve it," replied Sally.

"What's that?" asked Tom.

"Just this," said Sally, "if the people would all eat fish on that day, the turkeys would enjoy a day of thanksgiving, too!"

Second Turkey Shoot Planned By Legion

A second turkey shoot, coupled with match shooting for a new Smith & Wesson K22 pistol, was announced by Justice-Williams Post of the American Legion this week.

Loyde Brewer, legion commander, says the members have designated Sunday afternoon, Nov. 14, as the time for the shoot. It will be conducted along the same lines as the event held Nov. 11, with the exception of the match shooting.

Those entered in the match shooting will get five rounds at a 50-yard target with their 22's. No scope sights are permitted. Persons who wish to enter may purchase match tickets from Joe Jones. Match entries are $5 each.

Wilfred Quickel, chairman of the shoot, says there will be a limit placed on the number of persons who may enter the match.

The shoot was discussed at a meeting of the legion Monday night at the Legion Hall. A small number was on hand.

Besides Quickel, Tom Wagner, Vernon Symcox, and Charlie Thompson will serve on the turkey shoot committee.

TO HOSPITAL

Jim Moore, owner of Jim's Cafe in Texico, was admitted to a hospital in Clovis Sunday. His daughter, Mildred, reported that he was resting well at the first of the week.

Friona Family Home Destroyed By Fire

The C. Cribbs home and household goods in Friona were destroyed by fire Saturday night about 8 o'clock.

According to reports, Cribbs had been in the house to light the butane heater, then had gone outside. Immediately afterwards, he heard an explosion. Cause of the explosion and fire had not been determined Monday.

Mrs. Cribbs was in Petersburg visiting relatives at the time of the fire. Cribbs is employed at the O. F. and O. in Friona.

Opens Radio Shop At Hardage Hudson

D. K. Lindop of Farwell this week announced that he has opened a radio repair shop in the Hardage Hudson building. In addition to radio repair, he will sell Maytag and Crosley appliances with Hardage.

Lindop has never before had a radio repair business, but he was a radio technician for four years in the U. S. Army.

He opened his business last week.

NO AFTER-EFFECTS

Gerald Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Curtis, who was stricken with poliomyelitis several weeks ago, is completely recovered from his sickness. His father said Sunday that Gerald apparently would suffer no bad after-effects.

Prizes Offered in Photograph Contest

The time is almost at hand for the opening of this newspaper's big Child Photograph Contest, and we're urging all our readers to have their children ready for the big day. A photographer from Winston B. Sucas Photographers, Irving, Texas, will be in Farwell on Wednesday December 3 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. for the purpose of taking pictures in this vicinity. His studio will be located at The State Line Tribune Office.

In addition to having their pictures printed in this newspaper the children will be competing for $18.00 in prizes which are being offered for the 3 best photographs made during the day.

The photographs will be made absolutely free of charge, and there is no charge for their publication in The Tribune. Proofs will be shown and from these you may select the picture of your child which you would like to appear in this newspaper. If you wish extra photographs they may be purchased, but no purchase is necessary in order to have your picture printed in this newspaper, or in order to compete for the prizes. It is entirely up to you, whether you buy pictures or not.

There is no age limit on the contest, and every child's photograph in this section is wanted so that they may all appear in The Tribune. However, it is necessary that all of the pictures must be of uniform size, so they must be made by Winston B. Lucas Photographer on Wednesday December 3rd.

Don't wait until little Mary gets married or baby brother is elected to some political office to see their pictures in the paper—make plans now to have those photographs made on Wednesday, December 3rd. Tell your friends and neighbors. The more, the merrier!

See our advertisement in this issue for additional information.

Ex-Student Banquet Is Saturday Night

Saturday night, Nov. 29 will mark the fourth annual banquet for ex-students of Farwell Consolidated Schools. Turkey dinner and all the trimmings will be set before grads and former students as they swap yarns over past years, beginning at 8 p.m.

Wendell Christian, Ex-Student Association president, points out that emphasis on good food and brief entertainment have been carried out in plans for the celebration.

"We believe that people will want to come here and eat a good meal and see their old friends, instead of listening to a dry speaker over a cold meal," he says.

Mrs. Tom Foster will be in charge of entertainment for this year. She accepted the position of program chairman since her daughter, Betty, who was elected to the position last year, is away at school.

Persons who have not paid for tickets and still want to come to the banquet may pay a receptionist at the banquet Saturday night. Band mothers prepare the meal.

Moisture in three guises—rain, snow, and sleet, showered down upon a parched Parmer County and High Plains area the first of this week with the first generally distributed moisture in months.

While it is often true that moisture will hurt some and help other farmers, nobody seemed to have a gripe about the weather the past four or five days.

It is no secret that wheatland was in desperate straits for moisture. While most of the county crop, estimated at 70,000 acres this year, was already germinated by past moisture, the current half-inch or better will carry it along for some time.

County Agent Joe Jones says he doesn't think the moisture will hurt the cotton farmers, either. "If anything," he says, "it'll help them out. Gins will now have a chance to catch up on their work."

In addition, rain and snowfall will provide grazing for winter beef.

Wheat has tapered off heavily in the past two or three years in Parmer County. The current sowing is about one-third of the acreage two years ago. It is about two-thirds of the 1952 acreage.

Jones says the six county gins have ground out around 18 to 20,000 bales of cotton this year, up to the rain, sleet and snow which began Sunday.

Rev. Meyer Is Head Of Junior Red Cross

Rev. George E. Meyer, county Junior Red Cross chairman, was in Farwell over the weekend to establish the program here. He also planned trips to Bovina and Lazbuddy schools.

Rev. Meyer is attempting to enlist the elementary and secondary schools in Parmer County 100 per cent in Junior Red Cross. Students become members by voluntary contribution; assistance in a group projects to derive funds for contributions; and the desire to be a member.

Contributions over and above the enrollment fee go to the children's fund for work around the world. Money is used for the national and international school of correspondence, music and art projects, gift boxes, exchanges, health and safety programs, and others.

After enrollment, schools receive materials to use in forwarding the program, says Bro. Meyer. "As members of Junior Red Cross, students are given an opportunity to serve others in an organized humanitarian program," says Rev. Meyer.

State or Federal Control of Plains Water Is a Possibility

(This is the third in a series of articles dealing with what may be expected in the future of irrigation on the High Plains. Information secured for these stories is by special arrangement with Tom McFarland, head of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.)

"Mr. McFarland, if control is imposed upon irrigation from a state level, through what agency is it likely to be administered?" He answered this question by saying:

"I was at Mineral Wells three weeks ago at the Texas Water Conservation meeting, and I heard that it was 'highly possible' that the Railroad Commission would handle this if the state takes control."

The Railroad Commission is the state agency which now regulates the Texas oil industry. They probably would be the most easily adaptable existing department of the state government to assume irrigation responsibility because of their vast accumulation of geological data.

At this moment, McFarland has learned there is a bill already written for state control of irrigation which will be introduced before the next session of the legislature.

Whether it will be adopted is problematical, of course, but the District official seemed optimistic about chances to defeat it.

The thing we need to worry about right now," he said, "is to get together and get organized so that we can show the people who accuse us of mis-management that we can supervise our own affairs."

Federal control cannot be ruled out of the picture by High Plains irrigation men, but it is quite likely that control from a state standpoint poses as the next bugaboo for us to hurdle. For one thing, ever since 1943, bills have been introduced periodically which would give control to the state.

In 1943, the bill was notably similar to a law already in effect in New Mexico governing irrigation practices and development. Seventy-five aroused irrigation farmers (some of them from Parmer County) went to Austin to help defeat that particular bill.

Since that year, repeated efforts have been made to get similar bills passed, but all have been defeated. Then McFarland explained what happened.

"The legislature said, in effect

'Now, you fellows keep coming down here and telling us you don't want state control of irrigation because it wouldn't work. Why don't you do something constructive; tell us what will work instead of only defeating the bill you don't like.'

"That's where The Underground Water Conservation Law came from. It was an outgrowth of a request to devise some workable means of organizing low-level control over irrigators."

Even before the law was enacted, well owners on the High Plains gave some ear to the need for organization. They voluntarily agreed to give $5 per year per well toward a fund to help organize themselves.

In 1944, irrigation men met at Plainview, and organized themselves into the High Plains Water Users and Conservation Association. That is the parent organization of the Conservation District of today. Membership, then as now, was voluntary.

Working under the provisions of the new law, the 21 High Plains counties encompassed in the district petitioned the State Board of Water

Engineers to designate the boundaries of the district. Those boundaries stand today.

August 4, 1951, the Board of Engineers went to Plainview to create the district. Five precincts were designated for the district, and directors in these precincts were appointed.

The directors were instructed to call an election in the 21 counties for Sept. 29 to determine if the district was desired.

Two other things were asked voters in the election. One was if they were in favor of a five-cent tax on $100 property valuation to maintain the district. In addition, the ballots made provision for the election of precinct directors which had been appointed the previous month.

The election, although in 21 counties, was carried out so that single counties could vote themselves in or out of the district. Thirteen counties agreed to stay in the district and tax themselves.

The present tax rate (paid by every property-holder—not just well owners) is a meager three cents on the $100 valuation. This is especially economical when it is considered that the district is empowered by the Underground Water Conservation Law to tax up to 50 cents.

Headaches "When we called that election," said McFarland, "we found our first big headache. This was a special election, of course, and under the Texas election code, we had to leave the ballot boxes locked up after the election, and couldn't borrow the county boxes. That meant we had to buy over 5000 election boxes and sets of supplies."

After such a wobbly start, the organization seemed to take off on its own power, however. In fact, McFarland confidentially says that he knows of three counties at the present time who would vote themselves into the district now. "They can see the ominous prospect of outside control," he explains.

The real concern of the Conservation District at the moment is the problem of keeping farmers in the district up to date on current developments. "We know that it is far easier to do things through education instead of legislation," the administrator observed, "and we will attempt to educate people to what this organization stands for every chance we get."

It is the plan of the District office, which is located in the Lubbock National Bank building, to prepare and mail to irrigation farmers of the district periodical reports of the latest information on the organization's activity.

This is not a "hot-air" plan, but it won't see any development for several months, probably. McFarland explains that the district is operating as economically as possible at the present time. After tax collections begin to find their way back to the office after the first of the year, expansion of the district's activity will proceed.

McFarland is the only administrative employe of the district. It is his task to keep in touch with all counties in the district. He has only clerical help to assist him with the job.

Turkey After All For Hotel Cafe

As you perhaps noticed, Fred Cornelius carried an announcement in last week's paper that his business, the Texico Hotel Cafe, would serve turkey for Thanksgiving.

But that isn't the whole story. In fact, the cafe owner had intended to serve baked chicken. "I hardly ever break even when I serve turkey," he explained. "I think we'll give em baked chicken this year."

After the advertisement had already been prepared, Cornelius sent word to change "baked chicken" to "turkey."

It wasn't that he had a change of heart. His wife won a handsome gobbler in a drawing the day before.

Local Legionaires To Go To Hereford

Six to twelve local Legionaires are to be in Hereford this weekend to attend the 18th Congressional District Legion convention, Saturday and Sunday, when the state commander, Albert D. Brown, Jr. will be present and the Rev. Bill Arms of Fort Worth the keynote speaker.

Johnie McCuan Returns To School At Farwell

Johnie McCuan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale McCuan, who has been confined to his bed for the past several months, and has worn a cast over the major part of his body to correct curvature of the spine, has returned to his classes at Farwell schools, relatives report.

He is to go back to the polio clinic in Plainview in December for a checkup.

What Do You Need IN THE WAY OF BUILDING SUPPLIES ?

Time was, not very many years back, either, when there was a World War going on. Building supplies were sure enough hard to get hold of then. It was in those tough days that people learned to look to Kemp for leadership in the building supply line.

They found that if a commodity was at all available, it would be found at Kemp, and at a reasonable price. Today, with people building so many homes, there's still a tremendous demand for quality building material. Now, as several years ago, Kemp will have it if anybody does—and you can count on the price being within reason.

Yes, people have learned to depend upon Kemp Lumber Company.

Characters were Septimus Green, J. B. Taylor; Ocey Gump, Wayne Hagler; George Chiggerson, Paul Crooks; Mrs. Chiggerson-Boggs, Phyllis Tucker; Julietta Bean, Aloma Palmateer; Chairman Carter, Catherine Bell, and Judy, the little Clod-hopper, Roxie Henson.

The Curtiss Vocational Division gave Certificates of Achievement to Jo Sondra Magerus, Bettye Bridges, Ester McDaniel, and Daris Leavell in recognition of outstanding selling ability, as a reward for achievement in practical sales work. Bettye also received an engraved pen and pencil set from the Fidelity Division of the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company.

Paul Frederick, High School principal, read some rules made by the student council, which is headed by James King.

Superintendent Agrie Jones states, "We have set the price of admission to basketball games this year at fifty cents for adults, twenty-five for students, and one dollar and twenty-five cents for a whole family, regardless of the size."

Jones further comments, "It is not the money we want, even though it takes a lot to run these ball games, but we want to have a better representation this year than last year."

SENIOR OF THE WEEK

Anita Brown, tall, blond, and pretty—representative of the senior class to the student council—plans to attend Wayland College at Plainview, after graduation, and major in Home Economics. Anita was born "at home" on the farm where the family still make their home. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Brown and she has three sisters and two brothers.

Ice cream is Anita's favorite food, and she prefers aqua to any other color. Her favorites include: church as a place to go; "Amateur in Love", favorite song; and Dodge, her favorite car. James Stewart and June Allyson are her favorites on the screen, and she likes basketball better than the other sports. And her favorite persons are her parents.

Anita is now studying economics, typing II, chemistry, American history, and is a member of the girl's chorus.

Her activities include: member of the Home Economics, Music, and Business Education Clubs. She is active in athletics, currently playing guard on the basketball team.

When asked her pet peeve, she answered, "People address me by my middle name, Fern."

The propelling principle of the caterpillar farm tractor was invented about 1900 by Benjamin Holt of Stockton, California.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Jo Sondra Magerus

Dr. Schwartz's talk on Communism last Friday was really food for thought. He not only started me to thinking about the menace of the malignant disease, communism, but it was also inspiring to find that there are still people who aren't just out to make a "fast dollar". Here was a surgeon with a thriving practice, who gave it all up to travel around the world to prevent the spread of this doctrine. Dr. Schwartz told us to dedicate our lives to God. Surely this is the way to overcome Communism; for Jesus said, "I am the light of the world, and he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life". Communism thrives in dark, dank, places. If we illuminate our lives with faith and love of God, there will be no place for the seeds of communism to take root.

Speaking of Communism, Fred Allen tells about a very sad Russian novel he read. The story is about five Russian families in a modern Moscow apartment. When they moved in, each family was given a large portrait of Stalin. Four of the families hung their portraits on the wall, but the fifth family didn't. The fifth family was sentenced to Siberia as a result. But, the sad part is, that they were the victims of fate. You see, the fifth family had no walls to hang Stalin's picture on. They lived in the middle of the room!!!

Winter is almost upon us. You know, I like spring, summer, and fall—but winter leaves me cold! It would be nice if some of the "hot air" heard all over the country in the recent election could be harnessed and used during the cold winters.

One of the "smelliest" jokes I've heard lately was about the stenographer who didn't mail the circular because she couldn't find any round envelopes!

Thanksgiving is almost upon us. It's a time to be thankful for everything we have. You can always find something to be thankful for, no matter how dark the picture. For instance, there was the man whose houses burned down. When he went to the bank vault to get his insurance policy, he found that it had lapsed. This man was a true optimist. He said, "I'm thankful because if my house hadn't burned, I would have lived on in blissful ignorance, believing the policy was in force. I am so thankful I found out the truth!"

After Thanksgiving, people who didn't have company to help eat the turkey will know just what to expect—turkey sandwiches, turkey soup, and turkey hash!!!

Freshman Girls Present Program

Wednesday afternoon, the Texico Home Economics Club held its regular meeting under the directorship of Mrs. Jimmie Allman, club sponsor.

A short skit entitled "Charm—What It Isn't" was presented by a group of freshman girls; Mary Harriman portrayed Betty, any highschool girl; Sue, her friend was played by Peggy Halsell; Anita Tharp portrayed Jean, another friend. Four girls represented different types of bad manners. Sue Reid was perfect example of a "line-pusher-inner" and later a "bookworm" who entirely ignored other people. Ruth Ann Winkles performed the act of the "knife swallower" and "candy wrapper-dropper."

D'Tanis Caldwell acted the "public maker-upper", which are two well-known pests.

And Bessie Vaught represented two other discourteous manners as a "shouter" and a "late waker" who is always late and not very polite to other people in her rush to get somewhere.

Jo Sondra Magerus concluded the program with her speech, "The American Home—Cradle of Liberty."

Jo Sondra Magerus, club president, called the business meeting to order, and then the secretary read the minutes and called the roll.

Names were exchanged by members for the Christmas party which will be Friday, December 19 in the home economics department, and the group set the price of 75 cents and a dollar twenty-five for Christmas gifts.

Naomi Hapke was replaced on the refreshment committee in which a vacant spot was left in the departure of Nadine Thornton.

ESA Asks Assistance In Financing Treats

Julia Symcox was hostess to a business and social meeting of Theta Rho chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha Monday evening in her home. Attendees included Nell Walling, Dardanelle Helton, Jeanne Graham, Julia Symcox, Gladys Kaltwasser, Elizabeth Kaltwasser, Dorothy Quickel, Wilma Liner, Margie Crooks, Gloria Miller, Iris Thornton and Rosa Roberts.

Principal item of discussion was the financing of Santa Claus treats to be distributed in Texico-Farwell December 17, when Santa and his reindeer are in town. According to reports, $38.74 had been derived by donation from sorority members and by serving the Lion's club and members donating the food, at the last Lion's meeting. An auction was then held on wrapped boxes, and derived $11 toward the project.

The organization, having about $50 on hand for the project, then heard reports on other phases of money-making ideas that could gain funds within the next two weeks. Members are selling Jonquil hosiery, with profits to go to the fund. For further money, attendants decided to ask other organizations for contributions in furthering the project, which is actually community-wide and benefits all children in the community.

"Also we would appreciate assistance from any individual or business firm in the community who wishes to help bring Santa Claus to Texico-Farwell youngsters and those in the surrounding communities," says Mrs. Sonny Graham, president.

It was decided to meet on December 11 to fill boxes to be distributed as treats. Last year's cost for the project was about $120 and 1000 treats were given away, and ESA hopes to equal this again this year.

Christmas party for the group, which was originally scheduled for December 22 in the home of Nell Walling, was changed to December 18. Secret pals will be revealed and gifts exchanged.

Iris Thornton was in charge of the program on "In the Social World," and made a short talk on social etiquette. Pumpkin pie, ice cream and coffee were served at the close of the meeting.

Next session is planned December 8 in the home of Rosa Roberts. Each member will wear the old clothing which she purchased at the last two sessions. Time is 8 o'clock.

INSURANCE OF ALL KINDS

Farwell, Texas

Telephone Lines To Benefit South Parmer

The Five Area Telephone Cooperative, Inc. has received a telegram stating that a loan has been made by the Rural Electrification Administration in the amount of $983,000.00 for the purpose of establishing rural telephones in Bailey and Cochran Counties, the north and west part of Lamb County, the southwestern part of Castro County, and the southern part of Parmer County. The money will be used for the construction of telephone lines and the installation of seven automatic exchanges.

The system will be a "dial" with individual and party lines. Rates for the different lines have not yet been established. The loan made by the government is to be repaid over a period of thirty-five years with interest. The cost of operating, maintenance service, and re-paying the Government will be derived from monthly telephone bills of the users, or members. Members, or users, may be required to put up $45.00 equity and $5.00 membership. Signed applicants have already paid the $5.00 membership fee.

A charter was received from the Secretary of the State of Texas for the Five Area Telephone Cooperative, Inc. in May 1950.

The Bailey County Electric Cooperative Association has been sponsoring, or assisting in securing applications and preparation of pre-allocation. At the present time it is not known whether the Telephone Cooperative will be handled by the Electric Cooperative or will be established in a separate building and operated separately from the Electric Cooperative.

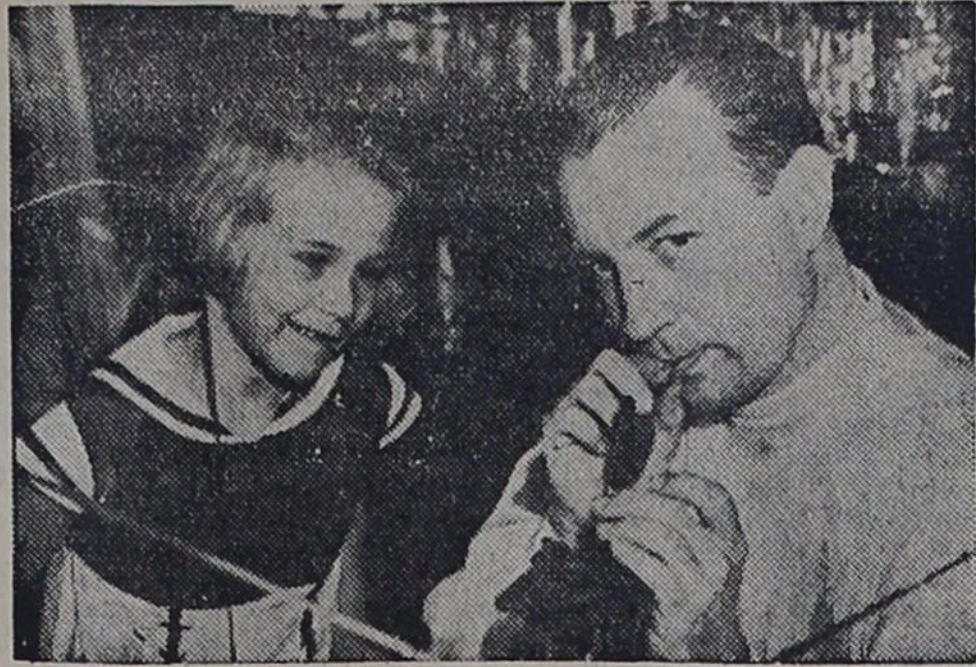

The first actions to be taken are to determine the rates and collect the equity so that construction might proceed.

RALPH MELVILLE

Master Glass Artist To Perform At Farwell

Ralph Melville, master glass artist, will be presented in assembly at Farwell schools at 9 o'clock, December 8, under the sponsorship of Southern School assemblies, local school officials say.

Glass pattern making or glassblowing is one of the oldest known arts. Glassblowers were first believed to be "workers of the devil" because they worked with fire. Later, because the art was kept secret in closed guilds, artisans were honored and encouraged to marry into royalty. It is an almost forgotten art in this country since so few people practice in the machine age, releases say.

Melville, by the skillful manipulation of his hands, pressure of his lips and throat creates birds, animals and vases from a simple tube of glass. Only by actually witnessing this work do people believe it actually can be done, the release continues.

Melville has created glass patterns for Corning Glass Works and Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation. In his lecture, he traces the history of glass from the beginning and describes its important uses in industry today.

Contestants should send their names to Bailey County Electric Cooperative, Muleshoe.

TO DETROIT

Walter Hardage was in Detroit, Mich., over the weekend where he attended a dealer's meeting for Hudson Motor car dealers. Hardage went by air. He called home Monday and reported the weather there to be "not even cloudy."

Ways To Education

There are many instances in Parmer County, and surely in other counties as well, where farmers had never seriously entertained the idea of installing an irrigation well until only recently.

It is quite natural that these particular individuals be a little "in the dark" about the problems of irrigation's application, since this particular phase of his farming had never before played an important part.

To these people, who may want to "brush up" on just where they stand and what they are likely to see happen in coming year, McFarland gives this advice:

"Go to the county agent's office and get a copy of the bulletin prepared by Texas A & M on The Underground Water Conservation Law. Another factual source of information is the Progress Seven report from the state board."

In addition, there are many agricultural magazines which devote a good deal of their lineage to topics concerning irrigation. Any questions for specific information are welcomed at the District office in Lubbock.

Regulation Feb. 1
The latest action of the Conservation District was at Hereford three weeks ago. From that meeting came agreement to require permits to drill in the District Feb. 1, 1953, and thereafter.

This is where another headache to the organization pops up, says McFarland. It isn't difficult at all to get a permit, unless of course, the person making the application is likely to endanger his neighbor's resources.

The principal reason for requiring permits is to insure proper spacing of wells. That seems to be a pretty touchy subject.

McFarland makes it plain that that the District knows it is impractical to attempt to impose a uniform program of well spacing over the district because of widely fluctuating conditions in formation which make some wells able to produce more than others.

For instance, there are many areas in Parmer County where it is possible to draw underground water from what is commonly called "river-bed gravel." This gravel, since it is much more porous than ordinary water sands, permits water to percolate into the well much faster in these areas than in others.

By contrast, McFarland told of an instance near Hereford where a well was drilled to a much greater depth than neighboring wells in an attempt to get into this gravel. There was plenty of water to be had, but the drillers were unable to find the gravel. In fact, they were unable to find a foundation for the bottom of the well and the casing had to be

"swung" from the top.

Varying conditions such as these make it impractical to make sweeping well spacing regulations, because what is known as the well's "area of influence" (the underground water area affected by the drawing action of the well) varies from place to place in the district.

County-wide Basis

For this reason, drilling permits will be issued through the county committeemen who are likely to be more familiar than anyone else with what may be expected to be a "safe" distance to space wells.

After Feb. 1, when a farmer wants to drill a well, these will be the steps he will take:

He will see one of his county committeemen or his well driller to obtain a form called "intention to drill." He will fill this out, mail to the committee.

On this piece of paper will be a map showing location of the proposed well, in addition to the location of other nearby wells already put in. After examining this, the committeemen will approve or refuse the application, basing their decision on the facts before them at the time.

Naturally, there is little likelihood that any permits will be refused in large numbers, because High Plains farmers have traditionally been respectful of their neighbor's welfare.

However, McFarland cautioned that it is becoming increasingly evident that persons from other areas are buying large tracts of High Plains land and exploiting the underground water resources.

It is this type of development that we must be careful of, he says. These outside persons, who are seeking to invest their money somewhere for the greatest short-time return possible, are looking more and more to the fertile irrigable acres on the High Plains for these investments.

Some of these people are not interested in conservation of our water," warns McFarland. "They only want to get the most they can from the land as quickly as possible."

Right Of Appeal

If a farmer is denied a permit to drill a well, he can appeal the decision of the county committeemen to the District board. Of the five men on the county committee, it is only necessary to secure the consent of three for a permit.

"There's one thing we want to clear up right now," says McFarland, "and that is the matter of how much the permit will cost. There will be no fee whatsoever connected with the securing of a permit. The farmer is out nothing. This permit is for his own protection."

The thirteen counties now included in the High Plains Water Conservation District include Randol, Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Floyd, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Lynn, Potter, and Armstrong.

Those counties which voted themselves out of the district are Oldham, Swisher, Briscoe, Hale, Crosby, Dickens, Garza and Terry.

Parmer County committeemen include Bruce Parr chairman, and Raymond Euler and Tom Caldwell. Euler, elected last January for a one-year term will be retired from office this January unless re-elected.

Parmer voters will then elect three men to give Parmer County a five-man board. The election, which will be the second Tuesday in January, will also have voters expressing their opinion for a new precinct director.

Parmer, Bailey, and Castro counties are in this precinct.

TO MEET MONDAY

Officers of Farwell FFA chapter will meet Monday night at the agriculture building for a regular session, Robert "Prof" Morton announces.

STUDENT COUNCIL MEETS

Members of the student council met Friday to discuss two phases of new business.

The committee assigned to get information on a pep club for Texico, gave its report. The report showed that all girls in high school wish to join the club and the uniforms are to consist of white blouses or sweaters and Kelly green skirts. The report was accepted by the council.

The other phase of business was to have the teachers ask the students of each class to clean the rooms as they leave them at the end of the period. If the rooms aren't left clean, it then becomes the teachers responsibility and they will be asked to do the work themselves.

Bovina Teachers Are Hosts To Educators

The local faculty of the Bovina School was host to the County Teachers meeting Wednesday evening. Dinner was served in the school cafeteria and was prepared by Mrs. Wassom, Mrs. Buck Lloyd and Mrs. Kelso, the cafeteria women.

The table centerpiece was a white cardboard church with blue celophane windows on a mirror with snow around on it. On either side were red candles and white bowls, followed by a small pilgrim boy and girl. The remainder of the tables were centered with the miniature pilgrim boy and girl with miniature shocks of feed and different colored autumn leaves.

The dinner consisted of baked chicken and dressing with vegetable salad, cranberry sauce, date pudding, spiced tea and coffee. Teachers from Lariat, Farwell, Friona, and Lazbudd were there and special invited guests from Muleshoe and Texico. After the dinner, the teachers met in the auditorium of the high school for the program.

The speaker for the evening was Dr. Emmett Smith from West Texas State College at Canyon. The music was furnished by a popular orchestra directed by Keith Baten, the school band teacher. A vocal ensemble was presented by the fifth and sixth grade girls. Afterwards, they were divided into groups and visited in various school rooms for discussion and observations.

RECEIVES COMMODITIES

Bovina school cafeteria has received commodities from surplus. It was a good thing when Texas finally set up an agency to take care of the surplus commodities, officials say. The State Welfare Agency finally accepted the responsibility for distributing the commodities since the State Education Agency had not done so. Among commodities received this year, fresh eggs, frozen turkeys, pinto beans, and cheese have been the most valuable. It would have been impossible to run a school cafeteria on the present rate of charge per student without the commodities, it has been reported.

Men also discussed the supplying of bedding for the Parmer County livestock show in the spring, and Hadley Reeve was reelected secretary of the group.

Friena Chiefs Play For Bi-District Title

Friena Chiefs, district 3B football champions, made quite a record for themselves this past year. The Chiefs will play the Idalou Wildcats in the bi-district game today (Thursday) at 2:30 in the afternoon, at Plainview, Dillie Kelley, high school principal, announces.

This is the first time the Chiefs have won a district title. In 1944, they tied with Tuia and Hereford for the honor, and three schools flipped a coin to see what team would represent the district in the bi-district game. Hereford was the winner.

As for players, Darrell Robbins was a mainstay of the team the past year. He scored 126 points in the nine games of the season, was an all-district back during 1951, and voted as quarterback on the all regional second team. Robbins has also gone to state in track for two consecutive years, and placed second in the 440 at state last year, running the dash in 51 seconds.

D. O. Robason scored 75 points during the year, and filled the quarterback slot. Also a track man, Robason ran low hurdles at regional last year in 21.4 and runs the hundred yard dash in 10.7. Virgil Phipps has a 40-point record for the season, and has kicked seven out of ten extra points. Phipps weighs 192 pounds and can run the hundred in eleven seconds.

David Patterson scored five points, and kicked five out of ten extras. Wayne Cribbs made 15 counters, making most of his gains through the line.

In the entire season, Friena only lost two games, the first to Springlake, Class A school, by only one touchdown. Hereford, also a Class A school, defeated the Chiefs 19-7. Anton was the only conference threat the entire year, and the Chiefs rolled over them 61-33.

Coaches of the Chiefs are Raymond Cook and Lee Burnett. Roster includes: George Price, Kenneth McLellan, Keith Batteny, Roy Haney, Doy Hammett, Wayne Houlette, M. C. Osborn, Jimmy Norwood, Jimmy Robason, Glenn Reeve, D. O. Robason, Teddy Fangman, Also Darrell Robbins, Gene Watson, Jerry Zachary, Ben Jordan, Wayne Cribbs, Arnold Fangman, Virgil Whipp, David Patterson, Gaylon Rhodes, Dewayne Taylor, Jerry Houlette, Danny Bainum, and Kenneth Ferguson.

Senior who will graduate from the team are: Price, Haney, Osborn, Robason, Robbins, Jordan, Cribbs, Arnold Fangman, and Patterson.

GAMES POSTPONED

Texico and Field basketball games which were scheduled to be played on the local court Tuesday night were postponed because of bad weather, Agrie Jones, superintendent says. Another date for the boys' and girls' sessions will be announced later.

Farwell Teams To Be Tournament Hosts

Farwell High School will be host to an invitational basketball tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday, December 4-6, Supt. Jack Williams, superintendent, announces. Both boys and girls teams will be entered in the tourney.

In the boy's bracket, Farwell B team will meet Bovina at 6:45 Thursday afternoon, to get festivities underway. Bovina B will play Farwell that night at 9:15. Adrian is then pitted against Lazbuddy at 6:45 Friday evening, and the Friena and Vega teams will take the court at 9:15.

In Saturday's play, losers of the Farwell B-Bovina and Adrian-Lazbuddy games, will be pitted against one another; and at 1 o'clock, low teams of the Bovina B-Farwell and Friena-Vega tilts will play. Winning teams will play at 2:15 and 3:30 in the afternoon, respectively. Consolation game is planned at 6:45 and Championship tilt will be played at 9:15.

In the girl's bracket, Bovina and Lazbuddy begin the competition at 5:30 Thursday; then Ranchvale meets Farwell at 8 o'clock. Friday night, Vega is pitted against Texico at 8 o'clock; after Friena and Adrian play at 5:30.

Low teams of the Bovina-Lazbuddy and Ranchvale-Farwell games play at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon; and losers of the Vega-Texico and Friena-Adrian sessions, play at 9 o'clock that night. Winners of the first bracket meet at 3:15 Friday and at 10:15 Saturday morning, respectively.

Consolation game is to be played at 5:30 Saturday afternoon, and championship girls' game is to be played at 8 o'clock Saturday night.

Farwell Teams Lose Openers To Melrose

Both A and B boy's basketball teams at Farwell schools were defeated by the Melrose teams Friday night in the opening games of the season for the Steers. Games were played on the Farwell court.

Score for the B session was 25-21, with Melrose in the lead. Starting team for Farwell included James Roberts, Jerry Poteet, Joe Roberts, Don Gerles and Gene Hardage. Scoring was pretty even among the visiting boys, and high men for the locals were Joe Roberts, Hardage, and Eddie Smith, with six points each.

Melrose was ahead three points at the end of the first, then Farwell gained a 9-7 edge by halftime. The second half was all for the visitors, however.

In the senior game, final count was 49-35. Score by quarters was first, 18-14 with Farwell leading; second, 27-21 Melrose; and third 39-28, Melrose.

Starters for the Steers were: Lynn Carpenter, Billy Medley, Ted Magness, Ronnie Dial and Junior Poteet. Scoring was distributed well among the local, but Barron of Melrose was the major threat, bagging 26 points.

Hoppers—

approaching his fiftieth year as a resident of the Texas Plains. He came to Running Water as a young unmarried school teacher in the fall of 1903, and has lived on the Plains continuously since that time.

Fifty years is a long time for anybody to live in one general locality, and this is especially true of this region, which is considered a comparatively "new country."

Amarillo was the nearest rail point to Running Water 50 years ago when the local townsman got off the train there with all his earthly possessions stuffed in a flour sack and took a mail hack to his first school-teaching job, some 65 miles to the south.

Graham is considering writing a book of his experiences on the Plains, which would make interesting reading. I only hope he carries out his plans.

Recalling some of his early experiences he relates that quite often he would walk fourteen miles to spend weekends with his sister; then retrace his steps Sunday afternoon in order to be back to his school duties on Monday.

"That was before the days of hitch-hiking," he says, "rather it was just plain hiking."

Here's a letter from Edward Yoder of Texico, who read a story in our paper last week concerning a "flying saucer" that hung in the sky south of the city for several hours.

This object, officially identified as a weather balloon by the Clovis AAFB, still causes scratching of heads by some people who saw it through binoculars. They say it didn't look like a balloon at all.

Edward says he doesn't think it was a weather balloon either. He worked at the base for thirty-eight months, and has seen a lot of weather balloons, he says.

When released, the balloons ascend rapidly for about thirty minutes, and then burst in the rarified atmosphere which causes them to swell to many times their size on earth.

Edward refers us to an article by Gordon Lindsay, a religious writer, who maintains the "saucers" are of supernatural origin. Any other theories?
