

PLAINVIEW SCOUTS GO DOWN TO DEFEAT IN WILDCATS CLAWS

The Littlefield Wildcats flashed an offensive last Friday afternoon that eclipsed anything seen by local fans this season; connecting with it was a defense so stubborn that the Plainview Scouts were only able to annex two first downs during the entire game. Such a fighting spirit was due to win and it did win 58-0.

Capt. Sid Hopping led the offensive for the "Cats," turning in the most brilliant game of his career. Kenneth Staggers, a new backfield recruit, brought the crowd to its feet many times with his side stepping and broken field running. His spectacular work was only equaled by that of Sid Hopping. Fontaine Parker played his best game of the season, plunging the line at will for long gains. L. Springer and E. White played their usual steady game in the backfield. E. Hopping was the hero, of the last quarter when he tackled Ratliff who had recovered a fumble and was racing for a touchdown. This was the only time that Plainview threatened to score and it was cut short by a brilliant tackle.

The "Cats" made a total of 19 first downs, most of them being made on straight football. The serial game was not a success in the "Cat" offense. The driving power of the "Cat" line made holes in the "Scout" line and gave the backfield a chance to make the needed gains.

Capt. Ratliff, of the "Scouts" showed himself to be a real field general, but his youngsters were too light to plow the Wildcat line, and his aerial game went for naught whenever attempted.

Good sportsmanship was the keynote of the game. Never was a game fought cleaner and with fewer protests and penalties, only two penalties were assessed during the game, and these were only for 5 yards each.

The Plainview boys are the cleanest players and the best sports faced by the local boys this season, and tho they were defeated by a superior team they went down fighting—the nobles tribute that can be paid to any team.

THE ART of CARVING

THE Thanksgiving dinner exalts an art which in more hurried and less hospitable seasons declines and falls—the art of carving. This question, "Who is to carve?" figures not least among the domestic worries attendant upon the festive celebration.

Comparatively few men nowadays combine the dexterity and speed demanded. Faced by the necessity of having to carve, the modern man either shrinks back appalled or takes up the steel with martyrlike resignation, and often with disastrous results.

It was not so in the good old days. A certain immortal chronicle records that "Mr. Wilkes was very assiduous in helping Doctor Johnson to some fine veal. 'Pray give me leave, sir. It is better here—a little of the brown—some fat, sir—a little of the stuffing.'" But somehow, midway in the mid-Victorian age, the ability to carve passed from the commonality. The roast left the dinner table for the sideboard. Perhaps butlers were then both numerous and cheap, or perhaps it was evolution. Mr. Strachey doesn't tell. But no one disputes the fact. The young Englishman of today finds "the roast beef of Old England" as impregnable as would-be invaders did her "wooden walls."

Yet the act of carving gives to hospitality a certain homeliness, an informality, which meals served from sideboard or kitchen seem to lack. It indicates the host's personal interest in each guest; it carries with it, moreover, a suggestion of unselfishness. While working for others, the carver must perforce forego, temporarily, conversation, banter, repartee. He must concentrate; he must make haste; for the art is long, the time is fleeting, and the plates cool.

Fortunately, the custom of carving the Thanksgiving turkey at the table has become a fixed part of the day's ritual. That this gracious art is thus kept from complete disuse, and is, indeed, exalted by reason of its association with the most distinctly American of the year's holidays, may even appear to some old-fashioned, unprogressive souls as an additional cause for giving thanks.

High School Seniors Entertain Public With Gump Scenes At School House Saturday Night

"A howling success" is the way most people express the results of the "Gump" show given by the members of the Littlefield senior class at the school house Saturday night. It was one spontaneous and continuous uproar of laughter from beginning to end.

Lorry Barber, the six foot two inch baby won the prize of the evening. "Oh isn't he a darling?" was the frequent expression. All the girls talked baby talk to him, wanted to tickle him under the chin and get him to show his "toofies." Some of the good mothers insisted that his milk bottle was not being kept warm enough, and on one occasion when he set up a squall, a dear old motherly soul wanted to jostle him across her knees for the colic. Baby Lorry may grow up to be a real man someday, but he'll never get over that night's experience.

Miss Charlene Smith, the class mascot, was indeed the picture of innocence and sweetness; dressed as a pink rose, representing the "Queen of Fragrance."

Then there were a bunch of burlesques; the bridal chamber, Bonapart crossing the Rhine, the retail department, etc.

Perhaps the most realistic feature of the evening was that of the Inferno, with Sid Hopping playing the part of his majesty, Bezebub. The big furnace in the basement had been "heated seven times hotter than it was want to be," the hissing steam was turned from the radiators; there were piles of bones in evidence; the Devil, with cloven hoofs and horned head, a pitchfork in his hands, and, breathing livid flames of blasphemy upon his victims, was seated upon his throne in realistic manner. Not a few of the visitors who witnessed this scene shuddered with horror as they contemplated their hereafter, it is said, and some were even heard to mumble incoherent prayers of repentance. Incidentally one Littlefield merchant reports an old grocery account of long standing being paid early Monday morning, which he attributes to the great moral lesson received by this party through the scene of Dante's Saturday night.

Of course the "Gumps" themselves were there to do honor to the occasion. Miss Eunice Spiekard was Minn, Fontaine Parker was Andy, and O. K. Yantis, jr., was Chester.

Candy, sandwiches, coffee and other good things to eat were served by the mothers of the class members. About $50 net was realized by the class from the evening, the money to be used in purchasing their class rings.

At any rate Plainview football boys should be given credit for being good losers. They have lost most of their games this season, but it will give them some fine experience for next year, and most of this year's team will be playing next year.

According to the "Illiteracy Report of the State of Texas," a copy of which has been received by the Leader, the illiteracy of Lamb county is only two tenths of one per cent. Something else to crow over!

The Pumpkin Pie Frolic

By
Mrs. D. Jones

IT WAS the night before Thanksgiving. On the pantry window-sill a long row of pumpkin pies lay, rich and mellow, waiting the next day's feast. The well-picked turkey lay on his platter in silent majesty and from the cooking certain spicy odors wafted prophetic of happy satisfaction for keener appetites.

All was still, for everyone had gone to bed. Through the window, presently, the golden rays of the autumn moon stole, pausing gently to rest on the pumpkin-pies. "Ah, me," sighed a plump, jolly-looking pie, "How often we have watched that same moon from our place in the fields! How I wish we were back there again!"

As he spoke, they all heard a soft fluttering of wings, and when he had finished, there alighted on the window-sill the prettiest little fairy they had ever seen. Her eyes were as blue as the lake on a sunny morning, and her hair as lovely as the silken floss of the corn. On her head was a crown studded with frost sparkles and her dress was trimmed with lace from the loom of the black widow as the Spider.

"All right, jolly pies, you may have your wish," she said. So saying, she touched the pies with her wand and up they jumped, the queerest little persons with fat, laughing faces and long, thin legs.

"You may frolic wherever you wish," she said, "but you must come back as soon as the cock blows his silver trumpet." Then she drew aside the screen and away went the Pumpkin Pie people.

As they ran down through the garden the cabbages and carrots and parsnips stared in surprise. Then they started to laugh, and how they did laugh. In fact, one cabbage laughed so hard that he burst, which was very careless of him, and wouldn't have happened if he had been holding his sides.

But the Pumpkin Pie people didn't care. On and on they ran, through the orchard and past the barns. The pig eyed them with a sleepy grunt, but they were going so fast that he didn't think it worth his while to try to catch them. Finally they came to the broad field where all summer they had hidden under the broad leaves from the hot rays of the sun, and where they had been so happy till that dreadful day when they had been taken away and put into pies.

Then the Pumpkin Pie people took hands and danced and sang. So happy were they, and their music had so much magic in it that even the frozen leaves of the Pumpkin trees turned green again and waved a time with their dancing. The rabbits and field mice came from far and near and stood about with their arms folded, gravely watching the joyous scene.

All too soon the sound of the silver trumpet came over the field. The pumpkin vines withered up and lay stiff and lifeless as before and the mice and rabbits scampered away. Away scurried the Pumpkin Pie people, back through the barnyard, the orchard and the garden and very, very quietly crept through the pantry window. "Thank you, kind Fairy," they said to the Thanksgiving fairy who was waiting for them. For answer, she touched them with her wand, and they sank to their places on the window sill as before. Then she disappeared.

But no one would have dreamed next day what a spice of mischief and adventure was in those pies, which the cook had never put there at all.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE WOULD DESTROY THE COYOTE

O. L. Coleman, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, with headquarters at Canyon, was in Littlefield this week interesting the Lamb county officials and county farmers and stock men in the eradication of wolves and coyotes.

While here Mr. Coleman stated to a Leader representative that the Department of Agriculture offers to assist our county citizens in the eradication of these animals by furnishing them with their representative and such other assistance as may be needed to carry out the campaign successfully.

During the past year Mr. Coleman has conducted successful campaigns of this nature in Potter, Oldham, Hartley, Moore, Carson, Hutchinson and Hemphill counties, also in Palmer and Bailey counties along the New Mexico line. Each of these counties have made appropriations for the exterminating of these animals.

It has been estimated that the average yearly damage of these animals per county, in this part of the state, will approximate $10,000 each, in the destruction of sheep, goats, young calves, poultry, etc. Most of the counties are appropriating $300 each toward this work. Oldham and Matador counties say they saved at least $1,000 in bounties last year as the result of this campaign. In some counties from $500 to $1000 worth of fur was sold from the animals that had been destroyed through the cooperation of the Department with county officials and citizens.

At the conclusion of the football game between Littlefield and Plainview, Friday afternoon, Coaches Merrell and Parnell awarded letters to the following members of the local squad:

Lorry Barber, Cecil Williams, Todd Williams, Scott Vickery, Kenneth Staggers, Lloyd Springer, Stanley Stripe, Fontaine Parker, Earl Hopping, and Captain Sid Hopping.

In order to earn one of these coveted letters or "wild cats," a player must have played at least 15 creditable quarters during the season, at the same time making a passing grade in the majority of his studies.

The men receiving the awards, worked hard for them, and are well deserving of the credit given them. They are to be congratulated.

Organize New Society

A Home and School Society was organized Friday morning at the local school house. Mrs. R. L. Speight was elected president; Mrs. Pat Boone, vice-president; Miss Vivian Courtney, secretary.

The meetings will be held monthly, the first being set for the evening of December 14th. The meetings will be held at night at the school house, so the men can attend.

The first program will be "Education in the Home, the School, the Church and Sunday School."

WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN

When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock,
And you hear the kyouek and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock,
And the cacklin' of the guineys, and the cluckin' of the hens,
And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence;
Oh, it's then's the times a feller is a-feelin' at his best,
With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
As he leaves the house bareheaded, and goes out to feed the stock
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the fodder's in the shock.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Turkey Raisin'

With the price of Thanksgiving turkeys dropping down to 13 cents per pound, the hard-working turkey raiser now feels himself in the "put" class of the other denizens of the soil who must succumb to lower prices for their commodities on the very eve of marketing.

However, it is being gently hinted that just as soon as the Eastern holders of last year's stock dump their 6,000,000 pounds of storage birds on the markets, the price of the new crop may advance materially, and Christmas markets have a better showing.

Raising turkeys is no small task at least. The birds being naturally of a roving nature, one must keep on the job constantly if they would realize on their hatch. There are a hundred and one things that may affect the final outcome of the crop.

It may be the agility and elusiveness of the grasshoppers, which frequently head the battling order of the turkey's foraging menu, thus necessitating great mileage on the part of the pursuing birds, with subsequent large casualty lists.

It may be too much rain, causing young turkeys to go to bed with wet feet, only to awake next morning with a dark brown taste in their mouths and pneumonia in their lungs—and eventually die (unnatural.)

And, it may be sore throat—a common ailment. How many of these fine birds have passed into the great beyond from follicular inflammation of the interior part of the pharynx, no one knows. Picture the cost of bandaging, every night, the throats of 863 turkeys with vinegar and red flannel. Or with fat pork, at current pork prices. Imagine the expense, in time and money, of making 972 turkeys gargle salt water and eucalyptus oil three times a day. And then to have the price to drop to that unlucky number of 13 cents per pound—Oh my! Will no one pity the turkey raisers!

Football Record
Last Friday closed the football season in Littlefield. The Littlefield high school has played eight games this season, and lost only two of them; one by seven points and the other by one point only.
The total number of points gained this year by the local squad was 108, against 21 for their opponents. This is quite a different showing from last year's games.
Last year Littlefield's total number of points were only 44, while their opponents rolled the scores up to 328.

This is certainly a worthy showing and deserving the commendation of every citizen of this school district. Coaches Merrell and Prof. Parnell have done some fine work with the boys this year, they deserve unstinted praise, and the boys themselves, entering heartily into the spirit and training for the game have made a showing which many a larger town may well boast.
Altho the Athletic Association is still in debt, if the people will give their attendance as they did in last Friday's game, they may yet crawl out on top.

For the first time since this new car was announced early in October all of the 5000 dealers throughout the land have now been furnished with sample cars of this type.

No car that Willys-Overland has ever introduced has met with the spontaneous and immediate acclaim that greeted the Champion. It probably is the most divergently useful car ever brought out. Its front and rear seats can be easily and quickly adjusted to three different positions, permitting a tall driver to manipulate foot pedals without cramping of legs. By the same token a short driver can adjust the driver's seat so that he can easily reach the pedals. Rear seats can also be moved forward or back to accommodate the convenience of the passengers.

Both front and rear seats and upholstery can be entirely removed and made up into a luxurious bed right in the car.

With rear seat and upholstery removed fifty cubic feet of space for salesman's samples, suit cases, trunks and luggage, farm tools, produce and supplies, camp duffle and other equipment that it might be necessary to transport, all of which can easily be loaded into this compartment.

Third Lyceum Number

Miss Marion Ballou Fisk, the noted cartoonist-lecturer will give the third number of the lyceum program here at the school-house next Friday evening.

Miss Fisk has been before the public for nearly thirteen years, appearing in every state of the Union and every province of Canada. She is a most talented cartoonist, a splendid lecturer and a fine entertainer, her evenings chock full of philosophy and speaking with wit and humor.

Her drawings are original, their shadings especially delicate; done with amazing quickness and accuracy. Her caricatures are apt and forceable. She will interest you every minute of the evening. Don't fail to attend.

Lutheran Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving service will be held at the Lutheran church Thursday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock. The sermon will be in the German language.

Next Sunday morning there will be preaching services in German, and at the evening hour, preaching in the English language.
