WEARY OF POLITICS

It is an encouraging sign that more and more farmers, and the farm organizations which speak for them, are apparently growing increasingly weary of political farm relief.

The collapse of half a dozen farm-aid programs, including the last one, has of course, helped cause this. Agriculture is coming to realize that government help, at best, is sporadic and uncertain—and that plans can be changed over night at the whim of congress, or because of some change in the political situation.

These farmers are, as a result, putting less faith in government, and more faith in their own instruments of progress, such as the marketing co-operatives. And that in itself is one of the best signs on the agricultural horizon.

COURTESY IS BEST

Courtesy is one of the few things which cost nothing to practice, but brings lasting returns. But on the other hand neglecting courtesies often results in loss of friends, loss of customers and desirable public relations.

How much better it is to feel at the close of the day that we've done a kind act for some person. It's easy to do. Courtesy is a great lubricant to human relations. It is practical. It pays, and it is easy to practice.

A further logical step may be to accept the fact that absolute and undeviating honesty, impartial justice, fearless generosity, forgiveness, tolerance—in short, the many attributes of goodness—are equally valuable to the business and industrial world. These, too, are among the things which cost nothing to practice, but bring lasting results.

TASTY MEDICINE

Did you ever get into a group of more than six people that someone in the gathering didn't turn out to be a complainer?

Never saw it fail that some persons didn't have to bring on an ailment or two to discuss in public and when they cover one disease they usually have another to take its place. Seems to most observers that the folks who have the most wrong with them are the quietest about their ailments. And if medicine was pleasanter to take something warns that there would be more people enjoying illnesses.

Doctors and hospitals will benefit if they can find a way of improving the taste of the stuff they serve in spoons and pills. Being sick might become more of a rest-cure and less of a pain if some chemist would find a way to make medicine smell and taste better.

And the more valuable the medicine the worse it is. Consider digitalis, quinine, and castor oil. If you've never tried them—just wait! Figure how much quicker you'd recover if the medicine had a lilac and carnation scent and tasted like steak and shoe-string potatoes. Most of us find it had enough to be sick but some medicines make it harder to get well.

How about somebody getting busy and make being sick a pleasure and giving us all something entertaining to talk about?

ONE SMOKE NUISANCE NO ONE OBJECTS TO

WALLACE AND COTTON

The task that confronted Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace in his recent appearance at Fort Worth was that of convincing Southern cotton farmers that he really understands their problems.

They were willing to concede in advance that his knowledge of agricultural economics is more profound than theirs. They were willing to concede, further, that the objectives of the farm bill are sound and desirable.

But they are confronted with conditions, not theories, and they wanted some assurance that the man who has their fate largely in his hands is one with that intimate grasp of their problems that the situation requires.

They cannot be expected to have confidence in the secretary himself, or in the program of which he is the chief engineer, until he makes it plain that he realizes what they are up against. It was his job at Fort Worth to show that he has the understanding which is essential to the South's welfare under the agricultural act.

There was not much in his speech to suggest that he realizes that Texas cotton farmers have been badly hurt by this year's restrictions on cotton. The bill as passed ignored the special needs of West Texas cotton farmers, and he took no note of that fact. If, after he has spoken, Texas farmers are still distrustful, still resentful, it is because the secretary lives and moves and has his being in places too remote from Texas to enable him to see the problem as he should see it.

Maybe it would be helpful to have the cotton sections of the act administered by somebody who knows cotton and who can grasp the special problems that attend its production.

The secretary has been quoted as saying that 98 per cent of the South's farmers do not understand the cotton program. If that is true, it speaks loudly of faults in the program itself, and in the administration of it. Whether it be true or false, the farmers do understand, well and painfully, what the program is doing to them.—Wichita Falls Times.

BUY WISELY

"Buy the things you want and can afford to have." That is the thought expressed in a fine editorial printed recently in the Mansfield, Ohio, News-Journal.

"There's too much inactive money," the editorial says. "There has been postponement of buying clothing, furniture, floor covering, draperies, electrical conveniences of various kinds—as well as numerous other large and small items."

"Construction of new homes, or remodeling of old ones, has been put off."

"Out-dated automobiles have been continued in use by motorists who can well afford a new car."

"All of these things have contributed to the general slow-down of industry and business—thus encouraging the reign of fear that has engulfed so much of the nation."

"Money is of no earthly good—except for use!"

"Earn, spend, save," is a formula under which individual and national progress is assured."

The man who spends less than his means would normally dictate, is as much of a burden on the country as the man who continually spends more than he can afford. This country possesses an almost limitless market for commodities of all kinds. We need more homes, more cars, more roads, more farm and factory machinery, more clothing, more labor-saving devices in home and industry. It is purchase of things such as these that make new jobs, new purchasing power, higher national income, and greater opportunity for both capital and labor.

Spend wisely and frugally. Keep your budget balanced. Don't get yourself in the hole. But always remember that sound spending is vital to the maintenance of our standard of living, to the advancement of recovery, and to the ultimate attainment of prosperity.

DRYING UP TAX SOURCES

If President Roosevelt calls that conference of state and federal officials, to study plans for elimination of overlapping taxation, as is being predicted in Washington, it will be a case on the part of the federal government of acting in response to enlightened self-interest.

The gentlemen in the treasury department who lie awake nights studying new methods of getting revenue for a government that is running $4,000,000,000 per year in the "red," are beginning to get worried over the prospects of some of their tax sources becoming exhausted, especially those sources which the states are also drawing upon for revenue.

Visions of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, milking the cow dry and riding a gift horse to death are becoming so disturbing to Morgenthau's tax experts that they are imploping Roosevelt to get representatives of the states and of the federal government into a conference, to see if some plan can not be agreed upon wherein the respective taxing jurisdictions will refrain in the future from encroaching upon each other's domain.

Adoption of a constitutional amendment definitely fixing the fields in which each government may operate is held by the treasury experts to be the most practical way of solving the ever increasingly difficult problem. They are less than sure that such an amendment would be ratified by the people, however. In lieu of that, a plan under which one agency would collect all the taxes and would allocate to each government a share of the revenue is being proposed. That is not altogether new. It is being worked in some instances now.

The conference suggested is certainly in order. A complete solution might not be found immediately, but out of such a meeting probably would come information and recommendations that would start the country definitely on the way to final elimination of duplicate taxation.

It is imperatively necessary that something be done because both state and federal governments are pyramiding special taxes on the same groups of taxpayers, and for these there must be relief, or both state and federal governments will exhaust these sources of revenue, and will be left in the lurch.—Houston Post.

Hastoon Yazzie says it amuses him to hear some of these newcomers talk about dry weather. "Why back there in 1887 it got so dry that the cows gave powdered milk!" . . . A leading democrat of this burg was seen headed for home Tuesday armed with a bottle of "purge." He claimed the president advised him.—Donley County Leader.

Water from the well drilled for the city sewer and water system is under test at San Antonio this week, according to information from Tom Watson, assistant supervisor for Boh Brothers Construction company that is constructing the system. The well, finished this week, is now producing better than 300 barrels a day, and Watson believes it will actually test out 500 barrels per day.—Lefors News.

Noah Cunningham, graduate of Texas Tech, who has been with the Quail rural high school for the past two years, has been elected principal of the Memphis high school. Cunningham has tendered his resignation to the Quail school board and will assume his duties in Memphis Monday, Oct. 3. Before coming to the school at Quail Cunningham taught six years in Wheeler county, where he served as principal of Heald and Mobeetie schools.—Memphis Democrat.

At the annual auction sale of Hereford cattle held Wednesday at the J. P. Osborne ranch, 12 miles southwest of Miami, buyers from Oklahoma seemed to have played the major roll, however, there were buyers in great numbers in attendance from the Panhandle of Texas and several other states. Thirteen bulls were sold at an average price of $323.75 and 47 females averaged $232. Gross for the sale was $15,115.—Miami Chief.

Charles Herring, chairman of the local county committee, who was attending a meeting of state officials of the AAA phoned a message to the county agent's office yesterday afternoon which will be good news to all wheat farmers of Swisher county. The message read: "3½ per cent more wheat acres may be planted than originally shown on cards mailed to Swisher county farmers." This is considerable when it is taken into account the immense acreage usually planted to wheat in this county.—Tulia Herald.

Removing of the Fort Worth and Denver engine from the bed of Salt Fork river north of Wellington was scheduled to begin this week. The engine has been embedded in the river since June 16, when it plunged from the bridge, killing two men. J. E. Roberts, Denver agent here, stated that he had received no official notice of the work. "If the engine is removed, it will probably be necessary to build a track down to the river, dig the sand from around the engine, and pull it out," he said.—Wellington Leader.

It may be that "only saps" work, as is being said by many now-a-days, but the fact remains that the world has always depended upon workers to pay for the upkeep of loafers, and it always will. The "saps" who work are the ones who are paying the taxes to expend the millions of dollars for "relief." Normally will return only when every man is willing to work for his living.—McLean News.

The work of surveying the upper Red river in this locality for a proposed water conservation and irrigation dam may be completed by Oct. 15, according to C. L. Newsome, engineer in charge of the federal crew at Memphis. The work has been progressing rapidly and last week announcement was made that the survey was half completed.—Quitaque Post.

At the request of 28 petitioners, another school bond election was called Tuesday, by the Canadian Independent School District board of trustees, for $84,000, to meet a PWA grant of $68,730 to construct a new high school building in Canadian. This is the third such election called by the school board and will be held Saturday, Oct. 8. The first election held Aug. 2, was contested. Two elections were called for Sept. 10, one of which was to set aside the election of Aug. 2, and the other was to vote $84,000 bonds for a new school building. The election to set aside the one held Aug. 2 carried while the one for the bond issue resulted in a tie vote.—Canadian Record.

Earl West, Perryton star rodeo performer, was in the awful hurricane that wreaked havoc in New England last week taking such a toll in life and property. Earl, who is under contract to Miller's Rodeo of Waterloo, Iowa, wrote Mrs. West that the storm kept them from filling their engagement at Springfield, Mass. He stated that he never had a chance to dry his clothing for five days and that his company lost considerable livestock in the storm.—Ochiltree County Herald.

The Panhandler opposed the $1.75 poll tax to vote in Texas long before W. Lee O'Daniel left Kansas for this state, and we are still against the tax. But it seems there are a lot of Democrats who are afraid that the negroes will run the state if voting is made free. The Panhandler believes that is just a bogey. If the tax cannot be eliminated entirely, then it may be just as well to raise it and reduce county levies.—Panhandle Herald.

Taxpayers of the White Deer Independent School District Monday voted 118 to 62 in favor of a $40,000 bond issue for the remodeling and repair of the high school building and installing a central heating system in the Skellytown school. Application for a PWA grant of $36,000 was made in May, and if the grant is received, construction will begin before the first of the year.—White Deer Review.

Last week, a Shamrock gent, was in town bemoaning the fact that he had to miss the circus. Especially he wanted to see Gargantua the Great, he lamented. But he felt better after seeing Cliff Braly.—Pampa Press.

Home-Coming at West Texas State, Nov. 4-5

Ex-Students' Association Sponsors Annual Event—Candidates for Queen are Solicited

A home-coming occasion, more varied than last year's successful event, will be held at West Texas State College, Canyon, Nov. 4-5.

Homecoming day will be Nov. 5, but the Ex-Students' association will direct its annual celebration on the night club theme at Cousins Hall on the previous evening. A feature of that evening, however, will be the crowning of an ex-student queen to reign during the home-coming period.

The coronation will be held in the main college auditorium about 8 p. m. during a program beginning at 7:30 p. m. The queen and her beauty court will then go to Cousins Hall to open the doors of an elaborate night club setup.

The general plans are being made by an ex-student committee of which Mrs. Tommie Montfort of Canyon is chairman. Other members of the committee are Clarence Thompson, Mrs. Lee Foster, Mrs. Ray Campbell, Mrs. Lee Johnson, J. B. Speer and Olin E. Hinkle. Sub-chairmen and committees are being set up to care for the many ramifications of the event. Thompson is general chairman of the night club program, and Mrs. Foster of the coronation program. The coronation ceremony, however, will be directed again by the Pi Omega.

Each county in which some of the college's 20,000 ex-students reside will be allowed one candidate for queen, who must be an unmarried girl. However, in counties of large population, an additional candidate may be entered from each town of more than 1,000 population.

It is desired that the ex-students of each county shall assemble immediately and select these candidates for queen, certifying the entries to Mrs. Montfort, the general chairman.

Cousins Hall will become the site of a huge carnival on the evening of Nov. 4. There will be a western room with old-time music and dancing, an ex-student night club with a floor show, a midway, and many concessions. It is likely also that an outdoor gypsy camp will be set up.

Carl Cliff of Amarillo, president of the Ex-Students' association, will be in charge of an assembly program on Home-coming Day in which ex-students will contribute all of the entertainment. Cliff, who is superintendent of schools in Potter county, is working with all of the home-coming committees. He has announced there will be no barbecue this year, but that ex-students will be urged to bring basket lunches for an old-fashioned family picnic on the campus. Free coffee will be available.

In the afternoon the Buffaloes of West Texas State college will battle the Lobos of Sul Ross State college at 2:30 p. m., and the football queen will be crowned.

Golden Jubilee Fair Gates Open Saturday

Event at Dallas Promises Largest and Best State Fair in Half Century of Progress

Saturday morning, Oct. 8, the gates will swing open on the largest and most attractive State Fair at Dallas in all the half century of progressive effort, each year to outstrip the one preceding.

Early in the week but four small spaces had not been contracted for the 16-day event, with all indications these would be taken prior to opening day.

Approximately 175 towns, cities and organizations have reserved special days. Colorful bands will be on the grounds at all times.

In agriculture, livestock and poultry the State Fair has assembled the greatest showing in all its history. Sixty-seven counties, in all sections of Texas will display agriculture. In addition there will be individual exhibits, negro farm exhibits, agricultural displays and showings by individual farmers.

Approximately 500 head of livestock have been entered, which includes every breed of livestock in the Southwest, and some of its leading herds.

The poultry show will present every variety, in new housing conditions, with the close confinement eliminated.

Amusement features of the State Fair are the greatest in its history. In the auditorium first will be presented the Jubilee Follies with the Hollywood Revue closing. On the midway is the famous Hennies Brothers show, the largest midway in America. Numerous free acts daily include Ainsley's Aerial Ballet, Bozo, the mind-reading dog and Kurtz and Kurt, daredevil high pole artists.

"The fair is set to entertain the expected 1,250,000 visitors," Otto Herold, president said.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Staley, living south of town, motored Tuesday to Shamrock and attended to some business.

Church School Radio Rally Day
At 9:45 Sunday morning there will start a great Rally Day program for and by the church school. Nothing like it has ever before been seen, heard or read of, and we know you will be here on time to enjoy it from the very first.

One of the best aspiring announcers has been secured to do the announcing—that is to say he is a good announcer and is aspiring to reach top ranks in the nation as a radio announcer. The mike is being installed and full arrangements made for perfect reception. There will be interwoven in the service some television features which will be new and attractive. This is all novel, we know, but it will be inspirational, instructive and worshipful. It will also be adapted to the interests of all ages and grades of the church school.

Such extensive arrangements as these should draw some new material to the school and all members are expected to be on their toes to help hold these new ones in the school.

Other services of the day will be of interest. The Leagues meet at 6:45, and evening church services begin at 7:15 p. m.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Selling the Surplus

By T. C. RICHARDSON, Secretary
Breeder-Feeder Association

Cotton and wheat are bringing disappointing returns. Both are sold as raw products, for both require factory processing before they can be consumed. The farmer has no choice (outside the small amounts of cotton he can use for mattresses and quilts, and whatever wheat he uses for seed or feed) but to sell them in raw form at the market. He does have a choice in the matter of selling feed grains and forage.

Feed grains and forage do not all have to go to a distant and costly factory for processing into form for human consumption. Livestock and poultry are the machines, the farm is the factory. At present prices a bushel of corn in a hog's hide will bring more than double what it brings on the market.

With a surplus of feed on hand the farmer is interested in selling it to the best possible advantage. The type of feed, the proportion of grain and roughage, and the pastures available, determine the sort of livestock best adapted to the circumstances. If there is a high percentage of grazing on pastures or crop residues cattle or sheep are indicated. The same is true if the feed crop consists largely of grain sorghums which carry a large proportion of good roughage. You want to sell the whole crop, not merely the grain part of it.

Dairy cattle will usually pay most for green grazing and silage, with the concentrates necessary to balance the ration. Beef cattle and sheep come next in the utilization of silage and pasturage, and unless the grain supply is sufficient to fatten them out for market, stock cows and ewes are better for the purpose than feeder calves or lambs.

When grain predominates in the feed supply hogs and poultry offer the best outlet. Roughly speaking five pounds to six pounds of grain (whole and in mash form) will produce a dozen eggs, or a pound of turkey. Four to seven pounds of sorghum grains (depending on the protein supplement used and feeding practices) will make a pound of pork on foot. Ten bushels of corn, for which Texas farmers were being paid 25 to 33 cents at harvest time, with proper management would become 100 pounds of pork worth twice to three times the cash grain price.

A certain small north Texas blackland community has shipped more than 40 carloads of shelled corn, bringing the growers less than $250 per car, or about $10,000. Turned into pork under good feeding methods each carload of corn would have made 7,000 pounds of pork worth at the time $560 or better on the Fort Worth market.

Half the potential returns to both the individual farmers and to the community as a whole were lost by selling a raw product instead of a finished product, and the community is $10,000 poorer than it could have been had it raised the hogs to eat the corn.

Last summer at oat harvest the same thing happened, and thousands of farmers in hundreds of Southwestern communities regularly throw away a part of their year's work by quitting too soon. We quit too soon whenever we stop short of manufacturing feed into its logical product before offering it for sale.

As shelled corn the farmers in the community above mentioned probably got no more than $10 to $15 per acre gross for their labor and rent of the land. In the form of livestock and its products they might as well grossed two to three times as much, with good pay for the extra labor of feeding and caring for the animals.

A common mistake in buying livestock for feeding is to buy scrubs which lack feeding quality and capacity. The other extreme is to pay highly for high class animals. The amateur feeder should leave the fancy stuff to experienced men but should avoid starting at the other extreme because scrubs are cheap.

at Wheeler, then saw the latter part of the football game between Wheeler and Lefors, and came back to Briscoe to see half of the last act of the play "Here Comes Charlie."

Some of the boys seemed quite thirsty Thursday night. Anyway, some were seen trying to drink rubbing alcohol.

Alvin Hefley in English III asked Miss Pate how much it would cost him to withdraw from school. Miss Pate told him that it wouldn't cost him anything if he didn't shut up.

The Quail basketball fans certainly do cheer their home teams.

Pete Luttrell seems to think that being a bench warmer for the basketball team is just a common thing in life.

This question was asked on a test in junior business training: "Who has a monopoly over the coinage of money in the United States?" One student answered, "How would I know?"

Mr. Jones is my teacher I shall not pass. He leadeth me in the path of American history for his name-sake. He gives me a zero. If these things attendeth me all the rest of my life I shall dwell in history class forever.

That the home ec. play was a great success Friday night? That the basketball teams got beat last Thursday night? That the basketball boys have ordered new suits?

About all the big words the junior business training class have been learning lately? That Charlie turned out to be a girl in the play last Friday night?

Have You Seen—Kenneth Douthit's new jacket? The Quail basketball boys ring goals with either or both hands and from any angle on the court?

EVERYDAY RELIGION

By C. E. BRYANT, Jr.

HOW BE HAPPY?

The story is told of a ferry boat operator whose run was across a river which formed the boundary line between two counties. One day, a passenger, enroute from Ashley county to Union county, told the riverman that he was moving his home into the second county. "I certainly hate to leave Ashley county," he said. "The people there are so friendly and my neighbors have been so nice. Tell me, what kind of people are there in Union county?" "Oh, the people in Union county are fine, they are even better folks

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By BOYCE HOUSE

Pages from a reporter's notebook: The only time I ever interviewed Will Rogers was at the Fort Worth airport. He ate supper between planes and when the westbound ship still was not ready, his friend Amos Carter the publisher, explained: "This is the most important air mail center in the country. They have to transfer all the air mail here."

"Transfer it or write it?" Rogers asked.

Just before he climbed aboard the plane, Will told of a conversation he had the day before in Washington with Senator Huey Long.

"I told him he'd better watch out or some of those folks in Louisiana would shoot him," Rogers related.

"None of the good people down there would do that," Long replied, according to the humorist.

"I don't mean the good people; I'm talking about some of the rough ones," Rogers continued.

He said that Long answered: "Oh, all the rough ones are on my side."

A few months later, Long was dead from an assassin's bullet and Rogers had plunged from the sky into a river in the wilderness.

The time that Governor Pat Neff and I laid the cornerstone of Texas Tech was memorable though of course the part played by this correspondent was not heralded on the program and was confined to reporting the words and acts of the principals. It was necessary to travel a mile and a half out to the college and, seeing no taxi, I explained my situation to a citizen who said: "Right this way," took me by the arm and escorted me to a seven-passenger touring car of a most expensive make, introduced me to the owner and I was installed in the back seat. Leading Lubbock citizens were providing transportation for Fort Worth and other visitors. But instead of proceeding at once to the scene, our car entered the parade, right behind Governor Neff's car. The lone passenger in an auto half as long as a city block, I slunk into a corner of the deep cushions. The top was down, however, and no doubt many of the cheering thousands, including 2,000 school children waving flags, have wondered through the years who the fellow in the second car was. The mystery is now solved.

"Thanks, I'll catch a ride back," my host was told when we reached the college grounds. And after the program was over, I rode back to town on the running-board of a fliover, and felt at ease.

And that is how Governor Neff and I laid the cornerstone of Texas Tech.

First Show Friday

The new movie projector is due to arrive some time this week and the first show is planned for Friday night, Oct. 7, in the high school auditorium. The initial program will be "Cyclone of the Saddle," a picture furnished complimentary by the Bell-Howell company as a consideration in the purchase of this new machine.

A list of attractions will be published as soon as the complete program is booked. Considerable time and effort has been expended by Supt. M. D. Blankinship and other members of the faculty to make each week's entertainment both entertaining and educational.

The shows will be given on Friday night of each week for some time. Then if it seems worth while, they will be changed to Saturday nights.

MOBEETIE FACULTY STRONG FOR STATE TEACHERS ASSN.

For the fourth consecutive year, the Mobeetie schools have 100 per cent membership in the State Teachers association.

Freshman Assembly Program

The first volunteer assembly program is to be given by the freshmen students Friday night, Oct. 7. Assembly programs will be conducted on the same plan as that of last year, that is on a purely volunteer basis as far as both students and faculty members are concerned. Last year it was considered one of the outstanding factors in the development of student talent throughout the entire school. This season both the student body and faculty hope to make it even more beneficial than heretofore.

Miss Cook in Sanitarium

Miss Lula Mae Cook, second grade teacher, is in the sanitarium at Wichita Falls taking treatment for sinus and ear trouble. Supt. Blankinship received a message that she is not to return this week. Mrs. Gus Ware is substituting for her.

Carnival Planned

At the faculty meeting Tuesday tentative plans were made for the annual Halloween school carnival. The date was set for a Friday night late in October. It will be held in the high school gymnasium.

Six Weeks Exams

This week closes the first six weeks of the school term. Examinations are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Program to Improve Quality of Cotton

Employ One-Variety Production to Show Foreign Spinners U. S. Cotton Good

Three of the 213 one-variety cotton community associations in Texas, Lone Tree in Victoria county, Monday in Knox county, and Seymour in Baylor county, have been selected as the source of the state's supply of cotton in the AAA's 20,000 bale experiment. All produce Acala cotton.

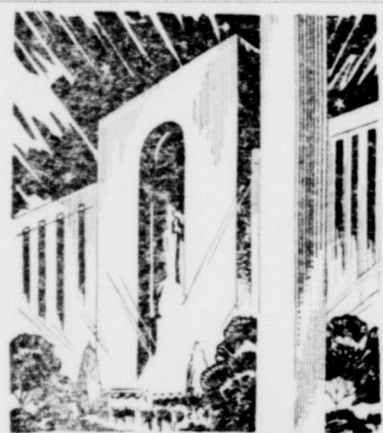

The program is designed to improve marketing practices and to demonstrate to foreign spinners the high quality of American cotton being produced in one-variety communities.

The 20,000 bales of uniform, carefully picked and properly ginned cotton will be selected by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, according to F. E. Lichte, ginning specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension service. The bales will be covered with cotton bagging and samples will be taken at the gin press box and information as to the variety, grade, staple, and point of production will be made available to foreign purchasers.

The bales will be handled in accordance with the best accepted practices at the gin, at the compress, and in transit. "In recent years, foreign spinners have complained on occasion that some American cotton was carelessly packaged and handled and that grade and staple in some bales was not uniform," Lichte said. "There has been persistent complaint, of course, over the general deterioration of grade and staple. This experiment is an attempt to show that America is making an effort to produce and handle correctly a quality cotton."

The program was recommended by a special committee representing several bureaus in the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Farm Credit Administration, and these agencies, together with various commercial marketing, compressing, and exporting firms will co-operate in carrying out the plan. The AAA will provide a payment of $3 a bale to co-operating marketing agencies in compensation for the additional expenses involved.

TEXAS FISH AND FISHING

By WILL J. TUCKER, Executive Secretary GAME, FISH AND OYSTER COMMISSION

Increased and intensive land use in Texas, the development of populations, the demand for water for irrigation, the control of flood waters, and the requirements of hydro-electric power, have not been without compensation to the fishermen.

Many large impounded bodies of water are the result of these causes. Such projects as those on the Colorado, Brazos, Trinity, Pecos, Guadalupe, Medina, Devil's River, Concho and Nueces are affording the opportunity for fishing that did not heretofore exist. These and other water projects have definitely added to the state's water area.

Probably the large impounded bodies of water, close to centers of population, have done as much to recruit the fishing army as any other cause.

Lake waters produce more fish than do stream waters. This is because the lake waters are not flowing in the same degree as are stream waters. If a lake flows it is relatively not much better than a stream in food production. For instance Diversion Lake below Medina does not produce much food, nor many fish, because it is in fact only a dammed stream continually flowing, and because it is fed by the relatively barren bottom waters of Medina Lake. Roy Inks Lake, below Buchanan Lake, is the same kind of "lake."

When great hydro-electric projects are constructed, like those on the Colorado, we believe that because we have a lot of impounded water we will have a lot of fish. If the fluctuations in these bodies of water are too violent you can be assured that they will not be producing the auxiliary product that they should produce.

The greatest food production comes from stable water levels. We need aquatic vegetations, that are ordinarily found around the shores of natural fresh water lakes, and the chain of fresh-water organisms that come as a result of vegetation, that cannot be produced where there is constant and violent fluctuation or where the flow is rapid.

If the lakes are such that they will not produce fish, it is not expected that they will support any considerable number of fish, however many may be poured into them. The same conditions are necessary to produce forage foods, such as minnows and many crustacea, as are required for fish production.

Without the production of the foods upon which fish live, a supply produced from the outside will not permanently cure the trouble. Of course, if we could produce fish in our hatcheries to a catchable size in sufficient quantities to meet the angler's demand, and release them for immediate catching, that would be a different matter.

When a lake is constructed for hydro-electric purposes the operators should be urged to dam all creeks leading into that lake with dams that will maintain a permanent water level only slightly lower than the maximum water level of the lake. These areas could be used as an area for the hatching of fish and food to supply the connecting lake and would not be subject to damaging lowering of water.

It would be wise to use the angler's license funds for this purpose, if they were sufficient. Such natural fish production units would certainly be economical of operation.

It is not expected, however, that the anglers of Texas will get much development from their money, so long as only about one out of every six are paying any sort of license. The money the anglers are now paying would not pay for the operation of the fish hatcheries alone, much less take care of patrol and law enforcement details that are necessary to require the wayward to do that which the majority are willing to do.

There are nine fish hatcheries in Texas at the present time, operated by the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission. Two hatcheries are operated by the federal government, one other is in partial operation, and one other federal hatchery is under construction. Another has been promised.

Warm water fish, the kind that are suited for Texas inland waters, are not so readily produced as are cold water fish that require higher or more northern latitudes. You may take the eggs and milt from trout, and rear the young with cheap foods.

With bass and other sunfish, and catfish, you must depend upon more natural processes. Feeding is more difficult, if at all practicable, except through fertilization. Cannibalism is terrific except among the channel catfish. You may, therefore, hatch and rear many trout, with as little effort and expense as is required for infinitely less black bass.

As a supplement to natural reproduction, however, and to compensate for the take of the anglers from bodies of water, where they make heavy demands, the hatcheries are sorely needed. It would be profitable if we had more of them in efficient operation and distributing their output, which should go to the public bodies of water, with only a primary supply furnished private waters.

In privately controlled waters there is every incentive for keeping the supply at peak level. This is done with many private places, affording an example of what can be accomplished in sustained yield through fishing pressure control.

Hatchery methods of production have greatly improved in recent years. Survey of waters and determination of those biological factors that would permit of the best utilization of the hatchery output have not kept pace.

A splendid work in this direction has been accomplished by the North Texas State Teachers college, through the activities of Drs. B. B. Harris and J. K. G. Silvey. They have made a real contribution to practical fresh-water biology. They are able to tell us when some of the major lakes of North Texas have a greater food supply than required by the existing fish populations. They have learned where physical improvements must be made on some lakes before any additional stocking would be profitable.

Certainly more such studies should be made. Not only should the talent found in our educational institutions be thoroughly utilized, but the funds should be provided the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission so that it could make a direct effort in this direction.

If adequate regulations are provided governing fishing—simple regulations that every reasonable person could understand and that are given relatively more permanence than are given to present regulations—we would make one big stride in conservation of our fresh water fish.

Better fishing opportunities could then be provided, if all of those participating in the removal of fish from our fresh waters, excepting those of youthful years, contributed the money to make possible increased fish production, distribution, control of obnoxious fish, water study and improvements and enforcement of the necessary regulations. Most states have found that such a universally applied fishing license brings good results.

After all, we must consider that many people are not going to get good fishing unless we provide it for them close to home. We have picture shows close to home because we are willing to pay a reasonable admission charge. We have good roads because we pay a gasoline tax, and good fishing will also be provided, commensurate with the possibilities under the handicaps faced, in proportion to the aggregate sum of money that is provided for that purpose.

We must realize that we have infinitely less land in Texas under fresh water than there are dry lands. With the hundreds of millions of land acres in this state, the hunters have been forced to adopt what once would have been thought to be severe restrictions, so that they would have something left to hunt. An acre of water will produce a higher poundage of desired wildlife than will a dry land acre. Our fresh waters are not producing annually as much as we have sometimes taken from them, consequently, the take is a lower average than it should be.

We are not operating on a sustained yield basis. We must give the supply a chance to catch up somewhat with demands, and then take no more than should be taken to keep it at a high production level. We do not need commercialization in this sort of program, except for rough fish, and except for taking those fish we will not need seines, nets, trot-lines or snag-lines with which to effect a reasonable harvest.

The arc lights have long since been replaced with more efficient electric lighting. I do not need the bugs any more which those lights attracted. I can buy some just as good from any tackle house, and they are not near as messy. I have learned enough entomology for my purposes.

Perhaps we have taken more than our share of fishes. We would like to see all of those who have lived in the out-of-doors and who love it, do their share toward bringing about that sentiment in Texas that will give the boys and girls, and those who didn't have time for fishing until they grew up, a chance to indulge in some of the pleasure like we have enjoyed.

Let us better appreciate our fresh waters, and better understand them. Let us look upon their products as public natural resources that should be shared in without selfishness.

Fatherly Advice!
If they look young, they're old.
If they look old, they're young.
If they look back—for heaven's sake, follow 'em.

Many Texas Projects Result PWA Program

Texas took full advantage of the opportunity to participate in the new PWA program by filing 616 applications prior to the deadline, Sept. 30. George M. Bull, regional director, announced this week.

The applications from Texas have a total estimated cost of $205,340,415 with requests for grants of $83,191,613 and loans of $59,961,561. The response from the Fifth Region, of which Texas is a part, was overwhelming. The region filed 1,648 applications with a total estimated construction cost of $431,626,908. The applications were for grants of $185,278,259 and loans of $107,632,323.

"Every state in the region," Bull said, "has filed sufficient applications to insure a complete well-rounded program of useful public works."

Allotments authorized by the president have kept pace with applications. Texas now has 302 allotted projects with a total estimated cost of $42,179,121. Included in the cost are grants of $18,932,615 and loans of $3,907,000.

Although the new PWA program is little more than three months old, 115 projects are already under construction in the Fifth Region and every week sees an increasing number of additions to the list of projects on which dirt is flying. Bid openings are being set at the rate of 10 each working day.

"With the first phase of the new PWA program completed," Bull said, "we will bend every effort to get as many projects actually building as soon as possible. With this large amount of construction starting there will be a beneficial increase in employment throughout the region and business will naturally be stimulated by orders for materials. These orders for materials, in turn, will increase employment in mines, forests, factories, and on to the transportation agencies of the country." None of the Public Works programs has moved forward with the speed of the present program," he declared, "and this momentum will be retained in getting projects under way."

Devotional Reading: Psa.

An Angle of Approach

It is not enough to worship one God, or to worship a false god, or not enough to worship the true God. For one can worship God that is not acceptable unto Zech. 7:3-7). Turn now to you and you will find a class to worship the true God, utterly unable because of their in their hearts toward the true God.

We should learn to make spiritual and real; to go against modern idolatry, make sure that it is acceptable unto God, the object of such worship.

THE HEART OF THE MATTER Introduction

In the scripture text of Ex. 20:4-5 we have first, God giving Commandments unto the people through Moses. Then the example of how quickly they turned from the simple worship of God unto idolatry. The scripture gives Christ's instruction to a woman who had been worshipping the true God an acceptable manner.

Man is a religious being of some kind he will worship us take care that, since false gods and unacceptable we are not allowing ourselves deceived in regard to this important matter.

Worship Him . . . in Truth
"God is a Spirit; and worship him must worship spirit and in truth." To be worship it must be according to truth. God's word alone contains true meaning and nature—"Sanctify them in the word is truth" (Jno. 17:17). God told us what we should do, how we should worship, and should worship? Then it is to know what He has said in the Bible about these things.

Place or Institution
Do we feel that in a certain institution, or (church) house, proper, or better, place to worship is in John 4:19-24. God did command the Jews in Jerusalem for certain kind of worship. But Jesus now declared "the hour cometh" when there will have nothing to do with worship.

Yet there seem to be many who believe that they can worship in a house. What has become of the family altar? Where have the families gone who "ask the blessing" at the table, or pray for the sick bed while the doctor is going for the doctor?

There seem also to be many who believe that in denomination is the place to worship. I think this to be most in and insidious. In our own nation we are at the front of an active and joyful party; we attend services elsewhere a back seat and act very strange in a strange land, denomination does not matter at a regular hour, we stand and never think of going to worship.

Spiritual Worship
If our worship is spiritual, realize that God, whom we worship, is a Spirit, and not a principle. The heavens of the glory of God, but we worship the heavens (sun, stars). "The invisible things from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by things (trees, precious metals) that are made, even power and Godhead" (Rom. 1:20). But we must not worship things, even as represent things.

Who Worships?
To say the least of it, go very far in worship to become a new creature (1 Jno. 3:3-5). Turn now to read and, "But the natural man perceiveth not the things of God; for they are foolishness; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."
If the "natural man" receive nor know the things of God, how then can the "natural man" worship God in truth, aided by the law of God, will see how utterly wrong was to Paul. Now, to be very important thought also read the first nine chapters of Romans.

A Defined Heart Worship
Pride (and religious) most treacherous! destruction of spiritual worship 9-14; Isa. 65:5). God do even the prayers of a covetous heart, even I profess to be Christians, ship spiritually. "And which is idolatry" (Col. worshipper morally corrupt attitude toward sin that it?

SPIRITUAL WORSHIP

Scripture Text: Ex. 20:4-6; 32:1-8; Jno. 4:19-24. Devotional Reading: Psalm 100.

An Angle of Approach

It is not enough to worship. For one can worship a false god. It is not enough to worship the true God. For one can worship God in a way that is not acceptable unto Him (See Zech. 7:3-7). Turn now to Isa. 65:5 and you will find a class that strive to worship the true God but are utterly unable because of the attitude in their hearts toward their fellows.

We should learn to make worship spiritual and real; to guard our hearts against modern idols; and to make sure that it is acceptable to God, the object of such worship.

THE HEART OF THE LESSON Introduction

In the scripture text of this lesson we have first, God giving the Ten Commandments unto the people through Moses. Then there is the example of how quickly they turned from the simple worship of the true God unto idolatry. The third scripture gives Christ's instructions unto a woman who had been thinking all the time that she and her people, had been worshipping the true God in an acceptable manner.

Man is a religious being. A god of some kind he will worship. Let us take care that, since there are false gods and unacceptable worship, we are not allowing ourselves to be deceived in regard to this all important matter.

Worship Him . . . in Truth

"God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." To be spiritual worship it must be according to truth. God's word alone can give the true meaning and nature of worship—"Sanctify them in the truth: thy word is truth" (Jno. 17:17). Has God told us what we should worship, how we should worship, and why we should worship? Then it behooves us to know what He has said in the Bible about these things.

Place or Institution

Do we feel that in a certain city, institution, or (church) house is the proper, or better, place to worship? Jesus in John 4:19-24 denied this. God did command the Jews to go to Jerusalem for certain kinds of worship. But Jesus now declares that "the hour cometh" when the place will have nothing to do with true worship.

Yet there seem to be many Christians who believe that the only place they can worship is in the church house. What has become of the family altar? Where have the heads of the families gone who used to "ask the blessing" at the table? Who prays by the sick bed while some one is going for the doctor?

There seem also to be some Christians who believe that in a certain denomination is the place of worship. I think this to be most inconsistent and insidious. In our own denomination we are at the front taking an active and joyful part; but when we attend services elsewhere we take a back seat and act very much as strangers in a strange land. If our denomination does not have service at a regular hour, we stay at home and never think of going elsewhere to worship.

Spiritual Worship

If our worship is spiritual, we must realize that God, whom we worship, is a Spirit, and not an object or principle. The heavens can declare the glory of God, but we must not worship the heavens (sun, moon or stars). "The invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things (trees, precious stone, animals) that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead" (Rom. 1:20), but we must not worship any of these things, even as representative of God.

Who Worships?

To say the least of it, one cannot go very far in worship who has not become a new creature (II Cor. 5:17; Jno. 3:3-5). Turn now to I Cor. 2:14 and read, "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." If the "natural man" can neither receive nor know the things of God, how then can the "natural man" worship God in truth, even when aided by the law of God? If you will carefully read Rom. 7:15-25 you will see how utterly impossible this was to Paul. Now, to complete this very important thought, you must also read the first nine verses of the 8th chapter of Romans.

A Defined Heart Worship!

Pride (and religious pride is the most treacherous) destroys the possibility of spiritual worship (Luke 18: 9-14; Isa. 65:5). God does not accept even the prayers of a proud priest. A covetous heart, even in those who profess to be Christians, cannot worship spiritually. "And covetousness which is idolatry" (Col. 3:5). Is the worshipper morally corrupt? Is his attitude toward sin that of desiring it?

Then there must be a genuine repentance (change of attitude) toward sin before such an one can offer up spiritual, acceptable worship. And here is the way God itemizes such sins: fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties, envyings, drunkenness, revellings, and such like" (Gal. 5:19-21), see also Rom. 1:29.

It does not matter how seemingly religious; how pious; how strictly orthodox; how devoted to church services and formal rites; or how full of "good works," if such an one has an uncleansed, defiled heart, his worship is a stink in the nostrils of God.

Spiritual worship is a humble, reverent homage, praise and trust paid unto God; and made possible to the worshiper by the indwelling Holy Spirit (I Cor. 2:12-16; Rom. 5:5).

Cousins to the Cabbage

Many of the most popular members of the cabbage family, cauliflower, green or sprouting broccoli, Brussels sprouts, and Chinese cabbage are at their best and cheapest beginning about this time of the year. Members of the mustard family are among the best of vegetable foods, for they add valuable minerals and vitamins to the diet. None of these vegetables, except Brussels sprouts, adds more than 100 calories per pound as purchased. And "sprouts" add only 200 calories. Although some forms of the cabbage have more vitamin C than others, all rate as excellent sources of that vitamin which must be supplied daily because it cannot be stored in the body. All the green cabbage cousins are rich in vitamins A and in calcium and iron. The greener the leafy vegetables the more vitamin A, calcium and iron it is likely to contain. The leaves of broccoli are one of the very richest vegetable sources of vitamin A. The flowers are excellent and even the stems of broccoli have more of this vitamin than most vegetables. Kale and the greener forms of Chinese cabbage also furnish much A, a vitamin which is often low in the diet of families that find it necessary to economize on food. Yes, it's a fact: "Hopalong Rides Again." We're sure that is all you need to know about our Friday and Saturday show. Of course you will be there, for who would want to miss Hopalong with his suave charm and Windy with his devotion to Hoppo? A fine pair, I'd say, and I believe all of you will agree.

Preview, Sunday and Monday

"Three Blind Mice" is a story we would call "zippily humorous." It's always light and gay with breezy sophistication and hokum skillfully blended.

Inheriting a small legacy, three Kansas farm sisters decide to go adventuring in quest of romance, love and rich husbands.

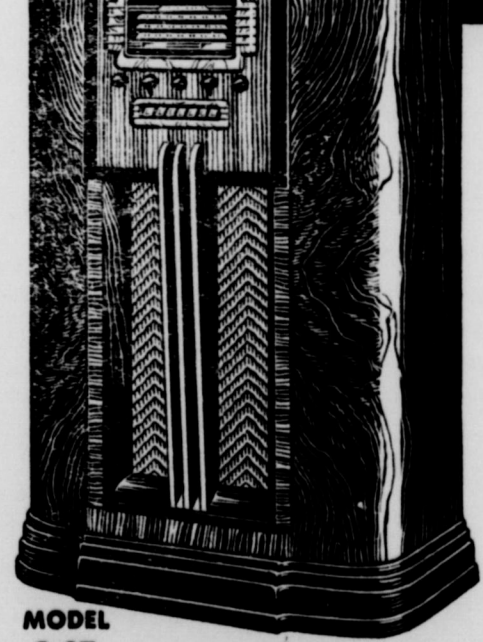

These sisters, Loretta Young, Marjorie Weaver and Pauline Moore, invade a swanky California resort and encounter Joel McCrea, David Niven and Stewart Erwin.

And then—well you come see what happens—preview, Sunday and Monday at the Rogue.

Wednesday and Thursday

For the midweek show we have staged a campaign against games of "skill and science," commonly known as marble machines. Tangled up in the scheme of things is Stewart Erwin as a busboy at a cafe in which "Conchita" is the featured dancer. Stewart is cast as a dim-witted youth—but he doesn't turn out to be so dumb. Supporting him is Pauline Moore, Douglas Fowley and Lon Chaney, jr.

The admonition printed above is more than a mere catch phrase or slogan; it is sound advice to readers of The Wheeler Times, whose wantad column on the last page of the paper each week is an outstanding feature. It is outstanding because scores of people save money, time and effort through its use.

Why waste time when you want any one of the numerous items which appear in the wantad column from week to week?

If you want to buy or sell a cow or hog, check the Wantads First. If you want to buy or sell fruits, vegetables or farm products, check the Wantads First. If you want to buy or sell planting seeds of any kind, check the Wantads First. If you want to rent or let out a house or an apartment, check the Wantads First. If you want to buy or sell farming equipment or other articles, check the Wantads First.

More people—both buyers and sellers—turn to the Wantad column of The Wheeler Times FIRST than probably any other portion of the paper.

Make it a habit to check the Wantads First—and then note the savings.

Wantads cost only 5c a line.

Nice Lot of Co Subsidy Money

First Consignment Arrives Morning; Another Sale Total, $175,856.10

County citizens general farmers in particular, were cheered last Friday morning welcome news that a copy of the long hoped-for cotton payment checks had been here at the office of County Clerk Jake Tarter.

The day's receipts number checks, calling for $156,111. Then, to maintain interest high level, on Saturday another lot of checks arrived. This brought the total to $175,856.10. Thus the amount received is $175,856.10. This represents to 60 per cent of the gross due. Members of the agency have no means of knowing remainder will get here, but considerable additional portion expected in every mail.

Everything was in readiness for the local office for orderly distribution of the checks and speedy delivery to their owners. Word of the arrival spread quickly by mouth as well as notices prepared for mailing. A succession of callers wound their way to Tarter's office on the third floor of the court building Friday afternoon continuing with increased volume Monday and with only diminished numbers daily since.

Funds represented by the rapidly filtering into the commercial structure, have given marked impetus to the purchase of commodities and other supplies on indebtedness, thereby dormant potential buying capacity business improvement ready seen.

Merchants of Wheeler, on this occasion, have laid out merchandise and made arrangements to supply the needs of others, many of whom have corded every possible check including credit to tide them over. Now, these same merchants have a right to expect a return of the favors through patrons whose they have as varying periods of time.

And, judging by the past eye to the future, with expectations, these favors will be remembered and their compensations fully discharged.

County School Survey Made by State

W. T. Lofland Makes Careful Reports Conditions Very Satisfactory

Selecting Wheeler county first in his district of 32 counties for official visitation, W. T. Lofland began a survey Sept. 29 and continued through Oct. 6, during time he made the rounds of county schools. He spent a half day at the schools here, making a minute examination of the curriculum and system of management.

Lofland declared conditions in several schools was satisfactory according to a report sent to Allen Kavanaugh, county superintendent, who accompanied the state representative on his calls.

The deputy's survey was conducted principally with state and state aid. A portion of the schools are in one class some in the other, and some in the third.

Wheeler, Donley and Briley schools head the list of schools in this district for state aid.

Lofland was the principal at a business meeting at the Donley county teachers and trustees association at Clarendon Monday night. His theme was Supt. Kavanaugh accompanied to the gathering.
