

Ex-United Press Baseball Writer Is Proud of His Air Force Alma Mater

By LT. GEORGE KIRKSEY
(Former United Press Baseball Writer)

They handed me a little piece of cardboard the other day which says "1st Lt. George Kirksey has satisfactorily completed the courses prescribed by the Army Air Force Technical Training Command, Officer Training School, Miami, Fla."

Now I am one of those six-week wonders—a former civilian wearing Uncle Sam's khaki and trying to function as an officer in the Army Air Force. For several weeks at Miami Beach, they got it to me fast and furiously and several hundred others just like me—Jim from a law firm, Warren from a gas company, Charlie who used to sell cars, Harry who was used to sell ice boxes, Johnny from Wall Street, and Joe who used to sell you the insurance you didn't want. It was a job teaching that went to say "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," to pull in their bellies and stick out their chests, to stand at attention for 15 minutes at a time (it seemed like three hours and 15 minutes). But they did it.

They taught us how to write a military letter, where and when NOT to salute (and if you don't think the "When Not" isn't tough to learn then you are a long way off the beam), how to defend an airport, how to rescue a drowning swimmer, how to give asparagus close order drill, how to function on courts martial, commissions and boards, how to identify military aircraft, how to run a mess hall, the rules of warfare how to conduct yourself in the presence of a general, and what to do if a top sergeant wants to buy you a drink and a jillion other things military.

In fact, they threw the whole military book at us. It's a far cry from four years at West Point to six weeks at Miami Beach, but considering the difference in time—three years and forty-six weeks—they said and are doing a tremendous job at the Miami Beach Officer Training School.

Having been knee-deep in baseball, football, horse racing (say, who won the Arlington Stakes, anyway?) and boxing for the past dozen years, my military manners and qualifications were hardly higher than the Cincinnati Reds' batting average—if you get what I mean. But I stumbled through somehow because of the best damn bunch of instructors ever whipped together overnight.

The Miami Beach O. T. S. literally was started on a shoe-string. A few short months ago the instructors were civilians reading the headlines even as you and I in those days before Dec. 7, 1941. Products of the early classes at the O. T. S., many veterans of the first World War, they were handpicked to form the faculty of a military college on the shores of Miami Beach which already is taking on a touch of ivy before its first birthday.

Who wants to teach school with a war going on all around the world. Every one of the O. T. S. instructors would like to be right in the thick of it but their present duty calls for them to convert greenhorns into future Air Force officers—and only 42 days in which to do it. Brother, they have their hands full but what a job they're doing.

They have produced officers at a pace that the brass hats in Washington never dreamed possible. They have turned out men who are going to play outstanding roles in the big battles of the sky which'll be fought in Egypt, Australia, India and over the far flung battle fields and skyways from the White Cliffs of Dover to the endless steppes of Russia. Some of them will wind up here, but when you see 'em coming leaping into Miami Beach to re-join the rest of the bunch of run-of-the-mill traveling salesmen, you have your doubts.

That August graduating day in the Roney-Faza patio, when a lieutenant stood at the mike and read off each graduating officer's name and his next station of duty, is one I'll never forget. It was a dramatic scene even for a hard-boiled reporter who thinks he's seen and done everything. A bunch of old guys from 30 to 50 who have been retreated, whipped back into mental and physical condition and rushed through a tabloid military course sat there on the edge of their chairs waiting in silence to hear where they were to begin the biggest task of their careers.

The lieutenant's sharp staccato barked off the names and assignments—

The names exploded out of the mike and the old guys, with smiles on their faces and songs in their hearts, were on their way to the wars—a gang of officers who'll do the vital work on the ground so the pilot and the bombardier and the gunner and the rest of the air crew can blast the Nazis and the Japs out of the sky and off the earth.

ETC of C Sees A Farm Labor Shortage Threat

LONGVIEW, Tex. —Continuing relief in this wartime with manpower shortages on farms and in many East Texas industries becoming serious, promises to become a live issue, the East Texas Chamber of Commerce believes.

Three East Texas counties within the past week discontinued use of county funds for relief. They were Camp, Franklin, and Waller. Other counties are known to be considering similar action.

The East Texas Chamber has written J. S. Murchison, Director of the Texas Public Welfare Department, to ask permission to study that department's records on the volume and expenses of relief in the state.

Each East Texas county is being circulated to get the latest official opinion of Commissioners' Courts on continuing relief. Among questions asked are these:

"Do you think the Federal Government should continue giving away 'surplus' commodities?"
"Do you believe that labor is being kept from war industries and farms because of relief being available?"
"In your opinion is continuance of relief harmful to civilian morale?"
"Would you favor discontinuing the use of your county's funds for all relief except for bona fide unemployed?"

County officials opinion at the recent Government Institute sponsored at Nacogdoches by the regional chamber seemed strongly critical of the present system of relief.

Freshman Class Is Organized At A Meeting Here

The Freshman Class of Ranger Junior College met for its first business meeting of the year Wednesday.

The meeting was called to order by the sponsor, Miss Maddocks, who also acted as chairman.

Those elected to office were Lee Roy Pierce, president; Forrest Keith, vice-president; Meta Ann Scott, secretary; Geneva Cooper, treasurer; Irene Wilson, reporter.

School Physical Fitness Clubs Are Being Sponsored

AUSTIN, Tex. —Texas Public school physical fitness clubs—operating this year under the sponsorship of the University of Texas Interscholastic League—will soon be viewing a motion picture of a real physical fitness school.

Movies taken during the recent training school for Texas coaches and school officials at the University of Texas are now being edited and prepared for distribution. The finished product will be ready by Nov. 1, it was estimated by R. J. Kidd, athletic director for the Interscholastic League, which will circulate the film.

"We believe this picture will show men and women and boys and girls of Texas how important our fighting forces consider physical condition," Kidd declared, pointing out that the Navy sent 18 of its top men here to conduct the special institute.

Films were made by Dr. D. K. Brace, chairman of the University's department of physical and health education and director of the statewide physical fitness program for Texas youth.

The Government Must Have Your Scrap Metal Now

This newspaper is in receipt of the following telegram from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the United States War Production Board, which is self-explanatory:

"The prompt and enthusiastic action of your newspaper in accepting leadership in the vital Salvage Program is the kind of answer I expected in my challenge to the American Press. If we are to maintain and increase production of the planes, tanks, and ships needed by our fighting men and fighting Allies, we must get in every pound of scrap in this country—from the homes, from the farms, and from industry. A successful Fall campaign conducted by the American Newspapers, in cooperation with state and local salvage committees, will avert a serious decline in steel production and will add to our stores of other scarce materials. As chairman of the War Production Board, I call upon every citizen of the United States to make this campaign a success, by gathering and turning in all the scrap metals, rubber, and rags that can possibly be spared. Let towering victory stockpiles in every community in the nation stand as symbols of America's defiance to the Axis."

"DONALD M. NELSON."

Children Are Badly Stung By Hornets

BRASHER FALLS, N. Y. (UP)—It was the usual result when four youngsters stirred up a hornets' nest. All were violently stung.

The youngsters ranging in age from five to eight, encountered the nest of yellow jackets while at play. The hornets pursued the children to their homes. One child, had a wool suit and the hornets clung to it tenaciously.

Fifteen hornets were removed from one child's scalp where they had burrowed into the hair.

Firemen used chemicals to wipe out the hornets' nest.

AMENDMENT ON FARM PRICES GETS SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, D. C. (UP)—Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, said today that the administration had sufficient votes for adoption of its compromise farm amendment to the anti-inflation bill.

Just before the Senate convened for the fifth day of debate on the measure, Barkley said that "many senators" had told him they would support the compromise.

The new amendment would direct President Roosevelt to take into consideration farm labor costs when he fixes price ceilings on farm commodities.

Sen. Barkley said that no vote was expected on the measure today. He said that a number of senators still want to speak on the bill, and that debate will continue until Monday.

Committee On Nutrition Has First Meeting

The Eastland County Committee for the Nutrition Program of the American Red Cross met in Eastland on Monday night.

Mrs. Ita R. Parrish, Home Supervisor of Farm Security Administration, was elected president of the group, and Miss Loretta Morris, home economics teacher at Alameda, was elected secretary.

The program consisted of talks by Mrs. Stanley McAnally, of Ranger, Eastland County Chairman of Nutrition; Miss Gladys Martin, County Home Demonstration Agent and Vice-Chairman of Nutrition; and Mrs. D. Warren Craik, home economics teacher of Alameda.

Mrs. McAnally stressed the very important part which the nutrition program occupies in the war effort, and urged the local chairmen to see that as many women as possible in the county should take the nutrition courses offered by the Red Cross. She hopes to have classes going continuously in every locality in the county where a certified teacher is available. More definite information as to the starting of the various classes will be given soon.

Mrs. McAnally also gave a report of the classes which had already been conducted in Eastland County. Forty certificates in the nutrition course have been given to ladies in the county. Three were given at Pioneer in a class taught by Miss Mahotah Cook; twelve at Gorman in a class taught by Mrs. Jack Vaughn; eleven at Ranger, taught by Mrs. Craik; and fourteen at Cisco, taught by Mrs. Walton Culwell.

The next meeting of the committee will be held in Eastland on October 19th, and the president appointed Mrs. Craik of Ranger and Miss eVlma Smith and Miss Helen Childress of Eastland to have charge of the program for that meeting.

Those present at the meeting were Mrs. McAnally, Mrs. Parrish, Miss Martin, Miss Helen Childress, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Mrs. John L. Ernst, local chairman for Eastland, Mrs. John Love, local chairman for Alameda, Mrs. Craik, Miss Morris, Miss Helen Knowles, home economics teacher at Rising Star, Miss Loma Gatlin, home economics teacher at Pioneer, Miss Vaima Smith, home economics teachers of Eastland and Mrs. Gaston Brock, home economics teacher of Morton Valley.

Man Receives Four Promotions A Month From U. S. Army

KEERVILLE, Tex. (UP)—Jim Weatherby, former Keef County attorney, received four Army promotions in four months.

He volunteered on April 7, became sergeant on April 23, and was made a staff sergeant June 19, a technical sergeant Aug. 13, and received his commission as a second lieutenant on Aug. 27.

Weatherby was a former 213-pound football ace at Schriber Institute and Baylor University. He is a crack rifle shot and in college also was outstanding at basketball and baseball. He is now on duty with the provost marshal's office of the Eighth Service Command, San Antonio.

Woman Follows An Ambition To Work As A Mechanic

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. (UP)—It didn't take a war to turn Mrs. Honey Finenko into a full-fledged mechanic. It was her childhood ambition.

She has worked in a bicycle and motorcycle repair shop. She is her husband's mechanic when he participates in motorcycle races.

More than three years ago Mrs. Finenko took a vocational high school course in acetylene electric welding. Later she studied mechanics.

Execution Stay Is Issued For A Doomed Man

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—A thirty day stay of execution was ordered today for Fidel Contreras, who was to have gone to the electric chair at Huntsville after midnight Saturday for the desert slaying of Enrique Valles on the highway between El Paso and Carlsbad, N. M.

The stay, recommended by the pardon board, was approved by Gov. Stevenson to permit a sanity hearing for Fidel Contreras after prison doctors reported that he was mentally ill.

Our Rent Is Due

Many Americans labor under the delusion that their country owes them a living and the right to life, liberty and the pursuit to happiness.

An even greater number—intelligent enough to know that the privilege of being an American has been bought for them by the tears and blood of those who went before—nevertheless are complaisant about their good fortune and take the American heritage for granted.

Both of these classes need reminding that the freedom and privileges they enjoy—freedom of speech and worship, freedom to work, free education, the highest living standard mankind has ever attained—all of these benefits flow from the composite good will of the people of the United States.

For the inestimable privileges of enjoying those benefits we owe a debt to the United States. That debt may well be called rent.

Unlike many landlords, Uncle Sam demands his rental fee only when he really needs it. This is one of those times. Your rent is due. Are you paying?

Those men who have volunteered, those men who have been drafted, their wives and children and parents are paying their rent.

How about the rest of us? Those who whine about the hours they have to work, the pay they get, are not paying their rent.

Those who do not buy war bonds and stamps up to the limit of their capacities are not paying their rent.

Those who waste precious rubber by unnecessary or careless motoring are not paying their rent.

Those who could help in the civilian defense program, and do not, are not paying their rent.

Those who complain about necessary rationing programs and decline to help save materials and transportation, are not paying their rent.

Those who will not take the trouble to gather metal scrap around their homes and turn it in, to save grease for glycerine, to save tin cans for salvage, are not paying their rent.

Those who believe everything bad about our allies, and spread alarming and disturbing rumors, are not paying their rent.

Those who argue that we can not win—and those who contend that we can not lose—are not paying their rent. Freedom and prosperity can not maintain themselves, except as we value them enough to pay the price.

Our rent is due. Let's pay it.

More illuminated highways and fewer illuminated drivers would do a lot to cut down accidents.

New fall frocks are called the last word. Well, that's what the women want.

CLEAN FIXTURES GIVE MORE LIGHT!

Here are three easy and economical ways to get more light from your present electric lighting fixtures without using vital war materials. They apply in the home, the store, office or factory.

- 1. Keep Bulbs and Shades Clean. Lamp bulbs, glass diffusing bowls and lamp shades collect a film of dust that greatly decreases the amount of light you receive. Use a damp cloth to keep bulbs and glass shades clean, and dust cloth and parchment shades frequently. You'll get as much as 20 per cent more light!
- 2. Use Light-Colored Shades. Lamp shades that are dark on the under side absorb light, while light-colored and white shade linings reflect light. Use shades on all lights, for they help direct more light on the book or newspaper you are reading.
- 3. Place the Light Near the Place it is Needed. The intensity of illumination decreases rapidly as the distance between the light and the object increases. Keep your lamp as close as practical for maximum illumination.

PENNY'S PLAN DEVELOPS

CHAPTER X

ON winged feet, Penny raced toward the office. All around her lights were beginning to pop into windows. Hastily dressed householders poured out of their homes, and soon a stream of people was rushing to the scene.

The Kirktown Fire Department had speedily roused itself. She heard the siren as the engine sped along Central avenue. It seemed to her that hours had passed before she reached the Courier office.

She searched the faces at the scene of the fire. An eternity ended when she saw Jim—safe. His face was a study in bitter anger. His lips were tight, his head hunched low between his broad shoulders. Jim's fists were so tightly clenched that his knuckles showed white. Penny pressed back tears. Then anger overwhelmed all other emotions. She shared Jim's bitterness.

She walked over to him, looked up into his eyes. She offered him comfort without saying a word.

"Let's go, Penny," he said, finally. They pushed their way through the crowd, toward Jim's car. Penny shivered, despite the warmth of the night. Jim peeled off his coat and wrapped it around her shoulders.

"This is it, Penny," Jim said. "Castro has asked for a showdown. He'll know he's been in a fight before I'm finished."

"Please, Jim," she pleaded. "Please, for my sake, don't do anything you'll regret. I know what you're thinking. I know Castro has it coming to him. There are other ways. Don't spoil it."

Jim's smile was bitter. "A lot of people have tried appeasement. It doesn't work. You can't talk peace with a guy who has a gun stuck in your ribs. This is war, Penny. It's time to give Castro the only kind of treatment he understands."

"I know, Jim," she said. "I feel the same way. Castro is going to get just the kind of treatment he's entitled to. Listen to me, Jim. I want you to hear my plan, now."

Rapidly, the words tumbled swiftly out, she presented her idea to Jim. As he listened, she watched the changing light in his eyes.

"Penny," he enthused, "you're a genius. Boy! Wait until they see our paper this week. Your stunt will work! Why, Castro has walked right into our arms."

Excitedly, he planned with her. "First, we have to see how much damage has been done to the plant.

If we can't print ourselves, I'll take the Courier to the city. I have a friend who'll be tickled pink to help me out. I'll get Lou MacDonald lined up. This is sensational!"

Jim couldn't stay depressed after that. "I'll take you home, Penny. You need some rest. Meanwhile I'll check in with the fire department. Besides, I'll have to get a story on the fire. I want to find some eyewitnesses. I hope no one was hurt. A lot of windows were smashed by the blast."

His brakes squealed as he tortured them to a stop in front of Penny's door.

"Good night," he said. "Don't worry about anything. I'll see you in the morning."

"Good night, Jim," she said, reluctantly. "Take it easy."

Penny knew that if Midge had returned a light would be shining in the window. She knew that Midge would have much to say and many questions to ask. She was glad the house was dark.

At the door, she stopped, listening. She thought she heard the faint sound of footsteps, speeding lightly away. She sensed, rather than saw, a shadow fading away.

Fumbling for her key, Penny at first didn't see the note tacked on the door. When she did notice the ragged slip of paper, a chill rushed through her.

Cautiously, she unfolded the message. In big red letters, hastily scribbled, Castro had delivered his warning.

"Shut up—or else. Take a tip from us. Leave town tonight."

WHEN Penny arrived at the Courier office next morning, Jim was in overalls. The sun filtered through the broken basement window.

"Hello, Penny," Jim greeted happily. "Watch your step there. Some of the nails are pretty rusty."

"Good morning, Jim," Penny answered, as cheerfully as she could. Hours before she had determined that no note of anxiety would penetrate her voice.

"The damage isn't as bad as I thought it would be," said Jim. "The office got the worst of it. It'll take more than a bomb to blow up that old press. And our linotype has gone through worse than a little fire. The boys were down as soon as the firemen would let them in. We have most of the mess cleaned up already."

Penny looked over the damaged room critically. Decks and counter were shattered splinters. Burned papers soaked with water and chemicals were piled in a corner, ceiling high. She wondered if the odor would ever leave the building.

"You can't work here today, Jim," she observed.

"We don't have to," he answered cheerily. "We have a real office now. The bank is going to let us use their conference room. It's a lucky thing Castro didn't pick Thursday for his little game. We'll have plenty of time to clean up before we go to press."

"Jim," Penny said, "I know I'll just be in your way today. Do you mind if I take the day off?"

"I was just going to suggest that myself," said Jim. "Go out and have a good time. We'll be ready for work by tomorrow."

When Penny reached street level, she noticed two men, apparently absorbed in conversation, at the opposite corner. They paid no attention to her.

They waited until she waved the bus driver to stop. Then they dropped their cigarettes and walked away. She knew they would report to Castro that she had left Kirktown.

Penny stopped briefly at the Kirk estate. She luxuriated in a cool shower, dressed, and guided the roadster to a parking space in front of the building which housed the offices of Johnathan and Jones, architects.

Charlie Jones welcomed her delightedly. He cleared a space for her to sit down. Then he swamped her with drawings and plans and blueprints.

"When can you start actual construction?" Penny asked.

"Tomorrow," he said.

"Go ahead," Penny ordered, "Get started."

"We're all set to go," Charlie Jones told her. "Tomorrow morning the steam shovels will be on the job. Boy, have I got work to do! I'll telephone the contractor immediately."

"I'd better get out of here before I'm run down," Penny laughed. "You really move when you get going."

"You bet," he answered. "We've been waiting for your signal."

Don't Be Fooled By A Full Junk Yard!

DON'T LISTEN TO PEOPLE WHO SAY ---- "THEY CAN'T NEED SCRAP VERY BADLY. LOOK AT THAT JUNK YARD, OR THE AUTO GRAVE YARDS ---- THEY'VE GOT PLENTY OF SCRAP. AND REMEMBER THE LAST TIME WE HAD A DRIVE THE STUFF SAT AROUND FOR WEEKS." TELL SUCH PEOPLE THESE TRUE FACTS...

Of course the junk yards are full. They are "factories" that turn out finished scrap—sorted, broken up, and bundled... ready for the mills of America. The scrap has to go through these yards, and it keeps going through fast!

The auto graveyards too, are busy. They specialize in used car parts, but produce plenty of scrap as well. In June alone, these yards moved 450,000 tons—for they are required to junk within 60 days as many cars as they buy.

As for Salvage Depots — communities all over the country are staging drives. All this scrap can't be taken away at once. The junkies can't handle it and the mills can't store it. But every pound is needed and will be used. We've got to pile it up ready for instant use at any time.

The day when all junk yards are empty, when the auto graveyards are cleaned out, when all the local scrap stockpiles are gone—that is the day to dread. It is a day to avoid at all costs. So remember—steel is needed to fight the war, and millions of lives depend on it. This steel is made of 50 per cent scrap—and the mills have not enough scrap to last even 30 days longer. Don't fail to do your part in this emergency.

FIRST SERVICE "The Christian Map of the World" is the pastor's Sunday morning subject. The senior choir, augmented by the junior choir, will be in its place and render a special anthem. Why not make an appointment with yourself to be in this great service?

SECOND SERVICE The second church service of worship will be at eight in the evening. "The Uses of Adversity" will be the theme of the service. We highly appreciate the comparatively large congregations for this second service. Your presence is invited.

VESPERS COMING Beginning with the first Sunday in October, our second service will be held at five o'clock. Last fall and winter this hour proved to be most satisfactory. It will enable the people to walk to and from the church in sunlight.

YOUTH MEETING The Methodist Youth Fellowship will meet at nine o'clock Sunday evening.

CHOIRS MEET The senior choir will meet at eight Wednesday evening. The juvenile choir will meet at 9:30 Saturday morning and the junior choir at 10. If you can sing you can serve and be served in one of these choirs.

EDUCATION WEEK Next week is Christian Education Week in our church. Let the officers and teachers meet in their several groups and seek ways and means of improving this vital phase of our church work.

RALLY DAY OFFERING Our rally Rally Day offering last Sunday was $10.

WORLD SERVICE A committee will call on the church within the next few days in the interest of the World Service (Conference Claims or Beneficences. Our church lacks approximately $300 having its annual gift of $751. We thank all those who have responded. In advance we thank all of those who will share in this world-wide work of their church.

WORLD COMMUNION SUNDAY We are looking forward to World-Wide Communion Sunday, October 4, the day on which the

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST A. F. Thurman, Preacher Sermon subject for Sunday: "The Christian's Considerations" — 11 a. m. "The Bible Is here — Who Wrote It?" — 8 p. m. Always glad to have you with us. COME!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES "Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 27. The Golden Text is: "Thou, O Lord, remainest for ever; thy throne from generation to generation" (Lamentations 5:19). Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Proverbs 4:23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We must form perfect models in thought and look at them continually, or we shall never carve them out in grand and noble lives." (page 248).

NEW MEMBERS Mr. and Mrs. Neil Moore, former members of this church, now bless us with their presence. Their first official act is the transfer of their membership. It would do their souls good if they really knew how glad the church is to have them with us again.

WAITING FOR WHAT Many good people intend to join the church. They are waiting. Waiting for what?

VISITORS Our services enjoy the presence of many visitors. They are welcome but they might not know if we do not tell them. "Were you to visit a church and no one noticed you were there, would you be impressed with the sincerity of it? Doubtful. Let no one come into our church without knowing we are interested in them.

CONFERENCE CLOSE Our Annual Conference begins Nov. 4. Six more Sundays left. What we are going to do this year must be done quickly. Have you done your part in the various enterprises of your church? Will you set about doing it, if you feel you have not. We need every ounce of every one. You may feel your part is small and not needed. It is needed regardless of how

EASTLAND 57 YEARS AGO

The following was written by the Editor of the Paris, Texas News and published in the September 28, 1941, issue of that paper: Some time ago I had a story about a drouth in Western Texas in 1886, which was written from brief stories in old newspapers of that time. Now I have some recollection of that calamity given me by W. E. Vaughn of Brookston, who was in the middle of the drouth and remembers all about it.

Mr. Vaughn is a native of Arkansas, born in 1881. In 1883, when he was 22 years old, and had a wife and two children, he decided to come to Texas. He was a farmer and he loaded his family and household goods into a wagon and came west. He had some livestock which he brought on foot. He passed through Paris, he recalled, and went on west to Eastland County, and there they settled near Desdemona, a village not far from Comanche County line, where he rented land and made a crop two years.

There were few people in Eastland County then, Mr. Vaughn says, and he was personally acquainted presently with every man in the county. They grew good crops of corn, wheat, oats and cotton, and it was a good country. In August, 1885, there was some rain until April 17, 1887 almost two years. Naturally there were no crops in 1886, and that was when the people of this section of Texas sent food and seed supplies to Eastland and other counties. From Missouri came wheat for seed, and in 1887 a crop was made. Mr. Vaughn says an appropriation was made by the Congress for relief but that it was vetoed by President Grover Cleveland, who said the people should support the Government instead of the Government supporting the people. So the drouth sufferers depended on the "neighbors" and they got by.

Many people left the country not only Eastland but other counties in this section, but the Vaughns stayed until 1921. Then there had been oil discovered in Eastland County and Mr. Vaughn's 600 acres that he had bought for $1 an acre, and some that he had bought later at a higher price, was sold for several thousand dollars and he moved to Lubbock, the South Plains country having developed a boom. There he bought land at $45 an acre, partly paid for, and when the boom died he was broke.

He stayed in Lubbock County until 1927; when he decided to come back toward Arkansas, and located at Brookston where 80 years old but looking and carrying himself like a man not over 60, if that, he operates a filling station and finds life just one thing after another. He has been through the mill, but it didn't grind him to pieces.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY The Woman's Society of Christian Service will meet at the church Monday afternoon at three o'clock.

Small it is. Furthermore, you need to do all you can for your own good, whether what you do be called great or small. When one has done one's best one has done one's duty, but not till then.

He stayed in Lubbock County until 1927; when he decided to come back toward Arkansas, and located at Brookston where 80 years old but looking and carrying himself like a man not over 60, if that, he operates a filling station and finds life just one thing after another. He has been through the mill, but it didn't grind him to pieces.

J. G. Exline, 66, Buried at Cisco James Green Exline, 66, who died Saturday in a Ranger hospital, was buried at Cisco Sunday afternoon following funeral rites at the Cisco First Baptist church.

A native of Indiana, the deceased came to Cisco in 1900 residing there until his death.

Surviving are his wife, three sons, J. J. Exline, Billy, Jack Exline, and Paul Lee Exline, Cisco; four daughters, Mrs. Carl Brannon, Stamford; Mrs. C. P. Hollonbeck, Magdalena, N. M.; Misses Nellie Mae and Dorothy Fae Exline, Cisco.

Boy Scouts Are To Pick Up Scrap Metal Saturday Eastland Boy Scouts, who have been collecting scrap for the past two or three weeks in connection with the government's campaign for scrap for use in defense work, will again collect scrap Saturday, and Bill Jessop, Chairman for Eastland on the County-wide program requests that people who have scrap to be picked up by the scouts, to please place it at the "front" where the boys may get to it and then telephone 258 and leave their resident number and directions how to reach them.

"It seems that the scrap campaign so far has not met with the success expected," Jessop said, "and the government is calling louder than ever for scrap."

It is also pointed out by those in charge of the scrap gathering campaign, that people should not set idly by and expect the Boy Scouts to get in all the scrap just because these boys are loyal and good workers as this country belongs to you just the same as to the scouts.

ent two classes are being taught, both in the daytime. These classes are free of cost to the pupils and are open to both men and women. The Eastland school has been open only five and one-half weeks and the courses are six weeks, yet five pupils have completed the course and already have been employed in gainful occupations where the knowledge obtained in this school is being used, and 12 others will soon be ready for employment.

The night class, it has been pointed out, is for the purpose of giving persons who are employed but who know their employment is temporary, an opportunity to learn the work being taught at the school while they carry on the work they are doing.

There is a great demand for the class of workmen the Eastland school turns out and especially is this true in government defense projects.

Why not get in touch with L. W. Kellers of the Texas Employment Service, whose office is on the first floor of the Prairie Building, South Seaman street, Eastland, and talk over the advantages this training school offers with him?
