Pay your poll tax. Just because there won't be a president or governor or other state officers running for something this year is no reason that it isn't important to be prepared to vote when something does come up, and when folks are indifferent about paying their poll taxes something surely does pop up and then there is lots of wailing and gnashing of teeth.

And another thing, school taxes become delinquent after January 31st, which means that interest begins to pile up besides the usual penalty. Naturally school taxes are really important and special drives and meetings to get folks to pay up should be unnecessary.

Current Events Puzzle Freshmen

By United Press
EDINBURG.—The world is a most bewildering place to 44 freshmen, members of the second semester class at Edinburg Junior college, who were recently required to answer 33 questions relating to current news.

Asked the winner of the 1934 world's series, one girl replied it was the "Dean Brothers," while seven boys and 14 girls couldn't think of any answer at all.

Seven girls and three boys were unable to name the winner of the Rose Bowl game while one boy thought it might be "Toulaine."

The question rating the most diverse answers concerned the value of the dollar since its devaluation. There were nearly 30 different answers, placing the value all the way from 33 cents to $21.

Most baffling were the questions asking the winner of the last year's Nobel Peace Prize and the name of the former German chancellor who was killed in the Nazi purge last June. To these questions not a single person would even hazard an answer.

The papers yielded the following other mis-information:

That King George of England was killed while climbing a mountain last summer; that Adolph Hitler was the 86-year-old German war hero who died last August; and that Secretary of State Cordell Hull succeeded William Woodin as secretary of the treasury.

An Iowa professor has discovered five types of dumbness, although there are more students than that in his class.

Fewer Practical Inventions Expected

By United Press
HOUSTON.—Modern scientists are headed toward a stage of mysticism and will produce few practical inventions—and no great contends, will be of little use to mankind.

When scientists cease exploring impractical fields, then new ideas capable of bringing practical results will follow, the physicist contends.

"It was only when our hairy-earred ancestors got over the idea that a beneficent god threw coc-nuts down to them," he said, "that they ever invented a cocoonat gathering scheme."

Democracy to Be Ended In Poland

By United Press
WARSAW, Poland.—Democracy will be banished from the new Polish constitution which soon will be adopted by the senate, obedient to Marshal Pilsudski.

All basic political rights will be invested in the president. The representative bodies, Sejm and senate, will have no power against the administration.

The president will have the right to appoint and dismiss the government, convene and dissolve the parliament, declare war and conclude peace, ratify treaties with foreign powers, without having to ask for the consent of parliament.

Moreover, he also will appoint the chief of the general staff, the head of the supreme court and the chief comptroller. Finally, one-third of the members of the senate will not be elected by the people but appointed by the president.

Theoretically, the new constitution will allow the Sejm to demand the removal of the government or of a cabinet member. The president, however, always will be in a position to override the parliament's decision by dissolving it and prescribing new elections.

The new constitution will give the president strong influence over the choice of his own successor. Six months before the expiration of his seven-year term, the president will have the right to nominate a candidate for his successor.

An "electors' council," consisting of the prime minister, the president of the supreme court, the chief of the general staff, the speakers of the Sejm and senate, and 50 representatives of the two chambers of parliament, also will nominate a candidate. If the choice of the "electors' council" coincides with that of the president, their candidate will become president without popular election. If, however, the "electors' council" picks a different candidate, decision will be reached by popular vote.

'Tired of Acting,' 'Wronged'

Tempting offers have been flung in her face, but Dorothy Wilson, above, refuses to be diverted by them from her determination to establish a new reputation on the legitimate stage before returning to the movies. The reason is, she says, that all the movie executives know her for her acting as the "wronged girl," and she's sick and tired of it.

Texas Agriculture Has Benefitted By Farm Credit Loans

HOUSTON.—Texas agriculture has benefitted to the extent of millions of dollars during the year 1934 as a result of the program of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston. It was shown in reports submitted to the board of directors which held its annual meeting in Houston Tuesday. Figures made public by A. C. Williams, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration, show that, including farm mortgage loans and production and marketing credit, the total amount loaned to Texas farmers and stockmen during the past year aggregated more than $161,000,000.

Bank of Houston acting for itself and as Agent for the Land Bank Commissioner closed 31,361 loans totaling $94,551,200. There were 11,330 Land Bank loans amounting to $56,848,300 and 20,031 Land Bank Commissioner loans aggregating $37,702,900. As of December 31, 1934 there were outstanding in Texas 94,393 Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans totaling $262,986,845.10. A survey indicates that borrowers have used about 95c of every dollar loaned in Texas by the bank and the commissioner during the past year to refinance existing indebtedness and pay delinquent taxes. Thousands of foreclosures have been averted and the farmers and ranchmen have had their loans refinanced at an interest rate which will save them several million dollars annually.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston acting for itself and as Agent for the Land Bank Commissioner closed 31,361 loans totaling $94,551,200. in individual farmers and stockmen but extends credit to financing institutions, such as production credit associations, livestock loan companies, agricultural credit corporations and banks, on notes representing loans to farmers and stockmen for agricultural and livestock production purposes.

During the year 1934, farmers' and stockmen's notes, amounting to more than $66,000,000.00 were discounted and at the close of business on October 31, 1934, the bank held loans and discounts totaling more than $23,700,000.

In 1934 Production Credit Associations, which operate under the supervision of the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, made loans to farmers of $6,000,000. The business of the association has been increasing rapidly and there is every indication that these cooperative credit units will have an important part in furnishing production credit to the farmers of Texas in 1935.

The Associations are designed to be permanent credit institutions and gradually will take over the business formerly handled by the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation.

In the year just closed the Houston Bank for Cooperatives made loans and commitments amounting to $1,030,115.86. As an indication of the interest being manifested in cooperative effort and of the field to be served by the Bank for Cooperatives, more than twice as many farmers' cooperatives were chartered under the State Laws of Texas in 1934 than in any two previous years of record. There now are more than 350 such associations which are reported to be doing an annual business of around $27,000,000.

Officers for all of the units of the Farm Credit Administration were elected at the annual meeting of the directors in Houston.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lu Brookman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GALE HENDERSON, pretty, 23, works in a silk mill. She and her brother, PHIL, 19, support their invalid father.

Gale, worried, fearful, watched her brother leave. She hoped he would keep his promise.

STEVIE MEYERS, who also works in the mill, asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

That night Gale goes skating on the river. The ice breaks and she is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian asks Gale to wait while he gets his car but when he returns she is gone.

When VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, hears Brian has come home she changes her mind about taking a trip to Havana.

Next day MARY CASSIDY is discharged from the mill. Gale goes to Mary's home that night. The baby has cramp. Gale and a neighbor work to save the child's life.

Meanwhile Vicky and Brian attend a party at the Country Club. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

LIGHT from the single bulb fell brightly on the kitchen table, leaving the rest of the room in shadows. Gale Henderson, in her printed cover-all apron, sloshed the warm, soapy water over the plates in the dish pan. Gale was thinking pleasantly of the evening before her. She had a new magazine to read, one Josie had loaned her. Gale had had little time to herself lately. Several nights she'd been at Mary Cassidy's—but the baby was better now. Gale had stopped on the way home from work, had met Mary Cassidy's grateful eyes, lighted now with hope.

No, Mary hadn't heard from the mill, but she was going to do a washing next day. The Nicolettis—some of them—would stay with the baby. A couple of washings a week and maybe some cleaning, if she could get it, would mean money enough for food and to keep them warm.

called, "Oh, Phil!"

The brother and sister looked at each other, then both moved toward the doorway.

"Yes, Dad."

The man who had spoken was lying on a couch, propped up with pillows. He was a large man, with gray hair, and his clothing, which looked worn, hung upon him loosely.

"Did I hear your sister asking you to help her, Phil?" he asked.

"It's all right," Gale put in quickly. "It's just the iron I wanted him to fix, and Phil's going to do it tomorrow. It won't make a bit of difference."

walked down the narrow sidewalk and turned left. He went on several blocks further before he halted in front of a small square house. Phil knocked at the door and waited.

The door swung open and a woman, silhouetted against the lighted room, asked shrilly, "Who is it?"

"It's me—Phil Henderson. Is Ruby here?"

"Ruby? Yes, I guess so. Come on in."

The woman stepped back and Phil entered the house. It was a living room in which he stood, cheaply furnished and none too clean. Brightly colored calendars and a large tinted photograph hung on the walls. There were paper flowers in a vase on the table and a Kewpie doll, wearing a pink sash, stood on the radio.

"I'll tell Ruby you're here," the woman said and disappeared.

Phil lit a cigaret, finished it and was crushing out the flame when he heard footsteps on the stairs.

A short girl, wearing a green dress and very high heeled shoes, appeared in the doorway, smiling. Hello, Phil," she said.

"Hello, Ruby. Took your time, didn't you?"

The girl came forward, smiling. A bit too plump for the current fashion, Ruby Griffith walked with the assurance of a real beauty. She had a large mouth, vividly rounded, and her rather small eyes held a light, as though there were an excellent joke which she was sharing with no one else.

"Did you get tired of waiting?" she asked.

"I didn't say that—but you sure took your time."

Vogel's pale eyes smiled. "Don't let me hurry you," he said in an oily voice. "What's the rush?"

"Who says I'm in a rush?"

"Who says so?" Vogel stepped forward aggressively. "I say so. I say so and what you gonna do about it?"

The smiling eyes, the level voice were coolly insulting.

Anger blazed in Phil Henderson's face. "I'll do plenty!" he snapped.

But Ruby was between them. "Ed—Phil!" she cried. "You've got to stop it—both of you!"

The door at the opposite side of the room opened and Mrs. Griffith appeared. "What's goin' on here?" she demanded harshly.

"Why—why notin'. Ma," Ruby began. "The boys were just having a little argument."

Vogel's narrow lips bowed. He said, "Good evening, Mrs. Griffith. Me and my friend were just having a little discussion. It was all friendly, you understand—"

Phil Henderson cut him short. "It's time for me to be leaving," he said. "Good night, Ruby. Night, Mrs. Griffith. Vogel—I'll see you tomorrow."

"Oh, sure," Ed Vogel grinned. "Sure, I'll see you!"

Ruby followed Phil to the door. The last thing he saw before he stepped into the darkness was her wide, crimson lips.

HALF an hour later Phil Henderson entered a long, narrow, smoke-filled room. A short, heavily-built man clapped him on the shoulder. "Hi, Phil!" he said grinning.

"Hi, Lefty. Seen Joe around?"

"He was here a little while ago." The heavily-built man turned. "There he is." He motioned with his head toward the rear of the room. "Back there."

Phil moved on. There were two men, half-leaning, half-sitting on the edge of a table pushed against the wall. One of them was slender and saw-toothed with dark, curling hair and heavy eyebrows. The man beside him had a ruddy complexion.

The dark-haired man saw Phil and raised one hand in greeting. "Thought you weren't coming around," he said.

"I changed my mind."

The man with the ruddy complexion got to his feet. "Got to be goin'," he said. "Either of you fellows comin' down the street?"

"Guess I'll stick around a while," Joe Gillaspie said. Phil dropped to the table beside him and the other man moved away.

Phil lowered his voice as he said, nodding at the retreating back, "Is he coming to the meeting?"

"Sure."

"I talked to Blackie Moyer and Frank Sundstrom," Phil went on. "Blackie said he'd be there. I'm not so sure about Sundstrom—"

Gillaspie let out an oath. "Filthy sheep!" he said contemptuously. "Afraid to stand up with their own people and fight. That Sundstrom and the rest like him! Swine!"

"Maybe we'd better get going," Phil said restlessly. "It's getting late."

Gillaspie said, without turning his head, "You go out and wait on the corner. I'll come in a minute."

Phil said, "O. K." and arose. He walked to the front of the building, stopped long enough to light a cigaret and went out into the night.

How Do You CHOOSE?

Every time you make a purchase you make a choice. Buying a certain product may be so much a matter of habit that you don't realize you are choosing. But the fact remains that in accepting one brand of goods you are always rejecting others; and the satisfaction you get from what you buy depends on the knowledge of quality and values that guides your selection.

How do you know which bed-sheets, or which roofing materials, or which radio will give you service you require? You can't personally test everything you buy and compare it with all the other products in its class. But there is a way to find out which brand fits your needs.

The people who are most successful in their buying—who achieve the highest percentage of satisfaction from the things they own and use—are those who consistently read the advertising columns, and buy consistently advertised goods.

Choosing isn't just "guessing" when you follow the guidance of the advertisements.

You can depend on advertised goods. It pays to read the advertisements.

OAK GROVE

Light rains fell here last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, furnishing sufficient moisture for plowing, but very little stock water stored in the pools and tanks as most of the rain soaked into the ground. This is the first rain to fall here since November, 1934. A severe norther blew Sunday and continued through Monday. The temperature here was 10 degrees above zero Monday morning which makes our wood pile look very much like the proverbial "three poles." Morris and Osborne Millford, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Millford are ill with tonsillitis. A doctor was called in to see them Sunday morning. Mrs. J. E. Cannaday has been at the bedside of her son, Troy B. Cannaday in the Pleasant Hill community, who has been sick with the flu since Jan. 2. The Federal Housing Work that was started here last week was held up by the rain and cold weather, but will be resumed again as soon as weather will permit. Since our last letter Mr. Henry Rice has moved into our community and occupies a place on the Mrs. J. E. Parker farm. Also Mr. Williams, who is recently from Louisiana. He is domiciled on the Eugene Finley farm. We extend a welcome hand to both families.

The cold weather of this week has been the most severe of any this year but no serious injury was done the grain. Frank Fonville of this community was called to Eastland Monday for jury service. A large number of people from this community attended the funeral of John Payne last Thursday at the Howard cemetery. The deceased was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Payne and was 15 years of age. He suffered an attack of acute appendicitis and although everything was done that could be done he could not be saved. His brother, being in the western part of the state, the burial was postponed until 7:30 p. m. so his brother could reach his home. The school at this place has provided a well selected library and state aid for this was secured. In connection with the library a number of papers were paid for by the school board, such papers as the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Literary Digest, The Texas Weekly and Ranger Weekly Times are read by the student body, which gives them an opportunity to keep up with local as well as world news.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones, a graduate of Desdemona High school and has attended Howard Payne at Brownwood the past two years. The bridegroom attended Howard Payne college and had been ordained as a Baptist minister. The couple left Monday for Sheffield, near San Angelo, where he is to serve as pastor of the Baptist church. Their many friends are extending congratulations and good wishes to them. On Thursday evening at Howard cemetery the funeral of John Houston Payne was held in the presence of a large number of friends. The deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Payne and was 15 years old July 26. He would have graduated from the grammar school here if he had lived until the end of the term. His parents, brothers and sisters had the sympathy of our community.

America Sets Example For Rest of World

The "I'm Alone" case seems to be settled, finally and forever.

Maybe you'd forgotten all about it. If so, that's the significant thing about the whole business.

It was almost six years ago, during prohibition, that two U. S. Coast Guard cutters opened fire on the Canadian schooner "I'm Alone" in the Gulf of Mexico. They sank her. One of her crew drowned. Two were saved and put in irons.

There was a sensation. Canada was indignant, saying that even if the "I'm Alone" was suspected of being a rum-runner, this was no way to treat Canadian citizens on the high seas, in defiance of every international law and courtesy.

Stop a moment and think what might have happened if the "I'm Alone" had been a Russian fishing schooner and the Coast Guard ship a Japanese destroyer. Or if the encounter had taken place in the Adriatic between a Yugoslav merchantman and an Italian cruiser.

There would have been immediate sword-rattling and diplomatic passages, ultimatums, and probably a world crisis. And war would have hovered menacingly in the background.

But no one mentioned, or even thought of war when the Coast Guard sank the "I'm Alone." The affair was considered on both sides in a light reflecting its importance, which was really small. Canadians were not up on their hind legs screaming about their "national honor." Americans were not breaking out with flag and demanding pledges that Canada use all her resources to enforce American prohibition.

For the feeling that runs across the long undefended border between the United States and Canada is a cordial and friendly one. So here was a regrettable incident which ought to be discussed in friendly fashion and adjusted as fairly as possible.

It has taken six years to settle the affair. Now a final adjustment seems imminent. Chief Justice Duff of Canada and Supreme Court Justice Van Devanter of the United States have examined all the evidence, and recommend that the United States apologize to Canada and pay $25,-

"OUT OUR WAY" - - - - - By Williams

600 in damages to members of the crew and their dependents.

There seems no reason why our government should not immediately accept these findings, and make good on the affair with willing good grace.

When you are wrong, the manly and dignified thing to do is to admit it and make what amends you can.

When a genuinely friendly feeling exists between two countries, there is little trouble in adjusting satisfactorily almost any dispute. When there is no such feeling, no machinery can guarantee peaceful settlement.

Both countries should be happy in a condition that permits such settlement of vexing cases like that of the "I'm Alone."

Unfortunately, in a jealous and bitter world, we're practically alone.

Square pegs will not fit in round holes, it is true, but square pegs can be made round and find themselves fitted very nicely—often in a shorter time than they could have found a square hole—and a more comfortable and lasting fit.

Next to self-respect comes the respect of others.

Connally Writes Judge Garrett He Received Petitions

Judge Clyde Garrett, who has sent out petitions signed by Eastland county citizens asking congress to pass old age pensions, has received a letter from Senator Tom Connally acknowledging receipt of the petitions.

"Some weeks ago," Judge Garrett said, "I sent Senator Connally at Washington petitions addressed to him. Senator Sheppard and Congressman Blanton, signed by some three thousand citizens of Eastland county petitioning Congress to pass legislation at its present session which will authorize the payment of an Old Age pension to our old people sufficient in amount to adequately take care of them in their declining years. At the time I sent these petitions, I prevailed upon Mr. Connally and the other members of Congress above mentioned to strenuously urge and work for such legislation as would afford the relief sought in these petitions. I also told him that I felt that our citizenship would be glad to know his views concerning the Old Age pension matter and that if he did not mind expressing them and also the possibility of such legislation being passed at this session of Congress that I would be glad he would advise me.

"I am today in receipt of the following letter from Senator Connally which, I believe, would be of interest to your readers: "Dear Judge Garrett:

"Your communication of January 9th is before me. I have received a number of letters from my constituents concerning various old age pension plans to each of them I have replied that I am studying the situation and would give all possible consideration to their views.

"It is almost certain that Congress will adopt some form of old age pension legislation at this session of Congress, but, of course, it is impossible to give in detail the exact plans that may be acted upon. You may be sure that I shall study all the different plans suggested and try to act upon the matter in the best and most practical manner.

"With cordial good wishes and personal regards, I am, "Sincerely, Tom Connally."

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

A section of the department where Chesterfield tobaccos are blended and cross-blended.

Just what is meant by cross-blending tobaccos...and how does it make a cigarette milder and taste better...

Well, in blending you take two or more tobaccos and mix them together—a rather simple process. But cross-blending goes a step further...

IN making Chesterfields we take Bright tobacco from Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia and Florida. We take Burley tobacco from Kentucky and Tennessee, and tobacco from Southern Maryland. Then in addition to these home-grown tobaccos we take tobacco grown in Turkey and Greece. We balance these mild, ripe home-grown tobaccos with the right amounts and the right kinds of aromatic Turkish. Then, instead of just mixing the tobaccos together, we blend and cross-blend them so that all the different flavors go together into one full flavor—the Chesterfield taste that so many smokers like. Cross-blending tobaccos as it is done in Chesterfields gives the cigarette a pleasing taste and aroma—they're mild and yet They Satisfy.

Local organizations are being formed in all parts of the state for the conflict, many of them with women's auxiliaries.

Star Studded Films On Lyric Schedule

The list of attractions that will play the Lyric the coming week starting today will bring to the local screen as many notable screen favorites as has ever been presented in a single week. On Friday and Saturday the Lyric will present "Hellodoro," starring Richard Arlen and Madge Evans. This is a story of a modern band of tourists marooned in an abandoned California ghost-like town and is produced in epic proportions by the producer-director combination of Jesse L. Lasky and James Cruze, who are noted for the early screen successes, "The Covered Wagon" and "Old Ironsides." The supporting cast for "Hellodoro" includes Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason, Henry B. Walthall and Stepin Fetchit.

On Sunday the attraction at the Lyric will be "Age of Innocence," co-starring Irene Dunne and John Boles. Since their outstanding success as a co-starring team in "Back Street," there has been an avalanche of requests from all over the country that they be costarring again. In selecting Edith Wharton's "Age of Innocence" as their second co-starring vehicle the producers, directors and the stars feel that they have a story that affords excellent opportunities for them to overshadow their success in "Back Street."

Monday and Tuesday "Imitation of Life," starring Claudette Colbert, will be presented. This magnificent story from the pen of Fannie Hurst has been produced for the screen by Universal Film Corporation who are noted for such outstanding productions as "All Quiet on the Western Front," "King of Jazz," "Back Street," and many others. In selecting Miss Colbert for the leading role in this story, Director John M. Stahl insisted that Warren Williams be secured for the leading male role in this story. The supporting cast includes Ned Sparks, Rochelle Hudson, and Baby Jane. This production bears the indorsement of its producers as one of the finest ever produced in its studios.

The Wednesday and Thursday attraction at the Lyric will be "Lady Be Good," co-featuring Carole Lombard and May Robson. This story is especially adapted to the talents of May Robson, who gained much screen recognition in "Lady for a Day," in which she portrayed the role of "Apple Annie." In this picture her role is of similar nature and from advance reports she scores heavily with it. Miss Lombard, in the role of a gorgeous young dancer, has a part well suited to her natural talent. Roger Pryor has the leading male role and Walter Connelly is also prominent in the cast.

ST. FRANCIS XAVIER CHURCH

Mass on Sunday will be at 8 a. m. by Rev. Joseph Fernandez. Sunday will be the third Sunday after the Epiphany. The Epistle is from the Romans 12:16-21; the Gospel is from St. Matthew 8:1-13. In this Gospel we are told how Christ cleansed a leper, and also how he cured the servant of a centurian. This servant had palsy and Christ did not even see him. Evidently the centurian believed that Christ was God for he said: "Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst enter under my roof; but only say the word and my servant shall be healed." And the servant was healed immediately and completely. Hence Christ was and is God. Let us believe in Him.

Railroads Seeing Better Business

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Increased car-loadings and advances in passenger traffic on railroads during 1935 were predicted by Frank E. Strouse, Pennsylvania Railroad official, at a meeting of St. Louis business men.

"The increased traffic will go a long way toward insuring prosperity for the railroads," Strouse said. "Since the public is finding out that Main Street, and not Wall Street owns the railroads, there has been a much better understanding of what rail service means to the nation."

"Nearly one-half of the taxes paid by railroads in the country go to the public schools. They educate between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 pupils each year, at an average cost of $90 a year for each student."

"The railroad companies and their workers are liberal spenders," according to Strouse. "Last year the railroads obtained millions of dollars from the PWA, all of which will be used to pay wages and buy materials and supplies."

Strouse added that the increase in revenue car-loadings in November and December, 1934, was decidedly greater than that of the same months in 1933 and that last year was the first year since 1923 that passenger traffic showed an increase.

Trousdale said farmers planted 145,000 acres to rice during 1935. The yield averaged 52 1/2 bushels per acre.

FAMILIES MOVE TO DAM PROJECT

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O.—Hunting jobs on the new Tappan dam of the Muskingum conservancy flood control project, 100 families have moved into this county from West Virginia. Only bona fide residents of the county will be hired first, said Donald Gray, U. S. employment chief.

Today is such a beautiful day that it is no doubt hard for anyone to stay indoors. God can make the winds howl with fury, and carry destruction in its paths. He can make the rains come down in torrents and swell the rivers and creeks, sweeping everything in the swirling waters in its path. He can command the earth to spit fire from the top of mountain peaks and belch forth fiery lava that winds its way down the mountain side destroying and killing life and vegetation as it creeps along. He can command the heavens to become black as jet, and all of a sudden a whirling funnel of blackness smashes everything into splinters and kills those within its scope. He can command the seas to become a mountain of waves and tumble the largest floating vessels like so many pieces of feathers flying in the winds. He is almighty and can do all these things at will, and yet with it all He can create the beautiful things for man to admire. He can within a moment turn the day from one of any of the above destructive elements into one of serenity and calm. He makes it possible to forget the dark moments by the beautiful things that He creates, and the most beautiful thing that He did create was man. And man should be proud of it, by forever doing Him homage and show gratitude by working and applying the golden rule to his fellow man.

Which reminds us again that Eastland is just one town, but the responsibility for its progress and future lies in the hands of those who live within its limits as well as the community in general. It is up to every man and woman to keep their minds on what is best and better for us all. There should be nothing left undone to see that Eastland continues to prosper. When a job is given a committee by any of the civic organizations that has the earmarks of something worthwhile it should be done and completed. Its your town and our town.

Honors Mrs. Audrey Cornelius Miss Evelyn Hearn

Miss Evelyn Hearn honored Mrs. Audrey Cornelius in an arranged reception and wedding gift shower by the Junior Thursday club of which the former Miss Josephine Martin was a member and officer. The rooms were prettily lighted in pink and white effect, the color motif of the evening, and the table in the dining room, laid in lace, was centered with a pink bowl filled with delicate sprays of pink and white flowers, and four silver sticks, with tall pink tapers at the corners.

In the reception room a large table was centered with a miniature house electrically illumined and with words across the face, "Love Nest," and standing on the path in front of the house were a bride in flowing train and veil, and groom in wedding attire.

The bridal gift shower was presented in an unusual and original way, through the bride reading rhymes, each rhyme sending her on the track of a concealed gift; the plan like saying that, of following the cobweb game.

The refreshments were of white angel food squares with pink icing, individual pink heart shaped nut cups, with pecans, and hot tea.

A spray of pink and white blossoms crossed each service plate.

Guests were Meses, Jack Ammer, W. S. Barnett, Earl Conner Jr., Poe Lovett, Jack Vaught, Ben Sears, Roy Birmingham, Fred Maxey, Raymond Fullington, H. B. Sone, J. C. Whately; Mrs. W. W. Many gifts were received from the club members and others. The hostess presented the honoree bronze book-ends.

The subject, "Playing the game according to the rule," was handled by Mrs. H. R. Breazeale.

A round-table, "The practical application of the lesson in everyday life," closed the program.

Mrs. Carl Johnson was announced as the next hostess, and leader on the subject, "Play."
