

COUNTY GROUP HEARS PWA PROJECT RULES

That reminds me...

Nothing from the news reports the city of Fort Worth through its civic organizations is losing no time in getting all the money possible from the relief angle, and the other initials that dish out money for different things that a city needs or thinks it needs. This time it is a first pass at the Centennial Commission who seem to have the authority to pass on things of that nature. Fort Worth wants three hundred thousand bucks to use in helping along the one million five hundred thousand dollar stock show. Now as we see it all these things are fine and particularly is the institution of the Annual Fort Worth Stock Show a most commendable and instructive influence upon the citizens of West Texas and other sections of the state. But, there is a charge for gate entrance, there is a charge for many things after one gets in. Perhaps if these things get paid for these charges can be reduced to a minimum of simply operating and not to retire contracted debts.

Eastland hasn't near had her share of these moneys in proportion to the large cities and no doubt many other smaller towns have suffered the same consequences. Maybe it is the fault of the fellows behind the throne so to speak, that they didn't go after it and get it. It is not too late now to see that these things are forthcoming by aggressive asking over and over until we get them. Of course it takes somebody to keep thinking up new things to build and ask for. Mayor C. W. Hoffmann and the members of the City Commission are to be commended for their quick action in getting the data for the proposed swimming pool for Eastland. There isn't any question but what we will have it. And we do certainly need it.

Free speech is a wonderful thing and no one should be trampled upon because he speaks his mind on a given subject constructively. Even criticism is permissible when given in the light of sincerity. But when a hair tearing politician who has through some method gotten control of his entire state gets on the radio, street or anywhere else and deliberately calls the President of the United States a liar and a faker, that ceases to be free speech in the term and is nothing short of treason and slander. Never before has any man dared to go as far as Huey Long in his derogatory remarks about the president of the United States while in station, and do it publicly. Huey Long should be made to at least keep the dignity of the title of president of the United States in its rightful place to command the respect of all people and all nations, or we should turn all the communists and anarchists loose upon the government and let them come out in the open with their method of destruction. Wonder what the president is going to do about it?

The program given by Magnolia employees of this district at the Connellee Theatre Monday night was one of the most outstanding events of its kind this year. It was interesting, entertaining and showed the fine spirit of cooperation between Magnolia folks and the citizenship. The house was almost crowded to capacity. Let's have some more of those kind of things. They do us all good.

There is a little matter of a special election to be called by the city commission to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of O. E. Harvey that has not been done as yet. We are wondering why the delay? The commission itself should be glad to have a full membership on the many important matters before the city, and the citizenship are entitled to full representation. It is hoped that this will be done at the next meeting.

Lower Case Loads Mean Less Workers Decrease in the case load of Eastland county relief will mean the release of three case workers this week. Case workers to be dismissed include one at Ranger, Gorman and Rising Star.

KIDNAP CASE IS STARTED AT TACOMA

TACOMA, July 9.—The government will prove Margaret Waley, charged with kidnaping George Weyerhaeuser, was "in the plot from its inception," Assistant Attorney Owen Hughes told a jury of 10 men and two women today. He charged that Mrs. Waley participated in the plot, that she traveled with William Mahan during the time he negotiated for payment by the parents of the nine-year-old boy, and that she was an actual aide in collection of the money.

The 19-year-old wife of Harmon Waley, serving a 45 year federal prison term, trembled and chewed gum as she listened to Hughes' charges. The government will prove the kidnaping was inspired by Margaret's reading of the death notice of John Weyerhaeuser. Sr., the boy's grandfather, in a Spokane newspaper, Hughes said.

Marble Machine Is Third Party In a Suit For Divorce

BEAUMONT, Tex.—Mrs. Mildred Worden named a marble machine as the "third party" in her divorce suit against M. R. Worden Jr. When she reproached Worden about the money he spent trying to shoot little marbles into holes, he only became angry. She finally was forced to earn her own living she said.

BUSINESS IS FIGHTING A TAX ON RICH

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Organized business opened its congressional attack on President Roosevelt's tax the rich program today with charges that the levies would be confiscatory and would be class legislation. M. L. Seidman of the New York board of trade, was the first opponent of the program to testify before the house ways and means committee. He urged broadening of the tax base rather than a tax on wealth in order to balance the budget. Seidman asserted his organization was for increased taxation if carried out all along the line to reduce the national debt, balance the budget to bolster business confidence.

Austria Delays Action On Move to Restore Hapsburg

VIENNA, July 9.—The Austrian government postponed for 24 hours its consideration of the law which would restore to the Hapsburgs their crown property and pave the way for the return of Archduke Otto as king-emperor of Austria. Decision to postpone action on the new law came before the diet was to convene. Reason for the delay was that it would not be dignified to consider so grave a law as one repealing the exile enforced against the royal family in the same session at which minor and unimportant legislation would be discussed.

Judgment Given In Civil Suit

Judgment totaling $3,988 was rendered by Judge B. W. Patterson of 88th District Court in the personal injury suit of H. S. Needham vs. Tom Bruce and Paul Tomlin. The court rendered judgment for plaintiff against defendant Paul Tomlin for $488 and for the plaintiff's son, Paul Weldon Needham, rendered judgment for $3,500. The court found in favor of the defendant Tom Bruce by not holding him responsible for the accidents. The suit was the aftermath of an auto collision in which Paul Tomlin was driving an automobile of Tom Bruce's. The plaintiff sought to hold the defendant Tom Bruce responsible on the theory Tomlin was driving Bruce's car at that time and under those circumstances resulted in injuring with the knowledge and consent of Bruce. The court held the evidence insufficient to show such knowledge or consent on the part of Bruce. The plaintiff excepted to the court's finding for Bruce and gave notice of appeal. The case was a non-jury trial, both sides waiving the jury.

UTILITY LOBBY HEARING THROWN INTO TURMOIL WHEN "LIAR" IS SHOUTED

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The house utilities lobbying hearing was thrown into an uproar today by shouts of "you're a liar" and demands of witnesses that they be allowed to cross-examine each other. The excitement came when Ralph Brewster, Rep., Me., and Thomas Corcoran told widely varying versions of activity concerning the utilities "death sentence" and the Passamaquoddy $35,000,000 power project in Maine. As Corcoran unfolded his phase of the story, Brewster rose in anger and shouted: "You're a liar." The dramatic statement plunged the old house caucus room into confusion.

BALDWIN SAYS U. S. SPENDING IS FAILURE

LONDON, July 9.—In the course of a bitter debate on unemployment, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin used the United States as the example of a nation that failed to produce the "desired natural revival of industry through expenditures." The prime minister did not mention America by name but his inference was plain. The remark came in reply to Arthur Greenwood, laborite leader, who had attacked the government for failure to cope with the unemployment problem. "We have seen, in another country," Baldwin said, "an attempt by the state to aid industry by expenditures of unprecedented magnitude. Some good and useful results may be observed but it appears to me up to the present not to have succeeded in producing the desired revival of industry."

New York Chief Executive Plans Relief From Flood

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—Governor Herbert Lehman, with maps on his desk, took charge today of a campaign for relief of victims of floods, which have taken about two score lives and inundated cities and villages in a 125-mile area in central New York. Fires created a menace in two towns. President Roosevelt sought to aid his flood stricken native state by calling on Admiral Cary Grayson, chairman of the American Red Cross to make all facilities available to sufferers. The first move was to prevent looting and to provide food, medicine and shelter to the homeless. Floods began to recede as rain ceased or dwindled to a drizzle.

Hail Showing of Breck Oil Men's Well as Unusual

BRECKENRIDGE, July 9.—What was being looked upon today by members of the oil fraternity and business men in general as the greatest commercial development since Stephens county wells were first stimulated with acid was the showing reported in Pitzer & West's No. 1 DeLaFosse wildcat. Pay has been hit at a depth that gives promise of production from a new horizon and in a wildcat territory. C. K. West, who brought a sample of the oil to town today for a gravity test said the pay was hardly scratched at 4454. That he was not sure what the formation is, but that something it to be the Ellenberger lime. The hole filled with oil in three and one half hours and 300 barrels of water were used to drown it out. Pipe will be run and cemented, Mr. West said. Most of the oil that was brought in for a gravity test was accidentally spilled and another sample was to be obtained to definitely determine that, but it was thought by looking at it, that it would run around 42. Pitzer and West have 5,400 acres under lease on the George DeLaFosse ranch, midway between here and Albany, and the nearest producing pool is five miles, north of Ibeax. Mr. West said today that the hole was produced at a cost of about $25,000, but that with the showing made he considered it would be a profitable investment.

Four Montana Towns Destroyed By High Water

GLASGOW, Mont., July 9.—Four mushroom towns near the site of the Fog Peck dam project on the Missouri river were in ruins today, wrecked by tornado and floods. Two persons were dead and hundreds homeless. Nearly 100 were injured. The villages of Midway, Park Grove, New Deal and Wheeler were reported virtually destroyed by the high winds and flood waters piled up by two cloudbursts that struck about 12 hours apart. Yesterday Galpin Coulee, which drains a large hill region east and west of Fort Peck, became a wild torrent after two inches of rain fell in a few minutes.

ITALY STILL MOBILIZING HER ARMY

ROME, July 9.—Italy continued military preparations today against Abyssinia by calling to the colors all sub-officers and soldiers classified as specialists or technicians and belonging to the classes of 1909 and 1910. Adjourning of the Schevening conference, which has sought to compromise the boundary dispute between Ethiopia and Italy, came as no surprise. Failure of the mediation commission had been expected when the Italian representatives reported to Rome exactly what Abyssinia demanded in the way of delimitation of frontiers. The Italian government is standing firm in considering the conference was not empowered to discuss any frontier problems whatsoever.

PROGRAM WILL GIVE EAR TO BIG REQUESTS

Administrator Says "We Don't Care What The Projects Cost." Preliminary principles and procedure to be followed in submitting projects to the works projects administration, soon to be ready for operation in Texas, were told to a county-wide body by H. E. Driscoll, county administrator, in 91st district court room at Eastland Monday afternoon. Included in the audience of over 50 were city officials, service club officers and chamber of commerce officials from Carbon, Eastland, Ranger, Cisco, Gorman and Rising Star. "We don't care what the projects cost," stated Administrator Driscoll, referring to points which makes qualified projects under $25,000 eligible for the program. Those over that amount will engage attention of the public works administration. The administrator emphasized that PWA and WPA were separate government units and not to be confused because of similarity of titles. Explaining fundamental principles that must be observed in submitting projects by governmental agencies, such as states, counties, cities, villages and townships, Driscoll named the following: (a) The projects must be useful; (b) projects shall be of a nature that a considerable proportion of the money spent will go into wages for labor; (c) projects which promise ultimate return to the federal treasury of a considerable proportion of the costs will be sought; (d) funds allotted for each project should be actually and promptly spent and not held over until later years; (e) in all cases projects must be of a character to give preference of employment to those on relief rolls; (f) projects will be allocated to localities or relief areas in relation to the number of workers on relief rolls in those areas; (g) projects should be planned to move from the relief rolls to work on such projects or in private employment the maximum number of persons in the shortest time possible. For these projects, the administrator indicated, the Eastland county relief general office in Eastland will be the contacting point of project sponsors and the WPA. No clubs or societies will be allowed to sponsor projects but they may co-operate in working them up. Administrator Driscoll stated, (Continued on page 5)

Butler Spouts More Good Sense on War

Old Smedley Butler, former commandant of the United States marines, speaks out of turn every now and then and sometimes impresses his fellow countrymen as a bit of a nuisance.

But by the same token he gives them something to think about, every so often; and his latest outburst—on war, the way it gets started, and the people who have to take the rap for it—is something worth listening to.

Representative Louis Ludlow of Indiana is sponsoring a constitutional amendment which would prevent the United States from going to war (except in case of actual invasion by a foreign power) until a nation-wide referendum had been held.

It is General Butler's idea that such a law would have to keep us out of many more wars in the future.

"I have spent my life fighting foreign wars for the United States," he says. "It is true that most of these wars were never declared, but nevertheless good American boys were killed in them. I fought such undeclared wars in Mexico, Cuba, Santo Domingo, Haiti, and Nicaragua.

"In fact, the only time a government declares war is when it wants to mobilize finances and conscript men. That was the case in the Wall Street World War. They only had 48,000 volunteers in 26 days, so they had to draft the men to fight."

And then the general goes on to support the proposal that Americans be forbidden to travel through war zones.

"Of course they have the right to do so theoretically, but they should be prevented from being such fools," he says. "War is a pestilence and the war zones should be quarantined. That means that not only Americans should not be allowed to enter there, but all trade should be banned with both sides. Then we would never be dropped in."

"When I was police commissioner of Philadelphia we put a cordon of police around fires. You might say people had a right to rush into the flames—but we kept them from it."

All of this sounds very much like good, ordinary common sense. After all, it is the plain man who has to do the fighting and stand all the grief when war comes.

He doesn't object to it, if the cause is just and the reasons for war are sufficient; but he is entitled to the satisfaction that such is the case before the higher-ups put the gage on his shoulders.

He would view the future with much less uneasiness if he knew, first, that he wasn't being dropped into war to save somebody's business deals, and, second, that no war could come until he had a chance to express himself on it.

Judge Recognizes Two Cannot Live Cheaper Than One

DALLAS, Tex.—County criminal judge Henry King, himself a married man, took judicial notice of the fact that two cannot live cheaper than one and granted Albert Meadows' application for a 60-day deferred judgment. Meadows, charged with disturbing the peace, presented a petition through his attorney that is self-explanatory. It set out: "That the defendant on a beautiful spring day recently became overbalanced by the charm and beauty of a certain Dallas county resident and as a consequence thereof took himself a wife. "That on this day he went vacationing with his wife on what is commonly known as a honeymoon. That he is justly in debt to the clerk of the honorable court in the principal sum of $10 and costs of court but that if compelled to pay said debt on this day he must discontinue his honeymoon. "That the defendant always believed that two could live as cheaply as one, but that he now under oath verifies to the honorable court that the same is untrue, erroneous and wholly false. "That the defendant has reason to believe that if given sufficient time by the court he can and will meet all his marital obligations and finish his honeymoon and also pay his debt to society and the clerk of the court. "Wherefore this defendant prays the court that a moratorium be declared in this cause and that a capias be withheld for a period of sixty days or more."

In view of the drubbing she's taking, we'd suggest beefsteak, not oil, for the lamps of China.

RESTRICTION IN COTTON NOT SUCCESS

—The results of the cotton production restriction program inaugurated in 1933 by the federal government as an emergency measure to solve the economic problems of the industry have failed to accomplish their purpose, it is declared by Dr. C. C. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas and international agricultural economist. Prices are weak in spite of the drastic cotton acreage reduction program for 1935-36, Dr. Cox said. Few realize that the gold price of cotton is actually lower now than it was in 1933.

It is now proposed to make the restriction permanent by the federal administration with additional powers, Dr. Cox said. "What is the situation compared with 1933? What are the results of the two-year restriction program?" according to the United States Department of Agriculture, United States cotton production averaged 10,000,000 bales during the five years prior to the depression, and production during that time averaged 11,494,000 bales. During the two years of the cotton restriction program, United States production has been 10,000,000 bales, or 7,855,000 less than pre-depression production; and foreign production has been 27,057,000 bales, or 4,069,000 bales more than the pre-depression average. "The world's carryover of American cotton Aug. 1 will be approximately 8,750,000 bales. According to Garside, the world carryover of American cotton Aug. 1, 1933, was 11,754,000 bales. The net reduction in the world carryover of foreign cotton Aug. 1, 1935, will have been about 3,000,000 bales. According to the department of agriculture that has been attained by a reduction of production of American cotton of over 8,700,000 bales, including the cotton plowed under in 1933 and average yield on cotton land leased in 1934. World carryover of foreign cotton Aug. 1, 1935, is expected to be about 5,000,000 bales compared with Garside's figure of 4,451,000 bales Aug. 1, 1933. In other words, the net reduction in the world's carryover of all cotton from August, 1933, appears to be a little over 2,500,000 bales. "In spite of another drastic cotton acreage restriction program for 1935-1936, cotton prices are weak. Few realize that the world gold price of cotton is actually lower now than it was in 1933. On June 10, 1935, the price of American cotton in Havre, France, was 2.23 francs per pound, whereas on June 10, 1933, it was 2.55 francs per pound. Cotton farmers to date have profited greatly by the devaluation of the dollar and would have profited more without the cotton restriction program. "In a recent study I demonstrated this fact clearly. Warren and Pearson came to the same conclusion in their book, Gold and Prices. This loss of profit through restriction of production in itself would not be so serious were it not for the fact that the south through the experiment has lost a large part of its market for raw cotton. These markets cannot be gotten back without relatively very low prices and systematic improvement of the quality of the crop. Unless the American crop this year was 3,191,000 bales less than last year, the decline of American cotton in European ports and afloat to Europe would be 645,000 bales from last year. "Accordingly, there has been a decline in balance of cotton in the United States plus declines of American cotton in European ports and afloat to Europe of 1,293,000 bales. Based on average relationships between changes in supply and the index price, this decrease in supply should cause the index price to advance 303 points over the index price last year. When this is converted to present price levels and modified by the spinners margin, the indicated price of New Orleans spot cotton is about 15.58 cents. Calculations based on percentage changes indicate a price of 14.20 cents. The fact is, the buying power, or index price of New Orleans spot cotton, is 141 points less than it was last year, and the actual price is six points less. What is wrong? "The spinners ratio margin declined during May to an average of 156.9 compared with 163 for April and 164 for May last year. The pence margin during May averaged 3.93 d compared with 4.15 d for April and 3.94 d for May last year. These figures indicate declines in mill activity, especially since yarn prices tended to decline and cotton prices to advance."

JO DARIEN, preparing to return home after her first year in college, receives a letter telling her that her father is out of work and decides to hunt for a job instead of going home. She comes to her roommate, MARY DAVIS, who is sympathetic.

Jo's eyes told how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come.

But, suddenly that magic week in midsummer was gone. If Jo found a job she would be unlikely to get time off very soon—and even if she were successful in obtaining a week's leave she couldn't afford Placid Beach. So she walked beside the silent Bret, wishing they could forget Placid Beach; wishing, indeed, they had never planned to be together there. Once or twice she attempted some gay, irrelevant comment calculated to stir their moods into something lighter—but it was no use. Her mind was too filled with conflicting thoughts with half-formed plans for tomorrow, with a haunting regret at leaving Bret Paul and this pleasant campus so fluently. And even after their long walk, she had left Bret with the promise she would see him before he left for Placid Beach she could not sleep. She tossed fitfully all through the night, and once Tubby came anxiously to the side of her bed to ask if she were ill.

Jo's eyes told how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come. Bret was more ready to do battle with the world—how glad she was that Bret had come.

tried to care. In the shortest possible time she selected a tiny rear apartment and paid a week's rent in advance. "Your baggage came this morning, Miss Darien," the manager told her. "Do you want it sent up now?" "Not now, thank you. I'll telephone down." Once inside the dark and unattractive little room that was now her home Jo pulled down the folding bed from behind its hiding place, and slept. She slept as a woman dead until almost 8 o'clock, and she would have slept beyond that if the ringing of the room telephone hadn't awakened her. It was Tubby, on the desk telephone downstairs. "How about a movie?" she asked. "Oh, Tubby... I'm too tired besides, I haven't yet eaten." "Just stay there then," said Tubby, "and I'll scare up a lunch and bring it up. I imagine you're all in." "That's not half strong enough for it, Tubby. Just bring me a sandwich."

Panhandle Will Play Big Part In Erosion Control

By United Press
QUANAH, Tex. — Northwest Texas and the Panhandle are expected to play a conspicuous part in the government's soil erosion fight. The U. S. Department of Agriculture is seriously thinking of enlisting the aid of buffalo grass—native to this region—in the struggle to keep the midwest's farms at home. This was learned from H. W. Bennett of Oklahoma A. & M. college, who stopped here en route to the Panhandle to locate buffalo grass areas. Plans have been proposed for reseeding the bleak areas in the Midwest. Other grasses under consideration, according to Bennett, are Blue Stem and Grama grasses. "The midwest will have to reseed or else continue to suffer damaging losses of soil from wind and rain," Bennett said.

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade . . . !

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising-made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

Honeymooners Lost the Point

Niagara's roar was momentarily challenged as this man-made blast tore a 5000-ton slice off Table Rock at the Canadian tip of Horseshoe Falls and sent it crashing into the gorge below. Fifty thousand holiday visitors watched spellbound as a second blast reduced the ledge, often called "Honeymoon Point," to half its former size. The dynamiting was undertaken to guard against possible rock slides from a crack extending 200 feet along the table.

Dull Summer Period Expected To Be Shorter This Year Than Usual

In another case, a widow, mother of five children, in bed for weeks with pellagra, is now up and doing his own house work. The children have cultivated a garden and repaired screens in the doors and windows.

For years, health authorities have been combatting "the three M's," meal, molasses and meat, commonly responsible for pellagra. Fresh vegetables from the garden and maintenance of a proper diet meant complete recovery for this woman.

"The county-wide nursing project is being carried on in 25 counties and we want to extend it to all others where conditions will permit it to be set up," Mrs. Taylor said. These conditions are:

1. In urban areas, the city health officer must supervise activities of the women assigned to the project.
2. In rural areas, county health officer or county health nurse must supervise these activities.
3. Displacement of persons normally employed in this work will not be allowed.
4. Only persons on relief rolls working out budgetary deficiencies may be assigned to the projects.

AUSTIN—Indications are growing that the period of normal dullness will be shorter and milder this summer than a year ago, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director and statistician of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Texas. The following favorable factors may be listed in support of this opinion.

Recent supreme court decisions have greatly clarified the longer-term business outlook. Principles underlying these decisions may be expected to apply to certain other New Deal legislation, which has been so disturbing to business in recent months.

The current crop outlook in the vast drought stricken area of last year is the best in several years. Farm prices probably will be maintained both as a result of low stocks and the increased domestic demand for farm products which will follow the expected upturn in urban industry. Western railroads particularly will benefit from the larger farm income arising both from the crops and from government subsidies.

The transition to pre-code operations promise to be far less severe than was expected earlier. There have been wide gains in residential building activity. Many contracts were up some 81 per cent as compared with the corresponding 1934 month. Although the increase is measured from a very low base, residential activity thus far this year has made the first significant upturn since 1929.

Machine tool orders have shown a sharp increase contrary to seasonal trends, the May total having reached the highest figure for any similar month in five years. This development suggests that the long delayed upturn in the capital goods industries may be getting under way.

A moderate improvement in rail equipment purchases is expected. In addition to the larger revenues accruing to railroads from the better crops and favorable prices, the carriers are expected to seek additional funds from the government for equipment rehabilitation. A number of roads also are readjusting their financial structure. As a result of these developments, some stimulus to the heavier industries should be provided from this source.

The inventory position of industry generally is strong. This should prevent a sharp decline in business activity this summer and should have a stabilizing influence on prices. Reduced inventories may well provide the basis for a better than seasonal upturn in business this fall.

On the other side of the picture, aside from normal seasonal forces, is the ever-present fear of highly restrictive legislation. Indications are that the President's "must" program will be pushed through despite the doubtful constitutionality of much of the proposed legislation. Hence, spells of uncertainty so characteristic of recent years, will continue to grip business from time to time during the coming months.

The foregoing summary suggests that constructive forces appear definitely in the ascendancy. Another basis for optimism is the recognition among a growing number of people that business management has two payrolls—what it pays its own employees and what it pays indirectly to employees of enterprises from which it buys—and that the margin above costs does not remain unspent.

A shrinkage in the indirect payroll accounts for most of the unemployment of the depression. Lack of corporate and business buying rather than lack of consumer buying is the primary cause of continued economic distress. When profits reappear and confidence prices, business will again become a large buyer. As the producers of durable goods get under way, the unemployed will be reabsorbed in these industries, their buying power will be increased, and the demand for consumption goods further extended.

If the outlook for improvement in international trade were as bright as that for domestic industry and trade, there would be still further assurance that the depression has definitely been left behind. Texas, particularly, could then look forward with confidence because of the large part her two leading products—cotton and oil—play in international trade. Should foreign trade continue to lag, however, there is a likelihood that this state will not in future months make so favorable a relative showing as it has in the past few years, especially in comparison with the Corn Belt States.

Program Will—

who praised efforts of chambers of commerce and service clubs in the county.

When the new program begins, Administrator Driscoll pointed out, sponsors of projects in force under the old set-up should make re-application of the project to continue it under the WPA.

The sponsoring governmental agency is expected to contribute equipment, materials, and services to the maximum possible. The priority of the project will depend in part on the amount of such contributions and the extent to which they increase the proportion of labor cost to the total federal funds required for the project, Mr. Driscoll explained.

Figures given in the case load by Administrator Driscoll showed the following: Cisco, 416; Rising Star, 188; Ranger, 487; Gorman, 180; Eastland, 341. Employables in this group were broken down as follows: Cisco, 258; Rising Star, 70; Ranger, 382; Gorman, 131; Eastland, 190.

Crigler Paschall, assistant district manager for the national re-employment service, in whose office all who expect to participate in the new program must be registered, spoke.

Administrator Driscoll stated that business of the Eastland county relief board is gradually going to San Antonio, state WPA headquarters, instead of Austin, indicative of the changeover to the latter program.

R. F. Barton, county project manager, promised co-operation in working up projects.

Speaking and seeking information, the following were heard by Mr. Driscoll: R. V. Galloway, Chamber of Commerce secretary; Ranger; R. N. Cluck, Cisco school board; P. B. Bittle, superintendent of schools at Eastland; G. A. Murphy, fire chief at Ranger; County Judge Clyde Garrett, and others.

Those attending the meeting included: J. T. Berry, Cisco mayor; W. E. Tyler, Rising Star mayor; R. E. Grantham, Cisco city attorney; R. N. Cluck; C. Metz Heald, county agent; E. A. Ringold, Ranger school assessor and collector; H. C. Davis, Eastland Chamber of Commerce secretary; Hamilton McRae, president of the Eastland explain that the purpose of this project is to supplement nursing services from the relief rolls to relieve those whom the public health staffs are unable to care for because of lack of sufficient personnel and funds.

In addition to actual nursing of the sick, such a project is designed to teach disease prevention and instruction in personal hygiene, home hygiene, and sanitation.

Nurses are first given a thorough training, inoculated against communicable diseases, and the necessity for personal cleanliness in the home. Then comes instruction in how to bathe a patient, how to give first aid dressings and treat other cases. Relief nurses are allowed to give medicines or prescribe in any way. When a patient beyond the bedside care, is referred to the family or to a physician.

"It's a feel," Mrs. Taylor said, "it is very much more important to teach the family how to care than to do the work ourselves."

What the nurses have found in visits to homes of relief cases is how they have succeeded in getting about more wholesome conditions is related in reports from Mrs. Patricia Martyn, Georgia County health nurse, whose direct supervision the project is being undertaken.

During a period of three weeks, nurses made 2,477 visits to 691 families. As a result supervised cleanups at 146 homes, more than 30 extra/trucks of garbage were hauled away in addition to the trash that was cleaned. Continuous bedside nursing lasted from three to 48 days, provided for 79 cases. Nurses used 325 surgical dressings and were responsible for toxoid inoculations in 326 cases.

It was often necessary to exert the utmost tact in bringing about desired results. One nurse, finding under adverse conditions, trying his best to keep the patient from taking the house but out much help from the male attendant. Undaunted, the nurse suggested:

Your right arm needs exercise give it strength; swat all the around you."

The patient began to sweat every night. The flies didn't bother but maintaining a strong arm another matter.

Nurses found an infant in a jar found a family actually in a starvation condition. There were eight children and three of the children had measles. All suffered from scabies and the house was unscreened. A general cleanup of the premises was the first step in the rehabilitation of the family. The children were bed and sent to school. The infant, bottle-fed, showed a gain weight of five pounds in six weeks.

"LES MISERABLES" AT LYRIC THEATRE TODAY

Victor Hugo's immortal classic, "Les Miserables," was brought to the screen of the Lyric theatre today in Darryl Zanuck's lavish production of the novel for 20th Century Pictures, starring Frederic March, Charles Laughton and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, under the direction of Richard Boleslawski.

The role of Jean Valjean, celebrated convict hero who spends five brutalizing years in the galleys of a French prison ship for the theft of a loaf of bread and finds his whole future life darkened by the petty crime, is the greatest undertaking of March's brilliant screen career. Laughton, as the fanatical detective, Javert, who has dedicated his life to the literal interpretation of the law, offers a characterization which affords a psychological glimpse into the strange workings of the mind of a manhunter.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, distinguished stage and screen star, is seen as the beneficent Bishop Bienvenno, whose faith raises the hunted Jean Valjean from an unfeeling beast to a noble and prosperous man.

The story, which was transcribed to the screen by W. P. Lipscomb, reveals vividly the social conditions community is the thing that it takes to make it prosper. We may have differences of opinions but no vicious attitudes towards each other if we are just and reasonable. Eastland has made great strides along the lines of harmony and cooperation with each other and it has meant many good things for everybody. It should be an obsession with every individual.

Still a little warm—in fact it seems like it is warmer. With care and cool thoughts we will all get over the thing in great style. This is no time to get all hot and bothered—it's bad for the blood pressure. Let the government keep track of the thermometer and we won't worry much about the heat.

Ten Transient Centers are Closed

AUSTIN—Four of the ten transient centers operated by the Texas Relief commission in Texas have been closed, J. C. Bisset, acting director of the transient division, announced this week.

Orders to close registration depots and adjoining camps went to Austin, Beaumont, College Station and Big Spring. The College Station, or A. and M., division was an educational division, where clients received a year's schooling and maintenance in exchange for work performed for the college.

Transients formerly received at Austin and Beaumont will be absorbed by San Antonio and Houston divisions, respectively. Big Spring's applicants will be routed to El Paso and Fort Worth. Divisions at Dallas and Amarillo also will be maintained.

Bisset said transients will be concentrated in the larger cities and registered with the national re-employment service in anticipation of the works program about to be inaugurated.

Merging these divisions also will enable a considerable saving in overhead costs," Bisset said. Case loads of the transient camps have declined steadily during the past few months, and closing of the four centers is not expected to work a hardship on the divisions which will absorb the load. Camp Marshall, near Beaumont, and Camps McCauley and Lampass near Austin, are the three camps to be closed. Materials and equipment from these camps will be sent to other divisions, Bisset said.

Police Officers Could Give Plots For Many Stories

COLLEGE STATION—A round of discussion that should furnish plots and counter-plots for a thrilling lot of detective stories is scheduled for the second annual short course for peace officers which began at the Texas A. and M. College Monday.

Inaugurated the past year as one of the numerous practical summer short courses at the college, the peace officers school met with widespread popularity and attendance this year promises to be much larger than that of 1934. The course is held with the cooperation of the League of Texas Municipalities. Noted experts in criminology will appear as speakers on the program of general discussion and this phase of the course promises to bring out many interest experiences in the field of hunting criminals. Among those who will discuss crime detection, criminal psychology, the obtaining of evidence and similar subjects will be George J. Lacy, of the scientific crime detection laboratory, Houston; Dr. W. M. Jarvis, Houston; Douglas W. McGregor, U. S. district attorney, Houston; Max Rogers, county attorney, Huntsville, and others.

In addition to the general section there will be a separate division of the course for traffic officers, C. G. Beckenbach, traffic engineer, and Captain B. B. Smith, of the Dallas police department, are among the speakers for the traffic section.

Pistol practice on the R. O. T. C. range at the college, first aid work, jiu jitsu, the handling of traffic offenders, auto theft, the hit and run problem and the handling of crowds, processions and disorders are among the subjects scheduled for discussion. Capt. B. B. Smith of the Dallas police department, member of the pistol team that recently won a match held by the City Marshals and Chiefs of Police Union of Texas, and Charles Askins, El Paso patrolman, who scored 867 in the same match, are among crack pistol shots who will attend.

Capt. Tom Hickman of the Texas Rangers will preside at one session of the meeting. Max Starcke, mayor of Seguin, president of the League of Texas Municipalities, will preside at the banquet Friday evening. Small registration fee which will include banquet ticket will be charged.

Governor Likes a New Gift Saddle

AUSTIN—Riding Companions envy Gov. James V. Allred his handsome new cowboy saddle. It was presented to the governor by Jay Taylor, Amarillo, president of the cattle raisers association.

Ed Clark, the governor's personal secretary, who rides frequently with Gov. Allred and "Jim Boy" Allred, the governor's son, was promised the saddle "if the governor doesn't like it."

One trial, however, and the saddle had become a part of the chief executive's regular riding gear. His usual mount is a Texas National Guard cavalry horse.
