

UTILITY LOBBY PROBE STARTED IN THE SENATE

That reminds me...

These days are certainly tempting for a jaunt to the Colorado mountains. One way to enjoy them however if that cannot be done is to stay away from thermometers. The minute one looks at the thermometer around ten a. m. to 12 p. m. it gets hot as the proverbial H. —. As long as one stays from the thermometer its about 15 degrees cooler. Rain would certainly be a welcome factor all around just at this time. Late Thursday afternoon clouds began to gather which gave promise of something in the way of rain but a little wind flurried for a minute and all clouds vanished. Anyway we've got to take it and like it, and the soda fountains and refreshment places are getting the benefit of much increased business. That's fine.

R. L. Ferguson, manager of the L. C. Burr Store and who is constantly on the job keeping the kind of merchandise that folks like to buy is featuring a special clearance which started today. Mr. Ferguson has made the department store industry outstanding in Eastland and such a store is a drawing card from sources throughout the community. He states that plans are underway for bringing to Eastland many new lines for Fall and that the largest stock the store has ever carried will fill the shelves, show cases, racks and counters.

Cotton is still holding up fine under the blazing sun. Most all other field and garden crops are feeling the effects of the past few days and withering and drying up. It won't be long before the farmers will be cutting fodder and pulling corn so that will end that for the season. Looks like from observation that the best crop in several years will be gathered. At last the good home grown tomatoes are in the stores and they certainly do taste wonderful. Big red ones too.

BOOSTER FAIR TRIPS TALKED AT CC SMOKER

Indication of aid for the Eastland Chamber of Commerce booster fair trips was given Thursday evening at the monthly smoker. Fifty attending the meeting heard suggestions from T. E. Richardson, Rev. Charles W. Estes and R. L. Ferguson on how the good will trips might be successfully promoted.

Schedule for the trips. H. C. Davis, chamber secretary, and others indicated would be arranged soon. Earl Bender suggested pencils be distributed between now and the annual event with the fair dates imprinted as an advertising feature.

C. Metz Heald, county agent, announced Eastland county farmers had been invited to a meeting of farmers on the Clear Fork river in Stephens county July 19.

Report that the Mid-Continent Airlines which plans to operate between East and West Texas points will start in 30 days was given by Hamilton McRae, president of the chamber, who presided at the meeting.

Nothing definite on promulgation of the Mangum Lake was indicated in talks of H. C. Davis, McRae, A. W. Williamson and Earl Bender.

J. F. Little, city manager, and H. E. Driscoll, county relief administrator, spoke on Works Progress Administration projects. It was stated a blanket project for paving of many Eastland streets was in the hands of R. F. Bowen, city work projects manager.

Eastland county's boys club was ranked third in the state. C. Metz Heald county agent, reported, Dallas county is first and Tarrant county second. Earnest Jones reported that the Lions club is paying expenses of one boy to the short course at College Station, July 28.

Next meeting will be held Thursday, August 1, it was announced.

MECHANICS LOSE
Pumpkin Center softball team claimed a top-sided victory in Mechanic softball team of Eastland, following a 12 to 4 win.

$80,000 FOR WPA PROJECTS IS REQUESTED

Following a meeting in Eastland this week when Works Progress Administration project rules were explained by County Administrator H. E. Driscoll, $80,000 in proposals were in his office today. A more complete outline of the WPA will be sought by the administrator and R. F. Boston, county projects manager, when the are at the opening of the state office in San Antonio Monday.

They also plan to go to Austin before returning to Eastland.

BLAST ENDS STRATOSPHERE FLIGHT TODAY

RAPID CITY, S. C., July 12.—Man's most ambitious attempt on the stratosphere ended in disaster today as an explosion blew up the huge gas bag of Explorer II, the U. S. Army-National Geographic Society craft before ever it had mounted from the earth.

None was injured as the huge envelope, capable of holding 3,700,000 cubic feet of gas, when fully expanded, tore open near the top and permitted vast blue-gray clouds of helium gas to escape.

Although some 20 men were trapped by the falling fabric all but four escaped unaided and those four were uninjured though half smothered.

It will be impossible to determine what caused the destruction of the balloon until the dew has dried off and the bag stretched out and examined.

It was the general opinion too much strain had been placed on the top fabric of the balloon causing the bag to rip open.

Texas Has More Land In Cotton Than Last Year

AUSTIN, July 12.—Texas had 1,357,000 acres of cotton planted July 1, the federal crop and livestock division estimated today.

The acreage is 10.3 greater than last year's final crop and five per cent more than the 10,816,000 under cultivation July 10, 1934. All sections shared in the increased planting.

HOG PRICES UP
FORT WORTH, July 12.—Hogs reached a top of $9.65 a hundred on the livestock exchange here today, a new five year high.

DEFENSE PLANS IT'S FIGHT IN KIDNAP CASE

TACOMA, Wash., July 12.—The defense brought up its heaviest guns today in its fight to obtain for Margaret Waley, accused in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, the freedom she fears will end in her death.

Despite her fears that William Mahan, fugitive kidnaper, will kill her if she is released, defense attorneys tried to gain her acquittal by presenting both the girl and her husband, Harmon Waley, as their star witnesses.

Waley, who has been waiting two days for the chance to vindicate his bride, will follow her on the witness stand.

He will co-ordinate her story she was intimidated into the kidnaping by the threats of Mahan, among the 945 students who have named as the brains of the $200,000 plot and now hunted all over which is indicative of a great in the United States as a public increase in enrollment over that of last year.

Police Duped By Telephone 'Tip'

Acting on a telephone "tip" from an unknown party, night policeman Bob Hall, securing assistance of Earnest Daniels and Morgan Myers, motor patrolmen, and others, surrounded the Harkrider cleaning shop in Eastland Thursday night.

Ball and the patrolmen climbed to the top of the building with guns and flashlight and crept along the coping until they were opposite three men tampering with the skylight.

Then they climbed down without taking any prisoners. They found the men were glaziers installing a new skylight.

Seven Drowned In Colorado Floods

LAMAR, Colo., July 12.—At least seven persons were drowned and three missing today after Wolf creek went on a rampage at Granada, west of here.

Bodies of two women and four children were recovered. Among the three missing were other children.

The drowned, members of two families, were trapped when the flood washed away their homes. Property along the creek was damaged.

Home Agent Speaks At Club Meeting

Demonstration of bed making was given by Miss Ruth Ramey, county home agent, at a recent meeting of the Morton Valley Home Demonstration club in the home of Mrs. Tobe Hamilton.

Mrs. Thad Henderson presided. Next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Bill Whately, July 18.

At the meeting were Meses. W. E. Tankersley, Ed Castleberry, D. W. Funk, R. Need, Lowell Stoker, J. G. McClarny, J. B. Rayfield, J. G. Hammit, Josie K. Nix, W. B. Peoples, J. P. Myracle, Thad Henderson, Guy Stoker, and Miss Ruth Ramey.

New Orleans Mayor Asked to Resign

NEW ORLEANS, July 12.—A resolution asking the resignation of Mayor Semmes Womslley was presented at an old regular democratic party caucus today by a committee representing leaders of every ward in the city.

OUTLAWING OF GOLD SUITS TO BE VOTED ON

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The house banking and currency committee today voted to report favorably the administration bill outlawing suits for payment of government obligations on their former gold basis.

The resolution provides for redemption of gold bonds and notes in cash on a dollar-for-dollar basis until Jan. 1, 1936. The secretary of treasury may, at his discretion, however, order cessation of this redemption after Sept. 1, 1935.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns expected the resolution would be brought to the floor next week, probably Monday.

The bill is high on President Roosevelt's list of "must" legislation for this session.

Cannery Shutdowns Predicted By Driscoll Unless Weather Abates

Eastland county's canneries will close within one week unless there is an alleviation of the current heat wave, H. E. Driscoll, county relief administrator, predicted today.

Continuation of the prolonged hot weather is slowing down the supply of vegetables flowing into the canneries, Administrator Driscoll indicated.

OLDEN CHURCH REVIVAL WILL START SUNDAY

Announcement was made today by Rev. K. C. Edmonds, pastor of the Olden Baptist church, that the annual summer revival meeting would be started Sunday and would continue for two weeks.

Rev. Edmonds will do the preaching and the singing will be conducted by Rev. Hugh Blair, who was conductor of singing at the recent revival held at the Central Baptist church of Ranger.

Services at the church will be conducted in the tabernacle alongside the church, where there are plenty of seats for a large congregation and where it will be much cooler than inside a church building.

The public has been cordially invited to attend these services and a good attendance is anticipated by members of the church, as these open-air revival services at Olden have proved to be extremely popular during the hot summer months.

Higher Court's Recess Begins

Spring recess for the 11th Court of Civil Appeals began today and justices were planning their vacation. Resumption of court is scheduled Sept. 7.

Associate Justice Clyde Grogson plans to spend the summer with his family at Haskell.

Associate Justice and Mrs. Fundenburk will go to Fort McKabet, 22 miles of Menard on the highway towards Sonora.

TO MOVE OFFICE
The Eastland local zone relief office will be moved as soon as a suitable location and building is selected, officials stated today.

The building on East Commerce street used as a location was described as not large enough for relief stores and the Eastland office. It was indicated the location would be continued to be used for warehouse purposes.

ON TRIP
D. J. Jobe, office deputy in the sheriff's office, and Mrs. Jobe, are vacationing in Johnson, Colo.

Commission Not In Favor of Oil Control Measures

AUSTIN.—State Railroad Commissioners vigorously and almost indignantly oppose federal usurpation of the state's right to regulate oil production in Texas. Now they are on the other end of an oil control problem in the South Houston field.

South Houston already has set a rule for well drilling spaces by city ordinance. The state commission is being asked to adopt a different rule.

Whether the state would be any more justified in disregarding a local city regulation than the federal government would be in disregarding a Texas state order is a question that is giving the oil officials at the capitol considerable worry.

FISHING CAST COSTS SIGHT
GENEVA, O.—Alfred Spring flexed his limber fishing rod for a long cast. He snapped the line in mid-air and a small singer attached to it hurtled through the air for 30 feet and struck Spring's companion, Charles Jones, in the right eye, blinding it. The eye was removed at Community hospital.

'Non-Nose Over' Plane Tested

A new "flivver" nonoplane, of the pusher type, which its designer claims cannot nose over, is shown here in two views, about to land at Wayne county airport, Detroit, above, and below in a closeup. Designed by Dean Hammond, of Ypsilanti, Mich., 15 of these ships have been built for the bureau of air commerce and given exhaustive tests. The craft is of metal construction, with fabric-covered wings and tail surface and will cruise at 100 miles an hour. The air-cooled engine is mounted aft the two-place cabin and two of the three landing wheels are behind the center of gravity.

NEW CHARGES OF SOCIALISM HEARD TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Secretary George Chandler, of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, charged before the house ways and means committee today that "numerous conspirators" close to President Roosevelt, sought to replace capitalism with socialism.

A bitter partisan row among committee members developed during questioning of Chandler.

Democrats charged the witness had insulted the committee and republicans retaliated with charges the witness had been insulted.

Chandler appeared before the committee to oppose the President Roosevelt tax-the-rich program.

He was the first chamber of commerce witness to appear before the committee, since launching of a drive against the program by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

He assailed the program and declared it was part of a plan to "delay recovery and destroy the private profit system of this country."

Mr. Hood will have the support of Messrs. E. J. Hughes, E. J. Egan, J. C. Hattow, Williams and G. D. Morrison, May, vocational teachers in their respective schools, who will assist in bringing up one of the greatest agricultural exhibits ever displayed here.

While arrangements have not yet been made for suitable buildings it was pointed out that several, very well adapted to the purpose, are available and announcement of the choice will be made later.

MELVIN PURVIS RESIGNS HIS G-MAN JOB

CHICAGO, July 12.—Melvin Purvis, the man who got John Dillinger, resigned today as America's No. 1 crime fighter.

Purvis laid aside the mantle of office without ceremony, leaving a record unapproached in modern law enforcement. He gave up his position as special agent in charge of the Chicago office of the bureau of investigation to "settle down in Chicago."

"I'm going to get a pipe and sit on someone's front porch," he said in his formal announcement of resignation which he said had been accepted by J. Edgar Hoover to be effective today. He will be succeeded in Chicago by Daniel Ladd, who has run the bureau intermittently.

Countries Will Aid Evacuation Plans
LONDON, July 12.—The United States and British governments were understood to have concluded arrangements for cooperation in the evacuation of nationals from Abyssinia in event of war with Italy.

WITNESSES IN PROBE TAKE STAND TODAY

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Public utilities companies have spent $301,000 fighting the utility bill, the senate lobby inquiry revealed today as it started hearing with breath-taking speed.

Chairman Hugo Black, Dem., Ala., summoned the newly appointed committee into executive session to discuss methods of procedure and then suddenly opened the doors and announced the investigation would start with the appearance of Philip Gadsden, Philadelphia, chairman of the committee of public utilities executives.

Gadsden testified his organization was formed last February to "protect our interests against the bill."

He said 18 or 19 holding company groups had contributed about $300,000 to the committee and a call had been sent out for $50,000 additional.

"Is it true that letters were sent out asking stockholders to contribute 25 cents a share to defeat this bill?" Black asked.

"Certainly not by my committee," Gadsden replied, adding that if anything of that kind had been done "I should think it might have been the Federation of Utility Investors of Chicago."

Rising Star Fair Dates Are Fixed For Sept. 20, 21

RISING STAR, Texas, July 12. Sept. 20 and 21 were set as the dates for the annual Rising Star Free Fall fair and preliminary plans made to make it one of the most outstanding fairs ever held.

D. C. Wilcox, who has handled the supervision of the fair for the past two years, was again named general superintendent and M. O. Hood, professor of vocational agriculture in Rising Star high school, placed in charge of all agricultural exhibits. Messrs. Hood, Frank Robertson, Fred Tunnell and D. C. Wilcox were named as a committee to work out the list of committees to have charge of the different departments of the fair and will meet within a few days to do this important work.

Mr. Hood will have the support of Messrs. E. J. Hughes, E. J. Egan, J. C. Hattow, Williams and G. D. Morrison, May, vocational teachers in their respective schools, who will assist in bringing up one of the greatest agricultural exhibits ever displayed here.

While arrangements have not yet been made for suitable buildings it was pointed out that several, very well adapted to the purpose, are available and announcement of the choice will be made later.

Sylvian Club at Fort Worth Burns

FORT WORTH, July 12.—Fire of undetermined origin early today completely destroyed the Sylvian club, swank Dallas pike night club, at an estimated loss of $100,000.

Caretakers were able to save only the instruments of the orchestra as the fire swept through the wood and stone structure.

Fire companies from Fort Worth and Arlington were helpless. A 10,000-gallon water tower was badly charred but did not fall as the flames licked at the supports.

Tax Dispute May Lead Way to Budget Cure

Out of all the squabbling about the "soak the rich" tax projected for congressional consideration, there should at least come forth an excellent educational program on the general subject of government finances.

On the one hand we have Michigan's Senator Vandenberg declaring that the program as the president has outlined it is "inadequate, incomplete, and pathetically superficial."

It is his idea that Congress should take a few months off to think things over and then come back with a plan that would not only boost the taxes on the very wealthy, but would increase the takings from citizens of more modest means.

On the other hand, we have the well-to-do Mr. Charles H. Sabin, Jr., appearing as the mouthpiece for a group of wealthy men who feel that the administration should simultaneously reduce income taxes and balance the budget; and before anyone can remark that this would be a good trick if you could do it, they hasten to suggest an all-inclusive federal sales tax.

Just what will eventually be done with the program, subjected as it will be to strong pressures from diametrically opposite directions, is something for the seventh son of a seventh son to worry about. But it should at least set people thinking about some of the fundamentals of government finance problems.

To begin, we might reach the point of understanding that in any scheme of tax reform we can't have it both ways. A reduction of income taxes would be a blessing, and so would a completely balanced federal budget; but some of our publicists and statesmen have been agitating for both things at the same time, and this educational program might convince them that this just naturally can't be done.

Beyond that, however, the discussion should focus attention on the fact that one of the greatest needs of the hour is the restoration of order to government finances.

A budget which goes unbalanced for a year or two, in a country as potentially rich as the United States, need not worry anyone. A budget which is permitted to stay unbalanced for year after year, while high officials evade the subject of tax revision by relying hopefully on a business revival, is about as ominous a portent as a government can face.

We seem at last to be coming to grips with this problem. If the coming row over the advisability or otherwise of soaking the rich arouses us to the importance of a balanced budget, it will be one of the most useful developments of the year.

Democracy Loses Its Fear of King's Rule

The World War, as we all fondly hoped, was fought to make the world safe for democracy. Since the existence of a king is usually an obstacle in democracy's path, one of our greatest objectives was to see Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs chased away from their thrones forever.

We got our wish. Or, at any rate, we thought we did. The central powers lost their royal families, and in the dark days that followed we felt that this, at least, was one definite and positive benefit gained by the war. And now Austria prepares to invite the Hapsburgs back to their ancient throne—and almost nobody seems to be especially worried about it.

It would be an ironic thing if, 17 years after the war, young Archduke Otto should return to Austria at the invitation of the people who disowned him; yet the tide of history can pull in some strange directions, at times, and the confusion of the post-war years may resolve itself in an altogether unexpected manner.

But the significant point about this particular development is not that Austria wants the Hapsburgs back but that nobody else seems inclined to object very much.

It reflects a widespread public disillusionment with the avowed objects for which the war was fought. More than that, it reveals our recognition of the fact that democracy can be effectively and thoroughly stifled even when there is no king within a thousand miles.

Russia lost its czar and Germany lost its kaizer—yet there is actually less democracy in those two countries than there was before the war. Italy has kept its king, deprived him of power—and, simultaneously, has knocked democracy on the head. Austria and Hungary discarded the Hapsburgs, and got less freedom instead of more.

All of this has grown out of an intense human weariness, mingled with fear, suspicion and a growing lack of confidence in the ability of people in the mass to solve their problems. The trend has been toward strong authoritarian governments. Democracy is no longer in danger from kings, but from a widespread feeling that democracy itself is played out.

This being the case, why should not Austria recall the Hapsburgs if she pleases? We who still cling to the democratic ideal need not worry about that. It is our task to prove that democracy can, after all, prove an effective means of government in a world that lives in a continual state of crisis.

The telephone goal of Europe is JUST A GOOD JOB here

The fast, clear, far-reaching telephone service of America has never been equalled by European nations. Differences in equipment, methods and policies have barred the way to such service among the many countries there.

In America, your telephone service has over-leaped state and regional lines. Here there are no telephone boundaries.

Your telephone is "first cousin" to each of 13 million other Bell telephones here. It is designed and manufactured to meet uniform operating standards.

Every Bell telephone line, local and long distance, is built to conform to uniform tests of clarity and volume in carrying your voice.

Every Bell telephone operator, whether in New York, in San Francisco, or in the thousands of towns and cities between, is trained to use the same methods... the same team-work in operating the vast national communications network. That these things are true is due largely to the Bell System form of organization. American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the parent company, studies and standardizes better and more economical methods, apparatus and materials for the 24 operating companies of the System. Bell Laboratories carries on the research work. Western Electric manufactures, purchases and distributes.

Without this organization behind them, the Southwestern Bell men and women here who give your telephone service could not do their job so well. For many years it has materially helped us, as one of the group of operating companies, in holding the cost of good telephone service low to the user.

NAOMI, A WOMAN OF FAITH AND COURAGE

Ruth 1:14-22, 4:15-17
In the land of Moab, in the year B. C. 1173, Naomi, the name meaning sweet one, with her heart crushed, started on her journey back to her former home in Bethlehem.

As Naomi, with her two heathen daughters-in-law walked along, no doubt she pondered over her past life and wondered why God had smitten her.

But there was no bitterness in her heart toward God as she dwelt upon the memories of when she with her husband, Elimelech, name meaning "God is King," and two sons, Mahlon and Chilion, dwelt in a happy Christian home in Bethlehem.

the most famous earthly ancestor of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Naomi's strength came through her knowledge and faith in God's dealing with people and herself. She was true to God in a heathen land where Christians today would say, "It is so hard to live for God."

Sorrow did not turn her away from God but drew her nearer until she had great vision and lived understandingly, realizing that

"Favor is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised" (Proverbs 31:30).

In this land of ours today where our every day necessities far outshine the luxuries of kings in olden times, it is well for our women to study Naomi who could suffer the hardships of grief, loss and long journeys on foot for her Lord without grumbling, growing from "strength to strength" in courage and faith.

All women cultivate a beautiful appearance in their conception of what is beauty. But how pitiful is beauty that is not lighted by that inner radiant glow that deepens with the years, in the knowledge and love of Christ.

I shuddered once to hear a young woman give as her excuse for not attending a revival that it was "just simply too hard for her to climb the hill a block, to the church."

My mind's eye jumped to the hill of Golgotha where a young man, divine in nature, a descendant of this Obed, toiled under a cross that was so heavy that he could not bear it alone, to a death of shame that became the most glorious death in the annals of time wherein even all nature made great manifestation.

Through Him was all woman-kind lifted to newer and higher levels of living, who should honor him in a life of service wherein is found faith, courage, and joy in a strength that keeps unto the end with a sure reward.

Governor's Wife Raises Chickens

AUSTIN.—Cackling hens and a crowing rooster now are a part of the equipment of the governor's mansion. Mrs. Jo Betsy Allred is raising chickens to supply eggs for the executive breakfast table.

White leghorns have been installed within the netting that once kept Gov. Dan Moody's captive deer from munching the flowers about the Governor's residence.

The enterprise has had a propitious start. The hens are laying regularly—so regularly that Gov. Allred is figuring how much he

"Battle Hymn" Origin is Traced

NEW YORK.—The centennial of the birth of the composer whose music was used for "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" is chronicled on June 29, 1930.

The story of how the music was written was recalled by a man who knew the composer, Thomas Brigham Bishop. The original song was written as a joke, according to John J. MacIntyre of Port Richmond, Staten Island, N. Y.

This song, first known as "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah," and later as "John Brown's Body," was written in 1858. During the Civil War the music was used for "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

MacIntyre quoted Bishop as telling him:

"The melody, as far as I can find out, was original with me, and the line which suggested it was spoken to me in Portland, Me., in 1858, by my brother-in-law, Andrew J. Johnson, who had experienced religion. He took me to task for the general character of my writings, remarking that my songs were all written for the devil. Then he exclaimed: 'I am bound to be a soldier in the army of the Lord; glory, glory, hallelujah!'

"Without stopping to think, I sang this line to a melody which seemed to escape from my mouth, and the chorus followed. In little or no time the song was written. It was done really as a joke upon my sanctimonious brother-in-law and was written in the presence of a friend who was always teasing Mr. Johnson about his religious fervor.

"The song, or hymn, was sung by Mr. Johnson a few evenings afterward at a revival meeting. Everybody took to it at once. Camp meetings were popular then and it was taken up by them and carried into small towns everywhere.

"I sang it on several occasions, adapting it to circumstances and conditions, and at Martinsburg, Va., after John Brown's execution at Harper's Ferry, I wrote the original lines of 'John Brown's Body Lies a-Mould'ring in the Grave.'"

"The song was published in 1861

by John Church of Cincinnati, Ohio. "Then Julia Ward Howe took the music and used it for her grand poem, 'The Battle Hymn of the Republic'."

Dalhart Raises Money For Test

DALHART, Tex.—Dalhart businessmen have raised $3,000 to continue drilling on the Warner oil test, eight miles northwest of the city.

Eben D. Warner, Amarillo, drilled the well to contract depth and stopped but he offered the community free use of all equipment and casing if it would pay fuel and labor costs. In addition he gives all royalty rights in six sections offsetting the well, the rights to be prorated among the donors of the fund.

The $3,000 will carry the well down another 300 to 500 feet, it was said. Elevation at the well site is 4,044 feet but drilling was not disclosed.

EXPERIENCE - THE BEST TEACHER

"Safety Lanes" Are Still Maintained

By United Press AUSTIN.—If Texas summer tourists ride the highways with defective brakes this year it will not be the fault of the state highway patrol.

"Safety lane" tests in nearly a score of Texas cities have been conducted to insure safety on the highways. One hundred twenty highway patrolmen, aided by local police, are conducting further examinations.

Procedure has been simple. Patrolmen are stationed at strategic points on main highways entering the cities. Motorists are stopped, told to demonstrate how effective their brakes are. Those below standard safety requirements are given cards ordering immediate repair or adjustment. Major offenders are fined, others are released by a later demonstration that their brakes are effective.

FLIES ARE DEADLY MENACE DESPITE THEIR INNOCENT APPEARANCE

"You little fly upon the wall. Ain't you got no clothes at all?" Thus ran a once popular jingle. No, the fly has no clothes at all, but he is laden with filth and disease-producing germs which make him a serious menace to human health. He is not a "harmless fly" physicians declare, he is a constant source of human suffering and death as a result of his ability to carry bacteria from filth piles to human food and bodies.

"If flies were considered seriously as the health menace they are," says F. O. Moberg, President of the Rex Research Corporation, "everyone would set about to eliminate them instead of thinking of flies as merely minor annoyances." Actually, health authorities report, flies and similar insect pests such as mosquitoes are responsible for more than 135,000 deaths annually in the United States alone.

Insects on a "Public Enemy" list would be headed by the fly as Enemy No. 1. Two other insects prominent on such a list would be the mosquito and the deadly Black Widow spider. The fact that man has evolved methods of protecting himself against the dangers of insects has enabled him to reduce the number of deaths he otherwise would suffer as a result of his insect-infested environment. Most popular among the methods of ridding homes of insects is the spraying of Fly-Tox, a liquid developed at the Mellon Institute by Rex Research Fellowship, for killing insect pests.

Mt. Vancouver to Defy All Climbers

VANCOUVER, B. C. — Mount Vancouver, most impregnable of Canada's mountain peaks, never will be scaled on foot, Bradford Washburn, noted mountain climber, believes. Washburn is the leader of the Washburn Expedition which has found many hitherto unknown peaks in the Yukon Territory. Mount Vancouver lies in southwestern Yukon. Washburn flew over the peak in an airplane and said it was "utterly impregnable." "It is one of the most amazing mountain masses I have ever seen.

Kiss Proves Couple Are Not Estranged

HOUSTON — Frank Willford, county judge-at-law, demanded evidence that a woman who charged her husband struck her, had become reconciled with him later. She said she had decided not to prosecute because her husband had found a job. Judge Willford ordered her to bring the accused into court. She did so. "Do you two people still love each other?" Willford asked after the husband admitted "I guess I made a mistake." Both answered that they did. Judge Willford ordered the husband to give his wife a "big hug and kiss right here in the courtroom." The couple embraced and left courtroom happy.

The Wasteline Tells Ants From Termites

PHOENIX, Ariz.—By their waistslines shall you know them—termites and winged ants. Termites, say federal entomologists here, have very slim waistslines—in fact, almost no waistslines, too, but not quite so slender as the termites. Also, termites' wings are perfectly matched, while winged ants' are not. "I'll be expecting you tomorrow night then," Jo said. When she replaced the receiver she stood staring at the telephone. Why had she lied to Bret so glibly? "It wasn't a lie, really," she tried to tell herself. "It really is helping Mr. Brown on a big order." But as that thought passed through her mind she had to laugh bitterly at herself. "You lied to Bret. Deliberately. Tomorrow you've got to tell him the truth." A glance at the clock stirred her out of her uncomfortable thoughts. Six-thirty—just time for a shower and getting into her clothes. But when the clerk telephoned that Mr. Marsh was in the lobby, Jo was ready. Marsh was standing by the door of the automatic elevator when Jo descended, hoping that her dress wouldn't smell of recent ironing. Smilingly, he drew back the door and exclaimed, "You looked like an angel descending to earth! I do hope the angel enjoys her evening with the mortals." Jo laughed. "I'm sure she will."

SUN-TAN

Advertisement for Sun-Tan tanning product. It features a large photograph of a woman in a swimsuit, smiling and holding a camera. The text includes: 'BEGIN HERE TODAY JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo gets a job as bookkeeper in a small marine supply store. She is engaged to BRETT PAUL, athletic star. DOUGLAS MARSH, handsome, wealthy, comes to the store to buy equipment for the summer colony he is establishing at Great Lake. Jo works overtime, assisting with the order, and Marsh asks her to have dinner with him. She accepts the invitation, later regrets this, because she knows so little about Marsh. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V AS Jo sat at the lunch counter endeavoring to justify the sudden turn of events which had given her, all in one day, a new job and a dinner engagement with a millionaire bachelor, her woman's mind shot into the practical question, "What shall I wear?" She had not yet even unpacked her trunk at the Fendale apartments, and it was now almost 3 o'clock. Hurriedly she finished her coffee, wondering whether her blue dull-silk would be fit. She hadn't worn it since the last sorority dance and it had been on its banger in her wardrobe trunk ever since. And her dark blue slippers—if she remembered rightly she had stepped into a puddle in front of the gymnasium that night, and never cleaned them. It was the last dance of the campus season, and she had simply tossed everything into her trunk, thinking she would take them out at home. When she reached the Fendale she ordered her trunk sent up at once, and when it arrived she hurriedly examined the clothes to question. Thank Heaven, the slippers could be made presentable by a little scrubbing with a stiff brush! And her silk jacket which would make the blue dress correct for dinner wear was presentable enough. But the blue dull-silk dress needed pressing. "I won't have time to send the dress out," Jo thought. "And besides, it would cost too much in my state of affairs." So out came the little electric iron and cord she had used at school; and in the wall of the kitchen was, luckily, an ironing board which folded down for use. Jo fell to work with a will, and in a short time the blue silk was hanging in presentable folds on a hanger suspended from the tight fixture. Her best stockings she found ready to wear—and when it came to underthings, well, Jo had always been extravagant. This was one of the times when she was glad for this extravagance. SHE was interrupted twice in her preparations. The first was by a special delivery letter from her father. As Jo read it she found it hard to keep back the tears. "Dear Daughter: Your Mother has just shown me your letter in which you say that you are not coming home, but are going to find a job for the summer. I wish I might have had the chance to explain to you face to face the predicament I find myself in, but perhaps it was best that you know before returning. It's probably just as well that you did not come home, for I must confess that right now we don't feel very gay, and I'm afraid the house would be no place for a young girl. "I wish you all kinds of luck in finding a place, but I want you to know that you are welcome here any time, and that we are anxious to see you. I am sure that everything will turn out for the best. I have made a living for you and Mother for a good long time, and I certainly hope to keep on doing it. "Mother sends her love and so do I.—Dad." If Jo had owned the money for a ticket to Weston she might have started immediately for home—just to try to comfort her mother and father, to make them see that, as far as Jo Darien was concerned, they were still the finest and most lovable persons on earth. Poor Dad! There was so much his letter didn't say, so much that came through to Jo without words. "I must write them first thing in the morning and tell them I have a job," she thought. "I won't tell them it only pays me $40 a month. They'd worry." THEN came a telephone call from Bret. "I have a feeling you're a working girl now," he said. "You're right, Bret. I got the job. Forty dollars a month!" Bret laughed, and Jo added, "I don't see anything funny about that." "I was laughing with relief," Bret explained. "You won't get to be a rich woman on $40 a month—so there's a chance for me, after all. How about letting me take you to the University Inn for dinner, and then maybe a movie?" "Oh, Bret, I—I can't." "What? Got another man already now that you're out in the world?" "No, I—I have to do some extra work for Mr. Brown." "Mr. Brown?" "My new boss. You see, he hasn't had anybody in the office for months and things are in a mess. He has a big order coming up and I have to help him." "Gosh, I'm sorry, darling. Make sure he pays you for overtime." Jo managed a laugh. "I'll try... and you will call me again, won't you, Bret?" "Nobody can keep me from it. But you'd better keep tomorrow night open I may have to leave for Piscid beach day after tomorrow. I got a letter from them to

Magic is Traced For 1,000 Years NEW YORK—There is no "best trick" in the field of magic and there is no "best magician."

The biographies of such famous performers as Anderson, Houdini, Heller, Carl Herrmann and his brother Alexander, "Herrmann the Great," Maskelyne, John William Sargent, Kellar, Ching Ling Foo, Houdini, Thurston and many others are given in the book.

According to Mulholland 80 per cent of the success of a magic show depends upon the way the tricks are presented and the manner in which the magician induces the audience to respond—the psychological factors; 10 per cent of the mystery is due to sleight of hand and 10 per cent to a hidden mechanical device.

MYSTERY FILM USES COLLEGE AS BACKGROUND The cloistered campus of a co-educational college has been chosen as the unusual setting for an engrossing murder mystery in Paramount's "College Scandal," which comes Sunday to the Lyric theatre.

Kent Taylor, Arline Judge, Eddie Nugent and Wendy Barrie, the new ingenue sensation from England, are the principals in the story.

Wendy Barrie acts the part of a French girl, the daughter of a new professor, and the new center of attraction for the campus sheiks. The man she really likes, however, is Kent Taylor, a chemistry professor.

When the editor of the campus paper attempts to print a story linking up Miss Barrie and Taylor romantically, he is mysteriously killed. Not long after, his closest friend is strangled to death by a mysterious assailant.

The campus, gripped by terror, blames Wendy Barrie for the mysterious killings. When an unsuccessful attempt is made on Eddie Nugent, the police finally get on the trail of the actual killer.

A thrilling chase and the rescue of the principals from a house in which a bomb has been set, serves to bring the criminals to justice and the picture has a happy ending.

Elliott Nugent directed "College Scandal" which features a new song by Sam Coslow, author of "A Little White Gardenia."

By HARRY GRAYSON

WASHINGTON. — The portents indicate that the Bland-Cope land merchant marine bill, described by its opponents as a fantastic scheme which would open the Treasury to still bigger and better raids by shipping interests, is sunk.

Much of the credit for licking the bill goes to a relatively obscure, pudgy young congressman—Edward C. "Eddie" Moran, Jr., of Maine.

The almost unparalleled influence of the twin lobbies of the shipping operators and the shipbuilders in Washington has been thoroughly revealed by the Black ocean mail committee, the Farley investigations and the Senate Munitions Committee. When this outfit gets licked, that's news.

Hardly any newspapermen were present when Moran appeared to attack the bill a few weeks ago, on almost the last day of hearings, before the House Merchant Marine Committee, of which Congressman S. O. Bland, of the shipbuilding city of Newport News, Va., is chairman.

That morning stands out in my memory because I've never seen a congressman subjected to such browbeating and bulldozing as Bland attempted to administer to Moran.

Bland was aided by Lehibach of New Jersey and other friends of the ship industry. But Moran kept doggedly on, attacking the bill, which he branded as "the same old steal," showing how one shipbuilding company alone claimed to have spent $159,000 to put over the Jones-White subsidy act of 1923 and revealing close relations between shipbuilders and members of Congress.

Between one house and another, the bill was so dead that even its passage in the House—where it had had the way and was speeded by leaders—became doubtful.

In Case of Attack Crawl into Balloon Kaperfer, who has won the moq of his life on balloons, started on the balloons were made to fit and tin gases, and might just as well be used to keep them out.

Nothing simpler. Crawl into your balloon and stay there. That is the solution of Inventor Kaperfer, who presents a new sort of gas-proof refuge capable of being adapted to any apartment without cumbering it, and readily utilizable with a minimum of preparation.

Rate of Taxation Is Figured Out

AUSTIN.—Want to know how much city, county and school taxes you paid last year compared to residents of other Texas cities? E. E. McAdams, secretary of the Texas League of Municipalities recently compared tax rates in 312 Texas cities, using the actual value

"ANN IS GOING TO GET MARRIED!"

"YES! She's engaged to a nice boy. He's not making a big salary yet, but he's a hard worker. They'll have to be careful of their money, at first!"

Careful of their money! With a home to find, furniture to buy, marketing to learn... with the thousand and one little emergencies to meet that newlyweds never dream of!

And a young girl, inexperienced in these practical problems, is expected to be careful of her money! Ann will bless advertising. In the pages of this newspaper she will find the very experience she lacks—the advice she needs!

It is when every penny counts that advertising gives its best service. The advertisements you read are valuable lessons in everyday economy. They help, as nothing else can, to make your dollar go the longest distance. For advertisements show you which article, at the price you are willing to pay, is going to suit you best. And the very fact it is advertised is its guarantee that it will give you satisfaction after you have bought it.

The advertisements in this newspaper are a most valuable guide to wise buying. It pays to read them regularly.
