MEASURE NOW GOES TO HOUSE FOR ACTION

Bill Would Permit 6 Months In Which Suits Could Be Tried.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The senate overrode vigorous opposition by conservative democrats and republicans today and approved a resolution outlawing suits against the government by holders of federal gold bonds.

The measure now goes to the house, where an effort probably will be made to restore it to the form in which it passed originally on July 18.

COTTON CROP FOR 1935 HAS BIG INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The 1935 American cotton crop of 11,798,000 bales, 2,067,000 bales in excess of last year's production, was forecast today by the department of agriculture.

Immediate reaction of the market was a drop in future quotations. If the crop is as large as now estimated, the Bankhead giving tax of 5 cents a pound would have to be paid on more than 2,000,000 bales of the crop.

Liquor Dealers Paid Taxes of $2,024,981 During Year 1934

AUSTIN.—Liquor dealers in Texas in 1934 paid the federal government $2,024,981.46, A. Emmett Morse, chairman of the Texas repeal forces announced today.

"While the federal government was collecting this vast sum," Morse pointed out, "in dry Texas, the state government of Texas was collecting nothing. If Texas had collected its just share on the $75,000,000 worth of liquor which the senatorial investigation committee found to have been sold in dry Texas in 1934, the state would not now be facing a $12,000,000 deficit for 1936."

C. T. WALTON OF KIRKLAND ELECTED SUPERINTENDENT OF RANGER PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

At a called meeting of the school board, held in the office of the secretary Wednesday night, W. T. Walton of Kirkland, was elected as superintendent of the Ranger school system to replace R. P. Holloway, who has resigned from the position.

Walton was notified of his election today and was asked to be in Ranger to assume his duties not later than Tuesday, Aug. 13, if possible. Holloway's resignation does not take effect until Aug. 31, but the new superintendent was asked to be in Ranger early in order that he might have time to familiarize himself with the school system and so he could meet with the board at the regular meeting of August 13.

The new superintendent has secured his B. A. and Master's degrees from Yale University and has done considerable work toward his Ph. D. It was stated today by members of the board, before attending Yale he graduated from Simmons University at Abilene and was a teacher in Simmons for four years.

Texas' New Laws Which Go Into Effect on Aug. 10 Are Outlined In Series of Austin Dispatches

Editor's note: Here is the fourth of a series of articles on new Texas laws which will become effective Aug. 10, 90 days after the adjournment of the 44th legislature.

By Richard M. Moorehead United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN, Tex.—Anonymous political advertising is prohibited in Texas after Aug. 10 under a law passed to bring candidates out in the open concerning their campaign backers.

Another law concerning elections provides that candidates for the legislature must pay a $50 ballot fee if their home county has a population of more than 125,000. In other counties the fee is $1 per county for placing one's name on the ticket.

These are two of more than 200 laws which become effective 90 days after the adjournment of the 44th legislature. Others run the gamut of usual minor laws.

RELIEF WILL BE STOPPED BY NOVEMBER 1

(Copyright 1935 by United Press) WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The administration, it was learned today, plans to start shutting off direct relief to whole states on September 1, and end the dole all over the country two months later, by putting 3,500,000 men to work.

Work relief officials predicted their $4,000,000,000 employment drive will become so effective within three weeks that these states will need no more Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

The move, program officials said, will solve the problem of caring for unemployables.

Work Relief Held Up By Too Many Bosses

Somewhere back in January, Congress put through a $4,800,000,000 bill for work-relief.

This was to be the final, triumphant, mopping-up drive of the great campaign against unemployment. It was to take 3,500,000 men off the dole and restore them to honest jobs. It was to "prime the pump" once more with such expenditures for capital as would finally set our whole productive machine in motion again.

That was just about seven months ago. Today, according to the most recent checkup, slightly less than 25,000 people have gone to work under this bill. The great public works that were to result are hardly past the blue-print stage. The whole campaign has bogged down in a manner utterly dismaying to anyone who hopes to see the government work its way out of the expensive business of direct relief.

One trouble—perhaps the chief one—seems to be that there are too many bosses.

Hary Hopkins is Federal Relief Administrator. Secretary Ickes is Public Works Administrator. Frank C. Walker is a sort of middle man, head of the Division of Applications and Information.

It is up to Mr. Hopkins to see to it that as many men as possible are given work—any kind and every kind of work, so long as it is work.

It is Mr. Ickes' job to see to it that the jobs undertaken are as useful, as substantial and as permanent as possible.

It is Mr. Walker's job to harmonize the inevitable conflicts between these viewpoints, and that is something that takes a bit of doing; for the more successful Mr. Hopkins is the less successful Mr. Ickes will have to be, and vice versa.

As a result, the whole program seems to be in a state of considerable confusion. At one moment it looks as if Mr. Ickes' program for substantial and enduring public works will carry the day; a little later it appears that Mr. Hopkins will have his way and will put men at work raking leaves and riling tennis courts; now and then it almost looks as if nothing would be done.

What seems to be needed is a firm and definite decision from the White House. In some ways this work relief program is the most important single undertaking of the whole administration. Indecision and the conflict of varying plans should not be allowed to cripple it any longer.

New Heights in Sight For Plane Industry

Uncle Sam's Bureau of Air Commerce is going to continue with its efforts to develop a foolproof airplane that the ordinary man can fly without risking his neck.

Eugene L. Vidal, director of the bureau, made this clear in a speech before the recent convention of the National Association of Aviation Editors in Detroit; and after he had made his speech, all hands went out to a flying field to have a look at a freakish new plane that had been built to meet these specifications.

This plane cannot go into a stall and "fall off on one wing"—the prelude to a tailspin, which accounts for fully 70 per cent of all accidents to private flyers. It cannot nose over when it is landed, no matter how unskillfully the job is done. The rawest pupil flyer can take it off the ground and get it down again without cracking up.

Just what may happen to this plane in the course of further tests is, of course, problematical. It may develop new "bugs" quite as dangerous as the old ones which it seems to have dodged. But it is clear that it represents a long step in the right direction, and Mr. Vidal's campaign is amply justified.

The ordinary citizen does not often have occasion to ride in one of the great transport planes. When he does, he gets a good safe ride, to be sure; but if aviation is ever to assume in his life a place comparable to that which the automobile now holds, the kind of plane desired by Mr. Vidal will have to be perfected.

Today's planes are practically foolproof—in the hands of expert flyers. But John Citizen has neither the time nor the money to make an expert out of himself, and as long as it takes highly specialized skill to fly a plane he is going to pass it by.

What he needs is a truly foolproof plane; one which makes the automobile in safety and simplicity of operation. Let such a plane be put on the market at a moderate price—$700 is the figure Mr. Vidal aims at—and the airplane industry will make the same kind of sensation ahead that the auto industry made a couple of years ago.

There are great possibilities in this. Flying is becoming the greatest sport ever devised. Let it be made available to the ordinary man on the same sort of terms as the automobile is now available, and the whole course of our civilization will be profoundly altered. The wildest and vainest day-dream of the race would come true.

DOG DAYS

Relief Really Collapsed Here

Here is one relief problem that presents a colossal job of "digging out from under," in the collapse of a seven-story Chicago warehouse where the government had stored hundreds of tons of food for the needy. The structure was packed to capacity, as the shelves along the wall still standing show. When one wall crumbled, thousands of barrels and sacks of foodstuff and boxes of canned goods were buried in the walls and vibration of switch engines nearby to have caused the debris. A fire several years ago is believed to have weakened the collapse.

Scene Of Work By Hale Rehabilitated

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—The old Mission House, in which Edward Everett Hale wrote "The Man Without a Country," is being rehabilitated. The Mission House, built in 1825 as an Indian mission and school, became famous when it was opened as a summer hotel in 1845 by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Franks. It had been conducted as such until this spring when Gertrude L. Smith of Cleveland purchased it at auction. She said the building would be reconstructed and refurbished. The old register lists among the guests "General Sherman and lady, also two slaves."

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

Willis Thornton, NEA service staff correspondent, is writing the daily Washington column for a short time, "pinch hitting" for Rodney Dutcher. BY WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON—Another rumor that you can cross off the list is the one about Gen. Hugh Johnson running for the U. S. Senate seat of Oklahoma's blind Thomas Gore. The general has just about decided that there's nothing to it for him. Not that he couldn't make it. He would have an excellent chance to beat Gore. But the general, since leaving NRA, has done very well for himself, thank you, amassing a neat pile of something between $100,000 and $200,000 largely by highly paid writing (which he does himself, mostly in longhand). He'd be taking a chance. And why rock the boat when you're sitting pretty? The general, except for his writing, is devoting almost all his time to the New York work-relief problem. He isn't doing a thing at present for Barney Baruch who is in Europe.

A NEAT sidelight on public utility tactics toward regulation was outlined the other day in the Senate investigation of utility lobbying. On the stand was John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light Co., who had come to Washington quite frankly to oppose the holding company death sentence bill. The ground of opposition was that such regulation was more properly a state matter. Then Senator Louis B. Schwellenbach.

IN a town which blossoms in white clothes at this time, massive John Lewis of United Mine Workers is a big noddy figure in the air-cooled hoteling rooms in a dark blue suit. Secretary Perkins looked and leaving the White House was his dark polka-dot print dress. The huge round table presided at the White House by Mr. Aguinado, Philippine youth gets an occasional course with newsmen who bump their heads on the carved water-buffalo which project from it. The projected Washington office of the new commonwealth of which federation or third party is projected a month ago, haven't set up yet. Work is being done through the office of Representative T. R. are not being fooled by spasmodic announcements that arbitration is in sight. The Abyssinian emperor will either have to give Italy what they want or fight. There is something certainly brewing along the line of rumors of wars and it seems that it cannot be avoided.

With breathless excitement and anxiety we watched for the result of the attempt to save the man and woman who was trapped on the California mountain ledge. It was with extreme joy that we read this morning that the rescue was perfected. Humanity as a rule gets going on the venturesome roads and nobody pays much attention to them. They are on their own and take their lives in their own hands at their own risk. But, when they are in distress and the distress signal goes out they become the focal point of all people and men risk their lives with greater hazards in order to save those who voluntarily got themselves in their predicament. Being a brothers keeper has held out for the age gone past. It will continue in the years to come. Although some men and women are paid to save lives, there are those who fall into the rescue business without any idea of receiving one dime of compensation nor do they expect any

By HARRY GRAYSON

Riggs, third baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, is another striking illustration of the fact that a ball player doesn't have to knock down minor league fences to make a go of it in the majors. When Larry MacPhail paid the St. Louis Cardinal chain store system $20,000 for Riggs last winter, not a few got the idea that the Vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati club simply did not care what he did with the money of Powell Crossley, Jr. It has long since been made plain that MacPhail and his field director, little Charley Dressen, knew what they were about, however Riggs, who hit only 277 for the Cardinals Columbus farm in 1934 is hitting 302 for the Reds. His bat and brilliance at third base has contributed largely to the somewhat surprising showing of the Cincinnati outfit. At the time of Riggs' purchase, Dressen remarked that he much preferred an intelligent, ambitious, aggressive and mobile 250 minor league hitter to one swatting 400 who is handicapped in other ways. The 250 hitter with a well-rounded game has a much better chance of sticking in the big show explained Dressen. Frequently he turns out to be a superior hitter to the fellow bouncing the ball off the fences in the smaller leagues. The story of most miracle minor league hitters is that they fatten up on poor pitching in three out of every four games. The 250 hitter plugs along, hitting all kinds of pitching consistently, and if he has it in him, the pitching won't look a great deal different to him when he graduates and has continually to face someone who puts something on every ball pitched. When they get it they squander their ill-gotten gains or use it for power to continue their horrible life of crime against decent society. What a contrast there is to the trend of human minds. Men who are interested in their town and community for the past glorious praise for their act. That's what makes human life and contact with their fellows beautiful and worth while. Racketeers, murderers and criminals let their victims die. They torture and maim their fellow man into submission first and then kill them in cold blood, all for the want of money.

Minor League Terrors Flop in Majors. MANY a minor league slugger has failed to make the grade in the majors. Alex Hooks, who lopped with the AAAAAA's this season, is the latest example. Bunny Brif, Smead Jolley, Dale Alexander, Ike Boone, Frank Brasill, Buzz Arlett, Nick Cullop, and Harley Boss were—and are—vaunted minor league swatsmiths who, for one reason or another, met with little or no success when they antled into the big show. On the other hand, scores of major league stars came out of the minors with ordinary batting averages. Rogers Hornsby hit only 277 for Dennison of the Western Association before breaking in with the Cardinals with .313 and to reveal the wonderful swing that was to make him the greatest right-hand hitter of all time. Bucky Harris was hitting just .252 when Washington purchased him from Buffalo in 1919. The Senators had similar luck with Joe Cronin, whose career so closely parallels that of Harris.

Joey Sewell Stepped Right in With Improved Batting Mark. JOEY SEWELL was hitting .289 for New Orleans in 1920 when a pitch by Carl Mays killed Ray Chapman. Sewell hit 329 in finishing the season with Cleveland, and came back with .318 the following campaign. Roger Peckinpaugh hit just .258 for the Portland Coasters the season prior to his breaking in with Cleveland. There are numerous players active in the majors today who were no great shucks with the willow in the minors, among them at least two who now are terrors to pitchers—Hank Greenberg and Gabby Hartnett. Leo Durocher and Rabbit Warstler have hit as lightly in the majors as they did in the minors, yet are integral parts of big league machines, the former doing a great deal toward helping the Cardinals put on the most electrifying finish in the history of the game and winning the world series last fall. Important as it is, there is more to baseball than just smacking the week have been spending their time and money doing everything possible to keep Eastland in the limelight of carrying on and keeping things worth while here. Efforts to keep the district relief offices in Eastland have been made. Everything for the job is complete here, offices and all ready for occupancy and activity. It will be expensive to move it. Americans are said to be paying 11 times as many things as they were paying on the last war.

Highway 89 which is in danger of not being completed has been the object of concentration with Milbourne McCarty at the helm of leadership to see that the promise of the highway department when it was started will be carried out. It takes money and time to do those things and the men that are working on it for the interest of everybody are leaving their business, spending their own money in order to see that all people alike reap the benefits. That is sacrificing and nothing can be gained with making sacrifices. The man that says continually "I am going to stay and tend to my business, the other fellow can do it if he wants to" will find out that if that was adopted by all that soon there wouldn't be any business regardless of how much one attended to it.

TO THE VOTERS OF EASTLAND

Although I was defeated in the city election I wish to express my sincere appreciation to those who placed their ballot in my favor. To those who saw fit to vote for my opponent I hold no grievance whatsoever and appreciate the fact that your judgment was made for what you considered the best of your judgment for the best interests of Eastland. During the term of my office as your commissioner I was grateful for the privilege of serving the people of this community and used every diligence to administer the affairs of office for the best interest of all. I extend congratulations and good wishes to the present city commissioners and offer my services at their command at any time in the spirit of cooperation with all sincerity of purpose and a feeling that I always wish to be a part in the up-building of our city.

Sincerely,

BIG NEWS!

A carload of Crisco has just arrived in town. Every can of it is a bargain. Compare the price of Crisco with prices on ordinary shortenings. Economical? Certainly! Now you can afford to use Crisco for everything.

The special offer we are making here is to induce you to try Crisco. Test the benefits of this pure, digestible, creamy shortening. It's so good itself that it makes good food taste even better.

Get the thrifty 3 lb. can. You save money because the cost per pound is less than you pay for a 1 lb. can. Even if your family is small, you can still make this saving, for Crisco keeps indefinitely—even without refrigeration. It is always fresh, sweet and wholesome—a safe and delicious shortening for every member of your family. Use Crisco wherever your recipes call for fat or shortening—it pays you in extra satisfaction and health.
