

DISTRICT RELIEF DIRECTORS OF STATE NAMED

that reminds me... Answering the protest of the German government about the flag incident in the New York harbor, the American government expresses sympathy for the fact that there was an unruly demonstration about the ship but as far as apologizing for the thing Germany could go straight to, or words to that effect. That should settle the issue as far as America is concerned and since the U. S. note was so plain and emphatic Germany will have to cook up something else to try and get us all excited and mad enough to cause international complications in order that other nations can take exceptions to us. There is still a lot of fight left in the American citizens, but not enough to pay much attention to a lot of dictator bunkum.

It is beginning to be about time for national politics to get going. The democrats have already settled the question of who will be the 1936 presidential nominee so there is no worry on that score. But the Republicans have been scouring the country for a leader and haven't found one yet. There is nothing left but the haystack and everybody knows how hard it is to find a needle in a haystack. Huey Long hasn't said much lately about his possibility of getting into the presidential race. The democrats don't want him, the republicans don't want him, and even the communists are shying off of him. If he runs he will have to organize an entirely new party and God knows what he can name it as all the names have already been used up during the past few years to stir up political interests—most of them are dead'n the proverbial door nail.

Some of the stores are beginning to display the new fall merchandise. Possibly in the next two weeks there will be large stocks coming in for the benefit of early fall buyers. Time does move fast. Here it was one might say only yesterday the balmy spring, and now tomorrow we are into the fall season again. Soon it will be Christmas—very soon. August, which designates the sign of Leo the Lion, seems to be the month of birthdays as on every side we run into folks who have birthdays (Continued on page 6)

Relations Between U. S. and Germany Back to Normal By United Press WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—U. S. relations returned to normal today with this country looking coldly across the Atlantic at the national policies of the Hitler Nazi regime. Officials here believed the reply dispatched by acting secretary of state last night to the German protest over the recent riot aboard the liner Bremen in New York in which the German banner was torn from the flagstaff, would close the incident.

HOT OIL PROBE IS RECESSED UNTIL SEPT. 1 AUSTIN, Aug. 2.—Hearings of the house of representatives committee to investigate hot oil today recessed indefinitely. For three days the committee heard testimony of the railroad commissioners and their explanations of incidents the committee discovered at previous sessions in East Texas. Another meeting about Sept. 1 was indicated. Meantime the committee and other agencies will seek to find out who is responsible for a fake telegram on which 127,000 barrels of oil was released for shipment in East Texas without approval of the tender board. The message that had been pasted on a sending blank so that it covered the line which distinguishes sending and receiving blank. It was addressed to H. A. Miles, chief of the East Texas commission offices, and typewritten on it were the names of Lon Smith and "Ernest" Thompson. Thompson's first name is spelled "Ernest." Committeemen admitted they knew the message was a fake, but said it indicated lack of co-ordination when a large amount of oil could be released in such a manner.

LOBBY PROBE COMPLICATED BY WITNESSES WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A reunion of members of the Patton family and friends from Texas, sought to clear up the congressional lobby investigation mystery box muddle today and, incidentally, added a mystery bottle to the picture. Youthful Norris Shook, a good looking Texan, drew into the record his story the box his uncle, Rep. Nat Patton, Dem., Texas, received from a utility man the day before the Wheeler-Rayburn vote, contained cigars, "because I took a handful." A witness had suspected the box held something else. Bonnie Patton, 17-year-old daughter of the representative, told the same story, and with some pride added she met Dick Powell, movie star, on a trip to Annapolis, on June 30 when she went there with her family the day before the utility vote. It was firey Rep. Thomas L. Blanton, Dem., Texas, who brought in the mystery bottle after investigators determined a hotel clerk had given Blanton "a small parcel" life in the room of E. V. Sellers, NEA employe, the witness who suspected Patton's box contained something other than cigars. "It was a bottle of kerosene oil" Blanton testified. "The chair does not pretend to be dry," remarked Chairman John O'Connor, Dem., N. Y. Patton took the stand to reiterate that he had bought only $3,000 in federal government bonds and to support his statement he had salary and funds totaling more than $500 a month between January and June aside from the purchase.

Farmers Planning Fight to Retain Processing Taxes COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 2.—Representatives of some of the most powerful farm organizations of the southwest, threatened today to avenge court attacks on the AAA processing tax, by "wrecking" the protective tariff on industrial products. The action took almost the form of a declaration of legal civil war. Leaders of the Texas Agricultural association meeting to form a "united front" against the "manufacturing interests," said farmers of the entire nation would be asked to enlist in the fight at a national meeting in next month in Memphis or Vicksburg. Farm groups will use the same methods industrial groups have used—injunctions.

Defense Heard In Newsmen's Trial ANGLETON, Aug. 2.—Free speech and freedom of the press was questioned by contempt proceedings against six Houston newspapermen, John Crocker, defense attorney told District Judge M. S. Munson at the hearing on the cases today. The newspapermen were cited for contempt of court Monday because they published reports of the murder trial of Clyde Thompson, Retrieve prison farm convict, after Judge Munson ordered them not to do so. The right of free speech and freedom of the press was far more important than any inconvenience of the court, Crocker said, as arguments in the case began.

Body of Youth Now Identified GREENVILLE, Tex., Aug. 2.—The body of the white youth who apparently was knocked from a freight train by a bridge last Saturday near here, was identified today as Odell Meek, 18, of Hill county. W. T. Meek of Sherman identified the boy, saying the victim was the son of a Hill county farmer. Witnesses said they saw a man trying to pull a woman to the top of a freight car as the train approached a bridge. Later the body was found.

Lobby Quiz Links Hopson and Hurley While the Senate lobby investigating committee threatened to give "every U. S. marshal in the country" a subpoena for the arrest of H. C. Hopson, president of the vast Associated Gas and Electric company, unless he soon appears voluntarily, the probe group announced that the law firm of former Secretary of War Patrick Hurley had received $25,000 of the almost $800,000 the A. G. & E. had spent in the fight against the legislation. Hopson, left, is shown with Hurley as the two conferred at the Senate stock market investigation in October, 1933, when Hurley was Hopson's counsel.

Son May Be Rival To Eddie Collins As Famed Infielder PHILADELPHIA.—Twenty-five years ago, Eddie Collins joined baseball's hall of fame when he led the Philadelphia Athletics in a world series victory over the Chicago Cubs. Today, young Eddie Collins, Jr., 18, and 21 all-around athlete, gives promise of following in his dad's footsteps. Young Eddie—his classmates call him "Tyke"—started an unusual athletic career as a 90-pound quarterback on the Episcopal Academy's junior football team. Five years later, in 1932, Eddie still wasn't heavy enough for varsity football, but he won second base position on the baseball team. Eddie, Sr., was a second baseman, too. In his senior year, Eddie weighed 170 pounds and became varsity quarterback. He guided his team to the Philadelphia All-Scholastic team. He was a regular guard on the basketball team last winter. Eddie divided his talents this spring between track and baseball, and his school won both championships. He slapped out three hits to help win the championship game and moved fast enough in the 100- and 220-yard dashes to break Interacademic records.

Enemy Warfleet Is Destroyed HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 2.—An "Enemy" warfleet racing, under cover of darkness, toward New York City, was destroyed today by a single battery of coast artillery directed by the army's new mystery ray. Forty-eight of 51 attacking ships were disabled or sunk. One of the three that escaped was believed damaged. The engagement was almost entirely imaginary but proved to high officers of the war college that safety of the American coast from sea and air attacks had been enhanced by one of the most important military inventions since the World War. The mystery ray is a secret of the United States Army.

Coyotes a Match For U. S. Fliers WASHINGTON, July 2.—"Coyote" aerial gunnery has proved it virtually impossible to "run a coyote to death" with an airplane, the army air corps reports. "Coyote" aerial gunnery, it was explained, was discovered by the 41st Division Aviation, Washington National Guard, Spokane. It was said to be highly beneficial training for officers in preparation for aerial gunnery competition. Flying low over sagebrush plains, the air corps said, "it is not difficult to 'jump up' a coyote, who, as it races through the sagebrush, becomes a lively observation target for observers and pilots. "Flying down on the coyote, the pilots are given good training in ground gunnery with the camera guns. As the roar of the motor grows louder, the coyote doubles his speed, until it appears he believes the airplane is on his back. "At this time, the 'chicken stealer' rars up, shows his fangs and immediately begins turning in various directions until the plane is pulled up." Contrary to general belief, it was pointed out, it is almost impossible to "run a coyote to death with an airplane, because after each dive, the coyote is smart enough to rest as he dog-trots along."

Federal Authorities May Intervene In Houston Dock War HOUSTON, July 2.—Federal authority, it was believed today, may intercede in the seamen's strike at Port Houston as a result of a fight aboard a tanker yesterday. Another fight occurred last night in which the steamer engine was beaten. The government may step into the controversy because U. S. Customs Inspector J. F. Birkenfeld was aboard the tanker yesterday when 64 members of the International Seamen's Union attacked the Filipino crew. Birkenfeld said the striker's disregarded his orders not to come aboard.

New War Threatens White Man's World

Once in a while, reading casually in the day's news, a man gets a dim premonitory sense that he is watching one of the great events of history taking shape under his eyes—watching it, and lacking the knowledge to say just what it may mean, or how it may be going to develop.

You get that eerie feeling now and then while reading about the preparations for war between Italy and Ethiopia. On the surface, this is just one more in the long series of imperialistic wars by which white nations have imposed their will, their "civilization" and their manufactured goods on the colored races. Every great white nation has had such wars in its history—England, France, Germany, Russia and, for that matter, the United States.

And yet this new war will take place under different circumstances than its predecessors. The world has changed. A cycle has come to an end, somehow.

There was a time when no one—including the colored races themselves—questioned the dominance of the white nations. The world took it for granted that the great European powers would continue to extend their sway all across Asia and Africa. The only question was which nation would dominate what territory.

Then things began to happen. Japan fought Russia and won—and the colored races began to discover that European civilization was not invincible, after all. The European powers then got into a great war between themselves, and proved to their subject races that they were not united after all, and that their boasted peace and order were illusory.

So a ferment began, all across the globe. India's teeming masses became restless. A confused tremor went thru China. Even the blacks of Africa began to find submission to the white man's yoke oppressive. And Japan continued to defy the white man's world—adn got away with it.

Look at the approaching war against that background... and then imagine what might happen if Italy, through some mischance, should lose this war that she is hurrying into so blithely.

There is just the outside chance that this might be the beginning of the end of the long period of white dominance; a spark to set off a blaze that would become one of the great beacon lights of history.

This is all guess-work, to be sure. But the possibility is there. It lends to dispatches about the approaching war a deep and ominous significance.

Sen. Poage Visions Great Steal in School Funds

Senator Bob Poage of the McLennan district is chairman of the senate committee which is investigating padding of the school census rolls. He appeared before the Kiwanis club of Waco and told members of some of the findings of the committee. He had a message it seems and he put it over:

"In my opinion there are 200,000 names on the scholastic rolls of Texas that ought not to be there. Some of the children named were over age; some do not even exist; some are listed in two different school districts, and some university students under the scholastic age limit of 17 years are listed both in their home county and in the county where they are attending school."

He placed these charges in the record: "This means that you are paying for something that does not exist. You are being robbed under the cloak of education, which is just as bad as being robbed under the guise of anything else. Do not assume that the school fund, because it is for high and noble purpose, is immune from all forms of graft, for it is not. It is your money that is being wasted. If the people take an interest in the matter locally, they will stop a lot of this padding."

Senator Poage has a remedy for the padding. His committee has found. He suggested that the state take the scholastic census instead of local school authorities. He advises that the census should be taken every five years and should include all children from birth to the age limit.

In this way, he said, only one census would have to be taken by the state each 10 years, for the federal census taken each 10 years could be made available to the state. He declared it is hard to get accurate census records "but investigation shows that all errors are not honest mistakes."

Senator Poage's committee will make its report to the coming special session of the legislature. According to its chairman, it will cover all the ground, arouse an enlightened public opinion as to the schools and school fund and make it possible for a fair census and an honest count of the scholastics of Texas.

Heavyweight fighters could take a lesson in ethics from Uncle Sam. He at least lets you know it's going to be a sham battle.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY WILLIS THORNTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—With the entire world launching into a headlong naval race, the background views of the president of the United States on naval affairs are always interesting and important.

That is why official Washington is more than ordinarily absorbed in a government publication which has just appeared and which has circulated but sparingly. It is called "Naval Documents Related to the Quasi-War Between the United States and France, 1797-1798."

The story is interesting. Back in 1913 some 22 years ago, Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson. In that capacity, he found himself prowling about in the neglected attic of the old State War and Navy building where almost anything might be found.

He found old wooden cupboards under the eaves, filled with envelopes marked "Captain's Letters." Interested as he always has been in naval history (he is one of the important private collectors of naval historical documents), he wanted them published so the degraded, fading letters should not be lost.

A year ago, Congress authorized their publication. Don't worry—anyone who gets a copy has to pay for it—it's not a congressional franking matter.

The book is just out. It's full of salty details of the outfitting and handling of the ships which made the American navy, and which in FDR's preface "were closely associated with the country's pioneer settlement and expansion, with the winning of its independence, and with its subsequent security in very precious times."

But down among all the rubble of official correspondence about rat traps and speaking trumpets, all of which is sprinkled with the salty language of the men who commanded at sea, lies one curious letter in the collection discovered and sponsored by FDR himself. Chucklers all over Washington are chuckling about it.

To Secretary James McHenry from Alexander Hamilton. In so delicate a case, my opinion is that no doubt authority ought to be exercised (but not to capture) . . . If not and he is left at the foot of the constitution as I understand to be the case, I am not ready to say that he has any other power than merely to employ the ships as convoys with authority to repel force by force (but not to capture) . . .

"No doubtful authority ought to be exercised by the president, but as different opinions as to his power have been expressed in the House of Representatives, and no special power has been given by the law, it will be expedient for him, and his duty, and the propriety of the conjuncture, to come forward by a message to the two houses of Congress declaring that so far and no farther he feels himself confident of his authority to go . . . having no desire to exceed the constitutional limits . . .

"This of course will remove all clouds as to what the president will do—will gain him credit for frankness and an unwillingness to shirk (sic) the Constitution—and will return upon Congress the question in a shape which cannot be eluded.

"Yrs truly, "A. Hamilton."

Believe it or not, W. C. Fields has his serious moments now and then. Here is one from his new comedy "Man on the Flying Trapeze" coming to the Lyric Theatre. Maybe, like Diogenes, he is looking for an honest man with that searchlight.

TENSE DRAMA TINGLES WITH BIG SURPRISES

One of the most unusual romantic dramas ever to come out of Hollywood is Fox Film's "Orchids To You," which comes Sunday to the Lyric Theatre. With a brilliant cast, sparkling dialogue and a most novel setting, the picture has been declared a smash-hit by previewers.

In "Orchids To You," John Boles, the screen's most popular singing star, plays the role of a clever society lawyer. He thrilled previewing audiences with his fight to oust a pretty girl florist from her prosperous business. The way he wounds her—and then wins her—is the best post-graduate course in love that can be imagined!

Jean Muir, the foremost of film-dom's leading ladies, has the part of the beautiful lady florist.

Charles Butterworth, the comedy favorite of millions of movie-goers has the role of a "deadpan" cowboy, who proposes every Tuesday—just for practice.

Ruthelma Steens, Harvey Stephens, and Arthur Lake, the other featured favorites in the cast turn in some of the finest performances of their careers.

"Orchids To You" was produced for Fox Films by Robert T. Kane and directed by William A. Seiter.

GROWN-UP

Now twenty years old and six feet tall, Jackie Coogan, who was the "The Kid" of the Charlie Chaplin picture, returns to films to make his grown-up debut in Zane Grey's "Home on the Range," now at the Lyric Theatre. Randolph Scott and Evelyn Brent are featured.

W. C. Fields Writes, Acts, Comedy Role

After the paying motion picture public had laughed itself into the aisles over the comedy antics and expressions of W. C. Fields in such films as "Tilly and Gus," and "International House," Paramount studios, realizing "Bill" was definitely a motion picture star, begged him to try his hand at writing originals—to be credited to "Chas. Bole," Fields' pen name.

The latest comedy to come from Charles Bogle is Paramount's "Man on the Flying Trapeze," which stars W. C. Fields, and which comes to the Lyric Theatre Monday.

The first original story he attempted reached the screen as "Six of a Kind." In it he presented his famous billiard act, long a favorite with New York theatre-goers; and spoke one line: "I always talk loud; I'm a sheriff." That one line, and his pool table act, stole the entire show.

From "You're Telling Me" one line went down in history, culled from a hundred funny situations. Fields, driving the "Princess Lescaubours" (Adrienne Ames) to his home in a handsome limousine, was met by his wife (Louise Carter) vengefully awaiting him. At the sight of the gorgeous equipage, she fainted. "Look out!" whispered Fields, hoarsely, while ducking behind the car, "she may be stalling!"

The grocery store sequence of "It's a Gift," consisted largely of two things. First Fields was endeavoring to secure ten pounds of camquats for a customer. Second, he was trying to help a blind man. Between the two Fields said "Coming, Coming!" a dozen times. Not much, to be sure, but in that phrase was wrapped untold tragedy, the frantic effort of a hapless man to do two things at once, and to do neither of them well.

Out of such homely words does Fields pull his comedy that warms the heart of the audience, and sends it into helpless hysterics of laughter. On such he has again built laughs in his new film, "Man on the Flying Trapeze." In this picture Fields, as a hen-pecked brow-beaten clerk, attempts to play hookey from work to attend a wrestling match. Mary Brian, Kathleen Howard, Grady Sutton and Lucien Littlefield are in the supporting cast.

Final Month

Folks, how we do thank you for the wonderful patronage you gave us up to now. Now, we are on the last lap before starting to school. We close shop at the end of August. We want this to be the biggest month we have had and hope to put it over for money to continue our school attendance at the University of Texas.

Remember when you buy gasoline and oil from us you are getting your money's worth and helping us make the raffle for better education.

We wash and grease your car . . . and do any other kind of work you may have! Thanks again for all you've done and here's hoping we'll see you often this month!

The bitter battle fought by the Governor Ferguson, who supported opponents of Allred in both an initial and run-off primary, has prevented coalition of their supporters. In most instances the Allred appointees are more inclined than to the board members named by Mrs. Ferguson.

Former Gov. Moody's power in state boards was extended not only by Gov. Sterling's reappointment of men who had been named by Moody's system of making appointments during his second term. If he had appointed a man in his first term and was particularly pleased with him, that man would be reappointed for six years when the next vacancy occurred. Then some one would be given the four year term, thus left vacant.

This raises a surmise that he may have selected, also, the commissioners of the new state Department of Safety. They will choose the state director who is to have charge of the new anti-crime drive. It would be a wise thing for a governor to do, giving the commissioners a chance to study the problem before being run to death by job hunters.

BEGIN HERE TODAY JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, leaves her job and secures part-time work in a market supply store. There she meets wealthy handsome DOLLY LASH MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Crest Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BETT PAUL, to whom she is engaged. Jo breaks the engagement. She goes to Crest Lake. Her duties are pleasant, but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo's popularity, comes to the inn. FRAGONET, FRAGONET film actor and his wife are also guests. Fragonet pays Jo marked attention, tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him as soon as he can secure a divorce. He goes to Hollywood, promising to return soon. Bett Paul comes to Crest Lake as the life guard. Marsh takes Jo to dinner at the Lone Tree Tavern. During the drive he kisses her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII HE released her and leaned back against the wheel, searching Jo's face as if he were really seeing it for the first time. Then, just as deliberately but infinitely tender now, his lips touched hers again. Jo drew away, laughing shakily. "You mustn't make this too important," she told him. Looking straight into her eyes Marsh did not answer but he laughed in a sudden, rough gesture. He turned his attention to the car again, starting it down the tone hill road which terminated at the Lone Tree Tavern. "It was much more important than I dreamed," he said seriously. His eyes on the road. "And if I'd known it would have such a sobering effect on you," Jo told him, "I'd never have permitted it." He turned to her slowly, smiling faintly of himself. "We shouldn't have done that, Jo."

Automobile Deaths In Texas' Largest Cities On Increase

AUSTIN. — Automobile deaths in Texas' five largest cities jumped from 329 to 348 persons during the year ending July 6 compared to the year before, the federal division of vital statistics reported today. Casualties for the four weeks period ending July 6 were considerably lower than the corresponding time in 1934, the bureau added. Sixteen deaths resulted from injuries in automobiles. Half of the number died from injuries received from wrecks inside city limits. During the four-weeks period ending July 7, 1934, a total of 30 persons lost their lives in cars, with 19 deaths resulting from accidents inside cities. El Paso's death rate was highest with 40.4 per 100,000 compared to 32.2 per 100,000 last year. Fort Worth's record showed 37.5 deaths for each 100,000 population compared to 31.7. Dallas had 33.7 per 100,000 compared to 31.3. Houston showed 28.4 and 26.6 in similar calculations, while San Antonio offered the best average of all Texas cities surveys—25.7 deaths per 100,000 population this year and 24.1 per 100,000 last year. Texas cities compared unfavorably with the 81 other places in which statistics are made. The average was 24.1 deaths per 100,000 population. Total auto deaths in the 86 cities was 9,013 in the 52 weeks ending July 6, an increase of 248 over the preceding year.

Joan of Arc Finds Add Data On Joan Of Arc

BEAUREVOIR, France—New facts about Joan of Arc will be revealed through excavations in and about the Chateau de Beaurevoir. The research work is being made under the direction of M. de la Motte, who is considered the greatest authority on that subject in France today. One of his finds is a head in stone of a little girl with hair cropped short as it is believed that Joan wore hers. It is not established yet whether this is a long-lost bust of the French heroine, but Plateau hopes to uncover much new material about the French saint. History of the Maid of Orleans was enriched further recently when it became known that the grave of the chief judge who condemned Joan had been found and that the bones had been reburied. This will make four large glasses.

planned the summer together. But, damn it, Jo—somehow I don't fancy myself in the role of Dan Cupid now. "No... you hardly look the part." Marsh's annoyance gave way in a sudden outburst of laughter. "Perhaps it's because I'm such a rotten archer, and disapprove of nudism!" Jo joined his laughter, relieved that they were in safe channels again. She wondered if she could have saved herself all the trouble with Fragonet had she refused to take him seriously. She glanced at the ivy-covered Lone Tree Tavern. "I've a hunch the food is good here," she said. Marsh jumped from the roadster and assisted Jo to the ground. "It is," he told her. "Much better than at Crest Lake Inn!" The owners of the isolated tavern were a rotund pair, man and wife for all of 30 years, who had built the huge structure because this wood was where they wanted to spend their declining years. The hunters, and the occasional rooms they rented, were only incidental to their lives—but nevertheless they were born host and hostess. They greeted Jo and Marsh effusively and directed them to a huge hearth fire while dinner was prepared. "We don't order here," Marsh told Jo. "It'll be either chicken or steak—and I promise you that it'll be good, whichever it is." Jo sank into a chair before the roaring flames. "I hope it's chicken..." It was, but that was not all. There were creamy mashed potatoes, the tenderness of new peas. There was a plate of hot biscuits which Mrs. Bowen kept neaped—and a bowl of honey. There was a huge pitcher of cold milk and, as old man Bowen said, there was "more where that came from." When Jo and Marsh had literally stuffed themselves with fried chicken and the "fixings" Mrs. Bowen brought in coffee with great square crackers and plain unpretentious American cheese. "Oh..." Jo exclaimed, "I don't know when I've so enjoyed food. Mrs. Bowen, it was all beyond words." Marsh laughed. "Mrs. Bowen has heard that so often she doesn't even blush with pleasure any more." "That may be, Douglas Marsh," the old lady told him. "I ain't blushed now for 20 years or so, being married and all—but that don't mean I don't like to hear compliments on my cooking." She turned to Jo. "And when you get married—you certainly will, being as pretty as you are—you'll want to hear compliments on your cooking, too." Having delivered herself of this statement, Mrs. Bowen returned her attention to Marsh long enough to warn, "And that's something you want to remember, Douglas Marsh!" When she was gone, Marsh grinned at Jo. "I've never been here with a girl before, so Mamma Bowen naturally takes it for granted that you're the future Mrs. Marsh." Still embarrassed by the old lady's assurance, Jo laughed. "Well, I'm complimented to be the first girl you've treated to food like this."

That Reminds Me

This month. Looks like Leo is not only the king of the jungle but also king of creating birthdays. He and cupid must run around a whole lot together and frame up this baby business.

Speaking of babies, aren't they the sweetest darlings in the world. And there are lots of them around Eastland right now, and more in the offing. Suspicious colleagues seem to have the idea that it contained something of the nature of money. Patton says that it was cigars. During the investigation the words "hell" and "damn" are promiscuously used. No matter how dignified the congressional body may be supposed to be the records are full of cuss words worse than the sailor vocabulary. Everybody seems to have a different idea about it and yet the answer cannot be found. Suspicion lurks in every corner. Charges are hurled at big business and at the rich. Just as soon as the bank account passes the one thousand dollar mark, whether farmer, butcher, baker or candlestick maker, political office holder begins to figure out some means of taking it away from
