That reminds me...

LANDON WILL BE CHOICE OF REPUBLICANS

By United Press
PUBLIC HALL, Cleveland, June 11.—Gov. Alf Landon is the republican national convention choice for president and only one thundering shout this afternoon or tonight remains to make it official.
His rivals waited today and received their delegates who began to plunk their votes to the Kansas. It may not be necessary to ballot, as the delegates are in the mood to put Landon across by acclamation.
The nominating starts this afternoon. Most delegates consider the issue closed. Landon's managers ceased to work for his candidacy and hurried to the hotel room of Senator Arthur Vandenberg in an attempt to draft him onto the ticket as the vice presidential nominee.
Frank Knox of Chicago released his delegates and there was much talk he might be Landon's running mate. Vandenberg, who also cut loose his support, was reported to have done so on the understanding Knox would get second place.
Senator William E. Borah, Senator Dickinson, Robert Taft and other candidates dropped out of the fight. Borah's withdrawal was flat unless certain "contingencies" should arise.

Breck to Be Scene District Ball Meet

BRECKENRIDGE, June 11.—Harold White, Texas softball commissioner, yesterday appointed T. H. Nanney, part owner of the Breckenridge Amusement Park, commissioner in the district, composed of 10 counties, and notified Nanney that one of the 15 district tournaments would be held in Breckenridge.
The winner of the Breckenridge district meet will go directly to Fort Worth and enter the state softball tournament. It had been previously thought that the winner at Breckenridge would have to go to Abilene to enter the district tournament, but White's action made Breckenridge a separate district from Abilene.
Nanney stated that the district meet will be held here late in August. The finest teams in this part of the state will be here. The state meet is to be held in the new softball park in Forest Park, Fort Worth, the first week of September.

Many southwest dignitaries will meet the president in Dallas. Governor Allred of Texas, Gov. Guy Park of Missouri, Gov. Richard Letche of Louisiana, and members of the Louisiana legislature will arrive Friday morning.
The legislature plans to hold a session here, the only meeting ever held outside of Louisiana.

Ball Overthrow Is Governed by Rules Covered on Ground

(Editor's note: Joe Hughes today explains softball overthrow rules).
The overthrow in softball games is generally governed by ground rules. Making due allowance for fences, bleacher stands, automobiles or spectators.
The official rule is as follows: Rule 22, an overthrow.
Section 1—An overthrow is a ball thrown from one fielder to another to retire a runner who has not reached or is off his base, and which goes into foul territory on a play at first, third or home base. The advance of runners on an overthrow shall be determined by the base occupied by the runner at the time of the pitch preceding the overthrow.
Section 2—If an overthrow takes place, in making a play on a runner, at or beyond the base to which the runner could advance under Section 1, then the runner shall be entitled to advance one base beyond the base at which the overthrow occurred, and other runners shall be entitled to advance accordingly.
(Notice the difference between an overthrow and a passed ball). An overthrow is made only in making a play on a runner while a passed ball is always a pitched ball. Also that in order to be an overthrow under this rule the ball must go into foul territory. A ball thrown past, or over, a baseman and which stays on fair ground is not an overthrow. This rule applies only at first, third and home. A ball overthrown in making a play at second base does not come under this rule even though the ball may go into foul territory.
We are fortunate here to have a very fine ball park. The fences are well built and the league rules prohibit anybody but players and officials inside the playing field. The league also requires the players stay on their own bench. These thoughtful rules afford a baseman plenty of room to field an overthrow ball.
Local ground rules provide for one base advance in case of an overthrow at first or third, but the baseman must make it. The same is true when the ball is overthrown walks a play at the plate. According to the official rules an overthrow at second, provided the ball remains on fair territory is not considered as an overthrow and the runner may advance as far as he can make.
Overthrows to first and third, which most likely would be made by the catcher, which remain on fair territory, are regarded the same as the above cases.
Tomorrow, Rule 20.

GOP DRAFTING PLATFORM FOR THE CAMPAIGN

CLEVELAND, June 11.—The sub-committee of 14 drafting the 1936 GOP platform, agreed unanimously on all planks today after revisions were made to satisfy Gov. Alf Landon.
The full committee meets this afternoon for final approval. There will be no minority report.
Senator William E. Borah, who forced the drafters to include his views on foreign affairs, currency and monopoly in the platform, appeared satisfied with it and said he had no plans to go before the convention.
The platform as completed by the sub-committee is satisfactory to industrial and western delegates said it was acceptable to them.
The platform builders rejected a proposed constitutional amendment to permit states to legislate on the hours and wages of women and minor employees. Borah opposed such a change. It was proposed by William Allen White, Emporia, Kansas, publisher.
The United Press was informed that in demanding certain revisions in the tentative draft of the platform, communicated to him by telephone last night, the Kansas governor did not insist on the constitutional provision.
The platform will recommend flat repeal of the reciprocal trade treaty act as inimical to agriculture.
No endorsement of the St. Lawrence waterway is embraced in the final draft of the platform. The foreign policy plans will say, it was understood, that the United States must stay out of the world court and the League of Nations. This was demanded by Borah. No substantial revisions were made in the farm plank.

FARM SIGN-UP ENDS WITH 700 TO PARTICIPATE

The sign-up in the government's soil conservation program ended Wednesday with 700 Eastland county farmers' work sheets in the hands of the county committee, Dick Weekes of Alameda, chairman of the administering group, announced Thursday.
The 700 work sheets represent 28 per cent of the county's farmers, Weekes stated.
The work sheets will be sent to the state board for review by July 1. Later the state board, located at College Station, will return them to the county for final adjustments.
Weekes stated majority of the signers were in the Ranger-Eastland district. He estimated 200 farmers signed the forms in that district.
"These heroes" gave us more than territory—they set an example which, in itself, is a glorious heritage—a just cause for state and national commemoration," he said. "Men fought here for principles they loved more dearly than their own lives. Liberty-loving people will always do battle for things they believe right. Civilization, also, has not yet made it unnecessary for men to die in battle to sustain principles. It is, however, my hope that in this generation the United States, by its own example, can maintain principles by means of peace rather than by means of war."
In the audience which the president addressed was Andrew Jackson Houston, 81, the only living son of the military hero of the Texas revolution.
"It's a special pleasure to meet Mr. Andrew Jackson Houston," Mr. Roosevelt said.
"I am proud to know that my father knew your father."

States Are Confined By Own Sovereignty

Apparently the states of this Union are to be saved from the encroachment of federal power whether they like it or not. The supreme court decision throwing out the municipal bankruptcy act enshrines the sovereignty of the states in a higher sphere of unreachability than the states themselves are likely to want.

This fact, it is worth remembering, did not involve any radical new conception of the function of government, as did such measures as the NRA and the AAA.

It was not part of an attempt to erect a new philosophy of government. It was simply a means by which local units were to be rescued from an intolerable financial situation.

At the beginning of 1934, a little more than 2000 cities, counties, and other political subdivisions were in default on their bonds. The face value of the bonds in default ran to approximately a billion dollars; the governmental units involved were scattered across 41 states.

Something had to be done. The debtors could raise no more money, and the creditors could collect no more.

A creditor could, indeed, go to court and get a mandamus writ ordering the debtor to tax, but where the tax values were exhausted—as was often the case—this was a meaningless gesture.

The state legislatures could give no help. Under the Constitution they can pass no laws impairing the obligation of existing contracts. A state insolvency act, therefore, could do nothing to obligations already incurred. Unless the federal government could help, no one could.

So Congress passed the municipal bankruptcy act. This provided that a local unit of government which was in default could readjust its debt to its capacity to pay, under very definite limitations.

It had to have the consent of two-thirds of its creditors; it had to have the approval of a federal judge; and it had to have the consent of the state in which it was situated.

This is the law which the supreme court has just nullified, on the ground that it is an infringement on state sovereignty.

Behold, now, the odd tangle in which the ruling leaves us.

Here was a case in which the states, under the Constitution, were specifically prevented from acting. The action provided for in the law could be taken only with the specific consent of the states involved. And yet the law is thrown out on the ground that it impairs state sovereignty.

Chief Justice Hughes has remarked that the Constitution is what the judges say it is.

To the Citizens of Eastland County:

I think it eminently fitting that as we near the conclusion of the term of the forty-fourth legislature that I should give an account of my stewardship to the people of my legislative district, and in asking their support for re-election I think it behooves me to discuss at least a part of the issues I think most vital to the welfare of the people of Texas which must receive the consideration of the next legislature.

During the regular session of the forty-fourth legislature, it was my pleasure to sponsor a bill calling for the passage of an unemployment insurance act, designed to afford those unfortunate citizens of the state who find themselves out of employment a means of honorably sustaining themselves until re-employment is made possible.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. As evidence of good faith inquiries must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. Could Texas legally be divided? A. R. T. Lubbock.

A. Yes. The resolution admitting Texas into the Union provided that it might be divided into as many as five states if the population is sufficient and the voters so decide.

Q. How much carbon black is produced in the Panhandle gas field? V. T. Alto.

A. The 1935 production was 125,546 tons, with a total value of $10,551,680.

Q. Where and what is the "Steamboat House"? A. G. S. Ballinger.

A. It was Sam Houston's home at Huntsville, in which he spent his last years, and was so named because of its resemblance to a steamboat of that period. It has been purchased by Col. J. E. Josey of Houston, and presented to the State of Texas to be removed to Sam Houston State Park, Huntsville, where another of Houston's homes is located.

Q. Did Texas take any part in the revolution of Mexico against Spain from 1810 to 1821? T. B. D. Amarillo.

A. No. Texas had only a few thousand civilized inhabitants at the time and they were so distant from the seat of government that they felt little or no concern about it.

Q. Where is the "Enchanted Rock"? R. L. O. Montague.

A. Near Fredericksburg in Gillespie county. It is probably the largest one-piece granite rock in the world.

Texas Empire Builders of '36'

Every man, woman and child in Texas should know the principal events of the momentous period of Texas history from March 1 to April 21, 1836—events that changed the shape and the destiny of the United States. The facts essential to this understanding are briefly set forth in a 32-page booklet entitled "Texas Empire Builders of '36," telling of the stirring days when all Texas, native and adopted, are celebrating in 1936. The booklet will be mailed postpaid for 15 cents. Send all orders to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

GAIL, EVERETT, ambitious to become a fashion designer—due to a stroke of luck she is hired by MADAME LIZETTE, proprietor of an exclusive shop—Madame proves temperamental and difficult to work for. DEREK HARBREAVES, young man interested in Gail and her friendly advice. Eventually she sees DICK SEARLES, boss sister, ROSEMARY, who is roommate at school. Meanwhile, in Arizona, MARK SAMPSON, long a wanderer, returns to find his old home in the hands of GILES HARRIS, New York lawyer. Gail, the beautiful owner of the property, does not know the whereabouts of his niece. Gail, representing the Traversa company, Mark confides in his friend, old BOSKIE, and writes a letter to GILES HARRIS, New York lawyer. Gail asks Gail to marry him and she agrees. A newspaper fashion writer praises Gail's work and, in a review of fashion, Madame Lizette discharges her. She knows Gail works in a wholesale house, but just another designer has just been employed.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XX

GAIL'S spirits drooped as she stepped into the elevator. Rita Cordell had spoken hopefully about this chance yet nothing had come of it! What would she do next? She did not want to tell Derek. She knew his solution would be an immediate marriage. He'd insist they could get along somehow and that he wanted to take care of her. But there was Derek's work. No, she must not have more responsibilities now.

The lobby was crowded, and men and women were shaking their hats on the floor as Gail reached the door. The streets were splattered with hallstones, and the few people still outdoors were racing to cover. The sky grew lighter and the crowd thinned away. Men and women started on their way again, keeping close to the huge structures as though seeking protection. Gail left the building.

IT was almost half past 6 when Natalie came to Gail's door. "Aren't you going to eat tonight?" she asked. "I should think you'd want to have a big celebration after the boost Rita Cordell gave you." "Boosted me out of my job! That's what Rita's article did for me." "What you mean that Madame Lizette fired you? No, Gail, you mean that!" "That's what happened. She was furious." Quickly Gail told of her eventful day. "The old so-and-so! I hope she gets it in the neck! Doesn't she realize that having a brilliant designer like you would really mean a fortune for her?" "Madame Lizette evidently doesn't think that." "Well, I'm taking you to dinner tonight. Come on! I'm ravenous." Later, as they lingered over the dinner (most of the tables around them were already deserted), Natalie said thoughtfully, "Some people say you have a better chance of getting a job if you still have one. If I were you, I wouldn't tell anyone you've left Madame Lizette's unless it's necessary."

"All right, Natalie," Gail agreed. "I'll take your advice. It's been awfully good of you to tell me who's who and where to go first." She folded the sheet of paper with its list of names and slipped it into her handbag.

BUT in spite of Natalie's practical advice, Gail came home the next night footsore and weary. She had made dozens of calls, but evidently no one wanted her services.

There was a letter in her pigeon-hole, but when the girl handed it to her, Gail did not bother to open it. After her bath she slipped into a negligee, picked up a magazine and began to read. At last she dressed. Natalie had a date and would not be home until late. Gail decided she might as well have dinner in the clubhouse. Derek had gone deep-sea fishing with an old friend who only came to the city about twice a year. He'd wanted her to join them when they returned and go to a theater, but Gail had been sure his friend would prefer the evening alone with Derek.

As she stooped to pick up her handbag she saw the letter again. A moment later she sank down on the couch. "Oh!" she cried. "What next!" The missive read: Dear Miss Everett: As I understand you are a daughter of the late Peter Everett, I presume you are the owner of the Rancho Angelo. Although it is rather rundown, it is just the sort of place I am looking for. If you will consent to an immediate sale—within 10 days—I am willing to offer you $10,000 cash.

Please let me know your decision at once as if you do not accept my offer I shall have to find another place. Yours very truly, Rex Hall. "A ranch!" Gail exclaimed. "I didn't know Daddy had a ranch!" She wrinkled her brows, trying to remember. His relatives were all casters. He'd never bought a ranch so far as she knew. Then, suddenly, she remembered how her father had said to her one day when she was being lifted to the saddle of her fat little pony, "You ought to be a good horse-woman if you take after your mother. Many a time I've seen her galloping over your grandfather's ranch!"

THE telephone tinkled. Gail's amber eyes glowed. Had Derek got rid of his guest unexpectedly, she wondered, taking down the receiver. But it was Dick's voice she heard. "So you got back sooner than you expected?" Gail said. "You're going to stay in town for the evening. Oh, you have your car with you. Yes, with Rosemary at the Langs. . . but why don't you go there now? They're all out at some affair—yes, I'll be ready—goodbye."

They met in the foyer and as they walked toward the swinging door Dick's eyes grew bright, for Gail looked radiant. "I'm so glad you're back. Did you get along all right with your business?" she exclaimed.

"I guess so, Gail. I wired the information to Dad and that's why he called me back. It's been pretty hot driving today and I came down at a good clip, but it's worth it all to be with you. You know I'm still as crazy about you as ever."

"Then you haven't taken my advice." "What was that?" "To find a nice girl and marry her!" "I've found the girl, but she won't promise to marry me. What would you do in a case like that?" He helped her into the car. "Forget her!" declared Gail. Then she saw a shadow darken his eyes. She patted his arm. "Listen, Dick, I'm terribly excited, so you must excuse me!" "What's up?" "Wait till we reach the place where we're to dine. Then I'll tell you all about it." Presently they were seated at a table and Dick gave the order. Gail handed him the letter from her purse and said, "I'm wiring this man he can have the ranch the minute I get the cash." "Oh, but, Dick, $10,000 is a fortune to me. I could start on my own if I had it." While they talked—apparently so confidentially—Gail did not see Derek and his companion enter the room. (To Be Continued)

Honest Woman Is Found In Dallas

DALLAS.—Police marveled at the honesty of a woman motorist. Given a ticket for failure to put a nickel in a parking meter, she appeared at the traffic fines bureau and explained to the clerk that she didn't have the change. Then she handed him a nickel and a $1 bill. "The fine is $1 even," the clerk informed her. "We don't expect you to pay the nickel, too." "But I want to pay it," she said. "If I didn't, I feel I would be cheating the city."

France's Socialist "Man of Destiny"

Uncertainty and disorders attended the accession to power of Leon Blum, Socialist leader, who was destined for the premiership of France from the moment the Leftist coalition swept into control of the Chamber of Deputies at the last election. The new picture above shows him in characteristic informal attitude.
