No Gas Curtailments Seen Despite Storm

By RAY BAXTER
Despite a record snow winter in Pampa and Gray County and despite the rumors that accompanied it, Pampa residents are in no danger of losing their gas supply.

James McCoy, local manager of Pioneer Natural Gas Co., said there had been one industrial cutback in the immediate area and there might be one at the feed lot in Panhandle.

McCoy said Celanese had been operating three days at a 10-million cubic foot reduction in gas usage. He pointed out that such curtailment is in industrial contracts as a hedge against some unforeseen disaster.

McCoy said it did not mean that supply or pressure was down in Pampa. This city is the first to get supplies of gas from Pioneer's transmission system.

McCoy noted it was hardly fair to curtail usage on the far end of the service area with contributing a share here...but there is not gas crisis locally.

Cabot Corp. officials said Southwestern Public Service Co. had asked curtailment of electricity usage in the electrical furnace in the forge department at the Cabot Machinery Division today and tomorrow.

Reason given was the high usage of electricity and natural gas needed to make the electricity.

About a dozen employees were placed on other jobs today and the shutdown will continue tomorrow. It is expected the operation will be resumed after that, depending on weather conditions, Cabot officials said.

Meanwhile, the weather continues in a word: snow! City equipment worked through the night getting surplus piles of frozen snow from the streets to make room for more.

That is the story: more snow through Friday with drifting tonight and tomorrow, and a new system moving in Saturday.

Over a 92 year period, the area has averaged four days of snow each winter. Today, one day past mid-winter, Pampa is on its twenty-sixth day of snow.

While this area has the most severe weather in the state, the only area immune to freezing temperatures, rain and snow is that south-most tip below a line drawn from Laredo to Corpus Christi.

In Associated Press reports: A crippling sheet of ice and snow covered nearly all of Texas today from San Benito, near the tip of the semi-tropical Lower Rio Grande Valley, into the northern Panhandle and as far east as Nacogdoches and Lufkin.

One of the most paralyzed areas was the capital city of Austin with an unbroken sheet of ice and sleet over all the streets.

Cars stalled everywhere at Austin and schools in the city and surrounding areas were closed. City buses could not even get out of their parking lot.

Ice covered trees in the San Benito area with temperatures just at the freezing level. It was the first freezing rain in the Valley in two years, the National Weather Service said. Some snow fell briefly at McAllen.

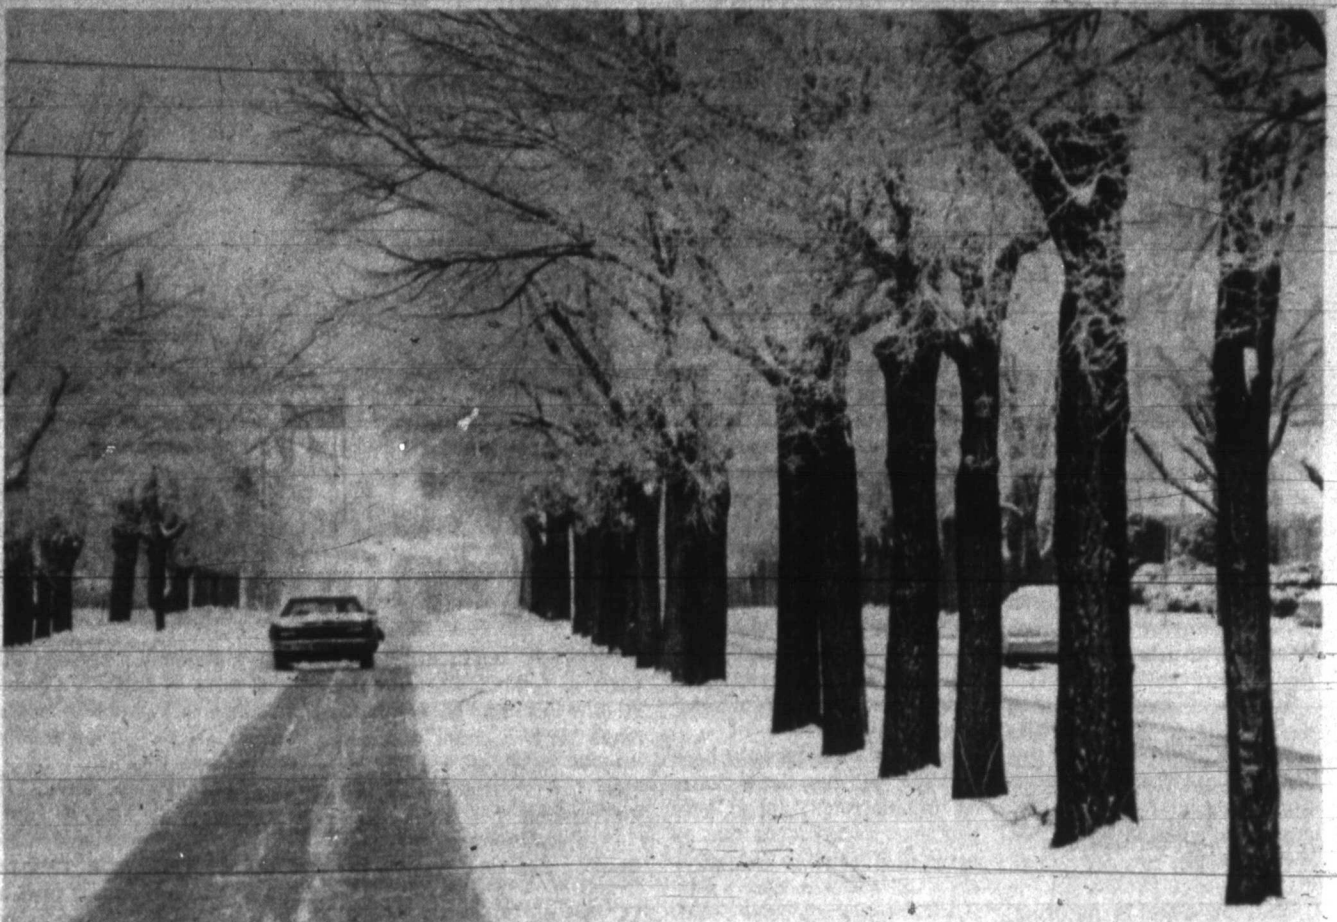

The Abilene airport has been closed to traffic since Saturday.

Amarillo temperatures have not been above freezing for more than four days. One to three inches of new snow fell there during the night atop an earlier five-inch blanket, and high winds threatened to cause drifts. Yet most highways remained open for cautious traveling.

Minimum temperatures at major reporting points this morning ranged as low as five above zero at Dalhart.

What's more, little letup was in prospect for at least another day or two. Forecasts promised still more snow, sleet or rain into Thursday for most areas. A little warming—but still more rain—was predicted by the weekend.

Shutdowns of industrial plants and closing of schools occurred in many areas because of curtailed natural gas deliveries, which meant no heat. The Texas Railroad Commission said there was no gas shortage but pipelines simply couldn't move enough to meet vastly increased demand.

HEMMED IN—With the newest rash of snow storms and fog making streets slick, driving has become dangerous in most sections of the state, including Pampa. Hemmed in by the blowing snow and icy roads, drivers have been urged to exercise caution when driving. More snow is still on the way, with no relief in sight for several days.

Pampa Receives Second Revenue Sharing Check

By TEX DEWESE
The City of Pampa today received its second revenue sharing check in the amount of $77,436 for the last half of 1972.

The check was $3,262 less than the $80,698 received in December for the first six months of 1972.

Gray County received its second revenue-sharing check today, according to Judge Don Cain, and a part of the budget hearing Friday morning will be devoted to a discussion of use of the funds.

The second check was for $95,973 compared to $89,567, the amount of the first one. Judge Cain explained that one per cent was withheld on the first and five per cent on the second. This has to do with the routine processing of the first payments.

In addition to revenue-sharing, the budget hearing agenda is a lengthy one. The budgets for Highland General Hospital and McLean-Gray County Hospital will be considered.

The panel will consider a resolution requested by District Judge Grainger McElhenny to ask the legislature to consider an amendment granting the 31st district two six-month terms instead of the present three terms.

Also up for consideration is a request from Genesis House, Inc., for authority to seek a grant from the Criminal Justice Council through the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

A number of routine financial matters will also be considered.

The budget hearing is open to the public. It will begin at 10 a.m. Friday in the county courtroom.

The two checks added up to $158,134 which is about $33,000 less than the $191,000 year's total originally announced for Pampa.

With today's check came a note from Edward A. Fox, director of the Office of Revenue Sharing in the U.S. Treasury Department which stated:

"Enclosed is your check for the entitlement period commencing July 1, 1972, and ending Dec. 31, 1972. This check may differ from the amount you received for the prior entitlement period for a number of reasons:

"The Treasury Department has determined that a five per cent reserve be established to facilitate future adjustments for this entitlement allocation."

"An amount equal to one per cent was withheld as a reserve for adjusting the first check. Distribution of the reserve and future reserve policy will be dependent on operating experience."

"The Secretary will keep the books open for the first and second entitlements until all recipients have had an opportunity under established procedures to review their allocation, and until he is satisfied that the data base is up-to-date and correct."

City Manager Mack Wofford said there still has been no decision on how Pampa's revenue sharing money will be spent.

The city is awaiting word on an application for a federal grant for 75 per cent of the cost of the $370,000 sewage disposal plant project now on the drawing board to bring the plant up to requirements of the Texas Water Quality Board, Wofford stated.

The application for the grant has been approved and sent to Washington by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

"If the grant is not forthcoming," Wofford said, "it is possible we may use the revenue sharing money for the sewage treatment plant project."

City commissioners, the city manager said, are hopeful of avoiding a bond issue to handle cost of the project.

Wofford also said he had learned Texas cities are having difficulty with their applications for federal aid grants because Texas allocation for that purpose has been cut from $106,000,000 to $55,000,000.

The city manager said he talked with officials at Littlefield yesterday and was told that city had been notified its application had been put on a list and it may be 18 months before it comes up.

Littlefield, according to Wofford, filed its application some 60 days before Pampa's application was sent to Washington.

"So our chance for federal help in the sewage treatment plant project is highly uncertain at this time," Wofford said.

Moorer Talks On Bombing
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff says the only reason given him for the heavy bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area last month was that it was a continuation of the administration's bomb-or-negotiate policy.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, asked by newsmen if the White House had given him a reason for ordering the bombing resumed Dec. 18, replied: "No, the situation was that the restrictions imposed in October were lifted."

Moorer, the Pentagon's top military strategist, talked with reporters Tuesday after briefing the House Appropriations and Armed Services committees on the 12 days of stepped-up bombing. His appearance marked the first administration response to congressional calls for a complete explanation of the bombing's effectiveness and the decision to resume it.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird testified Monday that President Nixon's May 8 policy to bomb North Vietnam's industrial heartland and mine its key ports was suspended amid reports in October that peace was at hand. Laird said the bombing above the 20th Parallel was resumed when a settlement did not materialize.

Moorer told newsmen the Dec. 28-Dec. 30 strikes blunted a heavy arms buildup by the North Vietnamese.

He said he detailed to the panels an arms step-up that included several new missile-firing patrol boats and the "dispatch of equipment south."

Decision Near On Phase 3

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is nearing a final decision on the shape of Phase 3 wage-price controls amid indications the new economic rules may be imposed before April 30, when the old ones expire.

In fact, some officials hinted that the President may decide to put Phase 3 into effect within a few weeks, around the time that a new budget and his new economic message go to Congress.

The White House said Nixon, after receiving recommendations from his economic advisers Tuesday morning, "very possibly" will make a final decision on the new wage-price control system this week.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler ruled out any controls at the farm-product level, but otherwise gave no details on how the new system would look.

In past weeks, administration economic policy-makers have hinted that rent controls might be dropped in Phase 3 because they are too burdensome, that the profit-margin restraint would be lightened on businesses, and that coverage of the program might be limited to the nation's largest businesses and labor unions.

But officials, after learning of Nixon's intentions to make an announcement on the new program soon, said the President may go in a different direction.

While Phase 3 controls probably will be no tighter as far as food prices are concerned, the administration is expected to launch a vigorous effort to step up food supplies, thus putting downward pressure on prices.

House Passes Reforms As Proposed By Daniel

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — New House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. has won unanimous passage of procedural "reforms" that were a major part of his platform.

The 140-0 vote for the new House rules came five hours after he was elected speaker.

In general, the rules weaken the speaker's tight control over legislation that had been built up by Daniel's predecessors.

One rule takes from the speaker the power to appoint all members of each House committee. Now, the speaker will appoint the chairman, vice-chairman and half the other members of each committee. The remaining seats on a committee will be given to those with the most seniority who request them.

Rep. Billy Williamson of Tyler tried twice to amend the rules to give old members some of their 1971 committee assignments but failed by lopsided votes.

Rep. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi, sponsor of Daniel's rules package, said a resolution will be brought up later in the session allowing current members who return in 1975 to keep the committees they receive this year.

The true test of a "reformer," Williams said, was whether he was willing to start now with a system allowing retention of committee assignments.

"If we don't do it today, you are not a reformer, you are a do-gooder," Williamson said.

A number of Daniel's rules are similar or identical to those adopted in 1972 when Rayford Price was speaker.

Court Rules For Hughes
WASHINGTON (AP) — On a 6-2 vote the Supreme Court today threw out a $145 judgment against the Hughes Tool Co.

Hughes Tool is owned wholly by Howard R. Hughes, the reclusive industrialist.

The award, to Trans World Airlines, was more than 30 times larger than any other judgment in an American court.

It was gathering interest at the rate of 7 1/2 per cent over the last few years.

Justice William O. Douglas, speaking for the court, said the default judgment recommended in 1968 by former U.S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell was invalid since the transactions that were the basis of TWA's suit had been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board and conduct approved by the CAB is immune from antitrust liability.

Attorney Claims Seven Operated On Assignment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government prosecutor said today the seven Watergate defendants were operating under an assignment to sniff out plans for demonstrations against Republican speakers and uncover embarrassing facts about Democrats.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Earl J. Silbert, in his opening address to the jury, said the prosecution would try to prove that the operations were conducted under the direction of G. Gordon Liddy, a former White House and Treasury Department aide. He was general counsel for the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President at the time of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington's Watergate complex last July 17.

Silbert told the jury that Liddy was given the espionage assignment by Jeb Stuart Magruder, formerly top lieutenant in the White House

Smith Proposes No New Taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Outgoing Gov. Preston Smith proposed today that the new legislature authorized state spending of $4.5 billion from all funds in 1974 and $5 billion for 1975.

"This biennial budget is with in anticipated revenue and will require no new taxes," Smith said in his final budget message to the legislature.

Smith urged the legislators to provide for a continuous review of a 11 state program expenditures "to establish their need, efficiency and effectiveness."

Smith's budget recommendations go to Gov.-elect Dolph Briscoe and as an advisory document only, similar to the budget being prepared by the Legislative Budget Board. Briscoe will make budget recommendations in his first speech to the legislature Jan. 17, then the Senate and House will draw up their respective appropriation bills for debate.

Smith's budget calls for general revenue spending of $1.01 billion in 1974 and $1.04 billion in 1975, compared to the $794 million spent in 1972 and $881 million appropriated for 1973.

Smith said the highlights of his budget included:

- $10.2 million to initiate a state adult education program.
- $6.4 million for a new state bilingual education program.
- $15.9 million to expand vocational-technical education in public junior colleges.

Police Theorize Conspiracy In Sniper Shooting

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police have identified the sniper who killed on a hotel rooftop as a young Kansas black whose minister says he "hated white folks."

Supt. Clarence Giarrusso told a news conference Tuesday that the sniper was Mark J. Essex, 23, of Emporia and added: "There's some evidence of a conspiracy by other people, but I cannot positively tell you yet."

Six persons were shot to death and 17 injured in the sniping incident.

Giarrusso also said:

- Ballistics prove a .44 magnum carbine found next to Essex' body was the same weapon that killed a young police cadet and wounded a policeman in New Orleans on New Year's Eve.
- Police "have evidence that would lead to both conclusions" — that Essex was the only sniper on the roof of the Downtown Howard Johnson's hotel, and that one or more fellow snipers were with him and escaped.

Asked whether his reference to conspiracy meant he had evidence Essex belonged to a militant organization, Giarrusso said:

"I'm not certain about that yet... (but) conspiracy in the sense that it may have been two, three or four people; a small number — you know, it doesn't take many to form a conspiracy — who were intent to kill people. And that's the essence of it."

He said the carbine was the same weapon that cut down cadet Alfred Harrell, 19, as he stepped in front of police headquarters 10 days ago and wounded Patrolman Edwin C. Hosi Sr., 18 minutes later a few blocks away.

At the time of the New Year's Eve shootings, Giarrusso said, "We had some information — reason to believe people were going to hurt someone when Harrell and Hosi were taken to Charity Hospital."

On the basis of that information, during the sniping he deployed extra officers at the hospital, where following a brief disturbance a man with a shotgun was arrested.

In Essex' hometown of Emporia, the Rev. W. A. Chambers, his family's minister, said young Essex had developed a militant dislike for whites when he came home from the Navy.

In Washington, the Navy said Essex was given a general discharge for unsuitability Feb. 10, 1970. A spokesman said this type of discharge involves "character and behavior disorders" but would not elaborate.

Meanwhile, police debated whether there was more than one sniper.

Giarrusso gave these reasons to think Essex wasn't alone:

- After his death, a helicopter which participated in a police siege on the hotel was fired upon. "You'd have to assume the police hit the plane (if Essex was alone). This is possible, but highly improbable."
- After Essex died, several policemen saw another person on the roof. "There were very, very many shots taken at this person while this person, or this ghost allegedly moved... I can't believe that the policemen... were all hallucinating."

- Policemen heard foul language and shouting and talking on the rooftop after Essex was killed.
- Giarrusso cited these reasons for believing Essex acted alone.
- "There has been but one person found."
- "Our men insist the area was adequately sealed off."

However, under close questioning, Giarrusso conceded that "there was a time span prior to our receipt of the plans of the building that an obvious exit from the roof would have enabled other persons, if there were any, to leave the roof and go to another floor."

He said he didn't know the length of the "time span," but that it was at the very beginning of the siege. Under more questioning, Giarrusso identified the "unobvious exit" as the elevator shaft.

Newsmen inside the hotel said police didn't begin guarding the bottom of the elevator shafts until after sunrise Monday — or nearly 24 hours after the shooting started.

Robert Bemish, 43, a broadcast engineer hit by sniper fire, said Essex "was not the same man who shot me."

Police said Essex was wearing military fatigue pants with baggy pockets to carry shells.

Bemish, a guest at the hotel, declared: "The man who shot me had on a light tan jacket and brown slacks."

Newsmen recalled a black policeman asking fellow officers during the siege whether they had seen a heavy-set black man walking with him through the hotel who had "just disappeared."

The man was described as wearing a short, light-colored coat.

US, Cuba Disagree On Hijacking Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations on an anti-hijacking agreement with Cuba are not making the progress originally expected, U.S. officials say.

The main problem after a month and a half of talks involves details on punishment of hijackers. Both sides tentatively have agreed to the extradition or prosecution of anyone hijacking an airplane or ship.

Court Awards Relief

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Indigent Texas couples caring for children not their own will be given relief under a federal appeals court ruling made here on their behalf.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court Appeals reversed Tuesday a lower court order denying such relief to Consuelo Lopez of San Benito, Tex.

Mrs. Lopez had filed suit on her behalf and that of others similarly situated. She had challenged a Texas law which denied her full dependent children funds because the children she cares for are her grandchildren.

Mrs. Lopez and her husband, who earns but $35 a week, have been caring for the three children since the couple's daughter died in 1970. Prior to the daughter's death, the children's father deserted his family.

The daughter had been receiving aid to dependent children from the state for herself and the children, amounting to $119 a month. When she died, and Mr. and Mrs. Lopez took the children, the funds were slashed to $56.

The state refused to reconsider the Lopez' situation, saying funds are unavailable, for the caretakers of needy children if the caretakers are married and living with their spouses.

The state refused to reconsider the Lopez' situation, saying funds are unavailable, for the caretakers of needy children if the caretakers are married and living with their spouses.

The 5th Circuit disagreed with a lower court's dismissal of the suit.

The plain language, legislative history, and purpose of the Social Security Act make clear that so long as one is needy and qualifies as a caretaker relative within the meaning of the act, no further restriction on eligibility for assistance is permissible.

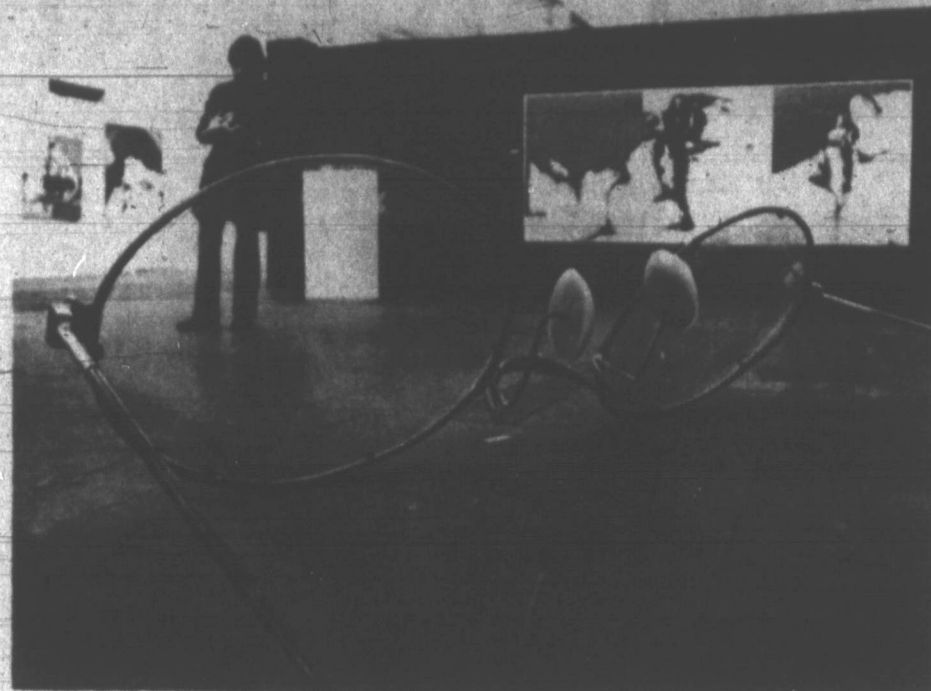

The appeals court added: "Although a state, in the interest of preserving the fiscal integrity of its welfare program by economically allocating limited resources, has the undisputed power to set the levels of benefits, the Supreme Court held that AFDC Aid to Families with Dependent Children resources may not be protected by the device of adopting eligibility requirements restricting the class made eligible by federal standards."

New UN Delegate May Get 'Diplomatic Baptism'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Teddy Roosevelt's Big Stick policy may be waiting to haunt John A. Scali when the veteran journalist becomes the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

Scali's diplomatic baptism will be a week of Security Council meetings in Panama to air the United States' old imperialist sins in Latin America.

It could compare to the U.N. welcome given George Bush, Scali's predecessor, who is becoming a Republican-national chairman. Bush got furrows in his brow when he tried — and failed — to keep Nationalist China in the United Nations in October 1971.

During his turn-of-the-century presidency, Roosevelt helped what is now Panama to break away from Colombia and become independent. Some well-placed U.S. Marines kept Colombian troops from getting to Panama City when the revolt broke out.

Most recent presidents have read their State of the Union messages to a joint session of Congress.

State Roads Conditions Note Hazardous Driving

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Highway Department reported general icing conditions today on highways in an area north of a line from Corpus Christi west to Del Rio.

Driving conditions in this area are very hazardous, the department warned. Driving should be limited to necessary travel only.

Highway conditions this morning, by districts, included: Corpus Christi—Ice cover highways in Karnes, Goliad, Live Oak, Bee and Refugio counties. Ice on bridges in southern half of district.

Flu Cases Reported

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A top state health official predicts the next 30 days will indicate whether Texas is to be confronted with major outbreaks of London flu.

"If we are going to see an upswing, then we'll see it in the next 30 days," says Dr. M.S. Dickerson, who is chief of the State Health Department's communicable disease division.

Dickerson said two nigre cases were confirmed among students at the University of Texas at Austin and a fourth case has been serologically confirmed in a patient from Children in Northwest Texas.

Finance Committee Chairman Expects No New Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, says he expects the 93rd Congress to pass no major tax-reform legislation.

Long said in an interview that expectations of some members of Congress that tax reform could raise $15 billion to $20 billion in revenue are highly inflated.

He said it would be much more realistic to forecast that his committee and its House counterpart, Ways and Means, might find loopholes that could be closed to raise $1 billion to $2 billion.

"And," he went on, "I am willing to predict that if we vote to increase taxes on somebody by that amount, there will be a majority who will want to cut taxes for someone else by at least $1 billion more than we raise from tax reform."

That is exactly what happened the last time we had a big tax-reform bill, in 1969. We ended up giving more tax relief than we gained in new revenue.

"I would not be surprised if we wound up with a bill that President Nixon felt he had to veto."

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted earlier that any tax reform passed this year probably would not result in a big tax cut or in significantly increased revenues.

Long, a Louisiana Democrat, said the biggest and most important subject his panel will deal with in this Congress is not taxes but some form of national health-care plan.

However, Finance cannot act on any major legislation until Ways and Means writes a bill, gets it through the House, and sends it to the Senate.

Syria Gets New Soviet Jet Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union delivered 18 MIG jet fighters to Syria only weeks before the outbreak of the new Syrian-Israeli air battles. U.S. intelligence sources report.

The fighter planes were landed last month by three Soviet cargo ships in what is described as the biggest sea shipment of Russian war materiel to Syria in 1972.

Included were 16 MIG 21s, two older MIG 17s and four helicopters, which, according to U.S. experts, brought to about 35 the number of MIG 21s Russia sent to Syria last year.

The MIG 21 is rated as the best interceptor provided by Russia to its Arab and other allies.

Russia began a major build-up of Syria's military equipment last summer. This came after Egyptian President Anwar Sadat ordered thousands of Russian advisers to leave his country because, it was reported, Soviets would not give Egypt advanced offensive weapons, including bombardment missiles, to threaten Israel.

Burglary Warrant Issued

Judge Nat Lunsford issued a warrant yesterday for a former employe of a burglarized service station for theft over $50.

The owner of the station reported the loss of a bank bag holding some $140 in cash, when he opened for business shortly after 6 a.m. yesterday.

The practice was to take the money from the cash drawer and hide it on the premises. The employe became a suspect when no signs of forced entry were found. He closed the station Monday night and did not report for work yesterday.

Officers learned the man was trying to leave for Missouri and followed his trail for a time about the city but have no immediate clues to his whereabouts.

Double Death Ruled Murder

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — Police here say a mother and daughter found lying in their flaming home were strangled and beaten to death.

Firemen went to the five-room brick home around 2:15 a.m. Tuesday to find the house engulfed in flame.

Finance Committee Chairman Expects No New Tax Reform

Mills has said that his group will start with tax reform this session.

Long said that, if Mills succeeds in getting a tax bill through the House by summer, the Finance Committee will try to come up with its own bill this year.

He said areas in which the revenue laws might be tightened include inheritance taxes, capital-gains levies on inherited property, foundations and charitable contributions.

FROM SEC Clements' Company Kept Back Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission says a company headed by William P. Clements Jr., nominated to be deputy secretary of defense, omitted from periodic reports to the SEC any mention of a civil action charging Clements, the company, and others with conspiracy and fraud.

In a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., SEC Secretary Ronald F. Hunt said agency investigators "do not have sufficient facts at this time" to determine whether the company, Sedco, Inc., of Dallas, Tex., violated SEC regulations on disclosure of pending legal action.

But, said Hunt, the SEC is in the process of obtaining various court records and is continuing an investigation requested by Proxmire last month.

The Senate Armed Services Committee planned to take up Clements' nomination to the No. 2 Pentagon job today after a hearing into President Nixon's nomination of Elliot Richardson to be secretary of defense.

Proxmire asked the SEC to check Sedco's disclosure reports after The Associated Press reported last month that Clements, three business associates and Southeastern Drilling Co. (former name of Sedco) had been accused by an Argentine businessman of hiding millions in profits from one of the largest oil-drilling contracts in history.

The 1959-1963 contract to drill 1,000 wells in Argentina propelled Southeastern from a small domestic wildcat outfit to a worldwide operation and made Clements and his family millions from a $310 investment.

The businessman, Antonio A. Diaz of Buenos Aires, says Southeastern netted more than $25 million in profits instead of the $18 million it has reported. He seeks some $6 million in punitive damages and in additional commissions he says are due for his help in obtaining the contract.

The company has admitted destroying many of its Argentine records, but says its net-profit figures are accurate.

Policeman Shot, Killed

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston policeman was shot and killed in a gun battle late Tuesday night, and fellow officers said his assailant was critically wounded by the slain man's partner.

The dead officer, Anthony Guzman, 30, and his partner, B. L. Mills, reportedly stopped a pickup truck for a traffic violation before the shooting.

Billy Wagner, 23, an attendant at a gas station, said the two officers and the driver of the truck were standing outside their vehicles as the gunfire occurred.

"I didn't see him pull a gun," Wagner said of the pickup driver. "They were all standing pretty close together. He started pushing them and the shooting started."

Wagner said he dived under the counter in his station, to keep from getting hit by a stray bullet and heard several shots fired.

Homicide detectives said the 29-year-old suspect was cut down by shots fired by Mills as he ran from the truck. He was reported in critical condition at a hospital early Wednesday with three wounds.

The vehicle was impounded, and processed for fingerprints. Officers continue their search for the suspect.

Courts Reform Needed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Traffic Courts Study Committee recommended five pieces of legislation Tuesday to bring Texas laws up to national standards and avoid the loss of $29.5 million in federal aid each year.

Among the major changes proposed are: —Requiring all justices of the peace and municipal court judges to be lawyers. Those now serving as judges could continue to serve if they complete a 40-hour course on the duties of their offices.

—Making all JP and municipal courts court of record, thus eliminating the present requirement of an entirely new trial when a defendant appeals. A constitutional amendment would be necessary to effect this for JP courts.

Federal funds will not be cut off by the Department of Transportation so long as the state "is making a good faith effort and reasonable progress toward compliance" with national traffic court standards.

Texas gets $25 million a year from the federal highway fund and $4.5 million from federal highway safety funds.

The committee said JPs in 173 of Texas' 254 counties are limited to $5,000 a year, and commissioners' courts can vote salaries smaller than that. Seventy-six per cent of 220 municipal court judges responding to a committee survey said they make less than $6,000 a year.

The committee recommended that the salaries be separated from any relationship to fines collected by the courts.

Safe Driving Record Noted

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Last year may prove to be the safest Texas motorists have experienced in 10 years, the director of the Department of Public Safety says.

Col. Wilson Speyer told a Baylor University banquet here Tuesday night, however, that those killed on the state's highways last year can take little comfort in the knowledge.

"Speyer said when records on traffic deaths are completed March 15 they will likely show that 3,660 persons were killed last year compared with 3,594 in 1971. But, he said, Texans drove eight per cent more miles last year than making deaths fewer per 100,000 miles driven.

He said Texans drove 77 billion miles last year, ending the year with 4.9 persons killed per 100,000 miles driven.

Tech Scientists Study Mesquite Food Possibility

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

Some people at Texas Tech at Lubbock just may make ranchers the happiest people in the world. They may transform the cowmen's mesquite crop into something worth more than their cattle.

Talk about upsetting the ecology!

Actually, getting rid of mesquite just could produce more problems than it solves.

If a rancher got rid of his mesquite, he'd have so much grass that he could raise so many cattle that the surplus would run the price down.

At Texas Tech, they hope to turn the mesquite into cheap cattle feed which should lower the cost of beef to the housewife eventually but probably won't.

With a surplus of cattle because of all the grass, cows may become a glut on the market.

So then you may see the incredible happen.

The cattlemen may begin raising mesquite as a cash crop.

That's pretty futuristic look.

However, the Tech scientists are dead serious about turning mesquite into cattle feed. They've already done it.

The could turn it into people feed, too, but that hasn't worked too well with some other conversions of normally useless plants.

Dr. Wheeler J. North of the California Institute of Technology admitted recently that seaweed isn't the solution to the world's hunger. People simply will not eat it.

Oh, the Papanese eat seaweed but not for food value. They like the way it tastes, just as people like caviar but hardly make a meal of it.

Tech scientists have found a micro organism which can turn mesquite into a useful food. In fact, the microbe thrives on mesquite above all other plants.

The scientists can use the same micro-organism to turn old newspapers and even weeds into food.

But the idea of converting that old debris mesquite into something useful while clearing the land at the same time is close to any rancher's heart.

Could mesquite one day become so valuable that newspapers will carry commodity futures quotations for it like they do for cotton and wheat?

The Tech scientists have produced enough protein from mesquite to show that rats thrive on it.

And, as we said, the scientists can turn mesquite into steak without the cow as middleman, but they don't believe this will be too popular.

A person who hasn't experienced the job of fighting mesquite can't understand why ranchers hate it so. It is a losing battle. But just like playing on a losing football team, attacking mesquite builds character.

A city dweller would see the solution as simple. Just cut down the trees and bushes.

It doesn't work that way. Cut down one bush and a dozen leap up to take its place.

Ranchers have tried everything with only limited success. Some use giant plows to root out the plant. Burning gets you nowhere. Chemical sprays help but apparently aren't the final answer.

Why in the drought of the 1950s, when that hardy plant, Johnson grass, curled up and died, mesquites thrive.

When you can clear the land of the bushes, fine grass generally grows. Mesquite shades the ground just enough to kill grass, and it steals water from useful plants.

The encyclopedia doesn't say where mesquite came from.

Oldtimers report that as late as the 1870s there were no such bushes in North Central Texas. Now they would cover the earth if man didn't fight back.

The same encyclopedia tries to make a hero of mesquite. It is used, says the source book, for firewood, fence posts and to erect buildings. Never saw a mesquite straight enough to build even a small doghouse.

Further, says this source, the beans served as food for cattle—but it is only a desperately hungry cow that will eat one.

The plant grows in many places in America and even in Hawaii. The missionaries took the mesquite to those islands and probably St. Peter held a heart-to-heart talk with them about that before admitting them through the Pearly Gates. The reason mesquite is so hard to kill is that the smaller roots have knots in them. Kill the main bush, and everywhere there is a knot a new bush springs up.

The main tap root goes down forever, feeding all the little new bushes until they can thrive on their own.

Some estimates say that 52 per cent of Texas' land is infested with the brush. It is pollution of the land on an equal footing with pollution of our rivers only it doesn't smell or look so bad, not that the mesquite is a particularly handsome plant.

Dr. S. P. Yang, chairman of Tech's Department of Food and Nutrition, said recently that it takes two weeks for a young pig to double its weight. A microorganism such as the mesquite eaters can do the same thing in 20 minutes to two hours.

One microorganism factory can produce 20 tons of microbial protein while obtaining that amount of protein from pork would require slaughtering of 30,000 pigs.

Which probably will be agreeable with the pigs.

Students Receive Honor

Two Pampa students at West Texas State University have been selected for Who's Who Among Students at American Colleges and Universities.

They are Debra Bohlander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Bohlander of 1219 Williston, and Terry Pulse, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Pulse of 2721 Comanche.

Miss Bohlander, a junior social studies education major, is a member of Associated Women Students and Gamma Sigma Sigma, service sorority, and her activities include being a Justice of the Student Supreme Court and secretary of welfare in the Student Association.

Pulse, a senior pre-med English major, is a member of the Writers Association of the Golden Spread, Alpha Chi, national honor society, and Beta Beta Beta, international honorary biological society.

More Things A Columnist Can Learn From The Mail

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: Cancer is the disease people dread the most, but heart disease takes twice as big a toll. The No. 1 killer, it claims each year the lives of 358,4 out of every 100,000 Americans. Cancer kills 160,9.

Natural disasters often take a greater toll of bird life than of animal or human life. For example, flights of migrating Lapland longspurs were caught in a vast, blinding, wet snow-storm over Minnesota and Iowa in 1904. Naturalists estimated that more than a million birds died.

Quotable notables: "No man is justified in doing evil on the grounds of expediency." — Theodore Roosevelt.

Quality not size: So much genius and knowledge spread from ancient Athens that many people have the idea it was a gigantic metropolis. Actually, however, even during its golden age under Pericles, Athens had a population of only 300,000 — smaller than that of Omaha. This is no knock on Omaha. It hasn't been around as long as Athens. Worth remembering: "The three ages of man are: school tablet, aspirin tablet — and stone tablet."

Definition of management: The art of getting five men to do the work of ten.

Death comes to people in odd ways: Agathocles, tyrant of Sicily, was killed at 95 when he swallowed a toothpick.

Dealer Makes Profit From Signed Stamps
LORCH, Germany (AP) — A West German stamp dealer says he has collected nearly $200,000 on sales of 325 stamp sheets autographed by 20 American astronauts.

Hermann Sieger, who sold the souvenir envelopes smuggled to the moon by the crew of Apollo 15, said Tuesday he expects to gross $100,000 more on the 175 stamp sets he still has.

Sieger is selling each set with 20 signatures for 1,950 marks, or $606 dollars, but he denied a newspaper report that his profit has already reached $95,000.

"People forget that the stamp sets even without the signatures are not exactly cheap. Some cost more than $12," he said.

Responsible Baby-Sitters Are Trained, Not Born

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It's good for a laugh when mom opens the door to a baby-sitter who turns out to be younger than the "baby." But it's only funny on television.

Parents should ask themselves one question before giving their sons or daughters permission to take charge of someone else's youngster. Is my child responsible enough to baby-sit?

Not so long ago you, yourself, were scurrying around for baby-sitters for your little one. And now that same "little one" thinks she is ready to assume the baby-sitting role.

Remember how careful you were in selecting a baby-sitter? As a responsible parent you should help your own child to become the responsible baby-sitter you would have chosen.

Standing in for parents, even for a short period of time, is a challenging experience. And there are important duties that must be assumed when taking care of children. If your youngsters are in their teens you may have forgotten infant care techniques and it might be wise to go over some of the basics.

Extra care in handling is essential. Baby's bones and muscles are in the early stages of development. Also, if a formula is to be prepared, the ingredients must be in the correct proportions. So it is important for a baby-sitter to be careful and exacting and to understand the formula's preparation.

When babies are awake, they must never be left unguarded. Buttons, pills and other small objects look like tasty treats to a young one. Even while the baby is asleep, an occasional peek is wise.

Caring for children past the infant stage has its challenges, too. As children grow older they become more alert and inquisitive. They like to explore the most amazing places and inevitably get into mischief. It's all too easy for the playpen set to become fascinated with scissors, knives, letter openers, electrical outlets and other potentially dangerous objects.

It's diaper changing time for this young baby-sitter and she's handling the job like a pro. Her young charge will be clean, dry and comfortable in no time at all. After an application of baby powder which contains petroleum jelly.

Children need the opportunity to be independent but they must be watched carefully and handled with tact. Toddlers are often wise beyond their years. Many a young sitter has learned this to her chagrin. Mom may know her toddler's every trick. But the baby-sitter won't. And her charge will play the whole bag—or as many as the traffic will bear.

Some youngsters are in diapers until the age of three. Diapering a tot is dif-icult for a mother and even more trying for an inexperienced baby-sitter. Teach your child how to fold the diaper and hold it away from the child when pinning it.

Helping to prevent diaper rash and chafing and keeping baby comfortable are essential aspects of the diapering process. Here are a few hints that should help your child perform the diapering task efficiently.

Make sure the parents tell the sitter where they keep things like baby oil, powder and diapers. The first step in diapering is to clean the baby. Baby oil is an ideal lubricant for this cleaning process. An application of a baby lotion that is easily absorbed into the skin will moisturize, soothe, protect and allow baby powder to glide on easily. Finish the job with a light dusting of baby powder containing petroleum jelly. It's a barrier against wetness.

Accidents and illness are not likely to occur. But a baby-sitter must be equipped to deal with an emergency should it arise. Make certain your daughter has the phone numbers of the local police, fire department and pediatrician written down. Before the parents leave the you would leave her in charge if you had an infant or young one. If you have given her the advice and support needed, you are probably confident of her ability.

And, as an extra advantage, let her know that you are only a phone call away and will gladly offer any help or support she needs.

Should you wonder if your child is ready to baby-sit ask yourself whether or not

DEAR POLLY—Ann wanted to know how to remove rust stains from the bottom of her glass vase. A friend who restores antiques told me to put sand in such a vase and cover it with water. Let stand for several days and then empty it out, rinse and the glass should look like new.—ALENE

DEAR POLLY—To remove the rust stains from her glass vase Ann could pour full strength ammonia in the vase and leave it overnight. If stains are not completely removed try a second time. If you have any slips that are too long and may show under your skirt, save the elastic from the tops of panty hose and then slip one around your waist after putting on such a slip. Never throw away those waistbands from panty hose. They can often be used for other things.—MRS. H. H.

DEAR GIRLS—Another old-fashioned remedy for mineral stains in glass such as Ann's vase is to use used tea leaves and vinegar. Shake them around until the stains disappear.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Mildew has grown under the glass over a hand-painted picture that is too pretty to discard and still nice looking as it is. Surely someone among your vast number of readers can tell me how to remove this mildew. It does not seem to be spreading so the picture will probably be all right if I just remove what is there now.—MRS. H. D. H.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve concerns service stations who do not have enough help and while your car is worked on you have to wait for hours. Parts for the car cost enough but labor charges can be outrageous. I feel I pay overtime prices because the mechanic stops several times to fill cars with gas and that is unfair. There should be one man to handle the gas pumps so the mechanic often has to wait around while a needed part is being delivered and I think one should only be charged for the actual time the car is being worked on.—MRS. T. C. H.

DEAR MRS. T. C. H.—Did you check to be sure you are really being charged for all the time you wait?—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—On each hanger with one of my husband's colored shirts I hang a tie that is co-ordinated in color. This eliminates time spent searching for the right tie to go with a certain shirt. Try it, he'll like it.—MRS. G. C.

DEAR POLLY—I discovered that running hot water over a nail polish bottle before applying it to the nails makes it shake better and then the polish goes on smoother.—CAROL K.

VOGUE CLEANERS

1542 N. Hobart

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband falls into bed dead tired without even kissing me goodnight. Then about 4 o'clock in the morning he wakes me up and forces himself on me without saying a word. After he has satisfied himself he turns over and goes to sleep. All the while I am lying there like a statue. Would you call this statutory rape?

CURIOUS IN FRISCO

DEAR CURIOUS: No. It's more like STATIONARY rape.

DEAR ABBY: In one of your columns you told a girl it was all right for her to smile and wave at truck drivers. Thanks a lot! My husband is a truck driver and all he needs is good looking girls waving and smiling at him all day. He's a good-looking-guy, and it doesn't take much to turn him on, and I'd just as soon he didn't make any new friends on his job. Not all truck drivers are alike, but I know my husband better than you do, so watch it, will you, Abby?

THELMA IN PASSAIC

DEAR THELMA: I'll watch it, Thelma.

DEAR ABBY: Never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but after reading the letter from that young girl who asked if it was okay to smile and wave at truck drivers, I had to put in my 2 cents' worth.

I've been married to a truck driver for 19 years. There's not a better husband and father. It's an honorable position and I'm proud of him. Maybe most people aren't aware of this, but 70 per cent of the food they eat and the clothes they wear are delivered by trucks.

If a lady is stranded on the highway, a truck driver will be the first to stop and help her. And speaking of being a lady, my husband stopped to help a couple of so-called "ladies," and they robbed him of all his money.

So tell that gal to keep smiling. I hope she smiles at my truck driver someday, for it's a lonely job and he can use a smile along the way.

KANSAS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 67, living alone in a one-bedroom apartment. The only living relative I have is a sister, Gertrude is 73, married and very well-to-do. She has been fighting with her husband Sam, who is 75, for as long as I can remember.

For the past year, Gertrude has been coming here in a taxi at all hours of the night asking if she can sleep in the other twin bed because she and Sam had another fight. Naturally, I let her stay. Sometimes she spends two nights with me until she's sure Sam has cooled off.

Now Sam calls accusing me of "breaking up his home." He says if I didn't let his wife come here to sleep she would stay home where she belongs. The old fool should know that if I didn't let her sleep here she could go to a hotel. She has plenty of money.

Sam says if I let Gertrude sleep here one more night he will cut me out of his will, and his wife's will, too. Can he do that? Please advise me.

LAUDERDALE LADY

DEAR LADY: Tell Sam that when your sister shows up at your door to spend the night with you, you will not refuse to let her in. He can cut you out of his will if he wants to, but he can't cut you out of his wife's.

The standard no-trump has a point count range of 16-18 but many good players prefer to reduce it to 15-17. Others use 15+ to 17+ or 16- to 18- which is about the same thing.

We don't care which you use provided you don't go all out and use 15-18. Use of 15-18 gives you a chance to bid more no-trumps but it also muddies the picture.

We use 16-18 with minor adjustments. In particular we are careful not to open no-trump with 18 points and a hand with extra playing potential such as the South hand shown in the box.

South has 18 high card points but also a strong five-card suit that will probably take four tricks by itself.

Thus we approve heartily of opening one club with the hand in the box and jumping to two no-trump after partner responds one spade.

We also approve of North's raise to three since we hate to hang one trick short of game.

In the play, South put up dummy's jack of hearts and let East's queen hold the trick.

East led back a heart. South won in dummy; then lost a club finesse to West's king.

West led a heart. South won and ran his clubs and then played the king of spades. If West had held the ace, the combination of two losing finesses and the five-card heart suit would have left South one trick short, but East held the spade-ace and the contract came flying home.

Why is it that some of us refuse to accept the fact that not every woman wants, in the name of liberation, to be freed from her cookie cutters and Girl Scout telephone lists.

As I understand it, the true meaning of liberation is that condition where every individual is allowed the happy choice of willingly doing what he or she does best. A family, a society, is made up of individuals. Happier families, a happier society, should result if all individuals contribute the best of themselves.

Yet the freedom-of-choice our most staunch liberationists cry for seems too often to exclude the traditional role of housewife. The housewife is too often told she must escape bondage whether or not she has the inclination.

Not all women see housework as a dehumanizing activity. Not all women are filled with envious rage when her next-door sister gets a job at an insurance agency.

Not every woman considers herself a person with a split-level mind in a split-level house just because she prefers duster to operating a computer.

Not every woman feels that because she freezes vegetables and plays bridge she is filling her hours with meaningless activities that cannot compare with a working woman's schedule.

Not every woman haunts her doctor's office with meaningless symptoms because she is bored.

The one thing most full-time housewives resent is being constantly categorized. They resent being depicted as a greedy-leather-brain.

There are women working in offices and factories because they choose to do so. There are women working at home because this is the life-style they have chosen.

As a housewife complained to me the other day, "I am not a victim of what Betty Friedan calls, 'The problem without a name.' I do have lots of problems but, let me tell you, every single one of them has a name!"

Congress Considering Legislation Against 'Little Cigars'

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

Prohibited from advertising cigarettes on television and radio, the U.S. tobacco industry is now vigorously promoting cigarette-like little cigars on the nation's airwaves.

The selling campaign is so successful that public interest groups which helped force cigarettes off the air for health reasons two years ago now are planning a major fight to ban the little cigar.

In Washington last week, Sen. Frank Moss, a Utah Democrat, announced that he would introduce legislation to ban broadcast advertising of little cigars.

Market analysts believe that little cigars represent a potential $100-million annual sales that could be reached quickly if the product can be widely advertised.

The outcome of the battle is expected to affect significantly the future marketing of tobacco products.

The ban on broadcast cigarette advertising has had no noticeable effect on the smoking habits of Americans. In 1971, the highest total ever — 547.2 billion — was sold. Sales have continued high this year.

The little cigar was marketed in America for 50 years without controversy. Then along came the modern version: A product the same size and shape as a cigarette, often manufactured on the same machine, with a similar cellulose filter and selling in soft packs of 20.

A spokesman for R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., manufacturer of the best-selling Winchester, said the wrapper of the little cigar is made mainly of reconstituted tobacco and is brown and the filler is made entirely of cigar tobaccos and air-cured tobaccos. The combination is designed to produce a hard-to-inhale alkaline smoke rather than the acid smoke from flu-cured cigarette tobaccos.

Winchester is the latest entrant in the little cigar field. It has been propelled to the top by a nationwide television campaign featuring a cowboy-type smoker with a pencil-thin mustache, effortlessly stealing girls from nonsmokers.

Reynolds won't discuss figures, but some market researchers see Winchester soon selling a potential three billion units annually, based on test marketing. This is only a fraction of the annual cigarette sales, but it's three times more than the current little cigar consumption.

The little cigar was the cigar industry's big 1972 sales growth item with a 29 per cent overall gain. This was before Reynolds launched its massive national advertising campaign.

"The success of Winchester is expected to bring new brands on the market. Currently there are more than 20 brands — 11 selling well.

The big manufacturers in addition to Reynolds are Lorillard and American Cigar. Entering the field now, however, with television campaigns are Consolidated Cigars with "Dutch Treat" and General Cigars with "Robert Burns."

"It's a bandwagon effect," said a Justice Department official, commenting on the proliferation of the new product.

Little cigars are taxed only one-fifth the amount levied on cigarettes. The packages and advertising need bear no health warning labels. Television and radio can be used for promotion, an ingredient absolutely necessary, tobacco industry people say, to introduce a new tobacco product on the national level.

The cigarette is the only tobacco product so far controlled by statute. And the wording is vague.

Bruce E. Wilson, a deputy attorney general in the Justice Department, testified at a Senate inquiry earlier this year that the technical language of the law "presents few obstacles to any tobacco company which desires to develop a product which will be taxed at a fraction of cigarettes, does not require a warning label and can utilize all of the mass media for its promotion if so desired."

The opponents of little cigar marketing say that is exactly what the tobacco industry is doing. "Winchester has found a loophole in the law and is marching right through it," said John F. Banzhaf, of the Washington-based antismoking organization "Action in Smoking."

Helping to keep that loophole open, Banzhaf said, is a trade association called "The Little Cigar Council, Inc.," an industry-backed trouble-shooting organization based in Washington.

On the council's staff as field director is Edward C. Clifford, formerly chief of the tax branch of the Tobacco, Alcohol and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service at a time when a critically important decision was made to classify the Reynolds Co. Winchester as a little cigar and not as a cigarette. The product had twice earlier been classified as a cigarette.

The Reynolds company is one of six tobacco producers represented by the Little Cigar Council. Clifford said in a telephone interview that there was "no connection" between his work with the IRS and the council. "I took voluntary retirement from the IRS in the spring and I joined up here in September," he said.

The campaign to get little cigars off the air waves and to get warning labels on the packs and the advertising is moving in three directions. The first is through the regulatory agencies directly concerned with the tobacco industry — The Treasury Department, the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission.

The American Cancer Society view is that the necessary regulations are already on the books. A spokesman cited the two definitions of a cigarette in the Public Health Smoking Act of 1969.

A cigarette is, "Any roll of tobacco wrapped in paper or in any substance not containing tobacco," and "Any roll of tobacco wrapped in any substance containing tobacco which, because of its appearance, the type of tobacco used in the filler, or its packaging or labeling, is likely to be offered or purchased by consumers as a cigarette."

As far as the Cancer Society is concerned, little cigars are cigarettes in masquerade, and the regulatory agencies should take appropriate action.

The second direction of attacks is legislation.

"The regulatory agencies have not acted because of a hangup, a statutory hangup," said an aide to Sen. Moss. "But we expect a hard fight to bring in new legislation." Moss is chairman of the Senate Commerce Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs.

The third direction of attack is legal action. Banzhaf would like to use legal means to force reviews of administrative decisions governing little cigars and is trying to assemble medical and scientific evidence. In mid-December his group filed a petition with the FTC to have Reynolds print cautionary health warnings on all Winchester packages and advertising.

"We need further evidence," Banzhaf said recently. The Cancer Society is undertaking chemical tests of the tobacco "filler" in the small cigars.

A spokesman said the society hopes to verify by laboratory tests soon that tobacco companies "are taking out of little cigars those chemical elements which make it difficult for cigars to be inhaled. Not only will the little cigar be found to be a highly toxic, smokeable item," the spokesman said, "but it would also be found to be an inhalable one."

The tobacco industry stands pat on the law.

"We are amazed that after what we did to comply there is the suggestion that we are doing something wrong," said Charles B. Wade, a senior vice president of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., which also manufactures Winston, the best-selling cigarette in the nation.

"We have made no effort to evade any rulings with respect to little cigars. We even asked the Treasury Department to approve our products before we marketed it," said Wade at his headquarters in Winston-Salem, N.C.

"We are not ashamed of the effectiveness of our advertising, and we have modified it to make quite clear what it is we are advertising," Wade declared.

A spokesman for the Cancer Society in New York said, "The TV ads for Winchester have the same symbolism, the same appeal to enjoyment, romance and sex, the same incitement to youth as the worst of the cigarette commercials."

"One of those ads can achieve an effective response that would wipe out the impact of 100 of our antismoking ads," the spokesman said.

A Justice Department official said, "We know that the ads are designed to attract the cigarette smoker, designed to attract people through the broadcasting media. But this doesn't make it illegal."

The responsibility for determining what specifically a tobacco product is lies with the Treasury Department of the Internal Revenue Service. "We are the beginning of the snowball, we decide the tax," one official said. "But we admit, this is unploughed ground. We are pioneering."

The ground was so unploughed that Winchester, when submitted to Treasury for approval, was twice classified a cigarette rather than a little cigar by a volunteer smoking panel and by other criteria. Two important chemical tests for ethanol extract and the total ash texture put Winchester about in the middle between small cigars and cigarettes. The volunteer smokers put it close to a cigarette.

In January 1971, the little cigar classification came through for Winchester, allowing it to be marketed in test areas on television and radio. Because of the tax break, Winchester could be sold for only 25 cents a pack, half the price of cigarettes. And no health warning was required.

Treasury Department officials admit there are serious difficulties in correctly classifying tobacco products. Tobacco companies are narrowing the gap between cigars and cigarettes. A high degree of subjectivity is required in the tests.

Standard Deduction Rises; Short Form 1040A Returns

By RAY DE CRANE
(Second in a Series.)

The biggest refund program in recent years is expected this year by Internal Revenue Service.

Estimates vary, but as much as $15 billion may be paid out to taxpayers this year in the form of refund checks.

The massive outflow of dollars results from two circumstances:

1. Congress greatly liberalized many provisions of the tax law in 1972. Many of the changes will serve to reduce the amount of tax owed.
2. The withholding tax tables in many instances called for more tax to be

New Rules Take Effect For GI Correspondence

New rules designed to provide better protection for veterans and dependents taking correspondence courses under the GI Bill became effective on Jan. 1, 1973, Jack Coker, Veterans Administration Regional Office Director, pointed out.

The 301,000 veterans already enrolled in correspondence courses will not be affected, he reported.

The new legislation protects veterans from costly payments should they terminate a course before completing half of the lessons.

Another change that became effective the first of the year will give the veteran or eligible dependent a "cooling off" period of ten days from the time he signs an application for a correspondence course.

After the ten days, he must affirm in writing to VA that he is going to take the course. Should he decide not to pursue the course before completing the affirmative notice the veteran, or dependent, must notify the school which, under the new law, must make a prompt refund of the total amount paid in advance.

By the same token, the institution would be entitled to the return of any material already provided.

Also, under the new legislation, the correspondence school must furnish a fully completed copy of the enrollment agreement. This must incorporate a full disclosure of the obligations, a

Social Security Q And A

By HOWARD L. WEATHERLY

Q. I'm a student getting monthly social security payments. During the summers and holiday seasons, I work part time in a department store. I heard that the recent changes in social security increased the amount I can earn and still get all my monthly checks. Can you tell me how much I can now earn?

A. Yes, you can earn as much as $2,100 next year and still get your full social security payments for the year. If you earn more than $2,000, $1 in benefits will be withheld for every $2 you earn above $2,100.

Regardless of your total annual earnings, you can get your full payments for any months in which you neither earn more than $175 nor perform substantial services in self-employment.

Q. I'm retired. I read that starting January, 1973, I can earn $2,100 a year and still get my full social security payments. Is there any chance that this amount will be increased in the future?

A. Yes. Recent changes in the social security law provide that, as future earnings levels rise, the amount people can earn and still get social security benefits will also rise. The first automatic increase in the social security retirement test cannot, however, occur until 1975.

(Have you a question about social security? Address it to Howard L. Weatherly, Branch Manager, Social Security Administration, 1541 North Hobart, Pampa, Texas 79065. You will receive an answer in this column or by mail.)

Local Students Candidates For School Degrees

Three Pampa students have been named as candidates for degrees from the University of Texas at Austin.

Juanita Lynn Paden, 2017 Mary Ellen, is a candidate for a bachelor's degree from the College of Natural Sciences at the end of the fall semester.

Mary Margaret Bearden, 2300 Aspen, is a candidate for a Bachelor of Arts degree from the College of Humanities.

Cynthia Sue Scott is also a candidate for the same degree.

withheld from earnings that was actually required. This "over withholding" will now be returned in the form of refunds.

Here are among the many changes adopted into law by the last session of Congress:

STANDARD DEDUCTION has been increased to 15 per cent of adjusted gross income up to a limit of $2,000 ($1,000 on the separate return of a married person).

PERSONAL EXEMPTIONS and the credit for dependents have been hiked to a new high of $750.

FEDERAL REVENUE SHARING, a new concept which will send more of your federal tax dollars back to your home community, calls for the completion of a special section in this year's return. Failure to complete the revenue sharing portion of your return could subject you to a $5 fine.

SHORT FORM 1040A is back. With no income ceiling on the use of the form, as long as the filer's income is all from wages, salary, tips and not more than $200 in dividends and interest, Internal Revenue estimated as many as $2 million may be eligible to use this form. It cannot be used by anyone intending to itemize deductions.

POLITICAL CONTRIBUTIONS up to a limit of $50 ($100 on a joint return) may be claimed as a deduction. Those who do not itemize their deductions, or those in a higher tax bracket, may elect to claim as a direct credit against their tax one-half of their political contribution, up to a limit of $12.50 ($25 on a joint return).

CHILD CARE deductions offer a tremendous tax-savings opportunity with a deduction of up to $400 a month in certain cases.

BRAND NEW this year is the opportunity to earmark $1 of your taxes ($2 on a joint return) into a 1976 Presidential Election Campaign Fund. You can either designate the party of your choice or the money can go into a general fund to be apportioned on a non-partisan basis.

ANOTHER INNOVATION is the requirement that anyone who will be listed as a dependent on his parents' return must file his own return, following a special procedure, if he has total income of at least $750 and it includes any interest, dividends or other form of unearned income.

This last change means that several million high school and college students, and many other under-19 dependents, will be required to file tax returns for the first time. They will not be able to use the tax tables, which automatically grant a $1,300 low income allowance, but must compute their tax in a special way.

Phillies Get First Pick In Baseball Winter Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Philadelphia's tailend Phillies had the first choice today in baseball's annual winter draft of free agent prospects with a couple of infielders, Alan Bannister of Arizona State and Michigan State's Brad Van Pelt, an All-American football player, expected to be among the first players chosen.

The 24 major league teams were linked to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's midtown offices via conference telephone hook-up for the winter draft which has produced some first-rate talent in past years.

The Phillies earned first choice in the regular phase by the slim margin of a single percentage point. That's how far Philadelphia finished behind San Diego in the composite National League standings. The draft's regular phase order of selection is determined by inverse order of the previous season's standings with the leagues alternating on the first choice.

Philadelphia also owned the opening choice in that phase of the draft, a privilege determined by drawing. The Texas Rangers chose second in both phases.

Bannister and Van Pelt are both former No. 1 selections of the California Angels. Both rejected large bonus offers to continue playing collegiate ball. Now Bannister has left Arizona State and Van Pelt is a senior at Michigan State and both are expected to be ready for the move to professional ball. Both were likely to be gone, however, by the time the Angels, No. 8 in the draft roll call, had their chance to choose.

The winter draft, always considerably smaller than its summer counterpart, has produced a host of familiar big league names in the seven years it has been in operation. Included among them are Tom Seaver, Carlton Fisk, Ken Singleton, Dave LaRoche, Garry Maddox, Chris Speier, Chris Chambliss, Ross Grimsley and Bert Blyleven.

Between 200 and 300 players were expected to be chosen by the major league teams and their minor league affiliates. If a player does not sign with the team drafting him in a specified period of time, he becomes a free agent again, returning to the pool of draft eligibles. That's what happened to California with Bannister and Van Pelt.

Frank Connor Leads PGM Golf Tournament

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — In weather better suited for polar bears rather than pro golfers, former tennis star Frank Connor struggled to a one-stroke victory Tuesday in the ninth weekly $30,000 Professional Golf Management tourney.

Connor shot a 74 over the 614-71 Pecan Valley Golf Club while the mercury hovered most of the day in sub-freezing upper-20s readings. The 74 paired with Connor's opening day 67 for a 141 total.

Connor, who was a tennis All-America at Trinity University here, picked up a first-price check of $5,000 from PGM officials.

Another local linksman, Jim Barker, closed with a 72 for an even-par 142 for 36 holes, bringing in $3,300 in second place money.

A Houston golfer who started the day two strokes behind Connor, Richard Killian, skied to an 84 for a 153, tying six others for 29th place and winning $200. A Pecan Valley spokesman said Killian complained his hands

Jefferson And Fleming Opposed In Super Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As a youngster, Roy Jefferson used to tag along after his older cousin.

Now he hopes that cousin's football team gets whipped in the Super Bowl on Sunday.

Nothing personal because they're still friendly like first cousins should be, but Jefferson plays wide receiver for the Washington Redskins and Marv Fleming is the tight end for the Miami Dolphins.

They won't meet head-on, but they'll still be on opposite sides of the Super Bowl field at Memorial Coliseum.

"He was more like a brother to me than a cousin," says Jefferson. "When I was in junior high, he got me into his high school games."

The two played together at nearby Compton High School and the University of Utah when Roy was a sophomore there and Marv a senior.

Both are now veteran pros and both have played on winning Super Bowl teams—Fleming with the Green Bay Packers and Jefferson with the Baltimore Colts of 1970. Roy is married with children and Marv a bachelor.

Roy lives in Virginia and Marv in Southern California.

They get together whenever possible and talk anything but football. Latest meeting was

Monday night of this Super Bowl week.

"I was visiting my mother and Marv called. When she told him I was here, he said, 'Don't let him leave, I'll be there.'"

"Out he came and we talked. I said my leg hurt and he said, 'Where?' And he said his back hurt and I said 'Where?'"

Jefferson, 29, alluded to the hostility of rivals who seek out each other's weaknesses, but admitted he only was kidding.

Fleming, 31, spent seven years with Green Bay, including some of the late Vince Lombardi's big years, before going to Miami after playing out an option. Jefferson played for Pittsburgh five years before going to Baltimore and then to Washington.

As for the Super Bowl, Fleming said, "I told Roy that it was our turn to win and then they could have their turn."

Miami lost to Dallas in the title game a year ago and is set back for a second shot while Jefferson's Washington makes its first appearance.

Bart Starr Retires As Green Bay Coach

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, who quarterbacked the Green Bay Packers to unparalleled National Football League success in 16 brilliant playing seasons, is passing up at least one attractive coaching offer in favor of a budding business career.

Starr, who retired as a player last July but stayed on as coach of Green Bay's young quarterbacks and was credited with a major role in the club's resurgence, announced his decision to leave the game at a news conference Tuesday, his 39th birthday.

"It's just that I have a desire to do other things," said Starr, who has an automobile dealership with two outlets in Birmingham, Ala., and a motel in Auburn, Ala.

"It was a tough decision and I know I'm going to miss football," he said. "But I'm very excited about our business ventures. I'm excited with the challenge of doing something else."

Starr admitted receiving several coaching offers and said one, from an unnamed NFL club, was "particularly exciting."

"It would have given me a chance to associate with one of the truly great organizations in this league and to work with a sensational owner," he said.

"I did not turn this offer down," he said. "I simply decided to pursue a career in the business world rather than football."

Basketball Roundup

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The plight of the Philadelphia 76ers, according to Chet Walker, is just more proof that nice guys finish last.

Walker, an ex-76er who now plies his trade in Chicago, pumped in 20 points in the Bulls' 126-110 rout of hapless Philadelphia Tuesday night, becoming the 18th player in National Basketball Association history to score 15,000 points.

"After I got the basket to pass the 15,000-point mark," Walker said, "I looked over sadly at the press table and saw Philadelphia owner Irv Kosloff. I guess he tried to smile."

"He's just too nice a guy. He tries to be so fair with everybody, but he probably has a tendency to be influenced by persons not equipped to make the right decisions. Philadelphia is in a sad way, and no matter what Mr. Kosloff tries, it doesn't succeed."

The loss gave the 76ers a horrid 4-39 record and left them 30 games behind Atlantic Division-leading Boston. The Bulls, meanwhile, pulled within two games of pace-setting Milwaukee in the Midwest Division.

Eisewhere, the New York Knicks nipped the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 116-115 in overtime, the Baltimore Bullets defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 106-93, the Atlanta Hawks downed the Houston Rockets 120-115, the Golden State Warriors whipped the Detroit Pistons 105-98 and the Buffalo Braves beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-102.

Chicago's Garfield Heard and Philly's Fred Carter shared scoring honors with 27 points. Bob Love matched Walker's 20 for the Bulls, including 16 in the third period when they broke it open.

New York's Dave DeBusschere, named as an All-Star Game starter for the first time earlier in the day, celebrated by hitting a layup with 10 seconds left in overtime to nudge the Knicks past the Kings despite a career high 52 points by KC-Omaha's Nate Archibald, the NBA's scoring leader.

Elvin Hayes scored 23 points and grabbed 22 rebounds to lead Baltimore past Portland, enabling the Bullets to remain 1½ games in front of Atlanta in the Central Division.

A three-point play by Jim Washington with 2:36 remaining helped Atlanta hold off Houston. That gave the Hawks a seven-point add after the teams had battled through 18 ties with neither side leading by more than five.

Golden State's Rick Barry, flattened by a punch from Detroit's Fred Foster in the first quarter, recovered to score 28 points and pull down 17 rebounds to lead the Warriors past the Pistons.

In the opening minutes, Barry jostled Foster with an elbow under the basket and Foster decked the Warrior star with a roundhouse right. After several minutes, Barry recovered and Foster was ejected, causing Detroit Coach Ray Scott to play the game under protest.

Buffalo's front line of Elmore Smith, Bob McAdoo and Bob Kauffman combined for 64 points and outscored the entire Cleveland team 45-43 in the Braves' victory over the Cavaliers.

Kentucky Colonel guard Louie Dampier has said that Dan Issel has a great touch and that his strength is his offense.

Issel proved that Tuesday night with an awesome display of shooting and rebounding to lead the Colonels to a 113-106 victory over the Virginia Squires in an American Basketball Association game.

Issel, hitting consistently with his medium-range jump shot and muscling his 240-pound frame under the boards, scored 44 points and grabbed 18 rebounds. His efforts helped Kentucky break open a tight game in the fourth quarter.

In other ABA games, Carolina thumped the New York Nets 110-97, Utah rallied to beat Memphis 115-111 and San Diego defeated Denver 113-109.

Coach Joe Mullaney said of Issel's performance, "Dan did a fine job, but it really wasn't because we overemphasized him."

Issel and Virginia high scorer Julius Erving traded baskets throughout the game until Issel took control late in the third quarter.

Erving finished with 34 points, four above his league-leading average, and 17 rebounds.

Steve Jones poured in 30 points to lead the Carolina Cougars to a 110-97 trouncing of the New York Nets. Carolina's victory, its 11th straight, is the league's longest winning streak this season.

The Utah Stars, with their regular guards out of the starting line-up, scored 14 straight points in the final quarter to come from behind and defeat Memphis.

Two free throws by Larry Miller with 11 seconds left and two more by Simmie Hill at the buzzer helped the San Diego Conquistadors turn back the Denver Rockets. Charlie Williams and Gene Moore had 21 and 20 points, respectively, for the Qs, who had dropped 21 of their previous 25 starts.

Besides catching in 49 games for Oakland last season, Geno Tenace also played seven league games at first base, two at second base, two at third base and nine in the outfield.

Freshman linebacker Terry Beattie played two football games the same day. He played on the North Carolina kickoff game against Virginia and that night played linebacker for the freshmen against Duke.

West Texas Schedules Pampa Day

Saturday will be Pampa Day at West Texas State University as the Buffaloes take on the Drake Bulldogs in the Missouri Valley Conference opener for each team.

Tickets are available at the First National Bank and at Citizens Bank and Trust Co. at $1 each for adults. These tickets are for reserve seats and cost $2.50 at the door.

Student tickets, also for reserve seats, are available at Pampa High School for 50 cents apiece. Only 300 total tickets are available at these locations.

The Pampa High School Stage Band will play at halftime of the game.

Punch Will Be Levelled

CHICAGO (AP) — The governing council of the National Collegiate Athletic Association today was expected to level a punitive punch at Southwestern Louisiana, a court-sheltered member accused of violating NCAA basketball recruiting codes.

The nationally ranked school last week obtained a federal court order in Louisiana to halt a scheduled NCAA hearing on the case here Tuesday. The NCAA is holding its 67th annual convention.

The temporary restraining order set a Jan. 15 date for a court hearing to determine whether the southern school should be allowed additional time to prepare a defense for any hearing before the NCAA.

The NCAA council was said to have deliberated Tuesday on as many as four infraction cases, but only Southwestern Louisiana was identified as one.

The council customarily meets four times a year to act each time on no more than four violation cases submitted by the NCAA's infraction committee.

Kenon Named

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "I haven't reached my peak yet," said Larry Kenon of Memphis State University's basketball squad, who last week dunked 50 points and pulled down 33 rebounds against Drake and Bradley on the road.

For his performance, the 6-foot-9 inch junior college transfer was named Missouri Valley Conference player of the week.

Kenon, a junior from Birmingham, Ala., suffered a groin injury in the first season game and has only in the past week regained what Coach Gene Bartow calls his top form.

In spite of the slow start, he is also one of the nation's leading rebounders in college basketball. "I feel like anyone else does about success. It feels pretty nice," he said of his accomplishments.

Kenon, who joined the Tigers after two years at Amarillo Junior College in Texas, was a newcomer to a team that tied for MVC title honors with a 31-7 record.

Pro Bowl Sales Slow

DALLAS (AP) — Only some 30,000 seats have been sold for the Pro Bowl Jan. 21 in Texas Stadium pitting members of the National Football Conference and American Football Conference All-Stars.

Texas Stadium seats 65,000 fans.

All-stars will report for practice Saturday except, of course, the Super Bowl participants in Los Angeles.

Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll, who will guide the AFC team, is due in Dallas Friday night.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry is the mentor for the NFC squad.

There has been only one roster change. Wide receiver Chip Myers of Cincinnati will replace Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff, who is recovering from rib injuries.

Jack Nicklaus Sees Big-Time Global Golf

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus sees big-time tournament golf going global with the United States providing only a segment of a rich tour that will lap over to other continents.

"Personally, I would like to see golf played on a seasonal basis in this country with more competition in foreign lands," the game's top player told Pacific Coast golf writers Monday night after they had honored him as the No. 1 player of last year.

"I don't know what that season is but I am in favor of fewer and more select tournaments. That way, we would be able to provide a more representative field for most of the sponsors."

Nicklaus, who won more than $320,000 on the U.S. tour last year while playing in about half of its 40-odd tournaments, said he wouldn't be surprised to see the Mexican Open and rich tournaments in Japan and Great Britain added to the tournament program in future years.

"I support the American tour but I think we should also support tournaments in other countries," the blond bomber from West Palm Beach, Fla., said in an interview. "After all, the American tour was not built by Americans alone but no one can say that fellows such as Roberto DeVicenzo, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin haven't made tremendous contributions to our tour. We owe them something."

Nicklaus was presented a silver crown proclaiming him the "King of Golf." He spent the day playing with writers over the La Costa course, annual scene of the MONY Tournament of Champions.

Nicklaus said, as in the past, he planned to play only about half of the 44 tournament tour schedule with its purse of more than $8 million.

"I don't like to go home and hear my wife and family say, 'Who is that fellow?' I fix major goals, try to prepare myself properly but want to be fresh at the end of the year so that my family can tolerate me. We like football and other things."

Nicklaus said he had been invited to play in a $100,000 tournament in Sweden after the British Open last year and he understood that Japan was planning a half-million dollar tournament similar to the one which has been announced by the PGA for Pinehurst, N.C., in November.

Jack said that he was not aiming at the so-called grand slam collectively—that is, winning the U.S. and British opens, the Masters and PGA in a single year—but plans to take them one at a time.

"I always concentrate on the majors," said the man who started the 1972 season by winning the Masters and U.S. Open, "but I do not feel that I can say I'm going for the grand slam until I have won the first three and am coming up to the fourth."

When it came to double plays by second basemen in the American League last season Horace Clark of the New York Yankees was the leader. He took part in 104. Sandy Alomar of the California Angels was second with 92.

the emphasis comes slightly.

Powder skin, requires that weight be distributed more evenly on both skis, that the skier lean back slightly to bring the ski tips to the surface, and that turns be made close to the fall line. These are the three basic things to remember.

Even distribution of weight improves balance, thereby giving the skier a more steady platform from which to turn. Moreover, it enables the skier to comfortably raise the tips. Softer skis, of course, makes this easier to do, but until you have advanced to the point where you want to purchase special powder skis, you'll find that sitting back slightly has the same effect.

The aspect of powder skiing that inhibits most newcomers is skiing the fall line. Generally they fear too much speed. But too much speed is not a real problem in the powder—the snow itself acts as a brake against forward motion.

And many times you'll probably find yourself trying for more speed because it makes it easier to initiate a turn. If you work on making a small radius turn in the fall line, mastery of skiing the powder should come quickly and more easily. Certainly you'll fall, but falling in powder is almost fun.

And once you have completed five consecutive, good turns, you'll be hooked forever.

Ex WT Mentor "Cactus" Jack Curtice Retires From Coaching

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — "Cactus" Jack Curtice, the well-liked veteran football coach with the sharp wit, has decided to retire after 44 years in athletics.

The 61-year-old Curtice, aiming for some time with a heart condition, has been athletic director at the University of California at Santa Barbara here since 1966.

Curtice, who turned out such fine quarterbacks as Lee Grosscup at Utah and Dick Norman at Stanford, started his football coaching career in 1938 as an assistant at West Texas State. He took over as head coach there in 1940 and subsequently was head man at Texas Western, Utah and Stanford before taking over as head coach at UC-Santa Barbara in 1963. While still at Stanford in 1961, he was voted president of the American Football Coaches Association.

Curtice was an offensive wizard and many of his teams finished among the leaders in the nation in offense.

His 1965 UCSB team went 8-1, the second best record in the school's history. The mark earned his team a berth in the Camellia Bowl, where the Gauchos lost to Los Angeles State 18-10 on a rain-soaked field. He was named NCAA college division coach of the year that season.

Curtice said he will remain active, coaching football clinics during the summer.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY
 Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

It is tragic enough that some of America's erstwhile allies and friends have compared the now-suspended bombing campaign against Hanoi and Haiphong with the Nazi's destruction of Rotterdam and Coventry in World War II, writes Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

But that confidence in the President - indeed, America's very image of herself - has been severely shaken by the events he set in motion in December.

Question Box

QUESTION: I see that professional football is taking quite a bit of criticism because it refused to lift the local television blackout on playoff games which were not sellouts.

ANSWER: The difficulty is that professional football, basketball and baseball are no longer private enterprise, although they claim to be.

So the football leagues, having succumbed to the lure of government protection, now find they are in dutch with their protectors.

Many, probably most, of the professional sports franchise holders also are further removed from the field of private enterprise by the fact that they are playing in stadiums provided at taxpayer expense.

Government is a dangerous servant and a feckless master.

Historical Aspect Of Managua Quake

By DON OAKLEY

At least through recorded history, mankind has lived with the knowledge that the usually solid earth could suddenly slip and split and shake, tumbling his puny works down upon his head.

Ancient writings, especially those from the geologically restless Mediterranean basin, are studded with references to earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and other cataclysms, many of a massive scale that allegedly engulfed whole civilizations.

The destruction visited upon the modern city of Managua, Nicaragua, on Dec. 22 made it easy to believe that ancient men, convinced that the angry gods were behind such catastrophes, and with only rudimentary communication with other centers of civilization, could be profoundly impressed by these unpredictable and violent spasms of nature - that whole civilizations could, indeed, fall.

Dear Reader - A boil, or abscess, often starts with a break in the skin around the base of a hair follicle. It is an infection with the same bacteria that are normally present over the surface of the skin, but usually are unable to break the superficial skin barrier and set up the infection.

As soon as the defense mechanism is effective, it will literally wall off the pocket of infection, and then as the infected tissue undergoes necrosis, pus is formed.

TURNING TO EUROPE Many observers of the international scene believe that Republic USA will be turning more of its attention toward Europe this year and away from Asia.

There is no question that Russia is our most formidable enemy. However, a vast increase in ground forces on the continent of Europe may not be the big deterrent that is needed.

While a certain commitment of troops will probably be necessary for some time to come, an outpouring of funds to those countries in the form of foreign aid will only serve to cripple us further.

Paddling Permitted

HOUSTON (AP) — Teachers in the Houston Independent School District can continue to paddle pupils as a punishment of last resort.

The corporal punishment policy adopted by the district Monday night was a compromise between what most board members wanted and what teachers sought.

While trustees generally favored abolishing corporal punishment, the Houston Teachers Association, and some administrators argued that paddling is often the only solution to misbehavior.

However, parents still may write a letter forbidding teachers or administrators to paddle their children.

When Supt. George Garver was asked what would be done if a parent forbids paddling and no other punishment seemed appropriate, he said the teacher would have to contact the parent. However, he did not elaborate.

Water Standards Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration is recommending that bottled drinking water be covered by the same quality standards that apply to public drinking water supplies.

The agency noted that bottled water is increasingly being used as a source of drinking water, partly because of consumer reluctance and partly because of concern over reports of pollution of some public water supplies.

It said, however, that a 1971 survey of 85 bottled water samples disclosed that eight contained coliform bacteria from human waste.

If the FDA recommendations are finally adopted, the criteria that covers bacteriological, physical, chemical and radiological limits of public water supplies will also apply to bottled water.

Bottled water has not previously been subject to federal quality standards.

Need Exists To Return To Stock Fundamentals

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Every so often a fad develops in the stock market and is acclaimed as the new way to wealth. Its promoters scorn old techniques and speak condescendingly about the old fools who adhere to them.

The fad of the 1960s, as most investors recall, was performance. If a stock didn't pay off immediately you got rid of it.

The fad worked wonders for its promoters, many of them mutual fund managers, some of whom became rich and celebrated. They developed theories to explain their brilliance and managed to steal time from money-making to impart their wisdom to graduate business school classes.

As with any fad, this one expired as the more serious students of the market caught up with it. It was found that while performance-minded brokers and managers earned yachts for themselves, their customers were left up the creek in a canoe.

By the late 1960s the performance theory was riddled. Several studies showed that some funds would have done much better by just sitting on their stocks instead of selling and buying time after time. And then the market collapsed, taking with it what was left of performance.

While the personality of the current and future market cannot be easily characterized, as was the market of the 1960s, a good case can be made for a return to fundamentals — a clear reaction to the earlier excesses.

Evidence of this may be sparse but it is there in the big bank accounts and insurance policies that ordinary people own in preference to stocks. And when these people return to the market, it's a good bet they'll remain cautious.

Adding documentary evidence to the conservative argument are statistics just compiled by Wright Investors' Service showing that blue-chip stocks have grown in value during every decade this century, including the '30s.

If you bought the stocks that make up the Dow Jones industrial average, the study shows, you would have a price gain of 1875.25 per cent and a dividend gain of 1645.94 per cent, or an average annual growth of 9.4 per cent for the past 72 years.

Even in the late and uplanted 1930s the average showed an investment growth of 2.9 per cent a year. Prices fell by 20.32 per cent, but this was offset by dividend gains of 40.22 per cent for the 10 years.

In ancient Greece, headaches were treated by drawing blood from the sufferer's head.

Scientists Study Pineal, Alcoholism Connection

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Four San Antonio scientists, using research rats as the tippers, are exploring a possible relationship between alcoholism and a tiny object in the brain, the pineal gland.

The gland, which controls many metabolic processes, only recently is coming to be understood.

The four researchers believe the gland is playing a modulating role in the preference for alcohol among the research animals.

"We know that pineal activity varies greatly in humans," says Dr. Kenneth Blum. "It is possible that alcoholics may have highly active pineals."

pharmacology at the University of Texas at San Antonio, is working on the project with two other staff members, Dr. Russell Reiter and Dr. Jack Wallace, and an Air Force neurochemist, James Merritt.

The pineal, says Dr. Reiter, is believed to be the only organ in addition to the eyes that describes external light conditions to the body. The gland is connected to the eyes by a series of fibers which transmit information that light has entered the eyes.

According to Dr. Reiter, the gland's activity is inhibited by light and stimulated by darkness.

In the four men's research, rats were offered a choice of water or a 10-proof alcohol "cocktail," which the researchers say is the amount of alcohol the rats seem to prefer.

First, the animals were exposed to equal periods of light and dark and they drank more water than alcohol.

Then, half of the rats had their pineal glands removed and half were left with the glands. The animals were put in near-total darkness and subsequently given a choice of alcohol or water.

The researchers report the rats with pineal glands intact drank significantly more alcohol than water while the rats without the little gland drank significantly less.

When the animals were returned to equal periods of light and dark, they did not revert to the earlier preference for water and had apparently become alcoholic, researchers report. But Blum says more experimentation is needed to determine if the preference for alcohol is a true dependence.

Other supporting experiments revealed that rats blind from birth showed a marked preference for alcohol at all times, and hamsters, which normally have a preference for alcohol regardless of light or dark, drank less alcohol when the pineal was removed.

When rats blinded from birth had their pineals removed, their preference for alcohol and water remained about equal for 18 days, then rose somewhat in favor of alcohol, but alcohol consumption never reached earlier levels.

"Something other than the pineal apparently takes over," says Dr. Blum.

When the hamsters with intact pineals were blinded, they showed a greater preference for alcohol.

The problem now is to find which substances produced by the pineal gland regulate such preference and then to find inhibitors for the substances, say the researchers. They say they do not advocate removal of the gland because it is important to other body processes.

WORRY CLINIC

Edna must realize that it isn't a diet chart but her "100 percent vow" that will top off her ugly blubber! Then she'll be far more alluring as "cheesequake" in the hoodlum. While it is cool weather, use my drugless dehydration diet plan!

CASE V-585: Edna P., aged 33, is horrified by her mirror! "Dr. Crane," she protested, "I look like that 'waddling walrus' description you often use for obese wives."

"And I hate myself for being so sloppy fat!"

"Why, when I was first married, I weighed only 130."

"But look at me now - 42 pounds later on!"

"At 162, I resemble a hippo or the GOP elephant."

"Some of my friends are urging me to join a new dieting club but they gave me 3 whole pages of typed menus."

"That's too discouraging, for I'd waste my entire morning trying to figure out my day's calories."

"Isn't there some simpler way to take off ugly blubber?"

"For my husband now gives me only dutiful little pecks on my cheek, instead of thriller-diller movie kisses!"

SIMPLIFIED DIETING

Most of the highly publicized modern diets will top off fat, IF. And that big "IF" means, if you follow them rigidly!

Personally, I prefer my simplified-dehydration plan for losing weight, for it doesn't waste your time trying to concoct special menus.

Instead, you merely use your simple arithmetic.

Women dieters thus limit themselves to a total of 800 calories per day; men, to 1,200.

And you need not feel empty or starved, either, for you can pick out "filling" food with low calories!

For example, an average banana counts approximately 100 calories. So does a small hot dog.

And a hard boiled egg is 75 calories.

A full cup (8 ounces) of cottage cheese rates 200 calories, but will fill the stomach quite well, even for a man!

In my case, I'd fill a cup with cottage cheese; then eat half of it.

Next, I'd add a teaspoonful of honey or strawberry jam to the rest of the cottage cheese and call it dessert.

Such a spoonful of honey, sugar or jam counts merely an extra 25 calories.

But the main value of this dehydration diet is the fact you limit your fluid input to but one full glass of total liquids the first day; then 2 glasses the 2nd, and 3 glasses through the 10th day.

You'll then be down at least 10 pounds in the first 10 days.

And that's the tonic needed by all dieters, for unless you can show a quick weight loss, you give up easily.

After the 10th day, you women are then entitled to 1,200 calories; men to 1,600 calories, with no restriction on fluid intake.

Green beans, celery, raw cabbage, lettuce, etc., are rather filling and very low in calories, so use them to supplement your boiled egg, hot dog or hamburger and cottage cheese protein input.

All dieters should consume at least 400 calories worth of protein daily to replace the worn-out muscle fibers, especially of the heart.

For there is no storage of protein, though our bodies all contain plenty of fat and sugar!

Besides, protein loses 15 percent of its calories during digestion!

It's the only food that does so! Send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and slenderness.
