Coast Guard Seizes Two Soviet Vessels

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A Soviet fishing ship seized by the U.S. Coast Guard broke away early today with a boarding party of Americans aboard. A Coast Guard craft was authorized to fire across the Russian vessel's bow, but got it back into custody with no shots fired in a four-hour chase through the ice-choked Bering Sea.

The Lamut, flagship of an 80-ship Soviet fishing fleet, was being led to the naval station at Adak in the Aleutians on charges of fishing in U.S. waters when it tried to escape from the Storis, an armed Coast Guard icebreaker.

The Soviet stern trawler Kolyvan had been seized at the same time as the Lamut, a factory ship, but did attempt to break away. Coast Guard authorities said.

The Coast Guard said it seized the ships Monday night for alleged violation of the U.S. 12-mile contiguous fishing zone near St. Matthew Island, about 200 miles west of the Alaskan mainland. The two vessels were boarded by the Coast Guard about 9 1/2 miles off the island coast while moored together for unloading.

As they began their 600-mile trip to Adak, spokesman said, both Soviet vessels suddenly stopped and advised the Storis they would not proceed further.

On further orders, both Russian ships again began heading toward Adak when the Lamut, carrying fleet commander Vladimir Artemov, suddenly split away.

Coast Guard headquarters in Washington, D.C., authorized the Storis to fire a warning shot across the bow of the Lamut.

It was not known why the Lamut returned to custody.

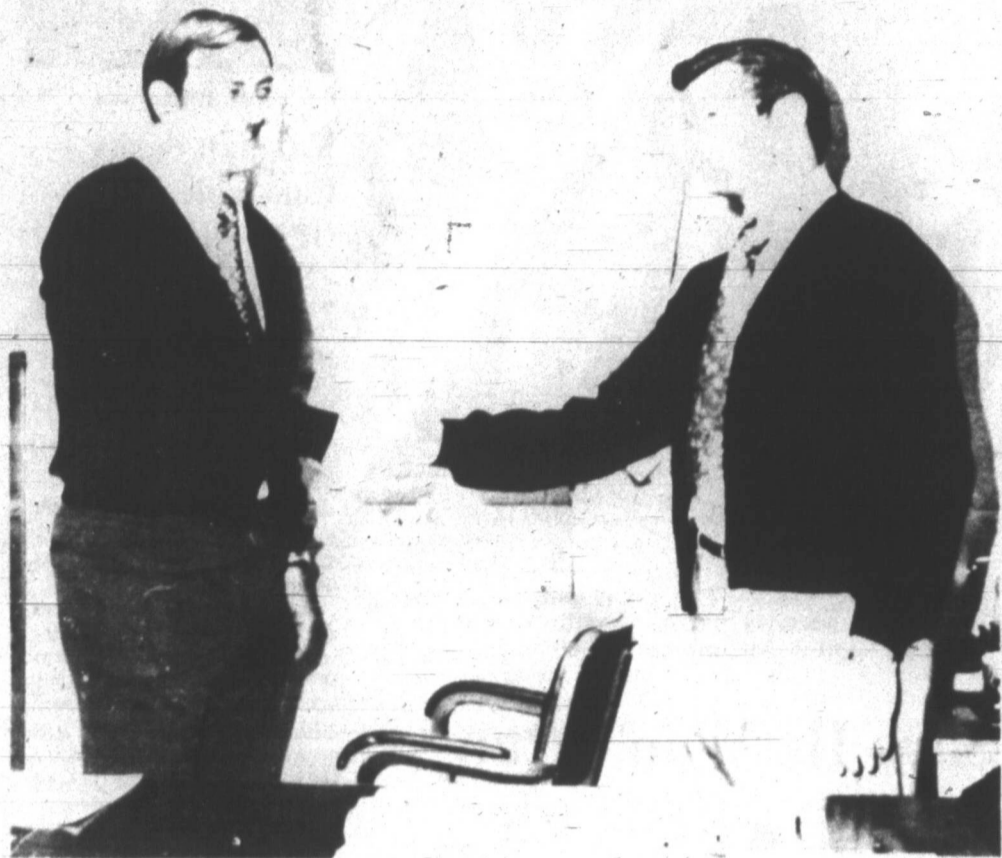

The cutter Balsam, stationed at Adak, was dispatched to aid the 230-foot Storis, the smallest of the three vessels. Spokesman said a C-130 aircraft would be dispatched to the scene at daybreak.

The 362-foot Lamut and the 278-foot Kolyvan, a trawler, were part of an 80-ship fleet generally known to be in the Bering Sea area.

Spokesmen said the seizure took place in an ice cake one-foot thick with both Soviet ships moored together with ice anchors.

No word was received immediately on any harm to the boarding crews on either ship. Additional Coast Guardsmen were placed on both ships following the chase.

Buddy Williams Gets Pampa Harvester Head Coach Post

By STEVE BOHLANDER
News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvester Football team will be guided by a 1965 Texas A&M graduate, Buddy Williams, it was announced this forenoon by Athletic Director Ed Lehnick.

Lehnick said Williams was selected as head football coach for Pampa High School by the Pampa Independent School Board in an executive meeting last night.

Williams was picked after the board had reviewed applications from 20 or 30 coaches interested in the vacant position and he has his highest regard as being capable of guiding the Pampa Harvesters to another championship year, Lehnick said.

Williams was recommended by myself and Superintendent of Schools, Dr. James F. Malone, Lehnick continued.

When asked about the new head football coach, Superintendent Malone stated:

"I am very pleased to recommend Buddy Williams without any reservation. After considering 25 applications I feel Williams measured up to any of them. I am committed to the present program and believe this appointment will insure the continued success of athletics here."

The members of the Pampa School Board's opinions about the new coach were pretty well summed up in board member Warren Hasse's statement:

"We're just happy that he is our new coach and we are sure he will do a fine job. He is well qualified, knows the athletes and has been with our program from its depths to last season's high point. We feel he has been an important part of its growth. I think it is obvious that he has the full support of the school board."

Williams has been a staff member of the Harvester football team for four years, where he served as the linebacker coach for the defense. He also served as head baseball coach and will continue his teaching duties at Pampa High School.

"I am very pleased and I'd like to thank the school board and the administration for their vote of confidence in the football staff, Williams said, "and I'd like to thank the city and people of Pampa for their past and future support to the athletic program as we strive to be better in all aspects."

Williams' contract was agreed upon this forenoon and will run for the next two years, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1972.

Williams, a native of Callisburg, Texas, where he participated in all high school sports, attended Texas A&M on a football scholarship. He played for the Aggies three years and served as an assistant coach for the freshman team two years.

Williams has had two years of head coaching duties at Linden Kildare at Linden, Tex. His new head mentor is 29 years old and lives with his wife, Linda, and two children at 2129 N. Banks.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church and an active member of the Optimist Club.

Second Smoking Withdrawal Clinic Set Jan. 24-28

A second smoking withdrawal clinic has been set for Pampa during the week of Jan. 24 through Jan. 28, at 7:30 p.m. each night, to help smokers concerned with the health consequences of smoking to withdraw from cigarettes.

Coordinated by the Top of Texas TB and Respiratory Disease Association, the program series is being presented by the Seventh Day Adventist Texico Conference at the church's location, 525 N. Ward Street. Speakers will include both medical and non-medical specialists on the effects of smoking and methods of withdrawing from cigarettes, involving diet, the breaking of behavior patterns associated with smoking, and knowledge of the physiological effects of nicotine and tobacco tars upon the lungs, the heart, blood vessels and other vital organs.

"More and more people are aware they should quit smoking in order to avoid illness and premature death," said Mrs. Lillian Jordan, president of the Christmas Seal organization. "The sole purpose of this series is to aid them in breaking a deadly behavior habit that for many of them extends over a period of years. They need help in kicking the habit, and we hope they will take advantage of this opportunity to improve health and lengthen life."

Total charge for the entire week's program will be $5 per person in order to defray expenses. The fee not only entitles participants to attend the complete series, but covers costs of 5-Day Withdrawal Instruction Manuals which the person follows on a daily withdrawal plan.

The clinic is open to smokers of all ages and residents of surrounding communities are welcome, Mrs. Jordan said.

Common Market Britain Reach Accord Today

BRUSSELS (AP)—After 19 months of negotiations, Britain and the European Common Market reached agreement early today on all the terms of Britain's entry into the customs union. The 70-page text also sets the pattern for admission of Denmark, Ireland and Norway.

Prime Minister Edward Heath will sign the treaty Saturday, and Britain will become a member of the European Economic Community next Jan. 1.

The last points were settled at a nine-hour meeting between Sir Con O'Neill of Britain and representatives of France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, Belgium and the Netherlands.

JUDGE TELLS IT LIKE IT IS

Gray County Financial Plight Outlined For Taxpayers Group

By TEX DE WEESE

Recent bond issues for airport and hospital improvements plus a demand for public services and increased county expenses via the state and federal routes are in a large measure responsible for Gray County's financial difficulties.

That's what County Judge Don Cain told about 50 persons who turned out at a meeting of the Gray County Taxpayers Association Monday night in the courthouse.

He cited the shift of welfare assistance from state to counties, new state laws that cause more county expense, and spending $30,000 a year for ambulance service as just a few of the demands on the county.

As for welfare, the judge said Gray County now has a $33,000 budget for that item and it could be increased three-fold to meet the needs.

"But we simply do not have the money," Cain said. "We are trying to cut where ever possible. Right now we're holding to last year's costs even though there have been additional expenses."

The county judge said there has been talk of Metro Government—combining city and county into one governmental unit.

"I think that is authorized by the state. It needs a lot of study and should be left to the voters in individual counties to decide whether they want it or not," he said.

There were questions fired at the judge about fair equalization of taxes through property valuation. And there were questions about Highland General Hospital.

Judge Cain said the hospital spent $98,000 more than it took in during 1970 but through November of 1971 Highland General was about $40,000 in the black and the McLean hospital, also county operated, was $10,000 in the black that was in face of the fact they both were "in the red" the first two months of 1971.

He also stated that Gray County is in its present poor financial situation because of the county's last two bond issues—$250,000 for Perry LeFors Airfield improvements and $850,000 for remodeling of Highland General Hospital.

In 1969, 1970 and 1971 the county paid out, he said, some $451,000 in principal and interest on those bonds.

"We still have seven more years to go before they will be paid off," Judge Cain said.

"If we had that money we wouldn't be in the position we're in," he added. "Somewhere we've got to cut down. We must not plan anything we can't afford."

The judge said that was a difficult stand to take when people keep demanding more services and at the same time complain about taxes.

Former Mayor E. C. Sidwell told Judge Cain that the taxpayers' audience that it's time for city, county and school officials to get together and place the issues—particularly in the field of property valuations and tax equalization. "You're going to have to get down to business and tackle the problems that face all three governmental units if we're going to stop the exodus of people from Gray County."

Sidwell recalled that some outside planners were hired a number of years ago to come in and work out a "super plan" for Pampa.

They predicted Pampa would have a population of 34,000 in 1970 and would continue growth up to 1980. Instead the city population fell off to only 21,000 in 1970. Sidwell pointed out:

"We need to face our issues locally," he said, "and quit looking to outsiders for help. Let's quit being paupers with a tin cup waiting for handouts from Washington."

Judge Cain told the audience the county budget still is being worked on and should be ready before too long.

"We're going to have to make some decisions on taxes in the next few months," he said.

Prior to Judge Cain's appearance before the group, an illustrated slide presentation, "Man, Freedom and Government," narrated by Ezra Taft Benson, was shown by program chairman Jack Skelly.

Richard Swearingen, association president, opened the meeting by stating the purpose of the Gray County Taxpayers group was to help educate and enlighten the public on governmental affairs. He said the association soon will begin the circulation of a monthly newsletter.

"This is very encouraging," the spokesman said. "It's the kind of thing that makes you smile." He said output was particularly strong in the manufacturing sector, moving ahead by 0.8 per cent.

For all of 1971, however, performance of the key economic indicator was less than vigorous. The board said the index was 3 per cent higher than a year ago.

In past economic recoveries, the industrial-output indicator has grown by as much as 7 or 8 per cent. The moderate growth for all of 1971 left the economy with considerable slack.

The December report indicated a possible quickening of the nation's economic pace, something the administration has watched for since the first of the year.

Washington (AP)—The Nixon administration says a solid gain in industrial production last month is an encouraging sign that the economy is beginning to turn upward.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Monday that its industrial-production index increased by 0.7 per cent in December after a 0.6-per cent advance in November. The December figure was 107.8 per cent of the 1967 base year, but 3.7 per cent below the mid-1969 peak.

A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said that since August when the President made his bold economic moves, the factory-production figure has been strong, rising at about a 7-per cent annual rate.

White House Seeks Action On Dock Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Within hours after 13,000 longshoremen resumed a dock strike at 24 West Coast ports, the White House announced it would seek congressional action to send them back to work.

"It appears that legislative action may be the only remedy to allow us to prevent another long and crippling strike," White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said in Washington Monday.

Ziegler said the administration was "examining alternative courses of action that might be recommended to Congress."

He and other administration officials did not disclose any details, and political observers said it could take weeks of congressional hearings before any bill was passed.

Picket signs appeared Monday morning at ports from Seattle to San Diego after Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, told members that last-minute bargaining talks had failed to produce a settlement before an 8 a.m. strike deadline.

More than half the shipping which normally reaches West Coast ports has been diverted to Ensenada, Mexico; Vancouver, B.C.; and to East and Gulf ports, shipping sources said.

Orr Will Remain As Head Of Demo Party Until Sept.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — State Democratic Chairman Roy Orr, a man who wears several hats, took on one more Monday, while surrendering one and announcing he would share the duties of another. The one whose duties he will share is the Democratic party chairmanship. The new one is the $27,600-a-year post he assumed as county commissioner in Dallas County. Orr, who has banking and insurance interests, will step down as mayor of suburban DeSoto in light of state law prohibiting the drawing of two salaries for government jobs. To help him handle affairs of the state Democratic Party in an election year, Orr said he had appointed Jack Gaubert, a former stockbroker and district sales manager for an automobile manufacturer, to be party executive director. Gaubert, 27, said he has spent three or four days a week at party headquarters in Austin since Orr's close victory over Agriculture Commissioner John White for the party chairmanship. Orr beat White, the hand-picked candidate of Gov. Preston Smith, 32-30. Orr said he has no plan to seek re-election as chairman when the party holds its organizing convention. At first, Dallas County Judge Lew Sterrett, the man who appointed Orr, said Orr has agreed to give up all of his other activities, his mayor's job and the state chairmanship, to devote his time to county government. But Orr said Sterrett approved the idea of his remaining as party chairmanship until after the September convention. According to Orr, Gaubert will take care of day-to-day administrative work of the party. Prior to Gov. Smith's election, the party had an executive director, but Smith and the former state chairman, Dr. Elmer Baum, mainly handled party affairs through the governor's office. The State Democratic Executive Committee recently authorized employment of an executive director. Gaubert described his position as being "completely non-political." He added, "I will be working for the Democratic party of Texas, hopefully under many chairmen." Orr was sworn in as county commissioner Monday about mid-morning, but the day was not without criticism of Judge Sterrett's latest appointee. The widow of Denver Seale, the commissioner whose job Orr now fills, charged that Orr would not have been the choice of Seale. She declared Orr would be "controlled" by Sterrett and said Seale only ran for re-election this term because "Roy Orr was eyeing the job." A candidate herself for the vacancy created by her husband's death, Mrs. Seale said, "I hope the voters of District 4 will look toward the November election and unite behind an honest man who will be a credit to the court and one who cannot be controlled by any one person."

WHAT GOES UP—And two did come down, that is. One bright day last Fall, these members of a sixth grade class released some helium-filled balloons bearing facts about Pampa and the surrounding area. After this shot was made it was held to await possible results from the soaring circulars. One came down some 12 miles northeast of Pampa and another at Kansas City, Kansas, 600 miles away. This seemed to represent the two extremes of range. The class considers the project a success. Mrs. Wendell Watson, extreme right, is the teacher. (staff photo)

SDEC's New Director Pledges To Rebuild Party Organization

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Democratic Party's new executive director says his biggest task now is to rebuild the party's disorganized organization. Party Chairman Roy Orr of DeSoto announced Monday he had chosen Jack Gaubert, also of DeSoto, to fill the long-vacant director's post. Orr's announcement came in a day of confusion over whether he intended to remain as party chairman. Orr became a Dallas County commissioner Monday morning filling a vacancy created by the death of Denver Seale. He ended the confusion by announcing he did not plan to resign, at least in the near future. Gaubert takes over a job that has not been filled since Gov. Preston Smith gained control of the party machinery in late 1968. Smith and former party chairman Elmer Baum of Austin handled party business almost entirely through the governor's office. The party's full-time staff dwindled to a secretary, helped by occasional part-timers. Baum resigned as chairman, and Orr defeated Smith's candidate, Agriculture Commissioner John White, 32-30, for the post in a State Democratic Executive Committee election in October.

Since then, says Gaubert, he has been Orr's "administrative aide" and has arranged such functions as a Dec. 6 party fund-raising dinner and last week's hearing on proposed party rules. Gaubert, 27, said he plans to "rebuild the staff and get an organization going that SDEC members and any Democrat can walk into and get help." "I walked into a kind of disorganized organization," Gaubert said in a telephone interview from Orr's office in DeSoto. "My position will be completely non-political. I will be working for the Democratic Party of Texas, hopefully under many chairmen," he said. "One detail of Gaubert's appointment has not been worked out. While the SDEC has voted in favor of hiring an executive director, it has not approved any funds for his salary. A capitol source said there may be some opposition among Smith's allies on the SDEC to paying the salary of Orr's hand-picked director. Gaubert graduated from W. W. Samuell High School in Dallas and Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches. He helped found the "21-30 Democratic Club of Dallas" and was a delegate to the 1970 state Democratic convention. He has been a stockbroker, a district sales manager for Ford Motor Co. in Los Angeles and Dallas and a regional sales manager for Carolina Mirror Corp.

Punishment On Marijuana Recommended

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A special task force on the problems of children and youth has recommended that the penalty for first offense possession of marijuana be lowered to a misdemeanor. The recommendation was made to Gov. Preston Smith in a 70-page report drawn up by the governor's steering committee for the White House Conference on Children and Youth. In transmitting the report, Walter Richter, chairman of the steering committee, stressed that "lack of staff, time and funds hampered us in our desire to set before you a finished gem of carefully researched, profoundly deliberated and eloquently articulated proposals and recommendations." The report made 264 specific recommendations in 16 categories. Smith had not comment at once on the report. The report said drug abuse problems were big topics of discussion both at the state and national levels of the White House conferences. "At the state level, the Task Force agreed that the penalty for possession of not over a determined amount of marijuana should be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor. A similar recommendation was made by the Task Force on Laws, Rights and Responsibilities. There was discussion, pro and con, regarding legalization of domestically produced marijuana with strict government controls but no vote was taken. There was clearly a lack of consensus, the report said. The Task Force asked the governor to appoint a committee of about 12 knowledgeable in drug abuse problems to consider the single question: "Should the Texas statutes dealing with simple possession of marijuana be modified?" On other subjects the Task Force recommended: "Sex education should be a part of the school curriculum and begin as early as possible, not later than junior high school." # Rep. Dowdy Says He Won't Run Again Because Of Poor Health

WASHINGTON, AP (AP) — Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., recently convicted of bribery and conspiracy by a Baltimore federal judge, says he will not seek reelection. Dowdy, in a letter from his Washington office, said his decision not to run again was because of poor health. "My decision was made in accordance with the professional advice of my personal doctors who have warned that a vigorous political campaign would likely complicate the serious health problems I have suffered in the past 16 months," the Athens Democrat said. "In recent weeks, Mrs. Dowdy and I have received many phone calls and telegrams from friends who encouraged that either she or I seek the office," he said. "As I have previously announced, I will continue to serve in the House of Representatives until my present term expires in January of next year," he said. The New York Times in a Sunday editorial had said Dowdy should resign. At his trial, the government contended Dowdy, a 10-term congressman, accepted a $25,000 bribe at an Atlanta Georgia airport on Sept. 22, 1965. Dowdy, 59, was indicted five years later on charges that he helped sidetrack a Justice Department investigation into a Maryland home improvement firm in return for the $25,000. He was the first congressman in office to be convicted of a criminal offense in 15 years. He faces a possible maximum penalty of 40 years and $40,000 in fines. Dowdy's lawyers are seeking a new trial. He has denied charges against him and tried to have the indictment quashed on grounds of congressional immunity. His trial was delayed several times, first by an old back ailment which required surgery and later a respiratory ailment which again put him in the hospital. He once explained his predicament as a political frame-up by people who resented his work on the House District of Columbia Committee. He said he was not liked "by the Eastern leftwingers."

Never saying 'thanks' is one of life's tragedies

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I lost (or somebody stole) my wallet. Fortunately it was right after Christmas so there wasn't much money in it. My driver's license and credit cards will have to be replaced, which will be a terrible inconvenience, but it's not fatal.

What cannot be replaced is something I had cut out of your column and had carried around for almost five years. It was a "confidential" to remind people who still had their mothers to thank them for all the things she taught them. Can you remember which one it was, and print it again?

A FAN IN AMSTERDAM, N. Y.

DEAR FAN, Was it, "Confidential to anyone for whom it is not yet too late: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies"?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have definitely decided upon a divorce, but due to economic reasons, we are forced to live together for a few more months.

In the meantime he is carrying on a correspondence with some lady who is a "future prospect," and her letters come to the house. I, of course, read all the mail that comes here if I see it first. My husband says I have no business to open his mail. I say as long as we are living under one roof, I can read whatever comes here. What do you say? HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I say your husband is right. Furthermore, there is a federal law which also says so.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't ask anyone else because they might think I was bragging.

My aunt died a few months ago and she left me her beautiful full-length mink coat. It is just like new, fits me perfectly, and I feel like a queen in it.

Now the problem: My husband and I are in moderate circumstances, and he doesn't think I ought to wear it to church. He also doesn't want me to wear it around his place of business. He says I shouldn't wear it when I go out for dinner because it might get stolen if I leave it in a check-room, and if I leave it on the back of my chair, it might look like I'm showing off.

I can't sell it because my uncle is still living and he gets pleasure out of seeing me wear it.

So what do you suggest?

THE LADY IN MINK

DEAR LADY: I suggest that if you were to wear it only when and where your husband thinks you should, it is going to be "good as new" for the next 10 years. If I were you, I'd wear it for all dress up occasions and quit worrying about what people "might" think.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ENJOYS MIXED DOUBLES" IN BEVERLY HILLS:

Are you talking about TENNIS or MARTINIS?

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 19
Your birthday today: Originality enters your life program in all departments this year, some as the result of your own inspiration, the rest provoked by anomalous external conditions. Your career efforts attract more general notice. Today's natives usually drift into positions from which they direct the work of others, or teach how it's done.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Some of what you accomplish today brings no immediate return, but enhances your status in the workaday world.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Set a higher value on what you do and what you offer. Get done with your work as quickly as you can.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Line up the odds and ends of belated deals, correspondence and left over chores. Clear the decks for vigorous activity coming soon.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: A few words will do nicely, but let your people hear you. The things you do just for diversion have a surprising earning potential.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Put on your finest apparel, use your tact and persuasive skills, promote your pet projects.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Relax, find your most serene mood, project it for social and career successes. Having your preparations all done and your facts straight helps.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Prefer younger associates, take the lighter side. After you've completed a reasonable quota of routine (or taken the day off), find a good show or a party to top the evening.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Accept an invitation, strut your stuff as the old saying goes; there's apt to be a good response to your demonstration of affection, attraction.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Be sure any travel or appointment schedule is clear and definite.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: With every intention of being serious and on the direct line, even the briefest of comment sets off a chain of comical and complex discussions.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Like as not today's streak of macabre humor intrigues and puzzles you. There's more to the stories than merely information.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Some of your demonstrated good will comes back now, exactly when a word of cheer is most welcome.

Nose Is Out Of Joint

Arrangements can be swept to either side and yet be detailed becomingly to frame the face. Hats aid the cause. Just be sure to tilt your chapeau so as to counter a quirk of countenance. Using the same principle, adjust necklines via jewelry and scarves.

What about makeup? Make certain your eyebrows and mouth are on straight.

To Bobby Fischer, Chess Is A Sport and He's the Champion

(First of Two Parts.)

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Dripping wet—which made his long, bony face look even longer—hunched and bare-foot and blue-robed, Bobby Fischer came out of the shower to answer the door.

One o'clock in the afternoon, but his small hotel room was dark behind him. Curtains were drawn. No lights on except for the one from the bathroom. "Sorry," said Fischer, to his expected visitor, "just got up a few minutes ago. Be with you right away." He padded back to the bathroom, closed the door. Pitch black. The visitor stood for a surprised moment in the darkness, then fumbled along the wall for the light switch.

Mysterious and controversial, famous and infamous, one-time child prodigy and current U.S. chess champion, Bobby Fischer lives in hotel rooms. He has no permanent residence. For now, this Park-Sheraton room is also his training field. Some time before June 30, Fischer will challenge the reigning world chess champion, Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union, for the title.

"It will be," Fischer will say later, "probably the greatest sports event in history. Bigger even than the Frazier-Ali fight. It is really the free world against the lying, cheating, hypocritical Russians."

Fischer's live-in training field is spare. Two single beds, one rumpled, take up much of the space. A TV set in the corner. An alarm clock on the bedstand. No clothes are strewn about. On the satchel. In it are some papers and four magazines: U.S. News & World Report, Esquire, The Plain Truth (a Bible-oriented news magazine) and Playboy.

On the desk are the tools of his trade, the tools of his single passion, the tools that are the New York Times music critic has written. Fischer employs with a genius that is as unique as Beethoven's; on the desk is a chess board. The board is actually a kind of soft plastic, the chess pieces are wooden but almost weightless. Convenient to carry wherever he goes. A book of chess moves called "Chess Informant," in seven languages, is open. There are marks alongside some of the games, and marginal notes. Fischer stays up late going over past games, historical games, Spassky's games.

Quickly, he puts on a dark maroon suit, white shirt and a maroon tie that says "Playboy" on it and is interspersed with bunny symbols. All dressed, he returned to the bathroom, then popped out a few minutes later. His face was covered with shaving cream. "Say, would you mind putting the chain on the door. The maid or somebody might walk in," he said.

Shaved, he showed upon request a particularly "dumb" move he saw in one of the games from the book. "But don't write what the move is," said Fischer. "I don't want to leak anything to the Russians." His fingers are long and he jabs a piece down, making the others twitch. He was also proud of the chess set. "Look at these pieces," he said. "Smooth and light, no hard edges, beautifully carved. The best set for playing that I've ever seen. Here, feel this knight."

He talked about chess as a sport.

"Sure, it's a sport," he said. "And when newspapers put it in entertainment and arts sections, that's downgrading chess, completely out of place."

"You've got to be in top condition to play chess. You have to concentrate in a tournament for five hours at a time, day after day. And when there's an adjournment, you've got to stay up late analyzing strategy. The tension and the need for stamina are brutal. One mental lapse and you're through. That's why a lot of great chess players are over the hill by 40. Too old for the strain."

"Spassky even has a physical trainer. I do my own physical conditioning. I don't eat fatty foods. I keep my weight at 180 pounds. I like to exercise with the Jack LaLanne Show. He's got a fun personality. I play tennis, too. Not too good, though. But I like the new metal racquets. Now I can even get the ball over the net sometimes." He laughed. "I've begun to bowl, that's a great sport. Jogging? No, jogging is too dull."

"I'd compare chess to basketball. Basketball players pass the ball around until they get an opening. Like chess, like the mating attack."

His brown eyes widened. He laughed. Back to the Spassky match. A place and exact time have not yet been set. "But the buildup will be terrific," said Fischer. "Like the Ali-Frazier fight, though I don't approve of boxing; I think it's immoral." He said, though, that he admires Ali as an athlete. Which other athletes does he admire?

"I don't follow sports much, except when it's news—like Lee Trevino, when he won these Opens and was on the covers of Time and Newsweek. But I like Willie Mays a lot. Like his basket catch. He gives all he's got. He's not one of those slagger. He loves the game."

"I grew up in Brooklyn, was a Dodger fan. I liked Don Newcombe because he was a good hitter. He wasn't satisfied with being only a good pitcher, like most pitchers.

Bobby Fischer

"I like Joe Namath. I think he's got class. He sacrifices himself. A champion needs that. He's got these terrible knees and probably should be retired. But when he plays he is not worried about being hit, getting the ball off is all-important."

"Too many times, people don't try their best. They don't have the keen spirit, the winning spirit. And once you make it, you've got to guard your reputation—every day go in like an unknown to prove yourself. That's why I don't clown around. I don't believe in wasting time—My goal is to win the world's chess championship, to beat the Russians. I take this very seriously."

Pampa Cagers On Road To Battle Plainsmen

By RICKEY WRIGHT
Staff Writer

After losing to Lawton High by a tally of 62-59, the fighting Harvesters will trek to Lubbock to challenge the Monterey Plainsmen.

The Plainsmen have already fallen once to the wrath of Pampa on January 4 by a tally of 63-45.

The contest is to be played on foreign grounds and will give Monterey a slight edge as they seldomly lose on their own court.

"It is always an advantage to play at home," stated cager coach Robert McPherson, "but Lawton proved it does not really mean that much."

"We really need to win this one," continued McPherson, "because we don't want to go into district competition with two immediate losses."

Freddy Wilson is the only casualty suffered by the Harvesters in the past Lawton bout.

"I finally had to pull Freddy," commented McPherson. "I wanted that bad ankle healed before we started into district play."

Richard Buntun was also injured in Saturday's contest as he received an elbow to the eye while under the boards.

"Richard is o-kay and will be ready to go tonight," added McPherson.

McPherson reviews the Lawton bout as "We didn't play ball like we could have. We did not have the necessary rebounds. I only hope the boys can look back on the defeat and profit from their mistakes, because we must be ready for district play."

6'5" Newton from Monterey has the reputation of giving opponents a hard time as far as rebounding and shooting is concerned. Someone obviously thinks he has what it takes as he is up for the all-state cager squad.

Irons, also a 6'5", is the biggest player Monterey features. He weighs in at about 225 pounds.

In the past contest, the Harvesters managed to stay Newton but had some trouble with Irons.

But, he added, "Next fall will be it—win, lose or draw."

Golfing Memos

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Lee Trevino switches back and forth with three different putters all the same style and from the same manufacturer—depending on the speed of the greens.

"They're pretty much the same club," Trevino explained. "The only difference is in the angle of the club face."

"You see, on fast greens, I have the club about two inches in front of my toe. On real slow greens I have it about 12 inches out.

"We have to muster the power to stop both men in order to win this match," comments McPherson.

The Plainsmen also have "adequate" guards and the "over-all team is known for not making many mistakes, but playing off of the opponents."

"They can shoot well and like to quick press," said McPherson.

All the district games are expected to be tough this season, but McPherson feels the first few will be the toughest as all the teams are starting out as equals, as if it were a new season.

Looking toward Friday's match, Pampa can be found facing the Caprock Longhorns. After which, the Tascosa Rebels will host Pampa next Tuesday.

Of course, everyone will be out to get a Harvester this year as they are the district title holders and have more than a good chance to keep it.

As McPherson pointed out, Lubbock Monterey is the present threat and it will be a game to see.

Both teams hold a similar season record with Pampa having 17 wins and three losses and Monterey having 16 wins and five losses.

Ali Wants A Rematch With His Replacement

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali had just fought an exhibition match and said he had four fights upcoming with a $500,000 guarantee for each, but his greatest concern was getting a rematch with current titleholder Joe Frazier.

"Frazier has held my job long enough," said Ali Monday night after clowning his way through six exhibition rounds, three each with Alonzo Johnson of Rankin, Pa. and Spider Owens of Philadelphia.

"I have got to whip Joe Frazier," added the flamboyant and controversial Ali. "I go to bed thinking of him and wake up thinking of him. I'm gonna whip him and then I'll be able to rest for a while."

Frazier handed Ali the only setback of his 35-bout professional career, pounding out a unanimous 15-round decision on March 8, 1971. A rematch, however, is not in the offing this year, according to Ali.

"I don't know when," said Ali, "but the world wants this fight more than I do. Things

Meanwhile, in New Orleans, Yank Durham, Frazier's manager, said Ali is talking a lot about wanting to fight Frazier again but not doing anything about it.

"He's going around fighting everybody else and nobody from Ali's camp has contacted me about a fight," said Durham. "Ali is no manager and he can't make any deals. If his manager will contact Yank Durham it can be quickly arranged so that Ali can be demolished by Joe Frazier in a hurry then he can quit worrying about Frazier and get some rest."

Against Johnson and Owens, before a crowd estimated at 1,500 in the Westchester County Center, Ali went through most of his repertoire, including his famous Ali Shuffle. After the exhibition, the crowd sang "Happy Birthday" to the former champion in honor of his 30th birthday.

Here's more on boxing—Four championships were won by members of the Pampa Boxing Club Saturday night in the Amarillo Invitational Golden Gloves Tri-State Tournament. Boxers from Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas competed in the tournament.

In the lead-off fight for Pampa and the opener on the Saturday card Pete Laughlin, 140 lbs., 15 years old moved up into the 165-lb division to allow a teammate Wade Archibald, at 150 lbs. to fight in the 155-lb class. In so doing he fought a much older and larger opponent in Roger Martin of Levelland and lost a bruising decision in the toe-to-toe battle. After losing, Laughlin became victorious because Martin was too tired to continue in the competition placing Laughlin in the championship round.

In the last bout of the evening Laughlin faced J.T. Wright of Levelland, the Texas State Middleweight Contender in 1971, only to lose a very close decision.

Tiny Atom Kurt Voss of Pampa, fought two crowd pleasing battles and defeated Amarillo's Bo-Bo Navarrati and Charles Davis of Borger to win the Golden Gloves 50-lb. championship. This is Voss' first year in the ring and has 9 wins and two losses to his credit.

Jerry Finney of Pampa at 60 lbs. lost his final bout to Jerry Martinez of Plainview. Martinez is nine years old and Martinez is 13.

Blaine Wilson at 100 lbs. won his first championship by defeating his Amarillo opponent.

Ronnie Brown of Pampa won his first championship at 147 lbs. and Mike Archibald lost the 139-lb. bracket by forfeit.

Tony Brown of Pampa lost to Joe Villarreal in the 112-lb. bracket. Villarreal is 18 and in his fourth year of boxing while Brown is in his first year and only 12 years old. Brown won his first fight against a 15-year-old Friday night.

In the Open Division Pampa had one win and one loss. Tommy Sergeant of Pampa had returned to the ring after an 8-year layoff. His return was marked by a victory and a trophy in the 118-lb. division.

J.R. Marino was forced to lose his 165-lb. Open Battle to Henry Holland of Lubbock when business called him out of town at the last moment.

Tammec Wilhelm, the state's first female boxer won by forfeit. She will be fighting this Friday night against Kurt Voss at the Pampa Boxing Club.

Beau's Boundaries

By STEVE BOHLANDER
PAMPA NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Area sports have moved into the realm of nether-netherland as the Pampa Harvesters are marching into district play with a 17-3 season and quite likely an 18-3 season after tonight's encounter with the Monterey Plainsmen.

The McPherson coached crew has their best season under the new mentor and future years look promising as both Junior High Schools will be sending up outstanding players for the High School Basketball program.

The only sore spot about this season's cage record is the lack of fan support. Seems to me the city isn't taking as big an interest as they could. The football team received downtown pep rallies, parades, sippers and other tokens of recognition from fans but the basketball team feels lucky to have the stadium half full.

Could be the fans need to take another look at the high school. The boys playing will be the life-blood of Pampa in the next few years and the boost given them now could be the shot-in-the-arm the city needs to grow in the next ten years.

Another phase of sports on a more personal level foe against foe as individuals—is the new Pampa Boxing Club. Saturday night nine Pampa youths traveled to the Amarillo Tri-State Invitational Golden Gloves Tournament and four returned home with high honors for their division.

The young Ali's and Frazier's will be fighting this coming Friday at the Pampa Boxing Club and the public is invited.

Area teams sporting bigness in sports include Lefors-White Deer—with a tough girls cage team and an impressive boys team. Mobeetie with an outstanding group of female cagers and Perryton who is making a statewide dent in its sports contention.

Several individual teams are interested in playing charity basketball games and before long the high schools will be starting spring training for track and baseball all need fan support.

On the football scene for Pampa is the potential of another District Championship but as of yet no coach has been named to fill the empty space left by Swede Lee after he left to coach A&M freshmen.

Denny McLain Goes Bankrupt

DETROIT (AP)—Former Detroit Tiger pitcher ace Denny McLain, who lost 22 games for the Washington Senators last season, also has lost $137,000 for his creditors.

The man once termed "baseball's bad boy" has $3,328 in net assets, according to reports filed Monday during the "final creditors meeting" of the Dennis Dale McLain bankruptcy case in U.S. District Court here.

In effect, this means most of the friends and business associates who lent money to the once-prosperous pitcher during his years in Detroit never will collect a penny.

His other 37 creditors—including the telephone company, to which he owes $2,631—won't collect a thing.

Osborne Tagged For Husker Job

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Tom Osborne, a 33-year-old Nebraskan with a Ph.D. degree and credentials as an athlete and coach, has been tapped by Coach Bob Devaney to inherit his football dynasty at the University of Nebraska one year from now.

The 36-year-old Devaney, whose decade at Nebraska has brought seven Big Eight titles and back-to-back national championships, announced Monday that the coming season will be his last as Cornhusker head coach, although he said he hopes to remain there as athletic director. He currently holds both positions.

Devaney said he would like Osborne, a Husker assistant coach for 10 years, to be his successor, although the final decision will be up to the Board of Regents.

"I can't come out and name a head coach but I will certainly recommend his appointment," Devaney said.

"I'm very pleased that Bob has this confidence in me," said Osborne, who spent three years as a banker in the National Football League before leaving the pro ranks to seek advanced degrees in educational psychology and serve as a Devaney aide.

Devaney disclosed only last week he was thinking of quitting as head coach after a perfect 13-game season capped by a 38-6 victory over unbeaten Alabama in Miami's Orange Bowl New Year's night.

The decision to stay on the job another year was "a difficult decision," he said, influenced by "some commitments to players who have been recruited."

"And there's always the challenge of trying to win another national championship," he said. "It's improbable, but not impossible. I'd like to be part of this."

But, he added, "Next fall will be it—win, lose or draw."

NBA All-Star Game Finds West Favored

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Basketball all-star games are usually high-scoring affairs because the players are most often chosen on the basis of their ability to put the ball in the basket. It's no different this time around.

Tonight's 22nd annual National Basketball Association All-Star game features 28 of the league's top players and its 16 top scorers. The West is a heavy favorite by virtue of having nine of the top 12 scorers in the NBA on its side.

FDA Zeroes In

At long last the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has decided to do something about regulating over-the-counter medications.
 Even the FDA itself has no idea of how many such non-prescription products are now available, but the agency estimates their number at between 100,000 and 500,000—a broad range that in itself tells a great deal about the current lack of information. For years it has been clear that a large percentage of these products do not live up to promises made for them.
 The recent FDA proposal is for the first over-all review of the effectiveness of all nonprescription drugs broken into at least 26 basic categories. The categories to be looked into include antacids, laxatives, cough and cold remedies, stimulants, sleep aids, mouthwashes, dentifrices and painkillers.
 One of the most important areas of study are the OTC "mood drugs"—sedatives, stimulants and sleep aids. The first group to be looked into, however, will be antacids on which Americans spend in excess of $100 million a year.
 For all of the various OTC preparations it is estimated that Americans spend an estimated $2.7 billion annually. And, according to FDA Commissioner Dr. Charles Edwards, "The FDA is concerned that many present formulations do not have the claimed effect, have inadequate instructions for effective use by the consumer, or are promoted in deceptive and indefensible ways."
 Ostensibly the current study stems from one begun in 1966 by the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council which reviewed the effectiveness of prescription drugs. A substantial number of the 3,000 studied were found to be ineffective and some have been removed from the market.
 It is clear, however, that the earlier study was not the exclusive or even the prime motivation for the FDA. Many believe that the current proposed regulation was nudged into existence by the hearings on nonprescription drugs late last year of Sen. Gaylord Nelson's Monopoly Subcommittee.
 During the hearings, the senator said, "We heard some of the leading physicians and pharmacists in the nation and their testimony has been a shocking indictment of deceptive advertising and false claims for products for which American consumers spend billions of dollars.

 Nelson, who has long been Capitol Hill's leading critic of the gigantic drug industry, added that he is confident that Dr. Edwards was attempting to find more effective ways to control the drug industry, but was often blocked by the pressure tactics of the powerful drug manufacturers.
 FDA officials are optimistic that their class-by-class evaluation of drugs will be an effective approach. One reason for this is that virtually all of the available OTC products are formulated from only about 200 active ingredients which are used alone or in various combinations. Knowing this, then, it becomes even clearer that if there are up to a half million OTC medications, many competing brands—each of which may be advertised as "the most effective"—are exactly the same or very similar.
 In the past the FDA has attempted to cope with the question of effectiveness of OTC drugs by lawsuits against manufacturers of individual products. However, there have only been about four or five such suits a year and this is clearly inadequate.
 There is no doubt that the FDA move is a good beginning. From the point of the consumer subjected to the rash of ineffective—and sometimes dangerous—OTC medications it can only be hoped that the agency moves quickly and effectively against the odious practices of the OTC manufacturers who have been more than once described as "legitimate pill pushers."

BRUCE BLOSSAT
 Ray of Hope Found In Trade Gloom
 By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Away from the glare of glamorous summitry, the Nixon administration has been deeply involved for weeks in important trade talks with Canada, Japan and the European nations. But what we do for ourselves may have more to do with our long-range economic prospects in the world.
 The talks, of course, are intended by us to produce concessions from our major trading partners which may help us offset our critical deficits in trade and balance of payments.
 At least in the conversations with the Japanese, snags have developed from time to time. But the White House remains optimistic. The President believes he has the promise of concessions.
 Our whole trading problem, indeed, our role in a changing world economy, is amply treated in a new big study by Peter Peterson, the President's international economic expert. Not the least pertinent observations are those dealing with America's domestic economic shortcomings.
 Speaking of this country's need to develop more competitive strength against fast-moving Europe and Japan, Peterson says:
 "It is important to emphasize that development depends mainly on our own efforts rather than on the actions of other countries."
 Fundamentally, our domestic economic power is not gravely diminished. For instance, Peterson says there is gross exaggeration in fears that the United States, flooded with foreign goods, would soon cease to be a major manufacturing nation. Adds he:
 "Our economy produces around $350 billion in manufactured goods, and we import less than 10 per cent of that amount. Furthermore, our total manufacturing output is significantly larger, in absolute terms, than the sum of the entire gross national products of several of our leading competitors in the free world."
 Still, the shortcomings are here:
 We continue to gain each year in productivity (output per man hour), but Japan and some European lands are far outpacing us.
 We don't invest enough in new plant and equipment to improve productivity. Japan in recent years has plowed back twice as much of its GNP into new facilities as have we. So has West Germany.
 We go on outspending other industrialized powers in research and development, key to advancing technology. But others are gaining on us.
 One cue to our evidently declining inventiveness, too, is that in 1971 foreign applications for U.S. patents were 40 per cent of total applications, as against 26 per cent in 1961.
 We can't compete too well in our own market any more on such low-to-moderate technology products as textiles, clothing, shoes, sporting goods. We run a serious trade deficit in this general field.
 We are now in "service trade economy." But it is tough to export services, and to improve their productivity.
 If we can't back away some of these difficulties, then no trade talks imaginable will keep us from slipping badly in the economic world.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M. D.
 Dear Dr. Lamb—I would like to know if it is safe to use the cooked-leftover turkey from Thanksgiving, which I froze in a milk carton, for Easter dinner. I have heard it should not be kept this long. Is this fact or fiction? I would not want my family to get sick. Can one die from this type of sickness?
 Dear Reader—There are a lot of factors involved. If the turkey was cooled and frozen immediately before germs had a chance to start growing after it was cooked, it is not likely that any important bacteria will have developed if the freezer is cold enough and the cold temperature is maintained at all times.
 The problem with cooked meats that are frozen isn't usually the germ and infection, but loss of flavor and deterioration of essential vitamins. A steady diet of food that had been frozen a long time might be deficient in some nutrients. Then even your cooked turkey contains a lot of water, perhaps as much as half the weight of the meat. In some freezers the water is lost and the meat shrinks.
 So I doubt anyone will get sick if the above points apply, but if you wait too long before eating it you will lose a lot of its earlier delicious flavor and some of its valuable nutrients.
 Dear Dr. Lamb—About plucking hairs out of a facial mole, I know, or at least I've been told several times, that this—a dangerous habit in regard to the possibility of causing cancer. What are the facts? I have one more on my face out of which grow about five or six unsightly coarse hairs. These hairs as they appear (which is often) for about five years—against my better judgment, but because they look so bad.
 If there is a definite danger in this, I will stop. However, in that case I would like to know some facts about the removal of a facial mole, procedure, if relatively inexpensive, heating, etc.
 Dear Reader—You have heard right. It is a bad practice to irritate moles since repeated irritation can cause them to become cancers.
 Repeated pulling of hairs from moles is one form of irritation. Shaving over mole is another example. Those located near a belt or area where the clothing constantly rubs against them may also be irritated. Any mole in such a location should be removed surgically. This is a very simple procedure. It can be done by using a local anesthetic and without leaving any major scar in most instances. Removal can be a simple office procedure.
 If you have hair growing from a mole and can't get the mole removed, you would be wise to just cut off the hair as it grows too long, rather than to pull it out.

H.L. Hunts Writes

LET CONGRESS KNOW
 The new method of operation for the U.S. government is that it is proper for secrets to be published about war matters while the war continues, even if the secrets are stolen and revealed to private agencies, as in the case of the Pentagon papers. It is not proper, however, according to officials in the Office of Export Control, to reveal what is being sold to the Russian communists or the names of the U.S. companies being given the right to sell strategic materials to communists.
 The public thought the victory had been won, not once but twice, on denying the Soviets a truck-building factory. First Henry Ford's plan to build a factory for Russia was abandoned under public pressure. Then Mack Truck's deal with the communists to build the world's largest truck plant was called to the attention of the taxpayers and the Congress by seasoned campaigners.
 The Department of Commerce admits that the sale of a billion dollars worth of U.S. equipment for a Soviet truck factory was approved despite a finding by government experts that the truck factory would measurably increase the communists' military potential.
 Congressman John Schmitz (R-Calif.) deserves the support of every patriot in looking into this betrayal of the people's desires and best interest.
 Letter to the editor-writers can lead the way to alert the public and the Congress that the victory is about to be stolen in favor of the Soviets, which seem to happen too often. There is no way the U.S. can benefit from strengthening the military might of the enemy which has sworn to bury us. To add insult to injury, the taxpayer is expected to finance many future sales on credit, although the Russians never settled properly for the credit we extended to save them from Hitler during World War II.

BERRY'S WORLD

 "There must be some mistake. My schedule indicates that I am to be meeting with a spokesman of the 'Rip-on Society'—not the 'Rip-OFF Society!'"

WASHINGTON.—Of the United Nations, it can be relevantly said: "The more things change, the more they are the same."
 A new Secretary General is now in charge of the international organization, but the United States continues to pay and pay and pay. Lastest expensive illustration:
 For 1972, contributions and pledges to the UN Fund for Drug Abuse Control total $2,120,830—hardly an impressive amount to effectively grapple with the far-flung and vicious narcotics problem, especially for a world body of 131 member nations.
 The U.S. contribution is $2 million.
 And all that has been forthcoming for the grimly important Drug Abuse Control Fund from the other 130 UN members is the breathtaking sum of $120,830!
 Once more U.S. taxpayers are left holding the bag.

Running for What?
 In Sen. George McGovern's indefatigable New Hampshire electioneering, he has stumbled on one answer to the grievous problem that has plagued him and his baffled lieutenants—the militant liberal South Dakotan's persistent low standing in the Democratic Presidential sweepstakes.
 For a year, far longer than any of the other candidates, McGovern has been busily and noisily electioneering—making innumerable speeches throughout the country and issuing even more pronouncements and precepts on just about everything under the sun. Yet despite this tireless campaigning, in poll after poll, McGovern is recorded in the lower reaches near the bottom.

He found out why in a garage in Nashua, N. H., within a few hours after formally filing in an elaborately organized fanfare of publicity, in the state's March 7 Presidential primary.
 In the garage, a maintenance installation of the state highway department, McGovern went around shaking hands with the workmen—all of whom seemed blank as to who he was. Finally, one asked, "Are you a Democrat or a Republican?"
 Startled for a moment, McGovern gulped and replied, "Democrat. I just filed for President."
 Unimpressed, another worker said, "Yeah, where are you from?"
 Not sure he wasn't being kidded, McGovern stared hard at the man before answering, "South Dakota."
 This drew a loud, disbelieving chortle from the mechanic. "Ah come on, South Dakota, nobody runs for President from South Dakota."
 The other workmen joined in the burst of hearty laughter. To them, their fellow mechanic had clearly scored a hilarious hit. McGovern, smiling feebly, turned away.

and continued his hand-shaking.
 Later a local politico who witnessed the revealing incident remarked, "If George was smart, he'd call it quits now. Save him a lot of time, labor and expense."
 A yet-unpublished poll in Wisconsin, where McGovern claims to have a strong statewide organization, shows him running far behind Sens. Muskie and Humphrey. McGovern has persistently trailed in Wisconsin, despite loudly vocal farmer champion.
 Law-and-Order Man
 The rhetoric and filibuster-plagued U.S. Senate, being what it is, it's anyone's guess what will or won't happen there in the impending session—except in one regard.
 For the second year its deliberations, noisy and stormy as they are likely to be, will be conducted firmly and forcefully within the rules and regulations—with malice towards none and charity for all. Every Senator will be treated fairly and impartially, but no contemps will be tolerated.
 Responsible for this impressive policy of law and order is one member—Democratic Whip Robert Byrd.
 Since winning the key post (No. 2 majority leader) last year, the able, vigorous and universally respected West Virginian has literally "revolutionized" the Senate's proceedings. By constant and strictly impartial planning, organizing and being always on the job when the Senate is meeting, regardless of how early and how late, Byrd has brought to the tumult-prone chamber a degree of coherence and orderliness rare in its historic annals.
 This quietly unique achievement has won him no headlines. The coal miner's son who through long years of untiring and conscientious effort worked his way to a law degree and a top seat in the Senate, is not a national personality in the sense some of his more strident and fanfared colleagues are.
 But in the inner councils and deliberations of the "most exclusive club in the world," Byrd exercises potent influence and authority. Where and when it really counts, he has the clout possessed by only a few other Senators.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Note Dr. Vasilev's use of dogs to find buried ores. Canine detectives are also being used to spot hidden narcotics in passenger luggage and freight boxes. Notice the cases I have cited of dogs that turned on their former human pals! Why?

CASE 8-574: Dr. George Vasilev has been experimenting with the use of dogs to smell out various ore deposits in the ground. It takes about 4 to 5 months to train a dog to be such a geologist, he explains.

"European sheep dogs," he adds, "are usually the best breed for the job." Hunting dogs and fox terriers get distracted too easily by rabbits!

"His trained dogs could sniff out the exact locations of previously known deposits that had already been marked on the experimenter's map."

They could even detect the ore under 18 inches of snow and buried in bogs.

The ores the dogs spotted by scent were pyrite (iron and sulphur), emerald (beryl and aluminum) and malachite (copper carbonate).

Canine Detectives
In earlier columns I also gave you cases where dogs had turned on their former best friends and acted as if the latter were total strangers.

Not many months later, these human beings were found to be afflicted with leukemia.

Since that is characterized by a marked change in the blood, could such men have lost their former scent?

Was their changed spoor what made the dogs turn on them as total strangers when they had previously been buddies and pals?

You readers have often seen remarkable evidences of the keen scent of such dogs as hounds and especially beagles.

Some canines rely more on their sight than on a keen sense of smell.

This seems true to a large degree of cats, too, for they are attracted more by the quick movements of a mouse or bird than by odor.

But those dogs that rely on their sense of smell can pick up a scent that may be several days old and use it to select one man from 10,000.

It is thus possible that some ores may give off a faint odor that is distinctive.

If so, then keen-scented canines might very well be taught to ferret out such metals.

For dogs have recently been trained to sniff out hidden caches of heroin and other illegal drugs that were secreted in luggage or shipping boxes at freight centers.

Some medical ailments among human beings give off a characteristic odor which pioneer doctors employed in their diagnosis.

Congress Reconvenes Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 92nd Congress reconvenes today to wage election-year battles over programs of the Republican administration while a corps of Democratic senators campaigns for nomination to challenge President Nixon.

The contest for the White House will shadow, and may shape, the work of a Senate and House controlled by Democrats.

Atop the agenda of domestic issues are measures for welfare reform, sharing federal revenues with cities and states, and improvement in health care and financing.

Nixon sent Congress his blueprint for action in all three areas a year ago, and the White House has forecast passage in 1972.

Five Democratic senators, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, action on the measures, but the congressional majority may overhaul them to put its own stamp on whatever final products emerge.

"I believe a considerable effort will be made by Democrats to take the initiative away from the President," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott. "The majority party is seeking identification with most of these old programs."

Whatever Congress does in the coming session will be overhung by the drama of a presidential election," said Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield. "Insofar as the Senate leadership is concerned, the public interest will not be shortchanged for partisan gain."

Five Democratic senators, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine,

Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, George McGovern of South Dakota, Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Vance Hartke of Indiana, are campaigning for the presidential nomination. A sixth, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, ranks high in the opinion polls although he has said repeatedly he will not run.

In the House two Republican members, Paul McCloskey of California and John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, are contesting President Nixon's renomination in the presidential primaries. Democratic Rep. Shirley Chisholm of New York is expected to announce her presidential candidacy later this month.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 18, the 18th day of 1972. There are 348 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1788, the first English settlers arrived in Australia.

On this date: In 1534, the Spanish conqueror, Francisco Pizarro, founded Lima, Peru.

In 1778, the English explorer, Capt. James Cook, discovered the Hawaiian Islands.

In 1782, the American statesman, Daniel Webster was born in Salisbury, N.H.

In 1912, the English explorer, Capt. Robert F. Scott, reached the South Pole and found that the Norwegian Roald Amundsen had reached the pole five weeks earlier.

In 1918, the World War I peace conference opened at Versailles, France.

In 1943, in World War II, the Soviets announced they had broken the long German siege of Leningrad.

Ten years ago, in the Dominican Republic, the ruling couple which had been deposed by military officers two days earlier regained control of the government.

Five years ago, John T. Connor resigned as U.S. secretary of Commerce.

One year ago, U.S. Secretary general U. Thant announced he would step down when his term expired at the end of the year.

Purcell To Seek Re-election As Congressman From 13th District

AMARILLO—Democratic Congressman Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls made formal announcement yesterday he would seek re-election as U.S. Representative from the 13th Congressional District of Texas.

In his announcement, Purcell said, "I want to put my ten years experience in Congress to work for all the people of Northwest Texas. To help make the 13th District a growing, prospering, developing community where men can find work and the opportunity to improve their lives."

In re-districting the state in 1971, the Texas Legislature created a single district to cover all of Northwest Texas. Purcell's 13th was merged with the adjoining 18th. The new, enlarged district was designated the 13th.

Purcell went on to say, "We must decide whether we will sit idly by and watch a further erosion of faith in the promise of Northwest Texas, or whether we will work to keep economic opportunity a reality in our cities and small towns."

With the proper representation in Congress, it can be done. And it can be done without the problems besetting cities in other parts of the state and country, without violence and crime in the streets, without higher taxes, without creating the polluted, over-crowded welfare state that some see I have opposed wasteful federal welfare spending, and will continue to do so, because it discourages full employment. We don't need that kind of federal help in the 13th District.

Purcell was elected to Congress in 1961. He is a member of the House Agriculture Committee and serves as chairman of the important Livestock and Grains sub-committee. A native of Archer City, Texas, Purcell attended Texas A & M University and Baylor University Law School. He gave up his private practice as an attorney to become a Wichita County Juvenile Court Judge and in 1955 became judge of the 89th Judicial District, a position he held for six years. He served in World War II and is a Lt. Colonel in the Army Reserve.

1971 Income Averaging May Help Reduce Tax

By RAY DE CRANE
If your income for 1971 was far greater than it has been in recent years you can do any one of the following things:

1. Complain to all your friends about your high tax bracket. This won't win you any friends; neither will they give you sympathy.

2. Pay the high tax without complaint.

3. Try income averaging. This is a sure-fire way to reduce your income tax if your 1971 income meets a few simple requirements.

Income averaging knocks off the peaks of your high income years, fills in the valleys and lets you pay your tax as if the income had been spread over a five-year period.

To show the practical application of averaging consider the case of a married man, intending to file a joint return, who had taxable income (total income less adjustments, deductions and personal exemptions) of $30,000 in 1971. For the previous four years his taxable income looked like this: 1970—$16,000;

1968—$11,000; 1968—$13,000; and 1967—$8,000.

To determine if he is eligible for averaging, first total his taxable income for the four previous years. That's $48,000.

Now take 30 per cent of that figure. That's $14,400.

Now subtract $3,000 from his 1971 taxable income ($30,000-$3,000).

If the result after subtraction is greater than that 30 per cent figure, averaging will offer a savings.

Put your own figures into this formula to determine if averaging is for you.

If it is, obtain a Schedule G from Internal Revenue and spend the necessary time to complete the form. Your time will be well rewarded. In our example above the savings were $890.

You'll need copies of the previous four years' returns to supply all the figures necessary to complete Schedule G. If you have not retained copies, write early to the Service Center where your returns were filed. IRS charges $1 a page to make copies.

People In The News

LONDON (AP) — U.S. Rep. James H. Scheuer of New York says he hopes his expulsion from Russia on charges of subversive activities won't adversely affect President Nixon's planned trip to the Soviet Union in May.

Scheuer denied that he had engaged in subversive activities or had encouraged Russian Jews to emigrate to Israel, as the Soviet Union charged in ordering him to leave the country last week.

The U.S. State Department said after the Soviet expulsion order that "would not be helpful to relations."

Scheuer, a Democrat, told newsmen at the U.S. Embassy Sunday, "I would be horrified if the incident affected President Nixon's projected trip to Russia."

He was detained by Soviet security police for 40 minutes last Wednesday after they entered a Moscow home where he was dining with eight top Russian Jewish scientists. The expulsion order followed.

Scheuer was in the Soviet Union with a seven-member congressional subcommittee studying Russian educational methods. He arrived here Saturday.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton says he plans to retire soon, but a spokesman says Skelton doesn't mean complete retirement.

Skelton, who has 50 years as a comic behind him, told a crowd at the Hilton International he planned to retire after a few more bookings this year.

A spokesman for the 60-year-old Skelton later said the comedian planned to end appearances on the night club circuit, but he would not rule out television and movie work.

LONDON (AP) — The Church of England says the Archbishop of Canterbury will attend a conference in New York next week on the increasing interest in religion by American youth.

Included among his activities, the church said Sunday, will be a speech before a three-day seminar on "The Charismatic Christ" being sponsored by Trinity Institute and sermons at Riverside Church, St. Patrick's Cathedral and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The archbishop, the Rt. Rev. Michael Ramsey is spiritual head of the world's Anglicans. He is due to arrive in New York Friday.

LONDON (AP) — The Royal Society of Arts says the 1972 Benjamin Franklin Medal for contributions to Anglo-American understanding has been awarded to British composer Sir William Walton.

The society said today that Sir William had been cited for his performance of his music with its distinctly English themes in the United States.

The medal is awarded to an American and a Briton on alternate years.
