

FORECAST—Variable cloudiness today through Wednesday, with possibility of more showers. Total rain during 24-hour period ending 6 a.m. today .29 inches. Today's high is predicted to reach the mid 70s, with winds from the southwest at 10-20 mph.

American family incomes rise at faster pace than inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says median weekly earnings of American families rose to $481 in the third quarter, a $26 improvement over the same three-month period in 1982, which helped to keep household budget-managers well ahead of inflation.

The weekly earnings figure was 5.7 percent above that of last year.

For individuals with full-time or salaried jobs, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said median weekly earnings, which includes overtime, tips and commissions added to paychecks before deductions, rose to $320, up from $307 over the same period last year, an increase of 4.2 percent.

During the same 12-month time span, consumer prices were rising at an annual rate of only 2.5 percent.

While the some 44 million full-time and salaried male workers averaged $388 a week in the third quarter, the figure for the some 29.5 million women in the same category was $251.

Full-time workers in the managerial and professional fields had the highest earnings, especially those in executive, administrative and managerial jobs where average weekly earnings in the third quarter were $476. At the other end of the scale, workers in farming, forestry, fishing and household domestics earned the least, ranging between $194 to $113 a week.

The agency based its findings on the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey of some 60,000 U.S. households.

These other economic developments:

The government's decision to cut interest rates on federally backed mortgages could mean more jobs if the lower level spreads through the lending industry, a private economist says.

Samuel R. Pierce Jr., secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, cited "improved market conditions" Monday as he announced the cut in the maximum interest rate on conventional mortgages to 12.5 percent from 13 percent.

The rate on graduated payment mortgages was dropped to 12.75 percent from 13.25 percent.

A similar change was announced by the Veterans Administration for VA-guaranteed loans.

Jack Carlson, chief economist at the National Association of Realtors in Washington, D.C., said the government's action could enable as many as 225,000 more families to buy houses if it leads to similar rate reductions by private lenders.

Carlson added that because of the ripple effect on the economy from gains by the housing industry, a half-point cut in mortgage rates nationwide could mean the creation of 180,000 full-time jobs.

Also, Republic Airlines, criticized by the Federal Aviation Administration, said it has tightened up its in-flight procedures. In two incidents early this year, Republic jets encountered fuel problems. In one case, a plane made an emergency landing at Luke Air Force Base in Arizona with virtually no fuel left.

And in New York, the American Iron and Steel Institute, a trade group, reported domestic steel production fell 2.4 percent last week to 1.69 million tons. But even with the latest decline, steel output this year is running 10.4 percent ahead of last year's pace.

Government credit cut off Senate refuses to approve national debt hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government's line of credit has been cut off because the Senate ignored a deadline for final action and refused to pass legislation raising the national debt limit, which already has hit $1,389,000,000,000.

Led by conservatives who said they were fed up with the government's deficit spending, the Senate voted 56-39 Monday to reject a measure that would have increased the government's borrowing authority by $61 billion to $1.45 trillion.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., chided his colleagues for action that he said amounted to "lighting a match near a gas tank." The Senate has never before rejected such legislation outright and congressional leaders were uncertain how they would proceed today.

"We don't fall off the edge of the bluff, but it puts the country on a cash receipts basis," Baker said. "We are dealing with uncertainties of the most extraordinary kind."

So far, the failure to raise the debt limit from its current $1,389 trillion ceiling has meant:

—A suspension, as of today, of sales of U.S. Savings Bonds.

—A required Treasury Department deposit of $13 billion to the Social Security trust funds is being limited to only $4 billion. However, Social Security checks will not be affected.

—Cancellation of scheduled securities auctions by the Treasury Department and reduction in some other offerings.

Although the debt limit does not "expire," Treasury Department officials estimated that the borrowing ceiling would be reached today; thus they had hoped for final congressional action on the measure by midnight Monday.

"Failure of the Congress to act responsibly today (Monday) to raise the debt ceiling could cause higher interest rates and, as a result, higher costs to the government and the taxpayer," Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said.

Administration officials estimate that the delay could cost $250 million initially in increased borrowing costs, and perhaps more if the stalemate continues.

In addition, the government's financial transactions could be thrown into chaos if an increase in the debt limit is not approved by the middle of the month.

The Reagan administration asked, and the House approved in June, a $225.6 billion increase in borrowing authority, to $1.615 trillion. The Senate voted last week to grant no more than $1.45 trillion.

But Monday night, about 20 minutes before midnight, the Senate voted to reject even that.

In other developments:

The Senate rejected on Monday a resolution which would have called on the United States and the Soviet Union to "pursue an immediate and complete halt to the nuclear arms race."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said the freeze resolution would undermine the administration's efforts to negotiate with the Soviets. But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., asked the Senate to "reject the foolish theory that we can have fewer bombs tomorrow if only we have more bombs today."

The Senate Appropriations Committee stripped a $251.7 billion defense bill of $124 million for chemical weapons, and then sent the measure to the Senate floor for action, including debate on B-1B bombers and MX missiles. The House is considering its own $247.2 billion version.

Postal increases to be sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service said today it will seek to increase the cost of mailing a letter from 20 cents to 23 cents.

Robert L. Hardesty, chairman of the Postal Service Board, said increases would be sought for all classes of mail, but they would not take effect before Oct. 1, 1984.

The proposed increase for postcards, for example, would be 2 cents, from 13 cents to 15 cents.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger said, "I still think that 23 cents will be a bargain" for a letter.

The officials said the independent Postal Rate Commission would be asked within a few days to approve the new rates. The panel is allowed up to 10 months to consider such a case.

The service has announced surplus for each of the last two fiscal years but said that it expects a loss of about $800 million for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1984.

Officials said that without a rate increase the operating losses during fiscal 1985 could be more than $2.3 billion.

At least 20 patients killed

Grenada hospital ruins searched

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — U.S. military vans blared warnings to holdout Cuban and Grenadian snipers to give up today, and the Pentagon said hundreds of Marines swarmed onto a neighboring island to hunt more possible resistors.

The Pentagon announcement from Washington said two companies of leathernecks invaded Carriacou, 20 miles north of Grenada, but found no Cubans or Grenadians and were preparing to leave.

Ham radio operators had said resistors to the U.S.-led invasion were hiding on Carriacou, a tiny island in the Grenadines chain.

On Monday, helicopters chased snipers who shot at a U.S. ground patrol, forcing the Americans to scramble for cover. In St. George's searchers cleared the rubble of a mental hospital accidentally bombed by U.S. warplanes in which as many as 20 people died.

Despite the sniping, 1,200 Marines were leaving for Lebanon, their original assignment before being diverted to Grenada. U.S. Army soldiers were taking their place today, a week after the U.S.-led invasion of the 133-square-mile Caribbean island.

Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth

Dam said there is no timetable for U.S. troop withdrawal because it was not known when all resistance would end.

Capt. Barry Willey, an Army public affairs officer in Grenada, said he knew of no bands of resistors still fighting, but said soldiers combing the island were finding more caches of weapons and ammunition.

Military vehicles with loudspeakers fanned out over the roads, blasting this message over and over: "Members of the People's Revolutionary Army, Cuban defenders. Lay down your arms and surrender. You will be allowed to go home. Gen. Austin has surrendered. The resistance is over."

Gen. Hudson Austin, who led the Marxist military junta which seized control and killed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop, was taken by U.S. paratroopers after they were tipped that the general was hiding in a house on the southeast coast, Willey said.

Without firing a shot, the paratroopers seized Austin, along with two militia officers and two young men, Willey said. Whether the young men were hostages, "I cannot say," Willey said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Austin was being held

"for his personal protection" on the USS Guam, the flagship of the U.S. fleet off Grenada.

The Pentagon said 18 U.S. servicemen have been killed, 86 wounded and one is missing since the invasion.

In the capital, the stench of dead bodies pervaded the ruins of the mental hospital, but otherwise life began to have some normalcy.

Students went to school Monday for the first time since leaders of a military coup imposed a shoot-on-sight curfew. The pupils traded stories of life during the invasion. Stores reopened.

The Pentagon said that during the first hours of the invasion, U.S. troops encountered heavy fire from Fort Frederick, 500 yards from the hospital on a neighboring hill overlooking St. George's harbor.

Agatha Harry, a nurse at Richmond Hill Institutions, said she thought as many as 46 patients had been killed, but administrators said they some patients might have wandered away unhurt and had not yet been found. The administration said those who died were probably elderly or bedridden and could not escape when the shelling began.

"I'm not saying it was deliberate," Anthony Roberts, one of the hospital administrators, said of the bombing. "It was during the attack on Fort Frederick," the 17th-century fortress which was Austin's headquarters.

To counter the attack from Fort Frederick, the Pentagon said, U.S. jets began a bombing strike "not knowing that there was a hospital in the complex." The hospital officials said all the fatalities occurred in the two wings closest to Fort Frederick.

In downtown St. George's, shoppers crowded the markets. An old man selling beer and cigarettes said, "It's the normal crowd."

On the streets, people were overheard comparing notes about who was alive, who was missing, whose house had been damaged.

"We have to look on the positive side," said Jane Belfon, Grenada's director of tourism. "The island is still as beautiful, the people are still as friendly and, thirdly, President Reagan has put us on the map. People now know where we are. This is not the end of everything."

Marine Lt. Michael Leonard, of the 2nd Battalion's Echo Company, was departing for Lebanon.

Halloween takes gruesome turns

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO
Associated Press Writer

Benign vampires capered through New York City streets amid Groucho-masked nuns and human-sized bread slices, but Halloween took a gruesome turn elsewhere, with deadly fires set by Detroit pranksters and shootings in two states that killed one girl and injured another.

Reports of tainted candy and goodies laden with pins and needles marred Monday night's holiday in Arizona, just over a year after the Tylenol poisonings in the Chicago area worried parents of trick-or-treaters.

But officials in other states reported a calm Halloween, made safer by curfews, organized events for children and X-ray stations where parents could bring treats to spot tampering.

"We just didn't see many trick-or-treaters out tonight," said police Lt. Jim Webb in Muskogee, Okla. "The city had little programs for the kids to go to—carnivals—and that kept a lot of them off the street."

However, in Macon, Ga., a 9-year-old girl died in a Georgia hospital today after she was wounded when an unknown gunman fired into a group of children as they were trick-or-treating Monday night, police said.

And in upstate New York, police said a man who answered his door

Quiet Halloween here

Pampa escaped the problems that plagued some areas of the country with a relatively quiet and safe Halloween night.

While several people called the Pampa Police Department complaining of "older kids" taking treats from little kids or smashing eggs, officers filed only four reports of criminal mischief last night.

Most of the ghosts, goblins and munchkins on the streets Halloween night apparently used the art of the gentle persuasion.

There were no reports of "spiked" treats or serious abuse to the trick or treaters.

expecting trick-or-treaters was shot with a rifle by one of two men in army fatigues and blackened faces. His 3-year-old daughter was also wounded.

The streets of New York City's Greenwich Village were thronged Monday night, but most of the 250,000 revelers were grown-ups playing at being children for one night for the 10th annual Halloween parade through the Bohemian heart of the city.

Costumes ranged from the sedate—a red, white and black painted face over a business suit—to the outrageous: a carton of milk, a seven-slice loaf of white bread, and an entire family of ancient Egyptians.

House expected to approve bill calling for withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill calling upon President Reagan to withdraw troops from Grenada within 60 days appears headed for passage in the Democratic House.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Monday that supporters of the measure, imposing the timetable of the War Powers Act on the invasion of the Caribbean island, appeared to have reason to anticipate "an overwhelming vote."

The measure was approved by the House Foreign Affairs Committee by a vote of 34-2 last week, with all of the Republicans supporting it despite Reagan's argument that the act encroaches on his constitutional authority as commander in chief.

The Senate passed an identical measure, 64-20 on Friday, with substantial Republican support, as an amendment to legislation increasing the limit on the national debt. Its future was clouded, however, by a dispute over the debt measure.

In preliminary debate in the House Monday, Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said, "The president's decision to ignore the War Powers Resolution ignored also the realities of the situation in Grenada."

But, Zablocki continued, the resolution was not intended to reflect on "the rights or wrongs" of the invasion but to declare that U.S. troops have been sent into hostilities and the War Powers Act must be obeyed.

Meanwhile, House leaders were putting together a delegation that O'Neill said would go to Grenada later this week and investigate "all facets" of the invasion.

He named Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, the Democratic whip, to head the delegation.

Foley said the group will want to know, among other things, "how long our presence on Grenada will continue."

And he said the inquiry will cover whether the 1,100 Americans living in Grenada were actually in danger before the U.S. troops moved in.

Another consideration listed by Foley is whether there was enough intelligence information available to support the forces, which encountered heavier resistance than anticipated from the Cubans who were there.

Six sailors die in carrier fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Navy men were killed and 35 injured today when flames raced through an engine aboard the aircraft carrier Ranger in the Arabian Sea, Navy sources said.

The fire was put out within about an hour and the 79,000-ton ship continued to operate in the approaches to the Persian Gulf, said officials who spoke on condition their names not be used.

The Ranger arrived in the Arabian Sea Oct. 3 after a voyage from Central America where the ship had taken part in "show-the-flag" exercises off the coast of Nicaragua.

Navy officials could not say what caused the fire. It will be investigated by a Navy board.

Meanwhile, Navy officials said the ship will be able to continue on station and will be able to launch and recover its aircraft.

Navy officials said most of the injured suffered from smoke inhalation and were not in serious condition.

The flames caused some damage to what were described as "its engineering spaces."

The fire broke out in one of four main engine rooms and an adjoining area deep in the conventionally powered ship, sources said.

After the initial flames were extinguished, there was a brief flareup of fire and that, too, was suppressed, they said.

Television anchorwoman vows to fight against court ruling

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Former television anchorwoman Christine Craft, vowing to appeal, says she's appalled that a judge threw out a $500,000 verdict in her sex discrimination case after citing "her apparent indifference to matters of appearance."

U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr. on Monday ordered a new trial, saying the jury verdict on Ms. Craft's allegations of fraud against Metromedia Inc. was excessive and resulted from "passion, prejudice, confusion or mistake."

He also ruled that her demotion by KMBC-TV was not the result of sex discrimination and criticized excessive publicity in the case.

"This totally throws out the jury's role and function," said Dennis Egan, an attorney for Ms. Craft.

Kenneth W. Green, foreman of the four-woman, two-man jury, said Monday he did not believe the jury was biased by the publicity.

"It's like a boxing match," Ms. Craft said today on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program. "But there are several rounds to go."

Earlier, in Milwaukee on a speaking tour, Ms. Craft said, "I am appalled. I am not surprised, however. I think as a reporter, I was prepared for the worst. I wasn't ready to pop any champagne corks yet."

Ms. Craft's lawyers said they were investigating whether the judge's decision could be appealed immediately to delay or prevent the start of the new trial, which Stevens set for Jan. 4 in Joplin, about 120 miles south of Kansas City.

"We are pleased with the outcome," said Sandra L. Schermerhorn, a lawyer for Metromedia. "We are very hopeful that the new trial on the issue of fraud will turn out favorably to Metromedia."

Ms. Craft, 38, had claimed that she was demoted from co-anchor of news broadcasts to reporter at KMBC-TV in Kansas City in August 1981 for being considered too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men. Metromedia owned the station then, but sold it to the Hearst Corp.

However, Stevens wrote in a 26-page ruling that KMBC-TV demoted Ms. Craft because her "below-average aptitude in matters of clothing and makeup" had damaged the station's ratings.

Citing Ms. Craft's "affinity for the beach life (while living in California) and her apparent indifference to matters of appearance," the judge said the station's actions were "appropriate to her unique circumstances."

The federal court jury that awarded Ms. Craft $500,000 in the fraud case in August had ruled against her on the equal pay issue, but had returned an advisory verdict in her favor on the sex discrimination complaint.

Egan said he would look for grounds to appeal Stevens' decision to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

'Hillside strangler' convicted of murder

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A jury summoned almost two years ago returned its first verdict in the "Hillside Strangler" cases - guilty of one murder - and now must decide whether a 50-year-old car upholsterer also killed nine other people and deserves to die.

Angelo Buono Jr. remained expressionless as the verdict was read Monday to a hushed, packed courtroom just 16 days before the trial's two-year anniversary on Nov. 16.

The trial, which included testimony from 392 witnesses and 1,807 exhibits and whose transcript ran almost 56,000 pages, is the longest criminal trial in the history of California and possibly the United States.

Buono was convicted of killing Lauren Rae Wagner, 18, a business college student from Los Angeles who was kidnapped near her parents' home on Nov. 28, 1977, burned with an electrical cord and then strangled. Her body was found the next day along Cliff Drive in the Glassell Park section of Los Angeles.

"For Mr. Buono, it's obviously got to be a setback," said one of his two attorneys, Katherine Mader. "Anytime someone has been convicted of something to send him to prison for the rest of his life, it's got to be a setback."

Buono was "disappointed," said his other attorney, Gerald Chaleff, who added that he intends to appeal any conviction.

In most of the Hillside Strangler cases, the victims, ranging in age from 12 to 28, were raped or otherwise sexually assaulted, strangled and their nude bodies dumped along Los Angeles-area hillsides.

Superior Court Judge Ronald George told the jurors, deliberating in seclusion since Oct. 20 on the 10 murder charges against Buono, to continue their deliberations today on the nine remaining murder counts. He also told them to consider whether there were special circumstances in the Wagner slaying that would make Buono eligible for the death penalty.

Administration sees no delay in European missile deployment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration is confident that demonstrators and a new arms control proposal by Soviet President Yuri Andropov will not delay the deployment of American nuclear missiles in Britain, West Germany and Italy next month.

But while all three countries will have "the necessary pieces" in December, the missiles in Italy probably will not be ready for firing until next March or April, officials indicated Monday.

"By the end of the year Germany and Britain will be ready, and the Italians will be well along the way," said a Pentagon official.

Despite the pressures that protesters are bringing on all three governments, "there is no change in the schedule, there is no delay," the official said.

Soviet strategy is focused on holding up the installation of the first round of U.S. ground-launched cruise and ballistic Pershing 2 rockets. Any delay could be interpreted as a slip in NATO's resolve to follow through on its 1979 deployment decision.

According to some published accounts, the missiles in all three countries may not be operational until next year. But Pentagon and State Department officials, interviewed on the understanding their names would be withheld, disagreed.

"Don't be surprised if the pieces are connected to the buttons in December," said one official. But when he was asked if he included Italy in this estimate, he replied, "no comment."

The first round involves 16 Tomahawk cruise missiles each for Britain and Italy and 9 Pershing 2 missiles for West Germany.

Eventually, Britain is to have 160 of the jet-propelled cruises, Italy 112, West Germany 96 as well as 106 of the Pershing 2s, and the Netherlands and Belgium 48 cruise missiles each.

"Of course there can always be a slip between cup and lip, but everything is on track," a State Department official said.

Justices refuse to let Texas authorities kill convicted killer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has left Texas' death penalty cases in limbo by refusing to drop a stay of execution for condemned killer James Autry, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox says.

Autry came within minutes of receiving a lethal injection Oct. 5 when Justice Byron R. White issued the stay the court upheld without comment Monday.

"We are chagrined by the court's decision because it effectively prevents the state from carrying out its necessary duties in death penalty cases," said Mattox, who traveled to Washington to personally ask that the stay be overturned.

Autry, 29, was strapped to a wheeled cot in the Texas death house with a needle in his arm when word of White's action reached him four minutes after his execution was to have started.

Autry was convicted and sentenced to death for gunning down Port Arthur grocery store clerk Shirley Drouet, 43, over a six-pack of beer. Also killed in the 1980 robbery was Joseph Broussard, a former priest.

White had said he spared Autry's life because the condemned man's appeal included an issue the Supreme Court already has under study.

At issue in a California case to be argued before the justices Nov. 7 is whether convicted murderers may be executed before a state court studies what punishment others receive for similar crimes.

A federal appeals court ruled in the California case that such a "proportionality review" is required in all death penalty cases. Mattox had assured the justices that Autry had received adequate "state court review of the appropriateness of his capital conviction."

Mattox said he would meet with Bell County authorities to decide whether an execution date should be set for Thomas Barefoot, the next of Texas' more than 160 death row inmates scheduled to die.

"Since the issue of proportionality was not raised in the Barefoot case, we suspect his attorneys will seek a stay of execution based on the Harris case," Mattox said.

A hearing is scheduled in Bell County Nov. 9 to set an execution date for Barefoot.

Mattox said authorities may proceed with the Barefoot case in an effort "to get a more definitive answer from the court" as to whether all Texas' death penalty cases must be put on hold.

John Duncan, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, praised Monday's ruling. "I would have been shocked if the court had done anything other than what they did," he said.

"The reason is that with the proportionality issue directly before the court, it could hardly allow Texas to conduct an execution when it is possible the court will come down with an opinion that the Texas scheme of things is constitutionally suspect," he said.

A&M cadet faces expulsion from corps over his fabricated rescue

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Clarence "Buddy" Brown's tale of rescuing a woman from three attackers, one armed with a razor, made him sound like the Good Samaritan and Bruce Lee rolled into one.

But the story was too good to be true. Now Brown faces possible expulsion from Texas A&M University's cadet corps if his peers agree with police, who say he fabricated the affair.

Administration officials plan no action, but the corps commander, Cadet Col. Preston Abbott, 21, of Longview, said the organization will not drop the case.

"We never like to hear of anybody lying, especially if it's one of us," Abbott said. "We're going to take him before the Cadet Court."

The case is to be heard this week. In Brown's initial account of the Oct. 16 fight, the 21-year-old junior recounted how he spun, kicked and punched the three men, knocking one six feet through the air and seriously injuring the ribs of another.

But Bob Wiatt, director of traffic and security for the school, was skeptical. His doubts led to a request that Brown take a polygraph. Brown failed, Wiatt said.

"There was no razor," Wiatt said. "There was no kung fu." Wiatt said the superficial wounds Brown sustained could have been caused by "a long fingernail."

Brown, who has resigned his membership in the civilian crime-fighting group, the Guardian Angels, admits he embellished the incident considerably.

The truth, he says, is that he interfered in an argument among friends and was pummeled for butting in.

"I guess I was embarrassed because I was trying to help people who really didn't need help," Brown said. "I was blowing it out of proportion."

Brown originally said he was jogging about 3 a.m. Oct. 16 when he saw three men assaulting a woman, who he said was screaming for help.

Brown said two of the men, one armed with a knife or small razor, ran at him. Brown said he ran between the pair, absorbing a cut on the forearm, then kicked the third man.

"He never saw what hit him. His back was to me the whole time," Brown told the student newspaper, The Battalion. He said he told the woman, whom he described as 5-4 and blond, to run, then one of the two men who first charged him struck him.

"I turned and gave him a forceful shove," Brown said. "I fought them for about five minutes because I wanted to give her enough time to get away."

During the fight, Brown said, he kicked one man in the ribs. "I hope I broke them because I heard something go," he said. Brown said he left that man "sagged out" in a parking lot and that the other two limped away.

Horror lives on for former POWs

By LYLE McBRIDE
TexasKana Gazette

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Time doesn't heal all wounds. Nearly 40 years after World War II ended, former prisoners of war are still struggling to escape nightmares from the past.

"The prison camp isn't over. You can control it when you're awake, but it comes right back at night," W.W. Nevill, 61, former Japanese POW, said while sitting in a fellow veteran's kitchen.

Across the table from Nevill, Ed Carter, 62, and Bill Thompson, 59, both former German POWs, sat nodding their heads in agreement. Nevill's horror began April 9, 1942, when U.S. forces in the Philippines surrendered to Japan and the Bataan Death March began. The horror continues in his subconscious, drowning his nights in cold sweat.

Thompson was captured Nov. 17, 1943, after his tank company was cut off and left without supplies. It was 266 days before his liberation by the Soviet Army, Carter said. "It seemed like 10 years," he said.

When Carter's B-17 bomber was shot down over Germany Oct. 8, 1943, he and five other crew members survived by parachuting, but were picked up and imprisoned by German soldiers. The details of prison life are still vivid, Carter said.

"I don't guess there isn't any way to ever forget the smell," he said. He took a brief, glassy-eyed reflection.

One common theme to the meetings is how POWs are treated by the government, Carter said. POWs are not understood by the government or the general public, Nevill said.

"If the general public could understand just one-quarter of what these people went through, and I say went through with flying colors, for their country, that would open their eyes. Then they would take a long, hard look at what they're doing for ex-POWs," he said.

"There's not a prisoner of war that wants sympathy. They want understanding," Nevill said.

Both Nevill and Thompson recounted times they were beaten and locked in dungeons. Carter said he was not aware of random beatings at his camp, but said conditions were poor.

Nevill weighed 196 pounds when captured, he said, but dropped to 97 pounds by the time he was released from his Japanese prison camp. Thompson said he too was malnourished when released.

A combination of hate and patriotism kept the men going.

"Hate's what got me through," Thompson said, clenching his fist. "We were treated like a pen full of hogs. Those Germans, some of them, didn't have a heart. If you died, you were just one less they had to guard."

Prisoners with Nevill at the POW camp in Japan were forced to work in coal mines 12 hours a day.

"They would just pick people out at random and literally beat them to death. They would do that just for their amusement," he said before he began to shake uncontrollably. He stopped talking and wiped his eyes.

The other two men looked away as he sobbed.

"The cruelty of the Japs was incomprehensible to most people, because it was so inhuman. I don't know how anyone made it," Nevill said. "I could sit here and tell you stories you couldn't print. I could tell you stories that you wouldn't sit here and listen to."

One of the problems facing

POWs, Thompson said, is that their stories are so bad people can't believe them.

"People just don't want to hear it," he said.

For the sake of POWs and those killed in prison camps, Nevill said, people need to hear the stories and need to understand.

Plea bargain on starving horses

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — An East Texas rancher accused of allowing more than 40 horses to starve on a ranch he leased entered a plea bargain agreement with federal prosecutors minutes before jury selection for his trial was scheduled to begin.

The federal government became involved in the case because many of the animals were obtained through the government's "Adopt-a-Horse" program aimed at reducing the population of wild horses on federal lands.

Joe Corbett pleaded guilty Monday to two counts of failing to notify authorities about the deaths of two horses under his care. In exchange, prosecutors dropped a conspiracy charge and six counts of inhumane treatment of animals.

U.S. District Judge William Steger set Dec. 5 as Corbett's sentencing date. Corbett faces a maximum penalty of

THEFT TRIAL TO BEGIN — Anthony Williams, left, exits the Dallas County Courthouse Monday. Williams goes on trial today on armed robbery charges. Williams robbery trial delayed

DALLAS (AP) — Jury selection was scheduled to begin today in the aggravated robbery trial of a young black engineer whose case has drawn national attention because of allegations that the charges against him were racially motivated.

Anthony Williams' trial was to have begun Monday, but it was delayed a day by State District Judge Ed Kinkeade because of the illness of the judge's infant son.

Williams, 25, moved to the Northeast Texas city of Greenville from South Carolina last year to go to work for E-Systems Inc., a major defense contractor.

He is charged with stealing $31 in the Aug. 22, 1982, armed robbery of a suburban Dallas convenience store. Williams says he is innocent.

Williams' former roommate and co-worker, 25-year-old Lenell Geter, received a life sentence last fall for a similar robbery Aug. 23, 1982, at a Balch Springs fast-food restaurant, despite testimony from 10 E-Systems employees that Geter was at work when the crime occurred.

NAACP attorney George Hairston had asked Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade to drop the charges against Williams until Geter's conviction could be appealed, but Wade refused, saying there is solid evidence against Williams and that the case is being handled like any other.

Williams' co-workers and civil rights groups contend the engineer was the victim of overzealous detective work and mistaken identification.

"All we need is a jury... that has justice in mind and doesn't just look at the color of my skin," Williams said. "The truth is, I'm innocent. The truth is, Lenell is innocent."

Williams and Geter were recent graduates of South Carolina State College working at $22,000 a year jobs at E-Systems when they came under investigation for robbery by the Greenville police department.

Prosecutors have attempted to depict the two as "recreational robbers" who lived on both sides of the law. "We feel very strongly for these guys," said Ed Garrett, an E-Systems supervisor who testified for Geter. "We feel it was a grave injustice."

Police say the two men were linked to the two crimes when a woman called Greenville police Lt. James Fortenberry and gave him the license number of a car she had spotted about two miles from the scene of another robbery.

The license number later was traced to Williams and Geter. Photographs of the pair later were identified by victims of separate robberies in Dallas County, police said.

The case against Williams centers on the testimony of a convenience store manager in Garland, who selected him from a lineup as the man who robbed her store of $31, prosecutors said.

Edwin M. Sigel, Geter's court-appointed Dallas attorney, said the FBI is looking into allegations of police misconduct and perjury by Texas authorities.

Meanwhile, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has agreed to a request by South Carolina Attorney General Travis Medlock to review Geter's case, which is under appeal.

Williams' and Geter's cases have drawn national attention, including investigations by CBS' "60 Minutes" and exposure on Phil Donahue's syndicated talk show.

"If we win this one, Geter will get out," said Lee Bowers of Estill, one of at least four lawyers assisting in the case. "But if we lose, it's going to be hard to recover."

Greyhound readies for delayed strike

DALLAS (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. officials say a possible strike — which had been scheduled to begin today — would shut down its bus service to 11 major Texas cities for at least a week.

Union officials rejected a "final" contract offer on Monday, but also delayed a strike deadline of 1 a.m. Tuesday until Wednesday at 1 a.m.

Greyhound, which is based in Scottsdale, Ariz., has 666 offices in Texas, company spokeswoman Beth Meyer said. Greyhound serves 11 major Texas cities — Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston, Laredo, Lubbock, and San Antonio — and intermediate points.

Workers authorized a strike against Greyhound Lines Inc. when the current three-year contract expired at 1 a.m. Tuesday.

But union president Harry Rosenblum said Monday afternoon that employees would keep working if progress was made at the bargaining table, and later said the deadline was delayed to help the public make alternate travel arrangements.

Greyhound, the nation's largest intercity bus carrier, has said it intends to keep its buses running, even if the union strikes. But Ms. Meyer said the carrier probably would suspend service for a week to a half.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Washington not up to the task

How does it feel to set a new record for deficit spending?

We know now, because the federal government ended its fiscal year Sept. 30 with a deficit of more than $200 billion. That's almost double in the record $110.7 billion deficit in the previous fiscal year.

And another big deficit is looming in the fiscal year we just started, FY 1984. This was the budget that candidate Ronald Reagan told us in 1980 he would balance if he were elected president.

The deficit means that in the fiscal year just ended, the federal government spent $1,000 per capita more than it received. That means the national debt expanded by $1,000 for every man, woman and child in America. Each person's share of the $1.3 trillion national debt is now about $6,500 and rising rapidly.

But who's worried? The government seems to be able to sell its treasury notes and bonds to investors without difficulty. The debt is expanding without driving up interest rates, which have actually been going down. The money supply is expanding, but not too rapidly. The amount of money in circulation is staying within the Federal Reserve Board's guidelines. Inflation has been curbed. The dollar is uncommonly strong overseas. The economic recovery is proceeding at a brisk but what seems to be a sustainable rate.

So why cry havoc? We aren't going to. But we are deeply disturbed. Something tells us that there is no free lunch, that the government cannot continue indefinitely to live off borrowed money and $600 billion a year in taxes without taking its toll on economic growth.

It is especially disturbing because all of this is happening with a fiscally conservative administration in office. If it can't bring about a balanced and pared down budget, who can?

In the past, the Democrats have assured us that a big national debt was good for the economy. Federal deficits were healthy for the economy, and they were not to be compared in any way to deficit spending by individuals or business firms. The Democrats are changing their tune, decrying the "Reagan deficits," but not with any real conviction.

There seems to be no hope of reducing the deficit soon. Democrats in Congress have voted to give the president almost all the new money he wants for defense spending. They are going to vote a great deal more money than he wants for domestic programs, and there's nothing much he can do about it. We don't look for any big confrontations this fall over presidential vetoes of spending bills. The mood in the White House is compromise. The Republicans don't have the stomach for the kind of spending cuts that would be necessary in order to balance the budget.

Raising taxes isn't the answer. While it's true, deficits do siphon capital away from private enterprise, so do tax increases. Raising the income tax - especially in the upper brackets - would only raid the capital markets through a different door.

Inflating to finance the deficits won't work either. That was Jimmy Carter's approach, and yet the results were disastrous: three years of soaring prices and zero economic growth from which we are only this year emerging from both.

The real solution would be to cut spending, but no one of influence in Washington seems up to the task. When the day of reckoning comes, many of them probably won't be around, anyway.

Legal Services critics right

NEW YORK (NEA) - Defenders of the Legal Services Corp. like to depict it as a high-minded federal agency that provides free legal services to the poor. Its critics charge that, on the contrary, it is a device for making the taxpayers pay the salaries of about 7,000 hot-eyed leftist lawyers, many of whom then spend their time waging war on the "system" through any zany class action lawsuits and other dubious legal maneuvers.

If you think the critics are exaggerating, consider the evidence adduced by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, in a recent series of hearings before the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, which he chairs.

Take, for example, a remarkable document called "The Law and Direct Citizen Action," published by the Legal Services Corp. in November 1981 for the benefit of any citizen who feels like taking "direct action." Noting that it is sometimes necessary to obtain a permit before staging a demonstration, the book's authors then thoughtfully add:

"The group may feel that surprise or catching the target off guard is a major part of its strategy, so it does not want to apply for the necessary permits. This is a decision that the group should be able to make, as long as it is aware of its decision."

In other words, if you really want to zap the police don't tip them off by applying for a permit.

And the American Bar Association, which has foolishly supported the LSC, presumably on the theory that it's good for business, will be interested in this passage on getting legal advice before a hearing:

"There is nothing wrong, however, with a group milking a lawyer for all she or he knows and can offer up until the hearing, and then firing the lawyer so they (can) present the story on their own."

Mind you, the above pieces of advice were published with funds appropriated out of your taxes, by the Congress of the U.S.

Many LSC lawyers and bureaucrats regard congressional limitations on the corporation's activities as mere inconveniences, to be circumvented rather than obeyed. Bea Moulton, the former director of the Office of Program Service, warned one consultant:

"We need to discuss the other grants you propose to make. They all call for worthwhile, very important activity, but as described on your forms, it may be the very kind of activity Congress has specifically prohibited us from funding. Maybe they can be turned into training proposals."

"Training" is, in fact, one of LSC's favorite ruses. In 1981, when the Reagan administration was trying unsuccessfully to get Congress to abolish the LSC altogether, Legal Services of Eastern Missouri sought funds for a leftist whizzit called "the Coalition for Sensible and Human Solutions." Despite a flat congressional prohibition against lobbying, LSC subsequently funded "training programs" by this coalition designed to: "Educate and inform community activists about current federal, state and local budget cutting activities; and share and develop strategies for fighting back."

Sen. Hatch has asked Attorney General William French Smith to ascertain whether, among other things, "Corporation staff and staff of the grantees intentionally circumvented and violated congressional prohibitions against lobbying and political activity."

If it turns that they did, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that a number of these cocky, leftist Treasury-looters may spend the next few years trying to think up ingenious ways to talk themselves out of a federal penitentiary.

Meanwhile, Sen. Hatch will ask it to amend legislation appropriating fresh funds for the LSC to prevent abuses of the above sort from ever happening again. A better idea yet would be to revive President Reagan's original proposal and abolish LSC outright - lock, stock and barrel.

Needlepoints

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, a black man, has announced he's running for the presidency and will choose a woman for a running mate. If he also promised to choose two Jews and a cripple for his cabinet, wonder if he'd meet the same fate at Interior Secretary James Watt.

Not all members of Congress stayed home with constituents during August's "district work period." Some visited foreign dictators. Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., was charmed by Nicaragua's junta chief Daniel Ortega. Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., "heard the prime minister's point of view" on a visit to Polish boss Jaruzelski. And Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., visited Marxist Ethiopian ruler Lt. Col. Mengistu Hail Mariam, remarking that "we could not have been more warmly received." What was that old saying about birds of a feather.

There was a Capitol Hill symposium recently on the deteriorating infrastructure, recommending the usual massive spending. Guess who paid for the programs and lunch? The American Consulting Engineers Council, the National Asphalt Pavement Association, the National Crushed Stone Association, the National Limestone Institute, the National Society of Professional Engineers and the Portland Cement Association. Strictly in the spirit of public service, of course.

Detroit really builds 'em better

Old-timers are inclined to remember early automobiles as they never really were, to endowed them with a reliability and durability they never really had.

Some of today's American-made automobiles are the finest such machines ever built, in all ways improved over any heretofore.

Might you drive your next car in a million miles? You might.

"Machine Design" tells us something about trucks which can tell us something about our cars.

With soaring costs, American fleet operators need to keep their expensive trucks rolling longer.

A big-rig (tractor-trailer) regularly travels 800 miles a day. Driven in two eight-hour shifts, it can easily cover 200,000 miles a year.

Prudent fleet operators want trucks that are rugged, durable and reliable - and they provide preventive maintenance to keep cargos moving.

A truck is never retired until those maintenance costs exceed the rate of return on investment.

They used to trade in a big rig after three to four years, after 500,000 miles or so, primarily because by then the power-train required rebuilding.

Not any more.

Today's gears and bearings are so much improved, transmissions are so beefed-up, lubrication is so much improved, that more and more fleet operators are keeping their trucks rolling for a million miles.

Further, they are now getting as much work out of a 611 cubic inch diesel engine as they used to get out of an 855 and at great saving in fuel cost.

With careful maintenance, the engine that used to require replacement of worn parts after a quarter-million miles - can now go half a million miles without a major overhaul.

Most heavy-duty trucks have manual transmissions which are now so rugged that, unless abused, they never wear out!

With care, a heavy-duty clutch is good for 150,000 miles.

Most of the big rigs are now equipped for on-board greasing which lubricates the chassis without stopping.

You in your car would have to tend to lubrication as personally as religiously as theirs do automatically.

There is nothing mysterious about million-mile maintenance. It is all spelled out in the owner's manual which comes with each new car.

But most of us - face it - never read it - or never heed it.

We'd rather complain that Detroit "builds them to fall apart." Truckers have proved otherwise.

Force not the American way

Is it the business of the U.S. to carry a big stick throughout the world, sending our armed forces here, there and elsewhere to keep order?

I voted for Ronald Reagan because he stood for more freedom, less force - more voluntary action, less government. Remember the Reagan of 1981 who asked Congress to reduce taxes 10 percent a year for three years?

A few months after he took office, he discovered the U.S. had fewer missiles than the Russians. He reacted strongly, announcing that we must build armament fast.

If Soviet Russia was planning to attack the U.S., why did it not do so then, when it had the edge on us?

America stands for freedom; Soviet Russia for force, Communist style. Oddly enough, we are now using force, and the threat of more force, widely. According to Associated Press, the U.S. has 2,100,000 men and women under arms. About 25 percent of them are in foreign countries, the largest contingents being in West Germany and South Korea. Many more are on naval ships at sea. Some have already seen action (Beirut, Grenada) and others have their guns loaded.

"We cannot pick and choose where we support freedom," says President Reagan.

This implies that we must fight wherever anti-freedom forces, egged on by Soviet Russia, become violent. Reagan evidently sees the U.S. as the peacekeeper of the world - a sort of global policeman.

After living through two World Wars, I question whether the role of global policeman will lead to anything but World War III. A more promising policy would be to remain out of the quarrels of other countries and prepare to defend only our own shores. This would mean keeping our guns, planes, battleships, and the personnel to man them here in North America, in a defensive position. Every able bodied person should learn to shoot a gun and shoot it straight, but only when fired upon. Foreign travel and trade, but not foreign war, should be encouraged. Such a policy would gain the support of a large majority of the American people.

Meanwhile, we could and should respond to the need and starvation that prevails in various parts of the world by the giving of food, which we produce in lavish abundance, and other necessities to people in areas such as Chad, East Africa, Bolivia, India, Vietnam, and wherever the worst hunger spots are.

Rich as we are, thanks to the free, capitalist system under which we live, we cannot feed the world, but we can do more than we have, especially if we devote less of our resources to making bullets and more to making bread. It is possible we could stave off at least some of the famines that threaten.

Certainly this kind of world policy would make far more friends for us throughout the world than will a policy of force, which can lead nowhere but to war and destruction.

Freedom, not force, is the American way. We can "support freedom" best by practicing freedom, not by adopting the Communist technique of force.

Humans will face extinction in nuclear war

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major nuclear war could easily destroy the world's Northern Hemisphere and so badly damage the Southern Hemisphere that the surviving humans would starve, a scientist warns.

"If we have a full-scale nuclear war everyone is going to suffer, perhaps to the point of death," Paul E. Ehrlich of Stanford University told reporters Monday.

Ehrlich made his comments during a conference on the long-term effects of nuclear war. He and Carl Sagan of Cornell University represented about 100 scientists involved in the two-year study.

"The bottom line is the population of survivors ... are going to be starving to death in a cold, dark, smoggy world," Ehrlich said. "We have a very good reason to be scared."

"The extinction of the human species would be a real possibility," added Sagan.

Major and disastrous changes in climate could be triggered by even a relatively small nuclear war, and those changes would destroy crops and endanger millions of people.

Sagan estimated that a major nuclear exchange would kill 1.1 billion people and critically injure a similar number. There are about 4.7 billion people in the world.

The blast would also inject a huge dust cloud into the atmosphere cutting off sunlight and causing temperatures to drop well below freezing for weeks, Sagan said.

Sagan added that a nuclear war would damage the ozone layer allowing dangerous ultraviolet radiation after the dust settled, would fill the air with toxic chemicals from the burning of synthetics and would result in long-term radiation hazards as radioactive dust settled back to Earth.

Many of these effects have not been considered in earlier studies, he said.

Sagan said the predictions were based on a nuclear war involving 5,000 megatons of explosives, or about one-third of the arsenal of the Soviet Union and United States. The consequences would be more or less severe depending on the amount of weapons and how they were used, he said.

Senate investigators find costly aircraft part

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Dynamics Corp., the prime contractor for the F-16 fighter, offered the Air Force a cutting tool for the aircraft's support system for $1,158, but Senate investigators decided some comparative shopping was needed.

Picking up the telephone, staff members of the Governmental Affairs Committee called a California supply firm and ordered the same item for $5, according to a statement issued Monday by the panel's chairman, Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del.

With the same phone call, investigators ordered another cutting tool needed to maintain the F-16. The cost was $9, or $895 less than General Dynamics' pricetag.

"These are common machine shop tools in the aerospace industry and can be ordered from supply catalogs," said Roth, whose committee plans to resume hearings Wednesday into the cost of aircraft parts and support equipment.

Roth said the investigators found other examples of "gross overpricing," including $9,609 for a hexagonal-shaped Allen wrench he valued at 12 cents and $9,836 for a $1 spacer.

Bad management causes problems

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Plain nonsense, says Prof. Eugene Jennings when he hears America's economic problems blamed on a lost ability to produce, and a badly eroded work ethic. "Horsefeathers," he snaps.

Instead, the professor blames bad management, going so far as to say the recent recession was unlike any other since the 1930s in that it can be laid at the doorstep of those who managed corporations.

Jennings is delivering that message these days to assemblies of corporate executives and directors, who traditionally meet at this time of year to consider their company's vital issues.

This year the big subject is revitalization, and Jennings is telling them they probably cannot succeed in that goal unless they admit that management itself might have sapped the corporation's strength.

What happened, "was a direct result of unearned, easy growth in the 1960s" that caused many companies to become smug about success, and to institutionalize practices they felt were responsible for it.

They produced "a highly rigid, bureaucratic and authority-oriented" corporation with an "ossified management structure" that couldn't contend with tougher times of the 1970s.

"Management became inner-directed, employees were neglected and middle management was taken for granted," said Jennings, professor of business administration at Michigan State University.

Morale sagged, and innovation was discouraged. Growth became forced, often through acquisitions. In effect, corporate chiefs became portfolio managers rather than business developers.

They paid themselves well for the misdirected ideas. "Rewards for top management accrued regardless of performance and increases in shareholder values," says Jennings, an adviser to corporate chairmen.

In less than 10 years, he says, top management accrued in real dollars about 2.5 times their wages of the 1960s.

After one week on Grenada, U.S. records success, setbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American-led occupation of Grenada began its second week today with officials hopeful that U.S. battlefield successes are not overshadowed by accidents and public relations setbacks that have haunted the operation since the beginning.

Grass roots support for President Reagan's policies on the island appeared to remain substantial but officials acknowledged Monday there had been disappointments.

The Defense Department, after greeting initial reports with skepticism, acknowledged Monday that a U.S. bomber trying to knock out artillery fire on the first day of the invasion struck a civilian mental hospital, leaving a reported 14 dead. The attack occurred three days before defense officials boasted no civilians were killed in the invasion.

Wounded Army troops brought to Walter Reed Medical Center said 19 soldiers were injured because an American plane called in for an air strike hit their

War fleeing, tourism endures

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking for an unspoiled little find in the Caribbean, a communist getaway whose Marxist government "needn't worry tourists" with beaches devoid of camera-toting riff-raff?

Consider Grenada, urges Glamour magazine in its November issue.

"This breezy little Windward island, peering out of turquoise-blue waters, has heavenly white beaches, small hotels with charm and perhaps the prettiest capital in the entire Caribbean, St. George's," the magazine reported in a piece on Caribbean vacations prepared before the invasion.

The capital's streets now are cluttered not with camera-toting tourists but with gun-toting U.S. soldiers after a multinational force invaded the island nation a week ago.

And the non-worrisome communist regime is even less of a problem after the assassination two weeks ago of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and the surrender on Monday of Gen. Hudson Austin, who led the Marxist military junta which seized control after Bishop's death.

The Defense Department says 18 U.S. servicemen have been killed in the invasion.

New American awareness of Caribbean

By HENRY S. ACKERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Informed American diplomats, historians and analysts agree: the invasion of Grenada proves the United States must do more homework and spend more money on the Caribbean region.

The aftershocks of the invasion and occupation may pave the way toward closer relations between the United States and its southern neighbors in the hemisphere — and for governments that are more to American liking than Cuba's Soviet-supported Marxism, these experts say.

A historian who specializes in Central America, just back from a research trip through Nicaragua, says the lesson of Grenada may be that the U.S. will no longer allow even the appearance of communism in its own backyard.

Michael Doyle, a Princeton University international affairs specialist, said Americans must remember that the implications of Grenada are different in the rest of the world.

"Domestically, it looks like this is a political coup for Reagan that makes many Reagan supporters delighted and many Reagan opponents quite angry," Doyle said. "For Grenada and the Caribbean, it means the U.S. rescued Grenada from a brutal thuggish dictatorship."

Most experts agree that the Grenada invasion was "a significant blow" to the Cuban government. In one stroke, the Cubans lost men, a strategic air base and a friendly government, and they offered no military response. But the experts also agree that the Grenada campaign will not necessarily change the policies of other nations in the Caribbean.

However, some U.S. diplomats in Latin America, who spoke on condition they not be identified, believe the invasion begins a new era.

One, a former ambassador, noted that unlike Central American and South America, political violence and war have not been a part of the English-speaking Caribbean's recent history. Cuban military involvement in Grenada was a "total distortion" of this non-military tradition, he said.

"Grenada means that we are trying to demonstrate that the U.S. is prepared to use military force to protect American lives; that the U.S. does recognize a security problem and that...we recognize that Soviet effort to promote their own interests in the area next to us and weapons has got to be dealt with more effectively," he said.

The action on Grenada is widely seen as a message to Cuba and the Soviet Union that there are risks in trying to extend their influence in this part of the world.

But there is also a price to this type of military action, some diplomats concede. The tranquility of not being involved in a war in this hemisphere in this century is what one calls "a luxury that has allowed us to play a larger role in the rest of the world."

Professor hid among corpses during attack

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Dr. Joe Jordan, an American anatomy professor, hid in an icy morgue, talking to his silent companions — all cadavers — while U.S. Marines exchanged gunfire with the People's Revolutionary Army last week.

"I can't say what happened exactly because I was in the cooler with the cadavers," Jordan said Monday. "I didn't hear any Cubans outside. I heard only Americans. I was doing a lot of talking to cadavers."

The walls of classrooms at St. George's University School of Medicine, where American students once studied to become doctors, are riddled with bullet holes. Plate glass windows are shattered.

Outside the main building, a U.S. Marine Corps helicopter lies on the beach, its wheels sinking into the sand as a reminder of trouble on the tropical island.

Officials aren't sure whether the helicopter was shot down or crashed after its blade clipped a palm tree. Its windows and fuselage were pockmarked with bullet holes.

Jordan, who is in his 30s, says he hugged his dog for warmth as American forces escorted the last 230 students off the campus Wednesday, the day after American and Caribbean forces invaded Grenada. The dog, a mongrel, wore a white bandana Jordan had tied around its neck.

The anatomy professor said the shooting started that afternoon after PRA members went into a field behind the school — away from the beach area.

He said the U.S. forces rushed onto the campus, formerly a resort hotel, and opened fire at the army in the field.

The students, who were being led to safety by the troops, took only their passports with them and left everything else behind.

There was a heavy crossfire, Jordan said, but no one was hurt. Then, he went from room to room, checking to make sure that everyone got out safely. Everyone did.

Jordan said he stayed behind because he considers Grenada home.

Clergy threatened

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Roman Catholic leaders are planning a national protest Wednesday because of attacks on a bishop and eight churches by backers of Nicaragua's leftist government, and a rightist death squad is threatening El Salvador's archbishop.

In Managua, Monsignor Bismark Carballo, spokesman for the Nicaraguan church, Monday announced plans for a protest in response to the attacks Sunday by Sandinista demonstrators upset by church criticism of a new military conscription law.

In El Salvador, a rightist death squad Monday warned the country's two top church leaders they can't "hide behind their vestments" if they continue using Sunday homilies to conduct what it called a pro-communist "campaign of misinformation."

The Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez Anti-Communist Brigade claimed to have "evidence" that Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas and Auxiliary Bishop Gregorio Rosa Chavez are in contact with leftist guerrillas fighting to overthrow the government.

Rivera y Damas and Rosa Chavez have called for dialogue with the rebels to end the four-year war and have urged the government to crack down on the death squads.

Rosa Chavez declined to respond to the threat; Rivera y Damas was unavailable for comment.

An unidentified gunman assassinated San Salvador Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an outspoken defender of the poor, in March 1980 as he celebrated Mass at the Metropolitan Cathedral.

In Nicaragua, the church's call for a protest came after pro-government demonstrators beat up Managua Auxiliary Bishop Bosco Vivas on Sunday and attacked at least eight churches, forcing priests to cancel Mass.

A month-old conscription law ordered 200,000 men and women between the ages of 17 and 40 to register for military service by Jan. 1. Of these, 15,000 will be inducted immediately and the rest called up in case of war. The registration deadline for 17-to-22-year-olds expires today.

Sandinista supporters have been harassing church officials since Nicaraguan bishops published a letter Sept. 30 calling the conscription law "totalitarian."

Farm commodity prices holding steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's index of farm commodity prices held steady in October, reflecting a give-and-take that saw gains in one group canceled by market declines in another.

Even so, prices on the average were up 6.2 percent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Monday in a monthly report.

Officials said lower prices for hogs, broilers, potatoes, oranges and wheat in October offset price increases for lettuce, strawberries, grapefruit, tomatoes and milk.

Prices farmers pay to meet expenses, meaning their costs, were unchanged from September but averaged 5 percent above a year earlier.

Drought and the government's payment-in-kind program reduced crop production sharply this year, which has helped push prices higher this season. In October, the report said, those were up 20 percent from a year earlier.

Food prices this year have climbed 2 percent, the smallest annual increase since 1967, compared to a 4 percent gain in 1982. Department economists said food prices may rise 4 percent to 7 percent in 1984, with drought accounting for 1 to 1.5 percentage points of the increase.

James R. Donald,

chairman of the department's outlook board, said 1984 "is likely to be one of continued adequate food and fiber supplies, but at modestly higher prices."

Donald, speaking to USDA's annual agricultural outlook conference which opened Monday, said the projected 1984 boost of 4 percent to 7 percent in food prices will reflect "stronger demand that will accompany the economic growth" of the nation, along with higher marketing costs and higher prices at the farm.

Farm income next year "could exceed" the 1983 estimate of $24 billion to $26 billion — which is up from the depressed level of about $22 billion in 1982, Donald said.

"The drought is having a mixed effect on farm income in 1983," he said. "Smaller crop production has helped crop prices, while increased livestock slaughter has hurt prices" in the short term.

In the preliminary October figures, which are based mostly on mid-month averages, the index for food grain crops — which includes wheat and rice — was down 2.6 percent from September but was 4.3 percent above a year ago.

Commercial vegetable prices in October were up 17 percent from September and averaged 39 percent more than a year earlier. Fruit prices were 7.5 percent more than in September but down 4.1 percent from a year ago, the report said.

The price index for meat animals declined 1.4 percent from September and was down 9.9 percent from October of last year.

Dairy prices in October were up 1.4 percent from September but down seven-tenths of a percent from a year ago.

Overall, farm prices in October averaged 136 percent of a 1977 base price average used for comparison, according to the preliminary figures. The index in September was 136 percent revised down by one point from the preliminary figure issued a month earlier.

The October parity ratio was 56 percent, the same as in September. A year ago it was 55 percent.

Meas moves to block Gulf proposal

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Mesa Petroleum Co., which has been buying Gulf Oil Corp. stock, says it has filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission to oppose Gulf's proposal to reincorporate as a Delaware holding company.

The preliminary proxy materials were filed Monday for a counter-solicitation against the proposal, which is scheduled for a vote by Gulf shareholders Dec. 2.

Mesa and a group of other investors, who have committed up to $1 billion to purchase Gulf stock, have said they would fight the proposal. The group already has purchased 10.8 percent of Gulf's outstanding stock.

Mesa also said it was exercising its right under Pennsylvania law to demand access to Gulf's list of shareholders and other corporate records.

In an amended filing with the SEC last week, Mesa made provisions to protect its Gulf stock from any takeover attempt, the Amarillo Globe-News reported.

The documents provided for the Gulf stock to go to another member of the investors' group if a majority of Mesa stock is bought by another company without approval of Mesa's board of directors.

Mesa vice president John Boros declined to comment further on Mesa's action Monday.

Dear Abby

Marriage is possible without blood tests

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This letter is regarding "No Mrs. in Manhattan," who complained that her live-in lover, "Bobby," wouldn't marry her because he was terrified of needles, and he couldn't get married in New York without a blood test. To add to her problems, she was pregnant.

You suggested that Bobby see a "shrink" or consider hypnosis. You missed a painless solution, Abby. They could come to Nevada, obtain a marriage license without a blood test and get married the same day.

And by the way, divorce in Nevada is almost as quick and painless as marriage.

JACK IN NEVADA

DEAR JACK: Thanks for the good news from the most popular hitching and unhitching post in the United States. Read on for some sunny news from California:

DEAR ABBY: Please advise "No Mrs. in Manhattan" to take Bobby to California, because the law there states that when an unmarried man and an unmarried woman, not minors, have been living together as husband and wife, they may, without a license and without obtaining health certificates, be married by any person authorized to solemnize a marriage.

MRS. IN LOS ANGELES

DEAR MRS.: California may not be the only state in which this law prevails. And because state laws change from day to day, I repeat my advice: If you have a legal problem, hire a lawyer and pay him (or her) for what he knows. The person who tries to be his own lawyer has a fool for a client. Even lawyers hire lawyers to represent them.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "No Mrs. in Manhattan," whose boyfriend was afraid to get married because of the blood test, to come to Arkansas. As of July of this year, the state of Arkansas no longer requires blood tests for marriage license applications. All we require is that the couple apply together, provide proof of age and $20 in cash.

I realize Arkansas is a long way from Manhattan, but the trip probably wouldn't be as painful to Bobby as the needle.

PHYLLIS MALLARD
DEPUTY COUNTY CLERK
CRAWFORD COUNTY, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: I am the holder of a mortgage on property sold to a relative. Payments are due the first day of each month. This relative dutifully writes the checks and dates them on the first day of the month, but the checks are not mailed until later, and some have arrived as late as the 11th! This infuriates me.

Apart from the interest that might be earned on the payments, and the concern that the check may be lost in the mail, the late arrival necessitates multiple trips to the bank and other inconveniences.

The law provides a 30-day grace period before a late payment penalty can be invoked.

Can you suggest a solution?

STEAMED

DEAR STEAMED: If the relative lives in your city, pick up the check on the first day of every month—or have someone pick it up for you. It may get your relative's back up, but it will keep your blood pressure down.

...

DEAR ABBY: When you printed the letter from the mortician who was fed up with jokes about his job, such as "I'll bet people are just dying to do business with you" and "How's business? Dead, huh?" I think you did him more harm than good when you replied, "All men are cremated equal."

I am only 13 years old, but I know a put-down when I hear (or read) one.

A.C. IN GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR A.C.: I apologize to all morticians who were offended. They should not have been. The final put-down is theirs.

P.S. Orchids to the mortician who wrote: "Don't let it bother you, Abby, most people in this business have a good sense of humor. Sign me... GRAVE-DIGGER IN WEST ISLIP, N.Y."

Help is available for unhappy buyers

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The dining table is less than a year old, but already the legs are wobbling and the finish is wearing off. You've complained to the retailer and gotten no satisfaction.

Do you chalk this up to experience and absorb the loss or look further for satisfaction?

One option open to consumers who have a grievance regarding recently purchased furniture is to contact FICAP — the Furniture Industry Consumer Advisory Panel — for help in resolving problems.

The non-profit, voluntary group sponsored by the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association can help by obtaining a review of your complaint from the store or manufacturer involved. Not everyone recognizes FICAP, but many businesses do, so it is worth a try.

FICAP advises that whenever you buy furniture, you write down the name and address of the store where purchased and the manufacturer, if known, as well as the date of purchase. Keep a copy of the sales slip, style number and finish or fabric color and list any unusual characteristics of the piece or unusual circumstances regarding purchase. Keep this information together with any warranty and use-and-care information in a safe place where it can be found if needed.

Although few manufacturers or retailers offer formal warranties at the time of sale, most endorse an informal guarantee that covers their products against defects that appear within a year of manufacture.

The type of defects you should not expect to find within a year include loosening of glued joints, delamination, warping and splitting of wood. Manufacturers of upholstered furniture rarely warrant upholstery fabric, but springs and filling should be covered by an informal warranty for about a year.

Recently, the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association published three booklets to help people shopping for furniture make a more knowledgeable choice. The booklets cover a purchase of wood and upholstered furniture and are available for $1 from the association, as is a free pamphlet explaining FICAP.

The booklet titled "Dos and Don'ts When You Buy Furniture" explains that the type of store you shop at determines the kind of services you might expect.

A full-service furniture store or department will usually provide the most service — including credit, free delivery, installation, service warranties, polishing and touch-up of furniture and decorating assistance.

Furniture chains and warehouses offer fewer frills in return for lower prices. Often they may charge for delivery and require you to serve yourself. An advantage, besides the lower prices, may be that the warehouse has all the furniture it sells in stock for immediate use.

To make furniture shopping pleasant, FICAP suggests that you consider ahead of time which services are important. Don't try to find decorating advice and full services in a warehouse store, since you will be disappointed. On the other hand, if immediate delivery and low price are paramount, don't go to a full-line store expecting these.

"When You Buy Wood Furniture" explains how to examine a piece of wood furniture for quality and value. Use both the hand and the eye, it advises, checking for overall smoothness with no rough areas to suggest inadequate sanding. Beware of streaks in the finish, excess finish in corners, poorly finished or unfinished areas that do not show and loose-fitting hardware.

You should operate all moving parts to be sure they function satisfactorily. Table leaves, drop lids, flip tops, adjustable shelves, interior lights, pull-out trays and drawers should function smoothly, fit properly and be convenient to operate.

Tall pieces such as china cabinets and wall units should have levelers to compensate for uneven floors, and drawers should have automatic stops to keep them from accidentally coming all the way out. The best drawers have wood side and back panels about half an inch thick and are joined by dovetailed joints. Drawer interiors should be smooth, and beware of any that are nailed or stapled together or fitted with poorly-secured hardware.

In "When You Buy Upholstered Furniture," it is explained that with upholstered pieces a high price, does not necessarily mean high quality workmanship. The price may reflect the use of a costly fabric on an indifferent frame.

Searching for quality begins with the frame of the upholstered piece. A heavy and substantial frame indicates thick hardwood stock has been used. If you try lifting the piece by one end, there should be no wobble or creak — a sign of improperly dried stock.

(To obtain the three booklets and the free pamphlet "FICAP — A Furniture Consumer's Guide," send $1 to When You Buy, P.O. Box 2436, High Point, NC 27261.

Starts tomorrow and lasts through November 12.

Beautiful Savings On Beautiful Flooring

Furniture-maker retains pride in his craftsmanship

In an age of mass production, Sam Maloof makes furniture by hand. In an age when experts flaunt doctoral degrees to indicate their skill, he is self-taught. In an age which seems to denigrate physical labor and to take materials for granted, he regards both with reverence.

Maloof, who is one of America's most honored furniture craftsmen, is an original whose unusual attitudes and uncommon skills have brought him fame and a small measure of riches.

His solid wood furniture hewn from walnut, mahogany and oak has been exhibited in the Smithsonian and other museums, and at the Vatican.

His work has been the subject of films, television programs and articles.

Recently, one of the rocking chairs which remain his most popular design was acquired for the White House. President Reagan informed the maker it is the first piece of contemporary furniture brought into the White House in memory.

Though he rarely strays far from the workshop and home he has built over the past 30 years in the middle of a lemon grove in Southern California, Maloof was in New York recently to celebrate publication of his book on his life and work.

During his visit, he pointed out that despite the fact mass production methods are required to satisfy the demand for home furnishings, the handmade object still has relevance to people's lives today.

Maloof believes people hunger for the handmade object as an antidote to industrialized society and because the creativity and pleasure experienced in its making is communicated to the user.

Maloof, who became a commercial artist after serving in the Army during World War II, first made furniture for himself. The furniture he designed and built for his own small tract house was photographed by a national magazine, and the resulting publicity brought him his first commission.

On the strength of the order, he quit his job and opened a woodworking studio. The first order was a small one and the first studio was in his garage. But over the years, orders became more plentiful and Maloof built a well-equipped workshop and a home for his wife and children.

At present Maloof has a backlog of about 100 orders, some for as many as 30 pieces of furniture. When a new order comes in, he must regretfully explain that delivery will take from six months to three years, depending on the amount and intricacy of the work.

His most popular design — the rocking chair which sells for $4,000 at present — he makes up five at a time. Orders for 30 such rockers form part of his backlog.

Maloof has his own priorities. For example, he says, "babies don't wait," so when an order for a cradle comes in, he drops everything and gets right to work on it.

Instead, he builds each piece of furniture one at a time, usually changing the proportions of the chairs to accommodate the individual for whom it is intended.

As a rule, one or two young woodworkers are employed to help him and at the same time learn woodworking skills. However, he himself builds each piece of furniture that bears his signature.

The furniture-maker has kept a record of each piece he has made and can tell who has bought it and where it is now located. Often he remains in correspondence with clients who soon become family friends. And if eventually the furniture needs refinishing or repair, Maloof considers it his duty to do the work himself. When the purchaser lives nearby, he is likely to deliver the piece himself.

Maloof regrets that prices for his work have gone up in recent years. Dining chairs may start at $2,200; tables range from $1,500 to $8,000. But, though many of his clients are affluent, this unassuming man is happy to report that his furniture is owned by people of moderate means who may buy a chair and then pay for it a little each month.

Eight million mothers raise their children alone

In the United States today, almost eight million women are raising their children alone, and by 1990 — just seven years away — one in two children can expect to spend a large part of life with mother only.

Single mothers, Redbook magazine says in the November issue, "have very little help and not much money, but with a lot of love and courage, millions are holding their families together." The plight of these single mothers, says economist John Kenneth Galbraith, "is one of the most serious problems of our time."

Ripped emotionally by a failed marriage and divorce, most of them plagued by a shortage of money, these single parents must assume responsibility for the children's physical and psychological well-being. But, somehow, they cope, many of them surprisingly well.

Says Richard Wortman, a clinical psychologist at University Hospitals in Cleveland, "That these women do as well as they do against incredible odds is a testament to the tenacity of the human spirit."

Lack of enough money is a major problem. Redbook cites these grim statistics: One year after divorce, a woman's standard of living has decreased 73 percent while her husband's has increased 42 percent. Three years after divorce, only 19 percent of fathers continue to pay alimony or child support. More than half of all households headed by women live in poverty, and the percentage is increasing.

And in the past year, government-funded programs for child care, food stamps, health-care benefits and public assistance have been cut by $10,000,000.

"The bottom line," says Redbook, "is that when a family is financially secure, children have a better chance for happiness no matter how many parents are at home." But, no matter how heated parental battles become, "children usually say they prefer two angry parents to one happy one."

The article says that professional counseling, divorce mediation and family therapy all can help. So, too, can restoration of funds cut off by the federal government.

Galbraith terms the assistance lost through reductions in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program "one of the cruelest actions of the Administration." But in the long run, Galbraith warns, the burden of the single mother cannot either be blamed or corrected by government. "It reflects a deep social change."

Redbook quotes Letty Cottin Pogrebin, author of the book "Family Politics": "It's unfair to hold the family structure hostage to a lost ideal. We are living through a crucial period in social history. It's time to realize that a woman with her children is a family, one that deserves all our respect and honor."

Redskins edge Chargers, 27-24

SAN DIEGO (AP) — For a few anxious minutes, Mark Moseley knew what it felt like to be in Neil O'Donoghue's shoes. After missing four field goals in Monday night's game against San Diego, Moseley was fighting a case of nerves when he lined up for what he called "the hardest field goal I ever had to kick in my career."

"I was over there on the sidelines praying to get another chance," said Moseley, a veteran of 12 National Football League seasons.

His 37-yard field goal with four seconds left produced a 27-24 victory over the Chargers and helped Moseley, 35, conquer a confidence crisis that traced back to a key miss two weeks ago.

A year ago, he was near-perfect for the Super Bowl champion Redskins, hitting 20 of 21 field goals for an all-time NFL accuracy mark. Over two seasons, he had made 23 consecutive kicks, another NFL record.

But Monday night he was near the breaking point. "I wouldn't be human if I didn't say I was thinking about the four misses," said Moseley, who had failed from 43, 52, 47 and 39 yards. He also had made a 43-yarder.

The winning kick "felt like I had a 1,000 pounds taken off my shoulders," a relieved Moseley told reporters. "It's been a mental struggle all year."

Tonight was the turning point of my career." It was the third consecutive week that a field goal kicker determined the outcome of the Monday night NFL game.

In last week's 20-20 tie between St. Louis and the New York Giants, the Cardinals' O'Donoghue missed three field goal attempts in the overtime period.

Two weeks ago Moseley missed a 39-yarder as time ran out, allowing the Green Bay Packers to preserve a 48-47 victory on Jan Stenerud's 20-yard field goal with 54 seconds left.

With the victory, Washington improved its record to 7-2 in the NFC East, a game behind the 8-1 Dallas Cowboys. San Diego slipped to 3-6 and has a three-game losing streak, its longest in five years under Coach Don Coryell.

Moseley's kick erased a dramatic comeback by the Chargers, who trailed 24-7 early in the fourth quarter and tied it at 24-24 with 1:52 remaining on a 43-yard field goal by Rolf Benirschke.

San Diego quarterback Ed Luther overcame six interceptions, a fumble and a sack to ignite the 17-point fourth quarter with a pair of touchdown passes 4 1/2 minutes apart.

But, after Benirschke tied it, the Redskins drove 72 yards in the final two minutes to grab the victory.

What's wrong with Eagles?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What's wrong with the Philadelphia Eagles' run defense, which is 26th in the team National Football League?

Coach Marion Campbell tried to explain the deficiency at his weekly news conference Monday. "I'll tell you, I know one thing is a fact. They (opponents) feel like we haven't been scoring and they can take the ball and run, run, run and don't need many points to beat us. I think that's contributed."

The Eagles (4-5) have lost three straight and meet the 8-1 Dallas Cowboys here Sunday.

"If we could get out ahead, a couple of TDs or something like that it would alter other people's thinking. But they know that we haven't scored, so run, keep the ball, get 10 or 12 points and they get a ball game. I know I would think that way," he added.

Campbell said he has to make some adjustments, but noted that he could not pin the lack of defense against the run on any specific players.

"If I could pin it down to one thing it would be very easy," he said. "Totally we got to play more disciplined. If it was just one or two things in there I could get it corrected real easy. That would be no problem. But it's everybody having a breakdown or two."

Campbell said he doesn't plan any personnel changes in his run defense, just adjustments in schemes. He also plans to test his defense in practice with "every conceivable kind of play whether the other team is running it or not."

"I want to be totally prepared for whatever may happen. We get different things each week because people respect our defense. We don't see the same things that we see on film. We're not going to get the same kind of play. So I have to take the approach on what's the hardest stuff to stop."

He pointed out that Dallas "came out with a whole new running attack" in the first meeting between the Eagles and Cowboys and added, "It just shows they respect our defense."

Campbell said the main factor in the Eagles' 22-21 loss to the Baltimore Colts Sunday was turnovers.

"They had five turnovers from us and we got none," Campbell lamented.

"One of the negative things as far as our defense is concerned—and it has been all year—is not getting the turnovers. We've got balls going through our hands and the way we're going right now we can't afford for that to happen."

"Anytime you have five turnovers against you the odds are you're going to lose the ball game. And it really doesn't make any difference how well you play."

Toledo one of nation's three unbeaten teams

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Ever so quietly, the University of Toledo is sneaking up on an unbeaten college football season. But as the victories mount, so does the pressure.

"It does add to it," senior quarterback Jim Kelso said Monday. "Once another team sees that you're unbeaten, they're out working that much harder to knock you down. But you have to expect that."

Kelso knows of what he speaks. Last Saturday, Kent State — which has the nation's longest major college losing streak at 21 games — came within three points of knocking Toledo from the shrinking ranks of the nation's unbeaten major college football teams.

Grid powerhouses Texas and Nebraska are the only others unbeaten.

Max Gerber, team publicist at Toledo for the last 24 years, said it's too early to compare the 1983 Rockets with the Toledo teams of 1969 to 1971 that won 35 consecutive games.

"How do you compare a team now with a team of 10 or 12 years ago?" Gerber asked. "I'd say this team isn't there yet. But if they win their last three games, then I'd put them in the same class."

Toledo has won eight games in a row this year and nine straight over the last two seasons.

Football tickets go on sale Wednesday

Football tickets for the Pampa-Lubbock Dunbar District 1-4A clash go on sale Wednesday at the high school athletic office.

That game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday night in Harvester Stadium.

Love qualifies for regional meet

Brad Love of Pampa finished fifth in the District 1-4A boys' district cross-country meet last weekend in Lubbock.

Love was timed at 17:12 to edge Clark Oberle of Dumas (17:16) for the fifth and final qualifying spot for the regional meet next week in Lubbock. Julian Hidrago of Dumas led the Demons to first place in the team standings with a 16:22.

Dumas collected 23 points to win the team event while Lubbock Dunbar was second with 51. Other team scores were Brownfield, 70; Canyon, 95, and Levelland, 119.

Canyon had 31 points to win the girls' meet. Borger followed with 45, and next came Dumas with 59, Dunbar, 90, and Levelland, 122.

Borger's Sylvia Davis was top individual with a 12:24.

Pampa High girls to meet AHS in warmup VB matches

The Lady Harvesters volleyball team, 1-4-A District Champions, will try and knock the Amarillo High School Sandies, 1-5-A District Champions, from the ranks of the undefeated in a non-district contest at 7 p.m. tonight in the Sandies' gym at Amarillo.

The Pampa High School netters won their district with a win over Borger, 9-15, 15-13, 15-9, last Tuesday night. The Lady Harvesters are 20-12 for the season.

The AHS Sandies breezed through their district and remain undefeated with a record of 32-0.

The non-district clash tonight is a warmup prior to both teams' bi-district playoff games on Saturday.

The Sandies thrashed the Lady Harvesters, 15-2, 15-4, earlier this season at Amarillo. But Pampa coach Phil Hall thinks his squad is ready to hand AHS its first loss tonight.

"We weren't ready (in the first contest). We're out to redeem ourselves tonight," coach Hall said.

After taping up with the Amarillo game tonight, Pampa High will meet the winner of tonight's playoff between Pecos and Snyder in a 4A Bi-District game on Saturday. The time and location of the bi-district contest have not been announced.

Amarillo High School will play Abilene Cooper at Abilene in a 5A Bi-District contest, also on Saturday.

Seventh grade contest today

Pampa Red will meet Pampa Blue at 5:30 p.m. today in a seventh-grade game at Harvester Stadium.

"We did just have one team because of injuries, but now we've split them up again, said Pampa coach Steve Porter. "We've tried to make them as even as possible."

In eighth-grade play, Pampa Blue will play Canyon there Thursday in a makeup game. Pampa Red travels to Dumas Nov. 10.

Porter said an eighth-grade Red-Blue game will be scheduled sometime this month.

"Makeup games are going to throw us late, but we'll figure some way to play," Porter added. "This will be our big finale."

In eighth-grade action last week, Pampa Blue lost to Canyon Purple, 22-0, and Pampa Red fell to Borger, 38-6.

Pampa High boys win rodeo title

The Pampa boys won the team trophy and Windell Shults took the all-around cowboy title in high school rodeo action at River Road in Amarillo over the weekend.

Shults scored 11 of Pampa's 19 points to claim the individual title, taking first in steer wrestling and second in calf roping.

Justin Helton finished first for Pampa in bareback riding and Lee Lowrey came in second. Shawn Johnson got a third in ribbon roping and Lowrey teamed with Hadley Reed of Spearman for a fifth place in team roping. Three Pampa girls placed in pole bending. Leslie Leggett was third and Cody Rice and Lisa Maddox tied for fifth.

Next action for the local rodeo team will be the Directors Rodeo at Canadian Nov. 5-6. It will be the final competition of the fall season.

HALAS ON THE FIELD— George Halas, who died Monday night in Chicago, is shown on the field in 1933 when he played for the Chicago Bears. Halas, 88, was a pioneer of the National Football League as well as founder and owner of the Bears. (Staff Photo)

Pro grid founder dies

CHICAGO (AP) — "Papa Bear" George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears and last survivor of the pioneering group that founded modern professional football in Canton, Ohio, auto showroom, has died at the age of 88.

Halas, whose teams won eight national championships and produced 20 members of pro football's Hall of Fame over a career that spanned seven decades, died Monday in his apartment on Chicago's North Side, family members said.

His daughter, Virginia Halas McCaskey, was at his bedside when he died, his grandson, Rich McCaskey, said.

Halas' death prompted an outpouring of tributes from former players, coaches and others who remembered his contributions to the game and his feisty, driving personality.

"George Halas leaves modern professional football as his memorial," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "He was the National Football League — its founder, the driving force that sustained it during struggling pioneer years, the owner-coach-innovator whose dynamic Bear teams triggered public acceptance of the NFL and the revered elder statesman whose vision and vitality were pivotal in the league's growth."

"I think the biggest quality Coach Halas had was he was a very inspirational guy," added current Bears Coach Mike Ditka, whose often-stormy career as a player under Halas spanned six seasons and included the team's last championship, in 1963.

"His talks at halftime — I wish that I had taped a few of them so that I could use them," Ditka said. "They were unbelievable. No matter what had happened in the first half, he could make you feel like you could do anything when you went back out the door. You may not be able to do it, but you thought you could."

Halas was the last survivor of 12 men who met in 1920 at a Canton, Ohio, automobile agency to establish the American Professional Football Association, forerunner of the National Football League.

On his 82nd birthday, Halas said: "It has been the most priceless privilege of my professional life to see our dreams come true and to watch our ugly duckling grow up to be a magnificent eagle."

He acknowledged that he "never thought it would be this big."

In 1925 Halas arranged the signing of legendary Illinois running back Red Grange, "The Galloping Ghost," for $100,000. On Thanksgiving Day that year, Grange made his debut, drawing 36,000 fans to Wrigley Field. The Bears went on a coast-to-coast tour, paving the way for football to become a big-time sport.

During the next four decades, Halas led his "Monsters of the Midway" to more victories than any other coach — college or professional — has ever won.

Halas retired from coaching in 1968 at the age of 73 with a record of 326-150-30.

Nebraska widens lead in AP football poll

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, fresh off another lopsided victory, this time over Big Eight foe Kansas State, widened their lead over second-place Texas in the Associated Press college football poll.

The Cornhuskers polled 57 of 59 first-place votes and 1,178 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Texas, which defeated Texas Tech, received the other two first-place votes and 1,123 points.

Last week, with 58 voters participating, Nebraska had 54 first-place votes, while Texas received four.

Behind the two unbeaten powers, who have held down first- and second-place for seven straight weeks, there was a lot of movement, though the 20 teams remained the same as last week.

Auburn moved up one spot to third with 1,048 points after stopping Florida 28-21, while Georgia, a 3-14 winner over Temple, advanced from sixth to fourth with 954 points. That sets up a key Southeastern Conference game Nov. 12 when Auburn travels to Georgia.

Miami of Florida also jumped two spots to fifth after knocking off West Virginia, while Illinois, a 14-6 winner over Big Ten foe Michigan, moved up three places to sixth. The victory made Illinois a strong favorite for the Big Ten berth in the Rose Bowl.

Maryland's victory over North Carolina moved the Terrapins from 13th to seventh, while North Carolina fell from third to 10th. Southern Methodist is eighth this week, up two spots, while Florida held on to its No. 9 ranking.

The second 10 consists of, in order, Oklahoma, Brigham Young, Michigan, Ohio State, Iowa, Boston College, West Virginia, Notre Dame, Alabama and Washington.

Last week, it was Washington, West Virginia, Maryland, Oklahoma, BYU, Ohio State, Iowa and Alabama, with Boston College and Notre Dame tied for 19th.

TV to carry Class 5A state title game

AUSTIN (AP) — Television stations around the state have signed on to carry the telecast of the Dec. 17 Texas high school football championship game in Class 5A, officials say.

"We are covered in every area," said Russ Potts, former Southern Methodist University athletic director and now president of Sports Productions Inc. of Dallas, which will produce Texas' first-ever telecast of a high school football title game.

The agreement between the University Interscholastic League and Sports Productions Inc. of Dallas includes a ban on replays of controversial calls by officials. Also unseen will be athletes being treated for injuries.

Sportscaster Verne Lundquist of Dallas, who handles the play-by-play for the Dallas Cowboys radio broadcasts, is set as the play-by-play man.

Former University of Texas coach Darrell Royal will be one of the color announcers. Roger Staubach will join Lundquist and Royal if the game is in the Dallas area. If not, veteran announcer Frank Fallon will be the third man.

The site for the game won't be selected until the final two teams are known.

Marshall said the UIL probably will get $20,000 from the telecast. The schools involved will split $16,000.

Concerning the decision to disallow replays of controversial calls, UIL director Bailey Marshall said Monday, "We feel like we just want to show the positive sides of the game."

UIL official Bob Young added, "It's high school kids. We don't want to cause any embarrassment to anybody."

Young said the list of "no-nos" also prohibits the announcers from questioning officials' decisions.

"Sometimes I think that is all the announcers do," he added.

Other no-nos are live interviews with coaches, and commercials advertising beer or wine.

"I don't think there's anything worse than interviewing a coach on the sideline when he's getting ready to play," said Potts, who also added that the ban on criticism of referees does not bother him.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with those kinds of suggestions," Potts said. He said the announcers will be free to comment on the play.

"If somebody drops a sure touchdown pass one of our announcers will say, 'That was a sure touchdown pass,'" he said.

For the UIL — an agency under heavy criticism from Ross Perot, chairman of a special committee on education, for its emphasis on athletics — the televised contest is a great public relations opportunity, Marshall said.

"We're more interested in showing the educational values of the different activities — the bands, the drill teams, the pep squads and the involvement of all the people in the community," he said.

Potts, who said the game won't be a big money-maker for his company, agreed.

"It's a chance for the league to convey what a tremendous spectacle the game is. The timing is good for the league to put its best foot forward on television," he said.

Akers in no hurry to name starting quarterback

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers says it's not important to him who starts at quarterback for the Longhorns but if others think it's important he might announce a starter before Saturday.

No. 2-ranked Texas, 7-0, plays Houston in the Astrodome on Saturday. Kickoff is at 2 p.m. CST.

Akers described Houston, 3-5, as a "far, far better team than what their record indicates. Fact of the matter is, nobody's really stopped Houston — they've stopped themselves. They're a big, fast football team. They have a field full of athletes."

Although Akers withheld the name Monday of his starting quarterback for the Houston game, he agreed people would probably think it will be junior Todd Dodge.

Dodge relieved junior starter Rob Moerschell late in the first half Saturday with Texas trailing Texas Tech 3-0 and guided the Longhorns to 20 second-half points and a 20-3 victory.

Dodge threw for 118 yards and scored on a 12-yard run, and was selected by Longhorn coaches as the team's outstanding offensive player. Safety Jerry Gray was chosen as the top defensive player.

Asked if choosing Dodge as the most valuable offensive player might cause people to "draw the inference" that Dodge should be the starter against Houston, Akers told his weekly news conference, "Probably. But that doesn't affect what we do one bit."

Akers acknowledged that Moerschell, who became the starter when Dodge got hurt in preseason, "was having some problems, a little off-target throwing" against Tech.

But Akers said "this is one of the traps of being a quarterback. Everything that doesn't work is your fault, and that's not the most of the time, and it's the case out there Saturday. He (Moerschell) had some help in some unsuccessful plays."

Akers was asked if he would name a starter early in the week, and he said, "It's not that important to me, but if it's that important to everybody else I might. It's like everything else, I want to see them first. ... We'll observe, look them over."

"We're pleased with our quarterback situation. It is a strength when it was a big question mark before the season."

Texas needs to win three of its last four regular season games to go to the Cotton Bowl, but Akers said, "Everybody from this point on in our season, teams that have themselves mathematically eliminated — out of the race — for the championship, we can expect a super effort, a season-maker."

After Houston, the Longhorns play Texas Christian, Baylor and Texas A&M.

"There's not a football team in this conference that does not have the physical talent to win," said Akers. "There's just not one."

USFL club makes offer to White

DALLAS (AP) — The New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League have made a preliminary offer to Dallas Cowboys tackle Randy White of $700,000 a year and a $400,000 signing bonus, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The offer would begin with the 1985 season, the newspaper said.

"The only thing I've said is that it would take a whole lot of money to get me away from Dallas, because I love playing for the Cowboys," White said. "I wouldn't want to leave Dallas, but that's a lot of money they're talking about."

The $400,000 bonus would be the highest signing bonus ever paid to a professional football player. White currently makes $300,000 a year. He will enter the option year on his contract next season.

White said he would not negotiate with the Generals or the Cowboys until the end of the season.

"Right now I'm not going to think about it," White told the Times Herald. "My mind is on the football season and getting to the Super Bowl. Next year, when the time comes, we'll talk. I've got a contract and I plan to fulfill it."

Reacting to the Generals' offer, Cowboys President Tex Schramm said the club would begin negotiating with White when the season is over.

White declined an invitation by agent Howard Slusher to travel to New York to meet with Generals owner Donald Trump two weeks ago, the newspaper said.

White said the trip would have interfered with his preparation for Dallas' game with the Los Angeles Raiders.

Pampa cagers begin workouts

Pampa High boys' and girls' basketball teams start workouts today in preparation for the 1983-84 basketball season.

Pampa boys, picked to win the District 1-4A title by the Panhandle Plains Basketball Magazine, open the season Nov. 22 against Amarillo High in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Harvester head coach Garland Nichols could be going for his 300th career victory on Nov. 25 when Pampa goes to Palo Duro, the second game of the season.

Pampa girls, led by new head coach Albert Nichols (no relation to Garland), will open the season Nov. 21 at River Road.

Under UIL rules, Pampa can start having scrimmage games on Nov. 8.

Children's letters to Marines in Lebanon: 'We're sorry, proud'

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — In pencil and on blue-lined notebook paper, the words are simple, but from the heart. Over and over again they say "we're sorry" and "we appreciate what you're doing." Some promise to join the "when I grow up."

The words are from 10- and 11-year-olds and they are in a batch of 28 letters Judy Gibson's remedial reading class in Hamlet, N.C., sent to Camp Lejeune. The base forwarded them to the Marines in Beirut.

"Dear Marines,"

"I heard some of you had to go to Lebanon. If some of your friends got killed or hurt, I am sorry. I am so thankful because you are trying to save our countries. My friend, Lisa, said hello."

"Your friend, Tracy Walters."

Capt. Mary Ann Krusa-Dossin, director of the Family Services unit at Camp Lejeune, opened the youngsters' letters on Friday and immediately sent them to Beirut, where 229 Marines died a week ago in a terrorist attack.

"It's so touching to get letters like that," said Mrs. Krusa-Dossin, who said she thought the correspondence will help lift the spirits of the troops in Beirut.

"Dear Marines,"

"When we saw the news, my (8-year-old) brother said, 'I'm going to be a Marine one day. They are brave like me.' My grandmother started crying. That is a brave thing you did."

"Your friend always, Robin Dawkins."

Mrs. Gibson, 41, said her pupils at Monroe Avenue Elementary School began talking about the terrorist bombing in Beirut last week and she was surprised at how spirited the discussion became.

"Some were very adamant in their feelings," she said. "Some were pretty angry and they were ready to go out and defend their country. This is a bit of patriotism that I have not seen in children in the last couple of years."

Among the others:

"Dear U.S. Marines,"

"We are proud of you. When I saw the news, I was proud of all of the Marines. My mother was proud of the Marines, too. I wish you luck for helping our country."

"Your friend, Michelle Smith."

"Dear U.S. Marines,"

"I've heard what has happened. Russians make me sick. I'm going to fight for you some day. I'm glad all of you helped keep peace over there."

"Your friend, Al Wilkes."

Missing drilling ship at bottom of China Sea

HOUSTON (AP) — A U.S. oil drilling ship that carried 81 people and had been missing off the coast of China since Oct. 25 has been located by sonar 300 feet beneath the sea, a spokesman for the company that owns the vessel said today.

U.S. and Chinese air and sea craft have been searching for the vessel or survivors in the South China Sea since the Glomar Java Sea disappeared during a typhoon.

"Using sonar equipment, we have determined that the drilling ship is sunk at the drilling site," said Dick Vermeer, vice president for control and administration of Global Marine Inc. in Houston.

He said the search for survivors would continue. The ship had two escape capsules on board. He said one was sighted capsized, but the other has not been spotted.

Each of the capsules can hold 54 people, said Vermeer. There were 81 crewmen — 42 Americans, 32 Chinese, two Singaporeans, an Australian and a Filipino — on board the drilling ship.

Vermeer said he did not know how many survivors might be aboard the remaining escape capsule.

"They either loaded one to the gills, or it has about half the people," he said.

Vermeer said sonar located the Glomar Java Sea lying on its side beneath the drilling site in about 300 feet of water.

Two U.S. Navy P-3 planes have been searching for the lost ship while China sent 14 ships and three helicopters out in poor weather south of Hainan Island.

A Chinese ship was expected to arrive Thursday from Singapore to support possible diving operations, oil industry sources said.

Names in news

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For a while it looked as though the first American to orbit the earth, Sen. John Glenn, might have lost his latest ship.

The candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination flew his Beechcraft Baron airplane to Allegheny County's airport Sunday night. But when he returned from a campaign speech in downtown Pittsburgh, it was gone.

The 62-year-old Glenn, his aides and police searched for about 15 minutes before the plane turned up in a Page Avjet Corp. hangar.

An employee for Page Avjet, George Diggins, explained that he thought the Baron had been left for repairs, so he had rolled it inside.

After the senator from Ohio and his wife Anne had taken off, Diggins asked: "Who was that guy in the business suit?"

John Glenn, he was told.

"Heck," said Diggins, "if I'd known that, I would have shook his hand."

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew often is a target for the wives of celebrity-seeking picture-takers. But the 23-year-old prince had a chance to turn the tables and join a conspiracy to trap a favored photographer.

Royal photographer Norman Parkinson showed up Monday at a Mayfair art gallery expecting to take pictures of the prince.

Instead, with Andrew in on the surprise, the television host of the British version of "This is Your Life," Eamonn Andrews, crept up behind Parkinson and announced: "This is your life!"

The prince later joined an audience of 600 at the Royalty Theater for the show and led the applause and laughter as

Monitors protect against sudden infant death

HOUSTON (AP) — The ear-piercing whistle shatters the tranquility of the nursery where 6-month-old Douglas Brownfield sleeps peacefully.

His mother, Annette, races into the room. "By the time you get there and you see he's breathing you never know if it really was a false alarm," she says. "Whether it was real or not, you'll never know."

In January 1982, Julie Brownfield, 17 weeks old, normal and healthy, died in her sleep of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. Her death made Douglas a high-risk candidate to also become a victim of SIDS, the major cause of death in infants after the first week of life. It claims up to 7,000 children a year.

Researchers have been unable to determine what causes SIDS although it is known that children born into families who have lost an infant to the killer have a greater risk of being victimized again.

That fear sent Mrs. Brownfield to the Cardio-respiratory Instability Clinic at Houston's Texas Children's Hospital, where doctors operate the state's most extensive program designed to cope with SIDS.

Since the clinic opened in 1981, 88 high-risk SIDS infants have been examined and sent home with monitors which alert parents if the child does not breathe after a 20-second duration. "I don't think I'd have another child if it weren't for the monitor," says Mrs. Brownfield, who lives with her husband and their other child, a 3½-year-old daughter, in Crosby, just northeast of Houston. "Thank God they had it."

The device, less than 12 inches square and about 3 inches thick, rests on a table near the child's crib. Pads are held to the baby's chest by a soft cloth belt attached to wires inserted into the monitor. Lights on the monitor flash each time the child takes a breath. The lights also monitor heart beats.

If breathing stops, the alarm — capable of being heard over a vacuum cleaner or a shower — warns parents, who have been trained to administer infant resuscitation if the emergency procedures are necessary.

The monitor runs on rechargeable batteries, which allows families to take the device out of their homes. The Brownfields, for example, have used it in their car after dark when they would be unable to see if Douglas was breathing properly.

"The monitor can alert you early enough," says Dr. Carol Rosen, chief of the clinic. "Parents can arouse the baby and he can be brought out of the episode. Very few parents have to resort to CPR."

The device is not a cure. "A home monitor may be of benefit to siblings of SIDS, but there is no guarantee of the outcome," she says.

The use of the monitors was pioneered by researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital in 1978. Extensive programs continue in the Boston area and in California.

Of the 88 infants placed on monitors and cared for by the Texas Children's Hospital clinic in two years, none has died. About one-third of the children have needed breathing assistance and about 10 percent of the alarms may have triggered life-saving intervention, Dr. Rosen says.

At $1,600 it is not inexpensive.

It also is not easy to find babysitters, who need to know how to respond to information delivered by the monitor.

Mrs. Brownfield laughs when asked about how babysitters react to the prospect of dealing with a possible life-threatening situation involving Douglas. "I've never left him with one," she says.

The Brownfields' concerns are understandable. SIDS claims two of every 1,000 infants between the ages of 1 and 6 months, according to statistics cited by Texas Children's Hospital. In families who have endured the tragedy of SIDS, the odds increase to 2 per 100. And if a twin dies, the chances of the other twin succumbing are 1 in 25.

Doctors recommend high-risk children wear the monitors for the first four months of life.

"I'm going to be much more comfortable through 1 year old," Mrs. Brownfield says. "Leaving it on that long is up to the parents' discretion, but they (doctors) don't know that much about it."

"When Douglas has his first birthday, oh, what a relief!"

A taxing burden

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Upper-income taxpayers still pay the biggest chunk of the federal income tax bill, but the amount paid by people in the lower brackets has been rising slightly, a new study shows.

The study comes from the Tax Foundation Inc., a non-profit, non-partisan research group in Washington, D.C., which says half of the taxpayers pay almost all of the taxes.

Foundation researchers say Treasury Department figures show that Americans with adjusted gross incomes of $14,029 or more — the upper 50 percent of all taxpayers — accounted for 92.6 percent of all the federal income tax paid in 1981. Taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes in the top 10 percent — $38,773 or more — paid 48 percent of the bill.

A comparison of the 1981 figures with the ones from 1976 shows there has been a shift — although tiny — in the burden.

Back in 1976, you needed less money to be included among the upper 50 percent of all taxpayers; you qualified as long as you had an adjusted gross income of $9,719 or more.

And in 1976, that upper 50 percent of taxpayers paid 92.8 percent of all the federal income tax — two-tenths of a percentage point more than in 1981. Taxpayers with incomes in the top 10 percent — $25,721 or more in 1976 — paid 48.3 percent of the federal income taxes five years ago, three-tenths of a percentage point more than they did in 1981.

(Note: These figures do not reflect the major impact of the three-year tax cut approved in 1981; most of the provisions of the law did not take effect until 1982 or later.)

A look at the actual dollar amount of taxes paid also shows a shift.

In 1976, taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes in the bottom 50 percent, paid an average of $243 in federal income taxes. In 1981, they paid an average of $450 — an increase of 85 percent. Taxpayers in the lowest 10 percent paid an average of $5 in 1976 and $15 in 1981 — an increase of 200 percent.

Taxpayers in the upper brackets also are paying more, but the rate of increase has been slower. Those in the upper half paid an average of $3,128 in 1976 and $5,599 in 1981 — a rise of 79 percent. The top 10 percent paid $8,147 in 1976 and $14,519 in 1981 — a boost of 78 percent.

The foundation researchers also said that:

—There were about 95 million returns filed in 1981; the amount paid in individual income taxes was $285.8 billion.

—During the five-year period from 1976 to 1981, the U.S. population increased 5 percent, number of returns filed rose by 13 percent and total income tax collections grew 102 percent.
