Superpowers closer to clashing in Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. bombing raid on Syrian batteries in Lebanon deepens the American combat role in the perilous Middle East while heightening the potential for a confrontation with the Soviet Union.

The 1,500 Marines hunkered down in the outskirts of Beirut - eight more were killed in Druse attacks on Sunday - find themselves even further from a homecoming. Unless the new show of U.S. force persuades Syria to withdraw, their missin appears open-ended.

President Reagan insisted on Sunday that the United States was not spoiling for a fight with Syria, but rather sought only to help the Lebanese government stabilize the country

Although he emphasized "we don't desire" a broader confrontation with Syria - and that the bombing of the anti-aircraft batteries was in reaction to an "unprovoked attack" on unarmed U.S. reconnaissance planes on Saturday - the show of American muscle could prove

Syria is armed by the Soviet Union, its gunners trained by Soviet technicians. U.S. firing on Syrian positions, which Reagan and Pentagon officials suggested might be Associated Press news analysis repeated, brings the superpowers closer to a clash in the Middle East than they have been since the Yom Kippur

The Soviets quickly rebuilt the Syrian forces after they were humbled by the Israelis in Lebanon last year, but avoided direct involvement in clashes between the two countries. If the Syrians are subjected to U.S. poundings, the Soviets will have to decide whether to let their closest Arab ally down or help Syria fight back

The Marines, sent to Lebanon 16 months ago to help evacuate Palestinian guerrillas after an Israeli siege of Beirut, will stay "to bring peace to that area," Reagan said. With that goal still extremely elusive, the Marines could be a constant target, inviting attack leading to U.S.

"We are going to defend our forces there," Reagan vowed Sunday — shortly after Syria-backed Druse militia opened fire on the Marines. After he spoke, U.S. naval artillery on warships off the Lebanese coast and land-based Marine artillery and tanks fired back at the Druse positions in the hills above Beirut.

'We are not at war with the United States,' said Rafic Jouejati, the Syrian ambassador to Washington. "But the escalation is imposed on us, and what are we supposed to win by that? We want to defend ourselves, to defend our positions, to defend the independence and the sovereignty

U.S.-Syrian hostility can be traced back to last summer. With considerable effort, the administration helped arrange an agreement in which Israel promised to withdraw its 15,000 troops from Lebanon. But the pullout was contingent on an exodus of the 40,000 Syrian troops who control about half the country - and the Syrians refused to budge.

In the violence that followed Israel's evacuation of the Shouf mountains in early September, the Marines suffered casualties and Marine artillery fired at Druse gun positions.

Then, when the Marins' headquarters was bombed in October, killing 239 Marines and sailors, administration officials implicated pro-Iranian fighters and Syria flatly accused the Syrian government of "sponsorship and knowledge" of the attack. In the meantime, the Reagan administration closed ranks with Israel, setting up a commission during Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's visit last week that will plan joint military maneuvers.

Two weeks ago, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger

Although it is an unstated axiom that the United States and the Soviet Union stay at arm's length from each other in the Middle East, twice in the last 13 years a confrontation loomed.

In 1970, during an undeclared war between Israel and Egypt, which was then a Soviet client, Israeli warplanes shot down five Soviet MiG-21 fighters that were defending Egypt. The Soviets held their fire.

In 1973, while Israel was rebounding from a joint attack by Egypt and Syria, the Soviets suggested they might intervene militarily. The Nixon administration, which had replenished Israel's stock of arms, put American forces on alert. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger also arranged a cease-fire before Israel could demolish the Egyptian army - and before the Soviets could be tested

Eight more U.S. servicemen dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - A powerful car bomb exploded today in an apartment building garage, killing at least 10 people and injuring 84, and U.S. forces tried to determine the source of shelling that killed eight Marines hours earlier.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the car bomb attack, which partially collapsed the nine-story building in a residential neighborhood of predominantly Moslem west Beirut. Beirut radio said rescuers identified 10 victims as they pulled blood-soaked bodies from the rubble.

U.S. jets flew sorties over the Beirut area at daybreak today, the state radio said. apparently trying to pinpoint the sources of a 41/2-hour artillery assault Sunday night on the Marines' airport

A Western diplomatic source said the eight Marines apparently were killed by a single artillery shell.

Earlier Sunday, 28 U.S. warplanes staged a retaliatory attack against Syrian anti-aircraft positions that had fired Saturday on two unarmed U.S. Navy reconnaissance planes flying over Lebanon. No bombing raids were reported today

Two of the U.S. planes were downed and one pilot was rescued after Sunday's raid, while another flier was captured by Syrian forces. Syrian soldiers said a third died of injuries.

The two pilots who fell in Syrian-held territory were identified as Lt. Mark A. Lange, 26, of Frasier, Mich., and Lt. Robert O. Goodman, 27, of Portsmouth, N.H. They were classified by the Navy as missing.

The leftist Beirut newspaper As-Safir said Lange died after his plane crashed. Goodman, the paper said, was captured by Druse militiamen and turned over to the Syrians, who transported him to their headquarters in east Lebanon's Bekaa Valley

Two former Israeli air force commanders today criticized the performance of the U.S. pilots during Sunday's bombing raid.

"The American pilots yesterday paid for their lack of operational experience," Maj. Gen. Benny Peled. Added Maj. Gen. Mordechai Hod, "On a purely military level, the American operation cannot be called a success."

The car bombing occurred about 8 a.m. today, and Lebanon's state radio said at least 10 people were killed and 84 injured in a blast that set huge fires in several blocks of the west Beirut residential district.

Police said a 330-pound bomb was believed to have been in a Renault 12 car and that an undetermined number of people were believed trapped in the building

The blast, which occurred about 200 vards from the Mokassed hospital in the predominantly Moslem section of the city, shattered windows and sent up huge billows of black smoke that hampered rescue efforts, police said.

The Marine base shelling claimed the heaviest U.S. death toll since the Oct. 23 suicide truck bomb attack that killed 239 servicemen at the base. By unofficial counts, a total of 254 U.S. servicemen have died in hostile action in Lebanon this year.

The Marines fired back with 155mm artillery. M-60 tanks, heavy machine guns and small arms while U.S. warships also pounded the sources of fire in the hills overlooking the base.

"It got quiet around 11 p.m. and has been quiet since," Marine spokesman Capt. Wayne Jones, said today. He said the 1,600 Marines, who are serving with the multinational peacekeeping force. remained on their highest state of alert.

Asked who was firing at the Marine base, the Western diplomatic source said "apparently everybody indicating the attacks were mounted by both Druse militiamen in the hills and their Shiite Moslem allies in Beirut's southern suburbs.

The Druse rebels led by leftist opposition leader Walid Jumblatt are allied with Syria, as are Shiite Moslems

Western superiority rejected

Soviets say 'no arms talks'

MOSCOW (AP) - High-ranking Kremlin officials today made clear the Soviet Union had no intention of rejoining talks on medium-range nuclear arms in Europe while NATO's new missiles are deployed.

In an unusual news conference for Soviet and foreign reporters, they blamed the United States for the negotiations breakdown and accused the Reagan administration of seeking to disrupt the parallel talks on long-range missiles.

Chief Kremlin spokesman Leonid M Zamyatin also said Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov is "recovering well" from an illness that has kept him out of public view for 109 days. Andropov "is getting better and is tackling in full measure party affairs, affairs of state and affairs of the Council of Defense.

He did not elaborate on the illness other than to cite Andropov's Oct. 29 letter to physicians visiting Moscow. In the letter, Andropov said he could not keep an appointment with the the doctors because he had a "cold."

Zamyatin said

On the dias for the news conference at the Foreign Ministry press center were Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov, the first deputy defense minister and chief of general staff; Georgi M. Kornienko, the first deputy foreign minister; and

The three also conducted a news conference Sept. 9 to explain the Kremlin's position following the Sept. 1 downing of a Korean Air Lines jetliner by Soviet air-to-air missiles. All 269 people aboard the KAL plane were killed when the plane was shot over Soviet airspace

In an opening statement today, Ogarkov vowed never to allow the United States to gain military superiority and restated Soviet plans for countering the start of NATO deployment of new U.S. Cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe.

He said the arrival of cruise missiles in Britain and Pershing 2 components in West Germany had "changed the military balance.

Since the Soviet Union views those weapons as first-strike missiles, he said, the Soviet military was being forced to put new nuclear rockets on submarines cruising off U.S. shores He said those missiles would match the Pershing 2s and cruises in "range, yield, accuracy and most important in the flight time to their targets.

Ogarkov and his fellow officials restated the Soviet contention that it was the United States which undermined the Geneva medium-range missile reduction talks by the start of NATO deployment.

The Soviets discontinued the talks Nov. 23, fulfilling a vow Andropov made Oct. 27 in an interview with the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

Court to rule on draft regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether male college students applying for federal loans or grants must prove they have registered with Selective Service.

The court will review a ruling by a federal judge in Minnesota that struck down the government's draft status disclosure rule as unconstitutional

There is no draft, but registration resumed three years ago. Selective Service officials say nearly 11 million young men, about 96.5 percent of those eligible, have registered in those three

The law reactivating draft registration was signed by then-President Jimmy Carter in 1980, and required all male citizens and resident aliens between ages 18 and 26 to notify Selective Service.

The law, aimed at making it easier to draft young men if that becomes necessary, requires all men born after Jan. 1, 1963 to register within 30 days before or after their 18th birthday

Some toys he gets wholesale by buying in bulk, but mostly he relies on the kindness of seven or eight part-time "elves" and donations from strangers. He supports himself by working as a consultant to United Cerebral

"There's little money in this," Kanor said. "So I know why the major toymakers are reluctant to go into the market for only a couple of hundred thousand kids while there are 30 million others to appeal to."

For children like Bernadette Carroll's daughter, Ruthie, the special toys can mean all the difference in the world. Ruthie has an undiagnosed condition that wreaked havoc with the development of her fine motor control. She can hardly use her hands. "She used to be so frustrated. She wanted to do things but couldn't, and would have nothing to do with toys," her mother said. But with the toys bought from Kanor over the past two years, Ruthie "is getting her confidence back. When other children come over, they've never seen the switches and can't make the toy work. She can. She has an edge and can do something they can't," Mrs. Carroll said.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N.Y. (AP) - Bernadette Carroll had nearly despaired of finding toys for her handicapped 3-year-old daughter - even the simplest Jack-in-the-box was beyond the child's scope

But then she discovered Dr. Steven Kanor, the special Santa who makes special kids' Christmas dreams come In his basement workshop crammed with toys, wires, batteries and switches. Kanor devises means by which even the most severely handicapped child can play. "No matter what handicap a kid has, I can design a toy he can operate," said the 47-year-old Kanor, a biomedical engineer by training. "I can make a switch that operates on an eye blink, a touch, a sip, a puff.' Kanor hadn't set out to become Kris Kringle to the nation's 200,000 to 300,000 handicapped children, but now that he does it regularly, he shows an almost religious zeal. "There are almost no toys for these kids, but they want toys as much as other kids," he said recently Once a child learns how to use a switch to make a top spin or a train run, he "can operate a computer, he can communicate and can be educated. He can answer phones. He can do anything in his environment that can be controlled by a switch, and this makes them a useful

Home burns as man comforts wife at hospital

AUSTIN (AP) - Kenneth Clark was at Brackenridge Hospital Sunday comforting his injured wife when he answered a telephone call and was told their home was on fire

"When it rains, it pours," said Clark, who was visiting his wife, Nell Easley, when the fire began in the back of the east side home. "I don't know what to say other than it must be bad luck."

Clark. a driver for Harlem Cab Co., said he was at the hospital with his two stepdaughters, Diane and Martha Easley, when a neighbor called and told him the bad news.

His wife, 51, was injured last week in a car accident.

"She broke three ribs and her pelvis in the accident and she's in terrible pain," Clark said. "They were giving her therapy and she was feeling pretty bad before this happened.'

The fire was reported about 12:50 p.m., firefighters said. When the first trucks arrived minutes later, smoke was pouring out the back.

The blaze was put out in 20 minutes. Firefighters said the cause was under investigation. The rear of the home was

Reserve chute saves tower leaper

MISSOURI CITY, Texas (AP) - A man claiming to be a veteran building climber leaped from a 2,000-foot broadcasting tower and fell hundreds of feet after his first parachute failed, but he was saved by a reserve chute.

The man, who told reporters he was Skip Stanley, landed in a back yard about half a mile from the tower shortly after 5 p.m. Sunday

The owners of the house, Dan and Gloria Ferris, sheltered him from lawmen for more than two hours before officers obtained a warrant to search the home. The man was taken into custody at 7:15 p.m. as a crowd of about 200 spectators cheered and clapped.

Stanley, who also goes by the name David Adcock, parachuted from the 68th floor of the 71-story Allied Bank Tower last May. He has also scaled a building in St. Louis.

The Associated Press was unable to learn whether charges were filed Sunday night. Sgt. L. Garza of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department said he thought the climber would not be taken before a magistrate until today. The climber landed in a yard across the street from where a red and white target had been placed on a roof. He told a reporter with KIKK radio his aim was spoiled when the first parachute didn't open.

He told that reporter he "didn't take time" to figure out how to adjust his fall to land at the target. The climber said he ascended with "a nylon gripper. There's no way it can possibly hurt or damage the cable in any way." He climbed a guy wire attached to the top of the Senior Road Tower.

The jumper descended through a web of cables beneath his yellow, blue and red parachute. A crowd of several hundred jammed traffic along Farm-to-Market Road 2234 as they watched the ascent, then the leap. A man who identified himself as the jumper's younger brother, Kenny, told KLOL-FM that his brother "opened a reserve chute, but something went wrong and he cut it away. He was trying to make it to us - you could tell — but something went wrong.' The younger man said he was watching from a house in the neighborhood where the jumper

Sheriff's Lt. Roger Boyd said a UHF channel, KTXH-TV, was off the air for about two hours because engineers feared the climber would be burned by an electrical field its signal produced.

Five men were killed Dec. 7, 1982, when one of the tower's guy wires broke and the structure collapsed.

A tower engineer who asked not to be identified said that shortly before the jump, police and Bill Cordell, the tower's chief engineer, had taken an elevator to the top and were "within a few feet" of the climber, where they tried to talk him out of jumping.

Reagan says

U.S. forces to keep hitting back

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, escalating the U.S. role in Lebanon with the first air strikes against Syrian gunners, says the United States will keep hitting back in retaliation for any attack on American forces in Beirut.

Even before Reagan could sound his warning Sunday, the U.S. Marine base at the Beirut airport was being shelled by Druse militiamen with mortars. rockets and artillery that killed eight Americans and wounded two others. In response, American warships stationed offshore turned their heavy guns on the Druse positions. "We don't seek hostilities there,"

Reagan said. "But we are going to defend our forces there. "Yes, if our forces are attacked, we will respond," he promised. "We're going to defend our personnel that is

As he made his statement, Reagan was not yet aware of the attack on the Marines and the eight deaths. Asked later at a black-tie reception whether the United States would retaliate for the deaths, Reagan said, "As I understand it we are right now returning fire from naval artillery.

White House officials said Reagan's declaration of retaliation grew out of a policy developed in meetings last Thursday and Friday with foreign policy advisers on the problem of attacks against Americans in Lebanon. In those sessions, Reagan approved a "framework of response for any attacks" against the peacekeeping forces in Lebanon, according to one official, who declined to be identified.

"I don't think the policy of defending ourselves has changed," the official said, "but we may do it with more

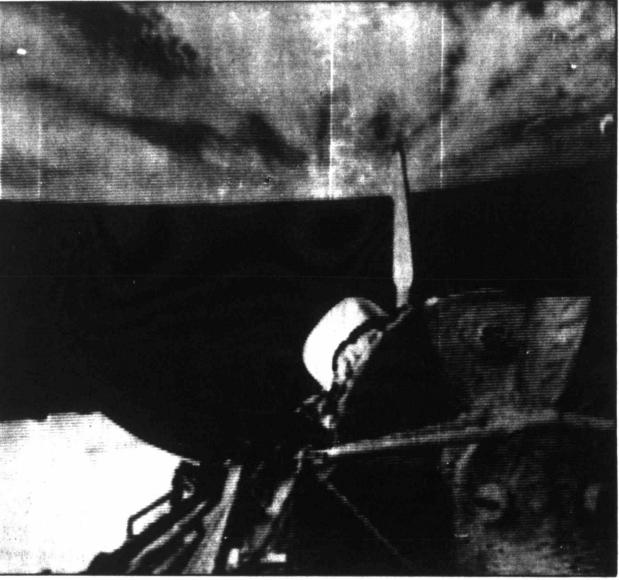

Twenty-eight U.S. warplanes struck at Syrian anti-aircraft and missile batteries Sunday. Syrian gunners shot down two U.S. planes. One American flyer was captured and Syrian soldiers said a second died of injuries.

Reagan said the air strike was in retaliation for an attack by Syrian gunners against two unarmed U.S.

surveillance planes a day earlier. "Our mission remains what it was: to help stabilize the situation in Beirut until all the foreign forces can be withdrawn and until the government of Lebanon can take over the authority of its own territory." Reagan said. "But we are going to defend our forces there. And this was the reason or the purpose of the mission earlier today."

The Druse gunners opened fire on Marines at the airport about 12 hours after the U.S. air strike. One White House official said "it would be logical to assume" that the Druse attack was in response to the American air strike.

The air strikes, carried out by planes from the carriers John F. Kennedy and Independence, were the biggest punch thrown by the United States in Lebanon.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) -Spacelab's astronauts, orbiting constantly in sunlight, probed mysteries of stars and sun today before a talk with the president of the United States, the chancellor of West Germany and journalists in six nations over a complex linkup of five communications

The electronic conference was set up with President Reagan at the White House and Chancellor Helmut Kohl. visiting in Athens, Greece, speaking with the six astronauts aboard the shuttle Columbia and its Spacelab

Set to follow was a 20-minute news conference, with journalists asking questions from London. The Hague. Brussels. Bonn-Cologne, Geneva and Rome. U.S. correspondents talked with the space travelers on Thursday.

But the ship is flying over a larger area of the world than any previous manned spacecraft, reaching as far north as northern Canada and to the tip of South America in the south

By flying on this course, with high sun angles this late in the year, the astronauts will see nothing but sunlight until the end of the mission on

As the astronauts began their second week in orbit, they also continued the extensive medical and materials processing experiments that have absorbed much of their time on the Things were going so well, that Mission Control told the astronauts on Saturday they were being kept in orbit an extra day to obtain more science data. "That's good news," pilot Shaw responded.

The charge against Joe Robert McDonald was dropped last week after the test showed he had a different blood type than the man who allegedly raped a 19-year-old woman on Oct. 19,

The woman was assaulted in the same Odessa hotel where McDonald was staying during the Permian Basin Oil Show. A laundry ticket with his name on it was found in the room where the rape allegedly took place, the victim identified him, and he

"I think the whole thing was investigated very shabbily, by both the police department and the DA (district attorney). said McDonald, a former police officer. "I've been around law enforcement all my life. I'm very disappointed with the judicial process down there."

McDonald said investigators should have determined from the blood test months ago that he was not the assailant. He said instead, he had to mortgage his house to help pay for his

According to testimony in a July 27 pretrial hearing, the victim and a companion were offered a room at the Holiday Inn by a stranger who wanted to help, citing the typical room shortage during oil shows.

Police began looking for McDonald after finding his laundry

Despite McDonald's inability to explain the laundry ticket, he had no qualms about cooperating with lawmen, he said.

Still, he maintained his innocence and volunteered to "take any and all tests they wanted him to take," Jordan said.

The attorney believed his client from the start. "With him having been in law enforcement, he knew what the But the 44-year-old oilfield equipment salesman told the consequences were of taking the tests if he'd done the thing." Jordan said. "But he was so adamant."

Although tests to determine McDonald's blood type were taken the day of his arrest, by the July hearing - nine months later - they had not been shipped to a Texas Department of Public Safety lab for analysis.

At that hearing, State District Judge Gene Ater ordered the analysis to be completed. But by that time, the age of McDonald's blood sample would have made analysis results invalid, Jordan said.

McDonald had to return to Odessa Nov. 21, the week before his trial was to begin, for new blood tests. The new tests determined that his blood type did not match the assailant's. If that had been done earlier, Ector County District Attorney

Mike Holmes said, McDonald never would have been indicted. Without the crucial blood test, Jordan said. "We would have gone to court to face a very positive-sounding eyewitness. I

The result, McDonald said, cost him $20,000 for his defense and a postponement of his marriage until his case was resolved

Reagan victory is predicted by Bush at dinner

HOUSTON (AP) - Republicans have restored Americans' faith in their government by putting money in their pockets. Vice President George Bush said, predicting President Regan would win the 1984 election for that reason.

Bush, speaking to a crowd of about 700 at a GOP fund-raiser Sunday night, said the Reagan administration had put 3 million Americans back to work this year. Bush was in Houston for a two-day visit. He was to attend a ceremony at an Army Reserve center today Bush said the unemployment rate "is falling faster than in

The country's approval of Reagan's policies can be seen in the "groundswell of patriotism" which followed the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

He credited Reagan with beginning "a real revolution in this country - we turned around the tide of ever-increasing government encroachment on our lives and we began to rebuild our nation's defenses.

He noted the administration has set up a "nationwide interdiction system to stop smugglers at our borders before those insidious drugs even get inside our country.

He also praised Reagan's Committee on Violent Crime. which is designed to investigate organized crime.

Bush said he is anxious for the campaign to begin because he wants to ask Americans the same question that Reagan asked former President Jimmy Carter in the fall of 1980 "Are you better off?" now than when Democrats ran the country.

The Legislature approved the change in the state's dental practice law last spring. Lobbyists for doctors and hospitals say a lawsuit will be filed as soon as a dentist moves to assert his right to practice in a hospital, The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday

O. Ray Hurst, executive director of the Texas Hospital Association, said the real battle is between a small segment of the dental profession and a small segment of the medical profession.

"It's not at all between the hospitals and the dentists, but rather the oral surgeons against the reconstructive plastic surgeons — that's the underlying cause of this

Enterprise zones should be tried

Even though the Enterprise Zone proposal the administration is (finally) pushing in Congress is a waterd-down, pale imitation of the original concept, it deserves more attention that it has received.

The original Enterprise Zone concept, pioneered in England, was breathtaking in its audacity. Starting with the premise that some economically blighted neighborhoods, particularly in older urban areas, already represent something of a dead loss to government, it proposed eliminating almost all taxes and regulations, including payroll taxes, occupational licensure, zoning and unnecessary health and safety regulations in some rundowns neighborhoods. Convert blighted neighborhoods into mini-Hong Kongs, and stand back and see what people can do without the twin burdens of taxes and regulations.

As the idea worked its way through the political meatgrinder in England, it was stripped of many of its most exciting aspects and converted into something more resembling special-interest tax preferences for business in certain neighborhoods. A parallel process in the United States has turned the administration proposal into much the same sort of thing-entitling businesses in 75 zones to be designated during the next three years to tax incentives, slight reductions in employers taxes, eliminating of capital gains taxes on certain kinds of properties, and the use of tax-exempt small-issue industrial revenue bonds.

Still, a tax reduction, even a limited somewhat preferential one, is a tax reduction and offers more hope for genuine improvement in areas of urban blight than all the urband renewal and welfare that has been thrown down the rathole in the last 20 years or so. Any program that lowers the cost of doing business in a certain area will attract a certain amount of business and encourage the development of homegrown businesses.

The administration program as it stands is a rather lukewarm proposal. Still, its's better than nothing, and it's encouraging to note that three Cabinet members-Regan of Treasury, Baldridge of Commerce and Pierce of HUD—were on Capitol Hill recently trying to sell it. If Congress could take a break from shedding crocodile tears about the deficit and dividing the pork barrel, it might even be well advised to pass the bill.

Much of problem in the home

As the public education debate grinds along, a Dallas Morning News survey of Dallas - area teachers underscores a point that cannot get enough underscoring.

It is that, sure, you bet, the public schools are in parlous shape; but no fair jumping on teachers and principals alone when more than a modicum of blame must attach to the Three fifths of the surveyed teachers found their pupils' home environments unconducive to education: 55 percent claim o receive inadequate support from parents. Eighty percent said the instruction process s undermined by disciplinary problems whose roots naturally are in the precepts learned, or unlearned, at home.

Call these opinions if you will, self serving and meant to mitigate the sting of criticism directed at public schools. But similar assessments abound. For instance here is Gene Maeroff, New York Times education writer, in a recent book, "Don't Blame the Kids"

"People take the schools for granted Buyers of suburban homes will usually want to know something about the school system's reputation before closing a deal. But once they take up residence, they show more interest in the frequency of rubbish collections than in the dates of the school board meetings... Higher - income parents are more easily able to put pressure on schools, but actually most of them do not bother. Families at all income levels seem content to remain uninvolved.

Maeroff goes on to suggest that new family patterns - the vast increase in one parent families and (what is often the same thing) families with working mothers - have much to do with parental non - involvement. That's well worth noting. But it isn't the central point

The point for educational reformers to bear in mind is that better teaching will not alone produce better learning. A tendentious way of saying this is that parents will have the kind of school system they demand and deserve - which is doubtless why they haven't lately had much of one

Society, in common with society's schools, could use a little reforming. Which won't alas! - be easy, because how do you pass a law saying: Henceforth All Parents Shall Care Deeply About Their Children's Educations? You don't.

When did the public schools become intolerably sloppy? About the time society in general became intolerably sloppy - the late '60s, an age without manners or standards of any kind.

The disciplinary question bulks large here. It is a fairly new problem. In my own educational era, the 1950s, my classmates and I would no more have considered threatening, or hurling obscenities at, a teacher than we would have pondered seriously - burning down the school.

Why? Because we were splendidly virtuous? Splendidly intimidated is more like it. Had we disported ourselves like so many of today's students, the school would have come down hard on us: after which our parents would have come down on us even harder. Am I wrong in perceiving that things no longer are this way? If so, why do 80 percent of the Dallas area's teachers affirm that "lack of discipline in schools today interferes with instruction"?

Today, as is often remarked, society's tendency is no turn the teacher into a surrogate parent. Here, take the brats: teach 'em; make 'em behave; keep their faces clean, and don't bother us.

H. Ross Perot, chairman of the Texas Select Committee on Public Education. identifies lack of parental involvement as "the Achilles' heel of everything we're trying to do."

Meaning that the committee's reforms can succeed only if parents - meaning society at large - truly want them to.

Which came first, sloppy schools or sloppy parents? It scarcely matters at this point. Both afflictions have conspired to degrade a once - pretty good system of public education. We aren't likely to amend one until we amend the other.

Failing that, all the non - sloppy parents who still exist as a minority breed - will increasingly boycott all the sloppy public schools, opting instead for non - sloppy private schools, or for the growing field of at home instruction. American public education has no sterner challenge than to forfend that fatal day.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Dec. 5, the 339th day of 1983. There are 26 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 5, 1933, prohibition ended as Utah became the 36th state to ratify the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th.

On this date: In 1782, the first president to be born a citizen of the United States, Martin Van Buren, was born in Kinderhook, N.Y.

In 1848, President James Polk triggered the gold rush of 1849 when he announced that gold had been discovered in California. In 1929, the American League for Physical Culture, the first nudist group in the United States, was organized And in 1972, the Nixon administration ordered that airlines search all passengers and carry-on luggage for weapons. Ten years ago: The Nixon administration approved a 2-cent-a-gallon increase in the price refiners charged for heating oil and ordered a penny-a-gallon reduction in the refiners' price for gasoline.

Today's birthdays: The president pro tempore of the U.S. Senate, Republican Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, is 81 years old. Director Otto Preminger is 76. Singer Little Richard is 48.

The danger of not blinking

I have to apologize for being so late with my think piece about the TV film. "The Day After." but I've been thinking so much about it I haven't had to time do anything else.

ABC, which produced the picture, went out of its way not to take sides as to who was responsible for trashing Lawrence, Kansas. They spent $7 million showing us what could happen after an area was mushroomed, but not one buck on what caused the holocaust in the first place.

I think they owed us just one scene between a few survivors discussing the why

The scene could have taken place between Jason Robards, who played the role of a doctor, and the last political science professor alive at the University of Kansas. The men, covered from head to foot in atomic ash, are sitting on a pile of rubble that was once a nursery school 'What the hell do you think happened?" Jason Robards asks the political science 'Nobody blinked,' the professor replies. What does that mean?

Well, it all goes back to the Cuban missile crisis. Remember when Dean Rusk said the Soviets and the U.S. came eyeball to eyeball, and the Russians blinked first? Ever since then our foreign policy was based on the premise that the Soviets would always blink before we did.

Robards says, "I guess we miscalculated

The profesor, looking over the desolation, says, "That would be a fair statement. What the people in Washington refused to take into account was the Soviets considered the missile crisis the biggest defeat they suffered since World War II. They booted out Khrushchev and vowed they would never blink again.'

"Do you want an orange?"

"No, for some reason I feel nauseated. In order not to to blink, the Soviets started an unprecedented nuclear arms buildup. Soon the military on both sides insisted the other in earnest? side had nuclear superiority, so the arms race was on. The thinking in Washington and Moscow was the more deterrents they had, the less chance there was of someone starting a war.

"Why didn't it work?" Jason says.

"It worked for a while. But then the arms talks came, and both sides engaged in playing the numbers game. We promised not to put any cruise and Pershing missiles in Europe if the Soviets reduced the SS - 20s. The Soviets said we had to include British and French missiles in the talks, and we refused. When neither side would blink, we started deploying our new missiles, and the Russians walked out of Geneva."

"Why the hurry?"

"Because our credibility was at stake. Had we not gone ahead with the threat, the Soviets would have said Reagan blinked. If they hadn't walked out, we would have said Andropov blinked

"And that's when the missile race began

"You could say that. They surrounded us with all their nuclear warheads and we surrounded them. We got ourselves in a spot where any spark could set off Armageddon.

"Didn't both sides realize this?

"The leaders were assured by their experts that the other side didn't have the guts to use their nukes because they knew they would also be wiped out in the process. The only way to keep the peace was to build more horrifying weapons until the other side came to its senses.

'So, why are we sitting on the rubble in Lawrence, Kansas, full of gamma rays?"

"I guess we'll never know," the professor says sadly. "It might not even have been a human decision. With a response time of only six minutes to react, the whole thing could have been started by a faulty computer that wouldn't stop blinking.

Constitutions don't come easy

In many countries today, the finding of a workable constitutional formula is an enormously difficult task. Americans ought to recognize this simply by considering the extreme difficulties involved in putting Lebanon back together again. The 1960s type one - man, one - vote formula won't work in Lebanon where there are markedly different communities to be reconciled. The problem occurs in other global regions as well. Sri Lanka recently had severe rioting because of differences between language and religious groups. Indeed strife between language groups has been a constant of political life in the Indian sub - continent for decades, though it is story that isn't widely reported in the American South Africa's problems with its various nationalities are much more familiar, though not well understood in the U.S. As Donald Morris wrote recently in the Houston Post, "victory has produced a nation of 25 million, split not simply into 'black' and 'white', but fractionated into disparate sub groupings, with a mix that varies wildly from one region to another...What might work in Natal has no relevance in the Free State, and the Transvaal's problems bear little relationship to those of the Cape."

South Africa, which faces huge problems in this respect, is doing its best to find a new formula which will make possible greater harmony in future.

In a recent referendum, South Africans overwhelmingly approved a momentous constitutional change which admits 2.6 million "coloreds" and 850,000 Indians to the political process. The new constitutional system was bitterly contested by both the extreme right wing and the Left. However, advocates of the middle way triumphed.

No outsider can prescribe the correct constitutional formula for Lebanon, Sri Lanka or South Africa. However, the result of the referendum in South Africa shows that the electorate there is making a sincere effort to find a workable formula for the future. This effort should be warmly welcomed in the U.S. and Western Europe.

Promotion of harmony in South Ameria is important because the country has immense strategic importance for the West. It is a treasure house of minerals needed by the U.S. and other Western countries, plus Japan. South Africa is the strategic prize on the African continent and the ultimate African target of the Soviet Union. If a Marxist government were installed there. the world power balance would be permanently changed in the favor of the Soviets.

South Africa has a lot going for it, including experienced and sophisticated leaders with sensitivity to U.S. and Western European opinion. Passage of the referendum Nov. 2 should be of help all around, with benefits to the various South African peoples and the security of Western

The holiday season has arrived again bringing a happy time for most of us. Theres color and decorations to magnetize our awareness so we'll stop and browse and maybe buy something from the broad selection of gifts on disply.

Widowed son-in-law is bound by ties of love By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I lost my wonderful wife to cancer. "Angie" was 23, and we had been married for only a year. The love we shared was beyond description. I can't imagine myself loving another the way I loved

However, time has a way of changing things, and I know there is a God who sees, understands and perhaps may have plans for my future, so I keep my trust in him. My problem is my mother-in-law. Angie was Mom's only daughter, and during her struggle with cancer, Mom and I developed a very close mother-son relationship. Now that Angie is gone, Mom considers me "all she has left" of her

I understand her feelings, Abby, but my life must go on. Unfortunately, Mom has grown so dependent on me that I have no opportunity to get interested in anyone else. Friends have offered to fix me up with some nice women, but I don't dare to accept because Mom would be devastated if I started to date. And I hate to think of what would happen if I were to marry again.

So how do I get out of this trap? ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: Your mother-in-law needs to learn how to "let go." First she must let go of her grief so she can let go of you. You could help her by recommending Compassionate Friends, a national support group of parents who have learned how to deal with life's cruelest blow-losing a child. The address is P.O. Box 1347, Oak Brook, Ill. 60521.

You must get on with your life, my friend. Mom may need individual therapy to help her work through her grief, and you need to resume a normal life without feeling trapped or guilty. Good luck and God bless you. The Lord never gives us a heavier load than we can carry.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for the whole neighborhood. A friendly neighbor of ours just got back from spending a year in a tuberculosis hospital.

She visited my home yesterday, and after she left I sterilized everything she had touched. She hugged my children, and now I'm worried that they might have caught the TB bug from her. Is there any danger? Please hurry your answer.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: No TB patient is discharged while he or she is contagious. You are far safer in the company of former TB patients than people who have never been tested for it. A discharged patient knows that he is "negative" (free of infectious germs). And unless a person has periodic tests, he can never be positive that he is negative.

DEAR ABBY: Don't change and don't apologize! The 20th Convention of the National Association of Parliamentarians in San Francisco passed the following

"Whereas, parliamentary law has a language all of its own; and whereas, in olden times the one presiding was the only person provided with a chair, while others sat on benches, hence he was called the Chairman; and whereas, since time immemorial the term 'Mister Chairman' or 'Madam Chairman' has always been employed to differentiate between sexes; and whereas, further effort toward sex differentiation is redundant and contrived; now therefore be it resolved that organizations and parliamentarians of the National Association of Parliamentarians must use the term Chairman instead of 'Chairperson,' and be it resolved that all members of the National Association of Parliamentarians should habitually stress the principle that the word Chairman belongs to the title of the office the same as the title of President

Abby, a person should not be more concerned with his or her sex than the position held. Besides, it sounds contrived and unprofessional. Just thought you'd like to know.

MARLISA BANNISTER, WESTERVILLE, OHIO

DEAR MARLISA: I would indeed. The resolution gets my vote.

(Problems? What's bugging you? Unload on Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, selfaddressed envelope.)

many activities as possible and getting ready for some "feel good" days. Parties are important for us to congregate and relax together.

These holidays are family oriented. Without Christmas December would become another winter month, cold and lonely.

December would become like individuals who are not particularly interested in the holiday of Christmas because there's no song in their air, no star in their sky, no baby's soft cry around them. These are the people who are giving up. They do not look forward to the decorating of the tree, filling socks for Santa Claus, or finding and buying gifts for loved ones and friends. These are the ones who chose a way out -

Adolescent suicide continues to increase. Statistics are not accurate because so many cases go unreported. What could possible cause a young person to want to die? What prompts a beautiful person to leave us?

Depression is a monstrous reason. We have felt this emotion. It grips our minds with such a devastating entrapment that we are unable to reason clearly, make proper decisions and use the skills necessary to overcome its doom. When depression reaches this level, death must look better than life.

The family breaking down through divorce, a sibling's marriage or entering college, physical illness or mental handicaps make suicide seem to be an alternative. Young people are bothered when their parents argue and seem unable to resolve their differences, interests become secondary to competition and values are changed on priority innerchange. The secure family unit breaks down and the parting seems too much to handle at the time.

Jeopardizing interruptions are seldom intended, but they do happen when we ignore our priorities. Even though the interruption is necessary, the timing does not coincide with the frame of mind. Changes cause deep feelings to emerge that we may be unable to handle

Victims of incest can become suicidal because of self - guilt, shame and a lack of self respect. Whenever a young person's privacy and personal innocence is violated, suicide may appear as a good escape from the mental pain.

Handicapped persons can develop a feeling of being in the way of everyone's normal way of life. They have to eat on time while everyone else does not need to follow such a strict diet control. They cannot handle mobility and everyone has to help them reach their destinations. Handicapped people often feel to be a burden and sometimes destroy themselves to free the Peer pressure can hurt a person's self image. It can cause a person to feel ugly, unimportant and a nuisance. Even family members do not pick up on the pain being expressed in moody exchanges, or information withheld because they don't want to be a bother and cause someone else to suffer through disappointment in their predicaments. Fasing come situations alone can be frightening to a young person who needs help but does not know how to ask for it.

Once a person feels negative, it takes a considerable amount of help to change their awareness. But it can be done.

Instead of helping prepare a person to die through suicide some definite steps can help teach a person to live. We can do things differently and make living more attractive this holiday

We can give moral support. This is a strength which is appealing to everyone. We can hold onto power and believe in it: the power of a strong parent, the power of a steady friend, the power of someone with trusted authority such as a minister or a counselor. Certainly, a parent's strong, protective, secure embrace will lead to a fuller life. There's a natural desire to belong to those around us.

We can offer hope by being attentive to those in our presence - family, friends, acquaintances, co - workers. Positive influence provides hope. A steady ally means hope is present. We never give up when hope is near.

We can be generous. This means for us to relax and let go of our inhibitions, to be safe with those "feel good" words, warm embraces and kind wishes. As the logs in a fireplace give generous amounts of heat and entertainment, so we can give charitable gifts of acceptance, cheer and forgiveness. We can give generously to those through telephone, telegram, letter or person - to - person contact. Reach out and touch someone is a healthy message when it is generously given.

Finally, in order for healing to take place, there must be a healer - a person who will be available to cure or restore someone to a sound or healthy condition. Someone who pays attention. Healers are open and willing to share in intimate conversation. They bring meaning and purpose to a relationship. They disclose honest feelings to someone who is ready to share and receive.

Suicidal thoughts are not a phase someone goes through. It is a cry for relief - to be comforted, included to be important to someone and feel good again. Suicidal thoughts are an almost silent communication which takes perception to decipher. Death can be a terrible tragedy when a loved one decides on self destruction. It's hard to get over.

A suggestion is for each of us to hold on tight to our families. Pack your values together and keep them intact. This Christmas can be your best when you pay attention and love

Sensible precautions make Christmas safe

Expressions of anticipation light up little faces, holiday songs play on the radio and in stores, and twinkling decorations appear all over town. Christmas is fast approaching.

However, natural and artificial trees, decoratives candles, wood burning stoves and fireplaces, signs of this festive season, produce hazards which can increase the risk of fire and accidents in the home.

To make this Christmas season a safe one, the Texas Insurance Advisory Association recommends the following sensible

THE TREE Make sure the tree you buy is fresh and deep green in color. Shake the tree to see that the needles do not fall out. If they do, the tree may be dangerously dry.

Heated indoor air can dry out a tree quickly. Keep it outdoors until it is ready for decorating. The tree should he placed in a bucket of water with the trunk sawed off at least one - inch above the original cut.

Inside your home, position the tree away from wood stoves, fireplaces and heating units. Also, keep the tree away from room exits.

Move the tree outdoors when the needles start falling

If you prefer an artificial tree, be sure it has a flame resistant label.

THE DECORATIONS Use only non - combustible and flame - retardant materials. Check strings of lights for fraved or bare wires, cracked sockets or bulbs and loose connections. Be sure they bearn an Underwriters Laboratories UL label. The UL label indicates which light strings and extension cords are suitable for indoor and outdoor use. Do not overload electrical circuits which could overheat wiring and cause a fire. Never trim a metal tree with electric lights. A short illuminate a metal tree. Never leave tree lights burning when no one is at home or when the family is sleeping Place decorative candles out of the reach of children.

The candle arrangements should be kept away from draperies and other easily ignited items. Locate candles out of drafts

FIREPLACE AND WOOD STOVE

Before operating a fireplace or a wood burning stove, make sure the chimney and the flue lining are in good condition. Check to see that the chimney flue is open and free of blockage Do not burn Christmas gift wrappings in a fireplace or wood stove; the paper can ignite suddenly, producing a flash fire.

Keep decorative wreaths and other trimmings away from the flames. Always use circuit in insulation could fireplace and never leave a fire burning unattended or make the tree electrically overnight. Dispose of ashes in 'live." Use spotlights to a closed metal container outside the house.

Keep a fully - charged fire extinguisher handy Every member of the family should be familiar with its location and how to operate it properly. Don't place it next to the tree - you may not be able to reach it if needed.

Keep fire department, police, ambulance and emergency phone numbers posted near your telephone.

Consider installing smoke detectors, particularly in the hallways leading to the bedrooms. Smoke and poisonous gases can overcome and kill sleeping persons before they become aware of a fire. Smoke detectors provide you and your family with the precious extra minutes you need toescape

'The disabled, like everybody else, are susceptible to the rigors of daily life - they, too, fall victim to muggers and other criminals," says Duncan Wyeth. Consumer Activities Director for United Cerebral Palsy. "And because they're disabled, they are too often easy prey

Once a week, usually on Saturday afternoon. approximately a dozen group members meet at the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Philadelphia and Vicinity, properly attired in their gi (prounced "ghee"), the belted pajama - like garment that is the universal uniform of karate, for a 21/2 - hour workout in self - defense.

This is a relatively new program, established by Norm Constantine, 25, a black belt in karate, former and regional administrator of Martial Arts for the Handicapped. Constantine was the victim of a hit - and run accident and remains in a semi - comatose state, but in his absence, volunteers trained by Constantine keep the program running.

What Constantine has been teaching is karate with modifications. A move normally made by someone in an erect position is adapted to the sitting position when necessary. If a person has limited use of a leg, an extra movement with the arm is used. The teaching is modified to fit the individual.

"In some ways, the handicapped have an advantage." Wyeth says. "With crutches, your reach is probably increased by three or four feet, and because you use crutches every day, your body. So does a wheelchair.

"If a mugger grabs your crutch, use him for support and hit him with the other crutch," Wyeth advises. Being in a wheelchair can force the criminal to come down to your level. Kick the attacker and roll your chair away from him or grab the criminal with either your legs or arms and trap him in your wheelchair, punching him about the face.

'But don't overlook the obvious - scream for help your voice is one of the best defenses you have," adds Wyeth. "Learn to use what you have, even if it's part of take advantage of every bit of leverage that crutches and wheelchairs and wobbly legs and constricted hands can provide to wrestle their "attacker" to the ground, all the while yelling for help. "Constantine was a demanding teacher, but we wouldn't want it any other way," said pupil Dewan Jones of Germantown. "Norm had to be tough with us, but we love him for helping us feel better about ourselves - you know, self esteem.

According to Wyeth, "The self - confidence which these sessions build cannot be stressed enough. Many of the UCP clients come into the program with a poor self image, but mastering some of the martial arts skills and techniques gives them greater confidence in themselves and their abilities which carries over into other aspects of their daily living." Cerebral palsy is the most widespread lifetime disability in the nation and affects 700,000 Americans today and 10,000 newborn infants each year, according to UCP officials.

LET'S WALK BACK

If you have had the opportunity to visit a foreign country, one difference strikes you almost immediately upon getting off the plane or ship. People walk, people bicycle, people participate in sports activities - especially children and

Our high standard of living and our automated agreem to have made the United States' population a riding and viewing one, rather than a participating one.

Thirty years ago the average child walked to school. Twenty years ago the child was content to ride on a bus occasionally. Ten years ago he tried to talk dad into giving him the family car once in awhile. Today he is extremely unhappy and often refuses to go to school unless he has his Todays young Americans are not any worse than those of grandpa's time or those living in foreign countries. It's just that they are better off financially. All of us are human beings, subject to human weaknesses, which include a tendency to become lazy when we allow ourselves that luxury.

Most health experts recognize the problem we face in a duxury society that gives incentive to sitting, riding, and watching, rather than actively participating. For our health's sake, we must go back to a way of life in which moderate exercise is a part. We must do whatever is necessary to become physically fit and thereby allow all the organs of our body to function properly. It will not be easy, but we must discipline ourselves for the sake of our health.

rand our children's health. This might be a good time to be objective and critical of your family's living habits. If yours is eating too much, sitting too much, riding too much, and exercising too little, this might be a good time to turn around and go back to some of the activities that were popular twenty or thirty years ago. And when you turn back ... walk back! Your doctor of chiropractic reminds you walking is good for your

Cowboys stop rookie star Warner gets a lesson

SEATTLE (AP) - In his 14th National Football League career start, rookie sensation Curt Warner of the Seattle Seahawks got a lesson about defense from the Dallas

The Cowboys, who have Super Bowl aspirations, held Warner to merely 22 yards, his professional low, on a dozen carries at the Kingdome Sunday.

The result: A 35-10 Cowboys' victory over the Seahawks.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) -Born only last Tuesday, the governor's daughter, Pamela Ashley Brown, has already met the press.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. and his wife. Phyllis George Brown, paraded past about 20 photographers and reporters and 50 startled onlookers in the lobby of the University of Kentucky Medical Center as they checked out Sunday.

The governor and Mrs. Brown, a former Miss America and television personality, were all smiles but the newborn, clad in pink and white, kept her eyes squeezed shut in the glare of the camera lights.

The Browns plan to spend at least one night at the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort before the governor leaves office Dec.

"I think we're going over Thursday," said Mrs. Brown. "I've got a little crib for her over there.

A nasty word

is deficit

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - A nasty word is deficit. It's better to be deaf to it and make believe it isn't there or that the country doesn't care. With the economy improving so smoothly, the Reagan administration seems to be saying that now is a time for rejoicing rather than for dealing with still another problem, especially one whose real impact is many months away.

That's the political approach, and it isn't always appreciated by those who have roots in academe and who make their reputations as economists. Such as Martin Feldstein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Few economic advisers have been so outspoken about an issue, which you might think would put him in accord with the boss, who probably has said more about budget deficits than any president.

But after years in which he constantly reminded the public about deficits and the need to lower them, Ronald Reagan appears to have let the matter cool for a bit. Meanwhile, Feldstein has decided the issue is hot.

For Reagan, there is an election coming up and the economy is on a roll and it looks as if damage from the $200 billion budget deficits won't become serious until 1985. And that, on the political clock, is a long way off.

On the economic clock, however, it is coming up fast, and many an economist "Of course, we love Wilmer, too," said Ms. Fricke, the besides Feldstein thinks it is Country Music Association's 1982-83 female vocalist of the vital that the issue be year, "but we tell everyone we're from Lancaster because we attacked and resolved now. do all our business in Lancaster, our post office box is here and even if it means an increase in taxes

Strange drive nets playoff berth

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer It was about as unpictures que as a touchdown drive could be - three fumbles and an injury to the starting quarterback.

But, somehow, the Miami Dolphins managed to land in the end zone, and at the same time land a berth in the National Football League playoffs.

"It was getting to be more and more a situaton in which we had to control our own destiny." said running back Tony Nathan, who scored the winning touchdown with 3:51 left Sunday in Miami's 24-17 victory over the Houston Oilers. "Our backs were against the ball but we took control of our

The Dolphins, who won the American Conference East title for the 11th time, became the fourth team to secure a playoff berth this season, joining the Los Angeles Raiders, Washington Redskins and Dallas Cowboys. But the victory might be costly for the Dolphins, who lost rookie sensation Dan Marino to a knee injury on their winning touchdown drive.

Meanwhile, other teams continued to scurry for the six remaining playoff berths. In other action Sunday, Buffalo took a 14-9 decision over Kansas City, Green Bay edged Chicago 31-28, Philadelphia upset the Los Angeles Rams 13-9, San Francisco beat Tampa Bay 35-21, Cincinnati whipped Pittsburgh 23-10. Denver routed Cleveland 27-6, Washington hammered Atlanta 37-21, New England blanked New Orleans 7-0; St. Louis trimmed the New York Giants 10-6, Dallas blasted Seattle 35-10 and the New York Jets downed Baltimore 10-6.

The results added five more teams — Baltimore, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Kansas City and San Diego — to the ranks of those eliminated from the playoffs. Already out were Philadelphia, the New York Giants, Tampa Bay and Houston.

Minnesota plays Detroit tonight. In a game last Thursday night, the Raiders beat San Diego 42-10.

Nathan ran five yards for the winning touchdown to rally Miami from a 17-7 third-quarter deficit. The Dolphins, now 10-4, drove 82 yards for the game-winning touchdown. Marino left the game with a knee injury on the play before Nathan's

Marino said later that is knee felt "strained and stiff. We were able to run the ball pretty well in the second half but my passing was awful." He finished the day with 17 completions on 26 attempts for 195 yards.

Mike Kennedy returned an interception of a Bill Kenney pass 22 yards for a fourth-period touchdown and Joe Cribbs rushed for a career-high 185 yards to lift Buffalo over Kansas City. With quarterback Joe Ferguson completing only six of 15 passes for 76 yards, Cribbs provided most of the Buffalo offense with 36 rushes as the Bills improved their record to 8-6

"He timed the play perfectly," said Kenney, who passed for 306 yards in the losing effort. "They gave me a read and I threw it away from the linebacker. I didn't see him come up from behind.

Packers 31. Bears 28

Jan Stenerud kicked a 19-yard field goal with three seconds left to lift Green Bay over Chicago. The victory gave the Packers a 7-7 record in the National Conference Central Division, one game behind Detroit and Minnesota, tied at 7-6. Stenerud's field goal brought him within one of tying George Blanda's career field-goal record of 335. During the course of the afternoon, he missed attempts of 37 and 45 yards. 'I have to admit that early in the game it entered my mind that I was closing in on the record." Stenerud said. "It hadn't been on my mind all week. But on that last kick I was just thinking about winning the game. Eagles 13, Rams 9

Ron Jaworski's 29-yard touchdown pass to Tony Woodruff with 21 seconds left rallied Philadelphia over the Rams and snapped the Eagles' seven-game losing streak. Woodruff fought off cornerback LeRoy Irvin in a corner of the end zone. as the Rams dropped into a first-place tie in the NFC West with

San Francisco with an 8-6 record "Irvin had his hands on the ball first," said Woodruff, who was relegated to the second string this week after dropping several passes in the previous three games. "He jumped sooner than I did. I just tried to get up higher. We both came down and I just took the ball from him. Everybody on this club needed something like this."

Irvin said, "I had the ball in both hands but he got it away from me. He made the play and I didn't."

49ers 35. Bucs 21 Wendell Tyler ran for 102 yards and rookie fullback Roger Craig powered his way to three touchdowns, giving San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana support as the 49ers returned to a first-place tie by beating Tampa Bay.

Montana passed for 227 yards, hitting wide reveiver Dwight Clark for 90, and the 49ers' running game went over the 200-yard mark. One week earlier, in a 13-3 loss to Chicago, the running backs totaled just 41 yards.

Bengals 23, Steelers 10

Cincinnati turned a pair of first-quarter Pittsburgh turnovers into Pete Johnson touchdown runs and an early 14-0 lead and the Bengals went on to beat the slumping Steelers, who lost for the third straight time after seven consecutive

A victory would have assured the Steelers of at least a wild card playoff berth. As it is, they remained one game in front of Cleveland in the AFC Central.

"We have been lousy for three straight games," Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll said. "I don't know what to say. "I wish I could say the Bengals played great. They did play good enough to win. We didn't play well enough. We didn't execute. We just didn't play well on offense, defense or in the kicking game."

Broncos 27, Browns 6

Struggling rookie John Elway fired touchdown passes of 39 and 49 yards to rookie wide receiver Clint Sampson, keeping Denver's playoff hopes alive with a rout of the Browns. The victory gave Denver an 8-6 mark and the possibility of a wild card berth.

Elway completed 16 of 24 passes for 284 yards and two touchdowns in his best performance since his heralded arrival this year as the Broncos' quarterback.

"This was a confidence-builder for me, and I really enjoyed myself today," said Elway, who had lost all five of the previous games in which he was the quarterback of record. The offensive line gave me all kinds of protection, and the receivers ran great routes. I was a lot more relaxed today."

Redskins 37, Falcons 21 Joe Theismann passed for three touchdowns and kicker Mark Moseley set an NFL scoring record as Washington beat turnover-prone Atlanta Moseley kicked three field goals and four conversions for 13 points, giving him 147 points for the year. That surpassed the non-touchdown record of 145 by Jim Turner of the 1968 New

Cardinals 10, Giants 6

Neil Lomax fired a 20-yard touchdown pass to Roy Green while rookie Lionel Washington recovered a fumble and intercepted New York quarterback Scott Brunner twice to lead St. Louis over the Giants.

The crowd was the Giants' smallest turnout since Giants Stadium opened in 1976. There were 51,589 no-shows, breaking by 2.759 no-shows the NFL record set at Atlanta between the Falcons and Green Bay Packers in 1974.

New York quarterback Richard Todd, stung by the degrading comments of Baltimore players following a loss four weeks earlier, passed for the game's only touchdown as the Jets edged the Colts and knocked them out of playoff contention.

The Jets, 7-7, kept alive their longshot playoff hopes with a third straight victory.

Celtics finding Philly

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

After two tough losses to the Philadelphia 76ers this season, the Boston Celtics appear to be getting discouraged against the defending National Basketball Association champions.

The Celtics followed a 92-91 loss at Philadelphia Nov. 19 with a 121-114 overtime defeat Sunday night after leading by as many as 15 points in the first half. It was only the second regular-season victory for the 76ers in Boston in 13 games since the 1979-80 season.

"It's hard to digest a game like this," Celtics center Robert Parish said. "They applied the defensive pressure and gambled a lot, double-teaming us. But you never take anything for granted against the 76ers. They are a very explosive team. They make the big plays.

'Both games we've played them have been good, but we Andrew Toney contributed 18.

came out on the short end both times," added Larry Bird, who had 22 points, 11 rebounds and 13 assists for the Celtics. "I guess at this stage, after two losses, you have to say Philly is the better team. The only other NBA game Sunday night saw Los Angeles whip San Diego 120-99 and Phoenix trip San Antonio 122-106.

"If a player's got any heart, this kind of game will stick in his mind for a long time," Bird said. "We had them down by 15 and should have taken them out of the game then. Instead of playing aggressive in the second half, we played like we didn't want to lose.

"It hurts when you lose one like this."

Moses Malone led all scorers with 29 points, Julius Erving hit 20, Maurice Cheeks and Bobby Jones had 19 each and
